WYCLIFFE "WYC" GROUSBECK
Lead Owner and Governor

WYCLIFFE GROUSBECK has been Lead Owner and Governor of the Boston Celtics since he conceived of, and led, the purchase of the team in late 2002.

Wyc named the group "Banner 17 LLC" to signify his primary goal, the Celtics winning a 17th World Championship. That goal was achieved on June 17, 2008, as the Celtics defeated the Lakers by 39 points and became World Champions for the first time in 22 years.

In 2010 Wyc became Chairman of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, a teaching hospital of Harvard Medical School. It has been a world leader in vision and hearing research, fighting blindness and deafness, for almost 200 years.

In 2013 Wyc co-founded Causeway Media Partners, LP, a private equity firm managing over $340 million, focusing on sports and technology investments. Causeway's investments include Formula E Holdings, SeatGeek, SessionM, Peerfit and Flosports.

Wyc's earlier career involved experience as a venture capital investor in Boston and as a securities lawyer in Silicon Valley.

Wyc and his wife Emilia are involved in a number of charities including Mass. Eye and Ear, the Boston Celtics Shamrock Foundation, Boys and Girls Clubs of Boston, Camp Jabberwocky, National Braille Press, USA Rowing, Robin Hood, Boston Children's Hospital and the Lovelane Special Needs Riding Program.

Wyc holds a bachelor's degree in history from Princeton University (1983), where he rowed on an undefeated crew that claimed the national rowing championship; a law degree from the University of Michigan (1986); and an MBA from Stanford Business School where he was a Miller Scholar (1992). He serves on the NBA Board of Governors, the boards of Partners Heath Care, NBC Sports Boston, Formula E Holdings, and Peerfit, and is the Chairman of the Rhodes Scholar Selection Committee for the New England Region.

H. IRVING GROUSBECK
Managing Partner

H. IRVING GROUSBECK is a Managing Partner of the Boston Celtics as well as an Executive Committee Member.

Father of Managing Partner & Governor Wyc Grousbeck, Mr. Grousbeck is a Consulting Professor of Management at Stanford University's Graduate School of Business, and was formerly co-head of the school's Center for Entrepreneurial Studies. His teaching focuses on an objective means to develop a greater understanding of the issues faced by entrepreneurial companies and individuals. In addition to his professorial duties, Mr.

Grousbeck co-authored the textbook New Business Ventures and the Entrepreneur. From 1981 to 1985, he was a lecturer at Harvard University's Graduate School of Business Administration.

In 1963, Mr. Grousbeck co-founded Continental Cablevision and went on to serve as that company's President from 1964 to 1980 and Chairman of the Board from 1980 to 1985. Continental Cablevision was sold to U.S. West Media Group in November 1996.

Mr. Grousbeck is a graduate of Amherst College and the Harvard Business School. He was awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree by Amherst College in 2000, and by Menlo College in 2015. He serves on a number of private company boards and was formerly a Trustee of Children's Hospital Boston, Newton-Wellesley Hospital, New England Eye Bank, the Hewlett Foundation, and the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education.

MANAGING PARTNERS

STEPHEN PAGLIUCA
Managing Partner

STEVE PAGLIUCA is a Managing Partner and Co-Owner of the world champion Boston Celtics basketball franchise. He serves as Chairman of the Basketball Committee, playing a leadership role in the development of the Celtics basketball strategy and operations. In addition, Steve also serves an alternate member of the NBA Board of Governors.

Mr. Pagliuca is a Co-owner and Co-chairman of the Serie A professional football club, Atalanta Bergamasca Calcio based in Bergamo, Lombardy, Italy.

A highly accomplished business leader, Mr. Pagliuca is the Chairman, Chief Executive Officer and Founder of PagsGroup, a multi asset class investment firm focused on biotech, tech, and high growth companies. He is the former Co Chairman of Bain Capital, a leading global investment firm with approximately $160 billion in assets under management and is currently a Senior Advisor to the firm. An active investor in the media, technology, financial services and healthcare industries, Steve helped to build Bain Capital into one of the world's leading investment companies.

With a focus on helping children in need, Mr. Pagliuca is the President of the Boston Celtics Shamrock Foundation, the charitable arm of the organization. The Shamrock Foundation helps children gain access to housing, healthcare and other services in partnership with local charities. In 2019, Steve received the Ron Burton Humanitarian Award for his outstanding contributions to enhancing the Greater Boston Community. In 2018 he received Harvard Business School Association of Boston Business and Community Leader of the Year Award in recognition of his contributions to numerous nonprofits in Boston and beyond. He also received the American Dream Award from Habitat for Humanity in 2010 for his outstanding contributions to the Greater Boston Community.

Mr. Pagliuca is active in the area of public policy and is a former candidate for the U.S. Senate. He is a frequent contributor on television, radio/podcast and print media providing commentary on global economic issues.

TEAM PRESIDENT

RICH GOTHAM
Team President and Alternate Governor

RICH GOTHAM is in his 21st season with the 17-time World Champion Boston Celtics and his 16th season as team President. In this role, he is responsible for all aspects of the Celtics business operations including sales, marketing, customer service, corporate partnerships, business development, game entertainment, community engagement, communications and public relations, broadcast partnerships, arena relations, and real estate matters. In addition, he works closely with Celtics ownership, basketball operations staff, and the NBA on basketball related matters, as well as team and league initiatives. He succeeded Arnold "Red" Auerbach as Celtics team President and serves on the NBA Board of Governors. Prior to being named Team President, Rich served as the team's Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer.

Since joining the Celtics in 2003, Rich has been recognized for leading the team to new heights off the court while growing team revenues by over 400%. Under his leadership the team has established new records for attendance, ticket sales, sponsorship, merchandise, and television ratings, contributing to the team's first NBA Championship in 2008, as well as eight Eastern Conference Finals, and three NBA Finals appearances. In addition, he led negotiations for the construction and naming rights for the new state-of-the-art Red Auerbach training center in partnership with New Balance, as well as a long-term lease extension with the TD Garden. Rich also negotiated a long-term media rights and equity partnership with Comcast SportsNet (now NBC Sports Boston), one of the largest such deals in NBA league history, and negotiated the team's first jersey patch sponsorship with GE.

Rich and the Celtics have been widely recognized as thought leaders in the business of sports and the team's business achievements under Rich's direction have been chronicled by The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, The Harvard Business Review, Investors' Business Daily, Bloomberg, Reuters, CNBC, and Fox Business News. During the 2008-2009 season, the Celtics were recognized as the top franchise in all of professional sports by The Sports Business Journal.

Under Rich's guidance, the Celtics have significantly increased their efforts to help children in need throughout New England and their programs have been recognized by The White House and US Department of Education. With over 200 events and 140 player appearances annually, the Celtics lead the NBA in community engagement with initiatives that impact over 20,000 children each year. In addition, Rich is very active in multiple charitable and fundraising initiatives on behalf of the Boston Celtics Shamrock Foundation, for which he is a board member.

Rich joined the Celtics after a fifteen-year career in the tech industry, including five years with the global internet media company, Lycos, where he served as Vice President of Sales and Business Development. While at Lycos, he was part of a senior-management team that exceeded Wall Street analyst expectations for revenue and profitability growth for nineteen (19) consecutive quarters and played an integral role in helping to grow the Lycos Network into the most visited website on the Internet in 2001. In addition, he sat on the Board of Directors for the Internet Advertising Bureau participating in the creation of multiple new internet advertising standards that are still in place today.

In addition to his duties with the Celtics, Rich currently serves as a board member for The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, The Make-A-Wish Foundation, and NBC Sports Boston. He also serves as a Trustee at Providence College, his alma mater.

BRAD STEVENS
President, Basketball Operations

BRAD STEVENS begins his third season as the team's President of Basketball Operations and his 11th season overall with the Celtics. He was named as the team's eighth President of Basketball Operations on June 2, 2021.

In his eight seasons as Head Coach for the Boston Celtics he amassed a record of 354-282 (.557) in 636 regular season games that saw the Celtics make three appearances in the Eastern Conference Finals and seven straight trips to the playoffs from 2015-2021. He sits fourth in franchise history for most wins by a head coach behind just Red Auerbach, Tommy Heinsohn and Doc Rivers. His 78 playoff games coached, and 38 wins, are fifth most in franchise history behind Red Auerbach, K.C. Jones, Tommy Heinsohn and Doc Rivers. During his coaching career for the Celtics, he was named the NBA's Eastern Conference Coach of the Month three times (April 2015, February 2016, November 2017) and was also given the honor of coaching the Eastern Conference during the 2017 NBA All-Star Game in New Orleans.

Stevens joined the Celtics after coaching Butler University where he boasted a 166-49 record, four league regular season championships, three league tournament titles and six trips to post-season tournament play. He has the top two single season win totals in Butler and Horizon League history, and he became the only coach in school history to lead a team to the NCAA Division I national championship game which he did twice. Stevens owns two Horizon League Coach of the Year awards and has rewritten the NCAA record book for Best Coaching Starts by Wins. During the 2012-13 season, he moved into the top spot on the six-year list with 165 victories. He captured the five-year record (139), moving ahead of Everett Case of North Carolina State (1947-51) in 2011-12, and he owns the three-year (89) and four-year (117) records. He is second on the two-year list with 56 wins.

Stevens left a position as a marketing associate at Eli Lilly and Company in Indianapolis to pursue a career in basketball coaching. He served in a volunteer capacity in Butler's basketball office during the summer of 2000, before eventually gaining a full-time administrative position under Thad Matta. Stevens joined the Bulldogs' staff in 2000-01 as coordinator of basketball operations, handling a variety of administrative duties. He was offered a full-time assistant coaching position by Todd Lickliter in 2001-02. Stevens worked with Lickliter for six seasons spanning from 2001-07. During Stevens' tenure as an assistant coach with the Bulldogs, Butler compiled a 131-61 record, won three Horizon League regular season championships and made four trips to post-season tournament play.

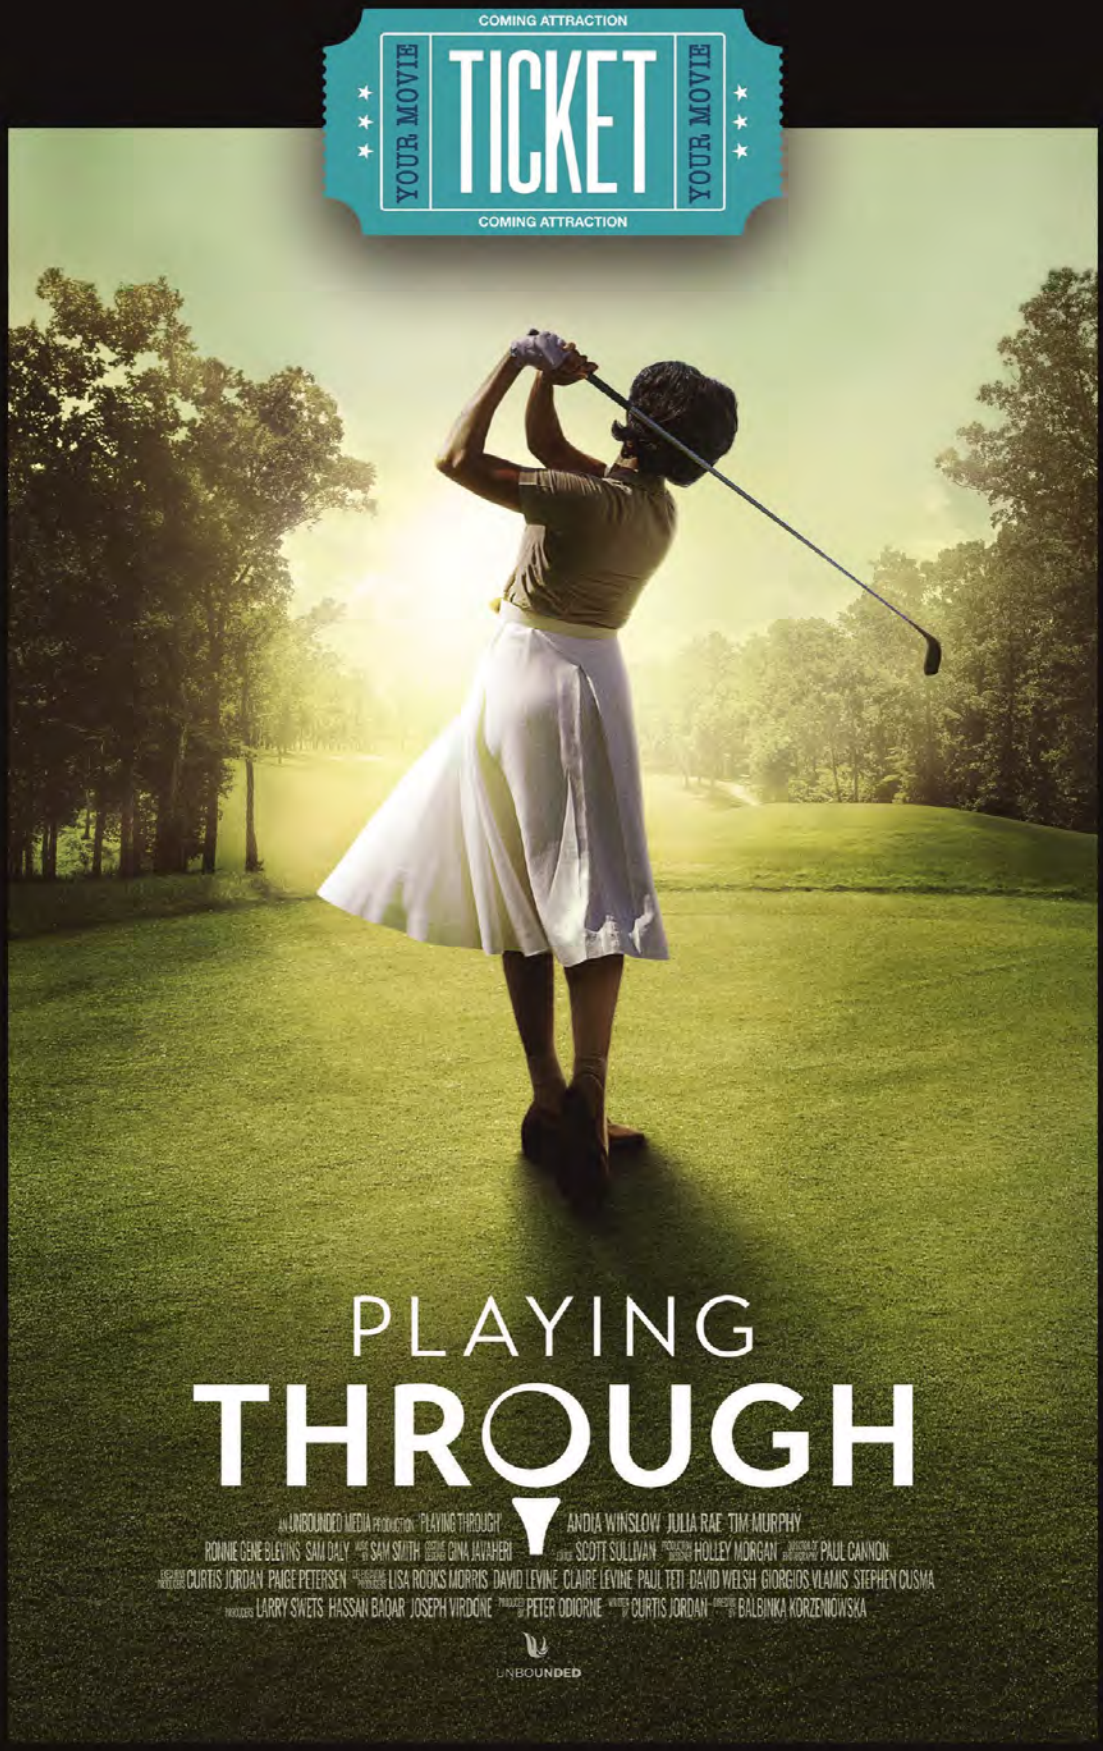

Stevens earned a B.A. degree in economics from DePauw in 1999. He was a four-year member of the basketball team at DePauw, earning the squad's "Coaches Award" in 1998-99. He and his wife, Tracy, have two children, son Brady and daughter Kinsley.

MICHAEL ZARREN
Vice President of Basketball Operations & Team Counsel

A lifelong Celtics fan and season ticket holder, MICHAEL ZARREN is now the Celtics' VP of Basketball Operations & Team Counsel. Now in his 20th year with the team after starting as an unpaid intern, Zarren is widely recognized as one of the leaders in the field of advanced statistical analysis of basketball players and teams, and is an important part of the team's strategic planning and player personnel evaluation processes. Zarren is also the team's salary cap expert and lead in-house counsel for basketball issues, and is responsible for the development of new technologies for team use, including the team's statistical, sports science, and video database processes. He previously also served as the team's in-house counsel for all business-side legal work, including sponsorship agreements, broadcast deals, and vendor arrangements, among other legal matters.

A graduate of Harvard Law School (where he served as editor-in-chief of the Harvard Journal of Law and Technology) and of the University of Chicago, Zarren has also served as a law clerk on the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. Zarren was previously a management consultant for Fortune 500 firms across a wide variety of industries. A native of Swampscott, MA, Zarren is a member of the bars of New York and Massachusetts, of the Board of Trustees of The Waring School, and of the Board of Voter Choice Massachusetts, a charity focused on educating people about improvements to our nation's voting systems, particularly including ranked choice voting.

AUSTIN AINGE
Assistant GM

AUSTIN AINGE enters his 16th season with the Celtics in various roles. Ainge has been a scout, Head Coach of the Maine Red Claws of the NBA Development League (2009-11), Director of Scouting, Director of Player Personnel and now Assistant General Manager. Ainge has previously worked at Southern Utah University where he was responsible for perimeter players, recruiting, player development, video breakdown, and developing game plans. Before coaching he had a very successful playing career at Brigham Young University, where he was a two-year captain and won two Mountain West Conference Championships. While at BYU Austin went to three NCAA tournaments and one NIT. His senior year Austin was one of the top three point shooters in the nation and led the conference by shooting .525 from behind the arc in conference play.

Before playing at BYU, Austin put his basketball career on hold and served a two-year mission for his church, living in and serving the communities in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic where he learned to speak fluent Spanish. Austin is married to the former Crystal Bluth and has three sons, Andre, Finley, and Otto.

ALLISON FEASTER
VP, Player Development And Organizational Growth

ALLISON FEASTER begins her fifth season with the Celtics as the team's Vice President of Team Operations& Organizational Growth. Feaster came to the Celtics after spending three seasons working for the NBA, where she last served as Player Personnel & Coach Relations Lead. She also completed the NBA's Basketball Operations Associate Program in 2017.

Feaster had an illustrious playing career where she played in the WNBA from 1998-2008 becoming the first Ivy League player ever selected in the WNBA Draft when she was taken with the fifth overall pick in the 1998 WNBA Draft (Harvard University) by the Los Angeles Sparks. In her four years at Harvard, Feaster was the first player in any sport to be honored as three-time Ivy League Player of the Year and Ivy League Rookie of the Year.

Feaster also played 17 seasons in Europe where her professional career spanned four different countries (Portugal, France, Spain and Italy) with nine teams from 1998 until her retirement in 2016

Beyond the court, Feaster serves as a co-lead for Boston Celtics United, the Celtics' social justice initiative to impact social and racial inequities in Black and Brown communities in Greater Boston. She also serves as a global advocate for sport, including serving as a Sports Envoy for the US Department of State, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs and is an avid champion of the advancement of women and girls.

2023-24 ROSTER BREAKDOWN

BY TAYLOR SNOW

THE BALL HANDLERS

The ball-handling position is arguably the most important role on the basketball court. These are the players who are responsible for facilitating the offense and controlling the pace. Several Celtics are capable of handling the ball; however, there are five guys in particular who specialize in that role.

Jrue Holiday

Boston made a massive last-minute roster move just before the start of training camp by trading for a new primary ball handler in Jrue Holiday. The 14-year veteran brings a long list of accomplishments to the table, along with top-notch work ethic and leadership.

Last season, Holiday earned his second career All-Star nod, his fifth consecutive All-Defense selection (including his third as a member of the First Team), and his third Twyman-Stokes Teammate of the Year Award in a four-year span. This all came after averaging 19.3 points, 7.4 assists 5.1 rebounds, and 1.2 steals per game as the lead point guard on a Bucks team that boasted the best record in the league.

The last Celtics player to put up such prolific single-season assist numbers was Rajon Rondo, who's also the only member of the organization to reach that mark in the last 30 years. There's no reason why that number should dip much for Holiday. He has never been surrounded by so many elite shooters and so many scoring options to whom he can distribute.

Holiday's offensive presence should also take some of the pressure off All-NBA wings Jaylen Brown and Jayson Tatum while complementing both of their games.

Derrick White

Midway through the 2022-23 season, Marcus Smart suffered an ankle sprain which sidelined the starting point guard for 11 games. That not only opened the door for Derrick White to step in as the team's primary ball handler but also seemed to be a turning point in his season.

During Smart's absence, White averaged 20.1 points, 5.8 assists, and 4.6 rebounds per game, and earned an Eastern Conference Player of the Week nod. He continued to produce impressive numbers, even after Smart returned, and was one of the team's top playmakers throughout the rest of the season.

This season, White will likely play a similar role, whether he's starting at shooting guard or serving as Holiday's backup point guard. Either way, he'll see his fair share of ball-handling responsibility.

On the other end of the floor, White and Holiday will make up arguably the most feared defensive backcourt in the league. Last season, they took up two of the four guard spots on the All-Defensive team, Holiday being an elite ballhawk and White being the best shot-blocking guard in the entire league.

Payton Pritchard

This past offseason, the Celtics lost two high-minute ball handlers (Smart and Malcolm Brogdon) while gaining only one back (Holiday). That means there will be minutes up for grabs at the point guard spot, and Payton Pritchard is in a great position to snag some of them.

Pritchard's role was inconsistent last season, but that had little to do with the quality of his production and more to do with the abundance of talent the C's had at the position. He always stepped up when called upon, including in the regular-season finale when he earned a start and delivered his first career triple-double.

There may not be another player on the team who is more eager to prove himself than Pritchard is heading into this season. And his track record, dating three years back to his rookie season, speaks for itself. He's a career 40.0 percent shooter from 3-point range, an elite dribbler, and a strong passer, and he's in line to carve out a solid role now that the point guard log jam has been cleared up a bit.

Dalano Banton

Dalano Banton left a historic impression on the Celtics in the second-to-last game of the 2022-23 regular season when the then-Raptors' point guard exploded for 10 points on 4-for-4 shooting from the field in the final 3:32 of action, his only minutes of the game. It marked the second-fewest minutes logged in a double-digit scoring effort on perfect shooting in NBA history.

A few months later, the Celtics snatched Banton out of the free agency pile and brought the former Massachusetts prep school standout back to the Bay State.

The third-year guard is an exciting offensive player, who can gallop upcourt in transition, drive through contact and finish at the rim, and can also operate as a pick-and-roll ballhandler. He's extremely long for his position, measuring in at 6-foot-9 with a standing reach of just over nine feet.

Celtics fans will also be pleased to know that Banton's favorite player growing up was Rajon Rondo, after whom he modeled his passing game.

JD Davison

Returning in his second season on a two-way contract is 20-year-old point guard J.D. Davison.

The 2022 second-round pick spent most of last season in the G League where he ranked among the top five in both total assists (227) and assist average (8.7) with the Maine Celtics.

Davison also saw limited action in 12 regular-season NBA games where he had a few opportunities to show off his passing skills and explosive athleticism. On top of that, he's led the Summer League in total assists in each of the last two years.

Davison will likely see himself in a similar role this season, as the youngster continues to develop while splitting his time between Portland and Boston.

THE WINGS

Wings are often the most versatile players on the floor and are relied upon to take on a heavy scoring load. Defensively, they'll typically be tasked with suppressing elite scorers on opposing teams. Depending on their skill set, they may also be assigned ball-handling duties or they may slide into the frontcourt to take on opposing bigs. The Celtics have seven players who will be taking on that role this season.

Jayson Tatum

Perhaps the most well-rounded wing league-wide resides in Boston, and his name is Jayson Tatum. He can score from anywhere on the floor, he can defend any position, he can rebound, he can make plays for himself and for others, and the list goes on from there.

Tatum is coming off a historic season during which he became the first player in Celtics history to log a 30-point-per-game season, and he did so while also leading the league in total points. On top of that, he paced the team in rebounds, 3-point makes and free throws, and was second in assists and steals.

This season, JT will look to continue to lead the way in those areas, while also potentially taking on more ball-handling duties and leadership responsibilities now that Marcus Smart is gone.

In the last couple of seasons, Tatum has risen as an MVP candidate while also coming so close to his first NBA championship. If he can continue to improve just as he has in each of his previous six years, maybe lucky No. 7 will be his year to be a league MVP and a champion.

Jaylen Brown

Having two All-NBA players in the same position group on the same team is almost unheard of, but that's exactly what the Celtics have in Tatum and his wingmate, Jaylen Brown. JB is also coming off a career year during which he averaged 26.6 points, 6.9 rebounds, 3.5 assists, and 1.1 steals per game while shooting 49.1 percent from the field, earning him All-NBA Second Team honors.

Combined, those two averaged 56.7 PPG, while no other duo in the league (minimum 65 games played together) even reached 50.0 PPG. The scary part is they are both just entering their prime playing years.

Entering year eight, Brown now holds the distinction of being Boston's longest-tenured player, and he, too, will be relied upon to help lead this team. The soon-to-be 27-year-old has a little extra incentive this season now that he has a nice new contract extension in hand, and he's all-in on helping the C's achieve their championship goals.

Sam Hauser

Sam Hauser broke into the rotation last season and gave the Celtics 6.4 points per game off the bench while averaging 16.1 minutes in 80 appearances. He made 140 3-pointers at an impressive 41.8 percent clip and made 40 of his 61 attempts from inside the arc.

Hauser also played an underrated role on the defensive end. Teams often underestimated him and targeted him in individual matchups, but that approach generally didn't pay off, as Hauser led the league with a 106.4 defensive rating.

When given substantial minutes, Hauser was a major scoring contributor. He averaged 15.5 points per game during his eight starts, which ranked third on the team behind Tatum and Brown among players with at least five starts. That included back-to-back, career-high, 26-point efforts to close out the regular season. He'll look to pick up where he left off as a guy who can provide an extra scoring punch.

Oshae Brissett

Oshae Brissett is somewhat of a special case on this list because of how interchangeable he is either as a wing or a big.

Brissett is a slashing 4, so he's not the type of wing who will be consistently camping out beyond the arc. On the other end, he's an exceptionally versatile defender who can guard guys on the perimeter and in the paint.

The 25-year-old Toronto native spent his last three seasons in Indiana, where he averaged 8.1 points and 4.5 rebounds per game in 153 appearances, including 43 starts. He has a strong rebounding presence on both ends and his 5.4 offensive rebound percentage last season ranked in the 83rd percentile.

Brissett should be a solid addition to the frontcourt and his versatility will allow him to play somewhat of a hybrid big/wing role.

Svi Mykhailiuk

The C's added an extra sharpshooter in early September by signing five-year veteran Svi Mykhailiuk. The Ukrainian wing spent last season split between New York and Charlotte and shot 42.4 percent from long range combined for both clubs.

Like Hauser, Mykhailiuk also put up big numbers when given an increased role. He started the last seven games for the Hornets, during which he averaged 17.3 points, 4.3 rebounds, 5.3 assists, and 1.4 steals per game.

Those are all nice numbers, but the most important one he put up all season was his 50.0 percent clip on open 3-point attempts, which ranked second in the NBA behind Luke Kennard's mark of 51.9%. A shooter like that should thrive on a team with elite spacing such as the Celtics.

Lamar Stevens

Another early-fall addition was Lamar Stevens, a fourth-year wing who has an opportunity to be a viable backup for the Jays.

Stevens is a totally different type of player compared to Brown and Tatum in the sense that he is more of a defensive dog than a high-volume scorer. But every team needs those defensive dogs.

Stevens played his first three seasons in Cleveland after going undrafted in 2020, and he saw his role increase year over year. His hustle on the defensive end earned him 25 starts last season for a 51-win Cavs squad.

The Celtics recently got a taste of Stevens' impact during a March 6 matchup in Cleveland where he grabbed six offensive rebounds in the fourth quarter and overtime, and also made a go-ahead and a game-winning basket down the stretch in overtime, during a 118-114 Cavs victory.

It'll be nice to have him on Boston's side now.

Jordan Walsh

Most Jordan Walsh draft talk centered around the 19-year-old's NBA-ready defensive skill set. However, the second-round pick may have more to offer than just that, as indicated by his Summer League performance.

Walsh led Boston's Summer League squad with 18.0 points per game, which included a 25-point outburst against the Lakers. He was also the most prolific 3-point shooter on the team, knocking down 11-of-27 from deep for a 40.7 percent clip – a vast improvement from the 27.8 percent clip he logged during his lone year in college.

It will take more than a special summer for Walsh to crack Boston's rotation, but he is certainly an option for Joe Mazzulla to call upon.

THE BIGS

As their title indicates, the bigs are the largest players on the floor. They're responsible for banging bodies in the post, protecting the rim and using their high vantage points to communicate to the defense. The Celtics have five players who share this role (5.5 if you include Brissett).

Kristaps Porzingis

One of the 'big'gest acquisitions of the offseason was the addition of Kristaps Porzingis. The 7-foot-3 Latvian brings both immense size and skill to the Celtics' frontcourt and gives them a third star to place alongside Brown and Tatum.

Porzingis is fresh off his best NBA season after averaging a career-high 23.2 points to go along with 8.4 rebounds, 2.7 assists, and 1.5 blocks per game. He also shot a career-best 49.8 percent from the field along with a 38.5 percent clip from 3-point range.

Porzingis gives the C's a third high-volume scoring option, while most other teams have two at best. He's someone who can score all over the court and should add a new layer of production to Boston's offensive system with his ability to make shots from the post.

Porzingis should also give the Celtics a boost on the defensive end, where last season he ranked among the top five in pick-and-roll defenders while also being a top-tier shot-blocker.

Although he had a minor offseason hiccup in the form of plantar fasciitis, Porzingis is expected to enter training camp fully healthy and ready to go. And having just turned 28 in August, his best years could be yet to come.

HelpCureHD aims to help improve the quality of life for those affected by Huntington's Disease by contributing financial, emotional, and mental support while trying to find the cure.

THE PROBLEM

There is no cure for Huntington's Disease. Currently, there is a 50/50 chance a child could inherit the disease if a parent has HD in their family line.

There is a way to stop the gene from being passed on, through in vitro fertilization, or IVF. A procedure that implants embryos that do not have the HD gene can cost upwards of $25,000 - $30,000. This treatment is the only way parents who are at risk can guarantee their biological child will be HD-free.

OUR GOALS

- Provide the finances for families who are at-risk and in financial need and are willing to undergo IVF in order to stop the HD gene from being passed on in their family line.
- Our broader focus is to continue developing partnerships with fertility clinics across the country and raising funds to help cover these costs for many more families.
- HelpCureHD has already awarded over 130 families through its grant program. That is over 130 families and future generations that will NEVER have HD.

Al Horford

To be entering year 17 in the NBA is a feat in and of itself. But to be entering year 17 potentially in a starting role? That's superhuman stuff. And that's where Al Horford finds himself as he embarks on another year with the C's.

Horford showed little sign of slowing down in year 16. In fact, it was one of the most impressive seasons of his career. Horford fully bought into his role as a 3-point specialist on the offensive end, making a career-high 145 3-pointers (his previous high was 99) at a remarkable 44.6 percent clip, good for the second-best percentage in the league.

On the defensive end, he continued to step up to the challenge by taking on some of the best bigs in the league such as Giannis Antetokounmpo and Joel Embiid.

The addition of Porzingis may lessen Horford's production in some areas, but it should also enhance the 37-year-old's ability to space the floor when the two of them share the court.

Luke Kornet

One of the guys who helped fill in for Rob Williams last season was Luke Kornet, who played an important and underappreciated role. Having a viable backup big is essential, considering how it is the most physically demanding position on the court and Kornet was always available to provide solid minutes. Luke Kornet is fully capable of taking on that role, as he proved throughout last season when helping to fill in for an injured Rob Williams.

The 7-foot center strung together some strong outings in November and December, which included a 15-point, eight-rebound, four-block effort Nov. 16 in Atlanta.

Should the Celtics need to give any rest days to Porzingis or Horford, it's reassuring knowing that they have a dependable backup to turn to in Kornet.

Neemias Queta

Two out of the organization's three two-way roster spots were filled by big men, including last season's G League MVP runner-up, Neemias Queta. The 7-foot center was the best player on the best team in the league, averaging 16.8 points, 8.8 rebounds, 2.4 assists, and 1.9 blocks per game while leading the Stockton Kings to a league-leading 25-7 record.

Queta is an elite rim protector, as he proved at Utah State where he set nearly every shot-blocking program record, was a two-time Mountain West Conference Defensive Player of the Year, and was a national finalist for DPOY.

The first Portugal native in NBA history will split his time this season between Boston and Maine with the hope of providing an energetic boost for both squads.

TD GARDEN

TD Garden, owned and operated by Delaware North, first opened its doors to the public on September 30, 1995. Located in the heart of the City of Boston and convenient by public transportation, TD Garden is an attractive destination for locals and Boston visitors alike.

In the 20 plus years since its opening, New England's premiere sports and entertainment arena hosts approximately 3.5 million people and 200 events annually. It is the proud home of the NHL's Boston Bruins, an original six franchise, and the NBA's storied Boston Celtics. Thanks to these high-profile tenants, TD Garden's rafters house more championship banners than any other professional sports arena in the country.

In addition to world-renowned concerts, sporting events, family shows, wrestling, and ice shows, the arena has played host to countless marquee events, including the Democratic National Convention, NHL All-Star Game, NCAA Frozen Fours, NCAA Women's Final Four, U.S. Gymnastics Olympic Trials, U.S. Figure Skating Championships and ISU World Figure Skating Championships, among others. TD Garden is proud to continue to attract these types of high caliber events to Boston and, in turn, generate more than $365 million in direct economic impact to the Greater Boston region over the last 20 years.

TD Garden's parent company, Delaware North, continues to be committed to reinvesting in TD Garden and making the arena the high watermark for best in class arenas in both experience and service. In 2018, Charlie Jacobs, CEO of Delaware North's Boston Holdings, along with TD Garden president Amy Latimer, announced a massive expansion of the 23-year-old arena taking place over the next two years. The $100 million private investment will provide a combined 50,000 square feet of additional space on all levels of the building and marks the 'Legendary Transformation' of TD Garden and the fan experience for generations to come.

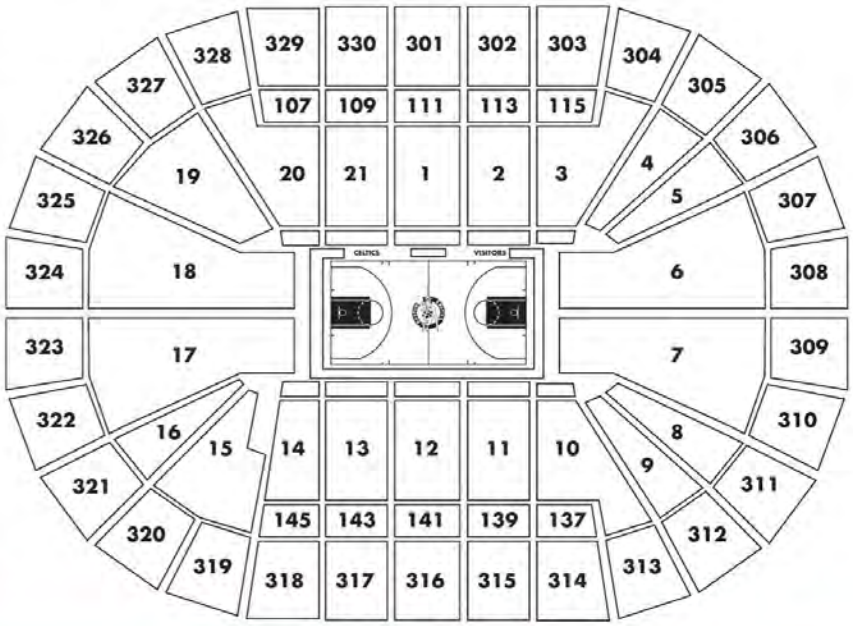

Along with the addition of new space, comes the opportunity to introduce a new brand and a redefinition of The Premium Club, now known as 'Boston Garden Society' – Boston's newest oldest sports and social club. Boston Garden Society is a commitment to a new tradition of sports and entertainment for the Boston business community and beyond, coming in the form of transformed spaces as well as upgraded amenities and experiences over the next few years.

Extending the guest experience beyond the four walls of TD Garden is paramount to it its leadership, which is why Delaware North and Boston Properties broke ground on a joint venture project called The Hub on Causeway in 2016. The Hub on Causeway a 1.5 million square foot mixed-use project that is being constructed on the 2.5-acre site of the original Boston Garden. This transit-oriented development, featuring retail, office space, hotel, and residential building, is a significant investment that will bring substantial improvements to North Station, create major economic impact for the area and strengthen the viability of this important district in the City of Boston.

TD Garden's all-new, state of the art digital marquee on the exterior of the arena solidifies its place as the 'gateway' to the City. The digital marquee is a 3,000 square foot LED screen that is integrated with the arena's pre-existing exterior lighting elements and providing the public with real time game updates, upcoming event notifications, and amplifies community initiatives that are supported by Garden Neighborhood Charities, TD Garden's philanthropic arm.

Delaware North, owner and operator of TD Garden, is one of the largest privately-held hospitality and food service companies in the world. Founded in 1915 and owned by the Jacobs family for more than 100 years, Delaware North has global operations at high-profile places such as sports and entertainment venues, national and state parks, destination resorts and restaurants, airports, and regional casinos.
