DUNCAN LECTKA

THE 1969 ISSUE OF THE BUFFALO BILLS YEARBOOK IS DEDICATED TO THE MEMORY OF DUNCAN LECTKA

Born March 15, 1921. Died Feb. 12, 1969.

Whether sparring in a brotherly boxing match . . . taking a left-handed swing at a baseball . . . running with a football . . . landing a Navy plane on an aircraft carrier in darkness . . . coaching along the sidelines of high school playing fields . . . scouting potential major league baseball stars . . . chasing for a point on a paddle-racquets court . . . or selling a football game ticket, Dunc Lectka carried but one banner. That of the competitor.

He embraced the challenge of achieving victory . . . Defeat only made tomorrow's challenge more desirable.

He achieved man's greatest victory of life . . . He earned the love and respect of those whose lives he entered.

This booklet is hardly a proper medium of dedication from those of the Buffalo Bills to whom Dunc was friend and fellow worker.

It is so designated only because its pages contain information about Dunc's kind of people--competitors.

THE PRESIDENT . . .

OWNER RALPH C. WILSON, JR.

Smiles were the fashion. Handshakes and hugs were in vogue. This was the post-Super Bowl scene in the New York Jets dressing room.

Among the more "stylish" visitors was Ralph C. Wilson, Jr., owner of the Buffalo Bills.

To appreciate Wilson's elation one must know the history of the American Football League and those who had the courage to start it.

Wilson was one of the original AFL owners, one of those whose gamble in expanding pro football's horizons was considered so great that the term "The Foolish Club" was coined.

Wilson already held a minority interest in the NFL's Detroit Lions when he elected to place an AFL franchise in Buffalo, a city rejected by the NFL 11 years earlier.

He made it payoff by putting together a championship winning organization. The Bills won the AFL title in 1964 and 1965 as well as the Eastern Division laurel in 1966.

All that was lacking last January 12 when an AFL team won its first Super Bowl game was that it was New York instead of Wilson's Bills.

The Super Bowl remains Wilson's primary aim in football, particularly now that the merger of the AFL and NFL that he worked so tirelessly on has been achieved.

"I can't think of any bigger challenge in pro football than aiming at winning the division, league, and Super Bowl within a few weeks of one another," states Wilson.

The tall Detroit native is a man of diverse interests. He's a thoroughbred horseman as well as a hockey fan. But nothing surpasses his dedication to the game of football.

When the Bills play, he's present. Even the necessity of an overnight flight from Europe hasn't kept him from his accustomed pressbox seat for home games or his sideline walking area on the road.

That Super Bowl date is still to be achieved.

THE ORGANIZATION . . .

ROBERT T. LUSTIG

When Bob Lustig and Ralph C. Wilson, Jr., commenced their working relationship twenty-one years ago professional football was their Sunday afternoon relaxation and Monday morning discussion.

The advent of the American Football League changed that. Wilson undertook building a franchise in Buffalo. Lustig, at first, limited his activities to signing college talent while the internal organization was being pieced together.

By 1964 Lustig no longer was a Detroit-to-Buffalo commuter but the man-in-charge of the Bills front office. Since then he has added the title of General Manager to those of Vice President and Director.

The role is demanding in dedication and ability. The 45-year-old one-time college baseball player meets the challenge with a firmness of purpose, a ready wit, and soft words.

Lustig sees the role of top operational officer as one who lives two lives annually.

"For thirty-eight weeks you plan, plot, map, debate, negotiate, sign, draft, trade, hire, fire, buy, and sell, always with producing a winner in mind," he explains.

"Then for 14 games you live and die with every twist and turn of fortune on the football field. The taste of defeat is worse than ashes. And time runs away with the victories all too soon."

Looking back upon the early days of the AFL in light of the quickly approaching merger of the two professional football leagues, Lustig wonders at the temerity of the upstart AFL.

"We certainly didn't have much to offer in prestige. Still we sailed right in," he recalls.

Back in those pioneer years Lustig's first signee was Michigan halfback Darrell Harper. And Harper, much to Lustig's satisfaction, was on Buffalo's 33-man roster when the AFL began its first season.

BILLS FRONT OFFICE

At that time, Patrick J. McGroder and Jack Horrigan, who share with Lustig the title of Vice President, were also involved with the Bills--but not as members of the organization.

McGroder, a successful Buffalo businessman, was serving as the city's sports co-ordinator. Horrigan was assigned to cover the Bills as a sports writer for the Buffalo Evening News.

McGroder joined the Bills in '62 as a member of the Board of Directors as well as vice president. He handles the club's advertising and other special duties at a management level.

He brought with him a background in sales and an interest in professional football that goes back more than two decades. He once came close to securing an NFL franchise for Buffalo and has remained friends with Pittsburgh's Art Rooney and Chicago's George Halas through the years.

Between the time Horrigan left the newspaper field and joined the Bills, he spent three years in charge of the American Football League's public relations department in New York city.

Horrigan, a Buffalo native, was named Vice President in charge of Public Relations and a member of the Board of Directors in June, 1966.

The third department under Lustig's command has a new head. Jim Cipriano, for better than a decade the Assistant Business Manager of Athletics at the University of Pittsburgh, joined the Bills as Ticket Director in April of this year.

The one-time Marine Corps member succeeded the late Duncan Lectka, the popular and capable director of that department for five years.

Cipriano, prior to entering the college ranks, learned the ticket business working for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in his native Youngstown, O., and with the Pennsylvania Railroad in Pittsburgh.

COACH RAUCH & COMPANY . . .

1969 BUFFALO BILLS COACHING STAFF

Kneeling: Bill Miller, Marvin Bass, and Head Coach John Rauch. Standing: Bugsy Engelberg, Claude Gibson, Ralph Hawkins, and Ray Malavasi.

To John Rauch the past is irretrievably behind. His three-year Oakland record as pro football's winningest coach he views with detachment.

And he looks upon Buffalo's 1-12-1 record of '68 in the same light.

"The only thing that counts now is the present and what we can do to return the Bills to football respectability as quickly as possible," he insists.

To that end, Rauch has put together a six-man staff that he feels "combines experience, youth, knowledge, and the ability to teach."

Two of his assistants, Marvin Bass and Ray Malavasi, both have head coaching experience. Bass, who handles the offensive line, was head coach and athletic director at William & Mary and South Carolina. He also held the dual position of General Manager-Head Coach of the Montreal Beavers of the Continental League.

Malavasi succeeded Mac Speedie as head coach of the AFL's Denver Broncos in '66 and did a commendable job. He handles the defensive line.

End coach Bill Miller and defensive backfield mentor Claude (Hoot) Gibson played under Rauch at Oakland while kicking coach Bugsy Engelberg was a member of the Raider staff in '68.

Ralph Hawkins, the new linebacker coach, brings to the staff a strong college coaching background. He was on the staffs at Southern Methodist, Kentucky, Maryland, West Point, and Cincinnati.

In moving from the player to the coaching ranks Miller returns to the team he led in pass receiving in '63. He caught 69 passes that year, a Bills record that still stands.

Last year Gibson tutored the Boston Patriots defensive backs. The unit became known as "Gibson's Gremlins", a tribute to his instructing.

In age, the staff ranges from Engelberg's exceedingly youthful 23 years to Bass' vibrant 49 birthdates. Rauch, himself, is 41 while Malavasi is 38, Gibson 30, Hawkins 34, and Miller 29.

Rauch believes in the head coach being involved in the actual practice field instruction.

"To me there are only two kinds of head coaches," explains Rauch. "There's the coach who is physically involved in the teaching on the field. The other kind does no actual day-to-day handling of the team but rather coordinates while his staff works out the details almost exclusively.

"I just feel a head coach is better off when he has a finger on the pulse of the team and, particularly, in the case of quarterbacks." Rauch will handle the Bills offensive backfield.

Rauch has proven his is a winning method.

THEY KEEP THE BILLS FIT AND FITTED

TONY MARCHITTE

ED ABRAMOSKI

RON KRAUZA

Longevity in sport is a sign of a job well done. It is significant therefore that Buffalo Bills Trainer Eddie Abramoski has been with the club since its inception 10 years ago.

His equipment manager sidekick, Tony Marchitte, joined the organization a year later. And his assistant, Ron Krauza, is now in his sixth season as a Buffalo Bill.

Abramoski moved from the football field to the training room as a Purdue University sophomore. A back injury ended his playing career. Since then, he has devoted himself to acquiring medical knowledge. He headed the University of Detroit training department and was an assistant at West Point and with the Detroit Lions before coming to Buffalo.

BILLS	7	0	0	0	–	7
PATS	0	3	10	3	–	16

The Bills began the season with an all-rookie backfield of Dan Darragh at quarterback, Max Anderson at halfback, Ben Gregory at fullback, and Haven Moses at flanker. Darragh directed the club to a touchdown in the opening sequence with tight end Paul Costa scoring on a 6-yard reverse. That was it for the day. Three field goals by Gino Cappelletti and a 45-yard touchdown jaunt by Boston rookie halfback R.C. Gamble gave the Patriots the victory margin.

George Atkinson, a rookie Oakland cornerback-punt returner scored one touchdown and set-up two others with three spectacular punt returns in a five minute span of the first quarter. Atkinson started the Raiders on their rout with an 86-yard scoring return. His other first quarter runs were for 52 and 49 yards, setting up touchdowns by halfback Pete Banaszak and split end Warren Wells. Bills Head Coach Joe Collier was replaced by Harvey Johnson following the game.

Pass interception returns for touchdowns by cornerback Charley King and linebacker Al Beauchamp within 16 seconds of one another were the key plays in Cincinnati's win. The Bengals trailed the Bills, being directed by Harvey Johnson for the first time, 14-13, when King picked off Kay Stephenson's pass in the closing seconds of the third quarter. Dan Darragh, who had left with an arch injury, then returned only to be intercepted by Beauchamp. The Bills' Mini Max Anderson scored his second touchdown of the game on a 100-yard kickoff return.

Kansas City soccer-style kicker Jan Stenerud missed an extra point attempt as the Bills and Chiefs exchanged first quarter touchdowns. But he more than redeemed himself from that point on as he accounted for all of the game's remaining points with four field goals of 18, 12, 16, and 15 yards. Kansas City, with rookie fullback Robert Holmes and halfback Mike Garrett sharing the load, remained on the ground most of the game.

With injury-hobbled Dan Darragh directing the attack, the Bills rallied in the final two minutes of play to gain a 14-14 tie with the Miami Dolphins. Darragh, with both ankles and his throwing arm hurt, took the Bills 80 yards in 12 plays. Tight end Paul Costa was his principle target, catching four passes for 53 yards. Halfback Gary McDermott pulled in a three-yard pitch for the score. Then flanker Ed Rutkowski replaced Darragh and tossed a two-point conversion into McDermott's arms to knot the score with 18 seconds remaining.

Boston's Patriots completed only four passes but two of them were turned into touchdowns by tight end Jim Whalen in the third quarter. Quarterback Mike Taliaferro, scrambling on broken plays, hit Whalen on 40 and 18 yarders. The scores ended a field goal kicking contest between the Bills' Bruce Alford and Boston's Gino Cappelletti. Defensively, Patriots middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti blunted Buffalo's attack three times with interceptions.

Houston quarterback Don Trull reached a milestone in his pro career at Buffalo's expense. He directed the Oilers to a 30-7 win, the first time he'd ever been the starting signal-caller in a winning game. Trull hit tight end Alvin Reed for touchdowns of 23 and 42 yards within a four minute period in the second half to break the game open. The Bills turned defeat into apparent victory with only 26 seconds remaining in the game only to have Denver's Broncos comeback with their own miracle for a 34-32 win with seven seconds remaining. Buffalo trailed 31-22 when halfback Gary McDermott scored on a three-yard run with less than two minutes to go. An 18-yard Bruce Alford field goal following a George Saimes fumble recovery appeared to have given the Bills the win. THE VOICE OF THE BUFFALO BILLS

For the tenth consecutive season, all Buffalo Bills games will be carried on radio with WBEN as the flagship station and Van Miller, the play-by-play announcer. Joining Miller as color commentator for the third season is Stan Barron.

The Bills Radio Network will include stations across New York State and into Pennsylvania. Each game broadcast will be preceded by the "Bills Football Forum" show and followed by "Locker Room Wrapup."
