Jerry Jones

Owner and General Manager

In one of the most dramatic eras of ownership in professional sports, Jerry Jones' stewardship of the Dallas Cowboys has brought rapid success and unprecedented results to one of the world's most visible sports entities.

Highlighted by Super Bowl victories following the 1992, 1993 and 1995 seasons, Jones became the first owner in NFL history to guide his team to three league championships in his first seven years of ownership.

In addition, the Dallas Cowboys earned the distinction of being the Team of the Decade for the 1990s after winning a league-high six division titles and claiming the ultimate prize three times.

In 1995, Dallas also became the first team in NFL history to win three Super Bowls in four seasons, while tying the NFL record for most Super Bowl victories by an organization with five.

Since his purchase of the team in 1989, Jones has established himself as one of the NFL's most influential and active owners. His vision in the areas of marketing, corporate sponsorships, television and stadium management has made a visible imprint on the landscape of sports in America.

Jerral Wayne Jones was born on Oct. 13, 1942 in Los Angeles. He learned his business style from his father, J.W. "Pat" Jones, a successful entrepreneur first in supermarkets, then in insurance.

Pat Jones moved his family to North Little Rock, AR, soon after Jerry was born. After starring as a running back at North Little Rock High School, Jerry received a scholarship to play football at the University of Arkansas. He was a starting guard and co-captain of the 1964 team that went 11-0, defeated Nebraska in the Cotton Bowl and captured the national championship.

Upon graduating with a M.B.A. from Arkansas in 1965, Jerry joined his father's insurance company, Modern Security Life in Springfield, Mo., as executive vice president.

Jones entered the oil and gas exploration business in Oklahoma in 1970 and soon became a phenomenal success. He now has active interests across the Southwest.

One of a very small number of NFL owners who actually earned a significant level of success as a football player, Jones is currently living his dream of engineering the fortunes of a NFL franchise. A man of varied interests who will not rest on yesterday's achievements, he is a dedicated businessman and family man – sharing a passion for both worlds.

Jerry is also involved in numerous civic and charitable causes. As very strong supporters of The Salvation Army, Jerry and wife Gene were presented the Army's Partner of the Year Award in 1997 on behalf of the Cowboys organization. In each of the last nine years, Gene and Jerry Jones, along with the Dallas Cowboys, have served as hosts and underwritten the costs for the Super Lunch, a fundraising event for The Salvation Army Irving Corps Community Center and its special projects. This annual event has raised more than $1 million since its inception.

The Gene and Jerry Jones Family Center for Children opened in November of 1998 in conjunction with The Salvation Army. The center offers affordable childcare for low-income families and was made possible by gifts from the Jones family and the Cowboys that exceeded $1.2 million.

For the past five seasons, the Jones family has dedicated the Cowboys annual Thanksgiving Day halftime show as a national showcase to kickoff The Salvation Army's annual Kettle Drive. The nationally televised event has created a new holiday tradition, while helping to increase donations to The Salvation Army's annual fund raising efforts by several millions of dollars. Reba McEntire, Randy Travis, Clint Black, Jessica Simpson, Billy Gilman and Creed have provided the entertainment for the last five holiday extravaganzas.

For their efforts in this area, the Joneses received the Evangeline Booth Award in 1999, one of the Army's highest national community service awards and have been selected for membership into the prestigious Salvation Army William Booth Society. Gene and Jerry were named to the Salvation Army's National Advisory Board in April of 1998.

In 2001, the Joneses were awarded the Chairman's Award by The Boys and Girls Clubs of America. This award is given to recognize individuals who made a positive difference in people's lives – particularly in the lives of children. In June of 2002, Gene and Jerry Jones were recognized as the recipients of the Children's Champion Award for Philanthropy that was presented by the Dallas for Children organization.

Gene and Jerry Jones are also very active supporters of the Library of Congress. As members of the Library's James Madison Council, Gene and Jerry provided a major gift to the Library to provide for the complete restoration of the Thomas Jefferson Library. The gift was made as a kickoff to the Library of Congress' bicentennial celebration.

The Jones family is also very actively involved with several other community-related organizations, including the Children's Medical Center of Dallas, the National Board for The Boys and Girls Clubs of America, the Kent Waldrep Paralysis Foundation and The Rise School of Dallas.

Jerry and Gene, a former Arkansas beauty pageant winner whom he met while both attended the University of Arkansas, live in Dallas. They have three children, Stephen, Charlotte and Jerry, Jr., and seven grandchildren.

Stephen (6/21/64) is a graduate of the University of Arkansas and serves as the Cowboys' Chief Operating Officer/Executive Vice President/Director of Player Personnel. Charlotte (7/26/66) is a Stanford graduate and serves as the Cowboys Vice President/Director of Charities and Special Events. Jerry Jr. (9/27/69), a graduate of Georgetown University who earned his law degree from Southern Methodist University, is the Cowboys' Chief Sales and Marketing Officer/Vice President/General Counsel.

JERRY JONES MINORITY COACHING FELLOWSHIP

The Jerry Jones Minority Coaching Fellowship was established 13 years ago to give minority college football coaches an intensive working experience on the NFL level. The purpose of this fellowship is to create an experience that will enable an individual coach to understand all dimensions of coaching with the Dallas Cowboys, from working with players in the classroom and on the field, to studying techniques and strategies with the other coaches, to handling administrative duties.

Beginning with training camp, the fellowship coaches are Dallas Cowboys coaches until responsibilities at their respective institutions begin. The coaches are housed at the Cowboys' training facilities and take part in every aspect of the football program, including on-field coaching, staff meeting participation and daily evaluation of current and prospective NFL players. During their stay with the Cowboys, each fellowship coach develops an understanding of the role of an NFL coach, of how to organize and formulate practice plans and game plans and of player evaluations.

"The fellowship coaches are an important part of our team during training camp," says Cowboys owner Jerry Jones. "We want them not only to learn, but to help us during this crucial time of preparing our team for the season. We believe this experience with the Cowboys will help minority coaches develop the background and contacts to move more rapidly into the NFL."

December 25, 1995 – Emmitt Smith closes the season with a team record 1,773 rushing yards and a NFL record 25 rushing touchdowns. Smith led the NFL in rushing for the fourth time in five years, becoming just the fifth player in NFL history to win at least four rushing titles.

December, 1995 – Ten Cowboys are selected to the NFC Pro Bowl squad. Since 1993, Dallas has earned 32 Pro Bowl selections – the most ever by one team over a three-year period of time.

January 14, 1996 – The Cowboys win an NFL record eighth conference championship game by defeating the Green Bay Packers 38-27 at Texas Stadium. The victory marked the Cowboys third NFC title in four years.

January 28, 1996 – Dallas becomes the first team in NFL history to win three Super Bowls in a four-year period by defeating the Pittsburgh Steelers 27-17 in Super Bowl XXX at Sun Devil Stadium in Tempe, AZ. The game is witnessed by 138.5 million television viewers, making Super Bowl XXX the most watched event in television history. The victory gives Dallas its fifth Super Bowl title – joining the San Francisco 49ers as the only NFL franchises to win five Super Bowls. The Cowboys have now appeared in an NFL record eight Super Bowls. Dallas also became the first NFL franchise to win Super Bowls with three different head coaches.

December 15, 1996 – The Cowboys clinch a fifth straight division title with a 12-6 win over the New England Patriots at Texas Stadium. The championship enables the Cowboys to become the first team in NFL history to win five straight NFC Eastern Division crowns.

January 5, 1997 – Dallas closes the postseason with a divisional playoff loss at Carolina. The loss marks the first time since the 1991 season that the Cowboys were unable to reach the NFC title game.

December, 1997 – The Cowboys close the 1997 season with a 6-10 record, marking the team's first non-playoff season since 1990.

February 12, 1998 – Jerry Jones names Chan Gailey as the fourth head coach in the history of the Dallas Cowboys franchise. Gailey, who had previously served as the Pittsburgh Steelers offensive coordinator, replaces Barry Switzer, who resigned from his position on January 9th.

July 15, 1998 – The Cowboys open training camp at Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls, TX. Attendance figures for the four-week camp exceed 100,000.

November 8, 1998 – With 163 yards on 29 carries in a 16-6 win over the New York Giants, Emmitt Smith becomes the Dallas Cowboys all-time leading rusher. Smith's performance against New York pushes him past Tony Dorsett (12,036) and into the Cowboys top spot.

December 20, 1998 – After a one-year absence from postseason play, the Cowboys clinch their sixth NFC Eastern Division title in the last seven years with a 13-9 win over Philadelphia at Texas Stadium. The 1998 division crown is the 19th division championship (15th NFC East title) in the club's 39-year history.

December 27, 1998 – After scoring a first-half touchdown on a one-yard run against the Redskins at Texas Stadium, Emmitt Smith becomes the NFL's all-time leader in rushing touchdowns, moving ahead of Marcus Allen (123). Smith would later add a 26-yard touchdown run in the second quarter to bring his league record total to 125 rushing touchdowns by season's end. The Cowboys closed the year with a 23-7 victory over Washington and a 10-6 record, marking the 23rd season in which Dallas recorded at least 10 wins – an NFL record. The win over the Redskins also enabled Dallas to become the first team in the history of the NFC East to post an 8-0 record in division play.

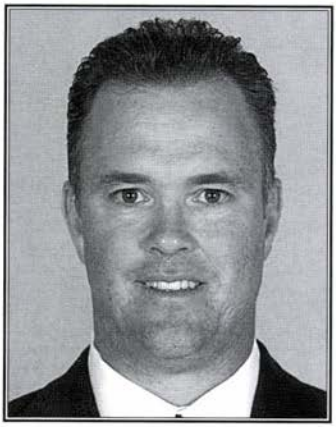
December 24, 1999 – The Dallas Cowboys NFL-record of consecutive games in front of sold out stadiums comes to an end in a Christmas Eve game against the New Orleans Saints in the Louisiana Superdome. The streak, which included home and away games, came to a halt after 160 games. It began on Dec. 23, 1990 at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium and included 79 straight sell-outs at Texas Stadium (including playoffs) and 81 straight sell-outs on the road (including playoffs).

January 2, 2000 – The Cowboys close the century as the NFL's most successful team in the decade of the 1990s. From 1990 to 1999, Dallas qualified for the playoffs eight times, won six division titles, made four trips to the conference championship game and won three Super Bowls. The 1999 season ends with an 8-8 regular season record and a wild card playoff loss at Minnesota on Jan. 9, 2000.

January 26, 2000 – Jerry Jones names Cowboys defensive coordinator Dave Campo as the fifth head coach in franchise history. Campo spent the previous 11 seasons as an assistant coach in Dallas and was the defensive coordinator for the 1995 team that won Super Bowl XXX.

August 27, 2001 – Dallas defeats Oakland in a preseason American Bowl game in Mexico City that marks the Cowboys ninth international game. With stops in England (2), Japan (2) Mexico (4) and Canada (1), the Cowboys have played more international games than any other team in the NFL.

September 23, 2001 – Emmitt Smith moves past Barry Sanders (15,269 career yards) into second on the NFL's all-time rushing list. On Dec. 30, Smith becomes just the second player in NFL history to rush for over 16,000 yards in a career when he gains 126 yards against San Francisco.



Stephen Jones

Executive Vice President
Chief Operating Officer
Director of Player Personnel

With 13 years of NFL experience under his belt, Stephen Jones' reputation as one of the brightest young executives in professional sports continues to grow. Named a Cowboys Vice President in February of 1989, Jones coordinates the Cowboys' entire player personnel department. He also oversees the negotiation of player contracts, management of the salary cap, the operation of Texas Stadium and a wide range of other club related duties.

Recognized as Owner Jerry Jones' right hand man, Stephen Jones played an integral role in the team's rise from a 1-15 record in 1989 to being the NFL's Team of the Decade with three Super Bowl titles in the 1990s.

In the ever-evolving strategy that dictates a team's competitiveness in the current collective bargaining agreement, Jones' performance in managing the Cowboys salary cap has played a prominent role in the team's ability to compete at the NFL's highest level.

Jones' involvement in shaping the Dallas roster under the salary cap was critical in allowing the Cowboys to maintain one of the NFL's most talented core group of players throughout the decade of the 1990s. His creativity and care taking of the Cowboys cap played a key role in the team's six division titles and four conference championship game appearances.

During a historic two-year period of time, Jones was involved in signing five Cowboys stars who were considered the best players in the game at their respective positions. Between September of 1993 and September of 1995, Jones helped orchestrate contract agreements with running back Emmitt Smith, quarterback Troy Aikman, fullback Daryl Johnston, wide receiver Michael Irvin and cornerback Deion Sanders.

In the summer of 1992, Stephen Jones was the key figure in the negotiation and signing of 13 veteran contracts – enabling the Cowboys to start the season with a complete roster en route to their run to the Super Bowl XXVII title.

In April of 1991, Jones was part of a Dallas college draft effort that saw the Cowboys select 17 players – all of whom were signed to contracts prior to the start of training camp in July. In addition, 14 of the 17 players drafted by Dallas in '91 went on to earn roster spots in the NFL.

As he enters his 14th NFL season, Jones will be a driving force behind the Cowboys return to the elite level of success in the NFL, and he is prepared for the challenge of the future based upon his track record of proven results from the past.

Stephen Jones has enjoyed a life-long association with the game of football. A four-year letterman as a linebacker and special teams standout at the University of Arkansas, Jones was a starter for the Razorbacks in the Orange Bowl Classic Game that followed the 1986 season.

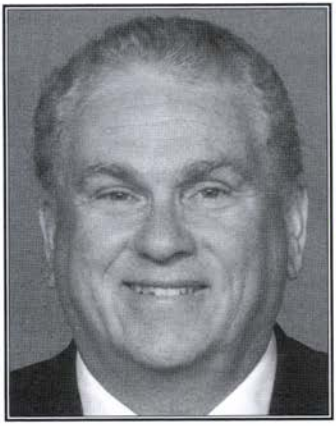
Prior to attending the University of Arkansas, Jones was an all-state quarterback and a three-year starter at Catholic High School in Little Rock.

He graduated from Arkansas in 1988 with a degree in chemical engineering, and immediately went to work in the oil and gas business for JMC Exploration as an engineer.

On Feb. 25, 1989, Jerry Jones purchased the Dallas Cowboys and installed Stephen into a key front office position as one of three vice presidents with the club.

Jones is actively involved with the Young Presidents' Organization and serves on the board of directors for the Kent Waldrep National Paralysis Foundation, Southwestern Bell/SMU Athletic Forum, Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, Episcopal School of Dallas and Circle Ten Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Jones (6/21/64) was born and reared in Little Rock. He is married to the former Karen Hickman of El Dorado, Arkansas, and the couple has three daughters and a son: Jessica (8/24/92), Jordan (10/8/93), Caroline (4/4/97), and John Stephen (4/19/99).



Dave Campo

Head Coach

NFL: 13th Year ★ Cowboys: 13th Year

As one of the NFL's most highly regarded defensive minds, Dave Campo earned his spot at the top of the Dallas Cowboys organization through hard work and perseverance.

On Jan. 26, 2000, Jerry Jones selected Campo as the fifth head coach in Dallas Cowboys history. In his 11 seasons as an assistant coach in the NFL (1989-1999), Campo served on Cowboys teams that appeared in three Super Bowls, four NFC Championship Games and won six division titles. Campo is currently a member of a very select group of four active NFL head coaches who have been a part of three or more Super Bowl titles in their coaching career. That group includes Mike Shanahan (three times), Mike Holmgren (three) and Bill Belichick (three). At the time of his hiring, Campo had just completed a very successful five-year stint as the team's defensive coordinator.

In his two years at the head-coaching helm, Campo has earned national respect with his ability to motivate his teams and develop talent. Although the victory totals have been limited, Dallas has earned a reputation as a rapidly improving team. The Cowboys have also been noted for playing hard for four quarters with a youthful enthusiasm that is expected to produce big results in the years to come.

With a 2002 roster that is free of salary cap constraints, the Cowboys future is looking bright under Campo, who has experience in developing a young group of players into a championship caliber club. He is one of two Dallas coaches who have been with Jerry Jones since Jones' 1989 purchase of the storied NFL franchise.

In 2001, Dallas fielded the NFL's third youngest opening day roster and used the growing season as an opportunity to find young players who could start and contribute. Of the 22 starters who finished the 2001 season, 13 were under the age of 28. The 2001 Dallas Cowboys defense allowed 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that was 927 fewer yards than the club allowed during the 2000 season. Those numbers represented the largest turnaround by any defensive unit in the NFL in 2001. Also, under the direction of rookie quarterback Quincy Carter, Dallas posted a 3-3 record down the stretch with victories over division rivals Washington and New York to go along with an upset of playoff bound San Francisco.

In his inaugural season as head coach (2000), Campo led an injury plagued club that finished with a record of 5-11. The Cowboys lost 11 opening-day starters for a combined total of 70 games, including nine who suffered season-ending injuries. Although the 2000 season evolved into a year of transition and development, the new head coach required, and received, a maximum effort from his players throughout the season. Ultimately, the team's fate was determined by five losses that were decided by a combined total of 19 points.

In four of the five years that Campo directed the Dallas defense, the Cowboys finished the year ranked among the NFL's top 10 units, including two top three finishes. The 1999 defense ranked ninth in the NFL (third in the NFC) in total yards and allowed one touchdown or less in nine of the 16 regular season games. The Cowboys defense held opponents to 13 points or less in nine of the team's 16 games in 1999, tying the second most in club history. Dallas closed the 1999 season fifth in the NFL in points allowed per game, surrendering 17.3 points-per-outing. Only four defensive units permitted fewer offensive touchdowns than the 25 surrendered by Dallas and only St. Louis (four) surrendered fewer rushing touchdowns than the six allowed by the Cowboys. The 24 interceptions recorded by Dallas marked just the second time in the last 13 years the team topped the 20 interception barrier, and it was the highest interception total for a Dallas team since 1985. Following the 1999 season, linebacker Dexter Coakley and cornerback Deion Sanders were named to the NFC Pro Bowl squad.

The 1998 unit finished fifth in the NFL in third down conversion defense (32.9%). Following the divisional championship season of 1998, defensive tackle Leon Lett, cornerback Deion Sanders and safety Darren Woodson were named to the Pro Bowl.

In 1997, Campo's group ranked second in overall defense in the NFL (allowing 282.3 yards-per-game), while leading the league in pass defense (157.6). Those numbers were even more impressive considering the fact that key players such as Lett, Sanders, Woodson and Chad Hennings missed a combined 23 starts. Sanders and Woodson earned Pro Bowl honors as prominent players in the NFL's best secondary.

In 1996, Campo's defense helped guide the Cowboys to a 10-6 finish and an unprecedented fifth straight NFC Eastern Division crown. During the '96 regular season, the Dallas defense was ranked first in the NFL for 11-of-16 weeks before closing the year third (273.9 yards-per-game). The Cowboys pass defense finished the year second in the NFL, permitting just 175.4 yards-per-game, while the Dallas rushing defense was 10th (98.5 yards-per-game). The Cowboys defense surrendered just 20 touchdowns (second best in the NFL), and, in four games, the Dallas defense kept its opponent out of the end zone. Three of Dallas' defensive starters, Sanders, Woodson and Tony Tolbert were named to the NFC Pro Bowl squad following the season.

In 1995, Campo directed the fortunes of the World Champion Dallas defense, which finished the season third in the NFL in touchdowns permitted with 32. Dallas also closed the year third in the NFL in fewest points allowed with an average of 18.2 points-per-game. Only seven NFL teams had more interceptions than the 19 registered by Dallas, and the Cowboys returned four of those interceptions for touchdowns, tying the team record. With defensive stars such as Sanders, Kevin Smith, Charles Haley and Russell Maryland missing a combined 37 starts, the Cowboys still managed to finish the season ninth in the NFL (fourth in the NFC) in total defense, allowing 315.3 yards-per-game. Dallas was 16th in the NFL in rushing defense (110.8) and eighth in pass defense (204.5).

Campo was elevated to the position of defensive coordinator on Jan. 24, 1995. Prior to becoming Dallas' third defensive coordinator since 1992, Campo directed the efforts of a secondary that had grown into one of the team's deepest and most productive units. His 1994 squad helped the Cowboys to the top defensive ranking in the NFL. While leading the NFL in total defense (269.6 yards-per-game), the Cowboys were also first in the NFL in pass defense (172.0 yards-per-game). Dallas finished the year tied for fourth in the NFL in interceptions with 22. All-Pro strong safety Woodson became the first Dallas defensive back to earn a starting Pro Bowl berth since Everson Walls (1985). While directing the secondary of the Super Bowl XXVIII Champion Cowboys in 1993, Campo's group was led by cornerback Kevin Smith, who intercepted more passes (six) than any Dallas player since the 1986 season. Also in '93, strong safety Thomas Everett became the first Dallas defensive back in seven seasons to be selected to appear in the Pro Bowl.

Campo was hired by Dallas in 1989 after spending two years at the University of Miami as the secondary coach. At Miami, he helped the Hurricanes to a two-year record of 23-1 and a national title in 1987, while fine tuning the talents of the best defensive back in school history. Safety Bennie Blades was the 1987 Jim Thorpe Award winner before being selected with the third pick in the NFL Draft by the Detroit Lions. Eight of Campo's Miami charges went on to sign NFL contracts.

Prior to joining Miami, Campo spent three seasons (1984-86) as part of a staff that turned Syracuse into a national championship contender.

Campo began his career at his alma mater, Central Connecticut State, where he spent the 1971-72 seasons. He then moved to the University of Albany (1973), Bridgeport (1974), the University of Pittsburgh (1975), Washington State (1976), Boise State (1977-79), Oregon State (1980), Weber State (1981-82) and Iowa State (1983).

In addition to starring at defensive back in college, David Cross Campo (7/18/47) twice earned All-East honors at shortstop at Central Connecticut State. He attended Robert E. Fitch High School in Groton, CT.

This summer, Campo and the coaching staff participated in the club's fifth annual coaches clinic. The one-day complimentary clinic was offered to 600 area middle school, youth and Salvation Army agency football coaches. During the 2000 season, he hosted a Saturday outing for a group of mentally challenged adults at the Valley Ranch training facility, complete with a player autograph session, performance by Rowdy, the Cowboys' mascot, and a tour of the Cowboys training facility.

He and wife Kay have six children – Angie, Eric, Becky, Tommy, Shelbie and Michael.

Joe Avezzano

Special Teams

NFL: 13th Year ★ Cowboys: 13th Year

A man for all seasons, Joe Avezzano holds perhaps the most unique job description in professional football. Recognized for more than 10 years as one of the NFL's premier special teams coaches, Avezzano is also the head coach of the Dallas Desperados of the Arena Football League. He has proven to be a perfect fit in both roles and a valuable asset to the Cowboys organization.

When Avezzano took over the Cowboys special teams in 1990, he established a high expectation level for his units, and those units have met or exceeded demands for years. Dallas has consistently finished near the top of NFL rankings in all four major kicking game categories – punt return average, kickoff return average, punt coverage and kickoff coverage. In the process, the Cowboys have also established a well-deserved reputation for making big plays. Since 1990, Avezzano's units have been responsible for 21 blocked kicks and 16 combined touchdowns on punt and kickoff returns – 13 scores on punt returns alone. The Cowboys consistency, big plays and an ability to positively affect the outcome of games on special teams has not gone without notice. In his 12 seasons in Dallas, Avezzano has been named the NFL's Special Teams Coach of the Year three times (1991, 1993, 1998) based on a vote of the NFL's special teams coaches. Avezzano is the only three-time winner of the award.

The Cowboys finished the 2001 season fourth in the NFL in punt returns (12.0 yards-per-return) and ninth in kickoff returns (23.1). Rookie Reggie Swinton closed the year third in the NFL in punt return average (13.4). while finishing ninth in the NFL in kickoff returns (23.7).

Despite numerous injuries that caused personnel changes throughout 2000, Dallas finished the year ranked in the top 19 of all four major kicking game categories. Avezzano integrated a new punt return man in Wane McGarity, and the youngster responded with two punts returns for touchdowns, tying the club record for punt returns for touchdowns in a season while finishing third in the NFC with an 11.8 yard average. Rookie punter Micah Knorr finished fourth in the NFC and established a club rookie record by averaging 42.8 yards-per-punt. Knorr also finished fifth in the NFC with a 35.8 net punting average.

After leading the NFL in opponent's average drive start following kickoffs in both 1997 and 1998, the Cowboys finished 1999 ranked second in the league. Dallas finished the '99 season fifth in the league in kickoff returns (23.7) and sixth in punt returns (10.7). First-year return man Jason Tucker, who didn't even record his first career kickoff return until midseason, came on to finish the year second in the NFL with a 27.9 yard average – the fifth best total in club history.

Dallas closed out the 1998 season as one of only two teams in the NFL to be ranked in the top 12 in all four major kicking game categories, a feat that helped Avezzano win his third Special Teams Coach of the Year award. Avezzano's units led the league in kickoff coverage for the second straight season (18.5 yards-per-opponent's return), while finishing third in punt coverage (6.2), fourth in punt return average (12.6) and 12th in kickoff return average (23.4). Deion Sanders led the league in punt return average (15.6) while returning two punts for touchdowns.

In 1997, the Cowboys led the NFL in kickoff coverage, while ranking fourth in kickoff return average (24.1), 11th in punt return average (10.9) and 13th in punt coverage (9.1). First-year kicker Richie Cunningham, who earned All-Pro honors, finished the season second in the NFL in scoring.

In 1996, Herschel Walker sparked Dallas with five kickoff returns of 49 yards-or-more to rank second in the NFL in kickoff return average (28.9). As a unit, the Dallas kickoff return team ranked fourth in the NFL, while the Cowboys punt coverage finished eighth and kickoff coverage placed seventh. Jim Schwantz finished the year with 32 kicking game tackles and became the first Cowboy since Bill Bates (1984) to be selected to the Pro Bowl as a special teams player.

On the road to a Super Bowl XXX title in 1995, the Cowboys ranked fourth in the NFL in punt return average with an 11.1 yards-per-return mark, while also finishing seventh in the NFL in kickoff coverage, limiting opponents to 19.5 yards-per-kickoff return.

In 1994, the Cowboys led the NFL in team kickoff return average, and Kevin Williams became the first Cowboy to return a kickoff and a punt for a touchdown in the same season.

In the Super Bowl XXVIII season of 1993, the Cowboys were the only team in the NFL to finish the regular season with a Top 10 ranking in all four major kicking game categories, helping Avezzano earn Special Team Coach of the Year honors for the second time.

Avezzano won his first NFL Special Teams Coach of the Year award in 1991 when the Cowboys led the NFL in points scored on special teams with 20 and in kickoff return average with a 21.7 mark. Also, for the first time in the same season in team history, Dallas placed a player in the top three in the league in both punt and kickoff return averages.

Before coming to Dallas, Avezzano coached the offensive line at Texas A&M for four seasons (1985-88), during which time the Aggies won three Southwest Conference titles and two Cotton Bowls. During his tenure at Texas A&M, he groomed six All-Southwest Conference picks, including All-Americas Richmond Webb and Doug Williams. Four of his charges were selected in the NFL Draft, three of those (Webb, Williams and Jerry Fontenot) in the first three rounds.

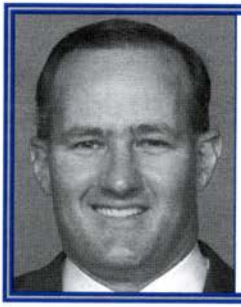
Avezzano took on the duties of offensive coordinator in 1988 when sophomore running back Darrin Lewis finished second in the nation in rushing to earn All-America honors. Before joining the Aggies, Avezzano spent five seasons as head coach at Oregon State (1980-84). From 1977-79, he served as offensive coordinator at Tennessee, and he was the offensive line coach at Pittsburgh (1973-76), helping the '76 Panthers to the national title.

Avezzano began his coaching career at Washington High School in Massillon, OH, in 1967. He then coached at Florida State (1968) before moving on to Iowa State (1969-72).

Born in Yonkers, NY (11/17/43), Avezzano grew up in Miami where he played football at Jackson High School. After starring at guard for Florida State, Avezzano was drafted by the Boston Patriots. Joe and wife Diann have a son, Anthony.

Avezzano is very active in support of the Special Olympics, both on the local and national levels. For the last 10 years, he has served as the host to a special fundraising event. Through his efforts, Joe has helped raise over $1.2 million for Texas Special Olympics during his 11 years with the Cowboys.

Joe Avezzano – Born November 17, 1943, Yonkers, NY. Guard Florida State 1961-65. Pro center Boston Patriots 1966. College coach: Florida State 1968, Iowa State 1969-72, Pittsburgh 1973-76, Tennessee 1977-79, Oregon State 1980-84 (head coach), Texas A&M 1985-88. Pro coach: joined Dallas in 1990.



Bill Bates

Defensive Nickel Package/ Assistant Special Teams

Tennessee
NFL: 5th Year ★ Cowboys: 5th Year

Bill Bates, one of the most popular and productive players in the history of the Dallas Cowboys franchise, enters his 20th season with the team in 2002 and will oversee the club's defensive nickel package for the second straight year and will assist with the club's special teams units. Bates moved into this position in 2001 after serving as the team's secondary coach in 2000. In his fifth season as a coach, he made the transition from active player to assistant coach during the team's 1998 training camp, working with both the secondary and special teams. In 2002, he will again split his time, working with secondary coach Clancy Pendergast to continue the Cowboys tradition of top-notch pass defense and helping Joe Avezzano prepare Dallas' special teams units.

In his first year guiding the fortunes of the Cowboys defensive nickel package, the club saw opponents' third down conversion percentage drop from 40.4% in 2000 to 35.5% in 2001. In addition, the club finished with the third best pass defense in the NFL for the second consecutive year, surrendering 180.6 yards-per-game. Overall, his contributions on the defensive side of the ball helped Dallas improve from a defensive ranking of 19 in 2000 to fourth in 2001. His work on special teams saw newcomer Reggie Swinton break a number of club records on his way to finishing third (13.4 avg.) in the NFL in punt return average.

In 2000, his first year overseeing the secondary, Bates helped the Cowboys defense finish the season with the third best pass defense in the NFL. Dallas closed the year surrendering only 168.3 passing yards-per-game while holding 10 opponents to 200 passing yards-or-less, including five to 126 yards-or-less. The Cowboys, who extended their streak of consecutive games without allowing a 300-yard passer to 17 (including playoffs), were one of only three teams (Tennessee, Kansas City) to not allow a 300-yard passer during the 2000 season.

Bates' impact at the coaching level paid immediate dividends for the Dallas special teams. After leading the NFL in opponent's average drive start following kickoffs in 1998, the Cowboys continued their excellence in this area in 1999, finishing the year second in the league. Also in 1998, the Cowboys were one of only two NFL teams to be ranked in the top 12 of all four major kicking categories. Bates' input on defense was instrumental as Dallas recorded 24 interceptions in 1999 – the most by a Cowboys club since 1985.

One of the NFL's true success stories, Bates' distinguished career (1983-97) was characterized by persistence and an ability to overcome the odds. Starting in 1983 when he made the team as a long-shot rookie free agent, he became a visible figure on the field with his ferocious special teams play. His production as a special teams standout helped propel the NFL into adding a spot on the Pro Bowl teams for special teams coverage players.

A three-year starter at safety (1986-88), Bates was named the Cowboys special teams captain in 1990 – a title he held proudly through the three Super Bowl seasons of the '90s. He finished his career with 701 tackles, and he shares the club record for years of service (15) with Mark Tuinei and Ed Jones. Bates also played in 217 regular season games, a figure that is second only to Jones (224) in club annals.

A tremendous competitor right up until his retirement, Bates topped the 20-tackle barrier on special teams in seven of his final 10 seasons. The 1997 season – his final as a player – also marked the seventh time in the previous nine seasons he finished either first or second on the team in special teams tackles.

As a safety, and later as a middle linebacker in nickel packages, Bates collected 14 career interceptions, including a fourth quarter theft in Chicago in the 1991 NFC Wild Card Game that helped nail down the Cowboys first playoff victory in nine years. Bates was the first NFL player selected to the Pro Bowl based on special teams coverage ability, representing the NFC in that capacity in 1984.

Bates was a four-year starting safety at the University of Tennessee. He intercepted nine passes and recovered six fumbles in his career and was named second-team All-Southeastern Conference his junior and senior seasons.

Wes Chandler

Receivers

NFL: 3rd Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

Entering his third season as the Cowboys' wide receivers coach, Wes Chandler has quickly put to use the experience he gained in 11 seasons as an NFL player and seven years as a coach in NFL Europe to help upgrade the Dallas passing game. He has successfully blended experienced veteran receivers with relative newcomers in his two seasons in Dallas.

In 2001, the duo of Raghib Ismail and Joey Galloway successfully returned to the field after recovering from separate knee surgeries that cut short their 2000 season. Ismail (53 receptions in 2001) and Galloway (52) went on to become the first pair of Cowboys' wide receivers to each have 50-catches in a single season since 1985 when Tony Hill (74) and Mike Renfro (60) accomplished the feat. Ismail's team-leading 834 yards came at a 15.7-yards per-catch clip, 10th best in the NFL in 2001.

Expected to oversee a receiving corps headed by Ismail and Galloway in 2000, Chandler was put to the test when Galloway suffered a season-ending knee injury in the season opener. Eight weeks later, Ismail suffered the same fate, going down for the season with a similar knee injury. To the rescue came James McKnight and Wane McGarity, who blossomed under Chandler's tutelage and the newfound playing time. McKnight led the team with career-highs in receptions (52) and receiving yards (926), good for 11th in the NFC. His 17.8 yards-per-catch average was the fourth best in the NFL. McGarity became a dependable third down receiver, finishing with 25 receptions for 250 yards.

Chandler came to Dallas after seven years coaching in NFL Europe, including a stint as head coach of the Berlin Thunder in 1999. He was the offensive coordinator for the Frankfurt Galaxy in 1998 after spending three years (1995-97) with the Rhein Fire. He made his professional coaching debut with the Orlando Thunder (1991-92) of NFL Europe before spending two seasons (1994-95) as the receivers coach at the University of Central Florida. Chandler helped lead three NFL Europe teams to the World Bowl – Orlando Thunder (1992), Rhein Fire (1997) and Frankfurt Galaxy (1998).

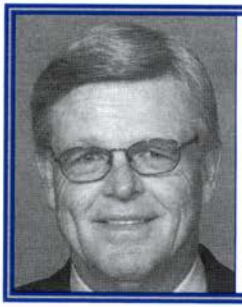
Chandler retired from the NFL during the 1988 season after an 11-year playing career. At the time of his retirement, he ranked 12th in NFL history in receiving yards (8,966) and 13th in receptions (559). He earned four Pro Bowl selections in his career, including three while playing for the San Diego Chargers (1981-87) under Don Coryell, and in 2001, he was inducted into the San Diego Chargers' Hall of Fame. In the strike-shortened season of 1982 – his first full season in San Diego – he caught 49 passes for 1,032 yards (21.1 avg.) and nine touchdowns in eight games. He averaged an NFL record 129.0 receiving yards-per-game that season. During that record setting season, Chandler set, and still owns, the Chargers single game receiving yardage record with 260 yards on 10 receptions against Cincinnati on Dec. 20, 1982. He began his career with the New Orleans Saints (1978-81), who drafted Chandler with the third overall selection in the 1978 NFL Draft. Chandler was leading the NFL in receiving when the Saints traded him to the Chargers during the 1981 season.

After retiring from the NFL, Chandler spent three years (1989-91) as the head football coach/athletic director for Father Lopez High School in Daytona Beach, FL. In 1993, he worked at the Wes Chandler Youth Foundation, which he founded in 1982 in Daytona Beach.

Chandler was a three-year starter for the University of Florida, where he was a consensus All-America and was voted Florida Amateur Athlete-of-the-Year in 1977. He was also an Academic All-America selection as a junior and senior. He finished his collegiate career with 1,994 receiving yards and 22 touchdowns. He lettered in football, basketball, baseball and track at New Smyrna Beach, FL, High School.

Wesley Sandy Chandler earned his bachelor's degree in speech pathology from Florida. He was the founder of a men's service group, "Board of Distinction," in New Orleans. His Wes Chandler Youth Foundation, now part of the Boys and Girls Clubs, has helped such Florida youth as Vince Carter of the NBA's Toronto Raptors. He has a son, Lamar Saxton.

Wes Chandler – Born August 22, 1956, New Smyrna Beach, FL. Wide Receiver University of Florida 1974-77. Pro Wide Receiver New Orleans 1978-81, San Diego 1981-87, San Francisco 1988. Pro Coach: Orlando Thunder (NFLEL) 1991-92, Rhein Fire (NFLEL) 1995-97, Frankfurt Galaxy (NFLEL) 1998, Berlin Thunder (NFLEL) 1999 (head coach), joined Dallas in 2000.



Bruce Coslet

Offensive Coordinator

NFL: 22nd Year ★ Cowboys: 1st Year

Bruce Coslet brings 29 years of experience as an NFL player (tight end – Cincinnati), assistant coach, offensive coordinator and head coach to the Cowboys. Coslet played a role as either the head coach or offensive coordinator for four of the five top single-season rushing, passing, reception and receiving yardage performances in Cincinnati Bengals' team history. During his two tenures at the helm of the Cincinnati offense, Coslet was responsible for developing one of the top offenses of the late 1980s and then reviving that legacy during the 1990s.

Coslet was named the Bengals' head coach on Oct. 21, 1996, promoted from the offensive coordinator's position to replace Dave Shula. The Bengals had struggled to a 1-6 start, but the club went 7-2 under Coslet's direction for an 8-8 finish that season. The Coslet mark in 1996 reflects the best job by a head coach appointed during a regular season since the NFL-AFL merger in 1970. On Dec. 15, 1996, the Bengals extended Coslet's contract for four years, through the 2000 season. Over the next three seasons, the Bengals posted marks of 7-9, 3-13, 4-12 with him at the helm. Following an 0-3 start to the 2000 season, Coslet stepped down from the Bengals.

While the Bengals head coach, the Cincinnati offense continued to thrive. Running back Corey Dillon joined the club in 1997 and proceeded to put together four consecutive 1,000-yard rushing seasons, including a single-season club-record 1,435 yards in 2000.

Coslet originally returned to the Bengals in 1994 as offensive coordinator, assigned to recharge an attack which had fallen in 1993 to a franchise-low, ranking 27th in the league in total yards. By 1996, the Bengals offense under Coslet stood as one of the NFL's most-improved units, ranking 10th in the league in total offense. Showing improvement each year, the 1994 Bengals scored 89 more points than the '93 club, and the '95 team topped the '94 total by another 73 points. The 162-point difference between the 1993 total (187 points) and the 1995 total (349 points) was the biggest gain in the league during that time period.

His 1994 offense was led by wide receiver Carl Pickens who recorded 71 receptions for 1,127 yards and an AFC-high 11 touchdown receptions. His counterpart on the other side of the formation, Darnay

Scott, led the AFC with an 18.8 yards-per-catch average. In 1995, quarterback Jeff Blake was at the helm of the AFC's fourth ranked passing offense, leading the AFC with 326 completions and 28 touchdown passes. Pickens continued his dominance with an AFC-high 99 receptions and an NFL-high 17 touchdowns. Despite taking on the duties of head coach in October, Coslet's 1996 offense was fifth in the NFL with 372 points. Pickens was third in the NFL with 100 receptions and 12 receiving touchdowns. His 1,180 receiving yards was the third best total in the AFC.

From 1990-93 Coslet served as the head coach of the New York Jets. With the Jets, he oversaw an offense that finished in the NFL's top 10 in two of his last three years (sixth in 1991 and ninth in 1993). Posting a 26-39 record in New York, he led the 1991 club to the playoffs, the franchise's only postseason appearance in an 11-year period (1987-97).

In 1986 Coslet was promoted to offensive coordinator for the Cincinnati Bengals. During his first term at the helm of the offense, the Bengals twice had the NFL's No. 1-ranked offense (1986, '88), twice had the league's top rushing attack ('88 and '89) and three times led the AFC in total offense ('86, '88 and '89).

In 1989 Cincinnati was fourth in the NFL in scoring with 404 points. Quarterback Boomer Esiason led the way with the NFL's second best quarterback rating (92.1) and touchdown passes (28). Running back James Brooks ran for 1,239 yards and led all NFL backs with a 5.6 yards-per-carry average.

Coslet's 1988 squad led the NFL in scoring with 448 points, including a league-high 27 rushing touchdowns on their way to Super Bowl XXIII. Running back Ickey Woods was second in the league with 15 rushing touchdowns while gaining 1,066 yards on 203 carries (5.3 avg.). Brooks added another 931 rushing yards and 14 touchdowns (eight rushing and six receiving). Esiason led the NFL with a 97.4 quarterback rating. His 28 passing touchdowns was an AFC high. Receiver Eddie Brown led the league by almost four yards with a 24.0 yards-per-catch average, hauling in 53 passes for 1,273 yards and nine touchdowns.

In 1987, Coslet assembled the NFL's fourth ranked rushing offense, racking up 2,164 yards despite having no back with more than 570 yards. Esiason was second in the NFL in passing yards with 3,321.

His 1986 squad led the NFL in rushing touchdowns with 24 and was third in the league in scoring with 409 points. Running back James Brooks ran for 1,087 yards and led the NFL with a 5.3 yards-per-carry average. Quarterback Boomer Esiason, in just his third year in the NFL, was second in the league with 3,959 passing yards and led the NFL with 8.44 yards-per-pass attempt.

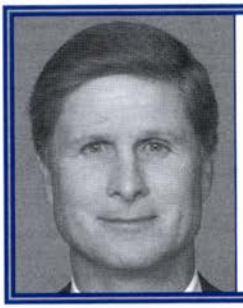
Coslet began his coaching career with the San Francisco 49ers in 1980 as the club's tight ends coach. He moved the following year to the Bengals, where he would spend the next nine seasons. He was special teams and tight ends coach from 1981-83, helping get the team to Super Bowl XVI in 1981. From the 1984-85 seasons, Coslet coached the team's wide receivers.

Before turning to coaching, Coslet spent eight seasons as a Bengals tight end, earning a reputation for toughness and competitiveness while catching 61 passes for 878 yards and nine touchdowns.

Coslet, born Aug. 5, 1946, was a football standout at Joint High School in his hometown of Oakdale, Calif., and he played at the University of the Pacific from 1965-67. He entered the NFL as a player as a free agent signee by the Bengals in 1969.

Coslet is an avid golfer. He's a member of the Oakdale, Calif., Sportsman Hall of Fame, and also a member of the University of the Pacific Sports Hall of Fame. Coslet's wife, Kathy, is a Cincinnati native. They have two children, son, J.J., and daughter, Amy. In 1996, J.J. was a member of Dartmouth College's undefeated Ivy League championship football team.

Bruce Coslet – Born August 5, 1946, Oakdale, CA. Tight End University of the Pacific 1965-67. Pro: Tight End Cincinnati 1969-76. Pro Coach: San Francisco 49ers 1980, Cincinnati Bengals 1981-89 and 1994-2000 (head coach 1996-2000), New York Jets 1990-93 (head coach), joined Dallas in 2002.



Gary Gibbs

Linebackers

NFL: 1st Year ★ Cowboys: 1st Year

New to the staff and the NFL in 2002 will be linebackers coach Gary Gibbs. Although a newcomer to the NFL, Gibbs is certainly no newcomer to the sidelines, bringing 22 years of coaching experience – including six as a head coach at the University of Oklahoma – to the Cowboys.

Gibbs takes over a unit that was one of the club's strongest and most dependable in 2001. Dat Nguyen led the club with 172 tackles, the second best single-season total in club history, while Dexter Coakley earned his second Pro Bowl invitation and finished second on the team with 134 stops. Rookie Markus

Steele stepped into the starting lineup on the strong side mid-season and performed like a veteran, logging 51 tackles on the year. Added to that mix in 2002 will be former Pro Bowler Kevin Hardy.

Gibbs comes to Dallas after consecutive one-year assignments as the defensive coordinator at Louisiana State University (2001) and the University of Georgia (2000). The LSU Tigers compiled a 10-3 record last fall, winning the Southeastern Conference title and the Nokia Sugar Bowl. Gibbs' defensive unit finished the year ranked 21st nationally in rushing yards allowed and also led the SEC in interceptions with 18, picking off at least two passes in six of 12 games.

While at Georgia, his unit ranked 19th in the nation in total defense and 12th in scoring defense, allowing just 18 points-per-game.

Gibbs had a 23-year career at the University of Oklahoma as a player, assistant and head coach. During that time, the Sooners played in 16 bowl games and won three national titles.

During his six seasons as the head coach at Oklahoma, Gibbs guided the Sooners to three bowl games and an overall record of 44-23-2. In his first three seasons after taking over the program from Barry Switzer, Gibbs continued the school's pattern of success, improving Oklahoma's record each season, from 7-4 as a rookie head coach, to 8-3 in the second year. A 9-3 season in 1991, his third year at the helm, included a 48-14 win over Virginia in the 1991 Gator Bowl. After slipping to 5-4-2 in 1992, Gibbs guided the Sooners to another 9-3 season in 1993, including a 41-10 win over Texas Tech in the John Hancock Bowl.

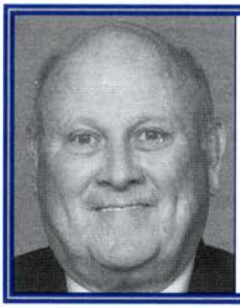
Gibbs began his coaching career as a graduate assistant under Switzer at Oklahoma in 1975. In 1978, he was promoted to the position of linebackers coach. In 1981, Gibbs was named the Sooners defensive coordinator, and he held that post until taking over as head coach in 1989. During his tenure as Oklahoma's defensive coordinator, the Sooners captured the 1985 national title, and their defense led the nation in total defense three straight years (1985-87) and twice finished first in rushing defense (1986 and 1987). Among the players who prospered under Gibbs's tutelage were Lombardi Award winner Tony Casillas, two-time Butkus Award winner Brian Bosworth and co-Thorpe Award winner Rickey Dixon.

Gibbs was a linebacker at Oklahoma from 1972 to 1974, a span that saw the Sooners post a 29-4-1 record and finish No. 1 in the nation in 1974 – with Gibbs recording 114 tackles as a starter. Oklahoma was ranked second in the nation in 1972 and they finished third nationally in 1973. Before joining the coaching staff at Oklahoma, Gibbs went to training camp with the New England Patriots as a free agent in 1975.

He earned his undergraduate degree in marketing from Oklahoma in 1974 and his master's degree in business from his alma mater in 1976.

A native of Beaumont, Tex., Gibbs lettered in both football (linebacker) and baseball (shortstop) at Spring Branch, Tex., High School. He and his wife, Jeanne, have two daughters, Whitley and Jordan.

Gary Gibbs – Born August 13, 1952, Beaumont, Tex. Linebacker Oklahoma 1972-74. College coach: Oklahoma 1975-94 (head coach 1989-94), Georgia 2000, Louisiana State 2001. Pro coach: joined Cowboys in 2002.



Galen Hall

Running Backs

When Galen Hall last coached Cowboys running back Emmitt Smith (1989), he served as the University of Florida head coach, and Smith was closing a collegiate career as the most prolific runner in Florida Gator history. The pair is reunited in 2002 with Hall directing the Dallas Cowboys running backs, while Smith zeroes in on Walter Payton's all-time NFL rushing record of 16,726 yards. Smith, who gained 3,928 yards in just three seasons under Hall's tutelage in Gainesville, is just 540 yards short of Payton and legendary NFL status.

A 37-year veteran in the coaching profession, Hall brings valuable experience to the Dallas staff as a solid offensive mind who has head coaching experience at both the college and professional level.

Most recently, he guided the Orlando Rage of the XFL to a 7-4 regular season record and a postseason playoff berth in 2001.

Prior to that, he was one of the most successful head coaches in the history of NFL Europe. From 1995 to 2000, he guided the Rhein Fire to a 36-27 record and league titles in 1998 and 2000.

Hall's additional coaching experience in professional football includes head coaching assignments with the Arena Football League's Charlotte Rage (1994) and the Orlando Thunder of NFL Europe (1992).

His Thunder team of 1992 reached the World Bowl and Hall earned league coach of the year honors. He was also an assistant with Orlando in 1991.

Hall, who was the head coach at the University of Florida from 1984 to 1989, recruited Smith to Gainesville in 1987 and was the Gators' head coach throughout Smith's three-year collegiate career. In five-plus years at Florida, Hall compiled a 40-18-1 record. His teams won two Southeastern Conference Championships, and he was named the Associated Press' National Coach of the Year in 1984. Over the last 75 years of Florida Gator football, Hall's winning percentage of .703 was second only to the .824 winning mark compiled by Steve Spurrier.

For 18 years, from 1966-83, Hall served as an assistant coach for Oklahoma Sooner squads that compiled a 157-43-5 record and captured national championships in 1974 and 1975. He was the Sooners offensive coordinator from 1973 to 1983. While in Norman, Hall was a part of 15 Sooner clubs that made postseason bowl trips. Hall began his career as an assistant coach at West Virginia (1964-65).

A native of Altoona, PA, Hall was a two-year starter at quarterback for Penn State under legendary head coach Rip Engle. He went on to play for the Washington Redskins (1962) and New York Jets (1963) before starting his coaching career.

Steve Hoffman

Kickers/ Defensive Quality Control

Dickinson College
NFL: 14th Year ★ Cowboys: 14th Year

Since joining the Cowboys in 1989, Steve Hoffman has undertaken the unenviable task of identifying and developing young kickers and punters. His challenges over the past 13 years have been highly visible, and his impressive results have allowed him to develop an outstanding reputation around the NFL.

Hoffman has successfully recruited six rookie or first-year free agent kickers to Dallas. All five – Ken Willis, Lin Elliott, Chris Boniol, Richie Cunningham, Tim Seder and Jon Hilbert – kicked at least 15 field goals in their first NFL season. Using six different placekickers over the past nine years, the Cowboys have connected on 260-of-325 field goal attempts for a success rate of 80.0% – including playoffs and two Super Bowls.

Hoffman has also brought three rookie free agent punters to Dallas – John Jett, Toby Gowin and Micah Knorr. Hoffman helped develop Jett into a four-year veteran who performed on two Super Bowl Championship clubs and Gowin into one of the league's top young punters and kickoff specialists. Over the past nine seasons, these two and Knorr combined to average 42.1 yards-per-punt – including postseason play.

The 2001 season represented a new challenge for Hoffman. Normally given an entire offseason to find a replacement kicker, a mid-season ankle injury to Seder gave Hoffman one week to find a suitable temp for the job. That turned out to be Jon Hilbert, a first-year kicker Hoffman first brought to camp in 2000. Seder started the year 11-of-17 on field goals, and Hilbert stepped right in, hitting 11-of-15 – including nine of his final 11 kicks of the season. The pair combined to hit a field goal in the final 12 games of the season, the third longest streak of games with at least one field goal in club history.

In 2000 Hoffman successfully introduced a rookie kicker and punter to the rigors of the NFL. Both flourished in their first professional season, with Knorr establishing a club rookie record with a gross punting average of 42.8 yards-per-punt. Doubling as the Cowboys kickoff specialist, Knorr had the second highest percentage of touchbacks (17.5% – 10-of-57) in the league. Seder connected on his first seven and 13 of his first 14 field goal attempts to open his pro career. He finished his first season by setting a club record for field goals made in a season by a rookie, hitting 25-of-33. His 75.8% accuracy rate marked the second highest percentage for a rookie in club history, just missing the club mark of 75.9% (Chris Boniol – 1994).

Hoffman's expertise in developing battle-ready kicking specialists was no more evident than in 1997, when he introduced Cunningham and Gowin to the pressures of performing in the NFL. Cunningham responded to the challenge by hitting 34 of his first 37 career field goal attempts, including a mid-season streak of 18 straight successful attempts. After finishing the 1997 season as the NFL's second leading scorer with 126 points, Cunningham was named All-Pro by the Associated Press and The Sporting News.

Gowin turned in a season-long average of 41.8 yards, and his net average of 35.4 was second best among all NFL rookie punters. His kickoffs averaged 66.6 yards and he registered 12 touchbacks. Gowin capped his best season in Dallas in 1999 by averaging 43.2 yards-per-attempt (seventh in the NFL) before leaving for New Orleans via free agency.

Both Boniol and Jett departed the Cowboys following the 1996 season after very productive careers in Dallas. Boniol nailed his last 27 straight field goal attempts in 1996, after hitting his last 25 in a row in 1995. He closed his three-year Cowboys career by hitting on 81-of-93 field goals (87.1%), while Jett crafted a four-year average of 41.9 yards-per-punt.

As a rookie in 1994, Boniol hit on 22-of-29 field goal attempts (75.9%) to set a team record for field goal percentage by a rookie. In 1995, Boniol hit on 27 of his 28 field goal attempts (a team record 96.4% and the second best mark in NFL history at the time), and he also scored 127 points to establish a club-record for points by a kicker.

In 1993, Hoffman brought free agent punter John Jett to the NFL. The newcomer responded by finishing the year third in the NFL in net punting average (37.7).

Hoffman discovered a pair of rookie free agent placekickers in 1990 and 1992, and each went on to establish Dallas records for scoring by a rookie. In 1990, Ken Willis set the mark with 90 points, and in 1992, rookie Lin Elliott shattered that standard by scoring 119 points.

After joining the Cowboys as kicking coach in 1989, Hoffman added quality control duties in 1990. He currently coordinates computer scouting of Cowboys future opponents, while providing internal analysis of the Cowboys own tendencies and productivity.

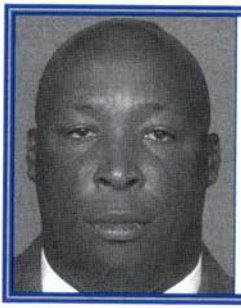
From 1985-87, Hoffman oversaw kickers at the University of Miami, where one of his charges was Jeff Feagles, an 11-year pro who punted for Seattle last season. Hoffman also was a top instructor for Ray Pelfrey's kicking camps, where his students included Barry Helton, who booted for the San Francisco 49ers, and Brian Hansen, the Saints' all-time leading punter.

Hoffman spent two springs in Italy as offensive coordinator of the Bellusco Seahawks (1987) and Rho Blacknights (1988). In the fall of 1988, he coached at Sunset High School in Miami.

In 1983, Hoffman punted for the Washington Federals of the USFL. He also went to training camp with the Redskins in 1981 and 1983, Seattle in 1984 and New Orleans in 1985.

Born in Camden, NJ (9/8/58), Hoffman starred in baseball and football at York Suburban High School in York, PA. He earned All-Mid-Atlantic Conference honors at Dickinson College, where he played quarterback, running back and wide receiver while handling the punting and kicking duties. Hoffman earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in economics from Dickinson and a Master of Science in sports administration from St. Thomas (FL). He resides in Coppell, TX, and has a daughter, Micaela (10/18/95), and son, Lucas (5/29/97).

Steve Hoffman – Born September 8, 1958, Camden, NJ. Quarterback-running back-wide receiver Dickinson College 1979-82. Pro punter Washington (USFL) 1983. College coach: Miami 1985-87. Pro coach: joined Dallas in 1989.



Jim Jeffcoat

Defensive Ends

NFL: 5th Year ★ Cowboys: 5th Year

After spending two years as Dallas' assistant defensive line coach, Jim Jeffcoat took over the responsibility of coaching the Cowboys defensive ends in 2000, and his young charges showed dramatic improvement in each of the past two seasons. Hired as a full-time Dallas assistant in 1998, Jeffcoat often calls upon his 15 years of NFL playing experience to help tutor the Cowboys who now follow in his footsteps as one of the franchise's most productive and consistent defensive ends.

In 2001, the Dallas defense made a tremendous turnaround from the previous year, allowing 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that was 927 fewer yards than the club allowed during the 2000 season. Those numbers represented the largest turnaround by any defensive unit in the NFL in 2001. The Cowboys defensive line played a key role in that performance. Greg Ellis led Dallas in sacks (six), quarterback pressures (26) and forced fumbles (four). He also led all defensive linemen in tackles with a career-high 83 (fourth on the team), and he was third on the team in tackles for losses (seven for minus 12 yards). After Ebenezer Ekuban was felled with a season ending back injury in Week 1, Jeffcoat tutored his replacement, Peppi

Zellner, to a fine season. Zellner finished second on the team in quarterback pressures (22) and fourth in sacks (3.5).

In 2000, Jeffcoat's first year overseeing the defensive ends, his unit accounted for 16.5 of Dallas' 25 sacks, with second-year end Ekuban leading the way with 6.5. Ellis tied for the team lead in tackles behind the line of scrimmage with seven totaling losses of 16 yards while posting 77 tackles to lead all linemen. Under Jeffcoat's guidance, both players overcame adversity with character and persistence. Ekuban handled the responsibility of starting at an early stage in his career while fighting through injuries, while Ellis was forced to battle back from a severely fractured leg that brought an abrupt end to his 1999 season.

In 1999, Jeffcoat assisted with a Cowboys defensive line that produced three linemen who each totaled over 50 tackles for the year. Chad Hennings led the way with a career-high 92 tackles, while Kavika Pittman added a career-high 74 and Ellis recorded 59 in 13 games. Ellis led the team with 7.5 sacks. Pittman also finished second on the team with 10 passes defensed, the highest total for a Cowboys lineman since Ed "Too Tall" Jones batted down 14 in 1988. First-round draft choice Ekuban saw action in Dallas' defensive end rotation and earned All-Rookie honors from Pro Football Weekly and Football News.

In 1998, Ellis became the first Dallas Cowboys rookie to start a season at defensive end since Bob Lilly in 1961. Ellis, who topped all defensive linemen with 63 tackles, led four Dallas defensive linemen that finished with more than 50 tackles – Pittman (59), Hennings (55) and Leon Lett (51). It marked the first time since 1990 that four lineman had recorded over 50 tackles in a season.

Jeffcoat joined the coaching ranks after finishing his playing career with 102.5 career sacks, 745 tackles and 194 quarterback pressures. Jeffcoat played in 227 games from 1983 to 1997, placing him among the top 40 players all-time in number of games played. He spent the first 12 years of his career with Dallas after being selected in the first round of the 1983 NFL Draft, and he was a member of the Cowboys' teams that won Super Bowls XXVII and XXVIII. Jeffcoat has played for or coached with all five head coaches in Cowboys history.

During his 12-year stint with the Cowboys, Jeffcoat totaled 698 tackles, 94.5 sacks and 149 quarterback pressures. His best season in Dallas was 1989, when he finished with a career-high 100 tackles, a career-high 42 quarterback pressures, 11.5 sacks and a career-high three fumble recoveries. He registered five seasons with 70-or-more tackles and five seasons with 10-or-more sacks in Dallas. He tied the Cowboys team record for sacks in a game when he registered five sacks at Washington on Nov. 10, 1985.

Jeffcoat was a three-year starter at Arizona State University from 1980-82, where he earned All-PAC 10 and honorable mention All-America honors. He was inducted into the Arizona State Hall of Fame on Oct. 22, 1994 after being named to the all-time Fiesta Bowl team in 1991. Jeffcoat earned All-America football honors at Matawan, NJ, Regional High School while also lettering in wrestling.

Jeffcoat was awarded the New Jersey Sportswriter's Association Unsung Hero Award for his community service in 1991. At the Cowboys' 2000 training camp, Jeffcoat and his defensive players participated in the club's tackling hunger "Lineman Weigh-In" sponsored by Campbell Soup, donating a total of 21,064 cans of soup to The Salvation Army Irving Corps and Faith Mission Food Bank in Wichita Falls. He earned his bachelor's degree in communications and his Masters in Business Administration from ASU. He and wife Tammy have four children: Jaren (10/1/87), twins, Jackson and Jacqueline (12/26/90), and Jasmine (2/15/99).

Joe Juraszek

Strength and Conditioning

New Mexico
NFL: 5th Year ★ Cowboys: 5th Year

Joe Juraszek (pronounced jer-ASS-ick) joined the Cowboys staff as the strength and conditioning coach in February, 1997 and implemented a hands-on approach that stresses strength development, cardiovascular conditioning, flexibility and speed work. His ability to tailor workout programs to individual player needs based on the player's input and workout history has earned him the respect and admiration of the players and the coaching staff.

The rapport Juraszek, along with his assistants Bennie Wylie and Tony Ollison, has developed with the players is evident in the number of participants in his offseason conditioning program each spring. The impact of this intensive program can be seen on the field with the continued successes and health of seasoned veterans Emmitt Smith and Darren Woodson and in the continued development and contributions from younger players like Flozell Adams, Quincy Carter, Dexter Coakley, Greg Ellis, Dat Nguyen, Solomon Page and Peppi Zellner.

Along with overseeing the strength and conditioning programs for the team, Juraszek also works with the Cowboys medical staff implementing rehabilitation programs for injured players. His work within these rehab programs has allowed players to return to the playing field quickly and, usually, stronger.

Juraszek came to Dallas after serving as the University of Oklahoma strength coach from 1993-96. He joined the Sooners after serving as the strength coach at Texas Tech University from 1987-92. He was a graduate assistant and then a full-time assistant strength coach for Oklahoma from 1981-86.

He attended the University of New Mexico from 1976-81, where he played linebacker and defensive end for the Lobos while earning a bachelor's degrees in Physical Education/Health and Economics. He added a master's degree while serving as a graduate assistant strength coach at Oklahoma.

In January, 2001, Juraszek was a panel member for the "Get & Stay Fit" Family First Town Meeting hosted by WFAA-TV, Dallas' ABC affiliate. He joined Dr. Kenneth Cooper, founder and president of the Cooper Fitness Center and Clinic in Dallas, and Dr. Joel Steinberg, Medical Director of Children's Medical Center of Dallas, in providing advice on exercise training, preventative health tips and the latest facts on dieting.

A native of Chicago, IL (6/8/58), Juraszek and his wife, Camille, have a daughter, Nikki Jo, and a son, J.D.

Joe Juraszek – Born June 8, 1958, Chicago, IL. Linebacker/Defensive End New Mexico 1976-80. College coach: Oklahoma 1981-86, 1993-96, Texas Tech 1987-92. Pro coach: joined Dallas in 1997.

Andre Patterson

Defensive Tackles

Montana
NFL: 6th Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

Regarded as one of the NFL's finest teachers of defensive line play, Andre Patterson was hired to coach the Cowboys defensive tackles prior to the start of the 2000 season. His abilities to mold and develop young players has shown solid progress with the impressive performances of players such as Michael Myers and Brandon Noble in 2001. The addition of La'Roi Glover in 2002 will provide veteran experience and leadership to one of the club's most rapidly improving areas.

In 2001, the Dallas defense made a tremendous turnaround from the previous year, allowing 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that is 927 fewer yards than the club allowed during the 2000 season. Those numbers represented the largest turnaround by any defensive unit in the NFL in 2001. The Cowboys defensive line played a key role in that performance. Michael Myers enjoyed a very solid year, closing out the 2001 season seventh on the team in tackles with a career-high 72 stops. He also tied for second on the club with 3.5 sacks, while his 18 quarterback pressures were the third highest total registered by a Dallas defender. Fellow tackle Brandon Noble was also tied for second on the team in sacks with 3.5, while leading the team in fumble recoveries with two. Rookie John Nix made an impressive debut by finishing the year tied for second in forced fumbles (two) while tallying 22 tackles and four quarterback pressures.

In his first year on the job (2000), season ending injuries to starting defensive tackles Chad Hennings and Leon Lett forced Patterson to accelerate the learning and development process for several young players, and, by season's end, his youngsters were providing solid results. Second-year man Brandon Noble had a career-high 69 tackles and ranked third on the team in quarterback pressures with 10, while third-year man Michael Myers added a then career-best 46 tackles.

Before joining the Cowboys, Patterson's three previous years in the NFL were all spent with teams that advanced to the playoffs – Minnesota (1998 and 1999) and New England (1997).

In two seasons with the Vikings (1998-99), Patterson worked with two of the top pass rushers in NFL history in John Randle (106 career sacks) – who recorded double-figure sack totals in both seasons under Patterson – and Chris Doleman (150.5 career sacks). In 1999, the Vikings defense finished fifth in the NFC in fewest points allowed (335), while Randle led the team in sacks (10). In addition, Duane Clemons finished second on the team with a career-high nine sacks.

In 1998, Patterson led a unit that was a big part of the Vikings defense that shut out opponents in 29-of-73 quarters (including playoffs), held the opposition to 296 points (sixth best in the NFL) and had the second best turnover ratio (+14) in the NFL. Randle led the squad in sacks (10.5) and quarterback hurries (80), while defensive end Derrick Alexander had a career-high 7.5 sacks.

ANDRE PATTERSON

Patterson joined the Vikings for the 1998 season after spending the 1997 season as a defensive assistant with the New England Patriots. In his first NFL season, he helped guide the Patriots to a 10-6 record and the AFC Eastern Division title. Patterson spent most of his time working with defensive line coach Ray Hamilton. The Patriots finished the campaign with 45 sacks, the second highest total in team history. New England's defense tied for fourth in the NFL in turnover margin (+10) and fifth in the NFL against the run.

Prior to joining the Patriots, Patterson spent three seasons as the head coach at Cal-Poly-San Luis Obispo (1994-96). When he arrived at Cal-Poly, the school had just made the jump from Division II to I-AA. In his first season as a head coach, Patterson led the Mustangs to the American West Conference title with a 7-4 record and earned American West Coach of the Year honors. The following season, the Mustangs finished second in the country in passing yards (344.9 ypg) and total offense (495.9 ypg), second only to Montana, the eventual I-AA national champion. The Mustangs averaged 37.4 points-per-game, sixth in the country, and placed two players on the All-America team.

Prior to joining the Mustangs, Patterson coached the defensive line at Washington State for two seasons (1992-93) under former Cougars and current Cowboys defensive coordinator Mike Zimmer – his second stint with Zimmer. While with the Cougars, Patterson coached future NFL linemen Chad Eaton and Lewis Bush. The pair helped set a Pac-10 single-season record with 60 sacks in 1992.

In 1990, Patterson joined the staff at Cornell for two seasons as the defensive line coach. In 1990, Cornell claimed the Ivy League title, powered by a defensive unit which ranked second in the conference.

In 1989, Patterson served as the defensive coordinator at Western Washington University. That year, his defense set an NAIA record for limiting an opponent to minus nine yards passing in a game. He first crossed paths with Zimmer in 1988 when Patterson was coaching the defensive line at Weber State and Zimmer was defensive coordinator.

Patterson coached at St. Monica, CA, High School, in 1987-88. In 1983, he accepted a teaching and coaching position at Renton High School in Washington, where he served as the defensive coordinator and offensive line coach from 1983-86.

Patterson began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at his alma mater, the University of Montana, in 1982.

Patterson played two seasons at Contra Coast Junior College as an offensive lineman before transferring to Montana in 1981. He played one season at Montana before knee injuries ended his playing career.

Andre Patterson was an all-league center and nose guard at Harry Ells High School in Richmond, VA. He earned his Associate of Art degree from Contra Costa Junior College in San Pablo, CA, in 1980. Patterson received his bachelor's degree in secondary education from the University of Montana in 1983. He was a keynote speaker on Academics and Athletics for the National Rainbow Coalition Convention with Reverend Jesse Jackson. Patterson and his defensive line participated in the Chunky NFL Tackling Hunger Lineman Weigh-In. The group weighed-in at 21,064 cans of Campbell's soup which was donated to the Irving Salvation Army and Faith Mission Food Bank in Wichita Falls, TX. Patterson coached the El Cerreto boys baseball team to a second place finish to Cuba in the 1979 Boys Baseball World Series. He and wife Donna have a son, Andre Jr. (5/19/92), and a daughter, Ashmera (8/13/98).

Secondary

Arizona
NFL: 8th Year ★ Cowboys: 7th Year

Entering his seventh season in Dallas, Clancy Pendergast faces a stiff challenge in 2002 as he tries to top his rookie year as the Cowboys secondary coach. In his first season at the controls of the Dallas secondary, Pendergast oversaw a unit that finished the season third in the NFL in pass defense for the second straight season. Darren Woodson led the unit with 131 tackles and a team-high three interceptions. Manning the corners were two first-time starters, second-year player Mario Edwards and NFL Europe veteran Duane Hawthorne. This pair combined to hold opponents to 180.6 passing yards-per-game.

After four years (1996-99) serving the dual role of defensive assistant/quality control for the Cowboys, Clancy Pendergast oversaw the club's defensive nickel package in 2000. Despite starting five different line-ups and eight different players in the secondary over the course of the 2000 season, the Dallas defense finished the year third in the NFL in pass defense. Darren Woodson (123) and Ryan McNeil (101) each topped the 100-tackle plateau, while Phillippi Sparks, who joined the team the week of the season opener, led the team with five interceptions.

In his first four seasons with Dallas, Pendergast's work as a defensive assistant, helping with the linebackers in particular, was an integral part of the defense's success. During that time, he helped incorporate youngsters Dexter Coakley, Randall Godfrey, Darren Hambrick and Dat Nguyen into the lineup as valuable contributors. Coakley evolved from a rookie third-round draft choice in 1997 to a Pro Bowl selection in 1999 and 2001. In 1999, Coakley also led the club with four interceptions – the most by a Dallas linebacker since Lee Roy Jordan had six in 1975.

The play of Dallas' linebackers in 1998 helped the Cowboys improve their run defense from 24th to 12th in the NFL. Coakley led the group with 127 tackles, second on the team, Fred Strickland finished third on the team with 117 stops, and Godfrey totaled 115 tackles to finish fourth.

The Cowboys linebackers also finished 1997 as the team's second, third and fourth leading tacklers. Godfrey led the group with 149 stops. Coakley started all year at weakside linebacker and recorded 136 tackles, the club-record for tackles by a rookie.

In 1996, the Dallas linebackers were led by Fred Strickland, who recorded a team and career-high 153 tackles. Pendergast worked closely with rookie draft pick Godfrey, helping him earn a starting spot at strongside linebacker by Week 11 against Green Bay (11/18/96).

Pendergast spent the 1995 season with the Houston Oilers as a defensive assistant and quality control coach. He joined the Oilers from Alabama-Birmingham, where he was named the tight ends coach in January of 1995. Prior to his short stint at UAB, Pendergast spent the 1993-94 seasons working with the tight ends and as an advance scout at Oklahoma. In 1992, Pendergast was a defensive assistant at Southern Cal. After earning his bachelor's degree from Arizona (1990), Pendergast worked the 1991 season as a graduate assistant at Mississippi State, helping with the receivers and working as an advance scout.

Pendergast (11/29/67) is a native of Phoenix, AZ.

Clancy Pendergast – Born November 29, 1967, Phoenix, AZ. College coach: Mississippi State (Graduate Assistant) 1991, Southern Cal 1992, Oklahoma 1993-94. Pro Coach: Houston Oilers 1995, joined Dallas in 1996.

Greg Seamon

Tight Ends/ Offensive Quality Control

Franklin College
NFL: 1st Year ★ Cowboys: 1st Year

With 18 years of college coaching experience, Greg Seamon will take over the responsibility of coaching the Cowboys tight ends while also handling the offensive quality control duties in 2002. He brings to the Cowboys an outstanding resume as an offensive coach at the college level, having served as an offensive coordinator in each of his last three college coaching assignments: Miami of Ohio (1999-2000), Cincinnati (1995-1998) and Akron (1991-1994).

During his two-year stint at Miami of Ohio, Seamon oversaw a quick-strike attack that scored touchdowns in 60 seconds or less 17 times. While serving four years as the offensive coordinator at the University of Cincinnati, Seamon developed one of the most balanced offenses in the history of the program. His offensive strategy helped the Bearcats lead Conference USA in rushing in both 1996 and 1997 and was ranked 14th in the nation following the 1997 season. Following that 1997 season, Cincinnati went to its first bowl game in 47 years, posting a 35-19 win over Utah State in the Humanitarian Bowl. Prior to Cincinnati, Seamon served as offensive coordinator at the University of Akron.

A well-traveled assistant, Seamon has coached from the Pacific to the Atlantic and a number of places in between. In 1987, Seamon joined the staff at Navy, where he served as quarterback coach through 1988. He accepted his first offensive coordinator position at University of the Pacific in 1985 and stayed through 1986, when the Tiger rushing attack ranked seventh in the nation. Seamon joined Army's staff in 1983, serving as the offensive line coach until evolving to running backs coach in 1984, when his Cadet backs led the nation in rushing. That squad posted an 8-3-1 record and beat Michigan State 10-6 in the Cherry Bowl, the first bowl game in Academy history. He began his college coaching career with a two-year tenure as a graduate assistant at Purdue (1981-1982), coaching tight ends and special teams in 1981 and outside linebackers in 1982.

Seamon began his coaching career in 1977 as the defensive coordinator at Bishop Chatard High School in Indianapolis, IN. He also served as the head baseball coach from 1979-80.

Seamon played football and baseball at Franklin College in Indiana before earning a degree at Marian College in Indianapolis, IN, in 1977. He later earned an M.A. in American Literature from the University of the Pacific in 1990.

A three-sport prep standout, Seamon garnered all-conference accolades in football, basketball and baseball at North Dearborn High School in Logan, Ind. He has three children, Gwen, Courtney and Meredith.

Frank Verducci

Offensive Line

U.S. Merchant Marine Academy
NFL: 4th Year ★ Cowboys: 1st Year

Frank Verducci was named the Dallas Cowboys offensive line coach on Feb. 20, 2002. He comes to Dallas after serving as the Cincinnati Bengals tight ends coach for the past three years.

In Dallas, Verducci takes over a group that is anchored by one of the game's finest offensive linemen in seven-time Pro Bowler Larry Allen. A pair of young tackles, Flozell Adams and Solomon Page will join Allen in helping Emmitt Smith on his march toward the NFL all-time rushing record.

Success in the running game has been a constant companion of Verducci's throughout his coaching career. While at Cincinnati, his tight ends played a key role in the production of running back Corey Dillon. In Verducci's three years with the Bengals, Dillon rushed for 3,950 yards, including an NFL single game record 247 yards against Denver in 2000. The Bengals ranked second in the NFL in rushing in 2000 (144.6 yards-per-game) and finished sixth in the league in 1999 (128.2).

Prior to joining the Bengals, Verducci spent 12 seasons with Hayden Fry at the University of Iowa, including the last seven seasons as the offensive line coach. While in Iowa City, he coached 11 offensive linemen that went on to enter the NFL from 1993 to 1998. Four of his former Iowa linemen (Casey Weigmann – Chiefs, Ross Verba – Browns, Mike Goff – Bengals and Jeremy McKinney – Browns) were starters in the NFL in 2001. In addition, Verba is the only rookie left tackle to ever start in the Super Bowl (XXXII).

Verducci's offensive lines paved the way for record setting performances by several Hawkeye players. Running back Tavian Banks set school records for rushing yards in a game (314) and a season (1,691), and Sedrick Shaw set the school's career rushing mark with 4,156 yards.

The Hawkeyes established single game rushing records for the Sun Bowl (1995) and the Alamo Bowl (1996). The 1994 Iowa line established a school record for fewest sacks allowed (10), while the 1997 group helped the Hawkeyes earn the Big Ten rushing title.

A native of Glen Ridge, NJ, Verducci had other college assistant coaching assignments at Northwestern (1987-88), Iowa (1985-86), Northern Illinois (1984), Maryland (1981-83) and Colorado State (1980).

At Maryland, Verducci helped coach the Terps to berths in the Aloha (1982) and Citrus (1983) Bowls. His bowl experience at Iowa include two trips each to the Rose Bowl (1986 and 1991), Holiday Bowl (1986 and 1991), Alamo Bowl (1993 and 1996) and Sun Bowl (1995 and 1997).

Verducci played fullback and tight end at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy – Kings Point and went on to receive his bachelor's degree from Seton Hall University. He and his wife, Noel, have a son, Jack (10), and a daughter, Cameron (4).

Wade Wilson

Quarterbacks

East Texas State
NFL: 3rd Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

Wade Wilson returned to Dallas as an assistant coach in 2000 after 19 years as an NFL quarterback – including three years with Dallas (1995-97). Along with his playing experience, Wilson has now overseen two of the most tumultuous seasons in Dallas quarterback history, coaching six different starting quarterbacks in his 32 games as the club's quarterback coach.

Wilson was forced to call on all his knowledge and experience as he helped prepare four different starting quarterbacks for action during the 2001 season. It was the first time in club history four different players started at quarterback for Dallas in the same season. The Cowboys opened the season with a rookie quarterback for just the third time in franchise history when Quincy Carter took the field against Tampa Bay. That game began the Cowboys quarterback carousel, as injuries forced Carter from the lineup for eight of the next nine games. During that span, Anthony Wright earned three starts – including a win at Washington – Clint Stoerner led the club in two games – including a win over Arizona – and Ryan Leaf took the helm for three games in November. Carter returned to the lineup in December and guided the Cowboys to three wins in their final six games.

Wilson's first year on the job was just as hectic as four different quarterbacks saw action during the season, the first time in club history four different players saw action at quarterback in the same season. Troy Aikman started 11 games but was forced to miss five starts and parts of three other games with injuries. Randall Cunningham relieved Aikman on two occasions and started three other games in his place. Stoerner, in his rookie year, saw action in one game early in the year in place of Cunningham before giving way to newcomer Wright. Wright earned the starting nod in the final two games of the season against the N.Y. Giants (12/17) and Tennessee (12/25).

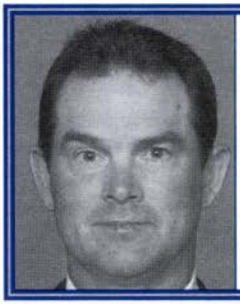
A former Pro Bowler, Wilson joined the coaching ranks after a 19-year playing career. Only four other players in NFL history have played more seasons than Wilson. He was originally an eighth-round draft choice (210th overall) of the Minnesota Vikings in 1981 and led them to three playoff appearances, including the 1987 NFC Championship Game, during his 11 years with the team. He also spent time with the Atlanta Falcons (1992), New Orleans Saints (1993-94), Dallas Cowboys (1995-97) and Oakland Raiders (1998-99). He served as Aikman's backup on the Cowboys Super Bowl XXX championship team in 1995.

Wilson completed his career with a 75.6 quarterback rating on 1,391-of-2,428 passing for 17,283 yards. His best statistical year was 1988 when he led the NFC with a 91.5 quarterback rating and completed 204-of-332 passes (61.4%) for 2,746 yards, 15 touchdowns and nine interceptions. His 61.4% completion rate led the NFL that season. During his three years in Dallas, Wilson threw for 585 yards, one touchdown and four interceptions on 58-of-96 passing for a 63.9 rating. He earned one start (at Washington, 12/22/96) in his three-year stay in Dallas.

He was a four-year letterman and three-year starter at East Texas State University, where he earned NAIA All-America and Lone Star Conference MVP honors as a senior while leading the conference in passing and total offense. He completed 338-of-668 passes for 4,414 yards and 32 touchdowns during his four years with the Lions. He played high school football at near-by Commerce, TX, High School.

Charles Wade Wilson majored in business management at ETSU, and he has his real estate license and his SEC-series seven registration. Wilson has four children; Travis Wade, Hayden, and twins Coleton and Sophie.

Wade Wilson - Born February 1, 1959, Commerce, TX. Quarterback East Texas State University 1977-80. Pro Quarterback Minnesota 1981-91, Atlanta 1992, New Orleans 1993-94, Dallas, 1995-97, Oakland 1998-99. Pro Coach: joined Dallas in 2000.



Mike Zimmer

Defensive Coordinator

NFL: 9th Year ★ Cowboys: 9th Year

After helping shape the Cowboys pass defense into one of the NFL's best in the second half of the 1990s, Mike Zimmer was handed the responsibility of coordinating the Cowboys defense on Feb. 1, 2000. After two years at the helm, Zimmer has earned respect and recognition around the NFL with the dramatic improvement the Dallas defense has made. The retooled Cowboys have become younger, quicker and better in a very short period of time. The makeover has come with its share of growing pains, but the fourth NFL defensive ranking that the unit posted in 2001 is a testament to Zimmer's ability to teach and motivate.

In 2001, the Dallas Cowboys allowed 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that was 927 yards less than the club allowed during 2000. That figure represented the largest turnaround in the NFL in 2001. The Dallas defense jumped from 31st against the run in 2000 to 13th in 2001, allowing an average of 106.9 yards-per-game. The club's overall defense showed a 730-yard improvement in 2001 when compared to the previous season, marking the NFL's fifth best improvement and jumping the club from an overall NFL ranking of 19th in 2000 to fourth in 2001. The Cowboys were third in the NFL (second in the NFC) in pass defense, giving up 180.6 yards-per-game. The unit gave up fewer than 200 passing yards in seven of its last nine games, while allowing only one opposing quarterback to throw for more than 300 yards.Linebacker Dexter Coakley earned his second Pro Bowl selection in leading one of the NFL's fastest and most improved units.

The Cowboys 2000 defense battled through a string of injuries that forced a total of five key starters to miss a combined 33 games. The Dallas pass defense once again finished near the top of league rankings, finishing third in the NFL (second in NFC) by allowing only 168.3 passing yards-per-game. Despite struggles early in the season, Zimmer's troops improved to finish the season 19th in the NFL (ninth in NFC) in total defense, allowing 333.1 yards-per-game.

Prior to being promoted to defensive coordinator, Zimmer spent five years as Dallas' defensive backs coach and a year as a defensive assistant working with the nickel defense. In six years under Zimmer's watchful eye, the Cowboys pass defense surrendered an average of 190.6 passing yards-per-game, the second lowest figure in the league over that time span (Philadelphia – 187.4). In addition to finishing as one of the top two pass defenses in the league three times in that time frame, Dallas is the only team to have allowed fewer than 176.0 passing yards-per-game over a season three times.

Despite using five different starting lineups in the secondary in 1999, Zimmer's defensive backfield helped the Cowboys pass defense finish fourth in the NFC. The unit also tied for sixth in the league with 24 interceptions and returned four for touchdowns, tying the club record (1985, 1995). The Cowboys defense also limited seven opponents to 190 yards or less passing. Sanders earned his fourth consecutive trip to the Pro Bowl, while Darren Woodson finished third on the team with 128 tackles.

In 1998, the Cowboys were able to hold eight opponents to 200 yards passing or less, including four to 160 yards or less. Sanders led the team with five interceptions totaling 153 return yards to earn his third consecutive Pro Bowl berth, while Woodson earned his fifth straight Pro Bowl appearance after leading the team with 136 tackles.

The Cowboys finished 1997 at or near the top of several NFL pass defense categories, including fewest completions allowed (253 – first), net yards-per-pass play (4.94 – third) and yards gained-per-completion (10.74 – third). The Cowboys also held five opponents to less than 120 yards passing and 12 to 176 yards or less. Woodson earned a spot on the NFC Pro Bowl squad for the fourth consecutive year, while Sanders earned his sixth career Pro Bowl honor.

In 1996, Smith returned from a ruptured Achilles tendon to tie for the team lead with five interceptions. Woodson earned his third consecutive Pro Bowl berth after finishing with 118 tackles and five interceptions to tie Smith for the team lead. Sanders intercepted two passes, knocked away another nine and recovered a team-high three fumbles to earn his fifth career Pro Bowl selection (first with Dallas).

In his first season as defensive backs coach in 1995, Zimmer lost Smith for the year with a ruptured achilles in the season opener and did not have Sanders' services until Week Nine. Despite the injuries, the secondary surrendered only 204.5 passing yards-per-game, and Dallas returned four interceptions for touchdowns, tying the club record. In addition, Woodson earned his second career Pro Bowl berth.

As a defensive assistant in 1994, Zimmer worked with the Dallas nickel defense, which helped the secondary finish as the top ranked pass defense in the league (172.0 passing yards-per-game). Woodson, who earned his first Pro Bowl trip, tied for the team lead with five interceptions to lead a defense that picked off 22 passes during the year.

Larry Lacewell

Director of College and Pro Scouting

Larry Lacewell joined the Cowboys as Director of College Scouting in May of 1992 and has coordinated Dallas' NFL Draft efforts since 1993. He became the Cowboys' Director of College and Pro Scouting in the spring of 1994, adding the responsibility of coordinating the scouting efforts of all pro personnel to his college scouting duties. Lacewell now directs the Cowboys personnel evaluation for all college prospects, as well as all personnel with the NFL's 31 other teams and in NFL Europe.

Lacewell witnessed his roster rebuilding efforts pay dividends in 2001 as 18 players drafted over the past four years played major roles as starters or significant contributors during the season. Showing improvement as the season progressed, this group posted a 3-2 mark in the month of December.

The 2001 draft provided Dallas another influx of talent as all nine draft choices were on the roster, with Quincy Carter and Markus Steele providing the biggest impact. Carter posted a 3-5 record as the starting quarterback, matching the combined win total of the other 10 quarterbacks drafted in 2001. Steele stepped into the starting lineup at strongside linebacker at mid-season and finished the year with 51 tackles on the NFL's fourth ranked defensive unit.

Impact players from the 2000 draft include cornerback Mario Edwards, who started 15 games in 2001 for the NFL's third ranked pass defense, running back Michael Wiley, who continues to see significant playing time on third downs, and linebacker Orantes Grant, who is a major contributor on special teams while getting spot duty at linebacker.

In 1999, seven of the Cowboys eight draft selections earned spots with the club, with six making significant contributions from Day One. After two seasons, six of the nine draft choices have become starters: DE Ebenezer Ekuban, OL Solomon Page, LB Dat Nguyen, DE Peppi Zellner, TE Mike Lucky and G Kelvin Garmon.

The Cowboys also enjoyed a productive draft in 1998, as seven of the nine drafted players earned roster spots. The top three picks of 1998, DE Greg Ellis, T Flozell Adams and DT Michael Myers have become the foundation of the club's current defensive and offensive lines. Ellis and Adams earned Football Digest All-Rookie honors.

In 1997, all nine of the Cowboys' draft selections made the club. The class was highlighted by Dexter Coakley, who started all 16 games at linebacker, earned All-Rookie recognition and was the NFL's Defensive Rookie of the Month for October. Coakley earned his first Pro Bowl selection in 1999, his third year as a professional, and returned again following the 2001 season.

In 1996, seven of the nine players Dallas selected in the draft went on to earn a Cowboys roster spot. That class was highlighted by Randall Godfrey, who earned a starting linebacker spot by mid-November on a defensive unit that finished the year third in the NFL.

In Lacewell's first four drafts (1993-96), 27 of the 35 players selected by the Cowboys earned roster spots. The highlight of those classes is offensive lineman Larry Allen, who was drafted in the second round of the 1994 draft. Allen has earned Pro Bowl honors each of the past seven years and is considered one of the NFL's finest offensive lineman. Of the 27 players that earned roster spots, seven moved into the starting lineup by their third season, including Allen and linebackers Darrin Smith (1993) and Randall Godfrey (1996), who earned starting spots as rookies.

Lacewell joined the NFL after a distinguished career in collegiate coaching and athletic administration. Most recently, Lacewell served as defensive coordinator at Tennessee (1990-91). The 1990 Vols captured the SEC Championship and defeated Virginia in the Sugar Bowl. In 1991, Tennessee finished second in the SEC and earned a Fiesta Bowl berth.

As the athletic director and head coach at Arkansas State (1978-89), Lacewell compiled a record of 69-48-4. He was named the Southland Conference's Coach of the Year on three occasions, while the Indians captured two conference titles under his direction.

Lacewell began his coaching career at Alabama in 1959. Following two seasons with the Crimson Tide, he moved on to Arkansas State (1961), Arkansas A&M (1962-63), Kilgore Junior College (1964-65), Oklahoma (1966), Wichita State (1967) and Iowa State (1968). Lacewell rejoined the Sooners' staff in 1969 as assistant head coach/defensive coordinator and helped Oklahoma to six Big Eight titles and two national championships in nine years.

A native of Fordyce, AR, Lacewell (2/12/37) attended Fordyce High School and then played halfback at Arkansas A&M from 1955-59. In 1996, Lacewell was inducted into the Arkansas Sports Hall of Fame. He and his wife Criss have two sons, Bryant and Logan.

Flozell Adams

NFL: 5th Year ★ Cowboys: 5th Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1998 (16/12, 1/1), 1999 (16/16, 1/1), 2000 (16/16), 2001 (16/16). Total – 64/60, 2/2.

PRO: In four seasons in the NFL, Flozell Adams has proven himself to be one of the league's outstanding young offensive tackles. After seeing extensive time at right guard as a rookie, Adams has now started 48 consecutive games at left tackle since making the switch in 1999. A picture of durability in recent years, his string of 53 consecutive starts is the longest active streak on the club. During that time he has been an integral part of a Dallas line that has allowed just 112 sacks in 64 games (1.8 per game). Over the last four seasons, only two teams have allowed fewer during that time. With tremendous natural strength and athletic ability, he has rapidly developed into one of the NFL's finest performers at tackle and is becoming a fixture on the Dallas line. His natural athletic talents have also made him an imposing figure on the Cowboys field goal/PAT defensive unit, where he has blocked three opponents' kicks in his career. Evidence of Adams' effectiveness in his four seasons along Dallas' offensive line can be seen in Emmitt Smith's rushing production. Over the past four seasons, Smith has rushed for 4,953 yards, the fifth most in the NFL during that time span, and moved within 539 yards of Walter Payton at the top of the NFL's career rushing list. A Dallas back has rushed for over 100-yards 26 times in Adams' 60 career starts. Adams was the Cowboys second-round NFL Draft choice (38th overall) in 1998, making him the highest offensive lineman drafted by Dallas since the team selected Howard Richards with the 25th pick in 1981.

2001: As part of a line that helped Dallas finish third in the NFL in rushing at 136.5 yards-per-game, Adams extended his club-long streak of consecutive starts to 53 (48 at left tackle). The 2,184 rushing yards Dallas gained for the season was the second best total by a Cowboys' team in the last 20 years (1995 – 2,201). Also excelling at pass blocking, the line allowed just 34 sacks in 447 pass plays. Just 12 teams allowed fewer in 2001 and only eight teams lost fewer yards due to sacks than the 190 lost by Dallas. For the season, opponents were held to two sacks or less in a game 10 times. That streak started Week One when the vaunted Tampa Bay (9/9) defense was limited to just two sacks while allowing Dallas to rush 23 times for 99 yards (4.3 avg.). The following week saw the line create holes in the San Diego (9/23) defense as Smith ran for 85 yards on 17 carries (5.0 avg.) and moved past Barry Sanders into second on the NFL's all-time rushing list. Adams excelled on special teams at Philadelphia (9/30), blocking his first career PAT after having blocked two field goals in 1999. Against Washington (10/15), Adams helped lead Smith (107 yards) to his first 100-yard rushing game of the season and Dallas to 211 yards on the ground. He was also part of an offensive line that opened the way for Troy Hambrick (127 yards) and Michael Wiley (85) to rush for 207 yards and a 6.3 yards-per-carry average at Atlanta (11/11). Against Philadelphia (11/18), Adams helped Dallas rush for 132 yards on 23 carries (5.7 avg.) against the NFL's eighth ranked run defense. Working against Hugh Douglas most of the day, Adams limited him to one tackle for the game. He helped Dallas to its third 200+ yard rushing day of the season as the Cowboys ran 44 times for 215 yards, including a 102-yard effort from Smith, at Washington (12/2). The pass protection was again stellar against the N.Y. Giants (12/9), as Adams and his co-workers helped limit the Giants, who entered the game ranked fifth in the league in sacks-per-pass play, to two sacks in 29 pass plays. Smith logged a season-high 128 yards at Arizona (12/23), and the offensive line allowed just one sack in 30 pass plays. In the Cowboys upset win over San Francisco (12/30), Adams and the line led the way to 186 rushing yards, including 126 by Smith and limited the 49ers to one sack on 26 pass plays as Quincy Carter threw for a season-high 241 yards. The Cowboys offensive line closed out the season with a sackless performance at Detroit (1/6/02) and led the way as Smith gained 77 rushing yards – putting him over the 1,000-yard mark for the 11th consecutive season, an NFL record.

2000: In his second season as the Cowboys starting left tackle, Adams was part of an offensive line that allowed 35 sacks in 480 pass plays on the season. Only 12 teams surrendered fewer sacks than Dallas. In six games, opponents were held to one sack or less. During Troy Aikman's final 172 pass attempts of the season, the Dallas line allowed him to be sacked only four times – once every 43 attempts. In addition to pass protection, Adams helped Smith (1,203) eclipse the 1,000-yard barrier for the 10th consecutive season. Adams' work also allowed the Cowboys to average 4.2 rushing yards-per-carry for the year, a mark the club has topped just twice in the past 12 seasons. Only four NFC clubs posted a better yards-per-carry average in 2000. Adams' blocking at Arizona (9/10) helped limit the Cardinals to one sack in 35 pass plays as Randall Cunningham threw for 243 yards and three touchdowns. Adams helped lead Smith to his first 100-yard rushing game of the year at Carolina (10/1) when Smith romped for 132 yards on 24 carries (5.5 avg.). In the rematch against Arizona (10/22), the Cowboys rushed for 200 yards, including 112 by Smith, while allowing just one sack. Against Jacksonville (10/29), Smith again eclipsed the 100-yard mark with 102 yards on 24 carries. Adams helped Smith clear the 100-yard barrier for the third consecutive week at Philadelphia (11/5) as Dallas rushed for 204 yards against the league's ninth ranked defense entering the game. Adams and the offensive line held Cincinnati (11/12) sackless in 37 pass attempts, and then duplicated the feat by holding Minnesota (11/23) without a sack in 43 pass attempts. The line's work against the Vikings also allowed Smith to rush for 100 yards on 12 carries before leaving the game in the third quarter with a concussion. For the sixth time during the season, Adams and company led Smith past the 100-yard mark against Washington (12/10) as he rushed for 150 yards. Against the Redskins, the Cowboys rushed for 242 yards as a team, marking the most rushing yards by the Dallas offense since recording 271 yards on the ground at Philadelphia on Oct. 31, 1993.

1999: Adams was the only Dallas offensive lineman to start all 16 regular season games, and he provided the production of a seasoned veteran in his first season at left tackle. He was a key part of an offensive line that allowed just 24 sacks in 531 pass plays (one every 22.1 pass plays), the second fewest sacks allowed in the NFL. The Dallas line also allowed one sack or less in nine regular season games, including five of the final six games. In addition, Adams helped Smith to his highest single season rushing total (1,397) since 1995, while enabling the Pro Bowl running back to collect more 100-yard rushing games (nine) than in any other season in his career other than 1995. In his first NFL start at left tackle, at Washington (9/12), he helped lead the way for a Dallas offense that gained 541 total yards, the highest offensive output by Dallas since Sept. 15, 1985 when the team gained 554 yards against Detroit. In addition, Aikman was sacked just one time in 50 pass plays in the overtime win over the Redskins. The following week, the Dallas line led the way for Smith to gain 109 yards in a win over Atlanta (9/20), marking just the third time in 29 games that the Falcon defense had allowed a 100-yard rusher. In the win over Green Bay (11/14), Adams and Co. provided run blocking that helped spring Dallas' ground game to 149 yards on 34 carries despite Smith missing the entire game with an injury. On special teams, Adams blocked a Ryan Longwell field goal, marking the first blocked field goal by a Dallas offensive player since Doug Cosbie blocked one against the St. Louis Cardinals on Oct. 21, 1979. Two weeks later in the Thanksgiving Day win over Miami (11/25), Adams blocked a 47-yard field goal attempt by Olindo Mare in the second quarter. That effort tied the club record for blocked field goals in a season (two), as Adams became the 11th player in club history to accomplish that feat and the first since Leon Lett in 1994. In that same Miami game, the Cowboys offensive line permitted just one sack in 30 passing plays and helped lead Smith to 103 yards rushing against what was the NFL's sixth ranked defense going into the game. Dallas finished the season as the NFL's sixth ranked rushing offense, averaging 128.2 yards-per-game.

1998: Injuries to starting right guard Everett McIver forced Adams into extended work as a rookie. He started 10 games in place of McIver, who suffered serious injuries to both knees. Although inexperienced, and playing a new position, Adams earned All-Rookie recognition and was a key part of a Dallas offensive line that allowed just 19 quarterback sacks – the fewest in the NFL. Adams was marked ready for duty in the Dallas opener against Arizona (9/6), where he was used as a third tight end on short yardage situations. Adams wound up playing the final three quarters of the game at right tackle after starter Erik Williams was ejected. Adams helped the Dallas offense amass 444 total yards (188 rushing) against the Cardinals – both totals were the team's highest since 1996. In addition, the offensive line did not allow a sack of Aikman in 32 pass plays. The next three weeks, Adams saw considerable action at tight end as a short yardage blocker, and earned a starting assignment against Oakland (9/27) as the team opened the game in a two-tight end set. After McIver went down with his first knee injury at Washington (10/4), Adams earned his first start at right guard against Carolina (10/11). Against the Panthers, Dallas rolled up 428 yards of total offense while the line allowed just two sacks in 24 pass plays. In his first five starts at right guard, Adams helped Smith rack up four 100-yard rushing games, including a season-high 163 yards on 29 carries (5.6 avg.) against the N.Y. Giants (11/8). In that battle with the Giants, the Dallas offensive line allowed no sacks to a New York defense that led the NFL in sacks during the 1998 season. Adams did not start against Seattle (11/22), but he entered the game when McIver tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee. Adams started the remaining five regular season games at right guard and earned his first postseason experience by starting against Arizona (1/2/99) in the playoff loss at Texas Stadium.

COLLEGE: Adams spent three years in the starting line-up for Michigan State, and during that time, the Spartans went to three straight bowl games for only the second time in school history. They also had a running back top the 1,000-rushing yard mark each season. Adams started the final 28 games of his career at tackle, and in 34 career starts, he helped a Spartan running back reach the 100-yard mark 21 times. As a senior, Adams moved from right tackle to left tackle and picked up All-America honors and was named the Big Ten Offensive Lineman of the Year by the league's head coaches. One of four offensive linemen who were semi-finalist for the Outland Trophy and Lombardi Award, Adams earned postseason invitations to the East-West Shrine Game and Senior Bowl all-star games. He was a second team All-Big Ten selection at right tackle following his junior and sophomore seasons.

PERSONAL: A high school All-America and all-state selection as a two-year starter on the offensive line at Proviso West High School in Maywood, Ill., Adams also lettered three times in wrestling and four times in track (shot put). He advanced to the state heavyweight wrestling finals as a junior. Adams earned his degree in criminal justice from Michigan State and is a cousin of NBA guard Hersey Hawkins. Since joining the Cowboys, Adams has participated in the offensive line's support of The RISE School in Dallas with the "First Downs for Down Syndrome" project. In the fall of 2001, the entire offensive line helped paint a Dallas Cowboys Pegasus with the children from The RISE School. The Pegasus, a project to promote the City of Dallas, was donated to the school for a charitable fundraiser.

After injuries struck the Dallas linebacking corps at mid-season, the Cowboys activated Keith Adams from their practice squad. Adams, a quick linebacker with incredible instincts and a knack to get to the ball carrier, adds depth to an already powerful unit while also giving the club a key player on special teams. He was allocated to the Berlin Thunder of NFL Europe this past spring to gain professional experience and much needed playing time.

2002: Adams spent the spring with the Berlin Thunder, where he finished second on the team with 55 tackles, while adding a sack and seven passes defensed to help the Thunder to their second consecutive World Bowl Championship.

2001: Adams was drafted in the seventh round (232nd overall) of the NFL Draft by the Tennessee Titans. He went to training camp with the Titans and recorded one tackle and a special teams stop in limited preseason action. He was released at the end of camp, then signed to the Cowboys practice squad Nov. 8. He moved up to the active roster Nov. 21 and saw his first NFL action on special teams against Denver (11/22). At Washington (12/2), he tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles and saw action with the Dallas goal-line defensive unit. He also added a special teams tackle at Seattle (12/16). He was deactivated for the final three games of the season.

COLLEGE: Adams finished his collegiate career leading the Tigers in tackles for losses (19), quarterback pressures (19) and forced fumbles (four). He tied for the team lead in sacks (seven) and was second on the team, sixth in the nation, in tackles (138) to earn All-America honors as a junior. As a sophomore, he earned All-America honors while setting team records for tackles (186) and tackles for a loss (35) – also an Atlantic Coast Conference record – in a season. He set single game records for sacks (four) and tackles for a loss (six) against Duke. He was named defensive MVP of the Peach Bowl against Mississippi State after recording 10 tackles.

PERSONAL: The parks, recreation and tourism major was a two-way starter at running back and inside linebacker at Westlake High School in Atlanta, Ga. He registered over 2,200 yards rushing in two years and finished his senior year with 109 tackles. He earned regional offensive player of the year and two-time team offensive player of the year honors. Adams also lettered in wrestling and track. He was the state runner up in wrestling and registered a personal-best 10.8 seconds in the 100 meters. His father, Julius Adams, spent 16 years as a defensive end with the New England Patriots.

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1994 (16/10, 2/2), 1995 (16/16, 3/3), 1996 (16/16, 2/2), 1997 (16/16), 1998 (16/16, 1/1), 1999 (11/11, 1/1), 2000 (16/16), 2001 (16/16). Total – 123/117, 9/9.

PRO: As a member of the NFL's All-Decade team for the 1990's, Larry Allen is widely recognized as the NFL's premier offensive lineman, and he has established himself as the most decorated offensive lineman in Dallas Cowboys history. In eight NFL seasons since being drafted out of tiny Sonoma State, he is already a seven-time All-Pro selection, six times at guard (1995-97, 1999-01) and one at tackle (1998). With his Pro Bowl selection at tackle in 1998, he became just the third player in league history to be selected to the Pro Bowl at more than one offensive line position during his career, joining Bruce Matthews (guard/center) and Chris Hinton (guard/tackle). Allen's Pro Bowl selection in 2001 was the seventh of his brilliant career – setting the standard for most Pro Bowl selections by a Dallas offensive lineman. Emmitt Smith is the only Dallas offensive player to be selected to more Pro Bowls (nine), while Bob Lilly (11), Mel Renfro (10) and Randy White (9) are the only other Cowboys to be selected to the NFC squad more times than Allen. Allen has played all but one position along the offensive line in his eight seasons in Dallas, moving between right tackle (1994), right guard (1995-97), left tackle (1997-98) and left guard (1999-01). During that time, he has been part of a group that has allowed just 208 sacks in 128 games (1.6 per game), fewest in the NFL during that time (Miami is second with 222 sacks allowed). He has also been a member of an offensive unit that has posted the four lowest sacks allowed totals in club history with 18 in 1995, 19 in 1996 and 1998, and 20 in 1994. He has also been a very important part in Smith's race toward the all-time NFL rushing mark. Prior to the start of the 2002 season, Allen has played a role in eight of Smith's 11 one thousand-yard rushing seasons. Smith has gained 10,488 of his 16,187 career yards since Allen joined the Cowboys in 1994. With a career-best bench press of 700 pounds, and a squat lift of 900 pounds, Allen is also considered to be the strongest man to ever play professional football. In March of 2002, Allen signed a contract extension that all but assures the perennial All-Pro will finish his illustrious career as a Dallas Cowboy.

2001: Allen closed out the season by being named All-Pro by the Associated Press for the seventh consecutive season. He was also named a Pro Bowl starter at guard, although he did not attend the game in Hawaii due to elbow surgery that was performed after the season (Jan. 18, 2002). It was his seventh consecutive Pro Bowl selection and the most ever by a Dallas offensive lineman. Allen played a key role in a Dallas offensive line that helped the Cowboys finish third in the NFL in rushing at 136.5 yards-per-game. The 2,184 rushing yards Dallas gained for the season was the second best total by a Cowboys' team in the last 20 years (1995 – 2,201). The Dallas offensive line also helped Smith rush for an NFL-record 11th consecutive 1,000-yard season, while Smith also moved into the second spot on the NFL's all-time career rushing list with 16,187 yards. The Dallas offensive line allowed 34 sacks in 447 pass plays in 2001, only 12 teams allowed fewer sacks for the year and only eight teams lost fewer yards due to sacks than the 190 lost by Dallas. Ten times opponents were held to two sacks or less during the season. In the season opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), Allen helped limit All-Pro DT Warren Sapp to one tackle and no sacks, while the Cowboys were able to rush for 99 yards on 23 carries (4.3 avg.). In the Cowboys next game against San Diego (9/23), Allen led the way as Smith ran for 85 yards on 17 carries (5.0 avg.) and moved past Barry Sanders into second on the NFL's all-time rushing list. In the Cowboys Monday night win over Washington (10/15), Allen and Co. helped lead Smith (107 yards) to his first 100-yard rushing game of the season and Dallas to 211 yards on the ground for the evening. At Atlanta (11/11), Allen played a part in an effort that opened the way for Troy Hambrick to gain 127 rushing yards and Michael Wiley to add 85 en route to the Cowboys gaining 207 yards (6.3 avg.) for the day. In a home loss to Philadelphia (11/18), Allen helped Dallas rush for 132 yards on 23 carries (5.7 avg.) against the NFL's eighth ranked run defense. Allen played a key role in Dallas' 20-14 win at Washington (12/2), helping the Cowboys log their third 200+ yard rushing day of the season as the team ran 44 times for 215 yards (4.9 avg.), including 102 yards from Smith. The Cowboys surprise 27-21 win over San Francisco (12/30) was sparked by a Dallas line that helped account for 186 rushing yards, including 126 by Smith. The Cowboys also helped limit the 49ers to one sack on 26 pass plays as QB Quincy Carter threw for a season-high 241 yards. Allen personally limited Dana Stubblefield to three tackles on a day when the Cowboys ran 44 times.

2000: For the sixth consecutive season, Allen was selected to the NFC Pro Bowl squad and garnered consensus All-Pro and All-NFC honors for his work on the Dallas offensive line. He was part of a unit that allowed just 35 sacks in 480 pass plays during the year, and six times during the season opponents were held to one sack or less. On the ground, Dallas averaged 4.2 yards-per-carry, a mark the club has topped just twice in the last 12 seasons. Only four NFC clubs posted a better yards-per-carry average. Despite suffering a fractured right hand in practice on July 20, Allen returned to action by the end of preseason and started all 16 games. Against Arizona (9/10), Allen's blocking helped limit the Cardinals to one sack while protecting Randall Cunningham as he completed 24-of-34 passes for 243 yards and three touchdowns. The next week at Washington (9/18), he was a key part of an offensive line that helped Dallas rush for 153 yards and allowed just one sack in 24 pass plays. Smith posted his first 100-yard rushing effort of the season at Carolina (10/1), picking up 132 yards on 24 carries (5.5 avg.). Allen's blocking against Arizona (10/22) keyed the offense as it picked up 347 total yards, including 200 rushing – 112 by Smith – and allowed just one sack. For the second straight week, Smith topped the century mark with 102 yards on 24 carries against Jacksonville (10/29), and he posted his third straight 100-yard game as the Cowboys ran for 204 yards against the league's 10th ranked defense at Philadelphia (11/5). In the Eagles' game, Allen opened a gaping hole that Smith walked through for a second quarter score. Not content to merely run block, the line did not allow a sack in 37 pass attempts against Cincinnati (11/12) or in 43 pass attempts against Minnesota (11/23). In addition, Smith ran for 100 yards on 12 carries against the Vikings before suffering a third quarter concussion. At Tampa Bay (12/3) against the league's sixth ranked defense in sacks-per-pass play, Allen and the line helped limit the Bucs to two sacks in 35 pass plays. Personally, Allen helped limit Warren Sapp to two tackles on the day and the entire Tampa Bay starting defensive line to six tackles. Smith rushed for 150 yards and a touchdown against Washington (12/10) and the NFL's fourth ranked defense. In all, the Cowboys ran for 242 yards against the Redskins, the most by a Dallas offense since recording 271 yards on the ground at Philadelphia on Oct. 31, 1993.

1999: Despite starting in his third line position in as many years and missing five games due to injury, Allen was selected to his fifth consecutive Pro Bowl while earning consensus All-Pro honors. He earned this recognition as part of an offensive line that allowed the second fewest sacks (24) in the NFL (Indianapolis – 14) and one or fewer sacks in nine-of-16 games. The Dallas offensive line also led the way for Smith to rush for 1,397 yards. In Allen's first career start at left guard in the season opener at Washington (9/12), he helped lead the way as the Cowboys gained 541 total yards while surrendering only one sack in 50 pass plays. The offensive output against the Redskins was Dallas' highest yardage total since gaining 554 yards on Sept. 15, 1985 against Detroit. Against Atlanta (9/20), he helped lead the way as Smith (109 yards) became just the third player in the last 29 games to rush for over 100 yards against the Falcons. His blocking helped the Cowboys line allow only one sack in 40 pass plays at Philadelphia (10/10), and he helped limit the Redskins (10/24) to no sacks in 32 pass plays. At Minnesota (11/8), Allen's blocking helped spring Smith to 140 rushing yards and two touchdowns in the first half as the Dallas offense rolled up 205 rushing yards for the game. While helping the Cowboys ground game accumulate 149 yards against Green Bay (11/14), Allen sprained the medial collateral ligament in his right knee during the third quarter and did not return. He missed the first game of his career at Arizona (11/21), snapping strings of 97 consecutive games played and 90 consecutive starts. His knee sprain caused him to miss the next four games as well. He returned to the starting lineup at New Orleans (12/24) and helped the Dallas line surrender no sacks on 39 pass plays while helping Smith rush for his eighth 100-yard game of the season. In the season finale against the N.Y. Giants (1/2/00), Smith recorded his ninth 100-yard game of the year and the line did not allow a sack in 33 pass plays. The Cowboys offensive line closed the regular season by not allowing a sack on the final 94 pass plays of the season. The line again surrendered only one sack in 39 pass plays in an NFC Wild Card Playoff Game at Minnesota (1/9/00) while helping Smith rush for 99 yards, including a Dallas postseason record 65-yarder. Allen underwent arthroscopic surgery on Jan. 18, 2000 to remove loose bodies from his right knee.

1998: After starting the final three games of 1997 at left tackle, Allen was penciled into the position from day one of the 1998 season. In his first full season guarding Troy Aikman's blindside, he earned consensus All-Pro and All-NFC honors. When Allen's peers voted him to the NFC Pro Bowl squad at tackle, he became just the third player in league history to be selected to the Pro Bowl at more than one offensive line position during his career. Allen earned that recognition as a vital cog in an offensive line that allowed just 19 sacks for 110 yards in 493 pass plays for the season – fewest in the NFL. His blocking also helped Smith to seven 100-yard rushing days and 1,332 yards. In the season opener against Arizona (9/6), Allen debuted at his new position and helped Dallas amass 444 total yards (188 rushing) – both totals were the highest since 1996. In addition, the offensive line did not allow a sack of Aikman in 32 pass plays. In an October match-up at Washington (10/4), Allen helped lead the way as Dallas had two running backs top the 100-yard mark for just the third time in club history. Smith finished with 120 yards and one touchdown while Chris Warren added 104 yards and two touchdowns. In November, Allen faced four of the NFC's top defensive ends in Hugh Douglas (fifth in the NFC with 12.5 sacks in 1998), Chad Bratzke (ninth with 11.0), Simeon Rice (tied for 11th with 10.0) and John Randle (10th with 10.5). His streak started at Philadelphia (11/2) when he limited Douglas to one tackle and no sacks. The next week against Bratzke and the N.Y. Giants (11/8), his blocking helped Smith rush for 163 yards on 29 carries (5.6 avg.), and the Dallas offensive line allowed no sacks to a Giants defense that led the NFL in sacks in 1998. At Arizona (11/15), Allen, while limiting Rice to one tackle, was part of a line that allowed no sacks to the Cards defense and helped lead Smith to 118 yards and three touchdowns. Seattle brought the AFC's top sacking defense of 1998 into Dallas (11/22) and came away with just one sack (on an Aikman fumble), while the Cowboys ran for 173 yards on the day. Allen closed out his dominating month against John Randle and the Minnesota Vikings (11/26), limiting him to one tackle and no sacks in 81 offensive plays. In addition, Allen helped set a new club record for pass attempts in a game without a sack (57) and led the way as Smith rushed for three touchdowns to tie Marcus Allen's NFL record of 123 career rushing scores. In the regular season finale against Washington (12/27), Allen was part of a blocking unit that saw Smith run for two more touchdowns to break the NFL's all-time rushing touchdown record.

1997: After spending part of training camp working at left tackle, Allen returned to his right guard spot for the first 13 games of the season. He started his third season at right guard at Pittsburgh (8/31) and helped Dallas gain 380 total yards, including 295 yards passing while not allowing a sack. This kind of play kept Aikman healthy and in the starting lineup for every game for the third straight season. In a win over Philadelphia (9/15), Allen suffered a strained left hamstring in the second quarter and did not return to action. Following the bye week, he returned to the starting lineup against Chicago (9/28) but was forced out of the game in the second quarter when he did not have the strength in his left leg to effectively block. Allen was back in the starting lineup for good the next week at the N.Y. Giants (10/5). After the loss of Mark Tuinei at left tackle at Washington (10/13), Allen slid out to left tackle in third down passing situations against Philadelphia (10/26) and Washington (11/16). In the Redskins game, the line allowed just one sack in 46 pass plays. Allen became the full-time starter at left tackle against Carolina (12/8) and remained there the final three weeks of the season. Despite moving between guard and tackle during the season, Allen was selected to his third straight Pro Bowl at guard and earned first-team All-Pro honors.

1996: Allen earned his second consecutive trip to the Pro Bowl, along with consensus All-Pro and All-NFC honors, while the Dallas offensive line led the NFL by allowing just 19 sacks on the season, one shy of the club record set in 1995. In a win at Miami (10/27), Aikman was sacked just once while completing a season-high 33-of-41 (80.5%) pass attempts for 363 yards and three touchdowns. For the third straight year behind Allen, Smith ran for over 1,200 yards while topping 100 yards on the ground four times, including a season-high 155 yards and three touchdowns against Washington (11/28). In the first round of the playoffs, Allen's blocking helped lead the Dallas running game to 255 rushing yards against Minnesota (12/28), the second best postseason total in club history. Smith's 6.8 yards-per-carry average in that game was the third best mark in club history.

1995: Allen made his first NFL start at right guard in the season opener at the N.Y. Giants (9/4), helping the Dallas offense roll up 459 yards, including 230 rushing yards – the most by the Cowboys since Oct. 31, 1993. It wasn't until the third game of the season that the Dallas front five allowed a sack, and six times in 1995, Allen and the rest of the line held an opponent sackless. For the season, Dallas finished second in the NFL in fewest sacks allowed with a club record 18. In addition, Aikman was healthy and able to start every game for just the second time in his career, helping Allen earn All-Pro honors. In the regular-season finale at Arizona (12/25), Allen's work with the line enabled Dallas to roll up 474 yards of total offense, the most yardage by a Dallas team since Sept. 15, 1985. The Cowboys finished the season ranked fifth in the NFL in total offense, while Smith gained a club record 1,773 yards rushing, captured his fourth NFL rushing title in five years and scored a NFL record 25 rushing touchdowns. Following the season, Allen, who was in just his first year as a starting guard, was one of a club-record four Dallas offensive linemen to be selected to the Pro Bowl, joining Ray Donaldson, Nate Newton and Mark Tuinei.

1994: Allen was forced into the lineup four games into his rookie campaign when Tuinei suffered back spasms at Washington (10/2). He received a game ball for his play, which held the Redskins sackless on the day. The next week against the Cardinals (10/9), Allen earned his first NFL start, at left tackle for Tuinei, and held Clyde Simmons to five tackles and no sacks while the offensive line did not allow a sack in 28 pass attempts. It was the first time a rookie offensive lineman had started for Dallas since Nov. 24, 1991 when Williams started at right tackle against Washington. Allen returned to spot duty the next two weeks, but early in the morning on Oct. 24, Williams was injured in an automobile accident and lost for the season. Allen moved into the starting lineup at Williams' right tackle spot for good at Cincinnati (10/30). The following week, he was part of an offensive line that helped Dallas amass 450 total yards against the N.Y. Giants (11/7). Both he and Tuinei received game balls for helping hold the Saints without a sack in the Monday night victory at New Orleans (12/19). With 10 regular season starts, Allen tied Burton Lawless (1975) and Kevin Gogan (1987) for the most starts on the offensive line as a rookie in club history. On his way to garnering consensus all-rookie honors, Allen helped Dallas establish a then team record by allowing just 20 sacks – for losses totaling just 93 yards (fewest yards in the NFL). Smith finished the year third in the NFL rushing race with 1,484 yards, and the Cowboys were fifth in the NFL in rushing yards-per-game. In the playoffs, Allen received a game ball against Green Bay (1/8/95) when the Dallas offense picked up 450 total yards and Aikman completed 23-of-30 passes for 337 yards. Allen sprained his left ankle in that game, but returned to action. In the NFC Championship Game at San Francisco (1/15/95), he struggled through three quarters on the injured ankle before leaving the game. Allen was the 10th offensive lineman selected in the NFL Draft and the first player ever drafted from Sonoma State. Taken in the second round (46th overall), it marked the first time since 1981 Dallas had taken an offensive lineman that high.

COLLEGE: Allen began his college career at Butte Junior College in Oroville, CA (1989-90). After a year off, he enrolled at Sonoma State, a Division II school 45 miles north of San Francisco. In two years with the Cossacks, Allen gave up just one sack. During his senior year, Sonoma State set a mark with 334 yards rushing against Cal-State Hayward. A two-time All-America selection, Allen participated in the East-West Shrine Game and the Senior Bowl. In 1992, the Cossacks were primarily a passing team and established 10 new school records – including most yards gained, most touchdown passes, best gain-per-completion and highest passing efficiency.

PERSONAL: A native of Los Angeles, Allen attended a different high school each of his four years of school, finishing at Vintage High School in Napa, Calif. He lettered in football as a freshman at Centennial Senior High in Compton, Calif. Allen has participated in the offensive line's support of The RISE School in Dallas with the "First Downs for Down Syndrome" project. In the fall of 2001, the entire offensive line helped paint a Dallas Cowboys Pegasus with the children from The RISE School. The Pegasus, a project to promote the City of Dallas, was donated to the school for a charitable fundraiser. Larry and wife Janelle have two daughters, Jayla (12/15/94) and Loriana (4/20/00), and a son, Larry, Jr. (7/21/96).

PRO: Jason Bell was originally signed as a rookie free agent but impressed coaches with his exceptional special teams play throughout training camp and the preseason. Bell took the advice of coaches to heart in his first NFL training camp. After having it pounded into his head that rookies make the team with their play on special teams, Bell went out in the preseason and snatched a roster spot with his stellar play in the kicking game. He tied for second on the club with four special teams tackles, downed two punts inside the opponent's five-yard line and blocked a punt during August. This season should see Bell expand his role in the club's various pass defense schemes in addition to his duties on special teams.

2001: One of four rookie free agents to make the roster out of training camp, Bell made his presence known from the start on special teams where he led the team with 21 special teams tackles – the most special teams tackles by an NFL rookie in 2001. Working as a gunner on the Cowboys punt team, he also led the team with three downed punts, all at or inside the opponent's 10-yard line – including two downed at the one-yard line. In his NFL debut, Bell led the team with two special teams tackles and downed a fourth quarter punt at the one-yard line against Tampa Bay (9/9). Facing San Diego (9/23) and one of the league's top return men in Tim Dwight, Bell helped force Dwight into three fair catches and a two-yard loss on his only return. Bell again tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles against Washington (10/15), as the Redskins were limited to one punt return for two yards and three kickoff returns for an 11.7 average. His downed punt at the Arizona (10/28) one-yard line helped set up the drive that ended in Dexter Coakley's 10-yard interception return for a touchdown. Bell recorded two special teams tackles in each of the next four games at the N.Y. Giants (11/4), at Atlanta (11/11), against Philadelphia (11/18) and Denver (11/22) – leading or tying for the team lead in tackles in three of the contests. In the December win at Washington (12/2), Bell downed a Micah Knorr punt at the 10-yard line to pin the Redskins deep. Bell wrapped up his rookie campaign with a season-high three special teams tackles against the N.Y. Giants (12/9).

COLLEGE: Bell closed out his Bruin career with 42 tackles and nine passes defensed as a fifth-year senior. He was granted an additional year of eligibility due to a medical hardship after surgery to remove bone spurs in his right heel cut short his 1999 season. Bell led the squad with 14 passes defensed and recorded 38 tackles while starting every game as a junior. During his sophomore campaign, Bell started the final five games and finished the year with 18 tackles and four passes defensed. Bell saw playing time as a true freshman on special teams and played three games in the defensive backfield.

PERSONAL: Jason Dewande Bell was born April 1, 1978 in Long Beach, Calif. The history major attended Millikan High School, where he lettered three years as a defensive back, wide receiver and quarterback. At Millikan, he totaled 196 tackles, 12 interceptions and 38 passes defensed. He earned Blue Chip Illustrated All-America, National Recruiting Advisor all-west, SuperPrep all-far west and all-city honors. He was a three-year letterman on the track team, posting personal bests of 10.7 in the 100-meter dash, 21.89 in the 200-meter dash and 22-feet in the long jump. As a rookie, Bell was a member of the Cowboys inaugural "Rookie Club", a program designed to introduce rookies to community and charity work. The Rookie Club made visits to and spent time with children at Children's Medical Center of Dallas, Oak Cliff Boys and Girls Club, The Salvation Army and its' Christmas Distribution Center.

NFL: 1st Year ★ Cowboys: 1st Year

PRO: After missing his rookie season following surgery to repair ligament damage from a dislocated wrist, Willie Blade is looking to be a contributor along the Cowboys defensive line in 2002. Originally taken in the third round (93rd overall) of the 2001 NFL Draft, Blade brings a big, young body to the defensive line rotation. A late bloomer that has seen his talents grow each year since stepping onto the Northwest Community College football field in 1997, Blade is a physical player that plays the run well from either the nose tackle or defensive tackle position. Cowboys coaches are expecting Blade to continue his upward trend and battle for a spot in the defensive tackle rotation.

2001: Blade dislocated his right wrist in training camp on July 25. He underwent surgery to insert two pins in the wrist on July 26 and was placed on injured reserve Aug. 28.

COLLEGE: As a senior, Blade was a semifinalist for the Outland Trophy – given annually to the nation's top down lineman. Blade earned conference and national accolades, closing his senior season with 51 tackles, 13 quarterback pressures (second on the team), nine stops for a loss (third on the team) and team-highs with four sacks and two fumble recoveries. As a junior transfer from Butler County, KS, Community College, Blade totaled 28 tackles, six quarterback pressures, four stops behind the line of scrimmage and a sack as a reserve defensive tackle for the Bulldogs. In his only season at Butler Community College, Blade earned All-Jayhawk Conference honors after posting 42 tackles, 12 stops behind the line of scrimmage and six sacks in helping lead Butler to the National Junior College championship as a sophomore. He spent his freshman collegiate campaign playing for Northwest, MS, Community College.

PERSONAL: Blade was named to the Peach State Top 40 by the Augusta Chronicle following his senior season at Warner Robins, Ga., High School. The educational psychology major was born in Landstuel, Germany, where his father was stationed. As a rookie, Blade was a member of the Cowboys inaugural "Rookie Club," a program designed to introduce rookies to community and charity work. Throughout the season, the rookies made visits to and spent time with children at Children's Medical Center of Dallas, Oak Cliff Boys and Girls Clubs, The Salvation Army and its' Christmas Distribution Center.

PRO: Jamal Brooks signed as a free agent going into training camp following a spring in NFL Europe in 2001. His strong work ethic and ability to make plays stuck with him as he made the squad out of training camp and played a big role on the Cowboys special teams. Following injuries to the all three starting linebackers, he was able to showcase his talent at linebacker and prove he was up to the job.

2001: Brooks finished second on the Scottish Claymores with 42 tackles, three passes defensed and 1.5 sacks after being drafted in the third round (14th overall) of the NFLEL Free Agent Draft. Dallas signed him as a free agent on July 10 and he saw considerable time on special teams, finishing second on the squad with 20 special teams tackles. At Philadelphia (9/30), he led the team with three special teams stops before finishing second on the team with two special teams stops and a forced fumble at Oakland (10/7). He then tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles against Washington (10/15) and at N.Y. Giants (11/4) and then led the team with three special teams stops at Atlanta (11/11). He also stepped in for middle linebacker Dat Nguyen in the fourth quarter against the Falcons and recorded four tackles, including one on a goal-line stand. He earned his first NFL start the following week against Philadelphia (11/18), replacing Dexter Coakley (sprained knee), and finished with nine tackles while helping limit the Eagles running game to a 2.8 yards-per-carry average. Against Denver (11/22), he returned to special teams duty and tied for the team lead with two special teams stops. Brooks took over for Markus Steele at Washington (12/2) and recorded three tackles on defense. He saw considerable action at strong side linebacker at Detroit (1/6/02) and finished with three tackles.

2000: Brooks signed with the New Orleans Saints as a rookie free agent on April 18 but was released before the season began.

Antonio Bryant

Wide Receiver

Pittsburg
D2b for for '01
NFL: Rookie ★ Cowboys: Rookie

COLLEGE: Antonio Bryant comes to Dallas as one of the nation's premier college football players, capable of changing the complexion of a game every time he touches the football. A Biletnikoff Award winner and consensus All-America selection as a sophomore, Bryant leaves Pittsburgh as the school's all-time leading receiver with 3,061 career yards (including bowl games). His 173 career receptions are the second most in school history, trailing only Latef Grim's 178 (1998-2000). He also set the Pittsburgh mark for career touchdown catches with 30, including four in two bowl appearances. While bringing his game to the professional level, Bryant also leaves behind an impressive legacy in the Big East Conference, holding conference marks for regular season touchdowns with 26- and 100-yard receiving games with 13. He established all of these marks despite playing just three years of college football.

2001: Bryant entered his junior year as a Heisman Trophy candidate, but his season was rife with injuries. Despite these hardships, he still was a first-team All-Big East pick for the second straight year and finished the season with a team-high 42 receptions and nine touchdowns. He compiled 659 receiving yards, averaging 15.7 per catch, and capped off his season by earning MVP honors in the Visit Florida Tangerine Bowl. Bryant's season got off to a slow start when he injured his left ankle at the end of a 78-yard punt return that was ultimately called back due to a penalty in the season opener against East Tennessee State. He did not play against South Florida and then returned to action against Miami with three catches for 39 yards. He hauled in six receptions for 95 yards and his first touchdown of the season at Notre Dame. Bryant was outstanding in the second half of the season. In the Virginia Tech victory, he had touchdown catches of 24 and 36 yards and finished with five receptions for 93 yards. In three career games against the Hokies, Bryant averaged nine catches for 145 yards and two touchdowns. In one half of action against Rutgers, Bryant caught five passes for 107 yards (21.4 avg.) and matched his career high with three touchdown receptions – scoring on passes of nine, 13 and 28 yards against the Scarlet Knights. In the always heated "Backyard Brawl" with West Virginia, Bryant took center stage against the top-ranked passing defense in the country. He had an impressive 11 catches for 186 yards (16.9 avg.) and one touchdown and earned Big East Offensive Player of the Week honors. The 186 yards were a Mountaineer Field record. He put Pittsburgh up 7-0 against UAB with a six-yard scoring catch but would leave the game a short time later due to an ankle injury (right) sustained on a punt return. Healthy and ready to go by bowl season, Bryant lifted Pittsburgh to a 34-19 win over N.C. State – the Panthers' first postseason victory since 1989 – by catching seven passes for 101 yards and two touchdowns. His two scoring receptions marked the sixth straight game he had a touchdown catch, setting a Pittsburgh record.

2000: A consensus All-America as just a sophomore, Bryant became one of the most decorated football players in Panther history, earning an impressive collection of awards and honors. He was named the winner of the prestigious Biletnikoff Award, annually presented to the nation's top receiver, becoming just the second sophomore to win the award (Minnesota Vikings' Randy Moss was the first in 1997). It was the first major positional award for a Pittsburgh football player since defensive end Hugh Green (Lombardi Award) and offensive tackle Mark May (Outland Trophy) won their respective awards in 1980. Bryant also was named the Big East Conference's tri-Offensive Player of the Year, the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) Player of the Year, first team All-Big East, first team All-East and was Pittsburgh's first underclassman to earn consensus All-America honors since tailback Craig "Ironhead" Heyward in 1987. He also was honored with the Insight.com Bowl Sportsmanship Award by the game's officiating crew. Bryant finished his breakout year with 68 receptions for 1,302 yards (19.1 avg.) and 11 touchdowns during the regular season and led the nation with an incredible 130.2 receiving yards-per-game. It was the first time a Pittsburgh player led a national statistical category since Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett was the nation's leading rusher in 1976. He ranked third nationally in total receiving yards (1,302), trailing leader Marvin Minnis of Florida State by only 38 yards despite playing in two less games, and he was eighth in the country in receptions (6.8 avg.). His receiving totals included 27 catches of 25 yards or more, including eight of 50 or more. His 1,302 receiving yards set a Big East record, breaking Marvin Harrison's (Syracuse) mark of 1,131 set in 1995, and a Pittsburgh record, surpassing Latef Grim's mark of 1,106 set in 1999. Bryant also emerged as a dangerous punt returner, averaging 11.3 yards-per-punt return (16 for 181 yards) to rank 28th nationally. After sitting out the season opener, Bryant finished the year with seven triple-digit receiving yardage performances, recording his first at Bowling Green with nine receptions for 180 yards (20.0 avg.) and three touchdowns (56, 29 and 47 yards). That game would also mark the first of three Big East Offensive Player of the Week awards he would receive during the year. Against Syracuse, Bryant had seven receptions for 135 yards (19.3 avg.), including a key fourth-down catch late in the game that kept the Panthers' game-tying touchdown drive alive to force overtime. He picked up his second Big East Offensive Player of the Week honor with eight receptions for a career-high 222 yards (27.8 avg.) – including touchdown catches of 41 and 67 yards – against Boston College, which at the time boasted the nation's top passing defense. The 222 yards was the second best total in school history and the fifth-highest single-game performance in the country for the year. Bryant nearly led Pittsburgh to a shocking upset of Virginia Tech with nine catches for 127 yards (14.1 avg.) and three touchdowns. Bryant earned his third Big East weekly honor after catching eight passes for 212 yards (26.5 avg.) and a career-long 84-yard touchdown against North Carolina. His performance against the Tar Heels was the third 200-yard receiving effort of his brief career. Against Temple, Bryant had six receptions for 81 yards, including a twisting 15-yard touchdown catch that proved to be the game-winner. Bryant closed out the regular season with six receptions for 148 yards (24.6 avg.) against archrival West Virginia and also returned four punts for 94 yards – an impressive 23.5 average. In bowl season, Bryant was once again at the top of his game, averaging 31 yards-per-catch against Iowa State in the Insight.com Bowl, hauling in five passes for 155 yards – including touchdowns of 72 and 44 yards.

1999: Bryant burst onto the scene and established himself as the most exciting Panther freshman since tailback Curtis Martin in 1991. He gave a glimpse of his immense ability in Pittsburgh's very first game, making an acrobatic touchdown catch over the head of a Bowling Green defender. Named to The Sporting News Freshman All-America Team (third team) and Football News All-Freshman Team (second team), he finished his rookie campaign with 51 catches for 844 yards, both Pittsburgh freshman records. Of his 51 receptions, 38 went for either a first down or a touchdown and he averaged 16.5 yards-per-catch while helping the Panthers lead the Big East in passing yards (240.4 avg.). Bryant followed his opening day success with another touchdown the following week at Penn State. His only catch of the day against Temple was a 27-yard touchdown grab, but it was at this point Bryant came into his own. In three straight games he topped the 100-yard receiving mark. He posted 10 receptions for 136 yards at Boston College and followed that with eight catches for 157 yards against Rutgers. Bryant then raised eyebrows across the nation after he seemed to catch passes at will against Virginia Tech's highly regarded defensive unit, blistering the Hokies' nationally ranked defense for 215 receiving yards on 13 catches. His reception total against Virginia Tech tied the Big East single-game record, while his receiving yardage was the second best day ever in conference history. Both marks also ranked second in Pittsburgh single-game annals at the time. He then went on to spark Pittsburgh's upset of Notre Dame with four catches for 95 yards (23.8 avg.) and a pair of touchdown catches (nine and 28 yards).

PERSONAL: Bryant was an all-Dade County and all-district selection as a senior at Northwestern High in Miami, Fla., after recording 53 receptions for 953 yards (17.9 avg.) and 12 touchdowns. He helped lead the Panthers to a 16-0 record and the Florida 6A championship (largest school classification). The team was also ranked fourth in the nation by USA Today. A three-year team captain at Northwestern, Bryant went on to play in the Dade County All-Star Game and earned "Prime Time Prospect" recognition from BlueChip Illustrated. Bryant also lettered twice in track and field. A scholar-athlete honoree, Bryant graduated from high school with honors and majored in justice administration at Pitt.

Quincy Carter

Quarterback

D-2a for '01 (53rd overall)
NFL: 2nd Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 2001 (8/8).

PRO: In taking over the starting quarterback responsibilities for the Cowboys in 2001, Quincy Carter enthusiastically embraced one of the most high profile positions in all of team sports. When Dallas selected Carter with their top pick (53rd overall) in the 2001 NFL Draft, it marked the first time in 10 years the Cowboys had drafted a quarterback. In becoming the opening day starter, he was the first Dallas rookie to open the season at quarterback since Troy Aikman in 1989. Carter also became just the sixth rookie quarterback to ever start a game for Dallas, joining Don Meredith (one start in 1960), Roger Staubach (one in 1969), Kevin Sweeney (two in 1987), Aikman (11 in 1989) and Steve Walsh (five in 1989). Carter's three wins in eight starts last season matched the win total for the other 10 quarterbacks selected in the 2001 NFL Draft combined (they posted a 3-17 record). Blessed with a strong arm, intelligence and the type of athletic ability that allows him to elude pressure in the pocket, Carter displayed unique leadership skills for a player of his youth and limited NFL experience. He will be looking to build upon the vast improvement he made in the latter stages of 2001 when he led Dallas to a 3-3 record down the stretch – a mark that included victories over division rivals Washington and New York, and an upset of playoff bound San Francisco.

2001: After being named the starter midway through training camp (August 14), Carter became the first rookie to start the season at quarterback for the Cowboys since Aikman in 1989. Although injuries limited Carter through the first 10 games of the season, he made outstanding progress in his development, and finished the year in very impressive – and productive – fashion. Carter's final 2001 quarterback rating of 63.0 ranked ahead of fellow rookie quarterbacks Michael Vick (Atlanta – 62.7) and Chris Weinke (Carolina – 62.0), who also started games. Detroit's Mike McMahon (69.9) was the only rookie with at least one start to finish the season with a higher quarterback rating than Carter. For the year, Carter completed 90-of-176 passing attempts for 1,072 yards, five touchdowns and seven interceptions while being sacked just 12 times in 188 passing plays. He also ran the ball 45 times for 150 yards. Carter led Dallas to more victories than any other rookie quarterback in club history, and his numbers for pass attempts, completions yardage and touchdowns ranked third among Dallas rookies – trailing Aikman and Walsh. In showcasing his running ability, Carter picked up 11 first downs on third down runs, tying Michael Wiley for the team lead in third down rushing conversions. In the season opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), Carter became just the third rookie quarterback to start a season for Dallas, joining Roger Staubach (1969) and Troy Aikman (1989). He completed 9-of-19 passes for 34 yards in the 10-6 loss to the Bucs. His 17-yard scramble in the first quarter set up a Cowboys' field goal that tied the game at 3-3. Three days later in practice (Sept. 12), Carter suffered a sprained right thumb after hitting his hand on Troy Hambrick's helmet. The injury forced him to miss the next two games (San Diego – 9/23 and at Philadelphia – 9/30) before returning to the starting lineup at Oakland (10/7). The injury bug stung again at Oakland when Carter suffered a severely strained left hamstring after he had run for 21 yards on three carries and completed one-of-five passes. The hamstring injury required surgery on Oct. 15, and Carter used the next seven weeks to rehabilitate the injury and develop his skills. He was inactive for three games before suiting up as the Cowboys third quarterback the next three weeks. Carter returned to game action at Washington (12/2), and recorded his first victory as a starter by guiding Dallas to a 20-14 win. In the win over the Redskins, Carter led the Cowboys to points on four-of-nine possessions as he completed seven-of-14 passes for 130 yards, including a 64-yard fourth quarter touchdown toss to Raghib Ismail for his first career scoring pass. The following week against the N.Y. Giants (12/9), Carter led Dallas to a 20-13 victory while completing a season-high 17 passes on 26 attempts for 194 yards. He also ran seven times for nine yards, including a critical 11-yard run on third-and-11 at the Giants 14-yard line to set up his game-winning touchdown pass to Jackie Harris on the next play. Carter finished the day with a quarterback rating of 100.5. Carter attempted a season-high 33 passes in the Cowboys loss at Seattle (12/16), completing 14 for 135 yards and one interception. He also ran six times for a team-high 40 yards. The following week at Arizona (12/23), Carter was 16-of-28 for 176 yards, including a 45-yard touchdown pass to Reggie Swinton, and two interceptions. Carter engineered the Cowboys to a 27-21 win over the San Francisco 49ers (12/30), guiding the Cowboys to their third win in five games by throwing for a season-high 241 yards and two touchdowns on 15-of-25 passing. Carter also ran 10 times for 30 yards, the most rushing attempts in a game by a Dallas quarterback in club history (Randall Cunningham – 9 at Philadelphia Nov. 5, 2000), and his first career touchdown. For his efforts in the 49er win, Carter was named the NFC Offensive Player of the Week. He closed the season by completing 11-of-26 passes for 158 yards at Detroit (1/6/02).

COLLEGE: Carter started every game in which he played (29) at the University of Georgia and led the Bulldogs to a 20-9 record. He left Georgia as one of the top quarterbacks in school history, finishing his three-year career second in school annals in completions (483), pass attempts (853) and passing yards (6,447) and third in career touchdown passes (35). Carter finished his final collegiate campaign (junior year) by completing 91-of-183 passes for 1,250 yards, 10 interceptions and six touchdowns despite missing four games due to injury. A left shoulder injury forced him out of one game and strained ligaments in his right thumb caused him to miss the final three games of the year. As a sophomore, Carter earned second team All-SEC honors after completing 216-of-380 passes for 2,713 yards, 17 touchdowns and six interceptions while leading the Bulldogs offense to 416 yards-per-game – second in the SEC. Georgia finished the season with a 7-4 record and a No. 14 ranking in the final AP poll. In the Outback Bowl against Purdue, Carter threw for 243 yards and a touchdown on 20-of-33 passing to lead the Bulldogs to the biggest come-from-behind victory in school history. Georgia claimed a 28-25 overtime victory after trailing the Boilermakers 25-0. His 2,713 passing yards – including five 300-yard passing performances in 11 starts – set Georgia's sophomore record, breaking Eric Zeier's mark of 2,248 (1992). His interception percentage of 1.58 (six picks in 380 pass attempts) was a school record and the second lowest percentage in SEC history. He also compiled the third longest streak in SEC history after throwing 170 consecutive passes without an interception. As a freshman, Carter led the Bulldogs to a 9-3 record and a No. 16 ranking in the final AP poll. He established school freshman marks for pass attempts (290), completions (176), yards (2,484) and touchdowns (12) while throwing for 300 yards or more four times in 11 starts. His performance earned him SEC Freshman of the Year honors.

PERSONAL: Quincy Carter was named Georgia Player of the Year by USA Today, Parade All-America and first-team all-state following his senior season at Southwest DeKalb High School in Decatur, Ga., where he was also a standout baseball player. During his prep football career, he passed for 4,450 yards and 37 touchdowns while rushing for 1,489 yards and 32 scores. The sports studies major was drafted by Major League Baseball's Chicago Cubs in the second round of the 1996 amateur draft and spent two seasons in the Cubs farm system. Carter batted .215 in his first professional season (1996), playing for Ft. Myers (Fla.) in rookie league ball and Daytona (Fla.) at the Class A level. He hit .211 for Class A Rockford (Ill.) in 1997. As a rookie, Carter was a member of the Cowboys inaugural "Rookie Club," a program designed to introduce rookies to community and charity work. Throughout the season, the rookies made visits to and spent time with children at Children's Medical Center of Dallas, Oak Cliff Boys and Girls Clubs, The Salvation Army and its' Christmas Distribution Center.

Dexter Coakley

Linebacker

5'10" ★ 236 ★ 10/20/72
Appalachian State
D-3a for '97 (65th overall)
NFL: 6th Year ★ Cowboys: 6th Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1997 (16/16), 1998 (16/16, 1/1), 1999 (16/16, 1/1), 2000 (16/16), 2001 (15/15). Total – 79/79, 2/2.

PRO: Despite being considered an undersized linebacker from a small college, Dexter Coakley has made a lasting impression on the National Football League. After earning the starting weakside linebacker job as a rookie third-round draft choice, Coakley has strung together five impressive seasons – finishing in the top three on the team in tackles each year. His string of five consecutive 100-tackle seasons is the first such streak in the 23 years that tackle records exist for the team. In addition, he has reached double figures in tackles 29 times in 79 career regular season games. Coakley became just the second Dallas linebacker in the last 17 years and only the seventh linebacker in club history to be selected to the Pro Bowl when he earned a spot on the NFC squad following the 1999 season. With another Pro Bowl honor in 2001, Coakley became the first Dallas linebacker to earn multiple trips since Bob Breunig (three times – last in 1982). But none of his accomplishments, including earning All-Pro honors in 1999, came as a surprise to Coakley, who has been exceeding expectations throughout his entire athletic career with his quickness, speed and intensity. He has also brought the Dallas defense an element of flair with his ability to make the big play, evidenced by his four career touchdowns on returns (fumble – 1, interceptions – 3), just the fifth player in club history with four defensive touchdowns, one shy of Dennis Thurman's club record.

2001: Coakley was a key cog on the NFL's fourth ranked defense, finishing second on the team with 134 tackles. In recognition of his outstanding season and the performance by the entire Dallas defense, Coakley was recognized with the second Pro Bowl selection of his career, replacing Tampa Bay's Derrick Brooks. Coakley opened the season with five tackles against Tampa Bay (9/9) while helping limit the Bucs running game to 71 yards on 33 carries (2.2 avg.), including 22 carries for 56 yards by Warrick Dunn (2.5). The following week against San Diego (9/23), he tied for the team lead in tackles with nine and recovered a third quarter fumble. On the day, LaDainian Tomlinson was held to just a 3.3-yard average on 27 carries. Coakley tied for the team lead with 10 tackles and forced a Brian Mitchell fumble on punt coverage to set up a Dallas field goal at Philadelphia (9/30). He came back the next week to lead the team with 11 tackles at Oakland (10/7). Against Arizona (10/28), Coakley recorded the game's pivotal play when he intercepted a Jake Plummer pass and returned it 10 yards for a touchdown. He was also second on the team with 11 tackles and forced a fumble as the Cardinals were limited to 75 rushing yards. Coakley returned an interception for a touchdown for the second consecutive week when he took a pass from Kerry Collins 29 yards for a score at the N.Y. Giants (11/4). He also finished second on the team with nine tackles as the Giants were held to 93 rushing yards on 26 carries (3.6). Coakley recorded the 600th tackle of his career with five tackles at Atlanta (11/11) but suffered a sprained MCL in his left knee late in the game. That injury forced him to miss the first game of his career when the Cowboys took the field against Philadelphia (11/18), snapping a string of 72 consecutive starts. He returned to the starting lineup and recorded eight tackles against Denver (11/22). The following week at Washington (12/2), Coakley's six tackles helped limit Stephen Davis, the NFC's third leading rusher entering the game, to 53 yards on 17 carries. Coakley tied for the team lead with eight tackles against the N.Y. Giants (12/9) while helping hold the Giants to 245 yards of total offense, including just 73 yards on their final eight possessions. When the Cowboys visited the Pacific Northwest to take on Seattle (12/16), Coakley recorded a career-high 17 tackles, including 15 solo – the second most in a game in club history. The 17 stops also put him over the 100-tackle mark for the season. He again led the team with nine tackles at Arizona (12/23) before helping hold San Francisco (12/30) and the NFL's second ranked running game (146 yards-per-game) to 56 yards on the ground with seven tackles. Coakley wrapped up his season with a team-high 14 tackles at Detroit (1/6).

2000: Coakley again performed at his expected high level, posting a career-high 144 tackles to finish second on the team while tying for the team lead with seven tackles behind the line of scrimmage. Six times during the 2000 season, he led or tied for the team lead in tackles in a game and 10 times he posted double-figure tackle totals. He opened the season against Philadelphia (9/3) by leading all linebackers with 10 tackles. He posted 10 stops to help limit the Redskins to 3.7 yards-per-carry at Washington (9/18). He recorded another 10 stops against San Francisco (9/24), and he led the team with a season-high 13 tackles at Carolina (10/1). At the N.Y. Giants (10/15), Coakley led the team with 11 tackles while adding a stop behind the line of scrimmage. He registered another eight stops against Arizona (10/22) in helping limit the Cardinals to 99 total yards through the first three quarters before leaving the 48-7 win. He posted his sixth double-digit tackle game when he tallied 10 stops against Jacksonville (10/29). At Philadelphia (11/5), Coakley helped limit four Eagles running backs to 77 rushing yards on 25 carries (3.1) while recording 12 tackles. For the third time, he led the team in tackles, recording 12 stops against Cincinnati (11/12) while helping limit the Bengals to 195 total yards of offense. He recorded seven stops at Baltimore (11/19), including the 500th tackle of his career. He tied for the team lead with six tackles against Minnesota (11/23). He recovered a Stephen Davis fumble to set up a Dallas touchdown early in the third period against Washington (12/10). He again led the team with 11 tackles against the N.Y. Giants (12/17), including two stops for losses, to help limit the Giants to 3.2 rushing yards-per-carry. In the season finale at Tennessee (12/25), Coakley led the team with 11 tackles and forced a fumble.

1999: Coakley turned in another phenomenal season, leading the team with four interceptions, tying for the team lead with six tackles for a loss, finishing second with 131 tackles, tying for third with nine passes defensed and finishing fifth with 12 special teams tackles. His four interceptions were the most by a Dallas linebacker since Lee Roy Jordan totaled six in 1975, and he was the first linebacker to lead the team in interceptions since Eugene Lockhart in 1989. Coakley's performance throughout the season earned him his first Pro Bowl selection, the first Dallas linebacker to earn a Pro Bowl spot since Ken Norton in 1993. He also earned first-team All-Pro honors from Sports Illustrated and second-team All-Pro honors from College & Pro Football Newsweekly and Football Digest. He opened the season at Washington (9/12) tying for the team lead with nine tackles, including a tackle for a loss on third down that led to a Redskins punt with 3:01 remaining in the game, setting Dallas up for its game tying touchdown drive. Against Atlanta (9/20), he finished with five tackles after intercepting a Tony Graziani pass on the Falcons opening drive and returning it 43 yards to set up a Dallas field goal. He led the team with 11 tackles at Philadelphia (10/10). At the N.Y. Giants (10/18), he posted a season-high 12 tackles while helping limit the Giants to 228 yards of offense. Against Washington (10/24), Coakley posted eight tackles while helping limit the Redskins to 61 yards rushing, and he registered six stops while forcing a fumble at Indianapolis (10/31). He tied for the team lead with eight tackles at Minnesota (11/8) and 11 stops against Green Bay (11/14) as the Packers were held to 40 yards rushing. At Arizona (11/21), he led the team with 10 tackles while recording two tackles for losses and a sack. In the Thanksgiving Day battle against Miami (11/25), Coakley recorded the first multi-interception game of his career, picking off Dan Marino twice, returning the first pick 46 yards for the game's first score. He also finished with 10 tackles, a career-high three passes defensed and two special teams stops against the Dolphins to earn Phil Simms' Iron Man Award and NFC Defensive Player of the Week honors. Coakley totaled eight tackles, a career-high tying three passes defensed and an interception the next week at New England (12/5). He totaled seven stops at New Orleans (12/24), and he helped limit the N.Y. Giants (1/2/00) to 74 rushing yards with seven tackles. Coakley recorded eight tackles in the NFC Wild Card Playoff Game at Minnesota (1/9/00).

1998: Coakley followed a stellar rookie campaign with a solid sophomore season, finishing second on the team with 127 tackles. He closed the year with eight passes defensed, tying the third highest total on the team. Coakley was a big part of limiting the Cardinals to 45 rushing yards and 205 total yards by recording three tackles and two passes defensed against Arizona (9/6). At Denver (9/13), he led the team with 11 tackles. The next week at the N.Y. Giants (9/21), he finished with six tackles and two passes defensed as the Dallas defense limited the Giants to 56 yards. He posted nine tackles against Oakland (9/27) and seven stops at Washington (10/4). The next week, Coakley registered eight tackles while helping the defense hold Carolina (10/11) to 37 yards rushing on 21 carries (1.8 avg.). At Chicago (10/18), he led the team with a season-high 15 tackles while also recording a first quarter sack and picking off a third quarter pass to set up a Dallas touchdown. When the Cowboys limited the Eagles to 200 yards of total offense (96 rushing, 104 passing) at Philadelphia (11/2), Coakley led the team with eight tackles and added his second sack of the season. He was second on the team the next week with eight tackles against the N.Y. Giants (11/8). His eight tackles against Minnesota (11/26) on Thanksgiving Day tied him for the team lead. Over the final four games of the regular season, at New Orleans (12/6), at Kansas City (12/13), against Philadelphia (12/20) and Washington (12/27), Coakley recorded nine tackles a game. In the Eagles contest, he also led the team with two special team tackles, giving him 10 for the season – sixth best on the team. In the season finale, his nine stops helped limit the Redskins to 80 yards rushing. In the first postseason action of his career, Coakley recorded five tackles and a special teams stop against Arizona (1/2/99).

1997: Coakley was awarded the starting job at weakside linebacker in training camp and never relinquished the position. By season's end, Coakley was the NFL's leader among all rookies in tackles with a Cowboys rookie record 136 stops – a total that was third on the Cowboys defensive list. He was named to All-Rookie teams selected by Pro Football Weekly and Football News. His 2.5 sacks were the most by a Dallas rookie since Russell Maryland registered 4.5 in 1991, and his sack total was good for seventh place among all NFL rookie defenders. Coakley was the club leader with 10 stops for losses. He was named the NFL's Defensive Rookie of the Month for October after tallying 31 tackles, one tackle for a loss and a fumble return for a touchdown. Coakley became the first rookie to start a season opener for Dallas since Robert Jones in 1992 when he started at Pittsburgh (8/31). Coakley led the team with eight tackles and added his first career interception in his first NFL game, making him the first rookie linebacker to record an interception for Dallas since Dixon Edwards had one against Cincinnati on Oct. 13, 1991. The next week at Arizona (9/7), he totaled eight stops, two tackles for losses, two quarterback pressures and a pass deflection. He also had a sack in overtime that forced a Kent Graham fumble that Dallas recovered. Coakley finished second on the team with 11 tackles at Washington (10/13). He also picked up a Redskins fumble and returned it 16 yards for his first career touchdown, making him the first rookie defender to record a touchdown for Dallas since Edwards scored against Cincinnati. It was also the first fumble return for a touchdown by a Dallas rookie since Larry Cole ran one back 21 yards at Washington on Nov. 17, 1968. He registered a season-high 12 tackles at Green Bay (11/23) while tying the club record with four tackles for a loss. He also registered a sack in the Packers game and went over the 100-tackle mark for the season. Four days later, he posted a season-high tying 12-tackle performance against Tennessee (11/27). In the process, he broke Robert Jones' single-season record for tackles by a rookie. He recorded his sixth double digit tackle game of the season with 10 stops against Carolina (12/8) before again totaling 10 stops in the season finale against the N.Y. Giants (12/21) while adding his 10th tackle for a loss.

As a junior, he averaged 13.6 tackles-per-game in 11 regular season outings (150 total). He was the team's Most Valuable Player twice and was twice named all-conference as a defensive back. Sports Camp for Girls, a camp for girls ages 12-15 that are selected from various non-profit agencies in the D/FW metroplex. Dexter also served as a speaker for "Babe's Best," a program created by former Cowboys quarterback and current Dallas CBS affiliate sports anchor Babe Laufenberg to recognize outstanding high school athletes for their efforts on and off the field. This offseason Dexter and wife, Nicole, were married in Austin, TX on April 21.

GAMES/STARTS: 2000 (16/13-KC) 2001 (IR-KC;11/0-Dal.). Total 27/13 (Dallas-11/0).

PRO: In looking to add quality, young depth to their secondary, the Cowboys claimed cornerback Pat Dennis off waivers from the Kansas City Chiefs on Oct. 3. After rehabilitating a sprained knee he suffered in preseason with the Chiefs, Dennis displayed the skill and physical play that earned him 13 starts as a rookie with Kansas City. An aggressive corner who isn't afraid to get physical with receivers, Dennis was originally a fifth-round draft choice (162nd overall) of the Chiefs in 2000. He made the jump from small college football to starting in the National Football League after only two professional games. With a year in the Cowboys system, Dennis is expected to battle for a starting spot in the Cowboys revamped secondary.

2001: Dennis went to camp with Kansas City but suffered a sprained MCL in his right knee during preseason action against Jacksonville (8/23). He was placed on injured reserve Sept. 2 and then released Oct. 2. The Cowboys claimed Dennis off waivers, and he went on to shine in the club's nickel defensive packages, finishing fourth on the team with eight passes defensed. He also excelled on special teams, finishing tied for fifth on the club with eight tackles. After joining the Cowboys on Oct. 3, Dennis was deactivated for games at Oakland (10/7) and against Washington (10/15) while recovering from the sprained knee. He saw his first action with the Cowboys against Arizona (10/28), recording two tackles and breaking up a pass while working in nickel and dime packages. Against Philadelphia (11/18), he saw considerable time at cornerback in multiple defensive back sets and recorded a tackle and broke up a pass as the Eagles were limited to 129 passing yards. Working at left corner while Duane Hawthorne moved to the slot, Dennis

He also earned his first significant playing time in standard formation in the fourth quarter against the Broncos while also tying for the team lead with two special teams tackles. Back in the nickel package at Washington (12/2), Dennis recorded two tackles and broke up a pass. His work in the nickel at Seattle (12/16) helped limit the Seahawks to 139 net yards passing and a 23% conversion rate on third downs (3-of-13). At Arizona (12/23), he recorded two tackles and broke up a pass while helping limit the Cards to 134 net yards passing and an 8.5 yards-per-catch average. COLLEGE: Dennis finished his collegiate campaign with 180 tackles and a school record 36 passes defensed. His 13 career interceptions left him just two short of the school record. He returned two of those interceptions and a punt for touchdowns. As a junior, Dennis finished the year leading the team with 10 passes defensed, tied for the team lead with three interceptions and totaled 40 tackles to earn All-Independent honors by Football News and first team All-Louisiana honors. As a redshirt freshman, Dennis earned All-America honors as he recorded 65 tackles, three for losses, and one quarterback sack. He also tied for the team lead with three interceptions and eight passes defensed.

PERSONAL: Patrick A. Dennis played quarterback and defensive back at Southwood High School in Shreveport, La. He earned first-team all-district and all-state honors as a senior quarterback and all-state honorable mention honors as a junior defensive back.

Tony Dixon

Safety

6'1" ★ 213 ★ 6/18/79
Alabama
D-2b for '01 (56th overall)
NFL: 2nd Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

PRO: The rookie campaign of Tony Dixon was a trying time as he struggled to overcome injury and get on the field of play. Having displayed the versatility to move between both strong and free safety at Alabama and still rank near the top of the team in tackles each season, a year of seasoning should allow him to make a greater impact in 2002. Built from the same mold as the club's hard-hitting Darren Woodson, Dixon should help shore up the team's defense against both the pass and run. He has shown a willingness to fill the holes and play aggressively near the line of scrimmage, charging hard and delivering crunching tackles. Not limited to being a tough tackling run-stuffer, Dixon has also displayed good instincts in the passing game to go with the speed to cover ground in the secondary. On top of the physical package, Dixon also has the smarts to handle the added pressure of the pro game, having excelled in the classroom and graduated from Alabama in just three and a half years.

2001: Dixon entered his rookie season nursing a strained hamstring and was deactivated for the season opener against Tampa Bay (9/9). He saw his first NFL action and recorded two tackles working at safety in nickel packages against San Diego (9/23). He continued to see duty as the club's nickel safety the first half of the season and recorded his first career sack with a take-down of Rich Gannon at Oakland (10/7). He also tied for second on the team with two special teams tackles against the Raiders. While covering the second half kickoff at the N.Y. Giants (11/4), Dixon suffered high ankle sprain in his left leg. The injury forced him to the sidelines for the next five weeks. He returned to practice during the week leading up to the Seattle (12/19) contest but was inactive for that game as well as the following week at Arizona (12/23). Dixon returned to action on special teams against San Francisco (12/30), and then he was back on the field in nickel packages in the season-finale at Detroit (1/6/02).

COLLEGE: A three-year starter at safety for the Crimson Tide, Dixon finished his career with 252 stops. He finished third on the team with 90 tackles and added two interceptions to go with his six pass deflections as a senior free safety. Six times over the final nine games of his college career, he reached double figures in tackles, including a career-high 17 tackles against Tennessee. Dixon split time between strong and free safety during his junior campaign, starting the first five games of the year at free safety before moving to strong safety. He went on to finish the year second on the team with 65 tackles for an Alabama team that went 10-3 and captured the SEC title. He saved his best game for the biggest stage, forcing a fumble and contributing a season-high 13 tackles against Florida in Alabama's 34-7 SEC title game win. Dixon moved into the starting lineup at strong safety as a sophomore. He led the secondary and was third on the team with 75 tackles. Dixon saw action in every game as a freshman, earning his first career start at free safety against Tennessee.

PERSONAL: Dixon graduated from Alabama with a degree in business management in December 2000. As a junior at Alabama, he was one of 300 student-athletes from around the nation selected to participate in the third annual NCAA Foundation Leadership Conference in Lake Buena Vista, FL. Dixon was a four-year starter, lettering in football, basketball and baseball at Pickens County High School in Reform, Ala., earning All-State gridiron honors as a senior. He played both ways for the Tornadoes, rushing for 1,450 yards and 18 touchdowns, passing for two touchdowns and catching another score as a receiver. On defense, he had six sacks, four interceptions and two fumble recoveries. As a junior, he rushed for 1,286 yards and 17 touchdowns while recording 115 tackles and six interceptions on defense – three of which he returned for touchdowns. Dixon earned an advanced diploma and finished fourth in his graduating class. He also became the first athlete from Pickens County High School to sign a Division I scholarship. Off the field, Dixon was the school's Boys' State representative and also served as president and vice president of the student council. As a rookie, Dixon was a member of the Cowboys inaugural "Rookie Club," a program designed to introduce rookies to community and charity work. Throughout the season, the rookies made visits to and spent time with children at Children's Medical Center of Dallas, Oak Cliff Boys and Girls Clubs, The Salvation Army and its' Christmas Distribution Center.

Char-ron Dorsey

Offensive Tackle

Florida State
D7 for '01 (242nd overall)
NFL: 2nd Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 2001 (8/2).

PRO: With a huge frame and solid body control, Char-Ron (pronounced sha-RON) Dorsey has the aggressiveness and toughness to compete as an NFL offensive lineman. After gaining valuable experience as a rookie working behind Flozell Adams and Solomon Page, including two starts, Dorsey will be counted on to bring depth to a young Dallas line.

2001: Dorsey made his NFL debut at right tackle in the fourth quarter at Philadelphia (9/30) before seeing second quarter action at left tackle at Oakland (10/7) when Adams dislocated a finger. Dorsey also filled in for Adams in the second quarter at Atlanta (11/11). At Arizona (12/23), he saw fourth quarter action at right tackle after Page sprained his left knee helping lead the way for 134 total yards in the fourth quarter. Dorsey moved into the lineup at right tackle for Page and earned his first NFL start as the Cowboys upset San Francisco (12/30) 27-21. He was part of a line that led the way for 186 rushing yards while giving up just one sack on 26 pass plays against the 49ers . In the season finale at Detroit (1/6/02), he helped the line protect Quincy Carter (no sacks) and pave the way for Emmitt Smith, who rushed for 77 yards and topped the 1,000-yard mark for the 11th consecutive season.

COLLEGE: As a senior, Dorsey was an All-ACC first-team selection, and was named the Seminoles' most improved offensive lineman. While helping quarterback Chris Weinke to the Heisman Trophy, Dorsey was part of an FSU offensive group that averaged 449 yards-per-game in total offense. He spent his junior year in a reserve role, seeing action at tackle in every game and providing valuable depth to a Seminole team that finished the year 12-0 and claimed the school's second national title of the decade. Dorsey made the transition from defense as a sophomore and was competing for the starting right tackle job before a sprained neck knocked him out of action most of the season. He played five games as a true freshman at defensive tackle and closed the year with 11 tackles and a sack.

PERSONAL: A native of Jacksonville, FL, Dorsey was a three-time Class 4A all-state selection in football at The Bolles School. As a senior defensive tackle, he recorded 70 tackles and was rated as the ninth best defensive lineman in the Southeast by PrepStar. He also earned honorable mention All-America honors from USA Today. A versatile prep athlete, Dorsey also led the Bolles School basketball team to the state playoffs twice. With the Cowboys, Dorsey joins former Seminole teammate and 2000 Dallas draft choice Mario Edwards. While at Florida State, Dorsey majored in social science. As a rookie, Dorsey was a member of the Cowboys inaugural "Rookie Club," a program designed to introduce rookies to community and charity work. Throughout the season, the rookies made visits to and spent time with children at Children's Medical Center of Dallas, Oak Cliff Boys and Girls Clubs, The Salvation Army and its' Christmas Distribution Center.

Mario Edwards

Cornerback

6'0" ★ 199 ★ 12/1/75
Florida State
D6 for '00 (180th overall)
NFL: 3rd Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 2000 (11/1), 2001 (16/15). Total – (27/16).

PRO: As one of three Dallas cornerbacks selected in the 2000 NFL Draft, Mario Edwards has rapidly surfaced as a productive player who has benefited from the experience of being a starter on the NFL's fourth ranked defense in 2001. Edwards, the third of those three corners selected (sixth round – 180th overall), immediately caught the attention of Cowboys coaches with his attitude and hard work. While being thrown into the fire as a second year player last year, he displayed poise, athleticism and playmaking ability. His most visible asset is his ability to locate the ball in the air and make plays on the ball as it approaches an intended receiver. Edwards is an aggressive competitor who rarely gets beat deep. With a year of starting experience under his belt he will be expected to continue his improvement and add to the Cowboys overall production on the defensive side of the ball.

2001: An opening day starter at left cornerback, Edwards led the Cowboys in passes defensed with 11. He was the eighth leading tackler on the squad, collecting 58 stops. Edwards played a key role in the surprising performance of the Dallas defense that finished the season ranked fourth in the NFL – allowing 287.4 yards-per-game. The Dallas secondary helped limit opponents to 180.6 yards-per-game, which ranked third in the NFL. That ranking was bolstered by Dallas' ability to hold opponents to under 150 yards passing in seven games in 2001. Edwards registered a career-high six tackles in four games during the 2001 season against Tampa Bay (9/9), Washington (10/15), Arizona (10/28) and Denver (11/22). In the overtime loss at New York (11/4), Edwards returned his first career interception 71 yards for a touchdown to put Dallas up 24-7 at the half. Edwards posted a career-high three passes defensed in the loss to Denver (11/22) to go with six tackles. At Atlanta (11/11), he registered two tackles and broke up a pass while helping limit the Falcons to 46 net yards passing, the lowest passing total by an opponent since the N.Y. Giants were held to 42 yards on Sept. 8, 1996. He broke up two passes in the win over New York (12/9) and then broke up another pass while recording five tackles at Seattle (12/16).

2000: Despite suffering a strained left hamstring in preseason that kept him on the club's inactive list the first four weeks of the regular season, Edwards tied for fourth on the team with 11 special teams tackles. For the season, Edwards recorded a special teams tackle in eight of the 11 games he played and was a key member of a kickoff coverage unit that finished the year ranked third in the league in opponents average starting position following kickoffs. His NFL debut came on special teams at Carolina (10/1), and he responded with one tackle. Against Arizona (10/22), he tied for second on the team with two special teams tackles. As proof of his improvement as the season progressed, Edwards recorded five special teams tackles over the season's final three games. He tied for second on the team with two special teams tackles against Washington (12/10) as Deion Sanders was limited to one return for 11 yards on three punts. The following week, he tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles against the N.Y. Giants (12/17). In the season finale at Tennessee (12/25), Edwards earned his first NFL start, lining up at left cornerback while Phillippi Sparks moved to safety. He recorded three tackles and broke up a pass while helping limit the Titans to a 10.8 yards-per-catch average.

COLLEGE: Edwards started two national championship games in his final two seasons at Florida State and played for Seminole teams that finished the 1995, 1996, 1998 and 1999 seasons ranked No. 4, 3, 3 and 1 in the nation, respectively. As a senior, he helped the Seminoles to the national title with a win over Virginia Tech in the Sugar Bowl and earned All-ACC honors at left cornerback. After redshirting during his third year at Florida State, Edwards ranked eighth in the nation in interceptions with six as a junior and earned second-team All-ACC honors. While helping the Seminoles lead the nation in pass defense, Edwards led the team with 11 pass deflections and closed the year with 20 tackles. He set a school record, and tied the conference record, by registering four interceptions in one game against Wake Forest.

PERSONAL: A social sciences major at Florida State, Edwards attended Pascagoula, Miss., High School – the same school that produced former Florida State All-America corner Terrell Buckley. Edwards, a high school All-America choice, was one of the most highly regarded high school players in the country in 1995. He finished his high school career with a senior season that included 61 tackles, four interceptions and 14 pass deflections

Ebenezer Ekuban

Defensive End

6'3" ★ 265 ★ 5/29/76
North Carolina
NFL: 4th Year ★ Cowboys: 4th Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1999 (16/2, 1/1), 2000 (12/2), 2001 (1/1). Total – 29/5, 1/1.

PRO: After fully recovering from back surgery in 2001, Ebenezer Ekuban is poised to rebound and become a vital cog along the Cowboys defensive line. His outstanding size, speed and quickness make him a pass rusher that can create havoc in opponent's backfields, as witnessed by his team leading 6.5 sacks in 2000. Originally a tight end who was converted to the defensive line at the mid-point of his collegiate career, Ekuban's desire and work ethic have contributed to his rapid development at defensive end. His intelligence and enthusiasm to learn the intricacies of the game round out a very promising package.

2001: Unknown to everyone at the time, Ekuban's one tackle and quarterback pressure in the first half against Tampa Bay (9/9) would prove to be his season. Forced to undergo a microscopic lumbar discectomy on Sept. 17 to repair the herniated disc between the L4 and L5 vertebrae, Ekuban was deactivated for 12 games following the surgery. He returned to practice on a limited basis on Nov. 9 but suffered continued pain and was forced to take more time off. His season finally came to an end on Dec. 21 when he was placed on injured reserve.

2000: Despite moving from a starting role to a reserve capacity early in the season, Ekuban led the team with 6.5 sacks and tied for the team lead with two forced fumbles while posting 25 tackles, seven quarterback pressures and four stops behind the line of scrimmage. In his first start in a non-injury replacement role, he recorded two tackles and a pressure in the season opener against Philadelphia (9/3). The following week at Arizona (9/10), he teamed with Leon Lett to register his first half sack of the season while also recording five stops while helping limit the Cardinals to 3.0 yards-per-rush on 33 carries. He moved into a reserve capacity at Washington (9/18) and came off the bench to post two tackles, a sack and a tackle for an 18-yard loss to help limit the Redskins to 3.7 yards-per-carry. Ekuban dislocated his right great toe early in the game against San Francisco (9/24), causing him to miss the remainder of the 49ers game, as well as the next four games. He returned to action at Philadelphia (11/5) and tallied two stops before posting two tackles against Cincinnati (11/12). Ekuban recorded one of Dallas' biggest plays against the Bengals when he sacked Akili Smith, forced a fumble on the play and recovered the fumble. It marked the first forced fumble and fumble recovery of his career. Ekuban recorded a tackle, a sack and a forced fumble against Minnesota (11/23) on Thanksgiving Day. He posted two sacks against Washington (12/10) while also recording a career-high four quarterback pressures. Ekuban also saw action at tight end in goal-line situations against the Redskins. Against the N.Y. Giants (12/17), he tallied two stops, including one for a loss, two pressures and a sack before being ejected from the game early in the third quarter for kicking the Giants Lomas Brown. In his limited playing time, he helped hold New York to 126 net yards passing, and he pressured Kerry Collins into throwing an interception in the Dallas end zone. In the season finale at Tennessee (12/25), Ekuban registered four tackles.

1999: Ekuban saw consistent action throughout his rookie season, playing in every game while starting the final two games of the year after Greg Ellis was felled with a broken leg. His performance and development enabled Ekuban to earn All-Rookie honors from Pro Football Weekly and The Football News. Used primarily as a pass rusher in spot situations, he finished the season with 33 tackles and 2.5 sacks. While opening his professional career in Washington D.C., where he attended high school, Ekuban tied for the team lead with two quarterback pressures in the overtime win over the Redskins (9/12). The following week, he displayed his versatility by playing on both sides of the ball against Atlanta (9/20). While registering one tackle on defense against the Falcons, Ekuban also saw goal-line action at tight end, providing a key block that enabled Emmitt Smith to score the Cowboys' first touchdown. After Ellis suffered a broken leg in the win over Philadelphia (12/12), Ekuban went from part-time player to starter for the remainder of the year. He responded in the win over Philadelphia by recording his first career sack. He ended the day with 1.5 sacks, which marked the most in a game by a Dallas rookie since Russell Maryland recorded 2.0 against Pittsburgh on Nov. 28, 1991. The following week against the N.Y. Jets (12/19), Ekuban saw his most extensive playing time of the season and responded with five tackles. He then earned his first career start on Christmas Eve in New Orleans (12/24), leading the team with a career-high nine tackles while lining up across from Pro Bowl tackle Willie Roaf. He also added a sack and a tackle for a loss as the defensive front helped limit Ricky Williams to 61 yards on 23 carries (2.7 average). The following week in a playoff clinching win over the N.Y. Giants (1/2/00), he led all defensive linemen with five tackles and tied for the team lead with three quarterback pressures as the Dallas defense limited New York to 74 yards rushing. In the playoff loss at Minnesota (1/9/00), Ekuban recorded four tackles before suffering a sprained left knee in the second quarter that severely limited his effectiveness for the rest of the game.

COLLEGE: Ekuban capped his collegiate career by being named first team All-America by The Sporting News while also earning All-ACC honors as a senior. Although it was his first season as a full-time starter, Ekuban collected 96 tackles and led the Tar Heels with seven sacks. He also set a school record with 23 stops for losses totaling 98 yards. Lawrence Taylor and William Fuller, both of whom had 22, shared the previous school record. He earned ACC Player of the Week honors against Clemson, collecting a career-high 16 tackles, four tackles for losses, two sacks and a forced fumbled. As a junior, in his first season as a defensive end, Ekuban played in 10 regular season games and had starting assignments in two of those. Prior to that, he played tight end as a sophomore and freshman, catching six passes for 66 yards and a touchdown.

PERSONAL: In his three years with the Cowboys, Ekuban has made a very visible contribution to the Dallas-Fort Worth community. In April 2001, he served as the Dallas celebrity bedtime story reader on behalf of the National Center for Family Literacy to kickoff National Bedtime Story Month. He also served as keynote speaker at the 18th Annual Boys & Girls Club of Arlington Banquet and local ABC sports anchor Dale Hansen's Scholar Athlete Awards Banquet, emphasizing the importance of education and making smart choices in life. He participated as a "Grim Reaper" in the Fatal Choices/Shattered Dreams program, demonstrating the devastating effects of drinking and driving. He also participated in a school book cover program to teach children the importance of dialing 911. He has become actively involved with the United Way, participating in the NFL's First Annual Hometown Huddle and serving as Co-Master of Ceremonies for the "Run the Runway" annual fundraiser for United Way of Dallas and Tarrant County, and The Salvation Army, participating in The Salvation Army Angel Tree program. Ebenezer, who has participated in the NFL Flag Football Program at school assemblies, annually serves as a celebrity escort for the Children's Cancer Fund of Dallas Fashion Show. He also serves as an annual guest coach for the Cowboys Let Us Play! Sports Camp for Girls, coaching girls from several metroplex non-profit agencies. In September of 2000, Ekuban served as Honorary Chairman for the annual fundraiser benefiting Crossroads Interfaith Housing Program, where he regularly spends time with the children living there. At North Carolina, he was actively involved in the Carolina Outreach Community Service Program, and was involved in helping to raise $6,000 for juvenile diabetes research in September of 1998. As a senior at UNC, he made the Dean's List during his final football season, and he was named the 1998 winner of the Jim Tatum Award, which honors the ACC's top student athlete on the football field. Ekuban earned his degree in exercise and sports science. He was a collegiate teammate of Cowboys defensive end Ellis. Ekuban is a native of Ghana, Africa, and he did not participate in football until his junior year of high school in Maryland. He graduated from Bladensburgh High School in Riverdale, Md., where he was a two-way standout as a senior tight end and defensive end. In his final prep season, he caught 28 passes for 546 yards and five touchdowns while also recording 76 tackles and 11 sacks.

Greg Ellis

Defensive End

6'6" ★ 277 ★ 8/14/75
North Carolina
D-1 for '98 (8th overall)
NFL: 5th Year ★ Cowboys: 5th Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1998 (16/16, 1/1), 1999 (13/13), 2000 (16/16), 2001 (16/16). Total – 61/61, 1/1.

PRO: Having already overcome the pressure and expectations of being the Cowboys highest draft pick (eighth overall) since Russell Maryland was taken with the first overall pick in 1991, Greg Ellis faced and conquered an even more daunting task in 2000. Having had his 1999 season cut short when he fractured the tibia and fibula in his left leg, Ellis fought through the pain and rehabilitation that accompanied having a titanium rod inserted into the leg during the 2000 season. By the end of the year he had re-emerged as one of the top young defensive ends in the game, proving his worth to the club both on and off the field. On the field, he led the club's defensive linemen in 2000 with a then career-high 77 tackles and off the field he was named by teammates as the recipient of the Ed Block courage award for overcoming his injuries. In 2001, Ellis firmly established himself as one of the team's true leaders with a level of consistency and production that showcased his versatility, durability and unselfishness. In 2001, he played both defensive end positions and was used as a tackle in some pass rushing situations. Although he hasn't posted the type of sack numbers that place him among the NFL leaders, Ellis efficiently produces the type of all-around game that makes him one of the league's most complete defensive linemen.

2001: As a key contributor to the Cowboys dramatic turnaround on defense last fall, Ellis led Dallas in sacks (six), quarterback pressures (26), and forced fumbles (four). While starting all 16 games at left end, he led all defensive linemen in tackles with a career-high 83 (fourth on the team), and he was third on the team in tackles for losses (seven for minus 12 yards). Ellis' efforts helped the Cowboys defense rank fourth in the NFL allowing an average of just 287.4 yards-per-game. The Dallas run defense was 13th in the NFL (sixth in the NFC), allowing an average of 106.9 yards on the ground, while the pass defense closed the year ranked third in the NFL – permitting just 180.6 yards-per-game. In 2001, the Dallas Cowboys allowed 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that was 927 fewer yards than the club allowed during the 2000 season. Those numbers represented the largest turnaround by any defensive unit in the NFL in 2001. In the season opening loss to Tampa Bay (9/9), Ellis led all Dallas defensive linemen with nine stops while posting one of Dallas' two sacks. Against San Diego (9/23), he saw action on all 77 defensive plays and recorded four tackles, including one for a loss. The Dallas front seven limited LaDainian Tomlinson to a 3.3-yard average on 27 carries in the game. The following week at Philadelphia (9/30), Ellis was extremely active, contributing a career-high six quarterback pressures and two pass deflections. At Oakland (10/7), he led the team with three quarterback pressures while working from both the left and right sides. He also led all defensive linemen with four tackles against the Raiders. In the Monday night win over Washington (10/15), Ellis recorded five tackles and his second sack of the year while helping limit the Redskins to 226 total yards. His biggest play of the game came with 2:39 remaining when he recovered a Stephen Davis fumble at the Cowboys 33-yard line to set Dallas up for it's game-winning field goal drive. In the following week's win over Arizona (10/28), he led all defensive linemen with seven tackles while helping limit the Cardinals to 75 yards rushing. Ellis also added a tackle for a loss, three quarterback pressures and batted down two passes against the Cardinals. He turned in another outstanding performance at New York (11/4), leading all defensive linemen with eight tackles while also recording his third sack of the season and forcing a fumble on the play. Ellis had two tackles behind the line while helping limit the Giants to 93 yards rushing on 26 carries (3.6 avg.). In Atlanta (11/11), Ellis was second on the team in tackles with seven, and he turned in his first multiple-sack game of the season with two, as the Falcons were limited to 201 total yards. In the loss to Philadelphia (11/18) at Texas Stadium, Ellis led the team with three quarterback pressures, as the Eagles were limited to 227 total yards – 100 yards below their season average. On the ground, the Eagles averaged 2.8-yards-per-carry on 35 attempts. On Thanksgiving Day against Denver (11/22), Ellis led all defensive linemen with six tackles and added a tackle for a loss as the Broncos were limited to 3.1 yards-per-carry for the game. In Dallas' 20-14 win at Washington (12/2), Ellis again led all Cowboys' linemen in tackles with seven. He also added a tackle for a loss, two quarterback pressures and batted down a pass. Stephen Davis, the NFC's third leading rusher entering the game, was held to 53 yards on 17 carries (3.1 avg.). He registered his sixth sack of the year in the win over the N.Y. Giants (12/9), while leading all defensive linemen with six tackles. His sack was a fourth quarter takedown of Kerry Collins that also forced a fumble. Ellis also forced Collins into two bad throws with pressures and helped limit the Giants to just 73 yards of total offense on their final eight possessions. At Seattle (12/16), he suffered a sprained right knee mid-way through the first quarter but returned to action in the second quarter and recorded four tackles, a tackle for a loss and a quarterback pressure while the Seahawks were held to 139 net yards passing. In the 17-10 loss at Arizona (12/23), he recorded four tackles and a quarterback pressure. In the Cowboys upset win over playoff bound San Francisco (12/30), he registered three tackles, two quarterback pressures and recovered a fumble. Ellis played a key role in Dallas being able to limit the NFL's second ranked 49er running game (146-yards-per-game at the time) to 56 yards.

2000: After two years patrolling the left end of the Dallas defensive line, Ellis switched to the right side in 2000 to take pressure off his injured left leg. He went on to lead all defensive linemen with a then career-high 77 tackles, while tying for the team lead with seven tackles for losses and two fumble recoveries. He also finished second on the team with 13 quarterback pressures. After working into camp slowly, Ellis returned to full action for the final two preseason games. In the season opener against Philadelphia (9/3), he led all defensive linemen with eight tackles and a tackle for a loss in his first regular season action since suffering the leg fracture. He recovered a fumble at Arizona (9/10), and then at Washington (9/18), he recorded his first sack of the season on the game's final play to preserve the Cowboys Monday night win. He also recovered a Redskins fumble in the second quarter to set up a Dallas touchdown. Ellis led all defensive linemen and was third on the team with a career-high 11 tackles against San Francisco (9/24). It was the highest tackle total by a Dallas defensive lineman since Chad Hennings recorded 11 stops against the N.Y. Giants on Dec. 21, 1997. Facing perennial All-Pro Tony Boselli, Ellis put together an admirable day against Jacksonville (10/29) with five tackles, a tackle for a loss and a quarterback pressure. He also forced Boselli into two illegal procedure penalties. On special teams, Ellis blocked his first career field goal, getting his hand on a 49-yard fourth quarter attempt by Mike Hollis. Ellis was second among defensive linemen with nine tackles, including two behind the line at Philadelphia (11/5) while helping limit the Eagles running backs to 25 carries for 77 yards (3.1 avg.). His seven tackles against Cincinnati (11/12) led all defensive linemen, and he recorded his second sack of the season with a takedown of Akili Smith, as the Bengals were limited to 195 total yards. Ellis again led all defensive linemen in tackles and was third on the team with nine stops at Baltimore (11/19). His five tackles against Minnesota (11/23) tied him for second on the team. With four tackles, a sack and two quarterback pressures against Washington (12/10), Ellis helped limit the Redskins to just 79 rushing yards on the day, a season low for the Dallas defense. Ellis wrapped up his comeback season with an all-around game at Tennessee (12/25), recording three tackles, two quarterback pressures and a tackle for a loss.

1999: Despite missing the final three regular season games because of a fractured left tibia and fibula, Ellis led the team with 7.5 sacks, the highest sack total by a Dallas player since Tony Tolbert had 12.0 in 1996. Before the injury, he was eighth in the NFC in sacks and was also tied for the team lead with 17 quarterback pressures. He finished the season with 59 tackles, four passes defensed and two forced fumbles. Ellis set the tone for the season early, recording five tackles and a career-best two sacks at Washington (9/12) in the season opener. The first sack came with the Redskins at the Dallas four-yard line and forced a fumble that George Teague recovered to end a potential scoring drive. The second sack came on third and three on the Redskins opening possession in overtime and forced them to punt. Dallas then took the ball and drove 95-yards for the game-winning score. The next week on Monday Night Football, he recorded his first career interception and touchdown when he picked off a Danny Kanell pass and raced 87-yards for a score against Atlanta (9/20). It was the longest touchdown return of any kind by a defensive lineman in club history until the next game. He also led all defensive linemen with six tackles on the evening. Ellis closed out his season opening burst of big plays against Arizona (10/3) by returning a Jake Plummer fumble 98 yards for a touchdown, the longest fumble return in Cowboys history. In doing so, he became the first Cowboys defensive player since Ray Horton in 1991 (vs. N.Y. Giants, 9/29 and at Green Bay, 10/6) to score a touchdown in back-to-back weeks. Ellis logged four tackles at Philadelphia (10/10) before adding seven tackles and a sack in helping limit the N.Y. Giants (10/18) to 2.5 yards-per-carry average. Ellis was third on the team, tops among linemen, with seven tackles at Indianapolis (10/31) while also adding a tackle for a loss and a forced fumble. For the second time in 1999, Ellis recorded a career-high two sacks in a game while also leading all defensive linemen with five tackles at Minnesota (11/8). With three tackles and a team-high three quarterback pressures against Green Bay (11/14), he helped limit Brett Favre to a 57.1 QB rating and the Packers to 40 yards rushing, including 31 yards on 15 attempts (2.1 avg.) by Dorsey Levens. He then logged a season-high eight tackles at Arizona (11/21) to finish second on the team, while adding a sack and three quarterback pressures. On Thanksgiving Day against Miami (11/25), pressure from the defensive front was instrumental in forcing Dan Marino into a career-worst five interceptions. Ellis recorded his final sack of the season at New England (12/5) while adding four tackles, but his season came to an abrupt end the next week against Philadelphia (12/12) when he fractured the tibia and fibula in his left leg in the first quarter. He underwent surgery that night to have a titanium rod inserted into the leg and was placed on injured reserve on Dec. 15. Following the season, he also underwent surgery on Feb. 10, 2000 to have a bone chip removed from his right wrist

1998: Ellis finished his rookie campaign leading the team with 22 quarterback pressures and all defensive linemen with 63 tackles. He also closed the year with five tackles for losses, five passes defensed and three sacks. Since tackle records began being kept in 1979, Ellis became the Cowboys first rookie to lead all defensive linemen on the team in tackles. This effort earned him all-rookie honors from Football News and Football Digest. Against Arizona (9/6), he became the first rookie to start a season opener at defensive end for Dallas since Bob Lilly in 1961. He finished with two tackles and two quarterback pressures against the Cardinals. He registered five tackles at Denver (9/13) before totaling three tackles and two quarterback pressures the next week at the N.Y. Giants (9/21). He also forced his first career fumble in the fourth quarter and helped limit the Giants to 56 yards rushing. He recorded his first career sack while adding three tackles against Oakland (9/27). He totaled five stops at Washington (10/4), and he registered a season-high nine tackles and 1.5 sacks against Carolina (10/11) while helping limit the Panthers to 37 yards rushing on 21 carries (1.8 avg.). He had three tackles and helped limit the Bears to 2.5 yards-per-rush at Chicago (10/18). He recorded four tackles and half a sack against the Giants (11/8) before recording two tackles and two pressures while helping limit the Cardinals to 32 rushing yards at Arizona (11/15). The next week against Seattle (11/22), he totaled two tackles and deflected his first NFL pass. Four days later against Minnesota (11/26) on Thanksgiving Day, he led all defensive linemen with four tackles while adding two pressures and two passes defensed. He added six tackles and his first career fumble recovery at New Orleans (12/6). He led all defensive linemen with seven tackles and a career-high four quarterback pressures against Philadelphia (12/20), and he registered four tackles and two tackles for losses in the season finale against Washington (12/27). In his first postseason action against Arizona (1/2/99), he led all defensive linemen with eight tackles.

COLLEGE: Ellis teamed with Cowboys 1999 first round draft choice Ebenezer Ekuban on the defensive line at North Carolina. With 32.5 career sacks, Ellis left North Carolina as the school's all-time sack leader, the same school that produced NFL Hall of Famer Lawrence Taylor. As a senior, Ellis earned All-America honors, was a finalist for the Lombardi Award and an All-ACC selection for the third straight season after collecting 87 tackles, nine sacks and 32 quarterback pressures. As a junior, Ellis was named second-team All-America by The Sporting News and first-team All-ACC after closing the season with 62 tackles, a school record 38 quarterback pressures and 12.5 sacks, the second most sacks in a season behind Taylor's 16 in 1979. In 1995, Ellis became the first North Carolina sophomore to be named first-team All-ACC since Reuben Davis in 1985. Ellis was also named honorable mention All-America by UPI while recording 71 tackles and seven sacks. As a back-up defensive end during his redshirt freshman year, Ellis ranked second on the team with four sacks.

Brigham Young
FA for '01
NFL: 2nd Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 2001 (8/0).

PRO: The Cowboys added quality depth to their defensive end rotation when they signed Byron Frisch. Originally drafted by the Tennessee Titans in the third round (93rd overall) of the 2000 NFL Draft, Frisch is a quick end who attacks the outside hard and possesses superb lateral agility. These traits, combined with his athletic ability and work ethic, have Cowboys coaches believing he will contribute in the defensive end rotation into the future after supplying a number of big plays during his first year in Dallas.

2001: Frisch was released by the Titans on Sept. 2 and signed with Dallas on Sept. 24. He was inactive at Philadelphia (9/30) after suffering a hyperextended right knee in practice on Sept. 26, but reovered to see his first action at Oakland (10/17). His first tackle came against Washington (10/15). His first career sack came at the N.Y. Giants (11/4) with an eight-yard takedown of Kerry Collins. On the play, he forced a fumble that Brandon Noble recovered to set up the first Dallas touchdown of the game. His second sack of the season came at Seattle (12/16) with a 13-yard take down of Matt Hasselbeck. His third sack came at Arizona (12/23) with a take down of Jake Plummer.

Joey Galloway

Wide Receiver

5'11" ★ 197 ★ 11/20/71
Ohio State
Trade (Seattle) for '00
NFL: 8th Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1995 (16/16-Sea.), 1996 (16/16-Sea.), 1997 (15/15-Sea.), 1998 (16/16-Sea.), 1999 (8/4, 1/0-Sea.), 2000 (1/1), 2001 (16/16). Total – 88/84, 1/0 (Dallas – 17/17).

PRO: One of the game's most dangerous deep threats, Joey Galloway has the rare speed and game-breaking ability to go the distance from any point on the field. He has averaged a touchdown every 8.3 receptions throughout his seven-year career. His 6,489 career all-purpose yards in 88 games accounts for an average of 73.7 yards-per-game, and he has 13 career 100-yard receiving games. From 1995 to 1998, while with the Seattle Seahawks, Galloway registered 36 touchdown receptions – a figure that was topped by only Cris Carter (52) and Carl Pickens (39) over that same period of time. Acquired by Dallas on Feb. 12, 2000 in a trade with the Seattle Seahawks, Galloway's introduction to Dallas was marred by a torn ACL in his left knee in the fourth quarter of the Cowboys 2000 season opener with Philadelphia (9/3/00). The injury required season-ending surgery and a rehabilitation program that concluded with his return to action in the second-to-last preseason game of 2001. When teamed with Raghib Ismail, Dallas boasts one of the fastest receiving tandems in the NFL. Originally the eighth overall pick of the 1995 NFL Draft, Galloway went on to start 67-of-71 games during his Seattle career and was an AFC Pro Bowl alternate in both 1997 and 1998. He led the Seahawks in receiving yards and touchdowns in each of his first four seasons and led the club in receptions from 1996-98 after finishing second on the team as a rookie in 1995. His 12 100-yard receiving games are the third-best total in Seahawks history. In addition to his 40 career receiving touchdowns, Galloway has one touchdown rushing and four touchdowns on punt returns.

2001: After fully recovering from major knee surgery that forced him to miss 15 games in 2000, Galloway finished the year second on the team in receptions (52) and receiving yards (699) while leading in receiving touchdowns (three). He led or tied for the team lead in receptions six times. Galloway was also a threat with his mere presence, forcing opposing defensive backs into nine penalties for 199 yards during the season. Dallas scored a touchdown on five of the nine possessions that included one of those defensive penalties. He led the team with six receptions for 18 yards in the opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), marking his return to action following his ACL injury in Week One of the 2000 season. He had two catches for 33 yards against San Diego (9/23). He was held without a reception for the first time in his career in the Sunday night loss at Philadelphia (9/30). Galloway picked up his first touchdown reception of the year with a 40-yard strike from Anthony Wright in the loss at Oakland (10/7). He finished with two catches for 59 yards and one rushing attempt for 10 yards against the Raiders. Galloway was on pace to enjoy his finest game of the year against Washington (10/15) when a second quarter foot sprain forced him to miss the second half. Prior to the injury, he had four catches for 51 yards. He tied for the team lead in receptions (three for 28 yards) in the win over Arizona (10/28). He also drew a pass interference penalty that picked up 47 yards and led to the Cowboys deciding touchdown. In the overtime loss at the N.Y. Giants (11/4), he registered 73 yards and a touchdown on four receptions. Against Philadelphia (11/18), Galloway caught two passes for 20 yards and ran the ball twice for 22 yards. He tied for the club lead in receptions against Denver (11/22) with six for 64 yards. In the 20-14 win at Washington (12/2), he recorded a 13-yard reception and drew an 11-yard pass interference penalty to convert a fourth-down attempt. In the win over New York (12/9), he caught two passes for 17 yards while providing timely down field blocking on two key running plays. In his return to Seattle (12/16), Galloway enjoyed a very productive day, catching a season-high seven passes for 82 yards. His biggest play of the game was a 40-yard bomb from Carter in the second quarter. Galloway tied for the team lead with three receptions for 28 yards at Arizona (12/23). With that yardage, he topped the 5,000-yard receiving mark for his career. Galloway set a career-high with 146 receiving yards on six receptions (24.3 avg.) in the upset win against San Francisco (12/30). He was on the receiving end of a season-long 47-yard touchdown pass from Carter while also adding receptions of 44 and 26 yards. He closed the year with three catches for 58 yards at Detroit (1/6).

2000: In the season opener against Philadelphia (9/3), Galloway displayed a glimpse of the ability that first attracted the Cowboys to him. He led the team with four receptions for 62 yards and a touchdown. All four of his receptions gave Dallas a first down, including two on third down. But just as quickly as he burst upon the scene in the first three quarters of the game, his season came screeching to a halt in the fourth quarter when he tore the ACL in his left knee. He was placed on injured reserve Sept. 8 and underwent reconstructive surgery on Oct. 5.

1999: Galloway was activated to the 53-man roster on Nov. 13 after an eight-week contract dispute. Although he didn't start against the Broncos (11/14) in his first game back, Galloway caught four passes for 88 yards, including a key 39-yard reception in the third quarter. He had his largest impact of the season at Oakland (12/5) when he recorded four receptions for a team-high 68 yards and a touchdown. The score, his only touchdown of the season, was from 31-yards out. He led the team again the following week with six receptions for 85 yards against the San Diego Chargers (12/12). For the season, he had 22 receptions for 335 yards (15.2) and one touchdown.

1998: A playmaker all year for the Seahawks, Galloway led the team in receptions and touchdowns for the third consecutive season while being named first alternate for the AFC Pro Bowl squad. He tied for the AFC lead with 10 receiving touchdowns and tied for third with 12 total touchdowns, tying his career-high set in 1997. He finished the season eighth in the AFC with 1,047 yards receiving, the third 1,000-yard season of his career. His punt return average of 10.0 was seventh in the AFC. Galloway led the team with 65 receptions and four 100-yard games on the year. In the season opening victory at Philadelphia (9/6), he posted his ninth career 100-yard game with a then career-high 142 yards on six receptions, including touchdown catches of 35 and 25 yards. He scored another touchdown among his two receptions against Arizona (9/13). Galloway's 10th career 100-yard game came at Pittsburgh (9/27) with a 139-yard outburst on a season-high seven receptions. John Friesz connected with Galloway on a career-long 81-yard touchdown pass at San Diego (10/25) and later connected on a 41-yard pass to the one-yard line to set up the game-winning touchdown. Galloway finished the game with four catches for 130 yards. The 81-yard catch was the second longest in Seahawks history. He also returned a punt 74 yards for his third career punt return touchdown. Galloway returned a punt 56 yards for a score against Oakland (11/15), and caught four passes for 71 yards, including a 44-yard touchdown pass from Warren Moon. In a 20-18 win over Tennessee (11/29), he caught a seven-yard touchdown pass before posting his fourth 100-yard receiving day of the season with 127 yards and two touchdowns on two receptions at the N.Y. Jets (12/6). The touchdowns against the Jets were from 70 and 57 yards out and marked his seventh-career multi-touchdown game. He tied a season-high with seven receptions against San Diego (12/13), including a touchdown, and then led the team in receptions against Indianapolis (12/20) with five, including a three-yard touchdown pass. He presented the ball to a Make-A-Wish child, Sterling Grover, following the touchdown.

1997: Galloway started 15 games, missing only the Tennessee game (10/5) because of an ankle sprain he suffered the previous week at Kansas City (9/27), an injury suffered on a first quarter touchdown reception which kept him out the remainder of that game as well. The Tennessee game marked the first missed game of his career. For the season, Galloway led the team in receptions, yards, and touchdowns for the second consecutive year and set single-season bests with 72 receptions, 1,049 receiving yards, and 12 touchdowns – averaging 28.6 yards on each of his scores. His touchdown total was the most by a Seahawks player since Steve Largent had 12 in 1985 and was one off the club record by Daryl Turner in 1984. Galloway's 12 touchdowns tied for the AFC lead and was the third best total touchdown figure in the NFL. Twice during the season, Galloway tied his single-game high with eight catches at St. Louis (10/19) and again at Denver (11/2), in addition he had at least five receptions in eight games. In a 45-34 win over Oakland (10/26), he had seven receptions for 117 yards and three touchdowns. He scored all three touchdowns in the second half, including the game-clincher with 2:24 left. The Oakland game was one of three 100-yard efforts on the year for Galloway. He caught five passes for 106 yards against San Diego (9/21) and six for 101 with two touchdowns against San Francisco (12/21). He totaled 98 yards receiving at Denver (11/2). In a 37-31 win at San Diego (11/9), Galloway scored the game-winning touchdown on a 40-yard reception with 2:20 remaining. He was a first alternate to the AFC Pro Bowl squad.

1996: Galloway just missed becoming only the fourth receiver in league history to have back-to-back 1,000-yard receiving seasons in his first two years, finishing the season leading the team in receptions (57), yards (987), and touchdowns (7). He posted two 100-yard games, topped by a season-best 137 yards on five receptions, including touchdowns of 51 and 65 yards in a 22-15 win over the Dolphins in Miami (10/6). He also caught five balls for 108 yards, with a 43-yarder to set up a touchdown at Denver (12/1). Galloway opened the season with a 60-yard reception at San Diego (9/1) before tallying his second career punt return touchdown with an 88-yarder against Denver (9/8). He had a single-game high eight receptions in back-to-back midseason games against Houston (11/3) and Minnesota (11/10). In the Oilers' contest, he had 94 yards receiving and the game-tying touchdown reception with 3:30 left. His eight catches against the Vikings were good for 91 yards and one score. In a late season AFC West showdown with Oakland (11/24), Galloway had three receptions for 99 yards, with receptions of 40 and 42 yards to set up touchdowns. Through the first seven games of the season, he averaged 11.8 yards on 12 punt returns to rank fourth in the AFC before relinquishing those duties to concentrate on offense.

1995: Galloway was the first rookie wide receiver to start every game for Seattle and the first since 1976 to start the opener. Along the way, he was named NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year by College and Pro Football Newsweekly and was a consensus All-Rookie choice. He caught 67 passes for 1,039 yards and seven touchdowns, becoming the 10th rookie in NFL history to surpass 1,000 yards, and the first since 1986. Galloway combined with Brian Blades to form the first duo with 1,000 yards in the same season in Seattle history. He also added 154 yards rushing and a touchdown while returning 36 punts for a 10.0-yard average, and one touchdown. Along the way he set franchise season records for receptions, yards, and 100-yard games (three) by a rookie, totals that also led all NFL rookies – as did his seven touchdown receptions. The first record to fall was Daryl Turner's for yardage (715 in 1984) 11 games into the season, and in Week 14, he broke Steve Largent's record for rookie receptions (54 in 1976). Prior to Galloway's arrival, the franchise had seen only five 100-yard games by a rookie, but he almost matched that himself, posting a franchise rookie best three 100-yard games: five receptions for 102 yards and one touchdown at Buffalo (10/15); five receptions for 114 yards and two scores at Jacksonville (11/12); and five catches for 108 yards against Oakland (10/08). In that Jaguars game, Galloway established a franchise record for the longest run from scrimmage with an 86-yard touchdown dash. Accounting for 200 yards from scrimmage in the game, Galloway earned AFC Offensive Player of the Week honors for his performance. A club-record 89-yard punt return for a touchdown against the N.Y. Giants (11/5) started Galloway on his way to AFC Special Teams Player of the Month honors for November, a month he returned 13 punts for a 13.2 yard average and one touchdown. Both the 89-yard punt return and the 86-yard run were the longest such plays in the NFL in 1995. For the season, Galloway averaged 48.0 yards on each of his nine touchdowns (seven receiving, one rushing, one punt return) and was one of two players in the NFL (San Francisco's Jerry Rice) to score three different ways.

COLLEGE: Galloway finished his college career second in Ohio State history in touchdown receptions with 19 – trailing only Cris Carter's 27 – and had two games with three touchdowns. He finished fourth in both career receptions (108) and receiving yards (1,894). He also added 20 kickoff returns for a 25.0-yard average and one score and 34 punt returns for a 7.8 average. Galloway earned first-team All-Big Ten Conference honors as a junior and second-team accolades as a senior while leading the team in receiving both years. As a senior, he recorded 44 receptions for 669 yards and seven touchdowns. He also returned 18 kickoffs for 462 yards (25.7) and one touchdown, and 16 punts for a 10.6 average. Galloway finished his senior season catching eight passes for 146 yards and two touchdowns in the Citrus Bowl against Alabama, including a career-best 69-yard reception. As a junior, Galloway caught 47 passes for 946 yards and a school record equaling (Carter – 1986) 11 touchdowns. His yardage total ranked third for a single-season in school history trailing Carter's 1,127 in 1986 and 950 in 1985. Galloway posted four 100-yard games, including 186 (third best single-game total in school history) on nine receptions with three touchdowns against Michigan State. Galloway was a National Football Foundation Scholar Athlete and National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics Scholarship recipient.

PERSONAL: Galloway caught 32 passes for 608 yards and eight touchdowns, averaged 26.9 yards on kickoff returns and 15.2 on punt returns as a senior at Bellaire, Ohio, High School. He was also an all-Ohio choice in basketball and lettered in track. During the 2002 off-season, he organized a motivational and goal-setting discussion with the children at Happy Hill Farm Academy and Home, accompanied by a donation of athletic clothing for the Farm residents. Galloway also spent time as a celebrity football coach at the sixth annual Dallas Cowboys Let Us Play! Sports Camp for Girls – a three-day sports camp for inner-city girls. In 2001, he served as a guest speaker at Bryan Adams High School in Dallas, Tex., for the Teens Driving for Safety program, an assembly highlighting responsible driving practices for America's teens. He also hosted the first "Galloway Holiday," a holiday party for the children at South Dallas' St. Phillip's School and Community Center. Despite his injury in 2000, Galloway joined in with the rest of the Cowboys wide receiver corps in distributing 500 Hams for the Holidays with the Salvation Army. He was also a big hit with the toddlers at the Gene & Jerry Jones Family Center for Children. During his Seahawks career, he sponsored a group of students, the Galloway Express, at each Seattle home game. During the 1996 season, Galloway appeared on Wheel of Fortune with proceeds from his spins benefiting the Make-A-Wish Foundation. He earned his degree in Business/Marketing from Ohio State.

Kelvin Garmon

Guard

6'2" ★ 350 ★ 10/26/76
Baylor
D-7b for '99 (243rd overall)
NFL: 3rd Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season/playoffs): 1999 (NFI), 2000 (0/0), 2001 (16/16). Total – 16/16.

PRO: Kelvin Garmon, who had been away from the football field for almost two years (1998-99) rehabilitating a fractured right tibia suffered during his final collegiate campaign, returned to the playing field and full-time football work in 2000. In 2001 he took that a step further by becoming the club's starting right guard when Solomon Page moved to right tackle. The Cowboys patience with Garmon paid huge dividends as the former seventh round draft choice (243rd overall) in 1999 went on to start 16 games for a team that finished third in the NFL in rushing with 2,184 yards on the season. His size and strength give him the versatility to play anywhere along the offensive line, but his ability to run and his quickness make him a naturally gifted pulling guard. With just one true season of action under his belt, Garmon should continue to improve in the years to come.

2001: Garmon was the only new starter on the Dallas offensive line in 2001, moving into the starting lineup at right guard while Solomon Page slid over to right tackle. He became one of the anchors in a line that helped Dallas finish third in the NFL in rushing at 136.5 yards-per-game. The 2,184 rushing yards Dallas gained for the season was the second best total in the last 20 years by a Cowboys' team (1995 – 2,201). The line also did an outstanding job in pass protection as four different quarterbacks rotated through the backfield. The line allowed 34 sacks in 447 pass plays. Just twelve teams allowed fewer in 2001 and only eight teams lost fewer yards due to sacks than the 190 lost by Dallas. Ten times opponents were held to two sacks or less during the season. In his first meaningful action since Nov. 7, 1998 against Kansas State – the game in which he suffered his fractured right tibia – Garmon earned his first NFL start against Tampa Bay (9/9). In his NFL debut, he helped limit the Buccaneers to two sacks and helped limit

All-Pro defensive tackle Warren Sapp to one tackle and no sacks on the day. His play with the line against San Diego (9/23) allowed Emmitt Smith to run for 85 yards on 17 carries (5.0 avg.) and move past Barry Sanders into second on the NFL's all-time rushing list. In the Cowboys Monday night win over Washington (10/15), Garmon and Co. helped lead Smith (107 yards) to his first 100-yard rushing game of the season and Dallas to 211 yards on the ground for the evening. At Atlanta (11/11), he played a part in an effort that opened the way for Troy Hambrick to gain 127 rushing yards and Michael Wiley to add 85 en route to the Cowboys gaining 207 yards (6.3 avg.) for the day. In a home loss to Philadelphia (11/18), Garmon helped Dallas rush for 132 yards on 23 carries (5.7 avg.) against the NFL's eighth ranked run defense. He played a key role in Dallas' 20-14 win at Washington (12/2), helping the Cowboys log their third 200+ yard rushing day of the season as the team ran 44 times for 215 yards (4.9 avg.), including 102 yards from Smith. On the day, Garmon helped limit Kenard Lang and Dan Wilkinson to a combined three tackles. Despite suffering a sprained right foot in the first quarter at Arizona (12/23), Garmon returned in the second half and led the way as Dallas rushed for 174 yards, including a season-high 128 by Smith, and allowed just one sack in 30 pass plays. The Cowboys surprise 27-21 win over San Francisco (12/30) was sparked by a Dallas line that helped account for 186 rushing yards, including 126 by Smith. This despite Garmon missing the entire week of practice while nursing his sprained right foot. The Cowboys also helped limit the 49ers to one sack on 26 pass plays as Quincy Carter threw for a season-high 241 yards. Garmon re-aggravated his sprained right foot in the first half at Detroit (1/6/02) and did not return.

2000: After an almost two year hiatus from the playing field, Garmon returned to action in the Cowboys five preseason games, including three starts at left guard for Larry Allen (fractured right hand). His high level of play during the preseason earned him a spot on Dallas' 53-man roster, but he was deactivated for each of the first 15 games. He was part of the Cowboys active roster for the season finale at Tennessee (12/25) but did not see any playing time.

1999: Garmon was placed on the Reserve/Non-Football Injury list on Aug.31 following a preseason where he saw no on-field action. He spent the entire off-season, training camp and regular season fulfilling the requirements of rehabilitating the fractured right tibia that he suffered as a senior at Baylor.

COLLEGE: A powerful performer while at Baylor, Garmon's versatility was documented during his senior year when he played every position, except center, on the Bears offensive line. He was enjoying a solid season before his fractured leg brought an abrupt halt to his collegiate career after four games. Prior to his injury, he had registered 17 knockdown blocks. In starting every game as a junior, Garmon displayed his versatility throughout the year. He started the first five games at strong tackle before switching to strong guard for the remaining six outings. While he was expected to spend his sophomore season as a reserve, Garmon broke through in summer training camp and earned a starting job for the Bears, earning five starts at right guard and six starts at left tackle.

PERSONAL: Garmon, a physical therapy major, attended Haltom, Tex., High School, where he was a standout on both the offensive and defensive lines. As a senior, he recorded 80 tackles, including 10 sacks. Garmon earned all-district and all-state honors in his final prep campaign. He also earned varsity letters in basketball and track. Garmon has participated in the offensive line's support of The RISE School in Dallas with the "First Downs for Down Syndrome" project. In the fall of 2001, the entire offensive line helped paint a Dallas Cowboys Pegasus with the children from The RISE School. The Pegasus, a project to promote the City of Dallas, was donated to the school for a charitable fundraiser. He was a guest coach for the club's 1999 Dallas Cowboys/Gatorade Junior Training Camp football clinic for 200 youth from The Salvation Army, and he attended and showed support at the 2001 Komen Race for the Cure in Plano, TX.

Aaron Gibson

Tackle

Wisconsin
Waiver (Det.) for '01
NFL: 4th Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1999 (0/0-Det), 2000 (10/10-Det), 2001 (6/5-Det), (1/0-Dal.). Total – 17/15 (Dallas 1/0).

PRO: The Dallas Cowboys, in their continued efforts to upgrade the roster, claimed Aaron Gibson off waivers from Detroit on Oct 31, 2001. Originally drafted in the first round (27th overall) by Detroit in 1999, Gibson's playing time as a Lion was often limited by nagging injuries. He missed his entire rookie season after injuring his left shoulder in an April mini-camp in Detroit. His second year in the NFL was cut short by a right shoulder injury that put him on the injured reserve list after 10 games. Intrigued by his size, physical style of play and solid run blocking ability, the Cowboys chose to claim the former Wisconsin Badger in an effort to tap into his first round talent.

2001: After successfully rehabbing a right shoulder subluxation throughout the offseason, Gibson returned to the Detroit lineup and started the first four games of the season. He left in the third quarter of a Week 5 game at Minnesota (10/14) with a bruised knee. He played in the next two games, starting one, before being released by the Lions Oct. 30. The Cowboys claimed Gibson off waivers Oct. 31 and was inactive his first eight games in Dallas. He was active for the first time as a Cowboy in the win over San Francisco (12/30), but did not see action. The following week, in the season finale at Detroit (1/6/02), he saw his first action as a Cowboy against his former team with two special teams snaps on the field goal unit after Kelvin Garmon suffered a sprained right foot.

2000: Gibson returned to the playing field following his shoulder rehabilitation and registered his first career NFL start at right tackle at New Orleans (9/3). That outing marked his first regular game action since starting for Wisconsin in the 1999 Rose Bowl. He graded out as the most productive lineman and started the next nine games for the Lions until he suffered a posterior subluxation in his right shoulder against Atlanta (11/12). He was inactive for weeks 11-13 before being placed on injured reserve on Dec. 4 and undergoing surgery on Dec. 7.

1999: A first round selection of the Lions (27th overall), Gibson was placed on injured reserve following surgery on his left shoulder (9/2) to repair a dislocation he suffered during an April mini-camp practice. He saw no game action as a rookie while spending the entire season rehabilitating the injured shoulder.

COLLEGE: Gibson spent two years at Wisconsin blocking for Heisman Trophy winner Ron Dayne, who established the NCAA Division 1-A career rushing record (6,397) in 1999 before being drafted by the N.Y. Giants. Gibson earned first-team All-America, first-team All-Big Ten and team co-MVP honors as a senior for the Badgers. He helped the offense average 240.3 yards-per-game rushing (19th in nation) as a senior. He was the first Badger to be named a finalist for the Lombardi Award and Outland trophy. Against Iowa, his blocking helped the Badgers rush for 280 yards. He was an All-America honorable mention and All-Big Ten first-team choice as a junior. As a sophomore, Gibson was a reserve right tackle and used as a blocking tight end during the second half of the season. As a freshman, Gibson did not play under the guidelines of NCAA Proposition 48.

PERSONAL: While at Wisconsin, Gibson majored in Afro-American studies. He lettered three times in football and four times in track and field at Decatur Central High School in Indianapolis, Ind. As a senior, he earned All-America and first-team all-state honors. On the defensive side of the ball, Gibson recovered eight fumbles and recorded 11 passes defensed.

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1996 (2/0 – Oak), 1997 (15/2 – N.O.), 1998 (16/15 – N.O.), 1999 (16/16 – N.O.), 2000 (16/16, 2/2 – N.O.), 2001 (16/16 – N.O.). Total – 81/65, 2/2.

PRO: After making a dramatic improvement in their run defense from the 2000 season to the 2001 season, the Cowboys were looking for a defensive tackle that could rush the passer and stop the run. They found their man in La'Roi Glover and signed him to a long term contract on March 12, 2002. He came to Dallas as an unrestricted free agent from New Orleans – where he rapidly emerged as one of the NFL's most productive defensive tackles over the course of the past five years. Glover is a strong, quick lineman who has been selected to two Pro Bowls while recording 25 sacks over the past two seasons, and he has registered 50 sacks during his six-year career. From 1998 to 2000, only two other NFL players posted more sacks than Glover's 35.5 (Kevin Carter – 39.5 and Warren Sapp – 36). Glover's 17 sacks in 2000 tied the New Orleans single season record that was set by Pat Swilling in 1992, and that figure is the second highest sack total by any defensive tackle in NFL history – since sacks were first registered as an official NFL stat in 1982. With an outstanding presence as an inside run stopper, Glover will compliment the talents of fellow tackles Brandon Noble and Michael Myers. His fine pass rushing ability should aid the talents of defensive end Greg Ellis as well.

2001: Glover earned his second consecutive Pro Bowl selection after totaling 45 tackles, eight sacks, three forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries. His eight sacks ranked third on the team and helped the Saints lead the NFL in sacks-per-pass play. He opened the season with two stops and a sack at Buffalo (9/9), then posted three tackles and a sack at the N.Y. Giants (9/30). In the Saints' home opener against Minnesota (10/7), he totaled four tackles, two sacks and forced a fumble while holding the Vikings ground attack to just 34 yards. He recorded two stops and two fumble recoveries at Carolina (10/14) before posting four stops against Atlanta (10/21). Against Indianapolis (11/18), he totaled two stops, then tallied four tackles at New England (11/25). Against Carolina (12/2), he recorded three tackles, 1.5 sacks and a forced fumble while helping the defense limit the Panthers to just 49 rushing yards on 19 attempts (2.6 avg.) and 150 total yards. He posted two tackles, a forced fumble and half a sack at Atlanta (12/9) then totaled three stops and a sack against St. Louis (12/17). He recorded a season-high six tackles and a sack against Washington (12/30) before closing the season with three stops against San Francisco (1/6/02).

2000: With one of the more dominating defensive performances in the NFL, Glover was selected to his first Pro Bowl while earning consensus All-Pro honors and NFL Alumni Defensive Lineman of the Year after leading the NFL with 17 sacks for losses of 112 yards. This sack total ranks second in NFL annals among defensive tackles, trailing Minnesota's Keith Millard's 18-sack effort in 1989. He also recorded 65 tackles, two forced fumbles and a fumble recovery. His performances earned him NFC Defensive Player of the Week honors an NFC-record three times while earning NFC Defensive Player of the Month for October. At the time, he was just the ninth player in NFL history to win conference Player of the Week honors in two consecutive weeks – at Chicago (10/8) and against Carolina (10/15). He recorded his first sack of the season against Detroit (9/3) while totaling six tackles. He finished with two stops and sacks on consecutive plays at San Diego (9/10) before tallying four tackles and a career-high tying three sacks at Chicago (10/8), earning NFC Defensive Player of the Week honors. He earned Defensive Player of the Week honors the following week against Carolina (10/15) after recording another three sack performance. At Atlanta (10/22), he totaled three tackles and a sack, then registered six stops, two sacks and a forced fumble at Arizona (10/29). He was named NFC Defensive Player of the Month for October after posting 17 tackles, nine sacks and a forced fumble in four games. He recorded his 11th sack of the year at Carolina (11/12), and he earned NFC Defensive Player of the Week honors for a record third time after totaling five stops, a career-high tying three sacks and a forced fumble at St. Louis (11/26). Glover's performance helped the Saints defense limit Rams running back Marshall Faulk to 27 rushing yards in New Orleans 31-24 victory over the defending Super Bowl champions. He returned the next week against Denver (12/3) to record a season-high 10 tackles, then forced a key third quarter fumble at San Francisco (12/10) which led to a Saints field goal in a 31-27 victory. In the NFC Wild Card game against St. Louis (12/30), he totaled six tackles and a fumble recovery to help the New Orleans defense limit Faulk to 24 rushing yards in the Saints 31-28 victory.

1999: Glover finished fifth on the Saints with 62 tackles while leading the team with 8.5 sacks. He also posted a forced fumble, a fumble recovery and a pass defensed. He recorded his first sack at Chicago (10/3), and he led the team with eight tackles at the N.Y. Giants (10/24). He registered his most productive game of the season at Baltimore (12/19) when he led the Saints with a career-high 11 tackles and a career-high tying three sacks.

1998: In starting 15-of-16 games for the Saints, he led the team with 10 sacks while posting 67 tackles, three forced fumbles, an interception and a pass defensed. He was named an alternate to the Pro Bowl while earning All-Pro honors from USA Today and College & Pro Football Newsweekly, second-team All-Pro honors from the Associated Press and second-team All-NFC honors from Football News. He kicked off the season recording two sacks and a forced fumble at St. Louis (9/6). His forced fumble was returned for a Saints touchdown by Joe Johnson. He again posted two sacks and a forced fumble against Carolina (9/13), and he intercepted his first career pass against New England (10/4). He registered a season-high eight tackles and a sack at Carolina (11/1) before tying that mark with eight tackles, three sacks and a forced fumble against St. Louis (11/15). He earned NFC Defensive Player of the Week honors after totaling four stops and two sacks against Dallas (12/6).

1997: Glover spent the spring playing for the Barcelona Dragons, helping the team to the World League title while earning All-World League honors. He ranked third in the league with 6.5 sacks while totaling 36 stops. He was waived by Oakland Aug. 24 and claimed by New Orleans Aug. 25, where he appeared in 15 games, starting two. He finished 12th on the team with 33 tackles and fourth with 6.5 sacks while also registering a forced fumble, and a fumble recovery. Against San Diego (9/7), he registered three tackles and a fumble recovery. He posted three stops at San Francisco (9/14) before recording his first career sack against Detroit (9/21). He tallied his second sack at Chicago (10/5), and he recorded his best game of the season against San Francisco (10/26) when he registered five tackles and a sack. Against Seattle (11/16), he totaled three tackles, a sack and a pass defensed. He started his first NFL game at Carolina (11/30) and his second in the season finale at Kansas City (12/21).

1996: After being drafted by the Oakland Raiders in the fifth round (166th overall) of the NFL Draft, Glover was inactive for 13 games with the Raiders. He was active but did not play at Chicago (9/29). He saw his first NFL action against Minnesota (11/19) and totaled two tackles. He again saw action at Seattle (11/26) in the defensive line rotation and on special teams.

COLLEGE: Glover was a four-year starter at San Diego State, serving as defensive captain and earning Aztec Outstanding Defensive Lineman honors as a senior after totaling 36 tackles and 4.5 sacks. He was selected to the All-Western Athletic Conference second-team and to the West squad for the East-West Shrine Game. He was a second-team All-WAC selection as a sophomore and honorable mention selection as a freshman.

PERSONAL: Glover was named Cal-Hi Sports first-team, USA Today second-team All-America, San Diego co-Player of the Year, Los Angeles Times Lineman of the Year and CIF Player of the Year as a senior defensive lineman at Point Loma High School in San Diego, Calif. He closed his final prep campaign with 77 tackles, 17.5 sacks, six fumble recoveries, six forced fumbles and three passes defensed. He also earned three letters in track as a shot putter and three letters in wrestling, earning the top heavyweight wrestler ranking in the state of California as a senior. Glover was nominated by teammates for the Saints "Man of the Year" and "Unsung Hero" awards in 1999 and was named Saints Defensive MVP for the 2000 season. He graduated from San Diego State in the spring of 1999 with a double major in public administration and sociology.

COLLEGE: Hambrick transferred from South Carolina to Savannah State as a senior in 1999 and proceeded to lead the Southern Intercollegiate Athletics Conference in scoring (116 points) while finishing third in rushing (1,189 yards on 183 carries – 6.5 avg.). He finished the year with 18 touchdowns while catching 14 passes for 111 yards and a touchdown. He left South Carolina after rushing for 1,526 yards over his three years as a Gamecock to rank 18th on the school's all-time rushing list. In Hambrick's final season at USC, he led the team with 701 rushing yards and four touchdowns on 144 carries (4.9 avg.) while catching 22 passes for 166 yards. As a sophomore, he rushed for 604 yards and five scores on 115 carries (5.3 avg.) to lead the team while posting 18 receptions for 143 yards. While carrying the ball 43 times for 281 yards (6.5 avg.) and five touchdowns as a freshman, Hambrick became the first freshman in South Carolina history to rush for more than 100-yards in consecutive games.

PERSONAL: After rushing for 1,731 yards and 36 touchdowns as a senior at Pasco, Fla., High School, Hambrick was named all-state, to the Florida Super 24 Senior Team and Tampa Tribune Player of the Year. He was also named Sunshine Athletic Conference Player of the Year and played in the Florida-Georgia All-Star Game. Troy's brother is former Cowboys linebacker Darren Hambrick, and his uncle is former major league pitcher Jim "Mudcat" Grant. In 2001 Hambrick joined Cowboys Peppi Zellner and Anthony Wright in the NFL High School Tuesday program, a day that all NFL teams visited a local high school. The group spoke to the R.L. Turner High School football team in Carrollton, Tex. about the importance of setting goals, focusing on education and planning for the future.

GAMES/STARTS: (regular season, playoffs): 1996 (16/15, 3/2-Jax.), 1997 (13/11, 1/1-Jax.), 1998 (16/16, 2/2-Jax.), 1999 (16/16, 2/2-Jax.), 2000 (16/16-Jax.), 2001 (9/9-Jax.). Total – 86/83, 8/7.

PRO: One of the NFL's most talented linebackers, Kevin Hardy developed into a star in 1999, when the former first-round draft choice received All-Pro and Pro Bowl honors for the first time. The recognition came when he tied for sixth in the AFC and 12th in the NFL with career-high 10.5 sacks (leading all AFC linebackers). He joins the Cowboys in 2002 and gives Dallas the kind of all-around defender – a player who can rush the passer, cover receivers and stop the run – the club has been lacking in recent years. From 1998-2000 Hardy was the Jaguars leading tackler, and he finished his Jaguar career with 789 tackles and 28.5 sacks. Hardy averaged 132 tackles a season for his career while starting 83-of-86 games. A durable defender, he had a string of 58 consecutive starts, the longest in Jaguars history, snapped last season when he suffered articular cartilage damage in his left knee in the middle of the season. The first defensive player selected in the 1996 draft, Hardy was the second player taken overall following Keyshawn Johnson.

2001: Hardy moved back to the strong side in 2001 but suffered a knee injury and missed the final seven games of the year. Despite starting just nine games, Hardy finished third on the team with 98 tackles and 5.5 sacks. He opened the season with 12 tackles, a forced fumble and a career-high tying two sacks against Pittsburgh (9/10). Against Tennessee (9/23), Hardy started every defensive play and recorded 11 tackles, two quarterback pressures and a pass defensed. He was second on the team with 17 tackles against Cleveland (9/30) and recorded his second multiple-sack game of the season with two. After recording eight tackles at Seattle (10/7), Hardy led the team with 12 stops against Buffalo (10/18). In his 80th NFL start, Hardy led the team with 15 tackles at Baltimore (10/28) as well as contributing 1.5 sacks and three pressures of Randall Cunningham. Through the first six games of the season, Hardy was tied for second in the AFC with 5.5 sacks. He again led the team with 14 tackles against Cincinnati (11/11). In his last action of the season, Hardy recorded six tackles at Pittsburgh (11/18). He suffered articular cartilage damage in his left knee in practice on Nov. 22 (Thanksgiving Day) and was inactive against Baltimore (11/25), ending his team-record streak of 58 consecutive starts. It was the first time he had missed a start since Dec. 14, 1997 at Buffalo and his first missed game since Nov. 9, 1997 against Kansas City. He was deactivated the next two weeks before being placed on injured reserve Dec. 11.

2000: For the third consecutive year, Hardy started all 16 games and led the team in tackles with 149 (third most in his career), as well as adding three sacks, one interception, five passes defensed, six tackles for losses, 16 passes defensed, two forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries. He led or shared the team lead in tackles in seven games, including the last six, and he recorded 10 or more stops eight times. A true ironman on the field, Hardy played every defensive snap in 11 games and missed just 24 plays all season. He was one of 13 players to receive a game ball for the first shutout in Jaguars' history against Cincinnati (9/17). He recorded the season's first fumble recovery at Indianapolis (9/25). With Lonnie Marts injured, Hardy started at strongside linebacker for the first time since 1997 and led team with a season-high 13 tackles against Pittsburgh (10/1). He stayed at weakside linebacker for the next three games, then moved back to the strongside at Dallas (10/29) with Marts injured, making 11 tackles. Hardy again returned to the weakside and made his first interception of the season (fifth of career) at Pittsburgh (11/19), leading to the team's first touchdown. Hardy recorded his first sack of the season against Tennessee (11/26) – bringing down Steve McNair – as well as a team-leading nine tackles. He again led the team with nine stops and a sack that forced a Spergon Wynn fumble that was recovered by Mike Logan and led to a touchdown against Cleveland (12/3). Hardy then tied for the team lead with six tackles against Arizona (12/10) and followed that performance with a team-high 10 tackle showing at Cincinnati (12/17). He also forced and recovered a fumble by Corey Dillon that led to 7-0 halftime lead for the Jags. In the season finale, Hardy recorded 11 tackles and a sack of Kerry Collins at the N.Y. Giants (12/23).

1999: After setting the stage in 1998, Hardy commanded the spotlight in 1999, garnering consensus All-Pro recognition (Associated Press, Pro Football Writers/Pro Football Weekly, The Sporting News, College & Pro Football Newsweekly, Football News, USA Today and Football Digest) and the starting nod at outside linebacker for the AFC Pro Bowl squad, his first Pro Bowl selection. Hardy earned these honors by leading the team in tackles for the second straight season (153) and leading all AFC linebackers with 10.5 sacks (second in the NFL to Carolina's Kevin Greene with 12.0). His career-high 10.5 sacks tied Hardy for sixth in the AFC and 12th in the NFL. Hardy played every defensive snap in 14 of the 16 games and led or tied for the team lead in tackles in nine games while posting double figure tackle totals seven times. Hardy opened the season with sacks in the first two games: one of 49ers' Steve Young (9/12) and 1.5 of Panthers' Steve Beuerlein (9/19), which equaled his then career-high. In October, he put together a string of four games with a sack (and a defensive game ball), starting against the N.Y. Jets (10/11) with a team-high 15 tackles and a sack of Rick Mirer. The next week against Cleveland (10/17), Hardy sparked a come-back win by recovering Terry Kirby's fumble at the Browns' 25-yard line in the third quarter, setting up the go-ahead touchdown. He also sacked Tim Couch in the fourth quarter and led the team with a season-high 16 tackles. Making it three in a row, Hardy had a team-leading 13 tackles, four quarterback pressures, a sack of Akili Smith and a forced fumble (of Corey Dillon at the Bengals' eight-yard line to set up a touch-down) at Cincinnati (10/31). He recorded the first two-sack game of his career at Atlanta (11/7), downing Chris Chandler twice in the second half. With his performance, Hardy temporarily took over the AFC lead with a career-best 7.5 sacks through eight games, and he finished the game with a team-leading nine tackles. His mid-season sack total topped his previous career-best of 5.5 sacks as a rookie in 1996. In the Jags win at Baltimore (11/28), Hardy made two big plays late in the game, sacking Tony Banks on a third-and-15 play with 1:24 left and then forcing a Banks fumble on the game's final play to seal the win (recovered by Tony Brackens). He sacked Mike Tomczak in the fourth quarter of the Thursday night win over Pittsburgh (12/2). At Cleveland (12/19), Hardy saw action on just eight plays before suffering a neck burner when hit by Tony Brackens. Up to that point, he had missed just one play all season. He returned to the lineup the following week and then recorded the 20th sack of his career with a take-down of Jeff Blake in the season-ending win over Cincinnati (1/2). Hardy recorded a team-high 23 tackles in postseason action, leading the team in stops in both games. He finished with eight tackles and four quarterback pressures in the Divisional Playoff win over Miami (1/15), and then he logged 15 tackles, one forced fumble and one pass defensed in the AFC Championship Game against Tennessee (1/23/00). He forced a Frank Wycheck fumble at the Jaguars' one-yard line in the third quarter to prevent a touchdown.

1998: Hardy started all 16 games for the first time in his career after moving from strongside to weak-side linebacker after the signing of free agent Bryce Paup. He took full advantage of the switch by becoming the Jaguars' leading tackler with a team-record 186 stops, earning honorable mention All-Pro honors by Associated Press. He finished the year with 10 or more tackles in 13 games, as well as both Jacksonville playoff games. He led or tied for the team lead in tackles nine times. For the season, Hardy also recorded 1.5 sacks, two interceptions, seven passes defensed, 10 quarterback pressures, two forced fumbles and one fumble recovery. He started the season on a hot streak, receiving defensive game balls in back-to-back games. The first came at Tennessee (9/27) when he recorded half a sack of Steve McNair, 11 tackles, one pressure, two tackles for a loss and batted down a pass at the line of scrimmage. In the Jags next game – against Miami (10/12) – he logged eight tackles, a pressure and a tackle for a loss. Hardy earned his third defensive game ball of the season at Baltimore (11/1) when he had a career-high 20 tackles (16 solo) – the most tackles by a Jaguar since the team-record 21 by Bryan Schwartz on Dec. 17, 1995 at Detroit. He also forced a Ravens' fumble. Facing Tampa Bay (11/15), Hardy recorded the third interception of his career (off Trent Dilfer), and he followed that two weeks later with his second interception of the season when he picked off a Paul Justin pass at Cincinnati (11/29) to set up a touchdown. He also recovered a Bengals' fumble to earn his fourth defensive game ball of season. Hardy recorded his first full sack of the season when he took down Randall Cunningham at Minnesota (12/20). Hardy continued his outstanding season in the playoffs by leading the team with 33 tackles in two games. In the postseason, he also contributed a sack, two quarterback pressures and a forced fumble. He opened playoff action with 10-tackles, two quarterback pressures and two tackles for a loss in the AFC Wild Card win over New England (1/3/99). Hardy then went out and set a franchise record (postseason or regular season) when he made 23 tackles in the AFC Divisional Playoff Game at the New York Jets (1/10/99). He also recorded the first playoff sack of his career (Vinny Testaverde) and forced a fumble.

1997: Hardy's sophomore campaign was hampered by injuries that forced him to miss three starts and limited his play in several other games. He finished the year with 11 starts at strongside linebacker and saw action in 13 games. Despite all this, he still recorded 73 tackles, 2.5 sacks, five quarterback pressures and three tackles for a loss. His first sack of the year came at Washington (9/28) with a trap of Gus Frerotte (shared with Clyde Simmons). He suffered a sprained medial collateral ligament in his left knee at Dallas (10/19) and did not return. He was then inactive the next three games before returning to the starting lineup at Cincinnati (11/23), where he recorded a sack of Boomer Esiason. Although he did not start in the nickel defense a week later at Baltimore (11/30), he did bring down Eric Zeier for a sack. Beginning at Buffalo (12/14), Hardy saw limited action in several games the remainder of the season because of the injury but did start the wild card playoff game at Denver (12/27), making eight tackles.

1996: Hardy earned consensus all-rookie honors after a debut season that saw him finish third in the NFL among rookies with 5.5 sacks (behind Arizona's Simeon Rice and Jaguars teammate Tony Brackens) and second on the team in tackles with 130. He also shared the team lead with two interceptions. Hardy added seven passes defensed, three tackles for a loss, seven quarterback pressures, two forced fumbles and one fumble recovery in his 15 starts (saw action in all 16 games). Hardy's impact on the NFL was felt right away with a sack and an interception in a season-opening victory over Pittsburgh (9/1). He brought Jim Miller down for a sack in the third quarter and then turned in the game's decisive play with an interception on Mike Tomczak's first play in the fourth quarter with Pittsburgh trailing 17-9 and the ball at their own 44-yard line (the interception set up a 40-yard touchdown drive for a 24-9 lead with 4:49 remaining). He became the first Jaguars defensive rookie to start on opening day. He recorded his second sack in two games (of Chris Chandler) and the team's only one of the game a week later against Houston (9/8). Drew Bledsoe became his third victim when Hardy brought him down at New England (9/22). A pick of the N.Y. Jets Frank Reich (10/13) was the second interception of Hardy's career, and his 13-yard return set up a second-quarter field goal in a 21-17 victory. Hardy's fourth sack of the season came against Baltimore (11/10) with a take-down of Vinny Testaverde. In the Ravens' rematch (11/24), Hardy led the team with a season-high 16 tackles, and he forced an Earnest Byner fumble 4:01 into overtime which set up Mike Hollis' game-winning field goal in a 28-25 victory. With 1.5 sacks of Chris Chandler at Houston (12/8), Hardy recorded the first multiple-sack game of his career. In that contest he also recovered a fumble to stop an Oilers scoring threat just before halftime. Hardy did not start the season finale against Atlanta (12/22) when the club opened in its dime package, ending his streak of 15 consecutive games started. In the Jaguars playoff run, he led the team with 33 tackles. In his first career postseaosn action, he led the team with 12 tackles at Buffalo (12/28). The next week in the Divisional Playoff at Denver (1/4/97), he again led the club with another 12 stops. Hardy did not start in a goal-line defense in the AFC Championship Game at New England (1/12/97) but made eight tackles and forced a fumble in the third quarter to set up a field goal.

COLLEGE: The 1995 winner of the Butkus Award, given annually to the best linebacker in college football, Hardy finished his career ninth on Illinois' career list with 330 tackles, fourth in sacks (18) and fourth with 38 stops behind the line. A consensus All-America and All-Big Ten Conference first-team selection as a senior, Hardy was also a finalist for the Bronko Nagurski Award, starting every game at "drop" linebacker and finishing second on the team with 105 tackles, 11 sacks for minus 103 yards and 15 stops for losses of 115 yards. He also forced five fumbles and tied for the team lead with three interceptions. Hardy recorded 10 or more tackles in five games, including a season-high 18 against Michigan State. He also had a three sack performance against Indiana. As a junior, Hardy was an All-Big Ten selection, recording 80 tackles – including four games with 10 or more tackles. He started all 11 games as a sophomore and finished fourth on the team with 78 tackles. After a redshirt season, Hardy earned freshman All-America selection in 1992, finishing the year third on the team with 67 tackles.

PERSONAL: Kevin Lamont Hardy was a first-team selection by SuperPrep magazine at Harrison High School in Evansville, Ind. As the team's co-captain his senior year, Hardy was also named All-Evansville, City Player of the Year, All-Southern Indiana, Conference and Region Player of the Year. Blackwell commented that Hardy's clothing style is "brilliantly bridging the gap between cutting edge and conservative." In 2000, he was one of three NFL players named to ESPN Magazine's "All-Style team," and in 1999 he wrote an article for the magazine commenting on clothing styles of various professional athletes. GAMES/STARTS (regular season/playoffs): 1999 (13/0, 1/0), 2000 (14/0), 2001 (16/11). Total – 43/11 1/0.

PRO: As a Cowboys success story that started to pay big dividends last year, undrafted free agent Duane (pronounced DUH-wann) Hawthorne blossomed as a starter at left cornerback in his third NFL season. Though slight of frame, Hawthorne ranked among the Cowboys best tacklers in 2001, and the poise and productivity he brought to the Dallas pass defense played a key role in the surprising resurgence of the Dallas defense. Quickness, attitude and a willingness to work hard have helped Hawthorne make the move from starting corner in NFL Europe to a regular role in the Cowboys lineup. Hawthorne originally signed as a rookie free agent and impressed the coaching staff from day one. Filling in for fallen teammates throughout his rookie season (1999), Hawthorne posted three interceptions, the most by a Dallas rookie since another former rookie free agent, Everson Walls (11 in 1981). After returning from the Scottish Claymores of NFL Europe, Hawthorne joined the Cowboys at their 2000 training camp.

2001: One of the many bright spots on the Dallas defense was the play of Hawthorne, who settled into the starting left corner position in Week 6. Hawthorne finished the year as the team's sixth leading tackler with 72 stops, and he was fourth on the squad with 54 solo tackles. Hawthorne played a key role on the Dallas defense that finished the season ranked fourth in the NFL. The Dallas secondary helped limit opponents to 180.6 yards-per-game, which was good for third in the NFL final ranking. After moving into the starting lineup, Hawthorne posted 63 tackles – the fourth highest total on the team over the final 11 games. He closed the year in a tie for second on the team in passes broken up with nine. In his first career start, a 17-3 win over Arizona (10/28), Hawthorne posted a career-high eight tackles and his first interception of the season to end a potential Arizona scoring drive. He also broke up two passes, including a fourth-down pass in the end zone, as the Cardinals were limited to just one pass play over 15 yards. The following week at New York (11/4), he finished with eight tackles and broke up a pass. At Atlanta (11/11), he was third on the team with five tackles and broke up a pass. During that game, the Dallas secondary helped limit the Falcons to 46 net yards passing, the lowest total by a Cowboys' opponent since Sept. 8, 1996 (Giants – 42 yards). In the loss to Philadelphia (11/18), he again recorded five tackles and helped limit the Eagles to 129 total passing yards. For the day, Eagles wide receivers were held to six receptions for 62 yards (10.3 yards/catch). In the Thanksgiving Day loss to Denver (11/22), he registered his second interception of the season to go with five tackles. At Washington (12/2), he recorded five tackles and helped limit the Redskins to 196 net yards passing. In the following week's win over the Giants (12/9), Hawthorne tied for the team lead with a career-high tying eight tackles and helped limit the Giants to 120 net yards passing, including just 49 net yards in the air over their last eight possessions, by breaking up two passes. At Seattle (12/16), he turned in five tackles while helping hold the Seahawks to 139 net yards passing and a 23% conversion rate (3-of-13) on third downs. At Arizona (12/23), Hawthorne had three tackles, a tackle for a loss and a broken up pass while helping limit the Cardinals to 134 net yards passing on 17 catches (8.5 yards-per-catch). In that game, the Dallas secondary limited NFL receiving yards leader David Boston to 26 yards on three receptions. In the surprising Dallas win over San Francisco (12/30), Hawthorne totaled five tackles and broke up a pass while helping limit the 49ers to 229 net yards passing, including just 149 through three quarters. He closed the season with a six tackle performance at Detroit (1/6/02).

2000: Hawthorne spent the spring starting at cornerback for the Scottish Claymores in NFL Europe, where he earned co-defensive MVP honors and tied for the league lead with four interceptions. He was a key part of a Claymores defense that led the league in pass defense on their way to a 6-4 regular season record and a berth in the World Bowl. After playing a full spring of NFL Europe, he was slowed a bit by fatigue, but managed to show coaches he still had the ability to deliver big-play dividends. He returned to the Cowboys and saw limited playing time in 14 games. At Arizona (9/10), Hawthorne forced a fumble on a Cardinals' kickoff return. He tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles at Carolina (10/1). He was deactivated against Jacksonville (10/29) and at Philadelphia (11/5), but he returned to the field against Cincinnati (11/12) and saw fourth quarter action in dime packages while recording two special teams tackles on kickoff coverage units. Against Washington (12/10), he recorded a special teams tackle and helped limit the Redskins to a 17.9 yard average on eight kickoff returns. He broke up a third down pass to force a punt and added a special teams tackle against the N.Y. Giants (12/17).

1999: The only rookie free agent to make the Cowboys roster coming out of training camp, Hawthorne went on to tie for second on the team with three interceptions. His three interceptions were the most by a Dallas rookie since 1981 when Everson Walls recorded 11 and Michael Downs had 7. Playing primarily in the Cowboys nickel and dime packages, Hawthorne recorded 27 tackles and broke up seven passes. The season started slowly for Hawthorne, who saw his first NFL action in the season opener at Washington (9/12), recording a special teams tackle. Hawthorne would make a name for himself off the Arizona Cardinals before the year was over. In the first meeting with Arizona (10/3), Hawthorne recorded his first career interception by picking off a Jake Plummer pass in the third quarter while also adding three tackles on the day. After watching from the sidelines the next two weeks as a game-day deactivation, Hawthorne found his way onto the field at Indianapolis (10/31) in the nickel package and recorded one tackle. Against Green Bay (11/14), he recorded two special teams tackles and helped limit the Packers to two punt returns for no yards and four kickoff returns for a 16.0-yard average. Hawthorne fed off the Cardinals again in November when Dallas traveled to Arizona (11/21), seeing considerable action at cornerback when Kevin Smith was forced from the game with a hamstring injury. He responded with his second interception of the season, along with three tackles and a game-high three passes defensed as the Cardinals were limited to 105 yards passing and 207 total yards. With Smith still out of the lineup on Thanksgiving, Hawthorne saw time at cornerback against Miami (11/25) and recorded his third interception of the season, picking off a Dan Marino delivery, along with three tackles. Hawthorne took over in the nickel defense against Philadelphia (12/12) when Kevin Mathis was lost in the first quarter with a sprained knee and went on to record three tackles – helping limit the Eagles to 143 passing yards. With Smith and Mathis out with injuries, Hawthorne recorded a season-high five tackles at New Orleans (12/24). In the season finale against the N.Y. Giants (1/2/00), he recorded four tackles and helped limit the Giants starting wide receivers, Amani Toomer and Ike Hilliard, to seven receptions for 72 yards on the day.

COLLEGE: Hawthorne finished his career at Northern Illinois with nine interceptions. As a senior, he was the team's fifth leading tackler with 65, while adding 10 passes defensed and four interceptions. As a junior, Hawthorne earned All-MAC honors after leading the team with three interceptions and five passes defensed. He was nominated for MAC Player of the Week honors after registering two interceptions and five tackles against North Carolina State. As a sophomore, Hawthorne was second on the team with two interceptions and seven pass deflections while recording 40 tackles. As a freshman, Hawthorne totaled eight tackles, forced a fumble and deflected a pass in only eight snaps against third ranked Florida.

PERSONAL: A physical education major, Hawthorne was the team MVP, all-Suburban East Conference, all-district and all-metro as a senior at Ladue High School in St. Louis, Mo. A two-way star, he completed 44-of-91 passes for 811 yards and six touchdowns and rushed for 748 yards and four touchdowns on 64 carries as a quarterback while totaling 102 tackles, seven passes defensed and five interceptions as a cornerback his senior season. He lettered three times in football, twice in track and once in basketball while winning the conference 400-meters and running on the 4x400 relay team. Hawthorne once again joined several members of the Cowboys' secondary for the third Annual Dallas Cowboys/United Way Hometown Huddle – a day of community service involving all 31 NFL teams volunteering for United Way. Along with Cowboys' teammates, Hawthorne invited children from various United Way agencies to participate in a Dallas Cowboys/Gatorade Junior Training Camp.

Pete Hunter

Defensive Back

Virginia Union
NFL: Rookie ★ Cowboys: Rookie

COLLEGE: The dark horse in the battle for playing time in the Dallas secondary in 2002 may just be Pete Hunter. The Cowboys fifth round draft choice (168th overall), Hunter blended his outstanding size (6-2, 202-pounds), speed (4.34 40-yard dash) and smarts (honor student who graduated in May with a degree in criminal justice) into a versatile playmaker at Virginia Union. After arriving in Richmond, Va., as a wide receiver, Hunter moved to cornerback as a freshman before finding a home at safety as a sophomore, finishing his collegiate career with 20 interceptions. Hunter was a three-time All-CIAA honoree as a safety and was selected to the American Football Coaches Association All-America squad as a senior. An outstanding special teams player, he left college with ten career blocked punts, field goals and PATs.

2001: As a senior, Hunter made the move from free safety to strong safety, giving him the opportunity to captain the defense and make the calls in the secondary. As with his earlier career move, Hunter excelled immediately. A preseason All-America selection by Street and Smith Magazine, he went on to justify those honors by leading the CIAA conference with 11 interceptions in 11 games. He finished fifth on the Panthers with 50 tackles and had a team-high 13 passes defensed. On top of all that, his play on special teams included a conference-high six blocked kicks. Against North Carolina Central, Hunter proved to be a nightmare in the kicking game, blocking a field goal attempt and a punt that he returned three yards for a touchdown in the Panthers 26-14 win. With two interceptions against Winston-Salem in the CIAA Championship Game, he helped the Panthers capture the conference title, to avenge the 2000 title-game loss to the Rams and earn Virginia Union a spot in the Pioneer Bowl. Despite an outstanding performance by Hunter, including his 11th interception of the season, the Panthers fell to Tuskegee in postseason action. Following the season, Hunter was named to the American Football Coaches Association All-America team as well as his third consecutive selection to the CIAA All-Conference team. He was selected to participate in the Division II Cactus Bowl and the Hula Bowl Maui All-Star Classic following the season.

2000: In his second season manning the free safety position in the Virginia Union secondary, Hunter finished third on the team with 52 tackles, including nine for losses. A force at getting the ball away from his opponent, Hunter was second on the team with three interceptions – one returned for a touchdown – and three fumble recoveries. He led the team with 13 passes defensed. The Panthers posted an 8-3 record but fell to Winston-Salem in the conference championship game.

1999: Hunter moved from cornerback to free safety and hit the ground running. He led the team with six interceptions for 133 yards in returns. He also broke up 10 passes and recovered two fumbles. Virginia Union posted an 8-2 record behind Hunter's 40 tackles and two sacks. On special teams, he demonstrated the first glimpse of his talents with three blocked kicks.

1998: Hunter saw limited playing time in three games at cornerback as a freshman. He recorded four stops and two tackles for losses.

PERSONAL: An honor student at Atlantic City, NJ, High School, Ralph Everette Hunter went on to earn similar honors and his degree in criminal justice at Virginia Union. While in Richmond, he was also a member of the school's Student Athlete Advisory Council. He was selected to the CIAA-All Community Works team for his efforts with the K-8 grades as a substitute teacher and volunteer in the After School program when at home. Pete's mother, Carol Derrick, is a casino dealer in Atlantic City.

Chad Hutchinson

Quarterback

Stanford
NFL: Rookie ★ Cowboys: Rookie

PRO: One of the most intriguing newcomers to the Dallas Cowboys roster in 2002 will be quarterback Chad Hutchinson. After a long courtship, Hutchinson signed a football only, seven-year contract on Jan. 26 to return to the sport he loves. The starting quarterback at Stanford for two seasons (1996-97), Hutchinson spent the last four years (1998-2001) as a starting pitcher in the St. Louis Cardinals organization, reaching the major leagues briefly in 2001. A two-year starter for the Stanford football team (1996-97) and three-year starting pitcher for the baseball team (1996-98), Hutchinson completed 379-of-627 (60.4%) of his passes for 4,235 yards, 20 touchdowns and 22 interceptions. He left Stanford ranked seventh all-time in passing, fifth in career completion percentage, seventh in career completions, eighth in career attempts, ninth in total offense and 11th in career touchdown passes. In three years on the mound for the Cardinals, Hutchinson compiled a career record of 25-11 and stands eighth all-time at Stanford in wins and sixth in strikeouts with 299. His career ERA was 4.80. He helped lead the team to the Pac-10 Southern Division championship in 1997 and 1998. The Atlanta Braves originally chose Hutchinson in the first round of the 1995 Major League Baseball Draft, but he turned down their contract offer to enroll at Stanford. He signed a professional baseball contract with the St. Louis Cardinals in July 1998 after being chosen in the second round of the Major League Baseball Draft, leaving with two years of football eligibility remaining. Over four seasons in the Cardinals organization, he moved between Class A and Class AAA ball, compiling a 17-25 record and a 5.63 ERA.

2001: Hutchinson spent most of the season with Memphis (AAA) of the Pacific Coast League, posting a 4-9 record and a 7.92 ERA in 20 starts. He recorded 111 strikeouts in 97.2 innings and had a three game winning streak in July. He opened the season on the major league roster in St. Louis before being sent down to Memphis on April 22, pitching 4.0 innings in three appearances.

2000: Hutchinson struggled through an injury-plagued campaign in which he split time between Memphis (AAA) and Arkansas (AA). He pitched just 56.1 innings on the year, but recorded 63 strikeouts and ranked eighth in the Cardinals organization with 10.1 strikeouts-per-nine innings pitched. He opened the season at Memphis, but got off to a tough start before being sent to Arkansas. He pitched well in eight starts for the Travelers, allowing just one unearned run over 18.0 innings in one stretch, before being shelved with elbow problems for more than two months. He returned to pitch three games at season's end and recorded 15 strikeouts and just three walks in 11.0 innings pitched. He then played for the Scottsdale Scorpions in the Arizona Fall League.

1999: Hutchinson completed his first full professional season with a combined 9-11 mark between Arkansas (AA) and Memphis (AAA). He spent the bulk of the season at Arkansas of the Texas League, where he was 7-11 with a 4.72 ERA in 25 starts. Hutchinson tied for the Travelers' team lead in wins (seven) and finished second in the loop with 150 strikeouts in 141.0 innings pitched. He struck out 10 or more in three of his starts and was involved in three combined shutouts. He allowed just one hit and fanned 11 in 8.0 innings pitched during a win at Shreveport (8/6), which led to his selection as Texas League Pitcher of the Week for the week ending Aug. 8. Hutchinson was promoted to Memphis on Aug. 27 and made two starts for the Redbirds, going 2-0 with a 2.19 ERA. He earned a win at Vancouver by striking out 11 in six innings. He was recalled by the Cardinals on Sept. 27 but did not appear in any games.

1998: Selected 48th overall in the June free-agent draft, Hutchinson signed a minor league contract on June 23 and began his professional career at the Cardinals' Class-A New Jersey club, posting an 0-1 record in three starts. He recorded a 5:1 (20:4) strikeout-to-walk ratio at New Jersey and was promoted to Prince William on Aug. 15. He made five starts for the Cannons, going 2-0 with a 2.79 ERA and earned his first professional win against Salem on Aug. 21 when he pitched six innings and allowed two solo homers with a walk and six strikeouts.

1997: Hutchinson started all 11 games at quarterback for Stanford, completing 189-of-315 passes for 2,101 yards, 10 touchdowns and 10 interceptions. He threw four touchdown passes in the Cardinal's 58-49 win over Oregon, tying him with five others for eighth on the school's single-game chart. In the Oregon game, he completed 21-of-31 passes for a season-high 340 yards and no interceptions. His other 300-yard game came in the season opener when he completed 18-of-36 passes for 302 yards and one touchdown against San Jose State. He saw just one play at Washington State before injuring his thumb. He returned the next week to complete 84.0% of his passes (21-of-25) for 194 yards and a touchdown against Cal in the Big Game. As a junior, Hutchinson went 10-5, collecting 115 strikeouts in 99.1 innings for the Stanford baseball team.

1996: In his second year with the Cardinal football team, Hutchinson was named Stanford's starting quarterback just four days before the season opener against Utah. He finished the season 190-of-312 for 2,134 yards, 10 touchdowns and 12 interceptions. His best game of the year came in the 38-0 Sun Bowl win over Michigan State, where he earned Most Valuable Player honors by completing 22-of-28 passes for 226 yards and a touchdown. During Stanford's five game wining streak at the end of the season, he completed 95-of-142 passes (67.0%) for 1,050 yards and seven touchdowns. In his first collegiate game, Hutchinson went 23-for-40 for 265 yards, one touchdown and one interception. He was 17-of-20 for 183 yards and a touchdown against San Jose State in leading Stanford to its first win of the season. Win number two came against Oregon in overtime, a 27-24 decision in which he completed 27-of-41 passes for a career-high 365 yards and a touchdown. He suffered a sprained thumb in week seven against Arizona State, causing him to miss practice the week leading up to the UCLA game. He came back, however, to start and guide Stanford on a 10-play, 80-yard drive in the final minutes to pull off a 21-20 win over the Bruins. Hutchinson was seven-of-seven on the drive, which culminated on a 10-yard touchdown pass with 0:58 remaining in the game.

1995: Hutchison was redshirted in football as a freshman. He was a first-team Freshman All-America and honorable mention All-Pac 10 in the spring of 1996 when he compiled a 7-2 record and a 3.51 ERA for the Cardinal baseball team. He was Stanford's number two starter in the pitching rotation and finished fourth in the Pac-10 in ERA and tied for sixth with 70 strikeouts. He was among the league leaders in innings pitched (84.2), complete games (4) and strikeouts per-nine-innings (7.5). He helped Stanford finish with a 41-19 overall record, a second place Pac-10 finish and an appearance in the NCAA West Regional.

PERSONAL: Chad Martin Hutchinson graduated from Torrey Pines High School in Encinitas, Calif., where he played baseball and football. He earned the Gatorade California Baseball Player of the Year award as a senior and was ranked as the nation's top high school prospect. PRO: In three years with the Cowboys, Raghib "Rocket" Ismail (Rah-GIBB ISS-my-ell) has met the lofty expectations that accompanied his arrival as a free agent, and he has demonstrated on numerous occasions the game breaking ability that earned him his nickname. Signed as an unrestricted free agent on April 15, 1999, he immediately filled a void at speed receiver for the Dallas offense. In 2000 the Cowboys traded for Joey Galloway, creating, arguably, the fastest tandem of starting receivers in the NFL. The 2001 season was the first chance the rest of the league had to witness their fast break game as both receivers sustained season-ending knee injuries during the 2000 season. The duo overcame that setback and became the first pair of Cowboys wide receivers to each have 50 catches in a single season (Ismail – 53 receptions, Galloway – 52) since 1985, when Tony Hill (74) and Mike Renfro (60) accomplished the feat. It also marked the first time Dallas has had two players (at any position) with 50 catches in the same season since 1995, when Michael Irvin (111), Jay Novacek (62) and Emmitt Smith (62) accomplished the feat. Ismail has shown consistent improvement since coming into his own with Carolina in 1997, posting career-high figures for receptions and yardage for three consecutive years: 36 receptions for 419 yards in 1997, 69 for 1,024 in 1998 and 80 for 1,097 in 1999. The most surprising aspect of Ismail's game has been his evolution as the club's go-to receiver, having led or tied for the team lead in receptions in 23 of his 39 career games with Dallas. He also had recorded a catch in 53 consecutive regular season games before suffering his knee injury in 2000.

2001: Ismail bounced back from a season-ending knee injury that cut short his 2000 season by leading the team in receptions (53) and receiving yards (834). His 15.7 yards-per-catch average was the 10th best in the NFL (seventh in the NFC) and was boosted by three of the six longest pass receptions on the club in 2001. Eight times in the 14 games he played he led or tied for the team lead in receptions, including seven consecutive games from Week 8-14 – one game shy of the club record he shares with Michael Irvin. In the season opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), Ismail returned to the starting line-up for the first time since his season-ending knee injury in 2000 and recorded two carries for three yards but did not record a catch. He made up for that against San Diego (9/23) by recording two receptions for 83 yards, including a career-long 80-yard touchdown reception, but his day was cut short when he suffered a sprained MCL in his right knee in the second quarter. He missed the following two weeks but returned to action in mid-October and found his groove, recording 51 receptions for 751 yards in the final 12 games – an average of 4.3 receptions and 63 yards-per-game – and leading or tying for the team lead in receptions eight times. His first game back was against Washington (10/15), and he recorded three receptions for 50 yards, including an 18-yard grab on the game-winning field goal drive. He also took over the punt return duties for the first time in his NFL career after Reggie Swinton and Joey Galloway were injured, recording a 20-yard return on his first attempt. Ismail began a string of seven consecutive games leading or tying for the team lead in receptions with the club's first 100-yard receiving day of the season (107 yards) on six catches at the N.Y. Giants (11/4). At Atlanta (11/11), he led the team with five receptions for 62 yards, including a game-long 30-yard catch, and his five receptions for 57 yards against Philadelphia (11/18) was again a team-high. Ismail stretched his string to five with team-highs of six receptions and 84 receiving yards against Denver (11/22), including four for 71 yards in the Cowboys 21-point fourth quarter. The streak stayed intact with three receptions for 93 yards, including a 64-yard touchdown catch behind Champ Bailey mid-way through the fourth quarter to put Dallas up 17-7, at Washington (12/2). That catch also put him over the 5,000 yard mark for career receiving yards. He extended his streak to seven consecutive games with a career-high 10 catches for a season-high 118 yards against the N.Y. Giants (12/9). His 10 receptions were the most by a Dallas receiver since Michael Irvin had 12 catches at Miami Oct. 27, 1996. It was also Ismail's second 100-yard receiving game of the year. The streak came to an end at Seattle (12/16) when he was limited to three receptions for 24 yards. He also added two carries for 20 yards, his best rushing output of the season. A blow to the head in the second quarter at Arizona (12/23) limited his playing time against the Cardinals, but he bounced back in the Cowboys surprising win over San Francisco (12/30) with three receptions for 46 yards, including 19- and 18-yard receptions on the Cowboys first touchdown drive. Closing out the season, Ismail led the team with four receptions for 71 yards at Detroit (1/6/02).

2000: Ismail was off to another productive season, posting 25 receptions for 350 yards and a touchdown while carrying the ball eight times for 73 yards, before his season came to an abrupt end in Week 10 when he tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee. He opened the season against Philadelphia (9/3) by catching two passes for 36 yards while posting the longest rush of his career, a 37-yarder on an end around. He registered five receptions for 69 yards at Arizona (9/10), and he tied for the team lead with three catches for 65 yards at Washington (9/18), including receptions of 44 and 15 yards on the Cowboys fourth quarter, game-winning touchdown drive. He also carried the ball twice for 30 yards against the Redskins. He caught two passes for 38 yards against San Francisco (9/24) before leaving the game with a sprained left ankle in the second half. The next week at Carolina (10/1), he posted three receptions for 25 yards, including the 300th reception of his career, before leaving the game in the third quarter with a right calf contusion. He tallied two catches for 14 yards at the N.Y. Giants (10/15), and he posted his only touchdown catch of the season on a 24-yard grab against Arizona (10/22). He finished the Cardinals game with two receptions for 46 yards and one rush for 11 yards, with all three touches resulting in first downs. He tied his season-high with five receptions for 57 yards against Jacksonville (10/29), with four of his catches giving Dallas a first down. Ismail saw his streak of consecutive games with a reception snapped at 53 at Philadelphia (10/29) when he tore the ACL in his right knee while blocking for Emmitt Smith on a first quarter run. Ismail underwent reconstructive surgery to repair the knee on Nov. 7 and was placed on injured reserve Nov. 8.

1999: In the spring of 1999, Ismail joined the Dallas Cowboys and finished the year as the team's leader in receptions and yardage with career-best totals of 80 catches – eighth best in the NFC – for 1,097 yards – 11th in the NFC. In compiling those numbers, he became the first person other than Michael Irvin to lead the team in receiving since Kelvin Martin in 1990. In addition to his receiving milestones, Ismail also had career-highs in rushing with 13 carries for 110 yards. He led, or tied for the team lead, in receptions in 13-of-17 games, including eight consecutive games at mid-season, tying Michael Irvin's club record. He was also second on the team with six touchdown receptions. Ismail tied for seventh in the NFC, 12th in the NFL, with 25 receptions on third down, 12 of which gave Dallas a first down – leading the team in third down conversion receptions. In his first game as a Dallas Cowboy, Ismail provided the game-winning 76-yard touchdown reception in overtime at Washington (9/12). The touchdown reception from Troy Aikman capped a Dallas comeback that saw the Cowboys erase a 35-14 fourth quarter deficit and was a career-long catch for Ismail. The game winning score marked the second longest overtime touchdown pass and the fifth longest overtime scoring play in NFL history. Ismail led the team with a season-high eight receptions for a career-high 149 yards. The following week against Atlanta (9/20), he hauled in a game-long 38-yard reception in the first quarter on third-and-13 to set up a Smith touchdown run. Ismail suffered a sprained left shoulder on the play, but he returned to action in the second half. Against Arizona (10/3), Ismail recorded his second 100-yard receiving game of the season with four receptions for 101 yards, including a 63-yard touchdown catch. He also had two carries on end arounds, good for 14 yards. At Philadelphia (10/10), he led the team with seven receptions for 88 yards, including a game-long 25-yard catch. He also picked up a first down with a 17-yard end around run. In a Monday night loss at the N.Y. Giants (10/18), three of Ismail's four catches gave Dallas a first down, including two on third down. He ended the night with 74 yards on four catches. Against Washington (10/24), he once again led the team with six receptions for 76 yards, including a 13-yard touchdown catch on the game's opening possession. He also had a 19-yard run on an end around. In a Monday night loss at Minnesota (11/8), Ismail led the team with seven receptions for 63 yards, including a 24-yard grab. The following week against Green Bay (11/14), he scored on a 37-yard touchdown reception, while leading the team with six receptions for 86 yards. In the Thanksgiving Day win over Miami (11/25), Ismail provided the game breaking play with a 65-yard touchdown pass from Aikman that gave Dallas a 17-0 lead midway through the fourth quarter. He also had a 51-yard catch in the fourth quarter to finish the game with five receptions for 125 yards. All of his Thanksgiving Day heroics came after suffering a first quarter concussion that forced him to miss the entire second quarter. Ismail tied his season-high with eight catches for 58 yards at New England (12/5). The following week against Philadelphia (12/12), he tied for the team lead in catches with four for a game-high 52 yards, tying Michael Irvin's club record for leading or tying for the team lead in receptions for eight straight games. Against the N.Y. Jets (12/19), Ismail registered his first rushing touchdown since 1996 with a season-long 27-yard scamper for a score on an end around. The Jets went on to hold Ismail to just one reception, ending his club-record tying streak of eight consecutive games where he led or tied for the team lead in receptions. His one catch against the Jets gave him a career-best total of 70 receptions for the season while also putting him over the 1,000-yard receiving barrier for the year. In the playoff clinching win over the N.Y. Giants (1/2/00), Ismail led the team with seven receptions for 62 yards, including his sixth touchdown catch of the season. He capped his most productive career year by providing an outstanding performance in the Cowboys wild card playoff loss at Minnesota (1/9/00), tying his career-best figure for receptions with eight while accounting for a career-high 163 yards (20.4 avg.). In the loss, Ismail posted catches of 45, 30, 25 and 24 yards, and seven of his eight catches gave Dallas a first down, including four on third down. His 163 yards was the second best receiving yardage total in Dallas postseason history, and the eight receptions tied for the fifth best total in the club's postseason history.

1998: Ismail was the Panthers leading receiver with 69 catches for 1,024 yards (14.8 average) and eight touchdowns. He also had three rushes for 42 yards. His totals established then team single-season records for receptions and receiving yards, surpassing records previously held by Muhsin Muhammad (68 in 1998) and Mark Carrier (1,002 yards in 1995), while his eight touchdown catches ranked as the second-highest total in team history. Ismail led the team in catches in seven games and tied for the lead in two others while posting three 100-yard receiving games. In the season opener against Atlanta (9/6), Ismail provided a glimpse of what the 1998 season would hold when he caught a team-high six passes for 119 yards, including a 56-yarder for a touchdown. The next week at New Orleans (9/13), he moved into the starting lineup for the injured Rae Carruth (foot) and caught two passes for 12 yards. Against Green Bay (9/27), Ismail led the team with six catches for 71 yards, including a five-yard touchdown. He came back the next week to tie for team-high honors with six catches for 82 yards at Atlanta (10/4). When the Panthers traveled to Dallas (10/11), Ismail led the team with six catches for 117 yards and two touchdowns, marking his second 100-yard receiving contest of the season. His two touchdowns matched his personal best for touchdowns in a game. Ismail caught five passes for 62 yards at Tampa Bay (10/18) and four for 49 yards against Buffalo (10/25). He also added his first carry of the season against the Bills, picking up one yard. With 45 yards receiving against New Orleans (11/1), Ismail surpassed his previous career-high for receiving yards in a season of 513 set in 1994 with Oakland. He finished the day with two receptions, including a 33-yard catch. At San Francisco (11/8), Ismail posted what was then a single-game career-high seven catches for 83 yards, including a 20-yard touchdown reception. He then posted games with five catches for 50 yards against Miami (11/15) and a team-high six catches for 58 yards at St. Louis (11/22). His only catch at the N.Y. Jets (11/29) went for a team season-long 62 yards and set up the Panthers first touchdown. Against the 49ers (12/6), Ismail put on a big-play performance, recording a 40-yard touchdown catch – his longest scoring play of the season – to bring the Panthers back into the game at 28-21 and a career-long 36-yard reverse that set up the game-tying touchdown. After injuring his knee in the fourth quarter after a one catch (16 yards), one carry (five yards) game against Washington (12/13), Ismail returned to the lineup with a team-high five catches for 42 yards against St. Louis (12/20). In the season finale at Indianapolis (12/27), Ismail led the team and matched his career-high with seven catches for 109 yards, including a five-yard touchdown that gave Carolina a 27-19 victory.

1997: Ismail recorded 36 receptions for 419 yards and two touchdowns in addition to registering four rushes for 32 yards. He began the season as a reserve, recording two receptions for 17 yards against Washington (8/31) and two for 25 at Atlanta (9/7), before logging two receptions for 21 yards and an 11-yard reverse in his first start of the season, at San Diego (9/14). Moving back into a reserve role, he posted one catch for 12 yards against Kansas City (9/21), four for 19 yards, including an eight-yard touchdown, against San Francisco (9/29), two for 21 yards at Minnesota (10/12) and one for seven at New Orleans (10/19). Ismail tallied two catches for 24 yards against Atlanta (10/26) and five receptions for 43 yards, including three third-down conversions, against Oakland (11/2). At St. Louis (11/23), Ismail recorded a 59-yard touchdown catch among five receptions for 93 yards before moving up with 102 yards on six receptions against New Orleans (11/30) in his second start of the year. Included in that Saints contest was a critical 36-yard reception on fourth down and an 18-yard reverse. He left the contest in the fourth quarter with a right SC joint sprain, however, and was inactive for the season's final three games.

1996: Joining the Panthers via a trade with Oakland on Aug. 25 (for a 1997 fifth-round draft choice), Ismail displayed his big-play capability, notching a 35-yard touchdown on a reverse against the Giants (11/10) and totaling 108 yards receiving at Atlanta (11/3). Ismail gained 214 yards on 12 catches for the season to lead the team in average yards-per-catch with 17.8, and posted 80 yards and a touchdown on eight rushes. Inactive with a left ankle sprain against Atlanta (9/1) and at New Orleans (9/8), Ismail saw his first action as a Panther against San Francisco (9/22), notching one catch for 12 yards. He played as a reserve at Jacksonville (9/29), posted no yards on a kickoff return reverse at Minnesota (10/6) and had a 17-yard run against St. Louis (10/13). He did not play against New Orleans (10/20), and saw substitute action without a reception at Philadelphia (10/27). He moved into the starting lineup at Atlanta (11/3) in a three-wideout set and posted 108 yards on five receptions. The following week against the Giants (11/10), he recorded one reception for 30 yards, and his 35-yard reverse for a touchdown notched the Panthers initial score. His 35-yard touchdown gallop was the longest rush from scrimmage by a Panther all season, and it was the longest touchdown run in the NFL by a wide receiver in 1996. At St. Louis (11/17), he started at wide receiver and ran a career-high three times for 24 yards, had one reception for nine yards and subbed at kick returner, collecting one return for 16 yards. At Houston (11/24), he started and returned three kickoffs for 70 yards. Ismail gained seven yards on a reverse and returned one kickoff 14 yards in substitute action against Tampa Bay (12/1) before collecting two receptions for 40 yards and one rush for one yard as a starter at San Francisco (12/8). He was a reserve against Baltimore (12/15), with one catch for nine yards and started against Pittsburgh (12/22), collecting one reception for six yards. In substitute action in both Panthers playoff games, Ismail had one reverse for seven yards against Dallas (1/5/97) and a 24-yard reception at Green Bay (1/12/97) in the NFC Championship Game.

1995: Ismail played in all 16 games with 15 starts for the Oakland Raiders, leading the team in kickoff returns with 36 for 706 yards in addition to 28 catches for 491 yards and three touchdowns. He also rushed six times for 29 yards. He caught a season-high five passes for 71 yards at Washington (9/10) and posted a then career-best 125 yards on three receptions, two for touchdowns, including a season-long 73-yarder against Indianapolis (10/22).

1994: Ismail played in all 16 games for the L.A. Raiders, ranking third on the team with 34 catches for 513 yards and five touchdowns. He was the Raiders leading kickoff returner with 43 returns for 923 yards in addition to four rushes for 31 yards. He caught a season-high six passes for 77 yards against Seattle (9/11) and caught two touchdowns at San Diego (12/5).

1993: In his first NFL season, Ismail led the AFC in kickoff returns with a 24.2-yard average on 25 attempts for 605 yards, including a 66-yard return at Cincinnati (11/28), the longest return in the AFC all season. He was fifth on the team in receiving yards with 353 on 26 receptions. His first NFL touchdown came at Kansas City (10/3), a 43-yard reception among four catches for 75 yards. Ismail signed with the Raiders on Aug. 30 after two seasons with the CFL's Toronto Argonauts.

1992: In his second season in the CFL, Ismail posted his second all-star performance for the Toronto Argonauts, placing first in the league in kickoff returns with 1,139 yards on 43 returns (26.5 avg.). He ranked second in the CFL with 2,767 total yards, including 36 receptions for 651 yards and four touchdowns and 154 yards and three touchdowns on 34 rushing attempts. He also had 614 yards on 59 punt returns (10.4 avg.).

1991: In his first season as a professional, Ismail earned all-star honors as a kick returner and All-CFL honors as a receiver after becoming just the second player in CFL history to post over 3,000 combined yards. He accumulated the total on: 64 receptions for 1,300 yards (20.3 avg.) and nine touchdowns; 36 rushing attempts for 271 yards and three touchdowns; 48 punt returns for 602 yards (12.5 avg.) and one touchdown; and 31 kickoff returns for 786 yards (25.4 avg.). He posted a season-high 87-yard touchdown catch against Hamilton and had six 100-yard receiving efforts. Leading his team to the CFL Championship, Ismail scored in each of two postseason contests – on a 75-yard punt return in the conference final against Winnipeg and on an 87-yard kickoff return in the Grey Cup against Calgary en route to Championship Game MVP honors. Ismail was originally a 1991 fourth-round selection (100th overall) by the Raiders.

COLLEGE: Ismail was an All-America selection his sophomore and junior seasons at Notre Dame and finished second in the 1990 Heisman Trophy balloting following his junior year. During his college career, he averaged 15.3 yards from scrimmage, 27.6 yards on kickoff returns and 61.8 yards-per-touchdown play. His career average of 22.0 yards-per-reception set a school record while his five career kickoff returns for touchdowns ranked one shy of the NCAA record. He returned kickoffs for touchdowns of 89 and 92 yards against Michigan in 1989 as a sophomore and had two kickoff returns for touchdowns against Rice as a freshman to become the first player in NCAA history to return two kickoffs for touchdowns in two separate games. As a junior, Ismail ranked ninth in the nation, averaging 156.9 all-purpose yards and led the Irish with 32 receptions for 699 yards and two touchdowns in addition to ranking third in rushing with 537 yards and three touchdowns on 67 carries. He had two games with over 170 yards receiving in addition to crossing the 100-yard rushing mark in two contests. As a sophomore, Ismail averaged 135.7 all-purpose yards with 27 receptions for 535 yards and 478 rushing yards on 64 carries. He was named MVP of the Orange Bowl after rushing for 108 yards, including a 35-yard touchdown, against Colorado in a 21-6 win. As a freshman, Ismail was part of a Fighting Irish national championship team, leading the nation in kickoff return average with a 36.1-yard average on 12 returns with two touchdowns. Ismail was also a standout sprinter on the Notre Dame track team, winning the conference indoor title in the 55-meters in 1989 and placing second in the men's 200-meter outdoor event.

GAMES/STARTS: 2000 (3/0), 2001 (0/0). Totals (3/0).

PRO: The Dallas Cowboys landed a quality, young offensive lineman when they signed Alcender Jackson following the 2000 NFL Draft. His tenacity and versatility so impressed coaches during preseason action that he was the only rookie free agent to make the squad straight out of training camp. While he saw limited playing time as a rookie, he gained valuable experience working alongside veterans Larry Allen and Flozell Adams on a daily basis in practice. To make up for his lack of experience, Jackson will gain extensive playing time for the Rhein Fire of NFL Europe this spring.

2002: Jackson finished the NFLEL season garnering All-NFLEL team honors at guard as he helped fellow honoree and teammate Jamal Robertson finish third among running backs with 792 yards and eight touchdowns on 151 carries. The Fire led all NFLEL teams with 1,513 rushing yards enroute to a World Bowl appearance.

2001: Jackson was inactive for all 16 games in his role as a reserve guard.

2000: After seeing action at both right and left guard in preseason, Jackson was deactivated the first 10 weeks of the season. He was active but did not play against Minnesota (11/23) and then deactivated again at Tampa Bay (12/3). Jackson saw his first NFL action when he moved into the lineup at right guard for Solomon Page – who moved to right tackle when Erik Williams suffered a neck strain – against Washington (12/10). Jackson played the entire second half as Emmitt Smith rushed for 150 yards and a touchdown against the NFL's third ranked defense. In all, the Cowboys ran for 242 yards on the day, the most by the Dallas offense since recording 271 yards on the ground at Philadelphia on Oct. 31, 1993. Jackson also saw action at right tackle on the game's final drive at Tennessee (12/25).

COLLEGE: A three-year starter at LSU, Jackson spent his final two seasons at left guard after a sophomore season at tackle. As a senior, Jackson helped the Tigers average over 300 yards-per-game on offense. He started his junior season at left guard but missed the final four games with a sprained knee. During his play, he helped Kevin Faulk rush for 1,279 yards and 12 touchdowns. Jackson moved into the starting lineup at left tackle his sophomore season, and his blocking led the way for Faulk to rush for 1,144 yards and 15 touchdowns. Jackson's work helped LSU average 410.6 total yards-per-game while recording a 9-3 record to end the year ranked No. 13 in the final Associated Press and USA Today polls.

PERSONAL: Alcender O'Neal Jackson was a member of the USA Today All-USA team and the Jackson Clarion Ledger Mississippi player of the year after his senior season at Moss Point, Miss., High School. The two-time all-state selection helped lead Moss Point to a 12-1 record during his senior campaign. He is married to the former LeQuinta Tolbert.

COLLEGE: In an attempt to find the "hidden gem" of the draft, the Cowboys selected DeVeren (pronounced DEV-rin) Johnson in the sixth round (208th overall) of the NFL Draft. Johnson possesses the size element the Dallas receiving corps has been lacking in recent years. At 6-4, 211 pounds, he has the bulk to shield defenders with his body and the height to win the battle in the air for the football. A little known talent from a small Division I school, Johnson hopes to continue to show coaches sparks of being a play maker as he works on the transition to the NFL.

2001: As a senior, Johnson earned All-North East Conference and I-AA Mid-Major All-America honors as he hauled in 49 passes while leading the conference in receiving yards (1,157), touchdowns (13) and yards-per-catch (23.6). He helped lead the Pioneers to a perfect 11-0 record and their first-ever NEC title in the ECAC Bowl.

2000: Johnson was an All-NEC selection as he finished his junior campaign with 38 receptions for 593 yards (15.6 avg.) and six touchdowns after transferring from Champlain Junior College. He added 16 points-per-game and 8.0 rebounds-per-game for the school's basketball team.

1999: Johnson returned to the basketball squad for his sophomore year at Champlain Junior College and saw action in 24 games, totaling 141 points (5.9 per game), 102 rebounds (4.3), 15 steals and five blocked shots.

1998: As a freshman at Champlain, Johnson played 32 games for the school's basketball team, averaging 7.9 points-per-game and 5.7 rebounds-per-game while adding 50 steals and 20 blocked shots.

PERSONAL: DeVeren Johnson played outside linebacker and wide receiver as a sophomore and junior at University City High School in San Diego, Calif. He played on the basketball team as a sophomore. He has a degree in business management.

GAMES/STARTS: 1999 (I.R.-Ariz.).

PRO: Continually looking to add experienced depth to their squad, the Cowboys signed Paris Johnson to help bolster their linebacking corps. Despite an injury-riddled two-year NFL career, Johnson has shown that at 6-3, 238 pounds, he has the size to go along with the talent to make plays. This trait will aid him as he battles for a spot on Dallas' linebacker depth chart and on the Cowboys special teams units.

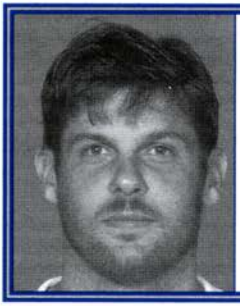
2001: After signing with Miami as a free agent Feb. 7, Johnson was allocated to the Rhein Fire of NFL Europe. He played in five games for the Fire, starting four, and registered 18 tackles and a pass defensed before requiring surgery to repair a lateral meniscus tear in his right knee.

2000: Johnson returned to the Arizona Cardinals but was released at the end of camp. He was out of football for the entire NFL season.

1999: Johnson was a fifth round draft choice (155th overall) of the Arizona Cardinals in the NFL Draft. He spent the entire season on the Cardinals injured reserve list with a knee injury. He was released following the season.

COLLEGE: Johnson played two seasons at the University of Miami, Ohio, where he was selected to the Hula Bowl as a senior. As a junior, he finished fourth on the squad with 94 tackles and earned All-Mid-American Conference honors at free safety on a defense that finished 16th in the nation allowing only 306.7 yards-per-game. He redshirted his first year at Miami, OH after transferring from North Iowa Community College where he served as a team captain as a two-year starter. He finished his sophomore year with 98 tackles in eight games, garnering all-region accolades.

PERSONAL: Johnson majored in sociology while at Miami, Ohio. He attended Oak Park-River Forest High School in Chicago, Ill where he lettered twice in football and was named the team defensive lineman of the year after recording 56 tackles, including eight sacks as a senior. He also earned a letter in track. He has a son, Paris Jr.



Micah Knorr

GAMES/STARTS: 2000 (14/0), 2001 (16/0). Total – 30/0.

PRO: After being out of football for three years, Micah Knorr has quickly made a name for himself in the NFL. He proved to be one of the top rookie punters in Cowboys history in 2000, and with another year of experience should only get better. Knorr's strong leg led him to a franchise rookie record of 42.8 gross yards-per-punt. His superior hang time on punts allowed Dallas' coverage teams to get down field and help him post a 35.8 net average – the fourth highest net punting average for a rookie in club history. He also handles kickoff duties, allowing Dallas to maintain its lofty rank among the top kickoff coverage teams in the league each season. He became the first left-footed punter in club history when he took the field in 2000.

2001: Knorr's sophomore campaign was a trying time as Dallas went through two different deep snappers and a number of changes on their special teams coverage units. Despite these struggles, he still managed to average 40.2 yards-per-punt, and his 25 punts inside the 20-yard line tied for the fifth most in club history. He continued to excel on kickoffs, placing 13-of-56 kicks (not including onside kicks or squibs at the end of the half or game) into the end zone with four touchbacks. He averaged 65.8 yards per kickoff (to the four-yard line), and Dallas' opponent's average starting position following his kickoffs was the 26.8-yard line, placing Dallas ninth in the NFC, tied for 12th in the NFL, in opponents drive start. In the season opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), he recorded five punts for a 36.8 yard average, including two downed inside the Bucs 20-yard line. His big play came on kickoff duty when he executed a perfect surprise onside kick that George Teague recovered in the first quarter. Knorr posted a 42.5 yard average on four punts against San Diego (9/23). With Tim Dwight forced into three fair catches and a two-yard loss on his only return, Knorr's net average of 43.0 yards against the Chargers was a career-high. At Philadelphia (9/30), he averaged 40.7 yards on six punts but suffered the first blocked punt of his career when N.D. Kalu broke through to get his second quarter kick. Not just a foot, Knorr also recorded a touchdown-saving tackle on Brian Mitchell's 54-yard punt return in the second quarter.He posted a 43.0 yard average on five punts against Arizona (10/28), including one downed at the Cards one-yard line that eventually led to a Dexter Coakley interception return for a touchdown. Again going above and beyond the call of duty, Knorr recovered a third quarter fumbled kickoff to set Dallas up at the Cardinals 44-yard line. Despite his second blocked punt of the season, Knorr had a nice day at the N.Y. Giants (11/4), averaging 44.2 yards on five punts and helping limit the Giants to a 17.0 average on five kickoff returns. He also led the team with two special teams tackles. He recorded two more special teams tackles the next week at Atlanta (11/11) and averaged 43.3 yards on four punts, including 53- and 54-yard kicks. After recording season-highs with eight punts and a 45.5 yards-per-kick average against Denver (11/22) – along with a special teams tackle in his fourth consecutive game – Knorr could do no wrong against the N.Y. Giants (12/9), recording six punts for a 41.5 yard average. Four of those boots pinned the Giants inside their own 20-yard line, tying the second most in club history. In the Cowboys surprising win over San Francisco (12/30), Knorr suffered his third blocked punt of the season. In the season finale at Detroit (1/6/02), he placed three of his six punts inside the Lions 20-yard line.

2000: Knorr burst onto the NFL scene as a rookie, finishing fourth in the NFC, 11th in the NFL, with a club rookie record 42.8 gross punting average. Only one other rookie in the league posted a higher average in 2000 – Shane Lechler, 45.9. Knorr's net punting average of 35.8 – fourth highest rookie mark in club history – was the fifth best net average in the NFC and tied for 14th in the NFL. While handling kickoff duties, he placed 18-of-57 kickoffs into the end zone, posting 10 touchbacks. His 17.5 touchback percentage was the second highest percentage in the NFL (Jeff Wilkins – 22.7%). He made his professional debut against Philadelphia (9/3) and averaged 44.6 yards on seven punts while helping limit Brian Mitchell to a 5.0 average on four returns. At Arizona (9/10), Knorr averaged 57.0 yards on two punts, with both punts pinning the Cardinals inside their 20-yard line. He punted five times for a 46.4 average at Washington (9/18) to help limit Deion Sanders to three returns for zero yards. Knorr averaged 45.3 yards on three punts, including a career-long 60-yarder, against San Francisco (9/24). He had two punts downed inside the 20-yard line at Carolina (10/1) while averaging 44.0 yards-per-punt. Against Arizona (10/22), he posted a career-high eight kickoffs. At Philadelphia (11/5), he pinned the Eagles inside their 25-yard line four times in five punts, including twice inside their 10-yard line in the fourth quarter. Knorr suffered a hairline fracture of the tibial plateau in his left knee while being run into on his only punt against Cincinnati (11/12). The punt, however, was called back due to a roughing the punter penalty. Dallas did not have to punt again against the Bengals, marking the fourth time in club history that Dallas has not registered a punt in a game. Knorr's knee injury forced him to miss games at Baltimore (11/19) and against Minnesota (11/23). He returned to action at Tampa Bay (12/3) by averaging 41.6 yards on five punts. The next week against Washington (12/10), he punted three times for a 45.0 average to help limit Sanders to one return for 11 yards. His booming kickoffs against the Redskins helped hold them to a 17.9-yard average on eight kickoff returns. Knorr posted a 36.2 average on five punts against the N.Y. Giants (12/17), including two that were downed inside the Giants' 20-yard line. In the season finale against Tennessee (12/25), he recorded a career-high 10 punts, the most by a Dallas punter since Mike Saxon had 10 against Chicago on Nov. 17, 1985. It also tied the mark for the second most punts in a game in club history. Knorr averaged 39.8 yards on those 10 kicks against the Titans, including a 53-yarder. He also closed his initial pro campaign with two special team stops, one at Arizona (9/10) and one against the N.Y. Giants (12/17).

1999: Knorr was out of football coaching kickers for Irvine, Calif., High School while working at a gym and day spa.

1997-98: Knorr was out of football managing a sports retail store in California.

COLLEGE: As a senior at Utah State in 1996, Knorr earned second-team All-Big West honors after connecting on 12-of-21 field goals and 36-of-47 extra points to lead the Aggies in scoring with 72 points. He finished his collegiate career with a school record 39 field goals made. As a junior, he earned first-team All-Big West honors after tying for the league lead in field goals, connecting on 12-of-19 with four of the misses coming from beyond 50 yards. He also finished second on the team in scoring with 61 points. He led Utah State as a sophomore with 63 points on 15-of-20 field goals and 18-of-18 PATs while averaging 37.3 yards on 10 punts and posting 14 touchbacks on kickoffs. Knorr saw action in 11 games as a true freshman in 1993, averaging 38.6 yards on 33 punts.

PERSONAL: Knorr earned first-team All-CIF honors as both a junior and senior at Orange, Calif., High School, where he averaged 42-yards-per-punt as a senior. He participated in the Orange County North-South All-Star Game following his senior campaign. The history major finished his prep career with 81 career points on 42-of-47 PATs and 13-of-27 field goals. This past offseason, Knorr served as a celebrity escort while supporting the Children's Cancer Fund Fashion Show. He also donated time at the Ninth Annual Komen Tarrant County Race for the Cure, signing autographs, firing the start pistol and assisting with the awards ceremony.

Matt Lehr

Guard/Center

6'2" ★ 304 ★ 4/25/79
Virginia Tech
NFL: 2nd Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 2001 (8/0).

PRO: The Cowboys believe they addressed their long-term future at either guard or center when they selected Matt Lehr (pronounced LAIR) with the 137th overall pick in the 2001 NFL Draft. Lehr combines good athleticism with excellent technique to dominate his man at the line of scrimmage. His quickness and strength were big reasons Virginia Tech was able to establish Big East rushing records during his junior and senior campaigns. Lehr worked at guard and center during his first professional season to provide the Cowboys with a more versatile reserve lineman. Entering his second season, the Cowboys are looking to move Lehr to the starting center position to replace departed veteran Mark Stepnoski.

2001: Lehr saw his first NFL action with a fourth quarter stint at left guard in the second week of the season at Philadelphia (9/30). The following two weeks, Lehr was active but did not play. Against Arizona (10/28), he saw action at both guard spots for Allen and Garmon for a limited number of snaps when they were forced from the game. At Arizona (12/23), Lehr saw considerable time at right guard in the first half, helping Dallas rush for 174 yards on the day, including a season-high 128 by Emmitt Smith. In the season finale at Detroit (1/6/02), Lehr played almost the entire game at right guard after Kelvin Garmon re-aggravated a sprained right foot. In the game, he helped protect Carter (no sacks) and block for Smith as he gained 77 yards rushing and topped the 1,000-yard mark for an NFL record 11th consecutive season.

COLLEGE: As a senior, Lehr earned second-team All-Big East and All-America honors while allowing only half a sack and five quarterback pressures and leading the team with 57 knockdown blocks. His performance throughout the season also earned him selection to play in the Hula Bowl. Lehr started all 12 games as a junior at left guard and surrendered only one sack and just three quarterback pressures to earn second-team All-Big East honors and help take the Hokies to the BCS National Championship game. After seeing practice time at guard and tackle during spring workouts of his sophomore year, Lehr injured his ankle during preseason practice and missed Techs first two games. He saw his first action of the year in the third week and midway through the season he moved into the starting lineup.

PERSONAL: Matthew Steven Lehr played offensive guard and defensive end for Woodbridge, Va., High School. The three-time all-district and all-region selection earned Group AAA all-state honors for his work on the offensive line during his final prep season. He contributed 40 tackles and six sacks on defense while averaging 20 pancake blocks-per-game to garner All-America honors from PrepStar. The finance major averaged 12 pancake blocks a game as a junior to earn second-team all-state accolades. He also garnered all-state honors as a member of the Woodbridge track team in the shot put. As a rookie, Lehr was a member of the Cowboys inaugural "Rookie Club", a program designed to introduce rookies to community and charity work. Throughout the season, the rookies made visits to and spent time with children at Children's Medical Center of Dallas, Oak Cliff Boys and Girls Clubs, The Salvation Army and its' Christmas Distribution Center. He also took place in the Pegasus Project with the team's offensive line and the RISE School of Dallas, which helped raise awareness for the arts in Dallas. Lehr played the role of the "Grim Reaper" in the Fatal Choices, Shattered Dreams program, a DWI program featuring a mock traffic accident at Oak Ridge High School in Arlington, Tex.

GAMES/STARTS 2000 (P.U.P.-G.B.).

PRO: Anthony Lucas is a big receiver with the ability to get deep, the combination Cowboys coaches have been looking for. His size will provide quarterback Quincy Carter an inviting target. After spending most of last season recovering from a fractured patella, Lucas will be battling several young receivers for a spot on the depth chart behind Joey Galloway and Raghib Ismail.

2001: Lucas went to camp with Green Bay but was released Aug. 24. Dallas claimed him off waivers Aug. 25, but he was released Sept. 2. He immediately signed to the Cowboys practice squad, where he remained until being placed on injured reserve Oct. 18 with a fractured patella suffered during practice.

2000: After being selected in the fourth round (114th overall) of the NFL Draft by Green Bay, Lucas underwent a corrective procedure to repair the anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee on Aug. 1. He was placed on the Physically Unable to Perform list Aug. 17, where he spent the remainder of the season rehabilitating his knee.

COLLEGE: A four-time letterman at the University of Arkansas, Lucas averaged 21.0 yards-per-reception, setting a new Southeastern Conference record. At the time he graduated, Lucas owned Arkansas career records for receiving yardage (2,879), receiving touchdowns (23) and 100-yard receiving games (11). In his senior year at Arkansas, Lucas was a first-team All-conference selection after starting the season with a career high 194 yards, and three-touchdown game against Southern Methodist University. He is one of only three men to catch three touchdowns in a single game for the University of Arkansas, and the only one in the last 55 years

PERSONAL: Anthony Wayne Lucas was born Nov. 20, 1976 in Vicksburge, MS, and holds a BA degree in social work from the University of Arkansas. He was an all-state and all-district pick his junior and senior seasons at McCall High School in Tallulah, LA. As a senior at McCall, Lucas received All-America honors. He earned three letters in football and four in basketball. His cousin is Leonard Griffin, a former defensive end with the Kansas City Chiefs (1986-1993).

GAMES/STARTS (regular season/postseason): 1999 (14/4, 1/0), 2000 (IR), 2001 (16/5). Total-(30/9, 1/0)

PRO: After making significant contributions to Dallas' offense as a rookie, Mike Lucky missed out on his follow-up campaign after tearing three ligaments in his right knee (ACL, MCL and PCL) in the 2000 preseason opener. With a solid year of hard work in the training room and weight room, Lucky emerged in 2001 with the strength and toughness in the trenches that helped Dallas finish with the third ranked rushing offense in the NFL. Along the way he also garnered the respect and admiration of his teammates for overcoming his physical adversity, earning the 2001 Ed Block Courage Award from his peers in the locker room. Although mostly noted for his bruising style of play as a blocker, he has displayed flashes as a receiver when given the opportunity. These attributes are the reason Lucky gives Dallas valuable depth at tight end.

2001: After 12 months of hard work and rehabilitation, Lucky returned to action and earned the starting nod in five-of-16 games. His powerful blocking brought about a resurgence in the Dallas running game that saw the Cowboys rank third in the NFL with 136.5 yards-per-game on the ground. As a receiver, Lucky registered 13 receptions for 96 yards and his first career touchdown. At season's end, he was selected as the club's Ed Block Courage Award recipient by his teammates for successfully overcoming a torn ACL, MCL and PCL. In the season opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), he returned to action for the first time since the injury. While he did not record a reception, his blocking helped Dallas gain 96 yards rushing on 24 carries. Lucky recorded his first career touchdown reception with a seven-yard scoring toss from Anthony Wright against San Diego (9/23). As a blocker, he led the way as Emmitt Smith ran for 85 yards on 17 carries (5.0 avg.) to move past Barry Sanders into second on the NFL's all-time rushing list. At Philadelphia (9/30), he earned his first start of the season with Jackie Harris deactivated with a strained groin. Lucky went on to record two receptions for eight yards. He contributed two receptions for 18 yards, including a 15-yard grab on the Cowboys first scoring drive of the game at the N.Y. Giants (11/4). His seven-yard reception at Washington (12/2) gave Dallas a first down in the Cowboys win. At Arizona (12/23), Lucky had two receptions for a career-high 29 yards, including a career-long 16-yard grab. With Harris suffering from the flu, Lucky earned the start at tight end in the Cowboys upset win over San Francisco (12/30) and helped block for a running game that picked up 186 yards on the day, including 126 by Smith.

2000: Lucky's second season never got underway as he tore the ACL, MCL and PCL in his right knee during the preseason opener against Pittsburgh (7/30). He underwent reconstructive surgery to repair the ligaments in his knee on Aug. 1 and was placed on injured reserve.

1999: Lucky's productive rookie season got off to a very tenuous start as he suffered a stress fracture in his left foot on Aug. 27 and was forced to miss five weeks, including the opener at Washington (9/12) and the following week against Atlanta (9/20). The open date (9/26) gave Lucky extra time for healing, and he quickly settled into his role as the team's backup tight end, especially blocking for short yardage and goal line situations. Against Arizona (10/3), he earned his first NFL start in his very first NFL game when Dallas opened in a two-tight end formation. He later went on to record his first career reception with a two-yard grab on third-and-two to keep a Cowboys touchdown drive alive against the Cardinals. Lucky earned his second career start (three tight end set) in his first appearance on Monday Night Football in the Cowboys 13-10 loss at the N.Y. Giants (10/18). One week later against Washington (10/24), Lucky recorded his second catch of the season with a five-yard reception. He started the next week's game at Indianapolis (10/31) as the Cowboys once again opened in a short yardage formation. In the Thanksgiving Day win over Miami (11/25), he recorded two catches for 15 yards, marking his first career multiple catch game. He added a three-yard reception in the season finale against the N.Y. Giants (1/2/00). His contributions in the running game enabled the Cowboys to average 128.3 yards-per-game on the ground (sixth in the NFL), while Smith enjoyed his finest season since 1995 (1,397). Lucky was selected by the Cowboys in the seventh round (229th overall) of the 1999 NFL Draft.

COLLEGE: Lucky started 35 of the final 36 games of his college career, catching 43 career passes for 563 yards and four touchdowns. As a senior, he finished fourth on the team with 11 receptions for 142 yards. He also added 40 knockdown blocks and was a punishing part of a Wildcats' running game that averaged 213 yards-per-game (14th in the nation). In the regular season finale, Lucky's blocking was a critical part of an Arizona offense that rolled up 607 total yards against Arizona State, including a school-record 288 yards rushing by Trung Canidate. Arizona finished the season 12-1 and ranked fourth in the final Associated Press poll. As a junior starter on the Insight.com Bowl champion Wildcats, Lucky finished fourth on the team with 13 receptions for 154 yards and two touchdowns.

PERSONAL: Michael Thomas Lucky left Antioch, Calif., High School rated the 15th best tight end in the country by SuperPrep magazine. As a senior, he served as team captain and caught 36 passes for 650 yards and 11 touchdowns, earning all-Northern California and all-state accolades. Lucky earned his degree in political science at Arizona. Off the field, Lucky has shown support for the Race For The Cure in Dallas and Ft. Worth, which benefits The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, and he donates his time to Our Children's Center in Irving, TX. Mike and wife Deanna have a daughter, Madison. Deanna filled the quiet time in the Lucky family offseason by become a member of the inaugural Dallas Desperados Dancers team this past summer.

NFL: 1st Year ★ Cowboys: 1st Year

GAMES PLAYED/STARTED: 2001 (1/0).

PRO: After a rash of injuries hit the Cowboys linebacking corps midway through the 2001 season, including starters Dat Nguyen and Dexter Coakley, Dallas signed Louis Mackey to the active roster from their practice squad. Mackey, a fast, speed rusher, took advantage of limited playing time to show coaches his ability to make plays.

2001: Mackey signed with Dallas on Aug. 10 as a rookie free agent and proceeded to tally three tackles and a sack in the preseason. He was released at the end of camp and immediately signed to Dallas' practice squad. After moving to the active roster on Nov 17, he played in his first NFL game against Philadelphia (11/18) but fractured the tibial plateau in his left knee. He was placed on injured reserve Nov. 21.

COLLEGE: Mackey played his final two years of ball at Akron after transferring from Gavilan Junior College. As a senior, Mackey finished third on the team with 67 tackles, tied for second with eight tackles for losses, two passes defensed, a sack, and a forced fumble. In his second year, he had to sit out the football season in order to gain academic eligibility. As a junior transfer with the Zips, Mackey saw action in 10 games, starting two. He started his collegiate career at Gavilian Junior College where he played the strong safety and linebacker positions earning first-team all-conference honors in both seasons he played.

PERSONAL: As a senior, Louis Mackey was an all-conference running back and linebacker at Albany, Calif., High School. He qualified for the Meet of Champions as a member of the track team with performances in the long jump and 4x400 relay. He spent his first three years of high school at Richmond, Calif., High School before transferring to Albany his senior year. As a rookie, Mackey was a member of the Cowboys inaugural "Rookie Club", a program designed to introduce rookies to community and charity work. Throughout the season, the rookies made visits to and spent time with children at Children's Medical Center of Dallas, Oak Cliff Boys and Girls Clubs, The Salvation Army and its' Christmas Distribution Center.

Jamar Martin

Fullback

Ohio State
NFL: Rookie ★ Cowboys: Rookie

COLLEGE: After Robert Thomas' season ended with a high ankle sprain against Washington (10/15), the Cowboys finished the 2001 season without a true fullback on the roster. To remedy that situation, Jamar Martin was drafted in the fourth round (129th overall) of the 2002 NFL Draft. In Martin, Dallas now has a proven fullback who shows good explosiveness as the lead blocker and is quick to get out and find the linebacker. He also has the hands Dallas looks for in a fullback coming out of the backfield as a receiver, averaging 9.6 yards-per-reception for his college career.

2001: Martin was the Buckeyes team co-captain as a senior, catching a career-high 13 passes for 120 yards and a pair of scores while carrying the ball 22 times for 86 yards. In the season opener against Akron, Martin recorded three catches for 23 yards, including a 10-yard touchdown, and led the way on a 14-yard rushing touchdown by tailback Jonathan Wells, a fourth round (99th overall) draft pick by the Houston Texans. At UCLA, Martin added a pair of rushes for 31 yards. At Indiana, he hauled in three more receptions for 33 yards. He rushed four times for 14 yards and posted a season-high 10 knockdown blocks against Northwestern. Against San Diego State, Martin picked up seven knockdowns and threw a key block on a two-yard Lydell Ross touchdown run while carrying the ball himself five times for 23 yards. At Michigan, he cleared the way for an 11-yard scoring run by Wells. He closed out his collegiate career with a 29-yard reception against South Carolina in the Outback Bowl.

2000: As a junior, Martin was used in a blocking role helping lead the way as Ohio State rushed for 2,199 yards while picking up six yards and a pair of touchdowns on eight carries. He helped clear a path for Derek Combs, a seventh round (228th overall) draft pick by the Oakland Raiders, who carried the ball 175 times for 888 yards (5.1) and five touchdowns. Martin's only catch of the year, a 13-yard reception came against Penn State as the Buckeyes finished with an 8-4 record, including a 24-7 loss to South Carolina in the Outback Bowl.

1999: Martin started six games as a sophomore rushing for 100 yards on 19 carries (5.9 avg.). He cleared the way for current Cowboys teammate Michael Wiley, who rushed for 999 yards and 10 touchdowns on 183 carries. Martin tallied a career high 35-yard rushing game against Michigan and registered a then career-high 21-yard run and a one-yard touchdown reception at Michigan.

1998: As a true freshman, Martin saw action as the back-up fullback, totaling 34 yards and a touchdown on 12 carries while adding 68 yards on five receptions. He scored his first collegiate touchdown on a 10-yard run against Iowa. He was part of a Buckeye offense that rushed for 2,737 yards and 22 touchdowns to finish second in the Big Ten Conference. That squad went on to beat Texas A&M in the Nokia Sugar Bowl and finish with an 11-1 record, second in the nation.

PERSONAL: Martin helped lead McKinley High School in Canton, Ohio to a 14-0 record and the Ohio big school championship as a senior. He averaged 6.2 yards- per-carry as a senior, gaining 368 yards with five touchdowns on 59 attempts. He also totaled 59 tackles and five sacks at outside linebacker.

NFL: 10th Year ★ Cowboys: 1st Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1993 (15/15-Cin.), 1994 (16/16-Cin.), 1995 (16/16-Cin.), 1996 (16/16-Cin.), 1997 (16/16-Cin.), 1998 (16/16-Cin.), 1999 (16/16-Cin.), 2000 (14/14-Cin.), 2001 (11/9-Cin.). Total – (136/134).

PRO: With a busy off-season signing top-quality free agents, Dallas netted another proven veteran that may just be the missing link to the offense when they signed Tony McGee April 29. McGee, originally a second round draft choice (37th overall) by Cincinnati, has taken on more of a role in the running game but has exceptional hands and the willingness to go across the middle to make the tough catch. He is well-versed in Offensive Coordinator Bruce Coslet's offense having played under him in Cincinnati for seven years and should be finished rehabing a sprained MCL in his right knee, an injury he suffered late in the 2001 season, by training camp.

2001: McGee started nine-of-11 games (missing two starts because the team opened in multiple receiver sets) before spraining the MCL in his right knee against Tampa Bay (12/10). He finished the season with career-lows in receptions (14) and receiving yards (148) while adding a touchdown. These totals allowed him to move from ninth to seventh on the Bengals all-time receptions list (299), passing James Brooks (297) and Bob Trumpy (298). In the season opener against New England (9/9), McGee hauled in a 25-yard touchdown pass from Jon Kitna. As a blocker, McGee helped lead the way as Corey Dillon rushed for 1,315 yards, seventh in the NFL.

2000: McGee finished the season second on the team in receptions (26) and receiving yards (309) while also playing a key role as a blocker for the leagues' second ranked rushing offense (144.6 yards-per-game). His team-long streak of 117 consecutive starts came to an end in Week 14 as a left ankle fracture suffered at Tennessee (12/10) sidelined him for the final two games of the season. He opened up the season against Cleveland (9/10) with a reception for 34 yards and added six catches for 74 yards against Miami (10/1). He added three receptions for 23 yards and a touchdown against Arizona (12/3).

1999: For the sixth consecutive season, McGee started every game as he continued to see his role as a blocking tight end expand, helping pave the way for the sixth ranked rushing attack (2,051 yards) and third in yards-per-carry (4.6). He finished fourth in receiving yards (344) and fifth in catches (26) while adding two touchdowns. He opened up the season at Tennessee (9/12) with a three-yard touchdown catch. He added another score on a 12-yard catch against San Diego (9/19). He registered season-highs in catches (five) and yards (77) at Seattle (11/7).

1998: McGee finished the season second on the team in total snaps and yards-per-catch average (13.2) while starting all 16 games for the fifth consecutive season. In the win at Detroit (9/13), McGee hauled in 2 passes for 53 yards, including a 38-yard catch that set up a third quarter tying touchdown. At Oakland (10/25), he led the team with 35 receiving yards and tied for the team lead with three receptions, then led the team once again against Denver (12/1), with 73 yards on four catches.

1997: McGee again started every game, and he finished the year as the Bengals leader (third in the league among tight ends) with a career-high six touchdown receptions. He finished third on the team in receptions (34) and receiving yards (414) as he helped block for the ninth-ranked rushing game in the league. In the Bengals 28-10 win at Indianapolis (11/9), he celebrated his first multiple touchdown game of his career hauling in a 15-yard score from Jeff Blake and a five-yarder from Boomer Esiason.

1996: For the third consecutive season, McGee started all 16 games at tight end for the Bengals, finishing the year with 38 receptions for 446 yards and four touchdowns. In the season finale against Baltimore (12/21), he hauled in a career-high eight passes for a season-high 93 yards.

1995: In his third year with the Bengals, McGee topped his rookie performance and moved into second place among tight ends in team annals with 55 receptions for 754 yards and four scores. He finished third in yards and fourth in catches among tight ends in the league while finishing second on the team in receptions. McGee registered a career-high 118 receiving yards on six catches at Indianapolis (9/3).

1994: McGee scored his first career touchdown on an eight-yard catch from Jeff Blake against Philadelphia (12/24), finishing the season with 40 receptions for 492 yards. He tallied a career-high 54-yard reception at Arizona (12/18).

1993: McGee was drafted by the Cinicinnati Bengals in the second round (37th overall) of the NFL draft. He finished his rookie campaign with 44 receptions – the most by a Bengals tight end since 1989 – and 525 yards receiving – the most from a Cincinnati tight end since 1990. He sat out against Houston (11/14) with a lower back contusion, missing only one game as a rookie.

COLLEGE: As a senior, McGee earned the starting nod and tied for third on the Wolverines reception list as a tight end with 38 catches for 467 yards and six touchdowns, earning All-America and All-Big Ten Conference honors. He saw action in every game as a reserve tight end, catching three passes for 39 yards as a junior. McGee saw action on special teams and registered one catch for nine yards as a reserve tight end during his sophomore campaign. As a freshman, McGee saw action on special teams.

PERSONAL: As a senior at South Terre Haute, Ind., High School, McGee was selected Best Indiana Lineman of the Year and All-America from the Chicago Sun Times and SuperPrep magazine as he caught 27 passes for 670 yards while helping block for an offense that totaled 4,133 yards. He added Blue Chip honors as a defensive end during his senior campaign. He had 39 catches for 890 yards as a tight end while earning most valuable player honors on the basketball squad as a junior. He graduated with a bachelor's degree in communications from Michigan.

Dwayne Missouri

Defensive End

Northwestern
FA for '01
NFL: 2nd Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

GAMES PLAYED/STARTED: 2001 (2/0).

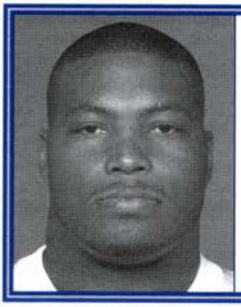
PRO: Dwayne Missouri, an aggressive end that has a knack for making plays in the backfield was signed off the Baltimore Ravens practice squad on Oct. 29. 2001. A seventh-round draft choice (231st overall) of the Baltimore Ravens, he has been gaining valuable professional football experience as a member of the Berlin Thunder of NFL Europe this spring. Cowboys coaches are expecting him to step into the defensive end rotation quickly.

2002: Missouri spent the spring with the Berlin Thunder of NFL Europe where he tied for second in the league with 5.5 sacks while totaling 27 tackles, four passes defensed, and three forced fumbles enroute to a World Bowl championship.

2001: After posting five tackles, two sacks and two forced fumbles in preseason action, Missouri was released prior to the start of the season. He immediately re-signed to the Ravens practice squad, where he remained until the Cowboys signed him Oct. 29. Missouri was deactivated for his first two games with the Cowboys, at N.Y. Giants (11/4) and at Atlanta (11/11). He saw his first NFL action at left end against Philadelphia (11/18). He was then deactivated for games at Washington (12/2), against the N.Y. Giants (12/9) and at Seattle (12/16). At Arizona (12/23), he saw action, but failed to record his first tackle. Missouri was again deactivated for the final two games of the season against San Francisco (12/30) and at Detroit (1/6/02).

COLLEGE: Missouri earned All-Big Ten honors as a senior after recording 51 tackles, 16 stops for losses, nine sacks and five forced fumbles. His five forced fumbles were the highest total in the conference. As a junior, Missouri recorded career-highs in tackles (52) and stops behind the line of scrimmage (20). He also had five sacks to earn second-team All-Big Ten honors. As a sophomore, Missouri moved into the starting lineup at left defensive end prior to the season, totaling 34 tackles, seven stops behind the line of scrimmage and three sacks. As a redshirt freshman, Missouri appeared in seven games and totaled four stops and a fumble recovery. Missouri was redshirted his first year at Northwestern after suffering a fractured bone (fifth metatarsal) in his right foot.

PERSONAL: Dwayne Anthony Missouri earned all-state, all-district and all-city honors and was named the Defensive Player of the year in San Antonio, TX, after leading Roosevelt High School to the state championship as a senior. Missouri, who was also a two-year letterman on the track team as a shot putter, was a two-time academic all-district selection. As a rookie, Missouri was a member of the Cowboys inaugural "Rookie Club", a program designed to introduce rookies to community and charity work. Along with other rookies, The Salvation Army and its' Christmas Distribution Center. He also participated in the Dallas Cowboys annual children's holiday hospital visits. Dwayne, who has his degree in communications, was born in Germany, where his father was stationed in the military.



Michael Myers

Defensive Line

Alabama
D-4 for '98 (100th overall)
NFL: 5th Year ★ Cowboys: 5th Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1998 (16/1, 1/1), 1999 (6/0, 1/0), 2000 (13/7), 2001 (16/16). Total – 51/24, 2/1.

PRO: Since the day the Cowboys drafted Michael Myers in the fourth round of the 1998 NFL Draft, the Dallas coaches believed they were getting a quality prospect who just needed time to develop. In 2001, their patience – and Myers' hard work – paid solid dividends as the fourth-year player became a productive starter at defensive tackle. Though he may be considered undersized for some defensive schemes, Myers is a very comfortable fit in the Dallas defense that emphasizes speed and quickness from its tackles. After displaying flashes of that promise in limited action during his first two NFL seasons, injuries to other players landed him a larger dose of playing time in 2000. During the second half of that year, Myers proved that he had matured into a solid NFL defensive lineman. He has the ability to create havoc along the line of scrimmage while at the same time consistently finding a way into opponents' backfield. His versatility and natural athletic ability has been displayed in Myers being used as a blocking tight end in some short yardage situations over the past two seasons.

2001: As a key contributor to the Cowboys dramatic turnaround on defense in 2001, Myers was the team's sixth leading tackler with a career-high 72 stops. He tied for second on the club in sacks with 3.5 and third in quarterback pressures with 18. Myers' efforts helped the Cowboys defense finish fourth in the NFL by allowing just 287.4 yards-per-game. In 2001, the Dallas Cowboys allowed 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that was 927 fewer yards than the club allowed during the 2000 season. Those numbers represented the largest turnaround by any defensive unit in the NFL in 2001. In the season opening loss to Tampa Bay (9/9), Myers was second among defensive linemen in tackles with seven and helped limit the Bucs running game to 71 yards on 33 carries (2.2 avg.), including 22 carries for 56 yards by Warrick Dunn. Against San Diego (9/23), he recorded four tackles and a tackle for a loss while helping hold LaDainian Tomlinson to a 3.3 yard average on 27 carries. One week later at Philadelphia (9/30), he recorded five tackles and his first sack of the season while helping limit the Eagles to 276 net yards of offense. At Oakland (10/7), he recovered a fourth quarter fumble to set up the final Dallas touchdown. He also registered three tackles and helped limit the Raiders to a 3.0 yards-per-carry average for the game (101 yards on 34 carries). In Dallas' win over Arizona (10/28), Myers recorded three tackles, a tackle for a loss and a quarterback pressure while helping limit the Cards to 75 total rushing yards. He also earned a couple of snaps at tight end in short yardage/goal line situations. In the overtime loss at the N.Y. Giants (11/4), he recorded six tackles and helped limit the Giants running game to 93 yards on 26 carries (3.6 yard average). He made a number of big plays at Atlanta (11/11) as Dallas limited the Falcons to 201 total yards, including just 46 passing yards. Myers was third on the team with five tackles against the Falcons, while adding a sack of Michael Vick, a quarterback pressure and a batted down pass. He collected a career-high 10 tackles in the loss to Philadelphia (11/18) while adding a tackle for a loss and a quarterback pressure. Myers' effort helped limit the Eagles to just 98 yards on the ground on 35 carries (2.8 avg.). In the Cowboys win at Washington (12/2), Myers recorded the first multi-sack regular season game of his career with 1.5 sacks of Tony Banks. He also added three tackles while helping limit the Redskins' Stephen Davis to 53 yards on 17 carries (3.1 avg.). In the following week's win over the Giants (12/9), he finished with three tackles and helped limit the Giants to 245 yards of total offense, including just 73 yards on their final eight possessions. At Arizona (12/23), Myers was second on the team with seven tackles while also adding a tackle for a loss and two quarterback pressures. His effort helped limit the Cards to 209 total yards, including just 75 on the ground. In the season's final game at Detroit (1/6/02), he led all defensive linemen with five tackles and three quarterback pressures.

2000: When given an opportunity after Chad Hennings (neck) and Leon Lett (knee) were forced to the sidelines with season ending injuries at mid-season, Myers had a very productive year in just a few short weeks. He finished with 46 stops, topping his career total through his first two seasons combined (34 tackles). He also contributed four tackles for a loss – good for fourth on the team – and a career-high six quarterback pressures. He was able to post these totals despite earning just seven starts in 13 games. After sitting out the first three weeks as a game-day deactivation, Myers took advantage of his first action of the season to record five tackles against San Francisco (9/24). The following week at Carolina (10/1), he saw considerable playing time at defensive tackle when Leon Lett was limited with a strained right hamstring. While he recorded two tackles and a quarterback pressure at the N.Y. Giants (10/15) on defense, Myers' biggest contribution may have been as a blocking tight end in goal line formations when he came in motion and helped lead Emmitt Smith into the end zone for a three-yard touchdown. Myers contributed a big-play on defense against Arizona (10/22) when he tackled Michael Pittman and forced a fumble that the Cardinals recovered but that set them up with second-and-22. The Cardinals were unable to convert that into a first down, and Wane McGarity returned the ensuing punt for a touchdown. Myers also saw action for the second straight week at tight end in goal line situations with Smith scoring again behind his blocking. After Lett suffered a season ending knee sprain in practice Nov. 8, Myers moved into the starting lineup for the final seven weeks. He earned his first career start at defensive tackle against Cincinnati (11/12), and his play helped limit the Bengals to 195 total yards of offense. He then recorded six tackles, including two behind the line of scrimmage, at Baltimore (11/19). Against Minnesota (11/23), Myers tied for third on the team with five tackles and added a tackle for a six-yard loss on a screen pass. He was then second among defensive linemen with four tackles at Tampa Bay (12/3). At Washington (12/10), he led the team with a then career-high eight tackles. Along the way, he helped limit Stephen Davis, the NFC's third-leading rusher, to 57 yards. Myers closed out his break-through season with seven tackles at Tennessee (12/25). He also recovered the first fumble of his career, falling on a Frank Wycheck loose ball.

1999: Myers saw action in six games, recording 11 tackles, two quarterback pressures and one tackle for lost yardage. In the Cowboys win over Arizona (10/3), he saw action at defensive tackle and recorded four tackles while helping limit the Cardinals to 208 yards of offense. At Philadelphia (10/10), he saw reserve action at defensive tackle and recorded two tackles while helping limit the Eagles to 244 yards of offense. In the Monday night loss at Minnesota (11/8), Myers recorded one tackle that resulted in a three-yard loss for Leroy Hoard. In the season ending win over the N.Y. Giants (1/2/00), he picked up his two quarterback pressures for the year. The following week in the playoff loss at Minnesota (1/9/00), Myers was pressed into duty because of injuries on the Dallas defensive line and responded with two sacks and a season-high six tackles.

1998: After spending most of his first training camp working at defensive tackle, Myers began the season as the top back-up at rush defensive end. Myers opened his rookie campaign with three tackles at Denver (9/13). The next week at the N.Y. Giants (9/21), he again recorded three tackles and batted down a pass. He tallied two tackles at Washington (10/4) before registering a tackle and a quarterback pressure while helping limit Carolina (10/11) to 35 rushing yards on 21 carries (1.7 avg.). At Chicago (10/18), he helped limit the Bears to 2.5 yards-per-rushing attempt with two tackles. He logged his first career sack with a second quarter take down of Bobby Hoying at Philadelphia (11/2). He then recorded a season-high six tackles and his second sack at Arizona (11/15) while helping limit the Cardinals to 32 rushing yards on 21 carries. He contributed two tackles and a pressure on Thanksgiving Day against Minnesota (11/26) before registering three tackles, a pass defensed and a quarterback pressure at New Orleans (12/6). Myers saw considerable second half action against Philadelphia (12/20) after Pittman suffered a strained hamstring. Myers earned his first NFL start the next week against Washington (12/27) in place of Kavika Pittman, teaming with Greg Ellis to become the first pair of rookie defensive linemen to start at the same time in club history. He recorded his third sack of the season against the Redskins. He started his first postseason contest against Arizona (1/2/99) in a wild card playoff game and tallied a tackle and a quarterback pressure. Myers, a fourth round draft choice (100th overall), was just the second Crimson Tide defensive player ever selected by Dallas.

COLLEGE: Myers was a preseason All-America and All-SEC selection as a senior at Alabama. He started the season with five tackles and half a sack against Vanderbilt but missed the remainder of the season following an NCAA suspension. Myers made the jump from junior college to Division I football by earning All-America honors from The Sporting News and consensus All-SEC accolades after recording 66 tackles, 24 quarterback pressures and 13 sacks in his first season at Alabama. His 13 sacks rank third in school history behind Derrick Thomas' 18 in 1987 and 27 in 1988. He was a two-time JUCO All-America at Hinds, MS, Junior College, where he established a school record with 20 sacks as a freshman.

PERSONAL: The Human Performance major was an all-state and all-region selection as a senior at Vicksburg, Miss., High School, where he also was a member of the basketball team. Myers participated in the Dallas Cowboys/Junior Cattle Baron's "Our Heroes are All Kinds of Cowboys" party, hosted at Texas Stadium for 500 children suffering from cancer. He also participated in the Salvation Army Angel Tree Donation Program, joining Dallas Cowboys players, coaches and staff in purchasing holiday gifts for underprivileged children.

PRO: Dat Nguyen (pronounced WIN) has been overcoming long odds his entire life. The son of Vietnamese immigrants, Nguyen has battled the perception that he was too small to play football for as long as he has been involved in the game. He began proving critics wrong at an early age, and he proceeded to leave Texas A&M as the Aggies career record holder with 51 consecutive starts, 517 career tackles and a 10.7 tackles-per-game average. Despite such an illustrious collegiate career, the "undersized" criticism was still heard from NFL personnel. The Cowboys went ahead and drafted the most productive linebacker in Texas A&M history in the third round (85th overall) of the 1999 NFL Draft. Nguyen made an impact with the Cowboys from the very beginning, leading the team in special teams stops as a rookie and becoming Dallas' starting middle linebacker in his second professional season. In 2001, he completed his first full season as a starting NFL middle linebacker and silenced the critics by recording the second highest single-season tackle total in Cowboys history. Nguyen's keen football instincts give him an uncanny ability to be around the ball, while his speed and quickness allow him to string plays wide while plugging up holes and creases. After paying his dues and earning his spot in the middle of the Dallas defense, the Cowboys coaches believe Nguyen has the work ethic and leadership skills to be a guiding force on one of the NFL's youngest and most rapidly improving defenses, for years to come.

2001: Nguyen, a key component in the Cowboys dramatic turnaround on defense in 2001, led Dallas in tackles with 172 – a figure that is second on the Cowboys all-time list behind Eugene Lockhart's 222 tackles in 1989. Nguyen's tackle total ranked seventh in the NFL for 2001. He led or tied for the team lead in tackles 11 times, while registering double-figure tackle totals in 11 games. His nine tackles behind the line of scrimmage also tied for the team lead. Nguyen's efforts helped the Cowboys defense earn a fourth overall NFL ranking by allowing an average of just 287.4 yards-per-game. In 2001, the Cowboys allowed 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that was 927 fewer yards than the club allowed during the 2000 season. Those numbers represented the largest turnaround by any defensive unit in the NFL in 2001. Nguyen opened the season with a then career-high 15 tackles in the 10-6 loss to Tampa Bay (9/9). His performance marked the highest tackle total by a Dallas middle linebacker since Randall Godfrey recorded 17 stops against New England on Dec. 5, 1999. Nguyen's efforts helped limit the Bucs running game to 71 yards on 33 carries (2.2 avg.), including 22 carries for 56 yards by Warrick Dunn. Against San Diego (9/23), he tied for the team lead in tackles with nine and recorded two tackles for a loss – while helping hold LaDainian Tomlinson to a 3.3-yard average on 27 carries. At Philadelphia (9/30), Nguyen tied for the team lead with 10 tackles despite dislocating the ring finger on his right hand during the game. He underwent surgery to insert a pin in the finger on October 1. At Oakland (10/7), he finished the game third on the team with eight tackles despite playing with a cast on his right hand. He also recorded a tackle behind the line and a quarterback pressure. In the Cowboys 9-7 win over Washington (10/15) on Monday Night Football, Nguyen led the team with 11 tackles, five more than the next Dallas defender. His play helped limit the Redskins to 226 total yards. In the win over Arizona (10/28), he led the team with 13 tackles while helping limit the Cards to 75 rushing yards. He added another team-high 11 tackles in the overtime loss at the Giants (11/4) while helping limit the Giants running game to 93 yards on 26 carries (3.6 avg.). He again led the team in tackles at Atlanta (11/11) with 14 as the Falcons were limited to 201 total yards. He logged a team-high 14 tackles in the loss to Philadelphia (11/18), while helping hold the Eagles to 227 total yards, 100 yards below their season average, and just 98 yards rushing on 35 carries (2.8). In the Thanksgiving Day game against Denver (11/22), Nguyen again led the team in tackles, this time with a career-high 16 stops. In Dallas' 20-14 win at Washington (12/2), he tied for the team lead in tackles with eight and added a tackle for a loss and a quarterback pressure. Dallas limited Stephen Davis, the NFC's third leading rusher entering the game, to 53 yards on 17 carries (3.1). In the Cowboys' surprising 27-21 win over playoff bound San Francisco (12/30), Nguyen led Dallas with 10 tackles and added two quarterback pressures as the NFL's second ranked running game (146-yards-per-game) was limited to 56 yards.

2000: Nguyen opened the season as the Cowboys starting middle linebacker and, despite missing six games due to injury, finished the year with 64 tackles, four stops behind the line of scrimmage, four passes defensed and two interceptions. In his first professional start, he posted eight tackles and intercepted a pass, which he returned 24 yards against Philadelphia (9/3). At Arizona (9/10), he led the team with a then career-high 12 tackles despite being slowed and missing playing time with a sprained MCL in his left knee. His knee sprain forced him to miss the next three games. He returned to action at the N.Y. Giants (10/15) and tallied seven stops, one behind the line of scrimmage, before suffering a strained neck in the fourth quarter that forced him from the game. He missed the next three games due to the neck strain, returning to action against Cincinnati (11/12). He saw action against the Bengals at middle linebacker in passing situations and recorded his second interception of the season. Nguyen posted four stops in spot play at Baltimore (11/19) before finishing fifth on the team with eight tackles at Tampa Bay (12/3) despite not starting. He was second on the team with seven tackles against Washington (12/10) while seeing considerable playing time off the bench. His effort against the Redskins helped limit Stephen Davis, the NFC's second-leading rusher, to 57 yards. He returned to the starting lineup at middle linebacker against the N.Y. Giants (12/17) and tied for third on the team with 10 stops. He closed out the season at Tennessee (12/25) tying for third on the club with seven stops in his second consecutive start.

1999: Nguyen led the team with 41 tackles and 2.5 sacks in the preseason, setting the stage for an outstanding rookie season. He made an immediate impact with his stellar special teams play and solid performance as a nickel middle linebacker. He finished the season as the Cowboy's leading special teams tackler with 18 stops, recording at least one special teams tackle in 12-of-17 games (including postseason) and earning all-rookie honors from the Football Digest for his special teams play. On defense, he had 34 tackles, five tackles for lost yardage (tied for third on the team), one sack, one interception and a forced fumble. In his first professional game, at Washington (9/12), Nguyen led the Cowboys with three special teams tackles. He also recovered a key fourth quarter on-side kick that helped the Cowboys overcome a 21-point deficit in a game that was won by Dallas in overtime. The following week against Atlanta (9/20), he recorded his first career tackle at middle linebacker in a nickel passing situation. Against Arizona (10/3), Nguyen tied for the team lead among linebackers with a season-high five tackles, including one for a three-yard loss on a screen pass. He also recorded his first career interception with a fourth quarter pick of Jake Plummer. Two weeks later at the N.Y. Giants (10/18), he equaled his season-high with five tackles while playing middle linebacker in nickel situations. Nguyen recorded his first career sack at Indianapolis (10/31) when he brought down Peyton Manning for a 13-yard loss on first-and-goal from the Dallas three-yard line. He also tied for the team lead with three special teams stops against the Colts. In the Monday night loss at Minnesota (11/8), Nguyen tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles while also forcing a fumble on a second quarter kickoff return that Charlie Williams recovered at the Vikings 24-yard line to set up the second Dallas touchdown. Playing mostly in the nickel defense, he recorded four tackles against the Vikings. At Arizona (11/21), he tied for the team lead with two special teams stops and added two tackles at middle linebacker in Dallas' nickel defense. At New Orleans (12/24), he recorded four tackles and had a tackle for a 12-yard loss. In the season finale against the N.Y. Giants (1/2/00), Nguyen took over at middle linebacker in the second half for Randall Godfrey (back stiffness) and went on to tie his season-high tackle total with five while helping limit the Giants to 74 yards rushing. In the playoff loss at Minnesota (1/9/00), Nguyen broke up two passes and recorded three tackles.

COLLEGE: Following his senior season, Nguyen was one of the nation's most decorated collegiate players, earning All-America honors from Walter Camp, The Sports Network, The Sporting News, Burger King/AFCA, Football News & College Football News. The National and Big 12 Defensive Player of the Year, he also won the Lombardi Trophy and Chuck Bednarik Award, while being a finalist for the Dick Butkus and Sullivan Awards. Nguyen was also named the Dallas Morning News Big 12 Male Athlete of the Year. He finished his senior season with a career-high 147 tackles, becoming the first player in school history to lead Texas A&M in tackles four straight seasons. He also added 20 tackles for losses, four sacks, four forced fumbles and two interceptions. He closed his collegiate career with A&M records for consecutive starts (51), tackles (517) and tackles-per-game (10.7). As a junior, he was an All-Big 12 first-team selection and the team MVP. He was also an All-Big 12 first-team selection as a sophomore. In 1995, Nguyen was named Southwest Conference Defensive Newcomer of the Year as a redshirt freshman.

PERSONAL: Nguyen was a consensus Texas Top 100 linebacker following his prep career at Rockport-Fulton High School in Rockport, Tex. He earned district 30-3A Defensive Player of the Year honors as a senior after tallying 188 tackles. He also earned Class 3A second-team all-state honors as a punter. Nguyen graduated from Texas A&M with a degree in Agricultural Development in Aug. 1998 and took post-graduate classes during his senior football season. He has taken an active role in the Dallas community, participating once again as a celebrity football coach for the 2002 Dallas Cowboys Let Us Play! Sports Camp for Girls. Coach Nguyen lead his group to the mock "Super Bowl" victory in 2001. He also took part in the Linebacker's Blitz Hunger at the Salvation Army as part of the Hams for the Holiday program, where players distributed holiday hams to needy families. He also took part in the Dallas Cowboys Salvation Army Tree Donation, donating gifts to underprivileged children in the Metroplex. In years past, Nguyen took part in programs that include the Children's Cancer Fund Fashion Show and the Dallas Race for the Cure benefiting the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation for Research. Dat and wife Becky were married last spring.

John Nix

Defensive Tackle

6'1" ★ 308 ★ 11/24/76
Southern Mississippi
NFL: 2nd Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

GAMES PLAYED/STARTED: 2001 (16/0).

When the Cowboys drafted defensive tackle John Nix in 2001, they were seeking a defensive tackle who was solid at plugging the middle and stopping the run, a constant pursuit in the NFL. His stout physical stature, quickness and athletic ability make him a difficult player to move in close quarters. He also has good natural strength and the toughness necessary to play in the NFL trenches. Dallas looks for Nix to improve from his rookie year and be a big part of the young defensive line rotation.

2001: For most of the season, Nix worked behind Brandon Noble at nosetackle and finished tied for second on the team with two forced fumbles. He also posted 22 tackles. Against Tampa Bay (9/9), he saw considerable time in the defensive tackle rotation, recording three tackles and forcing his first career fumble when he brought down Warrick Dunn. Against Washington (10/15), he made one of the biggest plays of the season by stripping Stephen Davis of the ball with 2:39 remaining in the game. Greg Ellis recovered the fumble to give Dallas the ball for their game-winning field goal drive. He also recorded two tackles and a quarterback pressure against the Redskins. Against Philadelphia (11/18), he recorded two tackles and two quarterback pressures, helping limit the Eagles offense to 227 total yards and just 2.8 yard-per-carry on the ground. Nix recorded a season-high four tackles at Seattle (12/16), while helping limit Ricky Watters to 3.7 yards-per-carry.

COLLEGE: As a senior, Nix received All-Conference USA honors as selected by The Sporting News after serving as a dominant force in the middle of the Southern Mississippi defensive line. Nix was a key component of a Golden Eagles defense that finished the year second in the nation in total defense. As a junior, Nix was hampered throughout the season with a toe injury. He still managed 21 tackles and two sacks as the Golden Eagles claimed the Conference USA title with a 9-3 record, including a victory over Colorado State in the Liberty Bowl. In his sophomore campaign, Nix started nine-of-11 games finishing the year with a career-high 47 tackles. Following a redshirt freshman year in 1996, Nix was voted to the Conference USA All-Freshman Team and The Sporting News Freshman All-America squad after starting all 11 games at defensive tackle for the Eagles. At Southern Miss, Nix was a teammate of fellow Cowboys 2001 draft pick Daleroy Stewart. That tandem helped form one of the nations most powerful collegiate defensive lines.

PERSONAL: A native of Lucedale, Miss., Nix graduated from George County High School where, as a senior, he registered 75 tackles and was a second-team all-state selection. He was also named district most valuable defensive lineman and was selected to play in the Mississippi/Alabama High School All-Star Game. Nix also excelled in track and field, finishing third in the state in the shot put. Nix was a sports administration major at USM. As a rookie, Nix was a member of the Cowboys inaugural "Rookie Club", a program designed to introduce rookies to community and charity work. Throughout the season, the rookies made visits to and spent time with children at Children's Medical Center of Dallas, Oak Cliff Boys and Girls Clubs, The Salvation Army and its' Christmas Distribution Center.

Brandon Noble

Defensive Tackle

6'2" ★ 307 ★ 4/10/74
Penn State
NFL: 4th Year ★ Cowboys: 4th Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1999 (16/0, 1/0), 2000 (16/9), 2001 (16/16). Total – 48/25, 1/0.

PRO: An NFL Europe success story, Brandon Noble originally signed with Dallas in February of 1999 and spent the spring of that year guiding Barcelona to the World Bowl in NFL Europe. A tenacious competitor who overcompensates for any physical shortcomings with a non-stop desire to make plays, Noble quickly found a spot in the Cowboys defensive tackle rotation in his first year with the club. In his second NFL season (2000), as injuries felled his tackle linemates, Noble stood tall as the only defensive tackle to see action in all 16 games, starting nine contests. He came into his own as a very productive starter last year and tied for second on the team in sacks. He also developed a solid reputation as a blue-collar run-stopper who has a fine future ahead of him. He has become a quiet leader on the vastly improved Dallas defense, and he will be a key cog in the Cowboys defensive tackle rotation that now includes Pro Bowler La'Roi Glover.

2001: As a key contributor to the Cowboys dramatic turnaround on defense in 2001, Noble was the team's ninth leading tackler with 56 stops. He tied for second on the club in sacks with 3.5, and he was fourth in quarterback pressures with six. Noble's efforts helped the Cowboys defense earn a fourth overall ranking by allowing an average of just 287.4 yards-per-game. In 2001, the Cowboys allowed 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that was 927 fewer yards than the club allowed during the 2000 season. Those numbers represented the largest turnaround by any defensive unit in the NFL in 2001. In the season opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), Noble recorded four tackles, a tackle for a loss and a quarterback pressure while helping limit the Bucs running game to 71 yards on 33 carries (2.2 avg.), including 22 carries for 56 yards by Warrick Dunn. Against San Diego (9/23), he led all defensive linemen with five tackles while helping limit LaDainian Tomlinson to a 3.3 yard average on 27 carries. In the Sunday night loss at Philadelphia (9/30), he recorded four tackles and two quarterback pressures while also recovering a third quarter fumble. Despite suffering a fractured bone in his left hand in the second quarter of the Cowboys loss at Oakland (10/7), Noble returned to action in the second half and finished the day with three tackles. In the Monday night win over Washington (10/15), he recorded four tackles and helped limit the Redskins to 226 total yards. In the 17-3 win over Arizona (10/28), he recorded his first sack of the season with an eight-yard take-down of Jake Plummer. At the N.Y. Giants (11/4), Noble turned in one of his best days as a Cowboy with five tackles, a sack, two tackles behind the line, a batted pass and a fumble recovery that led to the first Dallas touchdown. His efforts helped limit the Giants running game to 93 yards on 26 carries (3.6 avg). Two weeks later, against Philadelphia (11/18), he tied his season-high with five tackles and helped limit the Eagles to 227 total yards, including just 98 on the ground on 35 carries (2.8 avg.). In the win at Washington (12/2), Noble recorded the first multi-sack game of his career with 1.5 sacks while adding three tackles and helping limit Stephen Davis to 53 yards on 17 carries (3.1 avg.). In the win over the Giants (12/9), he registered four tackles and a tackle for a loss while helping limit New York to 245 yards of total offense, including just 73 yards on their final eight possessions. Noble tied his season high with five tackles in the loss at Seattle (12/16). In the upset win over playoff bound San Francisco (12/30), Noble recorded three tackles and helped limit the NFL's second ranked running game (146 yards-per-game) to 56 yards on the day.

2000: As injuries claimed the season of players all around him on the defensive line, Noble answered the call with a breakthrough season, finishing second among the club's defensive linemen with a career-high 69 tackles. He was also third on the team with 10 quarterback pressures. After seeing action mostly as a reserve the first half of the season, Noble moved into the starting lineup for Chad Hennings (neck nerve irritation) the final eight games of the season and recorded 45 tackles (5.6 per game) in his new role. As a member of the defensive tackle rotation, Noble came off the bench to add five tackles in the season opener against Philadelphia (9/3). He earned his first NFL start when he replaced Leon Lett in the lineup at Carolina (10/1). In that game, Noble recorded four tackles and a career-high four quarterback pressures. He also forced Steve Beuerlein into an intentional grounding penalty at the Panthers one-yard line that led to a Dallas safety. Returning to a reserve role, he logged two tackles at the N.Y. Giants (10/15) and three stops against Arizona (10/22). Noble led all defensive linemen and was fourth on the team with eight tackles against Jacksonville (10/29). One week later, he improved on that performance when he took over the starting right tackle spot for Hennings and led the defensive line with a career-high 10 stops at Philadelphia (11/5). It was the second highest tackle total by a Dallas defensive lineman in 2000 and the tops by a defensive tackle. Noble was second among defensive linemen with six tackles and recorded his first sack of the season when he forced Akili Smith out of bounds on the opening possession against Cincinnati (11/12). He also batted down his first pass of the year and helped hold the Bengals to 195 total yards. In the ensuing weeks, Noble remained among the defensive leaders in tackles with eight stops at Baltimore (11/19) and five against Minnesota (11/23). He then led all defensive linemen with five tackles at Tampa Bay (12/3). Against Washington (12/10), Noble forced the first fumble of his career and helped limit Stephen Davis, the NFC's third-leading rusher, to 57 yards. In a season of firsts for Noble, he added another against the N.Y. Giants (12/17) when he blocked a Brad Daluiso field goal attempt for his first career block. Noble closed out the season finishing second among defensive linemen with six tackles at Tennessee (12/25) in the season finale.

1999: A participant in all 17 regular season and postseason games, Noble finished the year second on the team for tackles among non-starters with 36 stops. He tied for fourth on the squad in sacks with three, and he also added five quarterback pressures and one fumble recovery. In his first NFL regular season game action at Washington (9/12), Noble was a part of the defensive tackle rotation, logging one tackle and a quarterback pressure that helped set up a Greg Ellis sack in overtime. In the Cowboys 35-7 win over Arizona (10/3), he recorded three tackles and helped limit the Cardinals to 208 total yards. Two weeks later in the Monday night loss at the N.Y. Giants (10/18), he recorded a season-high four tackles while helping limit the Giants to 75 yards rushing on 30 carries (2.5). The following week in the 38-20 win over Washington (10/24), Noble recorded his first career sack with a takedown of Brad Johnson. At Minnesota (11/8), he registered his second sack of the season with a takedown of Jeff George, while tying his season-high with four tackles. In the Thanksgiving Day win over Miami (11/25), Noble turned in one of his most productive outings of the season. He picked up his third sack of the year with a take-down of Dan Marino and recorded three tackles and a tackle for a loss as Dallas shutout the Dolphins and limited them to just 69 yards rushing. In the win over Philadelphia (12/12), he recovered his first career fumble. The following week against the N.Y. Jets (12/19), he again tied his season-high tackle total of four. Noble spent the spring with the Barcelona Dragons of NFL Europe. He finished fifth in the league with five sacks while placing fourth on the Dragons tackle chart with 27. His effort helped lead Barcelona to the World Bowl.

1998: Noble signed with San Francisco on Jan. 13 and was allocated to the Barcelona Dragons of NFL Europe. He was named NFL Europe Defensive Player of the Week after recovering two fumbles, returning one 34 yards for a touchdown, against Frankfurt. Noble went to training camp with the 49ers but was released at the end of camp. He signed onto the 49ers' practice squad on Dec. 3 and was released following the season.

1997: Noble signed with San Francisco as a rookie free agent but was waived during camp. He was signed to the 49ers' practice squad Nov. 12, but was waived a week later.

COLLEGE: As a senior at Penn State in 1996, Noble posted a team-high eight sacks and a career-high 72 tackles. In his first full season as a starter during his junior campaign, he registered 53 tackles and four sacks. As a sophomore, he totaled 22 tackles and two sacks during Penn State's 12-0 season.

PERSONAL: Brandon Patrick Noble was named the class 3-A State Player of the Year as a senior at First Colonial High School in Virginia Beach, Va. Noble donated 2002 Dallas Desperados season tickets to children from the Salvation Army. He once again participated in The Salvation Army Angel Tree Program, providing gifts for the holiday season to children in need. Noble was a celebrity football coach for the 2001 Let Us Play! Sports Camp for Girls, a three-day sports camp for inner-city girls. Brandon and his wife Mary Kate were married Thanksgiving weekend during the 2000 season. They live in Irving, TX with their son, Conner (9/11/01).

Solomon Page

Tackle

West Virginia
NFL: 4th Year ★ Cowboys: 4th Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1999 (14/6, 1/0), 2000 (16/16), 2001 (14/14). Totals – 44/36, 1/0.

PRO: When Solomon Page was still available in the second round of the 1999 NFL Draft, the Dallas Cowboys saw an opportunity to add a big, aggressive lineman with outstanding athletic ability to the roster. Page lived up to his billing and was immediately thrust into the responsibility of playing on a regular basis as a rookie – seeing action in 14 games with six starts. In his second NFL season, Page started every game at right guard and displayed continued improvement as the season progressed. A versatile athlete, Page made a successful transition to the starting right tackle position in 2001, where he started 14 games before a knee injury cut his season short. He appears to be a solid, long-term replacement for four-time Pro Bowler Erik Williams, who was the Cowboys right tackle from 1991 to 2000. A left tackle in college, Page is capable of playing at either guard or tackle on both sides of the line.

2001: After starting at right guard in 2000, Page moved outside to right tackle, and he played a key role in a Dallas offensive line that helped the Cowboys finish third in the NFL in rushing at 136.5 yards-per-game. The 2,184 rushing yards Dallas gained for the season was the second best total by a Cowboys' team in the last 20 years (1995 – 2,201). The Dallas offensive line also helped Emmitt Smith rush for an NFL-record 11th consecutive 1,000-yard season, while Smith also moved into the second spot on the NFL's all-time career rushing list with 16,187 yards. The Dallas offensive line allowed 34 sacks in 447 pass plays in 2001. Just 12 teams allowed fewer sacks for the year and only eight teams lost fewer yards due to sacks than the 190 lost by Dallas. Ten times opponents were held to two sacks or less during the season. In the season opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), Page moved into the right tackle spot and helped the Cowboys rush for 99 yards on 23 carries (4.3 avg.). In the Cowboys next game, a home loss to San Diego (9/23), Page helped lead the way as Smith ran for 85 yards on 17 carries (5.0 avg.) and moved past Barry Sanders into second on the NFL's all-time rushing list. In the Cowboys Monday night win over Washington (10/15), Page and Co. helped lead Smith (107 yards) to his first 100-yard rushing game of the season and Dallas to 211 yards on the ground for the evening. At Atlanta (11/11), Page played a part in an effort that opened the way for Troy Hambrick to gain 127 rushing yards and Michael Wiley to add 85 en route to the Cowboys gaining 207 yards (6.3 avg.) for the day. Against Philadelphia (11/18), Page helped Dallas rush for 132 yards on 23 carries (5.7 avg.) against the NFL's eighth ranked run defense. Page played a key role in Dallas' 20-14 win at Washington (12/2), helping the Cowboys log their third 200+ yard rushing day of season as the team ran 44 times for 215 yards (4.9 avg.), including 102 yards from Smith. Page was matched against Marco Coleman in the win over the Redskins, limiting Coleman to two tackles and no sacks. In the loss at Seattle (12/16), Page limited Michael Sinclair to two tackles and no sacks on the day. At Arizona (12/23), Page suffered a sprained MCL in his left knee and was placed on injured reserve the following day, missing the final two games of the season.

2000: Page opened the season as the starting right guard and was part of an offensive line that surrendered 35 sacks – only 12 teams allowed fewer in 2000. He displayed his versatility in the opener against Philadelphia (9/3), where he started the game at right guard but was shifted out to right tackle after Williams was ejected. At Arizona (9/10), Page's blocking helped limit the Cardinals to one sack. The following week at Washington (9/18), he was a key part of an offensive line that helped Dallas rush for 153 yards on 31 carries (4.9 avg.) and allowed just one sack in 24 pass plays. At Carolina (10/1), Page helped lead Smith to 132 yards rushing on 24 carries (5.5 avg.), his first 100-yard effort of the season. In the Cowboys convincing 48-7 win over Arizona (10/22), the Dallas offensive line keyed the offense to 347 total yards, including 200 yards rushing – 112 by Smith – and allowed just one sack. The line then cleared the way for Smith to top the 100-yard barrier in each of the next two games – overtime losses to Jacksonville (10/29) and at Philadelphia (11/5). In the Thanksgiving Day loss to Minnesota (11/23), the Dallas line did not allow a sack in 43 pass attempts and Smith rushed for 100 yards on 12 carries before suffering a third quarter concussion. At Tampa Bay (12/3), Page helped limit the Buccaneers, the league's third ranked defense in sacks-per-pass play, to two sacks in 35 pass plays and led the way for 113 rushing yards. He also helped limit Warren Sapp to two tackles on the day and the Tampa Bay starting defensive line to six tackles. The following week against Washington (12/10), Page started at guard but moved to right tackle following a neck injury to Williams early in the second half. The Dallas line didn't miss a beat as Smith rushed for 150 yards and a touchdown against the NFL's third ranked defense. In all, the Cowboys ran for 242 yards against the Redskins, the most by the Dallas offense since recording 271 yards on the ground at Philadelphia on Oct. 31, 1993. Down the stretch in 2000, Page was part of a unit the allowed just four sacks of Troy Aikman in his last 172 career passing attempts.

1999: Page was a key part of an offensive line that allowed just 24 sacks, the second fewest in the NFL, while allowing one or fewer sacks in nine-of-16 games. In addition, he helped Smith to his highest single season rushing total (1,397) since 1995. After being inactive the first two weeks of the season, Page earned his first NFL playing time against Arizona (10/3) in his first professional start. Filling in at right tackle for Williams, Page helped hold the Cardinals without a sack in 21 pass plays. With the game at Arizona (11/21), Page began a string of five consecutive starts at left guard for Allen (sprained knee). At Arizona, Page, who also saw fourth quarter action at right tackle when Williams left the game with a blow to the head, helped the running game amass 156 yards. On Thanksgiving Day against Miami (11/25), he helped lead Smith to 103 rushing yards while helping the line surrender just one sack in 30 pass plays. He started at left guard at New England (12/5) but also saw time at left tackle for Flozell Adams. Page and the offensive line helped Aikman pass for 242 yards against Philadelphia (12/12) while allowing only one sack in 41 passing plays. Against the N.Y. Jets (12/19), his blocking was a key part of a Dallas running attack that gained 195 yards while surrendering only one sack in 29 passing plays. He returned to reserve duty at New Orleans (12/24) as Allen returned to the lineup. Page was the Cowboys second-round (55th overall) draft choice in the 1999 NFL Draft.

COLLEGE: A three-year starter at left tackle, Page helped anchor an offensive line at West Virginia that produced at least 300 total yards in each of his final 21 games. He helped All-America running back Amos Zereoue become the school's and Big East's all-time leading rusher (4,054 yards) and quarterback Marc Bulger become WVU's career passing yards leader (5,995). An All-Big East selection as a junior, Page graded out at 89% consistency for an offense that generated 5,546 total yards. He earned All-Big East honors as a sophomore for an offense that amassed 4,602 yards. As a redshirt freshman, Page graded out at 84% consistency, becoming just the 11th freshman since 1980 to earn a spot in the exclusive Mountaineer Club for players who grade at least 80 percent at their position in at least eight games. Page was redshirted his first year at WVU after attending Hargrave Military Academy for one year.

PERSONAL: An all-city selection at Brashear High School in Pittsburgh, Pa., Page was an athletic coaching education major at West Virginia. Page participated in the Pegasus Project with the team's offensive line and the RISE School of Dallas, which helped raise awareness for the arts in Dallas. He also helped support The RISE School in Dallas with the "First Downs for Down Syndrome" project with the entire Cowboys offensive line.

GAMES/STARTS: 2001 (13/0).

PRO: Originally drafted in the seventh-round (229th overall) by the Oakland Raiders, Ken-Yon Rambo fell into the Cowboys lap when the Raiders released him at the end of training camp. He immediately provided Dallas a big, physical receiver that is not afraid to go across the middle and fight for the football. With a year to learn the nuances of the position from Raghib Ismail and Joey Galloway, bigger things will be expected of Rambo in his sophomore campaign. He will not only battle for playing time at receiver but also on special teams, returning both kicks and punts.

2001: Originally drafted by Oakland, Rambo was released at the end of camp and signed by the Cowboys on Sept. 5. After being inactive the first two games of the season, he saw his first NFL action but did not record a catch at Philadelphia (9/30). Against his former team, Rambo recorded his first career reception with an eight-yard catch on fourth-and-four in the fourth quarter at Oakland (10/7). With Reggie Swinton and Joey Galloway nursing injuries, Rambo became the team's primary return man against Arizona (10/28), logging his first career punt (two returns for 15 yards) and kickoff returns (two returns for 30 yards). Another first came against Denver (11/22) when he recorded his first career special teams tackle. Rambo saw action in the club's four-wide receiver sets but did not record a catch at Washington (12/2). He did add a special teams tackle on kickoff coverage. His second catch of the season came against the N.Y. Giants (12/9) with a 14-yard grab. In the Cowboys surprising win over San Francisco (12/30), Rambo recorded a six-yard catch on third-and-five to pick up a first down.

COLLEGE: Rambo closed out his collegiate career eighth on OSU's all-time record list with 106 career receptions, while his 1,849 career receiving yards ranked seventh. He set a school record with 64 kickoff returns for a 22.9-yard average. As a senior, Rambo caught a career-high 53 passes (ninth best total in Buckeye history) for 794 yards (15.0) and two touchdowns. He also returned 17 kickoffs for 478 yards (28.1) and 23 punts for 145 yards (6.3). As a junior, his efforts earned him All-Big Ten honorable mention honors, as well as the Paul Warfield Award, given to Ohio State's top receiver, as he finished second on the team with 41 receptions for 833 yards (20.3) and six touchdowns. He returned 21 kickoffs for 653 yards (21.1), breaking the previous Buckeye single-season record of 513 yards. Against Ohio University, Rambo posted seven receptions for 181 yards (25.6) with 68- and 15-yard touchdown receptions. His 181 receiving yards placed him eighth in Ohio State's record books for single game receiving yards. Rambo saw limited action his first two seasons with the Buckeyes. He did stand out on special teams, returning 12 kickoffs for 237 yards (18.8) and 19 punt returns for 128 yards (6.7) as a sophomore.

PERSONAL: The sociology major was a consensus All-America and all-state selection at Long Beach, Calif., Polytechnic High. USA Today rated Rambo as the top receiver in the country after he caught a school season record 79 passes for 1,096 yards (13.9 avg.) and 17 touchdowns as a senior. He also lettered in track as a sprinter. As a rookie, Rambo was a member of the Cowboys inaugural "Rookie Club," a program designed to introduce rookies to community and charity work. The Rookie Club made visits to and spent time with children at Children's Medical Center of Dallas, Oak Cliff Boys and Girls Club, The Salvation Army and its Christmas Distribution Center.

PRO: After struggling to find a consistent deep snapper throughout the 2001 season, the Cowboys found the possible solution to their special teams mishaps when they signed Jeff Robinson on March 5. Robinson, originally drafted as a defensive end by the Denver Broncos in the fourth round (98th overall) of the 1993 NFL Draft, signed as an unrestricted free agent with the St. Louis Rams in 1997. He has proven to be a durable player, having not missed a game (144) in his nine-year NFL career, while making a mid-career switch from defensive end to tight end. He is an experienced deep snapper and tight end who will add stability to the special teams units while also contributing in several offensive packages.

2001: Robinson started a career-high nine games for the Rams, finishing with 11 receptions for 108 yards and a touchdown while adding five special teams tackles serving as the team's deep snapper as the Rams Jeff Wilkens connected on 23-of-29 field goals for the year. In the season opener at Philadelphia (9/9), he tied his career-high with two catches for 26 yards and added two tackles on special teams. At San Francisco (9/23), Robinson caught one pass for one yard before tying a career-high with two receptions for 14 yards while making his first start of the season against Miami (9/30). At Detroit (10/8), he caught one pass for five yards then started at fullback against the N.Y. Giants (10/14), catching a pass for three yards and tallying a tackle on special teams. Against Carolina (11/11), he caught one pass for six yards before starting at fullback and registering two receptions for 27 yards at New England (11/18). Against San Francisco (12/9), he added another catch for 26 yards.

2000: Robinson once again saw action in all 16 games while starting two games at tight end. He ended the season with five catches for 52 yards while adding five special teams tackles. With the help of Robinson at deep snapper, kicker Jeff Wilkins led the NFL and tied the league record for field goal percentage in a season, connecting on all 17 attempts. Robinson started the season opener against Denver (9/4), recording one reception for three yards. He added eight yards on one catch the following week at Seattle (9/12) before earning his second start at San Francisco (10/29) and finishing with two receptions for a career-high 34 yards and two special teams tackles.

1999: He continued his seven-year streak of playing in every game of the season while making the switch from defensive end to tight end and continuing in the role as deep snapper. He started nine games at tight end, finishing with six receptions for 76 yards and two touchdowns. He recorded his first post-season touchdown on a 13-yard pass in the Divisional Playoff Game against Minnesota (1/16/00) in route to capturing the Super Bowl XXIV title.

1998: Robinson returned to the Rams and posted five tackles and four quarterback pressures while adding 11 special teams tackles. He was the teams deep snapper, helping punter Rick Tuten finish fourth in the NFC with an average of 44.2 yards-per-kick. He recorded his first NFL touchdown on a four-yard pass from Steve Bono against Carolina (11/22).

1997: He was signed by St. Louis as an unrestricted free agent from the Broncos, seeing action in 16 games and recording six tackles and 12 special teams stops – fourth on the team.

1996: As the Broncos' deep snapper, he saw action in all 16 games and the playoff game against Jacksonville (1/4/97). He also saw time at defensive end in reserve roles.

1995: Robinson saw action along the defensive line, posting eight tackles, a pass defensed and one fumble recovery. In his first season handling the deep snapper responsibilities in Denver, Robinson helped Jason Elam tie for second in the NFL in scoring among kickers.

1994: He returned to the Broncos for his sophomore campaign, seeing action mainly on special teams. He did register a career-high 14 tackles from his defensive end position.

1993: Robinson was selected in the fourth round (98th overall) in the NFL Draft by the Broncos. He saw action in all 16 games as a rookie, tallying 13 tackles, 3.5 sacks, two fumble recoveries and a forced fumble.

COLLEGE: As a senior, Robinson was named All-America, All-Big Sky Conference and conference Defensive Player of the Year after closing out his senior year with 79 tackles, 13.5 sacks, 27 stops for losses, 35 quarterback pressures, six forced fumbles and five passes defensed. In 1991, he was named second team All-America and first team All-Big Sky as he recorded 77 stops, 20 sacks and 28 tackles for losses as a junior. As a sophomore, Robinson was an all-conference academic selection while securing All-Big Sky and defensive MVP honors with 83 tackles, 16 sacks and 21 tackles for losses. As a redshirt freshman in 1989, he started nine games, posting 38 tackles, eight sacks, three forced fumbles, three fumble recoveries and three interceptions. He was redshirted his freshman year.

Derek Ross

Cornerback

Ohio State
NFL: 1st Year ★ Cowboys: 1st Year

COLLEGE: In just one season as a starter at Ohio State, Derek Ross emerged as one of the top corners in the college game in 2001. His seven interceptions ranked him among the nation's leaders, and his big-play ability allowed him to bring those picks back for 194 yards and a touchdown. His 217 career yards in interception returns ranks fourth on the school's all-time record list. In Dallas, he will look to add even more skill to what was the NFL's third ranked pass defense last season. Ross is a hard-hitting defender – finishing his career with 91 tackles – with the size and strength cornerbacks need to play physical with receivers. Those abilities also carry over to special teams where he excelled as a gunner on punt coverage and took advantage of excellent leaping ability to block three punts during his Buckeye career.

2001: An All-Big Ten Conference second-team selection, Ross started all season at weakside cornerback for the Buckeyes, ranking among the nation's leaders with seven interceptions for 194 yards in returns and a touchdown. His seven pass thefts ranked fifth on the school's season-record list while his 194 yards set a Buckeye record, breaking the previous mark of 166 yards by Gary Berry in 1997. He also broke up 13 other passes. In addition, Ross recorded 41 tackles, including three stops behind the line of scrimmage, and a sack. Ross opened his senior season with five tackles and a tackle for a loss against Akron. He forced and recovered a fumble, which he advanced 25 yards, at Indiana while also contributing five tackles. He topped that with a 43-yard interception return against Northwestern the following week. For the second week in a row, Ross recorded a pick, returning it 16-yards against Wisconsin. Making it three weeks in a row, he earned Buckeye Player of the Game honors after recording two interceptions and five passes defensed against San Diego State. At Penn State the following week, Ross took his streak to four games with another pair of interceptions, including one returned 45-yards for a touchdown. The streak came to an end when the Minnesota passing game sent no gifts his way. Against Purdue, Ross recorded his only sack of the season and intercepted his seventh pass of the year, returning it 56 yards. He closed out his career with a season-high seven tackles at Michigan.

2000: Ross spent most of his junior season as the team's third cornerback while excelling on special teams. He recorded 37 tackles, including four stops for losses of 11 yards. He also intercepted two passes for 23 yards in returns and deflected seven others. Ross opened the season with three tackles and a forced fumble against Fresno State. His first interception of the season came against Miami of Ohio. Against both Arizona and Penn State, Ross batted away a pass and made three tackles. He recorded a season high seven tackles at Purdue and then returned an interception 23 yards against Michigan State. He added another four tackles against Michigan. In the Buckeyes' Outback Bowl appearance against South Carolina, Ross earned his first career start and responded with four tackles, including one for a loss.

1999: Ross did not play football in 1999 due to eligibility issues.

1998: He saw action in every game as a freshman reserve cornerback, recording 13 tackles. He saw most of his action on special teams where he blocked three kicks. In his first game against archrival Michigan, Ross blocked a Jason Vinson punt at the Michigan 20-yard line to set up a Buckeye touchdown drive. His block of a Shane Lechler punt against Texas A&M in the Sugar Bowl was scooped up by Kevin Griffin and returned 16 yards for a touchdown.

PERSONAL: Ross was an all-state quarterback and the South Carolina Offensive Player of the Year while starring at Northwestern High School in Rock Hill, S.C. Northwestern finished second in the state his senior year with a 12-3 record. Excelling on both sides of the ball, Ross had 15 interceptions for his career as a cornerback and totaled 25 touchdowns as a junior. He majored in criminology at Ohio State.

PRO: Lynn Scott impressed coaches in the 2001 preseason with his bone-jarring hits and smart special teams play, earning a roster spot as a rookie free agent. He continued his hard hitting and playmaking on special teams in the regular season, evoking memories of another Cowboys rookie free agent success story, Bill Bates. This season he will again be competing for a roster spot in the defensive backfield that is stocked with talent.

At Philadelphia (9/30), he finished second on the team with two special teams tackles and recovered a fumble on the opening kickoff that set up a Cowboys field goal. Tim Seder

Kicker

Ashland University
FA for '00
NFL: 3rd Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 2000 (15/0), 2001 (8/0). Total - 23/0.

PRO: Tim Seder joins a long line of free agent kicker finds by Steve Hoffman. A high school teacher and coach just three years ago, Seder quickly made the transition from the fields of Ashland High School to the turf at Texas Stadium. Despite not having kicked competitively for more than two years, Seder outlasted four other rookie kickers during a preseason in which he hit seven-of-nine field goals, becoming the eighth Dallas kicker since the 1989 season – Roger Ruzek (1989), Luis Zendejas (1989), Ken Willis (1990-91), Lin Elliott (1992-93), Eddie Murray (1993, 1999), Chris Boniol (1994-96) and Richie Cunningham (1997-99). After a rookie campaign that saw him challenge a number of the club's rookie records, Seder was again kicking with confidence before a sprained right ankle sidelined him midway through his sophomore campaign. With another year of strength and conditioning under his belt, Seder should continue to improve in 2002 and provide Dallas with the consistent accuracy Cowboys coaches and fans have become accustom to in the kicking game.

2001: Seder's second season in Dallas saw him hit 12-of-12 extra points and 11-of-17 field goals before being forced to sit out the final eight games of the year. He opened his second season in Dallas with a season-long 46-yard field goal against Tampa Bay (9/9). After hitting all three of his extra point attempts against San Diego (9/23), Seder hit two first quarter field goals from 41 and 43 yards in a light rain at Philadelphia (9/30). For the second time in as many seasons, Seder logged a rushing touchdown on a fake field goal when he scored on an eight-yard run from field goal formation in the third quarter at Oakland (10/7). Despite having two second quarter field goal attempts blocked by the Raiders, he managed to hit all three of his extra point tries. The biggest game of Seder's season came in the Cowboys first win of 2001 when he contributed all nine points in the club's 9-7 win over Washington (10/15). For his performance (three-of-five on field goals), which included a 26-yard field goal as time expired for the win, Seder earned NFC Special Teams Player of the Week honors. It was the second game-winning field goal of his career. Against Arizona (10/28), he hit his only field goal (31 yards) and both extra points. Seder struggled at the N.Y. Giants (11/4), hitting a 22-yard field goal but missing kicks from 34 and 47 yards out. Seder's season came to an abrupt end at Atlanta (11/11) when he suffered a sprained right ankle while recovering a high snap on a field goal attempt. Prior to the injury, he had connected on two field goals. Seder was officially placed on injured reserve Nov. 14.

2000: In his first year of professional football, Seder finished sixth in the NFC, 12th in the NFL, in scoring among kickers with 108 points, a total that was second among rookies. His 108 points was the third highest total ever by a Dallas rookie, and he set a club record for field goals made in a season by a rookie with 25, breaking Lin Elliott's mark of 24. For the year, Seder hit 25-of-33 field goals for a 75.8 percent success rate, the second best field goal percentage by a rookie in club history behind Chris Boniol's club mark of 75.9 percent. Showing no sign of rookie jitters, Seder opened his career by hitting his first seven field goal attempts. In his NFL debut, he hit both field goal attempts (34 and 38 yarders) against Philadelphia (9/3). With 1:46 remaining at Washington (9/18), Seder hit a 38-yard field goal to help seal a 27-21 win. In a day filled with ups and downs at Carolina (10/1), Seder ended his day on a high when he connected on a 24-yard game-winning field goal in overtime to give Dallas a 16-13 victory. In the first half against the Panthers, he connected on a 27-yard kick. Then with 1:00 remaining, he was wide left from 45-yards out on a kick that would have given Dallas the win in regulation. It was the first miss of his NFL career. Seder logged a season-high six extra points against Arizona (10/22). At Philadelphia (11/5), he hit a career-long 48-yard field goal in the third quarter and added a go-ahead 27-yard field goal with 1:55 remaining in the fourth quarter to put Dallas up 13-10. Seder scored all 16 of the Cowboys second half points in a 23-6 win over Cincinnati (11/12). In doing so, he became the first kicker in club history to score a touchdown when he took a handoff on a fake field goal and rushed one yard up the middle for a score in the third quarter. That performance was named the NFL's DirecTV NFL Play of the Week. As a kicker, he struggled some from the field as he went three-of-six on field goal attempts in the rain, hitting from 35, 42 and 43 yards out but missing 39, 44 and 51-yard attempts. Seder finished the day with career-highs for points (17) and field goal attempts (6) – one attempt shy of the club record for field goal attempts in a game. In addition, he took over the kickoff duties in the second half after Micah Knorr suffered a hyperextended left knee. Against Minnesota (11/23), he hit three field goals (in four attempts). With 86 points for the season after 12 weeks, Seder moved past Ken Willis (80 points) into third on the club's rookie scoring list. His only field goal attempt at Tampa Bay (12/3) was partially blocked at the line. Seder logged 14 points and was successful on a career-best four field goals (in five attempts) against Washington (12/10). He then helped take Dallas to a 13-0 halftime lead against the N.Y. Giants (12/17) with 47- and 43-yard field goals. That action would prove to be his last of the season as he never took the field in a 31-0 loss at Tennessee (12/25) to close out the season.

1998-99: Seder did not play football but instead coached football, baseball and freshman basketball while teaching health and physical education at Lucas High School in Ashland, Ohio.

COLLEGE: Seder led Ashland University in scoring in each of his final three seasons and finished his career with a school-record 41 field goals. He left Ashland with 204 career points, to rank fourth in Ashland football scoring annals. As a senior, he totaled 64 points, connecting on 14-of-19 field goals and 22-of-24 extra points attempts. His 14 field goals on the season was the second highest field goal total in school history and his performance, which led the league, earned him All-Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference honors. Seder also earned second-team All-MIFC honors as a center fielder on Ashland's baseball team. He led the football team in scoring during both his sophomore (38 points on 8-of-13 field goals and 14-of-15 PATs) and junior (54 points on 13-of-20 field goals and 15-of-16 PATs) years. Seder handled Ashland's kicking duties as a freshman, making 28-of-29 extra point tries and six-of-12 field goal attempts for 46 points.

PERSONAL: The physical education major, upon graduating from Ashland, took his degree and became a health and physical education teacher and coach at Lucas High School in Ashland, Ohio. His students encouraged him to follow through on his tryout with the Cowboys. Seder has become active in the Dallas/Ft. Worth community since joining the Cowboys, supporting the Komen Tarrant County Race for the Cure and participating in a water safety video for children produced by the Red Cross. He is also active in FCA, speaking to area youth groups and has served as a celebrity escort in the annual Children's Cancer Fund Fashion Show. In the spring of 2001 Tim served as a volunteer assistant high school boys' basketball coach at Trinity Christian Academy in the Dallas suburb of Addison, Tex. His wife, Melissa, was also a teacher at Lucas High School. The couple has a son, Tyler Ryan (5/22/01).

D-6c for '02 (211th overall)
NFL: Rookie ★ Cowboys: Rookie

COLLEGE: When the Cowboys drafted Bob Slowikowski in the sixth round of the 2002 draft they got a big tight end with exceptional quickness for his size. Used mostly for blocking at Virginia Tech, he finished his career with 12 receptions for 286 yards and a touchdown in 43 games. After tearing the ACL in his right knee on May 21 during one of the club's Quarterback Schools, the Cowboys are looking for Slowikowski to make a speedy recovery and be the run blocking tight end in 2003 the team has been looking for since the retirement of David LaFleur.

2001: In his senior season, Slowikowski started at the tight end position full-time for the Hokies, finishing the year with four receptions for 98 yards and four special teams tackles. He started the season with a 20-yard catch against Connecticut, and closed out his Virginia Tech career with a pair of catches for 36 yards against Florida State in the Gator Bowl. He helped block for 2,434 rushing yards while surrendering just 20 sacks on 291 passes.

2000: As a junior, Slowikowski played in every game for the Hokies, starting in two games, against West Virginia and Syracuse. Slowikowski finished the season with three catches for 101 yards and a touchdown while helping block for the Big-Ten Conference's leading rushing attack with 3,242 yards. He picked up a tackle on special teams, seeing action on the extra-point, field goal and punt teams. Against West Virginia, he hauled in two passes for 82 yards and his first collegiate touchdown.

1999: Appearing in 10 games his sophomore year, Slowikowski finished the year catching three passes for 47 yards and recording three solo tackles on special teams while helping block for 3,102 rushing yards, the conference's best rushing attack.

1998: Following a freshman redshirt year in 1997, Slowikowski played in every game during his freshman campaign, finishing with two receptions for 40 yards and blocking for 2,346 yards on the ground.

PERSONAL: Robert Joseph Slowikowski was born on Oct. 30, 1979 in Pittsburgh, Pa. At Central Catholic High School, he once again led the team with 24 receptions for 556 yards and six touchdowns while adding 85 tackles, four sacks and five blocked kicks as a senior. As a junior split end, he led the team in receptions with 18 for 421 yards earning first-team Quad A All-Conference honors. Slowikowski graduated with a degree in finance from Virginia Tech.

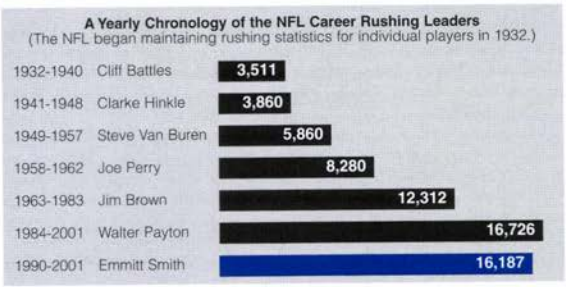
PRO: In 12 seasons, Emmitt Smith has made an impact on the NFL that few players can match at any position or in any era. As the second-ranked rusher in NFL history, Smith has won four NFL rushing titles, three Super Bowl titles and a league (1993) and Super Bowl (XXVIII) MVP award. He has been selected to the Pro Bowl nine times, more than any other offensive player in club history, and among NFL running backs, only Barry Sanders (10) has been selected more times. With 540 rushing yards this season, Smith will become just the seventh player in NFL history to carry the title of all-time rushing leader, taking that designation from Walter Payton.

Smith enters the 2002 season with 16,187 career rushing yards, and only Payton's 16,726 career yards stand between Smith and the title. Smith is already the NFL's career rushing touchdowns leader with 148, and he stands second in league annals in total touchdowns with 159, trailing the all-time leader, Jerry Rice, by 37. The first player in NFL history with five straight seasons with over 1,400 yards rushing, Smith and Jim Brown are the only players with seven straight 10-touchdown seasons to start their career. With 1,021 yards rushing in 2001, Smith became the first player

A Yearly Chronology of the NFL Career Rushing Leaders
(The NFL began maintaining rushing statistics for individual players in 1932.)



Emmitt Smith continues to climb the all-time rushers chart and is now in sight of Walter Payton's record of 16,726 rushing yards. The two runners have strikingly similar career rushing numbers. Here's how Smith compared to Payton at the end of the 2001 NFL season:

	Yrs	Games	Att	Yards	Avg.	Yds/Game
Emmitt Smith (1990-2001)	12	185	3,798	16,187	4.3	87.5

in NFL history to rush for 1,000 yards in 11 consecutive seasons and the first to post 11 1,000-yard rushing seasons in a career. He is also second on the NFL's all-time rushing attempts list with 3,798, trailing only Payton (3,838). With an NFL record 25 touchdowns in 1995, Smith scored 100 career touchdowns in just six seasons, the fastest anyone in league history has reached that mark (he tied Brown's NFL record by scoring 100 touchdowns in just 93 career games). His 148 career rushing touchdowns in 185 games gives him a 0.80 touchdown-per-game scoring average, second behind Brown's 0.90 for tops among the all-time rushing touchdown scorers (John Riggins 0.59 and Walter Payton 0.58 are next on the list). Smith's longevity and ability to score touchdowns have combined to give him three of the five best touchdown totals against a single opponent in league history. His 25 career scores against the Arizona Cardinals is the third best total by a player against an opponent since 1970, followed by his 24 scores against Washington and his 21 against the N.Y Giants.

Smith is one of only three players in Dallas history with three career 100-point seasons, and he is the only non-kicker to accomplish the feat. His value to the Cowboys' success can be seen in the club's 97-24 mark (89-22 in regular season) when he carries the ball 20-or-more times a game and 63-18 record (56-18 in regular season) when he rushes for 100 yards. The century mark has become a big number in Smith's career, having rushed for 100 yards in 151-of-285 games dating back to high school (45-of-49 at Escambia High School, 25-of-34 at Florida and 81-of-202 at Dallas, including playoffs). His 45 100-yard games in high school is still the national record, and in NFL annals, Smith's 74 100-yard rushing games ranks him third all-time behind Payton (77) and Sanders (76). Included in Smith's club-record 74 regular season 100-yard rushing games are 11 of the top 15 performances in team history and 18 days with over 150 yards (the fourth highest total of 150-yard games in NFL history). Smith has rushed for over 100-yards against 21 of the 30 NFL teams he has faced.

In addition, he has rushed for 2,384 yards against the Philadelphia Eagles in his 12-year career, his best output against any single opponent. That total ranks second since 1970 for running backs against one team. Smith also has the third and fifth best totals in that category.

One reason Smith has become such a workhorse in the Dallas offense over the years has been his ability to answer the bell at game time, having started 200-of-202 career games - including playoffs. He has missed just four career games due to injury, and it has been that durability that has enabled Smith to lead the Cowboys in rushing in 165 of his 185 career regular season games. The lack of decline in Smith's game is also evidenced by the fact that he has rushed for 4,953 yards since the start of the 1998 season – the fifth highest yardage total in the NFL over that time span. His 36 rushing touchdowns during the last four years is the second best figure in the league.

Smith has accumulated a number of NFL postseason records, including rushing touchdowns (19), consecutive games with a rushing touchdown (nine) and 100-yard rushing games (seven). His 1,586 yards rushing is also tops on the NFL postseason chart, and he shares the total playoff touchdown mark of 21 with Thurman Thomas. Not limited to rushing and scoring, Smith is fourth on the Cowboys all-time reception list with 470 career catches. He trails No. 3 Tony Hill (479) on that list by nine receptions. Smith is one of only five NFL players who have amassed over 10,000 career-rushing yards and 400 career receptions. He is also fourth on the NFL's all-time combined yardage list with a club record 19,110 yards.

2001: With 1,021 rushing yards in 2001, Smith became the first player in NFL history to compile 11 1,000-yard rushing seasons in a career, and he accomplished the feat over 11 consecutive years. His 1,021 yards ranked him seventh in the NFC and 15th in the NFL in rushing, despite missing two games due to injuries for the first time in his career. Smith joined with Troy Hambrick (579 rushing yards) to make Dallas one of eight teams with two backs over the 500-yard rushing mark. Smith opened the season with 40 yards on 13 carries against Tampa Bay (9/9), and with those yards, topped the 18,000-yard mark for career combined net yards. He averaged 5.0 yards a carry with 17 rushes for 85 yards against San Diego (9/23) and a 14-yard carry in the second quarter moved him past Barry Sanders into second on the NFL's all-time rushing list. After a 58-yard performance in three quarters of action at Philadelphia (9/30), Smith recorded 25 rushing yards on 16 carries and led the team with three receptions for 21 yards at Oakland (10/7). With 46 total yards against the Raiders, Smith moved past Herschel Walker (18,168 total yards) into fifth place on the NFL's all-time combined net yardage list. Smith recorded his first 100-yard rushing game of the season with 107 yards on 25 carries against Washington (10/15) and the team ran for 211 yards on the night. It was the 10th 100-yard game of his career against Washington, and he also added five receptions for 45 yards, his best receiving output since recording five catches against Philadelphia on Oct. 10, 1999. Smith had piled up 83 yards on 21 carries against Arizona (10/28) before spraining the MCL in his right knee in the fourth quarter. The injury forced him out of action at the N.Y. Giants (11/4) and Atlanta (11/11), marking the first time in his 12-year career that he missed back-to-back games due to injury. He returned to action against Philadelphia (11/18) and ran for 80 yards on 15 carries (5.3 average). On Thanksgiving Day against Denver (11/22), he ran nine times for nine yards and had two receptions for seven yards. It was the second lowest single-game rushing total of his career. At Washington (12/2) the following week, Smith bounced back with his second 100-yard rushing game of the season, recording 25 carries for 102 yards. He also scored his first touchdown of the season with a five-yard run on the game's opening drive. It was the 11th 100-yard rushing day of his career against the Redskins, including three in a row. Staying on a hot streak he ran 22 times for 62 yards and a touchdown, including a season-long 44-yard run, in the Cowboys win over the N.Y. Giants (12/9). In the rain at Seattle (12/16), Smith was limited to 12 carries for 39 yards. He went on from there to close the season in style, topping the 100-yard mark for the third time with a season-high 128 yards at Arizona (12/23). He also had a season-high 26 carries in the game and posted his 11th 100-yard game against the Cardinals. In the Cowboys upset win over playoff bound San Francisco (12/30), Smith recorded his second consecutive 100-yard rushing game and his fourth of the season with 126 yards on a season-high tying 26 carries. On his third carry of the game, Smith moved past the 16,000 career rushing yard mark, joining Walter Payton as the only players in NFL history to reach that milestone. In the game he also moved past the 19,000-yard mark for combined net yards, one of just four players to reach that plateau. Needing 56 yards in the season finale to reach the 1,000 yard mark for the season, Smith went for 77 yards and a touchdown on 18 carries at Detroit (1/6/02). The 77 yards put him over the 1,000-yard mark for the season, the 11th consecutive year he has accomplished that feat - an NFL record.

2000: Smith continued his trek through league and club record books for the 11th straight season. For the 10th consecutive season, he rushed for over 1,000 yards (1,203), becoming only the second player in NFL history to accomplish that feat (Sanders) and only the third player in history to total 10 career 1,000-yard seasons (Sanders, Payton). His rushing effort ranked fourth in the NFC and 13th in the NFL for the season. Following the season, he was selected to his ninth Pro Bowl (missed due to a left ankle injury), the most of any Cowboy in franchise history other than Bob Lilly (11 appearances) and Mel Renfro (10). Among NFL running backs, only Sanders (10) has been selected to the Pro Bowl more times than Smith. Smith started the season slowly, totaling 29 yards on seven carries in limited playing time due to a lopsided score against Philadelphia (9/3) and 59 yards on 16 carries at Arizona (9/10). With a three-yard carry early in the Cardinals game, he became only the third running back in NFL history to top the 14,000-career rushing yard mark. At Washington (9/18), he led the team with 83 yards and a touchdown on 24 carries. He was limited to 11 carries for 31 yards and a touchdown against San Francisco (9/24) before erupting for 132 yards and a touchdown – the 150th overall touchdown of his career – on 24 carries at Carolina (10/1). Smith toted the ball 19 times for 61 yards and a touchdown at the N.Y. Giants (10/15), and he tallied 112 yards and a score on 24 carries against Arizona (10/22), marking his fifth consecutive game with a rushing touchdown. Against Jacksonville (10/29), he rushed for 102 yards on 24 carries to mark his first career 100-yard game against the Jaguars. Smith recorded his third consecutive 100-yard rushing game when he ran for 134 yards and a touchdown on 26 carries at Philadelphia (11/5) while also catching a pass for 15 yards, his 450th career reception. The Eagles game marked Smith's fourth straight 100-yard game at Veterans Stadium and the 12th 100-yard game of his career against Philadelphia, the most 100-yard games by a player against a single opponent in league history. Against Cincinnati (11/12), Smith recorded just 16 yards on 17 carries, the third lowest yardage total in a game he started and did not leave due to injury in his career. He totaled 48 yards on 11 carries against the NFL's top defense at Baltimore (11/19) before scampering for 100 yards on 12 carries (8.3 avg.), including a season-long 52-yarder, against Minnesota (11/23) before suffering a concussion early in the third quarter and leaving the game. This effort marked his fourth 100-yard performance in five regular season games against the Vikings. Smith carried the ball 20 times for 80 yards and a touchdown at Tampa Bay (12/3) before exploding for 150 yards and a score on 23 carries (6.5 avg.) against Washington (12/10). The Redskins game not only marked his 70th career 100-yard game and sixth 100-yard day of the season but allowed him to move past the 15,000 career rushing yard mark, becoming the third player in NFL history to reach that milestone (Payton and Sanders). His effort against the Redskins also allowed him to eclipse the 1,000-yard mark for the season, the 10th consecutive time he has done so. He closed the year with 46 yards and a touchdown on 24 carries against the N.Y. Giants (12/17) and 20 yards on 12 carries at Tennessee (12/25).

1999: Smith finished second in the NFC, fourth in the NFL, in rushing with 1,397 yards. His rushing numbers marked his best season since the 1995 Super Bowl XXX year when he led the NFL with 1,773 yards. He also registered more 100-yard rushing games, nine, than in any other year other than 1995 when he recorded a club record 11. His 11 rushing touchdowns were the fourth best total in the NFL for 1999, and he had a touchdown in each of the first eight games of the season and nine consecutive dating to 1998 – a stretch that tied the third longest streak in club history. Overall, his 13 touchdowns tied for third in the NFL in total touchdowns. He was selected to his eighth NFC Pro Bowl squad, giving him more Pro Bowl appearances that any other offensive player in Cowboys' history. Smith opened the season at Washington (9/12) with 109 yards on 23 carries and one touchdown. The following week against Atlanta (9/20), he produced his second consecutive 100-yard rushing game with a 109-yard performance. It was just the third time in 29 games that an opposing player had rushed for over 100 yards against the Falcons. He also had two rushing touchdowns in the game, the second coming on a seven-yard run in the third quarter that moved Smith past Tony Dorsett (12,739 yards) into fourth place on the NFL's all-time career rushing list. In the Cowboys 35-7 win over Arizona (10/3), he picked up 77 yards on 22 carries and scored his fourth touchdown of the season. In the loss at Philadelphia (10/10), Smith recorded his 3,000th career carry, becoming just the fourth player in NFL history to reach that mark. For the day, he had 30 carries for 114 yards and posted a season-high five receptions for 31 yards, giving him 145 combined net yards and moving him past Tony Dorsett (15,501) into first on the Cowboys all-time combined net yardage list. The following week at New York (10/18), he became the fourth player in NFL history to top the 13,000-yard mark for career rushing yards with his 26 yards against the Giants. He also scored in his sixth consecutive game. Against Washington (10/24), he tallied 24 carries for 80 yards and a touchdown, moving him past Sanders (3,062) into second on the NFL's all-time career carry list with 3,064. The following week at Indianapolis (10/31), Smith scored two touchdowns for the second time in 1999 en route to a 22 carry, 93-yard rushing day. In the Cowboys loss at Minnesota (11/8), Smith electrified the Monday night national television audience by rushing for 140 yards and two touchdowns on 13 carries in the game's first 24 minutes. He then left the game with a fractured fourth metacarpal in his right hand. It was his best rushing total in a half in his career, and his 10.8 yards-per-carry average was a career-high. Included in his first half totals were 63- and 24-yard touchdown runs on back-to-back carries just 18 seconds apart, the fastest anyone has scored back-to-back touchdowns in league history. His 63-yard run was the third longest of his career and it gave him the yardage necessary to move past Eric Dickerson (13,259 yards) into third on the NFL's all-time rushing list. He suffered the fracture on that run, but came back to run 24 yards for a score on his next carry before leaving the game. That 24-yard score tied Marcus Allen for second all-time on the NFL's touchdown list with 145. On Nov. 9, Dr. Hugh Frederick performed surgery to place a plate and six screws in his fractured right hand. The broken bone in his hand forced Smith to miss only the second start due to an injury of his career in the Cowboys win over Green Bay (11/14). The next week at Arizona (11/21), while playing with a padded glove on his fractured right hand, Smith recorded the 60th regular season 100-yard rushing day of his career with 127 yards on 29 carries (4.4 avg.). In the Cowboys' 20-0 Thanksgiving Day win over Miami (11/25), he led the team in rushing with 103 yards on a season-high 31 carries, it was his third consecutive 100-yard rushing game and the 61st of his career. At New England (12/5), he had his string of three 100-yard rushing games snapped with a 75 yard game (19 carries). In the loss to the Patriots, he went over the 1,000 yard mark for the season, marking his ninth consecutive 1,000-yard season. In the Cowboys' win over Philadelphia (12/12), he recorded one carry for two yards before leaving the game in the first quarter with a strained groin. The following week in the loss to the N.Y. Jets (12/19), he returned to the starting lineup and recorded his seventh 100-yard rushing game of the season with 19 carries for 110 yards (5.8 avg.). He also had a season-high 36 yards receiving, including a 14-yard touchdown grab from Aikman. That scoring catch was his 146th career touchdown, moving him into sole possession of second place on the NFL's all-time touchdown list. The score also made him the club record-holder for career points (878), breaking the mark of 874 set by Rafael Septien. On Christmas Eve at New Orleans (12/24), Smith posted his eighth 100-yard rushing game of the season with 110 yards on 23 carries (4.8 avg.). He also scored his 11th rushing touchdown of the year. In the playoff clinching win over the N.Y. Giants (1/2/00), he posted a 100-yard game for the third straight week – and the ninth time on the season – with a 22 carry, 122-yard outing. That performance, which included a 45-yard run, marked the 64th 100-yard rushing game of his career, tying Eric Dickerson for the third most in NFL history. He closed another historic season in the playoff loss at Minnesota (1/9/00) by rushing for 99 yards and a touchdown on 15 carries. In the first quarter, he recorded a 65-yard run to set up a Dallas field goal. It was the longest postseason run in Cowboys history. When the day ended, he became the NFL's all-time leader in career postseason rushing yards (1,586) and rushing touchdowns (19). He also tied the NFL postseason career touchdown record – 21 by Thurman Thomas.

1998: With a resurgence that saw him rush for more yards and touchdowns than he's had in a season since 1995, Smith continued his movement through NFL and Cowboys record books. With 1,332 yards rushing, he finished fourth in the NFC, fifth in the NFL, in rushing. He finished second in the NFC, fourth in the NFL, with 13 rushing touchdowns, giving him a NFL record 125 career-rushing touchdowns. With his seventh Pro Bowl selection, he became the only offensive player in club history to be invited to Hawaii that many times. Smith opened the year against Arizona (9/6) with a season-high 29 carries for 124 yards, moving past O.J. Simpson and John Riggins into ninth on the NFL's all-time rushing yards list. At the N.Y. Giants (9/21), Smith totaled 21 yards on seven carries before suffering a strained groin in the second quarter. His strained groin limited him the next week against Oakland (9/27) as he rushed for 59 yards and a touchdown on 21 carries. He registered the 50th 100-yard rushing day of his career when the Cowboys traveled to Washington (10/4), totaling 120 yards and a touchdown on 28 carries. For the first time in back-to-back games since December of 1995, Smith again posted a 100-yard game, totaling 112 yards on 21 carries against Carolina (10/11). He joined the Michael Irvin (146 yards receiving)/Ernie Mills (110) tandem against the Panthers to become the third trio in club history to top the 100-yard mark in the same game (one rushing and two receiving). Smith gained 101 yards on 23 carries at Philadelphia (11/2) to surpass Tony Dorsett's club record for career carries (2,755), finishing the game with 2,760. Smith broke Dorsett's club record for career rushing yards the next week against the N.Y. Giants (11/8) with a season-high 163 yards on 29 carries. He passed Dorsett (12,036) on a season-long tying 32-yard run in the second quarter. He also led the team in receiving against the Giants with five catches, putting him over the 400-career reception plateau. At Arizona (11/15), he totaled 118 yards and three touchdowns on 26 carries to move past Franco Harris into seventh place on the NFL's all-time rushing list. The Cardinals game also marked the first time since 1995 that Smith recorded three consecutive 100-yard rushing days. He registered 74 yards on 17 carries against Seattle (11/22), moving him past 1,000 rushing yards for the eighth consecutive season and past Marcus Allen into sixth place on the NFL's all-time rushing list. Four days later on Thanksgiving Day against Minnesota (11/26), he registered his second three touchdown day of the month, No. 121, 122 and 123 of his career, tying Marcus Allen's NFL record for career rushing touchdowns (123). His 44 rushing yards moved him past Jim Brown into fifth on the NFL's all-time list. After posting a career-low 0.4 average on 15 carries at New Orleans (12/6) and totaling 42 yards on 14 rushes at Kansas City (12/13), Smith rebounded against Philadelphia (12/20) with his seventh 100-yard game of the season. He carried the ball 25 times for 110 yards against the Eagles to become the 12th player in NFL history to top the 15,000 total yard mark in a career. In only one half of action against Washington (12/27) in the season finale, he totaled 67 yards and two touchdowns on 10 carries. Smith's two scores, career touchdowns 124 and 125, broke Marcus Allen's NFL career rushing touchdowns record (123). Against Arizona (1/2/99) in the postseason, Smith totaled 74 yards on 16 carries.

1997: Smith's assault on the Dallas Cowboys and NFL record books continued at a hectic pace. With 1,074 yards rushing, he finished the year fifth in the NFC, 12th in the NFL, in rushing yards. His 1,308 total yards from scrimmage marked the eighth straight season he has topped the 1,000-yard mark in that category. Returning from offseason ankle surgery, Smith opened the season with 26 carries for 69 yards and three receptions for 25 yards in the 37-7 win at Pittsburgh (8/31). He had a season-high 132 yards rushing, including a season-long 44-yard carry, at Arizona (9/7) the following week. He did that despite missing part of the fourth quarter and overtime after suffering bruised ribs. The 44-yard run was his longest since a 60-yard touchdown run in the 1995 season opener at the N.Y. Giants. Early in the season against NFC East foes, Smith posted a season-high 27 carries for 91 yards against Philadelphia (9/15) on Monday Night Football and had a season-high six receptions and 91 yards rushing on 19 carries at the N.Y. Giants (10/5). With two receptions for 23 yards at Washington (10/13), Smith moved past Bob Hayes (365) into fifth place on the team's all-time reception list with 366 career catches. In a 26-22 come-from-behind win over Jacksonville (10/19), he ran 24 times for 75 yards and scored on a one-yard run, his first touchdown of the season. For the second time in 1997, Smith topped the 100-yard mark with 126 yards on 25 carries at Philadelphia (10/26), while also leading the team in receptions with five for 36 yards. He totaled 31 yards on seven carries at San Francisco (11/2) before leaving the game early in the second quarter after straining his left groin. He returned the following week against Arizona (11/9) and rushed 15 times for 64 yards and a touchdown. It was his 117th career touchdown, moving him past John Riggins and into fifth place on the NFL's all-time touchdown list. With 99 yards on 21 carries against Washington (11/16), Smith moved past the 11,000-yard mark for career rushing yards, becoming the 11th player in NFL history to pass that milestone. He also added four receptions for 31 yards, tying him with Tony Dorsett for fourth on the Cowboys all-time reception list with 382 career catches. Smith broke loose on a 21-yard touchdown run at Green Bay (11/23) and finished the day with 11 carries for 59 yards. Smith picked up 22 yards on 10 carries and three receptions for 20 yards against Tennessee (11/27) before leaving the game with a bruised left shoulder early in the third quarter. He started against Carolina (12/8) but re-aggravated the shoulder on the first drive and did not return, finishing the day with two carries for three yards. While battling the flu at Cincinnati (12/14), Smith ran 12 times for a team-high 68 yards, pushing his season rushing total over the 1,000-yard mark for the seventh consecutive season.

1996: Despite battling numerous injuries, Smith was able to rush for over 1,200 (1,204) yards for the sixth consecutive season, finishing fourth in the NFC and eighth in the NFL. He tied for third in the NFL with 15 touchdowns – including 12 rushing, which was good for fifth in the NFL – while his 327 rushing attempts were the fifth most in the league. Smith's injury problems started in the preseason when he suffered a sprained left knee and right ankle against Denver (8/17). In that game, Smith aggravated bone fragments in his right ankle that would require surgery following the season. In the season opener at Chicago (9/2), Smith was able to run for 70 yards on 18 carries before suffering a bruised neck and back while diving over the pile in the fourth quarter. Against the Bears, he became the 13th player in NFL history to top the 9,000 yard mark for career rushing yards, doing so in his 94th career game, tying the third fewest games needed to reach that mark in league history. In the home opener against the N.Y. Giants (9/8), he picked up 82 yards on 24 carries and hauled in a five-yard scoring grab, his first touchdown reception since Dec. 10, 1994 against Cleveland. He scored his first rushing touchdown of the season the next week against Indianapolis (9/15) while adding his first 100-yard rushing day of the season with 101 yards on 26 carries. His 25 yards on 15 carries at Buffalo (9/22) was his lowest rushing total since Oct. 9, 1994 against Arizona, and he suffered bruised ribs in the game. Smith topped the 2,000-yard receiving mark for his career at Philadelphia (9/30) when he had three receptions for 30 yards. He also added 92 yards and a touchdown on 22 carries while nursing sore ribs. With 112 yards rushing against Arizona (10/13), Smith recorded his 44th career 100-yard rushing day and topped Dorsett's club-record of 43. Included in his 21 carries were career rushing scores No. 100 and 101, making him the fifth player in NFL history to rush for 100 touchdowns. He recorded three more touchdowns against Atlanta (10/20), two rushing and one receiving, while leading the team in rushing for the 33rd consecutive game – breaking his club mark of 32 set from 1990-92. At Miami (10/27), Smith had a season-high seven receptions, including one for a score, his third receiving touchdown of the season after having four receiving touchdowns in his first six seasons combined. Smith had his third 100-yard rushing day of the season with 113 yards and two touchdowns on 24 carries against Philadelphia (11/3). A game-long 16-yard run in overtime at San Francisco (11/10) set up the game-winning field goal at the 49ers 12-yard line. Smith recorded season-highs of 155 yards, three touchdowns and 29 carries against Washington (11/28). The 155 yards put him over the 1,000-yard mark for the sixth consecutive season, and he became the 12th player in NFL history to top the 10,000-yard mark for a career. He also moved past Jim Brown (106) into third on the NFL's all-time rushing touchdown list with 108. Smith recorded a season-high 55 yards receiving, on five receptions, and another 85 rushing on 27 carries against New England (12/15). Smith's club-record streak of consecutive games leading the team in rushing (which dated to Oct. 9, 1994 when Lincoln Coleman led the team against Arizona) was snapped at 41 when he was inactive in the season finale at Washington (12/22). In the Cowboys wild card playoff win over Minnesota (12/28), he rushed for 116 yards on 17 carries, giving him a 6.8 yards-per-carry average, which was a postseason career-high and the third best in team history. He picked up two touchdowns, giving him a NFL record 18 postseason rushing scores, and he tied the then NFL mark for career postseason touchdowns with 20. He also scored in his eighth consecutive postseason game and logged his seventh career 100-yard rushing day, both NFL postseason records. Following the season, Smith had surgery to remove three bone fragments from his right ankle.

1995: The 1995 season was a record breaking year for Smith as he established a NFL mark for touchdowns in a season with 25, topping John Riggins' mark of 24 set in 1983. Smith became only the fourth player to lead the NFL in touchdowns for three-or-more seasons in his career, joining Don Hutson (eight seasons), Jim Brown and Lance Alworth (three). In recording his fifth-straight 1,000-yard season, Smith led the NFL in rushing with 1,773 yards, the 10th best rushing season in NFL history at the time, and the fourth time in five years he had captured the league's rushing crown. He also led the NFL in total yards from scrimmage (2,148), rushing attempts (377) and scoring (150 points) – the first non-kicker to lead the league in scoring since Jerry Rice in 1987 (he became the first non-kicker to ever lead Dallas in scoring in back-to-back seasons). All these on-field contributions earned Smith consensus All-Pro honors for the fourth straight season (first Dallas offensive player chosen four straight times since Ralph Neely from 1966-69) and his sixth consecutive Pro Bowl selection, joining Mel Renfro as the only Dallas players selected in each of their first six seasons in the league. Smith opened the season by taking his first carry 60 yards for a touchdown at the N.Y. Giants (9/4) and earning NFC Offensive Player of the Week honors. In that game, he rushed for 163 yards and four touchdowns, tying the club record for touchdowns in a game, and he broke Dorsett's club record of 72 career rushing scores by logging touchdowns number 72, 73, 74 and 75. Smith came back the next week against Denver (9/10) to run for 114 yards and record his 80th career touchdown, reaching that mark in his 79th career game, faster than Brown's NFL record of 81 games. A touchdown was again Smith's calling card at Minnesota (9/17) when he reached the end zone in the fourth quarter to put Dallas ahead 17-10 and again in overtime with the game-winning score on a 31-yard run. On the day, he had 150 yards, including 123 yards and both touchdowns on 12 second half carries, and earned NFC Offensive Player of the Week honors. Smith rounded out September, a month in which he would earn NFC Offensive Player of the Month honors, with his fourth-consecutive 100-yard day, a 116 yard effort against Arizona (9/24). In posting four-straight 100-yard days, Smith tied Dorsett's club record, and with two rushing touchdowns, he extended his club record by scoring in his 11th consecutive game (tying Lenny Moore of the Colts for the third longest streak in NFL history). Late in the Cardinals game, he suffered a bruised ulnar nerve and ruptured bursa sac in his left elbow, but he bounced back at Washington (10/1) to rush for 95 yards and led the team with a season-high eight receptions. He had a season-high 31 carries for 106 yards and two touchdowns against Green Bay (10/8) before establishing a new club record with his 87th and 88th career touchdowns at San Diego (10/15). When the Cowboys traveled to Atlanta (10/29), Smith became the 20th player in NFL history to surpass the 8,000-yard mark for his career when he rushed for a season-high 167 yards. He recorded his second-consecutive 150-yard rushing day, fourth of the season, with 158 yards and two scores on 27 carries against Philadelphia (11/6). When the Cowboys visited Oakland (11/19), Smith visited the end zone three times while adding 110 yards rushing, his ninth 100-yard rushing day of the season – tying Dorsett's club record for 100-yard games in a season. Smith left the Thanksgiving Day game against Kansas City (11/23) in the third quarter with a sprained left knee, but not before scoring his 21st rushing touchdown of the season to tie his club record. He bounced back from the sprain the following week to set a club record with his 22nd touchdown of the season while gaining 91 yards on 21 carries against Washington (12/3). With 108 yards and a touchdown at Philadelphia (12/10), Smith logged his 10th 100-yard rushing day of the season to set a new club record, while also scoring his 23rd touchdown of the year and 138th point, also club records. The next week against the N.Y. Giants (12/17), Smith tied the NFL record with his 24th touchdown of the season, and his 103 yards rushing gave him his 11th 100-yard day of the season, extending his club record and tying the second most in a season in NFL history. The final record-breaking touchdown of the regular-season came on Christmas night at Arizona (12/25) when Smith logged his 25th rushing touchdown of the season, tying his club record with a touchdown in his 11th consecutive game. In the postseason opener against Philadelphia (1/7/96), Smith rushed for 99 yards and a touchdown to become the fifth player in NFL history to accumulate 1,000 postseason rushing yards in a career. In the NFC Championship Game against Green Bay (1/14/96), Smith tied a career-high and set a Dallas postseason record with 35 carries, and he set a new club record with three touchdowns, including two key fourth quarter scores to give Dallas the lead and the win. He ran for 150 yards and recorded a club-record with 37 combined rushing/receiving attempts. When Dallas captured the Super Bowl XXX title with a win over the Pittsburgh Steelers (1/28/96), Smith capped the season with two second half touchdowns to give Dallas a 27-17 win.

Smith's assault on the record books in 1995 included the following Cowboys single season records:

	New Mark	Old Mark
Rushing Yards	1,773	1,713	(Smith, 1992)
Rushing Attempts	377	373	(Smith, 1992)

1994: Smith had one of the league's best scoring seasons in 1994, accumulating an NFL high 22 touchdowns and tying for second in scoring (132 points), and along the way, he became the first non-kicker to lead Dallas in scoring since Bob Hayes and Dan Reeves tied for the team lead in 1967. His 22 total touchdowns, 21 rushing touchdowns and 132 points were all Dallas single-season club-records at the time, and his 22 total touchdowns tied the fourth highest single-season mark in league history. He also ground out the third-highest rushing total in the league at 1,484 yards on a league-high 368 carries. Despite touching the football 449 times on carries and catches, Smith did not lose a fumble all year. He also finished third in the NFL in total yards from scrimmage with 1,825, accomplishing all these feats despite struggling with hamstring injuries that kept him out of all or part of five games during the season. Smith opened the season with a bang at Pittsburgh (9/4), recording a season-high 171 yards rushing and one touchdown on 31 carries against a Steelers' defense that would finish second in the NFL in total defense. In just his 65th career game, Smith passed the 6,000-career yard mark with 143 yards against Detroit (9/19). It was the fastest a Dallas runner had ever reached that mark (Dorsett in 73 games was the previous mark). Smith also added a season-high seven receptions against Detroit to lead the team. In back-to-back games at Washington (10/2) and against Arizona (10/9), Smith notched two first-half rushing touchdowns, despite pulling a hamstring in the first half against the Redskins that limited him to nine carries and 22 yards against the Cardinals. Smith moved past Don Perkins (6,217 yards) and into second place on the Cowboys all-time rushing list with 106 yards against Philadelphia (10/16) – his fifth straight 100-yard game against the Eagles and a club record for consecutive 100-yard games against one opponent. When the Cowboys traveled to Cincinnati (10/30), Smith had a nine game touchdown streak and seven game rushing touchdown streak stopped when he was held out of the end zone, despite rushing for 92 yards. Smith established a club-record with 35 carries against the N.Y. Giants (11/7), while scoring two touchdowns and picking up 163 yards. The next week at San Francisco (11/13), Smith moved into second on the club's all-time carry list, passing the 1,500 career carry mark in his 72nd career game. Smith moved past the 1,000-yard mark for the fourth consecutive season with 85 yards and two touchdowns against Washington (11/20), and four days later on Thanksgiving Day against Green Bay (11/24), Smith amassed 208 total yards (113-rushing, 95-receiving) on 38 carries and catches while scoring twice. His 95 yards receiving were a season-high and included a season-long 68-yard catch. When Smith reached the end zone twice at Philadelphia (12/4), it gave him 19 touchdowns for the season, breaking the single-season club-record. The following week against Cleveland (12/10), Smith became the first back to top the 100-yard rushing barrier against the Browns in 1994 when he picked up 112 yards and a touchdown. He also added his first receiving score of the year, marking the sixth consecutive week he had posted two scores. Smith picked up 74 yards and his 22nd touchdown of the season at New Orleans (12/19) before pulling his left hamstring late in the third quarter. Smith missed the first start of his career due to injury in the season finale at the N.Y. Giants (12/24), but he returned to action in the Cowboys playoff win over Green Bay (1/8/95), picking up 44 yards on seven first quarter carries (6.3 avg.) before re-aggravating his left hamstring. Nursing that sore hamstring, Smith picked up 74 yards and two touchdowns on 20 carries at San Francisco (1/15/95) in the NFC Championship Game before pulling his right hamstring in the fourth quarter. An All-Pro for the third straight year, that injury kept Smith from playing in his fifth-consecutive Pro Bowl, despite being selected.

1993: The list of honors and awards for Smith from 1993 goes on and on following one of the most outstanding performances by a running back in league history. Recipient of the NFL MVP Award from: Associated Press, The Sporting News, Pro Football Writers of America, Miller Lite, the ESPN "ESPY" Awards, Pro Football Weekly and Pro Football Digest. United Press International, Pro Football Weekly and College & Pro Football Newsweekly named him NFL Offensive Player of the Year. Smith also received the Bert Bell Award from the Maxwell Club as the Player of the Year; consensus All-Pro honors; NFL Alumni Running Back of the Year recognition and the Super Bowl XXVIII MVP award. Smith became only the fourth player to win three straight league rushing titles and the first since Earl Campbell turned the trick from 1978-80 (Jim Brown 1957-61 and 1963-65 and Steve Van Buren 1947-49). Smith also led the NFL in total yards from scrimmage with 1,900 (1,486 rushing/414 receiving), outdistancing runner-up Thurman Thomas of Buffalo (1,702) by almost 200 yards, and with a 5.3 yards-per-carry average, the highest average by a Dallas running back since Duane Thomas posted a 5.3 average in 1970. Second on the team with 57 receptions, Smith finished fourth in the NFC in catches among running backs. He missed the first two regular season games and three starts because of contract negotiations, signing his contract on Sept. 16 and seeing limited action at Phoenix (9/19). Smith returned to the starting line-up against Green Bay (10/3) and, in his 50th career game, became only the fifth Dallas running back to reach the 1,000 career carry mark – the fastest to that point of any running back in team history. Smith recorded his first 100-yard rushing day of the season with 104 yards on 25 carries at Indianapolis (10/10). He established a new club-record with 237 yards rushing (on 30 carries) at Philadelphia (10/31) to nab NFC Offensive Player of the Week honors and post the highest rushing total in the NFL in 1993. That day in Philadelphia, he eclipsed Dorsett's club mark of 206 yards set against the Eagles (12/4/77) and tied Jim Brown for the sixth best single-game rushing performance in NFL history. It was also the highest single-game rushing total in the NFL since Walter Payton ran for 275 yards against Minnesota on Nov. 20, 1977. His 62-yard touchdown run to finish the game was the Cowboys' longest run of the season. The next week when Aikman went down with a pulled hamstring against the Giants (11/7), the Cowboys offense turned to Smith to carry the load. He responded with 182 yards of total offense against Phoenix (11/14) (24 carries, 80 yards, one touchdown and four receptions for 102 yards), including a career-long 86-yard catch from Bernie Kosar. It was his second career 100-yard receiving day. Things didn't go as well the following week when he suffered a bruised right quadricep at Atlanta (11/21) in the second quarter and missed the remainder of game. He finished with a career-low one carry for one yard. Despite the injury, he ran for 51 yards on 16 carries and added 46 yards on nine receptions four days later against Miami (11/25) on Thanksgiving Day. In that game, he moved past the 5,000-yard barrier in his 57th career game – the fastest ever by a Dallas back. Smith went on to garner the NFC Offensive Player of the Month award for December, the third consecutive December he had won the award. During Dallas' final five game march to the playoffs, Smith amassed 115 carries for 688 yards (6.0 average) and two touchdowns to go along with 24 receptions for 142 yards and a touchdown. He started the streak by recording the second highest rushing total ever by a Cowboy at Texas Stadium with 172 yards on 24 carries against Philadelphia (12/6). For the season, Smith logged 409 yards rushing in two games against Philadelphia to join O.J. Simpson (469 yards rushing against New England in 1973) as the only players to record over 400 yards rushing against one opponent in the same season. Including that game against Philadelphia, Smith would record three days with over 150 yards rushing in the final five weeks. The second of those came against the Redskins (12/26) when he ran for 153 yards, and the third came in one of the most memorable games in Cowboys history when Smith carried Dallas to the NFC East title in a 16-13 overtime win at the N.Y. Giants (1/2/94). Despite separating his right shoulder late in the second quarter – an injury that required surgery March 1, 1994 – Smith ran for 168 yards and caught 10 passes for another 61 yards to establish a club record for rushing-receiving attempts in a game at 42. Smith gained 78 yards on 17 carries/catches after the injury, including 41 yards on nine runs/receptions in Dallas' 12-play, 52-yard drive to the game winning field goal in overtime. In the two playoff games leading up to Super Bowl XXVIII, Smith struggled with his injury, but still managed 148 yards against Green Bay (1/16/94) and San Francisco (1/23/94). It was in Super Bowl XXVIII against Buffalo (1/30/94) where Smith capped his storybook season, capturing MVP honors for leading Dallas to its second consecutive NFL title. For the second consecutive year, he topped the 100-yard rushing mark in the Super Bowl, gaining 132 yards – 91 yards and two touchdowns in the second half as Dallas scored 24 unanswered points. It was the 100th 100-yard rushing day of Smith's football career (high school, college, pro). Following the season, Smith was selected to his fourth consecutive Pro Bowl.

1992: Smith first set Dallas records with 1,713 rushing yards, 18 rushing touchdowns and 19 total touchdowns, while leading the league in all three categories. Smith posted the 11th best rushing season in NFL history at the time and was the first NFL player since Walter Payton in 1984-85 with consecutive 1,500-yard rushing seasons. Not to limit his heroics to the ground, Smith also posted 59 receptions, tops in the NFC and third in the NFL among running backs, for 335 yards. Smith's 2,048 yards from scrimmage set a new Dallas record, led the NFC and was second in the NFL. Smith also established a Dallas mark for rushing attempts with 373 and rushing/receiving attempts with 432. Smith opened the season with 140 yards on the ground in a Monday night win over the defending Super Bowl champion Redskins (9/7), earning NFC Offensive Player of the Week honors and becoming the first player to rush for over 100 yards against the Redskins in three consecutive games. He had a streak of five straight games with over 100 yards rushing at Texas Stadium snapped against Seattle (10/11). Smith had surpassed the previous club mark of four straight 100-yard rushing performances at home against Phoenix (9/20). After bruising his hip in the third quarter against the Raiders (10/25), he missed two plays but returned to rush for 79 yards and two touchdowns, giving him 152 yards and three touchdowns on the day. His three touchdowns at the Raiders, which he would match two weeks later at Detroit (11/8), tied for the NFC-high in 1992 and earned him NFC Offensive Player of the Week honors. Smith started November, a month in which he would earn NFC Offensive Player of the Month honors, facing a tough Philadelphia defense (11/1) which was ranked first in the NFL in yards allowed going into the game. Smith broke loose for 163 yards, becoming the first 100-yard rusher against the Eagles in 53 games, a streak that dated back to Sept. 17, 1989. Smith had his team-record 34-game streak of leading the team in rushing yards end against the Lions (11/8). Against the Rams (11/15), Smith matched Dorsett's 1981 record by reaching 1,000 yards rushing in a season in 10 games, the fewest in team history. A week later, Smith demonstrated his versatility when he hauled in a career-high 12 passes at Phoenix (11/22), which were the second most in team history. On Thanksgiving Day against the Giants (11/26), Smith recorded a season-long 68-yard touchdown run and a season-long 26-yard touchdown catch. With Denver Head Coach Dan Reeves watching from across the field, Smith tied the single-season touchdown mark Reeves had established in 1966 by popping into the end zone with 2:47 remaining to give the Cowboys a 31-27 come-from-behind win over the Broncos (12/6). Smith wrapped up the regular season with 174 yards rushing at Atlanta (12/21), a NFC-high for 1992, and 131 yards against Chicago (12/27), earning NFC Offensive Player of the Week honors and claiming the league rushing title. For his late season display, he was named NFC Offensive Player of the Month for December, making him the first NFL player to earn the honor in consecutive months. He strung together three 100-yard rushing games in the playoffs (114 against the Eagles, 114 against the 49ers and 108 against Buffalo). His three straight postseason 100-yard rushing days established a club record and tied for the third longest postseason streak in league history. With his performance against Buffalo in Super Bowl XXVII (1/31/93), Smith became the first Dallas player to rush for 100 yards in a Super Bowl. After the season, Smith earned consensus All-Pro and All-NFC honors.

1991: Smith first led the NFL in rushing in 1991 when he gained 1,563 yards, becoming the first Cowboys player to lead the league in rushing. At 22 years and seven months of age, he became the youngest player in league history and 28th overall to rush for over 1,500 yards in a season, and that performance helped earn him a starting spot in the Pro Bowl. He led the NFL with 365 carries, the third youngest player to reach the 500 carry plateau, joining Walter Payton and Barry Sanders as the only players to do so before their 23rd birthday. His eight 100-yard rushing games in 1991 were the second most in team history. Smith scored on a career-long 75-yard dash, the longest run in the NFC in 1991, and averaged a career-high 10.2 yards-per-carry in posting a 112 yard rushing game against Washington (9/9). Slowed by a stomach virus most of the game, he was still able to come off the bench to record a team-high eight receptions, including his first career touchdown catch. Against Phoenix (9/22), Smith earned NFC Offensive Player of the Week honors by putting together the fourth best rushing day in Cowboys history with 182 yards rushing and two touchdowns, including a 60-yard touchdown run. With his 75- and 60-yard runs, Smith became the second player in team history to have more than one 60-yarder in the same season (Dorsett had 84- and 77-yard runs in 1977). Smith played five games against the top three run defenses in the league (No. 1 – Philadelphia, No. 2 – New Orleans and No. 3 – Washington), but against the Redskins (11/24), Smith rushed for 132 yards on 34 carries, his second 100-yard game against the Redskins in 1991 and the only two 100-yard games allowed by the Super Bowl Champions. Four days later, he gained 109 yards against Pittsburgh (11/28), and the following week, he became the only player to gain 100 yards rushing against the Saints (12/8) by picking up 112 yards. With three straight 100-yard rushing games, Smith matched the second longest streak in team history. Smith's 160 yards and two touchdowns rushing against Atlanta (12/22) allowed him to surpass Sanders and Thomas to win the league rushing title. Smith also finished second in the NFC (third in the NFL) in yards from scrimmage, second in the NFL in touchdowns (13) and rushing touchdowns (12). For all his late season heroics in the Cowboys playoff drive, Smith was named NFC Offensive Player of the Month for December. He opened the playoffs in Chicago (12/29) with 105 yards against a Bears' team that had never allowed a running back to go over the century mark in postseason play, a record dating back to 1932 and spanning 27 games.

1990: Despite missing training camp and the preseason in 1990, Smith finished fifth in the NFC and 10th in the NFL with 937 rushing yards, tops among rookies. In addition, his 11 rushing touchdowns led NFL rookies, placed third in the NFC and fifth in the NFL. Smith earned his first professional start against the Giants (9/16) after little more than a week with the club, and the following week at Washington (9/23), he scored his first NFL touchdown. Smith's 241 carries broke Dorsett's rookie club record of 208 carries set in 1977, and his three 100-yard rushing games were the second most ever by a Cowboys' rookie. A vital part of the Cowboys four-game win streak late in the season, Smith caught four passes for a career-high 117 yards against the Rams (11/18) in game one of the streak. Four days later, he scored on a 48-yard scamper on his way to a season-high 132 yards rushing against Washington (11/22). Facing Phoenix (12/16), Smith rushed for 103 yards and a career-high four touchdowns to tie the club record for rushing and total touchdowns in a game. The first rookie halfback to start for the Cowboys since Ron Springs in the 1979 season opener, Smith was named NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year by AP, Football News, Pro Football Weekly and Pro Set Trading Cards and was a consensus All-Rookie selection. He also became the first Cowboys player to participate in the Pro Bowl since Herschel Walker in 1988.

COLLEGE: An All-America and three time All-SEC selection at Florida, Smith established 58 school records in three seasons, including a career rushing mark of 3,928 yards. He surpassed the 1,000-yard rushing mark in his seventh game, earlier than any player in college football history. He also became the second freshman to finish in the top 10 in the Heisman Trophy balloting (Herschel Walker was the other) and earned Freshman of the Year honors from UPI and The Sporting News. In 1989, he set a school single-game rushing mark with 316 yards against New Mexico on his way to a school-record 1,599 yards rushing for the season. In three seasons, he became the fifth leading all-time rusher in SEC history and led the Gators in receiving two-of-the-three seasons.

PERSONAL: Emmitt J. Smith, III was a consensus All-America running back and prep Player of the Year by Parade Magazine and USA Today as a senior at Escambia, Fla., High School. He posted the third highest career rushing and scoring totals in national high school history with 8,804 yards and 106 touchdowns. He also averaged 7.8 yards-per-carry, ran for over 100 yards 45 times and recorded only six fumbles. In 1986, he represented the nation's prep football players at the White House as part of the "Just Say No" anti-drug campaign. Markus Steele

6'3" ★ 240 ★ 7/24/79
Southern California
D-4 for '01 (122nd overall)
NFL: 2nd Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 2001 (15/10).

PRO: Blessed with outstanding speed, aggressiveness and athletic ability, Markus Steele fits the mold for Dallas linebackers. In a defensive scheme that thrives on the quickness and speed of its linebackers, Steele found a home as a rookie starter at strongside linebacker in 2001. A fourth-round selection (122nd overall) in 2001, Steele took over the starting job in Week Six of his rookie season and never looked back. He made a name for himself as a very stout run defender who has the skills necessary to do battle with offensive tackles, while also being able to cover tight ends. His arrow is pointed upward as he adds strength and size to a very athletic frame. Following his rookie season, Steele underwent surgery to repair the rotator cuff and biceps tendon in his right shoulder.

2001: Although just a rookie, Steele handled the pressure of starting 10 games at strongside linebacker with a veteran's poise. He brought speed and aggressiveness to a linebacking group that was already one of the NFL's quickest units, finishing the season with 51 tackles. While starting the year as a reserve, he registered one tackle in limited action in his NFL debut against Tampa Bay (9/9). Against San Diego (9/23), Steele took over for starter Darren Hambrick in the second quarter after he suffered a left hip contusion. Steele recorded two tackles before Hambrick returned. He picked up his first career special teams tackle at Oakland (10/7). Following the release of Hambrick on Oct. 23, Steele moved into the starting strongside linebacker spot in the Cowboys win over Arizona (10/28). He responded by finishing the game third on the team with nine stops. He also broke up a Jake Plummer pass in the end zone in the 17-3 Dallas win. In his second career start, at the N.Y. Giants (11/4), Steele was second on the team with nine tackles and helped limit the Giants to 93 yards rushing on 26 carries (3.6 avg.). He recorded his first career tackle for lost yardage in the loss to Philadelphia (11/18), while finishing the day with nine tackles. Steele's efforts helped limit the eventual NFC East Champions to 227 total yards, including just 98 rushing yards on 35 carries (2.8 avg.). In the Thanksgiving Day loss to Denver (11/22), he was third on the team with nine tackles as the Broncos were limited to 3.1 yards-per-carry on the ground for the day (39 carries 119 yards). At Washington (12/2), he recorded five tackles and a tackle for a loss before suffering a right knee contusion mid-way through the third quarter that forced him out of the game. In the following week's win over the Giants (12/9), Steele returned to the starting line-up but re-aggravated his right knee contusion in the first quarter and was out for the remainder of the game. The injury kept him out of action at Seattle (12/16). He returned to the lineup at Arizona (12/23) and recorded three tackles while helping limit the Cardinals to 209 net yards of offense, including just 75 on the ground.

COLLEGE: As a senior in 2000, Steele was an All-Pac-10 Conference honorable mention selection, finishing the year third on the team with 61 tackles. While playing primarily at weakside linebacker, he also added three sacks and 17 stops behind the line of scrimmage. As a junior, Steele received honorable mention All-America recognition from The Football News while also gaining All-Pac-10 honorable mention honors. He closed the year second on the Trojans in tackles with 91 stops. He also had 12 tackles behind the line of scrimmage, six passes defensed, three sacks, three forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries. As a sophomore, at Long Beach City College, Steele earned J.C. Grid-Wire All-America and J.C. Athletic Bureau All-America Defensive Most Valuable Player honors after amassing 93 tackles, including 17 behind the line of scrimmage, eight sacks, three forced fumbles, two blocked kicks, a fumble recovery and an interception. His effort helped lead Long Beach City to a No. 6 national ranking with a 10-1 record. As a freshman, Steele earned J.C. Athletic Bureau All-State Region IV and All-Mission Conference Northern Division accolades after registering 96 stops, 20 tackles for losses, eight sacks and two interceptions.

PERSONAL: Born in Cleveland, Ohio, Steele was a star athlete at Chanel High School in Bedford, Ohio. As a senior, he ran for 17 touchdowns in just six games from the tailback position, while also playing middle linebacker. He also enjoyed a solid career as a power forward in basketball. As a rookie, Steele was a member of the Cowboys inaugural "Rookie Club," a program designed to introduce rookies to community and charity work. Throughout the season, the rookies made visits to and spent time with children at Children's Medical Center of Dallas, Oak Cliff Boys and Girls Clubs, The Salvation Army and its' Christmas Distribution Center. He also participated in the Jr. Cattle Baron's Ball Party for children suffering with cancer. While at USC, he majored in history with a minor in sociology. Steele has a daughter, Jordan.

Daleroy Stewart

Defensive Tackle

6'4" ★ 318 ★ 11/1/78
Southern Mississippi
D-6 for '01 (171st overall)

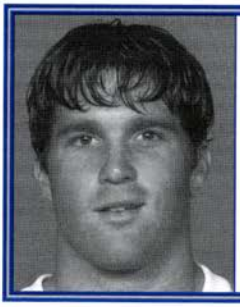
GAMES/STARTS: 2001 (NFI).

PRO: Daleroy (pronounced DALE-roy) Stewart has the size and athletic ability to excel at defensive tackle in the NFL. He brings a complete package of run stuffing ability and upfield pass rush to the defensive tackle rotation. Working alongside veterans La'Roi Glover, Brandon Noble and Michael Myers in the trenches should accelerate his learning curve in his second year. Following a rookie season that never got started, Stewart is looking to return to the playing field and pick up where he left off at the collegiate level.

2001: After undergoing surgery March 14 to repair a rotator cuff injury suffered as a senior at Southern Miss, Stewart was placed on the reserve/non-football injury list on Aug. 28. While rehabing his rotator cuff, he suffered a herniated disk in his back that required three injections and limited his ability to practice. He was finally returned to the on reserve/non-football injury for the remainder of the season on Dec. 4.

COLLEGE: Stewart was a key component of a Golden Eagles defense that finished the year second in the nation in total defense as a senior, allowing just 268 yards-per-game. Stewart saw action in every game and finished 10th on the squad with 38 stops, including eight tackles behind the line of scrimmage. He also contributed four sacks for 32 yards in losses. As a junior, Stewart started the year as a back-up to fellow Cowboys draft choice John Nix, but he moved into the starting lineup and excelled with 47 tackles and 11 tackles behind the line. As a reserve his first two seasons at Southern Miss, Stewart saw limited action in the defensive tackle rotation for the Golden Eagles.

PERSONAL: A business administration major, Daleroy Andrew Stewart was an all-state selection after recording 95 tackles, including 13 for losses, and seven sacks during his senior year at Vero Beach, Fla., High School. He was a member of the CompUSA Super Senior team and was selected to play in the Georgia/Florida All-Star game. He helped his high school team to a 23-3 record over his final two seasons and ranked among the best in the state in the discus and shot.



Clint Stoerner

Quarterback

Arkansas
FA for '00
NFL: 3rd Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 2000 (1/0), 2001(4/2). Totals (5/2).

PRO: The Cowboys gave Clint Stoerner (pronounced STERN-er) a chance to play in the NFL when they signed him as a rookie free agent in 2000. Stoerner took the opportunity and showed coaches during 2000 preseason action that he has an ability to make things happen when he is on the field. He solidified his roster spot in 2001 and proved his merit as a quarterback who could start and win in the NFL by earning a victory in his first career start – a 17-3 win over Arizona on Oct. 28. Stoerner will once again enter the season in a heated battle for a spot on the Dallas depth chart at the quarterback position. The University of Arkansas' most prolific passer, Stoerner possesses solid poise and fine instincts for the position. As a rookie, he led five Cowboy quarterbacks with 513 passing yards on 42-of-75 passing during the 2000 preseason action, then spent the season moving between Dallas' practice squad and active roster. During the spring of 2001, he was at the helm of the Scottish Claymores in NFL Europe.

2001: One of four Dallas quarterbacks to earn starting assignments in 2001, Stoerner directed the Cowboys to victory in his first career-start and took the team to the brink of a second straight win before falling in overtime. Injuries to Quincy Carter and Anthony Wright – and the mid-season addition of Ryan Leaf – had Stoerner moving up and down the Cowboys depth chart throughout the season. In the season opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), he was a game-day deactivation as the team's third quarterback. Against San Diego (9/23), he was the Dallas backup, behind Anthony Wright after Carter was on the shelf with a thumb injury. Stoerner saw action on only one play – the game's final snap – against the Chargers. At Philadelphia (9/30), Stoerner quarterbacked the final two drives of the game and led Dallas to two touchdowns. In doing so, he completed four-of-seven passes for 44 yards and two touchdowns. With Carter's return as the starter at Oakland (10/7), Stoerner returned to the third quarterback slot. He moved back to the backup role in the 9-7 win over Washington (10/15) as Wright went the distance and finished the game despite suffering a knee injury that would cause him to miss the remainder of the season. With Carter and Wright both out, Stoerner accepted the responsibility of making his first career NFL start against Arizona (10/28). In leading the Cowboys to a 17-3 victory, he became the 10th Dallas quarterback to win his Cowboys starting debut. Stoerner scored the go-ahead touchdown with a six-yard quarterback draw play on third down in the third quarter to put Dallas up 10-3. He finished the game nine-of-19 for 93 yards and one interception. In his second career start, at the N.Y. Giants (11/4), he completed his first eight passing attempts of the game for 119 yards and a touchdown in guiding Dallas to a 24-7 halftime lead. He finished the game by hitting on 13-of-23 passes for 177 yards but was victimized by four interceptions. He was relieved by Leaf late in the fourth quarter before the Cowboys eventually fell in overtime by a 27-24 score. In the Cowboys' next three games, at Atlanta (11/11), and against Philadelphia (11/18) and Denver (11/22), Stoerner served as the No. 2 man behind Leaf. After Carter's return to health – and the starting quarterback position – Stoerner was the team's third quarterback for the final six games of the season. Stoerner spent the spring of 2001 playing for the Scottish Claymores of NFL Europe. He closed the spring season 171-of-307 for 1,866 yards, 10 touchdowns and eight interceptions. He was the fifth-ranked passer in NFL Europe with a 73.8 rating.

2000: Stoerner was signed by Dallas as a rookie free agent on May 5 and turned in a productive training camp before being released on Aug. 27. He was immediately signed to Dallas' practice squad, where he spent the first week of the season. After Troy Aikman suffered a concussion in the season opener, Stoerner was moved to the Cowboy' active roster on Sept. 8. He saw his first NFL action against San Francisco (9/24), completing three-of-five passes for 53 yards and a touchdown. He was inactive as the third quarterback at Carolina (10/1) before being waived on Oct. 10 and immediately re-signed to the practice squad. Following Aikman's back injury against Jacksonville (10/29), Stoerner was again moved to the active roster on Nov. 1. He was inactive at Philadelphia (11/5), against Cincinnati (11/12) and at Baltimore (11/19) before being released Nov. 21. He re-signed to the practice squad Nov. 27 before again moving to the active roster Dec. 13 following Aikman's second concussion of the season, but was deactivated the final two weeks of the season.

COLLEGE: Stoerner completed 177-of-317 passes for 2,293 yards and 19 touchdowns as a senior at Arkansas. His completion and attempt totals were the second highest in school history, and his yardage and touchdown totals were third best in Arkansas annals. He also ranked fourth in the Razorbacks' record books with 2,233 total yards of offense. As a junior, Stoerner earned second-team All-SEC honors after completing 167-of-312 passes for 2,629 yards, 26 touchdowns and eight interceptions. His passing yards, touchdowns and total offensive yards (2,572) established school records. During his junior campaign, he passed for 334 yards against LSU to become the first Razorback to ever throw for more than 300 yards in three different games. As a sophomore, Stoerner set then school records for passing yards in a season (2,347) and in a game (387 against LSU). He finished the year 173-of-357 for 2,347 yards and 12 touchdowns.

PERSONAL: Stoerner earned all-district and honorable mention all-state honors after completing 148-of-247 passes for 2,416 yards and 28 touchdowns as a senior at Lee High School in Baytown, Tex. He took over quarterbacking duties following his junior season, when he caught 50 passes for 670 yards as a receiver. He also earned all-district honors as a punter following his junior season. The small business management major also earned all-district honors after batting .450 as a junior for the Baytown baseball team. Stoerner, along with several Cowboys teammates, visited Happy Hill Farm Academy and Home to speak to children on the importance of athletics and education. He also participated in the 2002 Lil' Gunslingers Party for children at Medical City of Dallas, benefiting the American Cancer Society. He and fellow Cowboys Darren Woodson and Ebenezer Ekuban, volunteered at The Salvation Army Christmas Distribution Center during the 2000 holiday season and helped distribute gifts to families in need.

Reggie Swinton

Wide Receiver

Murray State
FA for '01
NFL: 2nd Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 2001 (15/1).

PRO: After struggling to find a home with six teams in four leagues, Reggie Swinton would find his place in Dallas in 2001. After spending time in the NFL training camps of Jacksonville and Seattle, the Canadian Football League with Winnepeg and Edmonton, the XFL with Las Vegas and the af2 with the Arkansas Twisters, Swinton signed with Dallas midway through training camp and proceeded to not only make the team but rewrite the record books as a kick returner. He went on to finish third in the NFL in punt return average and ninth in kickoff return average, earning All-Pro honors along the way. These accolades were far removed from where he started 2001, bouncing between the XFL and af2. This season he will look to continue providing stellar play in the return game while also becoming more of a factor in the offense at wide receiver.

2001: Swinton finished the af2 season as the leading receiver for the Arkansas Twisters. In 13 games with the Twisters, Swinton set franchise records with 85 receptions for 1,463 yards and 33 touchdowns.

After joining the Cowboys in training camp in August, he went on to set single-season club records for kickoff returns (56), kickoff return yards (1,327) and combined kick return yards – punts and kickoffs – (1,741). His 414 punt return yards in 2001 was the seventh most in club history. He also tied the club mark for combined kick returns (87). He did this despite not taking over punt return duties until Week 7. His 13.7-yard average on punt returns ranked third in the NFL, second in the NFC, and his 23.7-yard average on kickoff returns was ninth in the NFL, seventh in the NFC. Those numbers earned him second-team All-Pro recognition from College and Pro Football Newsweekly as a punt returner. Swinton set the tone for his season in his NFL debut against Tampa Bay (9/9), returning his first kickoff 77 yards to set up Dallas's first field goal. He finished the day with three returns for 131 yards and a 43.7-yard average, the second-highest single-game kickoff return average in club history. Against San Diego (9/23), he moved into the lineup in multiple receiver sets after Raghib Ismail left the game with a sprained right knee. He finished the day with his first two career receptions, good for 30 yards, while also averaging 25.4 yards on five kickoff returns. Swinton got his first taste of punt return duties at Philadelphia (9/30) when he took over for Wane McGarity (cramps) in the fourth quarter and recorded two returns for 14 yards. At Oakland (10/7), Swinton moved into the starting lineup at wide receiver with the mid-week release of McGarity and the continued injury to Ismail, earning his first NFL start in just his fourth NFL game. He responded with two receptions for 15 yards and continued to shine as a returner with three kickoff returns for 92 yards, including a 51-yarder. Also replacing McGarity as the club's punt returner, he had returns of 49 and 21 yards. After suffering a strained hamstring in pregame warm-ups against Washington (10/15), Swinton left the game after returning the opening kickoff 10 yards. He was active but did not play while nursing the hamstring against Arizona (10/28). He returned to action at the N.Y. Giants (11/4) and contributed 187 return yards, averaging 14.0 yards on four punt returns and 21.8 yards on six kickoff returns. His 10 returns in the game (6-kickoff, 4 punt) tied the third highest combined total in club history. With seven kickoff returns for 187 yards (26.7 avg.) he tied the mark for the second most kickoff returns in a game in club history against Philadelphia (11/18). Mel Renfro had eight in a game to set the team record in 1964. Swinton's biggest day as a return man came in the Thanksgiving Day match-up against Denver (11/22) when he recorded his first punt return for a touchdown, taking one back 65 yards in the fourth quarter. He finished the day with season highs for punt returns (5) and punt return yards (100) and also added six kickoff returns for another 124 yards. His 11 total returns tied Butch Johnson for the second most in a game in club history, and his 224 total return yards for the game were the second most in club history. He then averaged 41.5 yards on two kickoff returns against the N.Y. Giants (12/9). Despite a slow day due to the weather at Seattle (12/16), Swinton managed to record six kickoff returns for 93 yards, giving him 1,216 kickoff return yards for the season, a club record. He also established a club record for combined kick return yards in a season at 1,554. Not to be forgotten as a receiver, Swinton recorded his first career touchdown reception with a 45-yard grab at Arizona (12/23) on his fifth career reception. He finished the day with three catches for a team-high 72 yards. He also added a 43-yard punt return to set up a first quarter field goal and became the club's single-season record holder for kickoff returns by adding three to his total for the year, breaking the mark of 51 set by Jason Tucker in 2000.

2000: Swinton went to camp with the Seattle Seahawks but was released prior to the season.

1999: Swinton signed with the Winnepeg Bombers of the CFL on July 13 and was released Aug. 2. He was re-signed Aug. 9 and released again Aug. 16. While with the Bombers, Swinton ranked 10th in the CFL in kickoff returns with a 25.8 avg. and one touchdown. He was picked up by the Edmonton Eskimos of the CFL on Sept. 13, but was released on Oct. 12.

1998: Swinton originally signed as a rookie free agent with the Jacksonville Jaguars but was released on the final cut down day.

COLLEGE: Swinton set Murray State records for most career receptions (133) career receiving yards (2,346) and single season receiving yards (1,042). He ranks second in all-time touchdowns with 25. As a senior, he finished the year with 35 receptions for 642 yards. Swinton was named first team All-Conference and second-team Division 1-AA All-America as a junior.

PERSONAL: Swinton was a standout athlete at Central High School in Little Rock, Ark. He earned all-state honors in football, baseball, basketball and track. As a senior, he was named his school's athlete of the year. His father and uncle were drafted by Major League Baseball teams.

PRO: Robert Thomas not only made a name for himself as a rookie free agent with small school experience, but he has also survived a major career change, moving from linebacker to fullback. In a very short period of time, he went from being a reserve middle linebacker to the lead blocker for Emmitt Smith as the Cowboys starting fullback. As a rookie free agent, he provided Dallas with not only a solid special teams player, but also a reserve middle linebacker that could be counted on to produce in spot playing time. Thomas then spent the spring of 1999 playing linebacker in NFL Europe, but when he returned for training camp, a glut of linebackers awaited him. With coaches hoping to find a roster spot for this hardworking player, Thomas was moved to fullback in August to back up Daryl Johnston. When Johnston went down with a neck injury the first week of the season, Thomas was thrust into the fire. Learning and improving each and every week at his new position, he was finally rewarded with the starting role in October. A true NFL long-shot-success-story, Thomas enjoyed a solid season as the starting fullback in 2000. He assumed that role again in 2001 until a serious ankle injury ended his season after just five games. He will return to Cowboys camp after a thorough post-surgery rehabilitation program.

2001: Thomas was well on his way to another productive season as Smith's lead blocker before a severe high ankle sprain ended his season in the fifth game of the year. He finished the abbreviated season with 40 rushing yards on six attempts, while catching five passes for 19 yards and his third career-receiving touchdown. He picked up a first down on six of his 15 carries. In the season opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), Thomas picked up the longest run of his career with a 24-yard scamper in the third quarter. Two weeks later in the loss to San Diego (9/23), Thomas led the way for Smith to gain 85 yards on 17 carries (5.0 avg.) and move past Barry Sanders into second on the NFL's all-time rushing list. At Philadelphia (9/30), he recorded his only touchdown of the season with a five-yard reception from Clint Stoerner in the fourth quarter. At Oakland (10/7), Thomas recovered a fumble on a Raiders punt return to set Dallas up at the Oakland seven-yard line. In the Monday night win against Washington (10/15), Thomas recorded one carry for two yards and had a reception for six yards but suffered a high left ankle sprain on that fourth quarter catch and did not return. He underwent season-ending surgery on the ankle on Oct. 19 and was placed on injured reserve on Oct. 22.

2000: In his first full season as the starting fullback, Thomas proved to be a very capable blocker and a much improved pass receiver and ball carrier. He finished the year with 51 rushing yards on 15 carries. He also finished with 23 catches for 117 yards and two touchdowns. In his primary role as the lead blocker for Smith, Thomas helped pave the way for the future Hall of Famer's 10th consecutive 1,000 yard rushing season. At Arizona (9/10), he recorded two receptions for eight yards. At Washington (9/18), he registered two special teams tackles and helped limit Deion Sanders to 0 yards on three punt returns. Against San Francisco (9/24), Thomas posted three receptions for a career-high 28 yards, including a career-long catch of 14 yards. The following week, in the overtime win at Carolina (10/1), he recorded his first carries of the season with three rushes for 12 yards, including two carries on third down that gave Dallas a first down. In Dallas' 19-14 loss to the eventual NFC Champion N.Y. Giants (10/15), he recorded a career-high five receptions for 24 yards and his first career touchdown – on a one-yard toss from Troy Aikman. Against Arizona (10/22), Thomas had three carries for 14 yards while adding two receptions for nine yards, including a two-yard touchdown grab from Aikman in the fourth quarter – his second consecutive game with a touchdown reception. In the victory over Cincinnati (11/12), he had two carries for seven yards and two receptions for nine yards. Against Washington (12/10), Thomas helped lead the way as Smith rushed for 150 yards and a touchdown. In all, the Cowboys ran for 242 yards against the Redskins, the most by the Dallas offense since recording 271 yards on the ground at Philadelphia on Oct. 31, 1993.

1999: Thomas spent the spring playing linebacker for the Rhein Fire in NFL Europe, finishing fourth on the team with 40 tackles while also recording a forced fumble and four special teams tackles. Upon returning for training camp, Thomas was caught up in a numbers game at linebacker. Because the coaching staff was eager to find him a roster spot, Thomas was given a trial run at fullback over the final two weeks of the preseason. He passed the test and earned a spot on the final roster backing up Johnston as Smith's lead blocker. By season's end, he had posted eight carries for 35 yards and 10 receptions for 64 yards. Along the way, he also helped open holes that allowed Smith to rush for 1,397 yards and 11 touchdowns, his best numbers since 1995. Smith was also able to top the 100-yard rushing mark in nine games, the second highest total in club history. Thomas saw his first NFL action at fullback in the fourth quarter at Washington (9/12) and helped spring Chris Warren on a 23-yard run as the Cowboys climbed out of a 35-14 hole to win in overtime. Following the game, Johnston was diagnosed with a herniated disk in his neck and was done for the year. With Thomas just one week into his NFL career at fullback, the Cowboys immediately added veteran Tim Lester to the roster to take Johnston's spot in the starting lineup. Against Arizona (10/3), Thomas recorded his first career receptions with two grabs for 19 yards, including a season-long 13-yard catch. Through all this, Thomas still remained a threat on special teams as well, tying for second on the team at the N.Y. Giants (10/18) with two special teams tackles. He provided a key block on Smith's one-yard touchdown run against Washington (10/24), and the following week, he was rewarded with the starting job when Lester was released. At Indianapolis (10/31) in his first NFL start, Thomas recorded a nine-yard reception. Against the N.Y. Jets (12/19), he recorded his first career rushes, logging four carries for 22 yards – including a 10-yard burst. It was the first time a Dallas fullback had carried the ball all season and the most carries by a Dallas fullback since Johnston recorded five on Nov. 23, 1995 against Kansas City. In addition, his 22 yards rushing were the most by a Dallas fullback since Johnston picked up 23 at Atlanta on Oct. 29, 1995. Finally, his 10-yard run was the longest by a Dallas fullback since Johnston went 11-yards with a carry on Oct. 8, 1995 against Green Bay. In his first career postseason action, he recorded two receptions at Minnesota (1/9/00).

1998: After signing with Dallas on Feb. 24 and making the team as a rookie free agent, Thomas began to immediately show that he belonged in the NFL by finishing tied for fifth on the team with 10 special teams tackles. He saw his first NFL action in the season opener against Arizona (9/6) before leading the team with two special teams tackles at Denver (9/13). He recorded two more special teams tackles the next week at the N.Y. Giants (9/21), and he registered his first defensive tackle at Washington (10/4) while working in a four linebacker set against the Redskins "heavy" packages. Thomas had two stops and a pass defensed in fourth quarter action at Philadelphia (11/2), and he recorded a third quarter tackle at Arizona (11/15) in Dallas' goal line defense. He tallied a special teams tackle against Minnesota (11/26) on Thanksgiving Day before suffering a concussion that knocked him out of the game. At Kansas City (12/13), Thomas totaled two tackles and a tackle for a three-yard loss while relieving Fred Strickland, who was still bothered by the sprained knee. Thomas also finished second on the team with two special teams tackles against the Chiefs. He totaled one special teams tackle against Arizona (1/2/99) in a wild card playoff game.

1997: Thomas went to training camp with the Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League and contributed two tackles in his only preseason action before being released.

COLLEGE: Thomas finished his career at Henderson State as the school's all-time leading tackler with 388. As a senior, he registered 120 tackles, including a single-game team record 18 against Texas A&M, and earned All-America honors and an invitation to the Snow Bowl following the season. As a junior, he established a Henderson State single season record with 129 tackles and was named All-Gulf Conference Defensive Player of the Week three times and earned All-Gulf South honors. Thomas totaled 116 tackles as a sophomore in 1994 after recording 23 tackles in a reserve capacity as a freshman the previous year.

PERSONAL: Thomas played prep football for Jacksonville, Ark., High School. As part of the Cowboys for Kids/Dallas Desperados Season Ticket Program, Thomas donated 2002 Dallas Desperados season tickets to the Boys & Girls Club of Dallas. He also served as a celebrity football coach in the Fifth Annual Dallas Cowboys Let Us Play! Sports Camp for girls in 2001, working with girls from non-profit agencies in the Dallas/Ft. Worth area.

Tyson Walter

Ohio State
NFL: Rookie ★ Cowboys: Rookie

COLLEGE: When in doubt on draft day, it is always a safe bet to go with a Big Ten offensive lineman. That was on the Cowboys mind when they drafted Tyson Walter in the sixth round (179th overall) of the NFL Draft. One of three Ohio State players selected by Dallas in the 2002 draft, Walter holds the distinction of starting more games as a Buckeye, 49, than any other player in school history. He is a strong drive blocker with solid quickness and intelligence, and his experience of performing at a high level in the Big Ten should aid his transition to the NFL. Walter comes to the NFL with a high level of competitive maturity after spending six years in one of the nation's premier collegiate programs. Injuries forced a pair of medical redshirt seasons for the big tackle. When he was not sidelined with injuries, Walter was a very consistent performer for four full seasons at left tackle, where he capably inherited the responsibility of replacing All-America Orlando Pace, who was taken by the Rams with the first overall pick in the 1997 draft.

2001: Walter was an All-Big Ten Conference selection and the winner of the Jim Parker Award for outstanding offensive line performance among Buckeyes. He was also recognized as a first-team Academic All-Big Ten selection. He started every game as a senior, 11 times at left tackle and once at left guard, and graded out with an 83.7% rating for consistency. He also turned in 104 key blocks to help the Buckeyes roll up 370.6 yards in total offense per game and was named the Buckeyes' Lineman of the Game four times (Akron, UCLA, Wisconsin and Michigan). Walter's productive senior year marked his return to the field after missing the entire 2000 with a back infection that caused him to receive a second medical redshirt season.

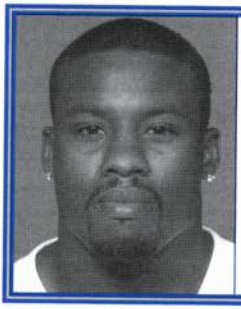
1999: Despite missing most of the summer after undergoing back surgery, Walter started every game at left tackle. He registered 70 key blocks/knockdowns and graded 81.5% for blocking consistency as the team averaged 362.3 yards-per-game. Walter helped clear a path for current Cowboys teammate Michael Wiley, who rushed for 999 yards and 10 touchdowns on 183 carries.

1998: Walter was an All-Big Ten honorable mention selection after starting every game at left tackle. He graded out at 82.3% for blocking consistency while registering 85 key blocks. He played a key role in the Buckeyes finishing the year ranked fifth nationally in total offense (503.5 yards-per-game) and first in the Big Ten in passing efficiency (151.2), total offense (503.5) and scoring (36.9 points-per-game). He was part of an offensive line that helped Buckeye running backs rush for 2,737 yards and 22 touchdowns to finish second in the Big Ten Conference. That squad went on to beat Texas A&M in the Nokia Sugar Bowl and finish with an 11-1 record, second in the nation.

1997: As a red-shirt freshman, he was called upon to fill the huge shoes of two-time All-America left tackle Orlando Pace. Walter started every game for Ohio State and displayed great improvement as the season progressed for a first-year player.

1996: Walter played in the first two games as a reserve offensive tackle before a shoulder sprain sidelined him for the remainder of the season. He was granted a medical redshirt as a result of the injury.

PERSONAL: Walter helped Kenston, Ohio, High School to a runner-up position in the state playoffs as a senior as an offensive and defensive tackle, earning All-Ohio honors. He graduated from Ohio State at the end of the 2000 winter quarter with a degree in finance. He went on to pursue additional degrees in Economics, Risk Management and Information Systems As a senior scholar-athlete, Walter was a nominee for a National Football Foundation scholarship.



Bryant Westbrook

Cornerback

NFL: 6th Year ★ Cowboys: 1st Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1997 (15/14, 1/1-Det.), 1998 (16/16-Det.), 1999 (10/8, 1/1-Det.), 2000 (13/13-Det.), 2001 (10/3-Det.). Total – 64/54, 2/2.

PRO: One of the league's most physical cornerbacks who uses his strength to his advantage in checking receivers at the line of scrimmage, Bryant Westbrook returns to Texas looking to reclaim his spot among the league's elite. That physical style also makes him a vicious hitter in run-support as evidenced by his 242 career tackles in 64 games. After struggling with injuries over the last three seasons, Westbrook looks to be completely recovered from the ruptured Achilles tendon that cut short his 2000 season and limited his playing time in 2001. What the Cowboys hope they have found is the cornerback that returned an interception for a touchdown and led the Lions in passes broken up in each of his first two NFL seasons. Westbrook has a proven track record of overcoming injuries, having missed a significant chunk of the 1999 campaign with two separate hamstring injuries but rebounding to be selected a Pro Bowl alternate following the 2000 season. Originally the Lions' first round draft choice in 1997 (fifth overall), Westbrook has a proven pedigree that should enhance the Dallas secondary.

2001: Westbrook saw his first action of the season when he re-entered the Lions' lineup in dime packages at San Francisco (11/4). It was his first action since surgery for a ruptured left Achilles tendon that he suffered at Minnesota on Nov. 30, 2000. The following week against Tampa Bay (11/11), he played in both the nickel and dime packages. Westbrook recorded his first interception of the season along with two tackles and two passes defensed at Chicago (12/2). He had a five tackle performance the following week at Tampa Bay (12/9) and then posted a season-high six tackles and two passes defensed at Pittsburgh (12/23). Against Minnesota (12/16), Westbrook earned his first start of the season, collecting five tackles and breaking up a pass from the left cornerback spot. He recorded five tackles at Tampa Bay (12/9).

2000: Westbrook rebounded from a broken hand and hamstring injuries in 1999 with a Pro Bowl-caliber season in 2000 before rupturing his left Achilles tendon at Minnesota (11/30). Despite the premature ending of an outstanding season, he registered 52 tackles, a career-high six interceptions and led the team with a career single-season high 21 passes defensed. He was selected as an alternate for the Pro Bowl and also earned the Chuck Hughes Most Improved Player award, as voted by his teammates. Westbrook collected six tackles and broke up two passes in the season-opener at New Orleans (9/3). Against Washington (9/10), he collected his first interception of the season with a pick in the fourth quarter, which was a key play (second of three Lions' fourth-quarter interceptions) in the Lions 15-10 win over the Redskins. He also had seven tackles in the game. Westbrook earned NFC Defensive Player of the Week honors (first of career) for his effort in the Lions' 28-14 win at Tampa Bay (10/19), as he collected career single-game highs with two interceptions (returned for 16 yards) and six passes defensed, and added three tackles to his performance. He then established a single-season career-high with his fourth interception of the season with a pick at Indianapolis (10/29). That interception set up the Lions' first score of the game and sparked a second half comeback. He also recorded seven tackles, surpassing the 200-career tackle mark, and three passes defensed. His fifth interception of the season came with 0:39 remaining against Atlanta (11/12) and sealed the Lions' 13-10 victory. He collected five tackles at the N.Y. Giants (11/19) and then logged his sixth interception of the season in the fourth quarter against New England (11/23). He took the pick back 101 yards for a touchdown (second career return for a touchdown), which was the second longest interception return by a player in Lions' history behind Bob Smith's 102 yard return for a score against Chicago on Nov. 24, 1949. He also had three passes defensed in the game, which moved his seasonal tally to a single-season career high 21. His outstanding season was cut short at Minnesota (11/30) when he ruptured his left Achilles tendon. He was placed on Injured Reserve Dec. 4.

1999: Westbrook was hindered for the majority of his third year in the NFL with hamstring injuries and a broken bone in his hand (suffered in training camp). He started eight of the 10 games in which he played, and was at his healthiest toward the end of the season. Because of the injuries, he ended the season with a career-low 34 tackles and six passes defended, in addition to recovering one fumble. Westbrook started the season opener at Seattle (9/12), but injured his right hamstring the following week against Green Bay (9/19). He was then inactive the next five games while recovering from the injury. He returned to his starting role against St. Louis (11/7) and started the subsequent two games as well, recording a season-high seven tackles at Arizona (11/14). He then suffered a strained left hamstring at Green Bay (11/21), which forced him to the inactive list for the Thanksgiving Day game against Chicago (11/25). Despite not being at full strength the next two contests – against Washington (12/5) and at Tampa Bay (12/12) – he played as a reserve. He returned to the starting lineup for the season's final three games, in addition to the NFL Wild Card Playoff Game at Washington (1/8/00), in which he recorded four tackles and deflected a pass.

1998: A starter in all 16 games (14 at left cornerback), Westbrook used his sophomore campaign to build upon a solid rookie season. He started the first two games of the season on the right side after flip-flopping with Kevin Abrams in the off-season, but switched back to left side for the remainder of the year. He tied with Mark Carrier and Ron Rice for the team-lead in interceptions (three). He was also the team-leader for the second straight season with 19 passes broken up, in addition to a career-high 77 tackles. He recorded a career-high 11 tackles against Cincinnati (9/13) and then had the first of two consecutive games with a season-high three passes defended at Minnesota (9/20). His first interception of the season came in the Monday Night spotlight against Tampa Bay (9/28), a pick he returned 34 yards for a touchdown (second career touchdown). He then recorded an interception in back-to-back weeks – against Minnesota (10/25) and Arizona (11/1). Both interceptions gave the Lions possession deep in their opponents' territory. He closed the season with a physical flourish notching seven tackles on three occasions – at Tampa Bay (11/22), against Pittsburgh (11/26) and at San Francisco (12/14).

1997: Westbrook posted a solid rookie season, starting the final 14 games at left cornerback and leading the squad with 20 passes defensed. He also recorded two interceptions, returning one for a touchdown, while tallying 54 tackles and forcing a fumble. Those numbers landed him a spot on the USA Today, Pro Football Weekly, Football News and College and Pro Football Weekly's All-Rookie Team. He also finished in fifth-place in the Associated Press' Rookie of the Year voting. A groin injury in practice the week before the opener against Atlanta (8/31), landed him on the inactive list Week One. He recovered to play against Tampa Bay (9/7), but did not start. Westbrook made his first NFL start in the third game of the year – at Chicago (9/14) – and continued as a starter for the remainder of the season. He defended a career-high four passes and made six tackles against Green Bay (9/28). At Tampa Bay (10/12), he defended three passes, forced a fumble and made four tackles. Head coach Bobby Ross said Westbrook played his best game of the season against Minnesota (11/16) as he blanketed Pro Bowler Cris Carter and recorded two tackles. His first career interception came at Miami (12/7) when he picked off a Dan Marino pass and returned it 64 yards for a touchdown. He recorded a big interception in the Lions' end zone on a halfback option pass in the fourth quarter of the regular season finale against the N.Y. Jets (12/21). He also recorded a season-high seven tackles against the Jets. In the NFC Wild Card Playoff Game at Tampa Bay (12/28), Westbrook collected four tackles.

COLLEGE: A second-team All-America selection by the Associated Press and a consensus All-Big 12 first-team choice as a senior, Westbrook recorded 52 tackles with three forced fumbles, a pair of blocked kicks, 11 pass deflections and two interceptions as a team captain. One of his blocked kicks was a punt against Missouri that he scooped up and returned 35 yards for a touchdown. A consensus All-Big 12 selection as a junior, Westbrook had a career-high 62 tackles, three forced fumbles, one interception and nine pass deflections from his left cornerback position. Manning the right side as a sophomore, Westbrook led the team with four interceptions and recorded a career-high 12 tackles against Colorado. Westbrook first forced his way into the starting lineup mid-way through his freshman year, starting the final five games of the season at right cornerback.

PERSONAL: Westbrook was a Parade All-America selection and ranked second on the Blue Chip Illustrated Dream Team as a senior at El Camino High School in Oceanside, Calif. He was the North County Defensive Player of the Year as he made 41 tackles with two interceptions and four forced fumbles. He also rushed for 676 yards and five touchdowns on 97 carries (7.0 avg.) in the first seven games of the season at tailback before moving to flanker, where he caught 25 passes for 423 yards. He helped lead the school to back-to-back county titles as a junior and senior. Bryant majored in social work at Texas and was a member of the Athletic Director's Honor Roll as he attained a 3.0 grade point average in 1994. He also served as a mentor at local elementary and middle schools while at Texas. He was also a regular visitor to the Children's Hospital of Austin during his collegiate career. At Thanksgiving, he sponsors a program with his high school in Oceanside, Calif., to help 100 families in need have a healthy Thanksgiving dinner.

James Whalen

Tight End

Kentucky
FA for '00
NFL: 3rd Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

GAMES PLAYED/STARTED: 2000 (3/0); 2001 (0/0-IR). Total (3/0).

PRO: In their search for a pass catching tight end, the Cowboys signed James Whalen two years ago as that possible threat. Whalen, the NCAA's single season receptions, yardage and touchdowns leader for a tight end, spent a year on Dallas' practice squad before making the jump to the active roster. However, his 2001 season was cut short prematurely with an Achilles tendon injury. Having gone through the rehabilitation process, Dallas coaches are expecting Whalen to battle for a spot on the tight end depth chart after increasing his weight to 244 pounds without sacrificing the speed that makes him such a receiving threat.

2001: Whalen spent the spring playing for the Scottish Claymores of NFL Europe, where he led the league with 66 catches for 691 yards (second-best in NFLE) and three touchdowns, while garnering All-NFLE honors. He was also fourth in the league with 691 total yards from scrimmage. After the spring, Whalen returned the Cowboys active roster but was a game-day deactivation against Tampa Bay (9/9). He suffered a strained right Achilles in practice Sept. 12 and was placed on injured reserve Sept. 22.

2000: Whalen was drafted by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the fifth round (157th overall) of the NFL Draft but was released Aug. 27. He signed to the Cowboys practice squad Aug. 30, where he remained until being moved to the active roster Dec. 5. He saw special teams action against Washington (12/10) and the N.Y. Giants (12/17). He saw his first offensive playing time at Tennessee (12/25) but did not record a reception.

COLLEGE: Whalen earned All-America and All-SEC honors after leading all collegiate tight ends with 90 receptions, 1,019 receiving yards and 10 touchdowns as a senior. His 90 receptions established an NCAA record for tight ends and set a new school record at Kentucky. He earned Compaq's Best Hustle Play of the Week in College Football following a 57-yard catch-and-run play against Louisville. Whalen made the transition from wide receiver to tight end during spring drills prior to his junior year and finished the season with 23 catches for 239 yards and three touchdowns. As a sophomore transfer, Whalen saw action in 11 games, recording seven catches for 66 yards. He was named the UK Walk-on of the Year as chosen by the Louisville chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame. He spent his freshman season at Shasta Junior College in Redding, Calif., as a wide receiver catching 19 passes for 154 yards and a touchdown.

PERSONAL: James Patrick Whalen, Jr. was a four-year letterman and three-year starter at LaSalle High School in Portland, Ore. He was named all-state and Tri-Valley League Player of the Year after catching 68 passes for 1,502 yards and 18 touchdowns to help lead his team to the league championship as a senior. He posted approximately 75 receptions for 1,300 yards and 25 touchdowns as a sophomore and junior, combined, to earn all-league honors each season. Michael Wiley

Running Back

NFL: 3rd Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 2000 (10/0), 2001 (16/0). Total — 26/0.

PRO: Michael Wiley is an all-purpose player who has demonstrated the ability to fill the role of a third down back with his solid pass receiving skills and his fine pass blocking ability. After being drafted in the fifth round out of Ohio State in 2000, Wiley was initially scheduled to be evaluated at both running back and receiver, but he soon found a niche in the backfield. As a ball carrier, he has excellent vision and burst, and he also has the ability to set up his blocks effectively. A solid route runner with good hands and speed, Wiley has made the most of his opportunities on the field the past two seasons. In 2001, he was equally effective as a runner, receiver and pass protector in third down situations throughout the season. He will compete for playing time at running back with Troy Hambrick, as the pair back up Emmitt Smith in 2002.

2001: As a second year pro, Wiley came into his own as the Cowboys third down back. He touched the football 30 times on third down and picked up a first down on 14 of those touches (46.7% conversion rate). To add to those impressive figures, he averaged 6.8 yards every time he touched the ball from scrimmage. He finished the year with 34 rushing attempts for 247 yards (7.3 avg.) and 16 catches for 99 yards and a touchdown, while averaging 22.5 yards on four kickoff returns. Wiley opened the season with three receptions for 16 yards on third downs against Tampa Bay (9/9). At Philadelphia (9/30), he led the team with three receptions for 28 yards, including an 11-yard touchdown – his only scoring reception of the year and the second of his career. Wiley also added two carries for eight yards and recovered a Brian Mitchell fumble on a first quarter punt on special teams to set up a Dallas field goal. In the Cowboys 17-3 win over Arizona (10/28), he touched the football twice and converted a third down both times, first with a 12-yard run, then with an eight-yard gain on a shovel pass. At New York (11/4), Wiley worked as the third down back and spelled Hambrick (Smith was out with a sprained knee) at running back. The following week at Atlanta (11/11), Wiley again spelled Hambrick at running back and recorded a career-best 85 yards on seven carries, including a career-long 58-yard burst to set up the only Dallas touchdown of the day. At Washington (12/2), Wiley logged three carries for 61 yards, including a 46-yard scamper late in the third quarter to set Dallas up for a 38-yard field goal. All three of his carries against the Redskins came on third down and picked up a first down. In the following week's win over the Giants (12/9), Wiley recorded four carries for 15 yards, including a key six-yard gain on third-and-three to pick up a first down and keep alive the go-ahead touchdown drive. He added a career-long 17-yard reception on the earlier game-tying touchdown drive, and he handled two kickoff returns, one on a reverse handoff from Swinton and the other when he fielded a short kick and returned it 40 yards to the Giants' 44-yard line. At Seattle (12/16), he recorded one reception for eight yards before suffering a right hip contusion in the third quarter that knocked him out of the game. He returned to action the following week at Arizona (12/23) and recorded six touches (three runs, three receptions) for 19 yards. In the Cowboys surprise win over playoff bound San Francisco (12/30), Wiley touched the ball four times on third down and converted three of those touches into first downs. His 19-yard run on third-and-seven got the ball to the 49ers two-yard line and set up the final field goal of the game. In the season finale at Detroit (1/6/02), Wiley converted one-of-two third down runs into a first down.

2000: While using his rookie season as a learning experience, Wiley's limited action in the early part of the year grew into an expanded third down back role following the release of Chris Warren in December. Wiley closed the year with 14 receptions for 72 yards. His rushing attempts also increased by the end of the year, and in the last four games of the season, he had 23 carries for 87 yards. Wiley also saw action on Dallas special teams, averaging 23.3 yards on 13 kickoff returns while making seven special teams tackles. In his first NFL game, he led the team with three special teams tackles against Philadelphia (9/3) while adding a 10-yard reception. At Arizona (9/10), Wiley scored his first NFL touchdown by plucking a tipped pass from Randall Cunningham out of the air and taking it 15 yards for the score. He finished the night with three receptions for 23 yards replacing Warren (neck strain) on third downs. In the Monday night win at Washington (9/18), he took over the kickoff return duties and fielded four kicks for 89 yards. Against San Francisco (9/24), he averaged 21.3 yards on three kickoff returns. In that game, Wiley also recorded his first career rushing attempt (a one-yard gain). After suffering a sprained right knee in practice on Oct. 11, Wiley worked through a six-game period where he was a game-day deactivation. He returned to the field on Thanksgiving Day against Minnesota (11/23) and contributed an eight-yard reception. At Tampa Bay (12/3), in his first extensive offensive action, Wiley replaced Warren on third down and in multiple wide receiver sets and responded with six carries for 32 yards (5.3 avg.) and three receptions for 13 yards. In the win over Washington (12/10), he was second on the team with 11 carries for 38 yards spelling Smith. The following week against the N.Y Giants (12/17), Wiley led the Cowboys with four receptions. In the season's final game at Tennessee (12/25), he opened the game by recovering an onside kick by Dallas. He went on to add five carries for 17 yards as the team's third down back.

COLLEGE: Wiley came to the Cowboys after one of the most productive careers as a playmaker in the history of Ohio State football. In four years in Columbus, Wiley had a hand in 35 touchdowns in the following fashion: rushing (27), receiving (five), passing (two) and kickoff returns (one). Although he started just two seasons for the Buckeyes, Wiley left Ohio State ranked seventh on the school's all-purpose yardage list with 4,194 yards. His career totals include 2,951 rushing yards, good for seventh on the OSU all-time ground list. Wiley completed an incredible 10-of-11 career passing attempts for 225 yards and two touchdowns while averaging 21.9 yards-per-kickoff return with a career-long 100-yard touchdown effort. He finished his days at Ohio State with career averages of 5.8 yards-per-rush and 11.3 yards-per-reception. Wiley averaged 7.7 yards every time he touched the ball in college. He was a second-team All-Big Ten selection after a senior season in which he led the Buckeyes in rushing with 952 yards and 10 touchdowns on 183 carries (5.2 avg.). In 1998, Wiley enjoyed his finest season as a collegiate player. A first team All-Big Ten selection, he led the Buckeyes in rushing and was second in the conference, with a career-high 1,258 yards on 198 carries (6.2 avg.) and 10 touchdowns.

PERSONAL: A consensus high school All-America at Monte Vista High School in San Diego, Calif., Wiley ran for 3,417 career yards and 38 touchdowns. As a senior, he tallied 1,901 yards and 23 touchdowns on the ground en route to being ranked as the country's No. 2 running back prospect by Bluechip Illustrated. He earned four letters in football and track and three in basketball. Wiley was a National Football Foundation and College Hall of Fame Scholar athlete at Ohio State, where he majored in sociology.

In an ongoing search to find a possession receiver, Cowboys coaches are looking to Randal Williams to break out of the pack and establish himself as the go-to guy. Williams is a raw receiver that runs precise routes and has the size to win a battle for the football. He is an intelligent player that saw time on special teams as a rookie and should have a grasp of the Cowboys offensive system going into the 2002 season.

2001: Williams signed with Jacksonville as a rookie free agent and finished the preseason with one catch for six yards. He was one of only three rookie free agents to make the Jaguars final roster, but was deactivated for each of Jacksonville's first six games. He was released Oct. 27 and claimed by Dallas Oct. 29. He was inactive at the N.Y. Giants (11/4) then active but did not play at Atlanta (11/11). He saw his first NFL action on special teams, recording one tackle against Philadelphia (11/18). Against Denver (11/22) he added another special teams tackle then recorded his third straight special teams tackle at Washington (12/2). Williams saw action on the punt coverage team and registered a tackle working as a gunner against the N.Y. Giants (12/9). At Seattle (12/16), he recorded another special teams tackle before being deactivated at Arizona (12/23). Against San Francisco (12/30), Williams tallied his sixth special teams tackle before closing the season off at Detroit (1/6) with his seventh tackle in seven games.

COLLEGE: Williams saw action in seven games as a senior at New Hampshire, catching 10 passes for 258 yards (25.8 avg.) and four touchdowns. He also carried the ball 47 times for 163 yards and three touchdowns and returned eight punts for 146 yards (18.3). To compliment his football feats, Williams earned Academic All-Conference honors. As a junior, Williams caught 10 passes for 149 yards (14.9) and three touchdowns while seeing action in every game. He averaged 6.5 yards-per-carry on four rushes (26 yards) and also saw some playing time as a defensive end, where he recorded one tackle.

PERSONAL: Randal Ellison Williams attended Deerfield, Mass., Academy, where he played split end and defensive end on the football team while running the 100-meters, 200-meters and 4x100 relay for the track team. He tied the Deerfield Academy school record in the 100 and earned a silver medal in the 100 at the New England Prep School Championships. Randal, who was president of the Deerfield Black Student Coalition, graduated from New Hampshire with a double major in business and Spanish.

NFL: Rookie ★ Cowboys: Rookie

COLLEGE: Considered by many to be the nation's top college football players in 2001, Roy Williams comes to Dallas as perhaps the Cowboys most heralded first round draft choice since another player with ties to the State of Oklahoma – Troy Aikman – arrived in 1989. Rarely has any Dallas draft pick received so much advanced billing, and even more uncommon is the universal acceptance of Williams' selection and his immediate popularity with Cowboys' fans across the country. Williams was selected with the eighth pick in the 2002 Draft after coming out of the University of Oklahoma with a year of eligibility remaining. He was a unanimous All-America and All-Big 12 Conference selection at strong safety, while also claiming the 2001 Jim Thorpe Award that annually recognizes the nation's top defensive back. Williams was also named the Bronko Nagurski Award winner as the nation's top defender. Regarded as one of the hardest hitting safeties to come out of the college game in several years, Williams is equally adept at covering receivers or being a stout run stopper. He is particularly talented at blitzing and his outstanding tackling technique is apparent in all situations. He will enter the league with high expectations and should team up with long time Pro Bowler Darren Woodson to form perhaps the league's hardest hitting safety tandem. Williams is expected to learn the intricacies of the NFL game from Woodson, and the pair should be interchangeable at the two safety positions in the Dallas defense. The pair of aggressive blitzers should provide balance in pressuring opposing quarterbacks and helping the Cowboys defense create more negative plays and turnovers.

2001: A unanimous All-America and All-Big 12 selection, Williams was named Big 12 Defensive Player of the Year by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and College Football News. He capped his brilliant collegiate career by winning the Jim Thorpe Award, given to the nation's top defensive back, and the Nagurski Award, given to college football's top defensive player. In leading the Sooners to a 10-2 record and a victory in the Cotton Bowl, Williams set a school season record with 27 pass deflections, shattering the old mark of 17 by Mike Woods (1999). He recorded a career-high 101 tackles (73 solos) with two sacks and 11 stops for losses. His 11 stops behind the line of scrimmage were one shy of his own school record for defensive backs (12 in 2000). He also intercepted five passes and recovered three fumbles. Williams showcased his talents for the City of Dallas in the Sooners mid-season win over Texas (14-3) at the Cotton Bowl when he picked off a pass, deflected three others, collected eight tackles and stopped tailback Cedric Benson for a three-yard loss. He also made the play of the game with a crunching hit on quarterback Chris Simms that forced an interception deep in Longhorn territory that was returned for the game-clinching touchdown. At Air Force, Williams picked up three tackles for losses moving him into first place among Oklahoma defensive backs with 29 career tackles for losses. He registered a career-high 15 tackles against North Texas, and scored a touchdown on an 18-yard fumble recovery in a victory over Kansas State. At Nebraska, Williams tied for the team lead with nine tackles then led the team with 11 stops against Texas A&M. In the Sooners win over Texas Tech, he registered 10 tackles with a 13-yard sack and four deflected passes. He played his final game as a college player in Dallas' Cotton Bowl and registered six tackles, two sacks and three stops for minus 17 yards in the win over Arkansas.

2000: Williams played a very visible role in the Sooners' perfect 12-0 season and march to the national championship. The title marked the first for Oklahoma since 1985, and the championship season was capped with a victory over Florida State in the Orange Bowl. Williams was named All-America and was also an All-Big 12 pick. Williams started all 12 games at strong safety and finished the year third on the team with 93 tackles (58 solos). His 12 stops for losses set a school record for defensive backs, and he had four sacks for losses of 25 yards. He intercepted two passes and deflected nine others while recovering one fumble. In the season opener against UTEP, Williams recorded the first touchdown return of his career on a 35-yard interception return. Against Kansas, he collected 13 tackles inlcuding a five-yard sack and three stops for losses of nine yards. In the annual Red River Shootout against Texas, Williams tallied seven tackles, two behind the line of scrimmage, a sack for a 13-yard loss and one pass defensed. He then posted 10 tackles with two for losses against Nebraska before picking up 10 tackles, two for losses, a five-yard sack and a pass defensed at Texas A&M. Against Texas Tech, Williams registered 11 tackles then made six stops, a pass defensed and a fumble recovery that led to Oklahoma's only touchdown in the National Championship Game.

1999: Williams played in every game and started the final five contests for Oklahoma. He recorded 75 tackles (57 solos) with a 5-yard sack and six stops for losses of 21 yards. He also intercepted two passes and deflected 11 others while causing one fumble. He earned Sporting News Freshman All-America honors at the conclusion of the season. In the season opener against Indiana State, he recorded eight tackles before picking up his first career interception and nine tackles against Texas A&M. At Colorado, he made seven tackles before taking an interception 22 yards against Missouri. At Iowa State, Williams tallied 11 tackles including one for a loss. Against Oklahoma State, he registered a then career-high 14 tackles, including a 5-yard sack and two tackles behind the line of scrimmage. In the Independence Bowl against Mississippi, he posted six tackles, a tackle for a loss and two passes defensed.

1998: As a true freshman, he stepped in and contributed immediately on defense and special teams. He played in the first three games of the season before suffering a back injury that forced him out of action the remainder of the year. He received a medical hardship to regain another year of eligibility.

PERSONAL: Williams played quarterback, wide receiver and defensive back during his career at James Logan High School in Union City, CA. He was the top-rated defensive back prospect in the western region by PrepStar, after recording five interceptions and 56 tackles as a senior. He caught 13 passes for 301 yards and five touchdowns in 1997 as a wide receiver while running for 162 yards and a touchdown on 38 carries. Williams was one of the main reasons that Logan had a four-year record of 38-10, two North Coast Section Class 4A championship appearances (1994 and 1997) and two semifinal appearances (1995 and 1996). He also lettered in track (clocked at 10.9 seconds in the 100 meters). Williams majored in sociology at Oklahoma. His aunt, Vecepia Towery, was the winner of the popular CBS television series Survivor: Marquesas in the Spring of 2002.

PRO: Through 10 NFL seasons, Darren Woodson has clearly and consistently established himself as one of the NFL's premier strong safeties. His dependability, athleticism, aggressiveness and the ability to produce in the big game have put him in the elite level of performers in the NFL. In addition, his versatility at playing both the run and pass at an extremely productive level have separated Woodson from the rest of the strong safety field. He has been selected to five Pro Bowls, been named first team All-Pro four times and played in three Super Bowls. A converted college linebacker, Woodson is the complete NFL package at safety. He combines size (6-1, 219) and speed (4.4 in the 40-yard dash) with great football instincts and hitting ability. He has recorded at least 100 tackles in nine of the last 10 years. He has started 147 of the club's last 157 games, including playoffs, and he has played in 167 of a possible 175 career games. Woodson has 44 double-figure tackle games in his career, and in 2001, he became the second leading tackler in Dallas Cowboys history. His 131 stops last year increased his career tackle total to 1,178 and moved him ahead of Randy White (1,104) on the Cowboys' all-time list. He now trails only Lee Roy Jordan (1,236 tackles) and can become the club's all-time leader with 58 more stops in 2002. With 21 career interceptions, Woodson is tied for 11th on the club's all-time list and will crack the top ten with his next pick. He has maintained the aggressive nature that he displayed as a college linebacker, but has used his quickness and speed to make a very smooth transition to the secondary. Woodson has finished first or second on the team in tackles in five of the last nine seasons (1993-96, 1998). He also went over the 100 tackle mark in four consecutive seasons (1993-96), becoming the first Dallas player to accomplish that feat since Michael Downs (1983-86). In 1995, he became the first Dallas defensive back to lead the team in tackles (144) since Bill Bates in 1988. He duplicated that feat in 1998. In 1993, he established a Dallas single-season record for tackles by a defensive back (155). In the Cowboys base defensive alignment, Woodson lines up at strong safety, but he has also shown great production when lining up at outside linebacker in certain nickel pass defenses – often covering a slot receiver. His versatility and aggressive attitude makes him a very valuable special teams performer, posting a combined total of 72 special teams tackles in the past five seasons. Woodson's next selection as an All-Pro will enable him to earn that honor more times (five) than any other Dallas safety. He is currently tied with Mel Renfro (1965, 1967, 1969 and 1971) and Cliff Harris (1975-1978), who were each named All-Pro four times during their Dallas careers. Renfro earned a fifth All-Pro selection as a cornerback in 1973. Woodson is one of the team's hardest workers, and his character and leadership ability make him a very valuable asset within the framework of the team. He signed a long-term contract after the 2001 season ended that will assure Woodson's place as a Dallas Cowboy throughout his entire career. At Super Bowl XXXVI in New Orleans, Woodson was named the 14th recipient of the Athletes in Action Bart Starr Award. The honor, which is voted on by all NFL players, recognizes outstanding character and leadership in the home, on the field and in the community.

2001: Woodson was clearly the most valuable player on the Dallas defense. He led the team with three interceptions, marking the first time in his career he has led the Cowboys defense outright in that department (he tied for the team lead in 1994 and 1996). He also tied for the team lead in tackles for lost yardage with nine, while his 131 total stops were good for third on the club, trailing Dat Nguyen (172) and Dexter Coakley (134). In an ongoing display of unselfishness, Woodson also racked up 11 special teams tackles, marking the seventh time in his 10-year career that he has reached double figures in special teams tackles. In the opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), Woodson was second on the team with a season-high 13 tackles and helped limit the Bucs wide receivers to 9.7 yards-per-reception, including just one completion of over 20 yards. He also recorded his 19th career interception with a second-quarter pick off Brad Johnson while covering Keyshawn Johnson. On the run side, he added two tackles for a loss while helping hold the Bucs to 2.2 yards-per-carry. In the loss to San Diego (9/23), he tied for second on the team with eight tackles. At Oakland (10/7), Woodson was second on the team with 10 tackles while helping limit the Raiders to 101 rushing yards on 34 carries (3.0 yards-per-carry). In the Monday night win over Washington (10/15), he totaled five tackles while helping limit the Redskins to 123 net yards passing on the night. In Dallas' 17-3 win over Arizona (10/28), he was third on the team with nine tackles while helping limit the Cards to 75 yards rushing. At the N.Y. Giants (11/4), Woodson's six tackles moved him past Randy White (1,104 career tackles) and into second place on the club's all-time tackle list with 1,106 stops. He also forced two fumbles in the Giants game, including one on kickoff coverage that set Dallas up at the Giants' 27-yard line.

At Atlanta (11/11), he recovered a Michael Vick fumble at midfield to set Dallas up for its only touchdown drive of the game. He also had a tackle for a loss as the Falcons were limited to 201 total yards, including just 46 net yards passing, the lowest passing total by an opponent since the N.Y. Giants were held to 42 yards on Sept. 8, 1996. In the loss to Philadelphia (11/18), Woodson recorded the 20th interception of his career and tied his season high with 13 tackles. He also tied his season-high total of two tackles for losses and broke up two passes as the Eagles were limited to 227 total yards, including just 129 through the air. In the Thanksgiving Day loss to Denver (11/22), he was second on the team with 10 tackles while adding a tackle for a loss and a quarterback pressure. Woodson's effort helped limit Denver to 160 net yards passing and a 3.1 yards-per-carry average on the ground. In Dallas' big road win at Washington (12/2), he tied for the team lead with eight tackles while adding two quarterback pressures. He spearheaded a defensive unit that limited Stephen Davis to 53 yards on 17 carries (3.1 avg.) and the Redskins passing game to 196 net yards. In the following week's win over the Giants (12/9), Woodson recorded his 21st career interception with a game-icing pick off of Kerry Collins in the fourth quarter. He also added two special teams tackles on kickoff coverage against New York. At Seattle (12/16), he was second on the team with 12 tackles despite suffering a right knee contusion in the second quarter. He also broke up a pass and helped limit the Seahawks to 139 net yards passing on the day. In the Cowboys' surpise victory over playoff-bound San Francisco (12/30), Woodson was second on the team with nine tackles and added a tackle for a loss. The 49ers were limited to 229 net yards passing, including just 149 through three quarters. On the ground, the NFL's second ranked running game (146 yards-per-game) was limited to 56 yards.

2000: Woodson was enjoying another stellar campaign at strong safety, leading the team in tackles with 123 stops before a fractured forearm at Baltimore (11/19) brought a premature end to his season. Although he missed the remaining five games of the year and was placed on injured reserve Dec. 14, he still finished the year as the team's third leading tackler and was fourth in special teams tackles with 11. In the season opener against Philadelphia (9/3), Woodson tied for the team lead with 13 tackles. The following week at Arizona (9/10), he finished with nine tackles, a tackle for a loss and a pass defensed while helping limit the Cardinals to 3.0 yards-per-rushing attempt. At Washington (9/18), he led the team with 13 tackles and assisted in shutting down the Redskins big-play passing attack by limiting their four wide receivers to 12 catches for 97 yards (8.1 yards-per-catch) with a long of 14 yards. In the loss to San Francisco (9/24), he recorded a team-high 15 tackles, his best performance since recording 17 stops against Atlanta on Oct. 20, 1996. In the overtime win at Carolina (10/1), he led the secondary with 10 tackles while adding a tackle for a loss, forcing a fumble and breaking up two passes – including a key fourth-down pass from Steve Beuerlein that ended a Panthers potential scoring drive in the fourth quarter. At the N.Y. Giants (10/15), he recorded eight tackles and helped limit the Giants to 108 yards passing. In the Cowboys 48-7 win over Arizona (10/22), Woodson led the team with nine tackles and recorded his first interception of 2000 with a third quarter pick of Jake Plummer to set up a Dallas touchdown. He also helped limit Cardinal wide receivers to five receptions for 51 yards through three quarters, including three receptions for 17 yards by starters Boston and Sanders. In addition, Woodson led Dallas with four special teams tackles, tying his single-game career-high. Against Jacksonville (10/29), he recorded his 1,000th career tackle, becoming just the fourth player in club history to reach the 1,000 tackle mark, joining Lee Roy Jordan, Randy White and Ed Jones. He finished that game with 13 stops – second best on the team. The following week at Philadelphia (11/5), Woodson led the team with 16 tackles, the highest single-game tackle total by a Cowboys defender for 2000. He also recorded his second interception of the season with a second quarter pick of McNabb and helped limit the Eagles running backs to 77 yards on 25 carries (3.1 avg.) and their wide receivers to four receptions for 49 yards. In the win over Cincinnati (11/12), Woodson posted eight tackles as the Bengals were limited to 195 total yards and just 56 net yards passing. In that game, he also moved past Ed Jones (1,032 career tackles) into third place on the club's all-time tackle list. Woodson's season came to an abrupt end at Baltimore (11/19) when he suffered a fractured forearm in the second quarter. He returned to action in the second half and registered nine tackles, but the injury eventually forced him to miss the remaining five games of the year.

1999: Although not receiving public accolades, Woodson still performed at a level Cowboys coaches, players and fans have come to expect. Despite missing the game at Philadelphia (10/10) with a sprained left ankle, he finished third on the team with 128 tackles while recording a career-high seven quarterback pressures, eight passes defensed, three tackles behind the line of scrimmage, two interceptions and a sack. While registering five double-digit tackle games during the season, he also finished fourth on the team with 13 special teams stops. Woodson opened the season tying for the team lead with nine tackles at Washington (9/12) while also tying for the team lead with three special teams tackles despite suffering a bruised biceps midway through the game. Against Atlanta (9/20), he tied for the team lead with 11 tackles while leading the team with a career-high four quarterback pressures and adding his only sack of the season. He posted six tackles, a tackle for a loss and a pass defensed against Arizona (10/3) before missing the game at Philadelphia (10/10) after suffering a sprained left ankle in practice the Thursday before the game. He returned to the starting lineup at the N.Y. Giants (10/18) and registered nine stops. He led the team with 12 tackles and forced a fumble at Indianapolis (10/31) before tying for the team lead with eight tackles at Minnesota (11/8). Against Green Bay (11/14), Woodson tied for the team lead with 11 tackles to help limit the Packers to 40 yards rushing. On Thanksgiving Day, he registered 10 tackles to help shut out Miami (11/25). At New England (12/5), he posted seven tackles and recorded his first interception of the season when he picked off Drew Bledsoe in the end zone to end a Patriots second quarter scoring threat. Woodson also recorded the 100th special teams tackle of his career against the Pats. He registered six tackles against Philadelphia (12/12) and a week later, he recorded a season-high 13 stops against the N.Y. Jets (12/19). He tied his career-high with three passes defensed, including his second interception of the year, at New Orleans (12/24) while tallying six tackles in helping hold Ricky Williams to 61 yards on 23 carries (2.7 avg.). He finished with seven tackles in the season finale against the N.Y. Giants (1/2/00). In Dallas' NFC Wild Card Playoff Game at Minnesota (1/9/00), Woodson recorded a postseason career-high 13 tackles while adding a tackle for a loss and a pass defensed.

1998: Back to full health, Woodson regained his spot at the top of the Dallas tackle chart, leading the team with 136 stops – the third best performance of his career. His three sacks tied his career-high, and he posted six double figure tackle games. He was also second on the team with 11 passes defensed, the second best total of his career. This high productivity level earned him All-Pro selection by The Sporting News. It was the fourth time in his career he has been named All-Pro, tying Mel Renfro and Cliff Harris as the most decorated safeties in club history. Following the season, Woodson made his fifth consecutive trip to Hawaii as a member of the NFC Pro Bowl squad. The honor that may have meant the most to Woodson was the Ed Block Courage Award, an honor voted on by his Dallas teammates and given to the player who has overcome injuries to return to the field. He opened the season against Arizona (9/6) by finishing with five tackles and helping limit the Cardinals to 205 total yards. He was second on the team with nine tackles at Denver (9/13) before leading the squad with a season-high 12 tackles at the N.Y. Giants (9/21). In the Giants game, the Dallas defense limited New York to 56 yards rushing. Woodson came right back the next week against Oakland (9/27) and tied his season-high with another 12-tackle performance. He again led the team with 11 stops at Washington (10/4) while helping limit the Redskins to 164 yards on 13-of-29 passing (44.8%). His eight-tackle game at Chicago (10/18) helped limit the Bears to 79 yards rushing on 31 carries. Woodson logged his only interception of the season at Philadelphia (11/2) while deflecting two other passes to help limit the Eagles to 104 passing yards, including six receptions for 38 yards from their wide receivers (6.8 avg.). Against the N.Y. Giants (11/8), Woodson recorded the first multi-sack game of his career while leading the team with 11 tackles and three special teams tackles. He again led the team in tackles with 11 at Arizona (11/15) and nine against Seattle (11/22). He also added his third sack of the season against Seattle – which forced a Warren Moon fumble that led to the first Dallas touchdown of the day. For the fourth straight game, Woodson was at the top of the tackle chart, tying for the team lead with eight stops against Minnesota (11/26) while adding a team-high two tackles for a loss. He was second on the team with 10 tackles at New Orleans (12/6), posting his sixth double digit tackle game of the season. His three passes defensed at Kansas City (12/13) led the team and tied his single-game career-best. He also totaled eight tackles on the day. Woodson closed out the season with six tackles and a forced fumble against Philadelphia (12/20) and seven-tackles against Washington (12/27). In the Wild Card Playoff Game against Arizona (1/2/99), he led the team with three passes defensed, including a fourth quarter interception that stopped a Cardinals drive at the Dallas 16-yard line.

1997: Although Woodson's season was affected by injuries, causing him to miss two regular season starts for the first time since becoming a full-time starter in 1993, he was still recognized as the game's best strong safety, earning his fourth consecutive spot on the NFC Pro Bowl squad. From Week Two of 1993 through Week Seven of 1997, Woodson had started 80 straight games (including playoffs), but that streak came to an end when he was forced to miss the game at Philadelphia (10/26) with a hyperextended right knee. It was the first time he had not suited up for a game in his career (100 consecutive games). He also missed the Thanksgiving Day game against Tennessee with a sprained right shoulder. Woodson's ability to play through injuries earned him the Dallas Cowboys Unsung Hero Award from the NFL Players Association. Despite the two missed games, he still finished the year fifth on the team with 97 tackles, while also leading the team with three forced fumbles. He tied for the team lead in fumble recoveries with two. At Arizona (9/7), he had a career-high two forced fumbles and logged seven tackles. His second quarter sack and forced fumble came on a blitz of Cardinals QB Kent Graham, and the fumble was returned four yards for a touchdown by Chad Hennings. The next week, he led the team with 11 tackles against Philadelphia (9/15) as the Dallas defense limited the Eagles to 5.8 yards-per-pass play. Two weeks later, Woodson recorded his first interception of the season to set up a Dallas field goal against Chicago (9/28) while adding six tackles. At Washington (10/13), Woodson tied for fourth on the team with eight tackles despite suffering a hyperextended right knee in practice the Thursday before the game. He also forced a Redskins fumble that Dexter Coakley returned 16 yards for a touchdown. In the victory over Jacksonville (10/19), he registered four tackles before re-aggravating his hyperextended right knee early in the third quarter and leaving the game. After sitting out the Eagles game (10/26) the next week, Woodson returned to the starting lineup at San Francisco (11/2) and was second on the team with a season-high tying 11 tackles. He also led the team with two special teams tackles and recovered a fumble at the Cowboys 17 yard-line to end a 49ers threat late in the first half. At Green Bay (11/23), he logged five tackles despite suffering a strained right shoulder in the second quarter. He returned to the game midway through the fourth quarter, but the shoulder injury kept him out of the Thanksgiving Day game with Tennessee (11/27) four days later. At the conclusion of the season, Woodson underwent an exploratory arthroscopic debridement of his right shoulder by Dr. James Andrews on Jan. 14, 1998 in Birmingham, AL.

1996: Woodson capped another stellar season with his second consecutive All-Pro selection and his third straight Pro Bowl appearance. For the second time in his career, he tied for the team lead in interceptions (five, with Kevin Smith), matching the career-high number of interceptions he collected in 1994. He was also second on the team in tackles with 118 stops, topping the 100-tackle mark for the fourth consecutive season to become the first Dallas player to accomplish that feat since Michael Downs (1983-1986). He finished the year second on the team in special teams tackles (18) and passes defensed (10). Woodson also compiled a career-high three sacks – marking the most sacks by a Dallas defensive back since Kenny Gant had three in 1992. In the season opener at Chicago (9/2), Woodson tied for the team lead among defensive backs with eight tackles, while also recovering a fumble to set up Dallas' first field goal. In the loss at Buffalo (9/22), Woodson picked up his first interception of the year while helping limit the Bills to just 89 yards passing. The next week at Philadelphia (9/30), he led the team with 11 tackles while recording his first sack of the year. In the Cowboys win over Atlanta (10/20), Woodson led the team with a season-high 17 tackles. He received a game ball for his performance against the Falcons after also recording two passes defensed and a tackle for lost yardage. Woodson was the team leader in tackles with eight stops at San Francisco (11/10) while registering a sack and intercepting a third quarter pass to set up a Dallas field goal. In the Monday night victory over Green Bay (11/18), Woodson intercepted Brett Favre's two-point conversion pass attempt in the fourth quarter. Woodson recorded his third interception of the year with a fourth quarter theft at Arizona (12/8) that set up a Dallas field goal. The following week, he picked off two Drew Bledsoe passes against New England (12/15), marking the second time in his career he has had a multiple interception game (vs. Arizona, 10/9/94). In the win over the Patriots, he also led the team with nine tackles and forced a Curtis Martin fumble on third-and-one from the Dallas 16-yard line to stop a second quarter scoring drive. Later in the third quarter, he returned an interception 21 yards to the Patriots four-yard line to set up a Dallas field goal. His fourth quarter interception ended the Patriots chances with 2:22 remaining. In the playoff loss at Carolina (1/5/97), Woodson picked up his second career postseason interception on the Panther's opening drive of the game to set up a Dallas field goal.

1995: Darren Woodson's fourth NFL season was somewhat of a "dream season," as he closed the year in his hometown of Phoenix, AZ, playing in Super Bowl XXX in the same Sun Devil Stadium where he starred at Arizona State. Along the way to the Super Bowl, Woodson was a consensus All-Pro selection for the second consecutive year, and he earned his second straight starting berth in the Pro Bowl. In doing so, Woodson became the first Dallas defensive back to earn consecutive All-Pro honors since Everson Walls (1982-83) and the first Dallas safety to make back-to-back Pro Bowl trips since Cliff Harris (1978-79). Woodson led the Cowboys with 144 tackles, and became the first defensive back to top the team tackle list since Bill Bates in 1988. He enjoyed his most productive all-around day in the loss at Washington (10/1), leading the team with 15 tackles and returning an interception 37 yards for a touchdown, marking his second career interception return for a score. In the Cowboys win over the Raiders in Oakland (11/19), Woodson recorded a season-high 16 tackles, including a career-high tying 11 solo stops. He also had two passes defensed and a key interception at the Raiders four-yard line that stopped a fourth quarter drive. His other top tackling performances came in the following regular season games: at Minnesota (12 stops on 9/17), San Francisco (10 on 11/12), at Philadelphia (14 on 12/10) and against the N.Y. Giants (12 on 12/17). In addition to leading the team in tackles during the regular season, Woodson also led the team with 23 postseason tackles, including a team-high 11 stops against Pittsburgh in Super Bowl XXX (1/28/96). In the divisional playoff win over Philadelphia (1/7/96), his hit on Eagles quarterback Rodney Peete forced Peete to leave the game with a concussion.

1994: Woodson's rapid climb to the top level of NFL safeties reached the summit in 1994 – his third year in the NFL and second year as a starter. He was a consensus All-Pro, and he tied for the Cowboys' team lead in interceptions while becoming the first Dallas defensive back to be selected as a Pro Bowl starter since Everson Walls (1985). Woodson's five interceptions ranked fifth in the NFC and 10th in the NFL and were the most by a Dallas safety since Michael Downs had six in 1986. Woodson recorded his second straight 100-plus-tackle season by finishing the year second on the club with 113 stops while tying for third on the team in passes defensed with 12. Woodson got off to a blazing start by earning game balls in six of the Cowboys first seven games. Those games and his performances are as follows: at Pittsburgh (9/4) – in the season opener, Woodson received a game ball after his seven tackles helped hold the Steelers to 126 yards in total offense. Against Houston (9/11) – he picked up a game ball after recording 13 tackles. He also picked up his first career regular season interception against Houston. At Washington (10/2) – he earned a special teams game ball by forcing a fumble on the opening kickoff and tying for the team lead in special teams tackles with two. Against Arizona (10/9) – he led the team in tackles with seven and recorded two interceptions that led to Dallas touchdowns. It was the first multiple interception game of his career. Against Philadelphia (10/16) – while leading all Dallas defensive backs with six tackles, he also returned a third quarter interception 26 yards to set up a Cowboys touchdown. At Arizona (10/23) – Woodson registered a season-high 15 tackles. He was named the NFC's Defensive Player of the Week at Philadelphia (12/4) after recording nine tackles and stepping in front of a fourth quarter Randall Cunningham pass and racing 94 yards for a touchdown to ensure the Cowboys 31-19 victory. It was the third longest interception return in club history at the time. He recovered his only fumble of the year at Cincinnati (10/30). Despite earning All-Pro honors at safety, Woodson remained one of the Cowboys top special teams performers, tying for third on the team with 23 special team stops.

1993: As a second-year player, Woodson earned a starting job at strong safety in training camp and then nearly won the team's individual tackle title by collecting 155 stops – just four shy of team leader Ken Norton. Woodson's 155 tackles were the most ever by a Dallas defensive back. Moreover, with eight double-digit tackle games in 1993, he joined Eugene Lockhart (16 in 1989) as only the second Dallas player to register at least seven double-figure tackle games in a season (since game-by-game records were kept in 1984). He led the Cowboys in fumble recoveries with three (while forcing another) and contributed four tackles for lost yardage totaling 13 yards. He enjoyed an all-time game in the regular season finale at Giants Stadium (1/2/94) – collecting a career-best 19 tackles (the most ever by a Dallas defensive back in a single game) and one fumble recovery. His 19 tackles against the Giants tied him for second on the Cowboys all-time single-game tackle list. For the regular season, Woodson averaged 9.7 tackles-per-game, but over the course of the last nine games, he contributed 11.8 tackles-per-game. That stretch included the Cowboys' four games in the month of November where Woodson turned in double figure tackle totals in all four games and 48 total stops. He closed the month of November with 15 tackles against Miami on Thanksgiving Day (11/25). He was the team's leading tackler in the playoffs with 27 stops. He also registered his first professional interception in the playoffs against Green Bay (1/16/94), and he recovered a fumble in Super Bowl XXVIII against the Bills (1/30/94). Woodson missed the opener at Washington (9/6) as he was still recovering from a fractured right forearm.

1992: Although Woodson was a second-round draft choice of the Cowboys, his play in the nickel pass defense caught almost everyone by surprise. It was thought that moving from linebacker at Arizona State to strong safety in the NFL would take a longer adjustment period. Instead, he quickly became the club's draft surprise. Woodson became a major contributor to the defense while leading the special teams with 19 tackles. In 16 games, he recorded 33 tackles (28 solo), second among Dallas' rookies. Included was a season-high six stops in a start against the Run-and-Shoot offense at Atlanta (12/21). His first NFL start came in a pass situation defense at Detroit (11/8). Two weeks later at Phoenix (11/22), he had a season-high five solo tackles. Against Chicago (12/27), Woodson's first NFL sack forced a first-quarter fumble at Chicago's 30-yard line, but the Bear's recovered. Against Philadelphia (1/10/93) in the playoffs, he forced a fumble at the Eagles' 25-yard line to set up a Dallas field goal at the end of the first half. His standout play on special teams included a game ball for the 27-0 win over Seattle (10/11).

COLLEGE: An All-PAC Ten second-team selection as a senior and honorable mention All-America as a junior, Woodson played linebacker at Arizona State. Coming out of high school, he didn't have the grades to accept a football scholarship from ASU, so he started his career as a walk-on and quickly developed a reputation for being one of the fiercest hitters in the country. As a sophomore in 1989, he had a career-high 16 tackles against Stanford en route to his single-season high of 122 tackles (79 solo). Of his five career interceptions, three came in his senior season.

PERSONAL: Darren Ray Woodson was an All-Metro Division AAA and all-city linebacker and running back at Maryvale High School in Phoenix, Ariz. Darren ran for a career-high 225 yards and six touchdowns against Kofa High in Yuma, Ariz, tying a Phoenix Metro game record and setting a school mark. He earned three letters in football and served as team captain his senior year. He received his degree in criminal justice at Arizona State. In 1996, Woodson served as the Dallas Cowboys spokesman in a nationally televised NFL United Way public service announcement. During the 1999-2000 school year, Woodson headed the Dallas Cowboys/Darren Woodson "Prepare to Pass" Challenge, which encouraged 10th grade students at five Dallas high schools to pass all sections of the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test. In 2000, Woodson received the Children's Medical Center Athlete Role Model Award presented by the Dallas All-Sports Association. Woodson and fellow members of the Cowboys' secondary participated in the second annual NFL/United Way Hometown Huddle in October, 2000. The secondary served lunch to the homeless and visited with children at the Carr P. Collins Social Service Center. He is also a regular participant in the Children's Cancer Fund Fashion Show, serving as a celebrity escort to children suffering with cancer but who serve as fashion models for the day. During the Cowboys annual Let Us Play! Sports Camp for Girls, Woodson served as a guest flag-football coach – teaching girls from local non-profit agencies in Dallas-Ft. Worth basic football drills. In February of 2002 – at Super Bowl XXXVI in New Orleans – Woodson was named the 14th recipient of the Athletes in Action Bart Starr Award. That honor is voted on by all NFL players, and it recognizes outstanding character and leadership in the home, on the field and in the community. Woodson was a guest speaker for at the 2001 United Way Home Town Huddle He continued his work with children spending time as an escort at the Children's Cancer Fund Fashion Show. He also once again was a celebrity coach at the annual Let Us Play! Sports Camp for girls.

Anthony Wright

Quarterback

South Carolina
FA for '00
NFL: 4th Year ★ Cowboys: 3rd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 1999 (0/0-Pitt.), 2000 (4/2), 2001 (4/3). Total – 8/5.

PRO: A bright, young talent who was first thrust into one of the most visible jobs in sports at the conclusion of the 2000 season, Anthony Wright accepted the challenge with the poise and confidence of a seasoned veteran. After replacing Troy Aikman during his first season in Dallas, Wright took the field for three starts in place of Quincy Carter in 2001 and guided Dallas to its first victory of the season. In two seasons, Wright has directed the Dallas offense with an unusually steady hand for a player of his youth and inexperience. Possessing a strong arm, fine athletic ability and solid instincts, Wright has proven just as successful coming off the bench to replace a fallen teammate as he has in taking control from the opening snap. Wright will be in the heat of competition for the back-up quarterbacking duties this fall as he squares off with Clint Stoerner and the newly acquired Chad Hutchinson. A student of the game, Wright has excellent work habits and an ability to elude pressure and make plays on the run. He entered the NFL as a rookie free agent with Pittsburgh in 1999 and earned a spot on the Steelers 53-man roster.

2001: After earning the back-up spot behind Quincy Carter in training camp, Wright spent little time on the sidelines. When Carter suffered an injured thumb in practice on Sept. 12, Wright became the team's starter against San Diego (9/23). In just his third career start, Wright completed 12-of-25 passes for 193 yards and three touchdowns, including an 80-yard scoring toss to Raghib Ismail for his first career touchdown pass. The following week at Philadelphia (9/30), he earned his second start of the season and was 7-of-23 for 33 yards through three quarters before handing over the team to Clint Stoerner in the fourth quarter. Carter returned to action at Oakland (10/7), but only until a second quarter strained his hamstring sent him to the sideline. In came Wright who proceeded to throw a 40-yard scoring strike to Joey Galloway on his first pass of the game. He finished the day 14-of-22 for 126 yards and two touchdowns. Seven of the eight drives he directed moved the Cowboys inside the 23-yard line, resulting in three touchdowns, two blocked field goals and two drives that ended on downs. With Carter out of action, Wright earned another start against Washington (10/15) in the Monday Night match-up and came away with his first win as a starter after engineering two fourth quarter field goal drives, including an eight-play, 59-yard drive in the final 2:39 to set up Tim Seder's game-winning 26-yard kick with no time remaining. Wright was 15-of-28 for 177 yards and one interception on the night. He also ran eight times for 32 yards, the third most carries ever by a Dallas quarterback. In the game he re-aggravated an ACL injury in his right knee the was originally sustained in college. That injury sidelined him for the game against Arizona (10/28) and he underwent surgery Oct. 30 to repair the ACL. He was placed on injured reserve Nov. 2.

2000: After joining the Cowboys practice squad on Aug. 30 after being released by Pittsburgh, Wright was moved up to the active roster Nov. 21. He was the third quarterback in the Thanksgiving Day loss to Minnesota (11/23), and then saw his first splash of NFL regular season action at Tampa Bay (12/3). In limited fourth quarter action against the Bucs, Wright completed one-of-three passes for 10 yards during the only drive he led. After a concussion forced Aikman out the following week against Washington (12/10), Wright took over late in the first quarter and led the Cowboys to a 32-13 victory. He completed three-of-five passes for 73 yards, including a 46-yard toss to James McKnight over Deion Sanders on his first attempt of the game. Wright calmly directed the Cowboys to three touchdowns and three field goal attempts in his 11 possessions against the Redskins (two other drives ended in kneel downs to end the half and game). His poised play and natural leadership ability helped Dallas claim its seventh straight victory over its chief NFC East rival. Wright's challenges rapidly became more difficult as the remaining two games featured nationally televised outings against the NFC Champion N.Y. Giants and the defending AFC Champion Tennessee Titans. In his first professional start, Wright was 13-of-25 for 119 yards and one interception against New York (12/17). He also ran four times for 26 yards, including a 19-yard gain. He paced Dallas to a 13-0 halftime lead, but ultimately New York was able to pull out a 17-13 division clinching victory. The final game of the season had Wright making his first road start at Tennessee (12/25) in front of a Monday Night Football audience on Christmas. In facing the NFL's top ranked defense, Wright managed to complete five-of-20 passes for 35 yards while suffering two interceptions.

1999: After signing with Pittsburgh as a rookie free agent, Wright completed eight-of-19 passes for 70 yards while rushing for 34 yards on four carries in preseason. He impressed Steelers coaches enough to earn a spot on the active roster as the fourth quarterback. He was inactive for the first 11 games of the season before being declared Pittsburgh's third quarterback at Jacksonville (12/2). He was promoted to the second quarterback spot for the season finale against Tennessee (1/2/00) but did not see any playing time.

COLLEGE: Wright posted a 116.3 quarterback rating as a senior on 145-of-273 passing for 1,899 yards, 10 touchdowns and 10 interceptions despite overcoming major knee surgery during his junior campaign. He led the Gamecocks in total offense (1,955 total yards) during his final season. He completed 139-of-252 passes for 18 touchdowns and five interceptions as a junior before tearing the ACL in his right knee against Tennessee and missing the final two games of the season. He ranked seventh in the Southeastern Conference in total offensive yards-per-game (193.4) as a junior. As a first-year starter as a sophomore, Wright completed 131-of-244 passes for 1,850 yards, eight touchdowns and six interceptions. He threw for two touchdowns and an interception on 17-of-27 passing as a redshirt freshman in 1995.

PERSONAL: Anthony Wright was named All-America by SuperPrep magazine as a senior at West Craven High School in Vanceboro, N.C. The Gatorade Player-of-the-Year was rated as the seventh-best quarterback prospect in the nation by SuperPrep following his senior campaign. During his prep career, he passed for 4,890 yards, 44 touchdowns and 15 interceptions. Wright is the cousin of former NFL defensive back Jesse Campbell. In 2001 Wright joined Cowboys Peppi Zellner and Troy Hambrick in the NFL High School Tuesday program, a day that all NFL teams visited a local high school. The group spoke to the R.L. Turner High School football team in Carrollton, Tex. about the importance of setting goals, focusing on education and planning for the future.

Bashir Yamini

Wide Receiver

Iowa
FA for '01
NFL: 3rd Year ★ Cowboys: 2nd Year

GAMES/STARTS: 2000 (5/0 – Ten.).

PRO: The Cowboys were looking to add another swift receiver when they signed Bashir Yamini on March 6, 2001. A fleet-footed wideout with the speed to separate from defensive backs, Yamini is a raw talent with only two years of collegiate experience under his belt. He spent a year learning the NFL game before a torn ACL ended his second season. He should return to the playing field during training camp to battle for a spot on the Cowboys receiving depth chart.

2001: Yamini was signed as a free agent on March 6. After catching three passes for 52 yards and a touchdown in preseason action, he suffered a torn ACL in practice Aug. 7 and underwent reconstructive surgery Aug. 31. He was placed on injured reserve Aug. 28.

2000: Yamini originally signed as a rookie free agent with Denver on April 20. He was released by the Broncos on Aug. 27. He signed with Tennessee and saw action in five games but did not record a catch before being released Nov. 9. He immediately joined the Titans practice squad, where he finished 2000.

COLLEGE: Yamini only played football his final two seasons at Iowa, recording 57 receptions for 665 yards and one touchdown. He was a track star at Iowa, earning All-America honors on the school's 4x400-meter relay team which finished fourth at the 1999 NCAA Outdoor Championships. During that same year at the Big 10 Championships, Yamini won the 200-meter dash for the second consecutive year and anchored the 4x200-meter relay and the 4x400-meter relay teams that won conference titles. He also placed sixth in the long jump.

PERSONAL: Bashir Yamini was an all-conference football player at Thornridge, Ill, High School. He was also the Illinois state long jump and high jump champion and a two-time MVP in basketball.

Peppi Zellner

Defensive End

6'5" ★ 262 ★ 3/14/75

NFL: 4th Year ★ Cowboys: 4th Year

GAMES/STARTS (regular season, playoffs): 1999 (13/0, 1/0), 2000 (12/0), 2001 (16/15). Total – 41/15, 1/0.

PRO: Patience and persistence have characterized Peppi Zellner's ascent to the status of a starting NFL defensive end. After overcoming a serious knee injury late in the 2000 season, Zellner's hard work and dedication brought him back to health in 2001. As opportunity presented itself in the form of Ebenezer Ekuban's season ending back injury – suffered in the first week of the 2001 season – Zellner responded with a very productive season and established himself as a proven starter at defensive end. Tall and athletic, Zellner brings his former basketball skills to the football field with an aggressive attitude and a mean streak. He has an abundance of natural talent that is still in need of development, but his production as a starter gives the Cowboys depth and talent at the pass rushing position. He will battle Ekuban during training camp for the starting job, but the pair will join Greg Ellis to form a solid rotation at the end positions.

2001: As a key contributor to the Cowboys dramatic turnaround on defense in 2001, Zellner recorded a career-high 53 stops. He was second on the team with 22 quarterback pressures and was tied for fourth on the club with three sacks. Zellner's efforts helped the Cowboys defense earn a fourth overall NFL ranking by allowing an average of just 287.4 yards-per-game. In 2001, the Dallas Cowboys allowed 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that was 927 fewer yards than the club allowed during the 2000 season. Those numbers represented the largest turnaround by any defensive unit in the NFL in 2001. As a reserve in the season opener against Tampa Bay (9/9), Zellner recorded his first career fumble recovery by falling on a Warrick Dunn miscue in the second quarter. During the Bucs game, Ekuban suffered a season ending back injury that forced Zellner into full-time action as a starter. He earned his first career NFL start (right end) against San Diego (9/23) and responded with two tackles and a team-high three quarterback pressures. Zellner also helped limit LaDainian Tomlinson to a 3.3-yard average on 27 carries. In a very impressive second career start at Philadelphia (9/30), he finished second on the team with a career-best eight tackles, a 10-yard sack of Donovan McNabb, a tackle for a loss, two quarterback pressures and a forced fumble. In Dallas' Monday night win over Washington (10/15), Zellner tied for second on the team with six tackles while recording his second sack of the season. He also added a quarterback pressure as the Redskins were limited to 226 net yards on offense. Zellner added his third sack in four games against Arizona (10/28) while adding three tackles as the Cards were limited to 75 rushing yards. Despite playing with a strained groin that he suffered in the previous week of practice, Zellner recorded five tackles and a pressure at the N.Y. Giants (11/4). In the loss to Philadelphia (11/18), he recorded two tackles, a tackle for a loss and a quarterback pressure while helping limit the Eagles to 227 total yards. At Washington (12/2), he turned in a career-high four quarterback pressures while helping limit the Redskins to 196 net yards passing. The following week against the N.Y. Giants (12/9), Zellner was fourth on the team with five tackles. He also pressured quarterback Kerry Collins into four bad throws while helping limit the Giants to 245 yards of total offense, including just 73 yards on their final eight possessions of the game. In the loss at Seattle (12/16), he enjoyed his second-best tackle total of the season with seven stops. Zellner led all Dallas defensive linemen in tackles with seven in the Cowboys' 27-21 upset victory over playoff bound San Francisco (12/30). The 49ers were limited to 229 net yards passing. On the ground, the NFL's second ranked running game (146 yards-per-game) was limited to 56 yards.

2000: Prior to his season ending knee injury on Nov. 27, Zellner had played in all 12 of Dallas' games as a reserve defensive end and collected 16 tackles, two sacks and three quarterback pressures. Despite missing the final four games of the year, Zellner was the Cowboys second leading tackler on special teams with 13 stops. In the season's second game at Arizona (9/10), he recorded his first sack of the season with a takedown of Jake Plummer. Two weeks later against San Francisco (9/24), he saw considerable playing time at defensive end after Ebenezer Ekuban was injured. Zellner went on to record a season-best four tackles. He picked up his second sack of the season in the following week's overtime win at Carolina (10/1). The next week against Jacksonville (10/29), he tied his season-high with four tackles. In the overtime loss at Philadelphia (11/5), he recorded two quarterback pressures and a special teams tackle as the Dallas punt coverage unit limited Brian Mitchell to one return for two yards and forced two fair catches. In the win over Cincinnati (11/12), he tied for the team lead with three special teams tackles as the Bengals were limited to 19.7 yards-per-kickoff return. At Baltimore (11/19), he led the team with three special teams tackles. Zellner was placed on reserve/injured Dec. 12 following his successful knee surgery.

1999: Zellner hit the ground running as a rookie, tying for sixth on the team with 10 special teams tackles and earning All-Rookie honors from College & Pro Football Newsweekly. He started off hot, recording his first career sack with a six-yard take down of Danny Kannell in the fourth quarter against Atlanta (9/20) while adding two tackles. He was inactive for three of the next four games but returned to action against Green Bay (11/14), logging a tackle and a special teams stop. On Thanksgiving Day, he tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles against Miami (11/25) and helped limit Brock Marion – who entered the game ranked second in the NFL with a 26.4 yard average – to an 18.4 yard average on five kickoff returns. When Greg Ellis suffered a fractured tibia in the first quarter against Philadelphia (12/12), Zellner saw considerable action at defensive end and recorded a season-high three tackles. He also tied for the team lead with two special teams tackles as the Eagles started eight-of-10 drives following punts or kickoffs at or inside their own 20. Over the next two weeks, Zellner saw a rise in his playing time with Ellis out of action and recorded two tackles against both the N.Y. Jets (12/19) and at New Orleans (12/24). In the wild card playoff game at Minnesota (1/9/00), Zellner's playing time continued to increase when Ebenezer Ekuban (sprained knee) went down. Zellner responded with a season-high tying three tackles.

COLLEGE: As a senior, Zellner earned All-America and All-Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference honors at defensive end. He was third on the team, tops among defensive linemen, with 60 tackles and three sacks. His 14 tackles behind the line of scrimmage led the team. He accomplished all this after taking the 1997 season off to concentrate on basketball, where he starred at forward for Fort Valley State's hoops team, starting 17-of-26 games and averaging 10.3 points and 9.1 rebounds-per-game as the Wildcats earned their first SIAC basketball title since 1969. Zellner played in just three games due to transfer eligibility problems in his first year on the Fort Valley State football team (1996), but he recorded 18 tackles and four stops behind the line of scrimmage. A two-year letterman in football at Georgia Military Institute (1994-95), Zellner collected 15 sacks, 33 tackles behind the line of scrimmage and 129 tackles in his two junior college seasons.

PERSONAL: An all-area, all-district and Prep Football Report all-Dixie selection at May Persons High School in Forsythe, Ga., Hunndens Guiseppi Zellner was selected to participate in the Florida-Georgia All-Star Game. He also played in the North-South All-Star hoops tournament as an all-area selection in basketball. Zellner was a physical education major at Fort Valley State, and he has served as a football coach at the Cowboys Let Us Play! Sports Camp for Girls. He also helped coach at the Dallas Cowboys/Gatorade Training Camp for Kids. In 2001, Zellner joined Cowboys teammates Troy Hambrick and Anthony Wright to particpate in the NFL High School Tuesday, a day that all NFL teams visited a local high School. They spoke to the R.L. Turner High School fooball team in Carrolton, Tex., about the importance of setting goals, focusing on education and planning for the future. He has a daughter, Tanjanyika (2/22/92).

The 2001 Season At A Glance

Tampa Bay 10, Dallas 6

At Dallas, Sept. 9, 2001
Attendance – 61,521

The Dallas Cowboys opened the 2001 season with a 10-6 loss at the hands of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers at Texas Stadium. The Bucs opened the scoring midway through the opening period with a 39-yard Martin Gramatica field goal. First-year receiver Reggie Swinton returned the ensuing kickoff 77 yards to the Tampa Bay 17-yard line, setting up a 22-yard Tim Seder field goal that knotted the score at three. The score remained tied until Seder connected on a 46-yard field goal early in the third quarter to give Dallas a 6-3 advantage. Early in the final frame, Tampa Bay closed out the scoring when Brad Johnson sneaked in on a one-yard quarterback keeper. Cowboys quarterback Quincy Carter became the third rookie in club history to start a season opener (Roger Staubach, 1969 and Troy Aikman, 1989) and only the sixth rookie quarterback in franchise history to start a game. Carter finished the day nine-of-19 for 34 yards and two interceptions. Swinton returned three kickoffs for 131 yards, registering the second highest kickoff return average for a game in team history (43.7). Cornerback Izell Reese recorded the first sack of his career, and defensive end Peppi Zellner posted his first career fumble recovery. Fullback Robert Thomas posted the longest rush of his career with a 24-yard carry.

San Diego 32, Dallas 21

At Dallas, Sept. 23, 2001
Attendance – 63,430

The Dallas Cowboys saw their record fall to 0-2 following a 32-21 defeat at the hands of the San Diego Chargers. Following a Dallas fumble, the Chargers opened the scoring early in the first quarter when Doug Flutie connected with Freddie Jones on an 11-yard touchdown pass. Late in the period, Flutie hooked up with Curtis Conway on a seven-yard scoring strike to up San Diego's lead to 14-0. Early in the second quarter, Wade Richey increased the Chargers advantage with a 22-yard field goal. On the first play of the Cowboys ensuing possession, Anthony Wright (replacing an injured Quincy Carter – sprained thumb) found Raghib Ismail on an 80-yard scoring strike to cut Dallas' deficit to 17-7. Late in the period, Richey connected on a 24-yard field goal attempt before Wane McGarity hauled in an 11-yard scoring toss from Wright to cut the Cowboys halftime deficit to 20-14. Tim Dwight scored on a 16-yard reverse midway through the third quarter (two point attempt failed), and Richey connected on his third field goal of the day from 23 yards out early in the final frame to give San Diego a 29-14 lead. On Dallas' ensuing possession, Wright tossed his third touchdown pass of the game, this time connecting with Mike Lucky for a seven-yard score. Richey closed out the scoring late in the game with a 43-yard field goal. Emmitt Smith finished the day with 85 rushing yards on 17 carries, giving him 15,291 career rushing yards and moving him ahead of Barry Sanders (15,269) into second place on the NFL's all-time rushing list. The Wright-to-Ismail 80-yard scoring strike was the longest pass completion by the Cowboys since Troy Aikman completed a 90-yard scoring pass to Jason Tucker on Jan. 2, 2000. It was also the first career touchdown pass for Wright and the longest reception of Ismail's career. McGarity and Lucky each posted the first receiving touchdowns of their NFL careers.

The Dallas Cowboys saw their record fall to 0-3 with a 40-18 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles at Veterans Stadium. After Lynn Scott recovered a Brian Mitchell fumble on the opening kickoff, the Cowboys jumped on the scoreboard with a 41-yard Tim Seder field goal. Michael Wiley recovered another Mitchell fumble following a Micah Knorr punt moments later, leading to a 43-yard Seder field goal and a 6-0 Dallas advantage. The Eagles quickly responded with a 10-yard Donovan McNabb-to-Chad Lewis touchdown pass midway through the opening period. Early in the second quarter, McNabb again hooked up with Lewis on a 17-yard scoring play to widen Philadelphia's advantage to eight points. Four minutes later, Damon Moore returned a Troy Hambrick fumble 10 yards for a touchdown, then McNabb connected with Todd Pinkston on a 10-yard scoring toss after the Eagles recovered an Anthony Wright fumble at the Dallas 20-yard line. Philadelphia recovered a Wiley fumble on the ensuing kickoff to set up David Akers' 40-yard field goal midway through the quarter. Just before the half expired, Akers added a 19-yard field goal to give the Eagles a 33-6 halftime advantage. Midway through the third frame, Correll Buckhalter scored on a three-yard run to up Philadelphia's advantage to 40-6. In the fourth quarter, Clint Stoerner hit Robert Thomas for a five-yard touchdown, but the two-point attempt failed. Late in the game, Stoerner hooked up with Wiley on an 11-yard scoring toss (two-point attempt failed) to close out the scoring. Oakland 28, Dallas 21

At Oakland, Oct. 7, 2001
Attendance – 61,535

The Dallas Cowboys saw their record fall to 0-4 for the first time since 1989 as the Oakland Raiders claimed a 28-21 victory at Network Associates Coliseum. The Raiders got on the scoreboard first when Rich Gannon connected with Jerry Rice on a five-yard scoring toss midway through the opening quarter. Oakland upped their advantage early in the second period with a three-yard Zack Crockett scoring run. The Cowboys immediately responded as Anthony Wright hooked up with Joey Galloway on a 40-yard scoring pass on the first offensive play of their next possession. The Raiders responded with a four-yard Tyrone Wheatley scoring jaunt to give Oakland a 21-7 advantage at the half. Twice in the second quarter the Cowboys had field goal attempts blocked. Wheatley capped a nine minute, 49 second Oakland drive to start the second half with a one-yard scoring plunge. Just before the third period expired, Tim Seder took a hand off on a fake field goal and darted eight yards for a touchdown. Late in the fourth quarter, Darrin Chiaverini closed out the scoring when he caught a three-yard scoring toss from Wright. Wright finished the game 14-of-22 for 126 yards and two touchdowns after taking over for the injured Quincy Carter (strained hamstring) early in the second quarter. Reggie Swinton finished the day with 162 total return yards, including a 49-yard punt return and a 51-yard kickoff return.

Dallas 9, Washington 7

At Dallas, Oct. 15, 2001
Attendance – 63,941

The Dallas Cowboys claimed their first victory of the season when they defeated the Washington Redskins 9-7 on a last second field goal at Texas Stadium. The victory marked Dallas' eighth consecutive win over the Redskins. After missing a 41-yard first quarter field goal, Tim Seder booted a 28-yard field goal late in the first half. A missed 44-yard field goal by Brett Conway allowed the Cowboys to hold onto a 3-0 halftime advantage. After a scoreless third period, Washington went up 7-3 on a 31-yard Tony Banks-to-Michael Westbrook scoring pass early in the final frame following a missed Seder field goal attempt from 52 yards. On the Cowboys' ensuing possession, Seder connected on a 39-yard field goal to cut Dallas' deficit to one point at 7-6. As the Redskins attempted to run out the clock, Cowboys defensive tackle John Nix forced a Stephen Davis fumble which Greg Ellis recovered at the Dallas 33-yard line. A 59-yard drive ensued, culminating with a 26-yard Seder field goal as time expired to give the Cowboys the victory. Anthony Wright finished the day 15-of-28 for 177 yards and an interception and rushed for 32 yards on eight carries in recording his first victory as a starting NFL quarterback. Emmitt Smith led the Cowboys with 107 yards on 25 carries – his first 100-yard effort of the season – as well as five receptions for 45 yards. Joey Galloway tallied four catches for 51 yards before spraining his left ankle midway through the second quarter, forcing him to miss the remainder of the game. The Dallas defense held the Redskins to 10 first downs – the fewest first downs allowed by the Cowboys since holding Miami to 10 on Oct. 27, 1996.

Dallas 17, Arizona 3

At Dallas, Oct. 28, 2001
Attendance – 63,114

The Dallas Cowboys won consecutive games for the first time since the start of the 1999 season when they defeated the Arizona Cardinals 17-3 at Texas Stadium. The Cardinals got on the scoreboard first with a 27-yard Bill Gramatica field goal late in the opening period. Dallas tied the score shortly before the first half expired when Tim Seder connected on a 31-yard field goal. Early in the third quarter, Clint Stoerner ran a quarterback draw six yards for the touchdown and a 10-3 Cowboys advantage. After Dallas pinned the Cardinals at their own one-yard line following a downed punt, Dexter Coakley intercepted a Jake Plummer pass and returned it 10 yards for a touchdown to close out the scoring. Dallas' win marked their 12th consecutive regular season victory over the Cardinals at Texas Stadium. It also increased the Cowboys record following the bye weekend to 10-3, including 4-0 against the Cardinals. Stoerner, making his first NFL start, became the 10th quarterback in Cowboys history to win his first start as a Cowboy and the first since Rodney Peete won at Philadelphia on Dec. 4, 1994. Stoerner finished the day nine-of-18 for 93 yards and an interception. Coakley's interception was his seventh career pick and his second returned for a touchdown (vs. Miami on Nov. 25, 1999). Dallas' offense converted six-of-12 third downs into first downs, marking the first time since 1996 that they converted 50%-or-more of their third down attempts in consecutive games.

Two plays after Brandon Noble recovered a Kerry Collins fumble at the New York 15-yard line, Clint Stoerner hooked up with Joey Galloway on a 16-yard touchdown pass. Early in the second period, Dexter Coakley stepped in front of a Collins pass and returned it 29 yards for a touchdown, his second interception return for a touchdown in two weeks. Midway through the second, the Giants cut their deficit to 17-7 when Collins connected with Joe Jurevicius on a four-yard scoring toss. With less than a minute remaining in the first half, Mario Edwards stepped in front of another Collins pass and returned it 71 yards for a touchdown and a 24-7 Cowboys advantage. Four second half interceptions, including two in the Giants' end zone, torpedoed the Cowboys upset bid. Following the Giants first interception, New York capped an 80-yard drive with a 34-yard Collins-to-Jurevicius touchdown pass. Then in the final frame, Morton Andersen trimmed the Giants deficit to seven points with a 40-yard field goal. The Giants blocked a Micah Knorr punt on the Cowboys next possession and took over on Dallas' 14-yard line. Two plays later, Collins hit Ike Hilliard with a nine-yard touchdown pass to tie the score at 24-24. After holding the Cowboys on the first overtime drive, the Giants marched 61 yards to set up Andersen's 42-yard game winning field goal. Stoerner, getting his second consecutive start, finished the day 13-of-23 for 177 yards, four interceptions and a touchdown. Raghib Ismail recorded the Cowboys first 100-yard receiving day of the year with 107 yards on six catches. Troy Hambrick totaled 77 yards on 30 carries in place of the injured Emmitt Smith, who missed just his third career start due to injury. Coakley's interception return for a touchdown marked the first time in Cowboys history a player has returned an interception for a touchdown in back-to-back games. Edwards' interception return for a touchdown was his first career interception. Dallas forced six Giants fumbles on the day, the most by a Cowboys defense since forcing six against Arizona on Sept. 7, 1997.

The Dallas Cowboys lost their ninth consecutive road game with a 20-13 defeat at the hands of the Atlanta Falcons in the Georgia Dome. Dallas opened the scoring midway through the first quarter with a 28-yard Tim Seder field goal. The Falcons responded on their next possession with a nine-yard Michael Vick-to-Alge Crumpler touchdown pass. Seder connected on his second field goal of the day early in the second frame from 39 yards out. The Cowboys then reclaimed the lead with under a minute to play in the first half when Ryan Leaf hooked up with Jackie Harris on a three-yard scoring toss to give Dallas a 13-7 halftime advantage. Early in the third period, Atlanta cut the deficit to 13-10 with a 31-yard Jay Feely field goal. Following a 74-yard punt return by Darrien Gordon, Doug Johnson found Brian Kozlowski in the end zone with a one-yard scoring pass midway through the final quarter. Gordon then brought the next Knorr punt back 41 yards, and with just over a minute to play, Feely closed out the scoring with a 19-yard field goal. Leaf, making his first start as a Dallas Cowboy, finished the day 14-of-22 for 114 yards, a touchdown and an interception. Leaf's start marked the first time in franchise history four different quarterbacks have started games in the same season for Dallas. Troy Hambrick, again filling in for the injured Emmitt Smith (sprained knee), rushed for a career-high 127 yards on 20 carries, including runs of 36 and 47 yards. Michael Wiley also posted a career-high with 85 rushing yards, including a 58-yarder. The Cowboys defense surrendered a season-low 201 yards of total offense, including just 46 yards passing – the lowest passing yardage total given up by Dallas since surrendering 42 yards to the Giants on Sept. 8, 1996.

After two missed Dallas field goal attempts and an Emmitt Smith fumble at his own 25 yard line, the Eagles opened the scoring midway through the second period with a two-yard Donovan McNabb-to-Chad Lewis touchdown pass. Two series later, Philadelphia added a 24-yard David Akers field goal. Akers then connected from 46 yards out with less than 30 second remaining in the half. On the last play of the half, Jeremiah Trotter intercepted a Ryan Leaf pass and returned it 50 yards for a score to give the Eagles a 20-0 halftime advantage. Akers connected on a 26-yard field goal early in the third quarter and a 28-yard field goal late in the quarter to increase the Eagles lead. Early in the final frame, Jon Hilbert got the Cowboys on the scoreboard with a 30-yard field goal, his first career field goal after two previous misses. The Eagles immediately responded with a 30-yard Akers field goal, his fifth of the day. William Hampton closed out the scoring on Dallas' next play when he picked off a Leaf pass and returned it 33 yards for a score. Philadelphia's two scores off interceptions marked the ninth time in Cowboys history that an opponent has scored two defensive (interception or fumble) touchdowns in a game and the fourth time it has been accomplished with two interceptions. Reggie Swinton returned seven kickoffs for the Cowboys, tying the second most kickoff returns in a game in club history. Akers's five field goals on the day tied the Cowboys club record for field goals in a game by an opponent.

Attendance – 64,104

The Dallas Cowboys saw their record fall to 2-8 with a 26-24 Thanksgiving Day loss to the Denver Broncos at Texas Stadium. The Broncos opened the scoring midway through the first quarter with a 24-yard Jason Elam field goal. The Cowboys immediately responded with a 43-yard Jon Hilbert field goal just before the opening period expired. Denver took the ensuing kickoff and drove 67 yards in 11 plays, culminating in a one-yard Mike Anderson touchdown plunge early in the second frame. Ryan Leaf's fumble on the Cowboys next possession was returned to Dallas' four-yard line, setting up a four-yard Brian Griese-to-Dwayne Carswell touchdown pass on the next play. Early in the second half, Elam connected from 50-yards out, and after Reggie Swinton fumbled the ensuing kickoff, Elam expanded Denver's lead to 23-3 with a 46-yard field goal. As the final period got underway, Elam connected on his fourth field goal of the day, this time from 28 yards out. The Cowboys immediately drove down the field and scored on a one-yard Troy Hambrick run, his first career touchdown. After forcing the Broncos to punt on their next possession, Swinton returned the kick 65 yards for a touchdown – his first career score – to cut Dallas' deficit to 26-17 with 7:29 to play. After the team traded punts, Dallas drove 56 yards in two plays as Hambrick scored his second touchdown, also from one-yard out, to reduce the Broncos advantage to 26-24 with just over a minute to play. Denver recovered the on-side kick and ran the clock out to claim the victory. Swinton's 224 combined return yards on the day – 100 on punt returns and 124 on kickoff returns – was the second highest combined return yardage total in club history, and his 11 combined returns – five punt returns and six kickoff returns – tied the second highest combined return total in club history. The Cowboys 21 fourth quarter points tied the club record for points scored in the fourth quarter and was the fifth time in franchise history the club had scored 21 points in the final frame.

Dallas 20, Washington 14

At Washington, Dec. 2, 2001
Attendance – 85,112

The Dallas Cowboys won on the road for the first time since defeating Carolina in overtime on Oct. 1, 2000 when they topped the Washington Redskins 20-14 at FedEx Field. The victory marked the ninth consecutive time Dallas has defeated Washington, marking the longest winning streak for either team in the 42-year series. For the first time this season, Dallas scored a touchdown on its opening possession when Emmitt Smith scored on a five-yard scamper around right end, his first touchdown of the year. Following a scoreless second period, the Redskins tied the game late in the third quarter when Tony Banks scrambled in for a one-yard touchdown on fourth down. On the Cowboys next possession, Jon Hilbert gave the Cowboys the lead when he connected on a 38-yard field goal early in the final frame. Quincy Carter then connected with Raghib Ismail on a 64-yard scoring pass to up the Cowboys advantage to 17-7. The touchdown drive covered 94 yards in seven plays. After Izell Reese intercepted a Tony Banks pass and returned it 42 yards to the Washington 21-yard line, Hilbert booted a 39-yard field goal to give the Cowboys a 20-7 lead. With under a minute remaining in the game, Banks hooked up with Rod Gardner on a 15-yard scoring strike. Dexter Coakley recovered the ensuing on-side kick to seal the Cowboys victory. Starting for the first time since Oct. 7 following hamstring surgery, Carter finished the day seven-of-14 for 130 yards, his first career touchdown and an interception. Smith posted his 11th career 100-yard rushing game against Washington with 102 yards on 25 carries, marking his 72nd career regular season 100-yard game. On whole, the Cowboys rushed for 215 yards, their highest rushing total since accumulating 242 yards on the ground against Washington on Dec. 10, 2000.

The Giants opened the scoring with a 35-yard Morton Andersen field goal on the game's opening possession. After the Cowboys recovered a Tiki Barber fumble on their first punt of the game, Jon Hilbert tied the score with a 38-yard field. Andersen booted a 41-yard field goal on New York's next possession and then Kerry Collins hooked up with Marcellus Rivers on a two-yard scoring toss early in the second quarter to give the Giants a 13-3 advantage. With less than a minute remaining in the first half, Hilbert connected from 41 yards out to cut Dallas' halftime deficit to 13-6. Midway through the third period, Quincy Carter hit Raghib Ismail on a 41-yard pass play to the Giants one yard line setting up Emmitt Smith's one-yard touchdown plunge, to tie the score. Dallas capitalized on a Rodney Williams fumbled punt snap to drive 26 yards for the go-ahead touchdown early in the fourth quarter. On the drive, Carter recorded his second touchdown pass of the season when he hit Jackie Harris with a three-yard pass. Carter finished the day 17-of-26 for 194 yards, marking the highest completion percentage (65.4%) by a Cowboys quarterback this season. Ismail finished with 10 catches for 118 yards, a career-high for receptions and the most catches by a Cowboy since Michael Irvin caught 12 passes at Miami on Oct. 27, 1996. Smith finished with 62 yards on 22 carries, marking his best rushing yards performance against the Giants since running for 122 yards in the Cowboys last win over the Giants (1/2/00). The Cowboys defense rose to the occasion in the second half, limiting New York to 25 rushing yards, 34 net passing yards and three first downs after intermission. Dallas' defense also held the Giants to two-of-12 (16.7%) on third downs, the lowest conversion rate by a Cowboys opponent since limiting Philadelphia to a one-of-15 day (6.7%) on Dec. 20, 1998.

The Dallas Cowboys saw their road record fall to 1-5 with a 29-3 loss to the Seattle Seahawks at Husky Stadium. The Seahawks got on the scoreboard first when they took the opening kickoff and drove 70 yards, capped by a one-yard Ricky Watters touchdown run. After Dallas went three-and-out, Seattle added a 22-yard Rian Lindell field goal for a 10-0 advantage. Early in the second period, Jon Hilbert got the Cowboys on the scoreboard with a 37-yard field goal, cutting Dallas' deficit to 10-3 at halftime. Arizona 17, Dallas 10

Attendance – 48,883

In their final NFC East visit to Sun Devil Stadium, the Dallas Cowboys fell to the Arizona Cardinals 17-10 in the last divisional match-up between these long-time rivals. In 2002, Arizona will move to the NFC West with NFL re-alignment. But in this meeting, Jon Hilbert got Dallas on the scoreboard first with a 27-yard field goal just before the first quarter expired. On the Cowboys next offensive play, Ronald McKinnon intercepted a Quincy Carter pass that had been tipped at the line of scrimmage and returned it 24 yards for the score. Three plays later, Carter hit Reggie Swinton with a 45-yard scoring pass – Swinton's first career receiving touchdown – to reclaim the lead at 10-7. The Cardinals took the lead for good when Michael Pittman scored on a one-yard plunge late in the first half. Cedric Oglesby gave Arizona a 17-10 halftime advantage with a 34-yard field goal set up by Kwamie Lassiter's interception of Carter. Both teams missed second half field goal attempts to make the final score 17-10. Emmitt Smith finished his final divisional game in Arizona with 128 yards on 26 carries, including 95 yards on 14 second half rushes. His rushing yardage was the team's highest individual effort for the season and Smith's best performance since rushing for 150 yards on 23 carries against Washington on Dec. 10, 2000. Swinton returned four punts for 67 yards (16.8 avg.), including a 43 yard return – his third punt return of more than 40 yards this season.

Dallas 27, San Francisco 21

At Dallas, Dec. 20, 2001
Attendance – 64,366

In their final home game of the season, the Dallas Cowboys defeated the San Francisco 49ers 27-21 at Texas Stadium. Following a scoreless first period, Jon Hilbert put the Cowboys on the score board with a 22-yard field goal early in the second frame. The 49ers immediately responded with a six-yard Jeff Garcia touchdown run to give San Francisco a 7-3 advantage following a failed on-side kick attempt by Dallas. On their next possession, the Cowboys reclaimed the lead with a two-yard Quincy Carter-to-Darrin Chiaverini touchdown pass. San Francisco took a 14-10 lead into the locker room at halftime after Garcia hooked up with J.J. Stokes on a seven-yard touchdown pass just before the first half expired. Dallas took the opening kickoff of the second half and drove 75 yards, capped by a one-yard Carter sneak for a touchdown and a 17-14 advantage. After holding the 49ers to a three-and-out series, Carter found Joey Galloway down the right sidelines for a 47-yard touchdown midway through the third quarter. Early in the final period, Hilbert extended the Cowboys advantage to 27-14 with a 20-yard field goal. San Francisco blocked a Micah Knorr punt and Garcia hooked up with Stokes for a three-yard touchdown with 0:39 remaining in the game to make things interesting. Dallas recovered the ensuing onside kick to preserve the victory. On his third carry of the game – an eight yard run around left end – Emmitt Smith became the second player in NFL history to eclipse the 16,000 career rushing yards mark (Walter Payton). Smith finished the day with 126 yards on 26 carries. Galloway finished the day with six catches for a career-high 146 yards and a touchdown, the highest receiving yards total of the season for the Cowboys. Carter finished the game 15-of-25 for a career-high 241 yards and two touchdowns, the highest passing yardage total of the season for any Cowboys quarterback. The 11 converted third downs by Dallas were the most by a Cowboys teams since converting 11 at Philadelphia on Oct. 16, 1983. The Cowboys defense held the 49ers to 56 rushing yards, the lowest total since holding Green Bay to 40 rushing yards on Nov. 14, 1999.

Detroit 15, Dallas 10

At Detroit, Jan. 6, 2002
Attendance – 77,512

The Dallas Cowboys closed out the 2001 season with a 15-10 loss to the Detroit Lions in the Pontiac Silverdome. After a missed Jason Hanson field goal left the score tied at 0-0 at the end of the first quarter, Emmitt Smith got the Cowboys on the scoreboard early in the second period with a two-yard touchdown run. The Lions immediately responded with a 20-yard Ty Detmer-to-David Sloan touchdown pass, leaving the score 7-6 following the missed extra point. Early in the third quarter, Hanson connected on a 47-yard field goal to give Detroit a 9-7 advantage. As the final frame began, Jon Hilbert helped Dallas re-stake the lead with a 33-yard field goal. Midway through the quarter, Detmer connected with Johnnie Morton on a 16-yard touchdown pass that, following the missed two-point conversion attempt, gave the Lions their final margin of victory at 15-10. With a 13-yard, third quarter burst, Smith surpassed the 1,000-rushing yard mark for the season, making him the first player in NFL history to rush for more than 1,000 yards in 11 consecutive seasons. He finished the year with 1,021 yards after rushing for 77 yards against the Lions. Middle linebacker Dat Nguyen finished the day with 13 tackles, giving him 172 stops for the season – the second highest single-season tackle figure in Cowboys history (Eugene Lockhart – 222).

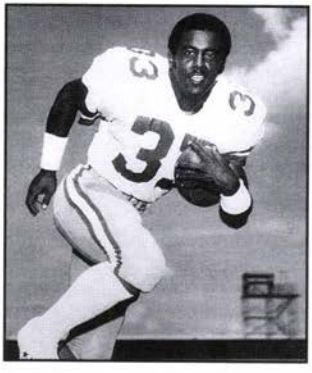
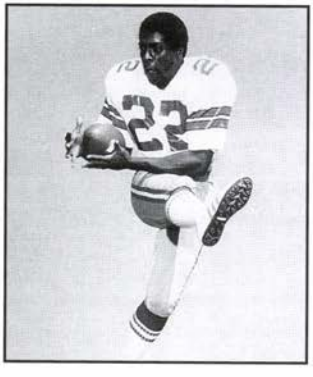
Ring of Honor

The Cowboys honor former players and coaches who made outstanding contributions to the club by inducting them into the Ring of Honor at Texas Stadium. Their names and the years of service are prominently displayed in silver on the wall above the Cowboys' bench at Texas Stadium. Members of the Cowboys' Ring of Honor:



★ TONY DORSETT ★

Running back, 1977-87. Tony Dorsett finished his career as the second leading rusher in NFL history and played in five NFC Championship Games, two Super Bowls and four Pro Bowls. After guiding the University of Pittsburgh to the 1976 national title and claiming the Heisman Trophy, Dorsett captured rookie of the year honors in 1977. He also holds the NFL record with a 99-yard touchdown run. Inducted into the Ring of Honor in 1994, Dorsett was also elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1994. Dorsett was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys against Arizona on Oct. 9, 1994.

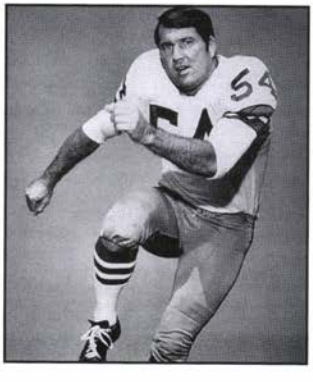


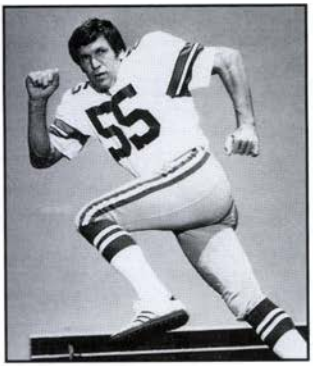
★ BOB HAYES ★

Wide receiver, 1965-74. Bob Hayes led the Cowboys in receptions three times and accumulated 365 receptions for 7,295 receiving yards during his 10-year career. His 71 career touchdown receptions remains the Cowboys club record. Hayes also registered remarkable career numbers for average yards-per-catch (20.0) and average yards-per-punt return (11.1). He was a three-time Pro Bowl selection (1965-1967), while earning All-Pro recognition four times (1965-1968). One of the greatest sprinters in the history of international track and field, Hayes joined the Cowboys with the title of "World's Fastest Human" after winning the Olympic gold medal in the 100 meters in Tokyo in 1964. Hayes was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys against San Diego on Sept 23, 2001.

★ CHUCK HOWLEY ★

Llinebacker, 1961-73. When Chuck Howley retired in 1973, Tom Landry said "I don't know that I've seen anybody better at linebacker than Howley." A six-time All-Pro, Howley was the most valuable player in Super Bowl V. The Cowboys traded for Howley, who was drafted by Chicago in 1958. He was an All-America center at West Virginia. A six-time Pro Bowl selection, Howley was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys against Detroit, Oct. 30, 1977.



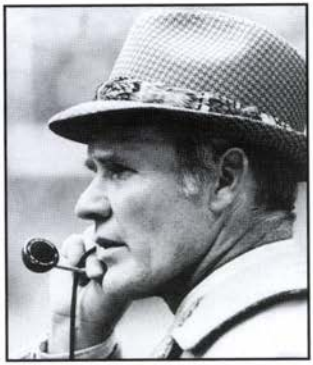


★ LEE ROY JORDAN ★

Linebacker, 1963-76. The inspirational leader of the Cowboys' first championship teams was Lee Roy Jordan. The Cowboys' first-round draft choice in 1963 following an All-America career at Alabama, Jordan anchored the "Doomsday Defense" from his middle linebacker position for 14 years. He was named to the Pro Bowl five times and All-Pro twice. Jordan was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys against Arizona on Oct. 29, 1989.

★ TOM LANDRY ★

Head Coach, 1960-88. The first head coach of the Cowboys, Tom Landry led Dallas to two Super Bowl wins and five NFC titles in his 29 years at the Cowboys helm. He compiled a career record of 270-178-6, the third most wins in NFL history, and was elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1990. Landry was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys against N.Y. Giants on Nov. 7, 1993.



★ BOB LILLY ★

Defensive tackle, 1961-74. Nicknamed "Mr. Cowboy," Bob Lilly was the franchise's first draft choice in 1961, the first name in the Ring of Honor in 1975 and its first inductee into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1980. A seven-time All-Pro, Lilly was named to a club-record 11 Pro Bowls. He was a two-time All-SWC pick and an All-America at Texas Christian University before being drafted by Dallas. Lilly was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys against Philadelphia on Nov. 23, 1975.

★ DON MEREDITH ★

Quarterback, 1960-68. Don Meredith led the Cowboys to their first winning season and their first NFL Championship Game in 1966. Signed by Clint Murchison, Jr. before Dallas was granted its NFL franchise, "Dandy Don" played in two Pro Bowls and was named NFL Player of the Year in 1966. A two-time All-America at SMU, Meredith was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys against N.Y. Giants on Nov. 7, 1976.

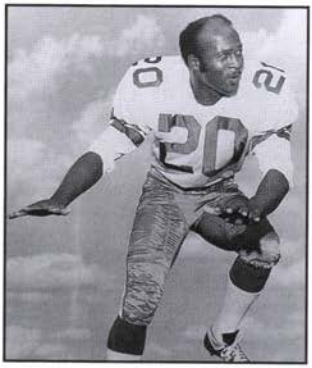
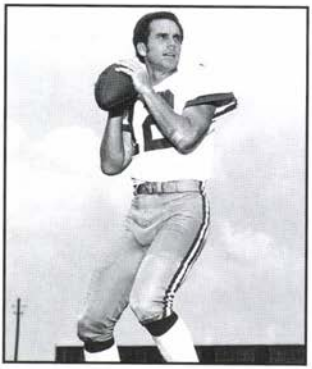
A six-time Pro Bowl selection, Perkins finished among the top 10 NFL rushers in each of his eight seasons. He was named NFL Rookie of the Year in 1961 and All-Pro in 1962. Perkins was signed before Dallas was granted its NFL franchise. A three-time All-Skyline pick at New Mexico, Perkins was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys against N.Y. Giants on Nov. 7, 1976.



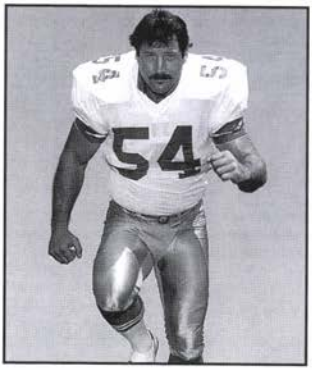
★ MEL RENFRO ★

Defensive back, 1964-77. Mel Renfro was named to the Pro Bowl his first 10 seasons in the NFL. He is the club's all-time interceptor with 52 and kickoff returner with a 26.4-yard career average. Renfro was drafted in the second round in 1964 after a career as an All-America halfback and world class sprinter at Oregon. A five-time All-Pro, Renfro was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys against Miami, Oct. 25, 1981. In 1996 Renfro was elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame.



★ ROGER STAUBACH ★

Quarterback, 1969-79. Roger Staubach led the Cowboys to six NFC Championship Games, four Super Bowls and two Super Bowl titles. A great clutch performer, Staubach led Dallas to comeback victories 23 times, 14 in the last two minutes or overtime. A five-time Pro Bowler, he was drafted by Dallas in 1964 after winning the Heisman Trophy and Maxwell Award at the Naval Academy. Staubach was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys against Tampa Bay, Oct. 9, 1983. Roger was elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1985.



★ RANDY WHITE ★

Defensive tackle, 1975-88. A nine-time Pro Bowler during his 14 years with Dallas, Randy White established a club-record with eight straight All-Pro selections. White was co-MVP (with teammate Harvey Martin) in the Cowboys' Super Bowl XII victory over Denver. A consensus All-America defensive end for Maryland in 1974, White won both the Outland Trophy and the Vince Lombardi Awards. White was inducted into the Ring of Honor at halftime of the Cowboys against Arizona on Oct. 9, 1994. Randy was also elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1994.

Cowboys in the Hall of Fame

Seven members of the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, have been elected based on their accomplishments with the Cowboys—Bob Lilly in 1980, Roger Staubach in 1985, Tom Landry in 1990, Tex Schramm in 1991, Tony Dorsett and Randy White in 1994 and Mel Renfro in 1996.

74 ★ BOB LILLY ★ Defensive Tackle, 1961-74

Before earning the nickname "Mr. Cowboy", Bob Lilly was the first player ever drafted by the Dallas Cowboys in 1961. So it is fitting that Lilly not only became the first Cowboys player inducted into the Ring of Honor in 1975, but also became the franchise's first player inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1980.

During the course of 14 seasons with the Cowboys, Lilly was named Rookie of the Year in 1961, was selected to the Pro Bowl a club-record 11-times – 10 consecutive selections between 1964-74 – was named to the All-Pro team seven times and played in two Super Bowls, including the club's very first Super Bowl victory, 24-3 over Miami in Super Bowl VI.

As the foundation of the famed "Doomsday Defense", Lilly's intensity was readily apparent in an infamous scene after the Cowboys' Super Bowl V loss to the Baltimore Colts when he ripped his helmet off and hurled it into the air. The following year, the Lilly-led Cowboys defense held Miami to only a field goal in Super Bowl VI, the fewest points every given up in Super Bowl history.

"The competition is what I love," Lilly once said. "That makes me a lot more intense. Personalities don't enter into it at all. My objective is to get the man with the ball. Nobody better get in my way."

Lilly is the Cowboys' all-time leader in consecutive games played at 196, is tied for second with 14 seasons played and second all-time with 194 games started. Lilly led the Cowboys in sacks three consecutive years, beginning with his rookie season.

"A man like that comes along once in a lifetime," late Cowboys head coach Tom Landry said in 1972. "He is something a little bit more than great. Nobody is better than Bob Lilly."

Lilly was a two-time All-American defensive end at Texas Christian University and a two-time all-Southwest Conference team selection.

Born July 26 1939, in Olney, Texas.

Lilly's Accomplishments:

- ★ 11-Time Pro Bowl (Franchise Record)
- ★ 7-Time All-Pro
- ★ NFL 75th Anniversary Team
- ★ AFL-NFL 25-year Anniversary Team
- ★ National Football Foundation Hall of Fame
- ★ Super Bowl VI Title
- ★ 2 NFC Titles
- ★ 4 Eastern Conference Titles
- ★ November 23, 1975 declared "Bob Lilly Day" in Dallas, Texas
- ★ College Football Hall of Fame

★ ROGER STAUBACH ★ Quarterback, 1969-79 12

Good things come to those who wait, and certainly the Dallas Cowboys' patience in the mid-60's was supremely rewarded, landing one of the best players in franchise history because they were willing to wait for Roger Staubach to fulfill his military commitment.

For that five years of patience, the Cowboys landed the guy who became better know as "Roger The Dodger" over the next 11 years when he was selected to six Pro Bowls – including five consecutively – and was named the NFL Players Association Most Valuable Player in 1971. Staubach led the NFL in passing four times and was selected to the All-NFC team four times.

"He is one of the finest to ever play the game," Green Bay Packers Quarterback Bart Starr once said of Staubach. "I think if I had some of that Staubach competitiveness, I'd have been much better."

Staubach, the 1963 Heisman Trophy winner, was drafted by the Dallas Cowboys in 1964 from the Naval Academy, but did not join the team until 1969 due to his Navy commitment. Former president and general manager Tex Schramm signed Staubach to a futures contract in a hotel room in 1964, actually scribbling out the details on a legal-sized tablet that would have Staubach paid annually to participate in training camp practices when he had enough leave built up.

The 1963 Heisman Trophy winner showed up in Dallas as a 27-year-old rookie, but in those 11 seasons still managed carve out the franchise's all-time leading quarterback rating of 83.42 and became a four-time NFL passing champion. But Staubach almost became better known for his scrambling ability, and to this day ranks eighth on the Cowboys' all-time rushing list with 2,264 yards.

Staubach owns the second most passing yards in club history, 22,700, and his 3,586 in 1979 still ranks as the second most passing yards in a single season for the Cowboys. He also still leads the club with a career average of 7.67 yards per attempt and his three, 300-yard passing performances in 1979 has him tied for the single-season lead with Don Meredith and Danny White.

Staubach also become known as "Captain Comeback" for his 23 fourth-quarter come-from-behind victories in regular season and playoff games, including 14 in the final two minutes or overtime. Never was this more apparent than in a 1975 playoff game against the Minnesota Vikings when Staubach connected with wide receiver Drew Pearson on a desperation 50-yard "Hail Mary" touchdown pass that knocked the Vikings out of the playoffs.

"You could never defeat Roger mentally or physically," late Cowboys head coach Tom Landry said in 1983. "He was like that in a game, in practice, or in the business world."

Staubach ended his Cowboys career with four Super Bowl appearances, including wins in Super Bowls VI and XII. In Super Bowl VI, Staubach was named the game's Most Valuable Player.

Following the 1979 season, Staubach retired, fearing the after-effects of recurring concussions.

In 1983, Staubach became the sixth member of the Dallas Cowboys Ring of Honor and two years later was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Born Feb. 5, 1942, in Cincinnati, Ohio.

★ TOM LANDRY ★
Head Coach, 1960-88

Tom Landry paced the sidelines as the "only head coach" in Dallas Cowboys history for 29 years in his trademark fedora. By the time Landry's coaching career ended following the 1988 season, he had compiled a 270-178-6 record, the third most wins in NFL history.

That distinguished career was good enough for Landry to gain entry into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1990 and the Cowboys Ring of Honor in 1993, thanks to leading the Cowboys to two Super Bowl titles, five Super Bowl appearances, five NFC Championships, 13 division titles and an incredible 20 consecutive winning seasons.

"This team has always played for me," Landry said. "That was the key to why I continued coaching. If they wouldn't play for me, I would have been out a long time ago. They always played hard and tried hard."

Landry's head coaching career did not start out very smoothly, coming over from the N.Y. Giants staff to take over the expansion Cowboys in 1960. That first year ended with an 0-11-1 in 1960, the tie coming against Landry's former team the Giants, preventing the Cowboys from going winless. The Cowboys went on to suffer through losing seasons in the first five years, before going 7-7 in 1965.

But from that point on, Landry turned the franchise into "America's Team," the Cowboys reeling off 20 consecutive winning seasons from 1966-85, one of the longest winning streaks in all of professional sports.

As a player-coach with the Giants before coming to the Cowboys, Landry helped to develop what would eventually become a base defense in the NFL, the 4-3. It was innovations like this that caught the attention of Cowboys owner Clint Murchison Jr. and president Tex Schramm when it came time to select the franchise's first head coach.

As head coach of the Cowboys, Landry introduced more innovations to the game, including offensive motion. Very seldom did the Cowboys run a play from the formation they initially lined up in after breaking the huddle. Landry brought back the shotgun formation, popularized situational substitutions and concocted the "Flex" defense.

Walking the sidelines characteristically stoic, Landry was always thinking a couple of plays ahead and what the long-term effects of each play he called might be. He coached football as if it were a chess match, positioning his team in the best way to win in the end. And in the end, no one coached with more success for a longer period of time than Landry.

That success was the impetus for Landry's induction into Pro Football Hall of Fame less than two years after he coached his last game.

"I think it's always good to have recognition for success," Landry said at the time. "That's what athletics is all about: achieving. Winning seasons. Super Bowls. Individual honors. It makes the kids look up and think of a time they might be up there."

The legendary coach, born Sept. 11 1924 in Mission, Texas, died Feb. 12, 2000 of leukemia.

Landry's Accomplishments:

- ★ 20 Consecutive Winning Seasons (1966-85)
- ★ Super Bowl VI and XII Titles
- ★ 2 NFL Championship game appearances
- ★ 5 NFC Titles
- ★ 13 Divisional Titles
- ★ 1966 NFL Coach of the Year
- ★ 1975 NFC Coach of the Year

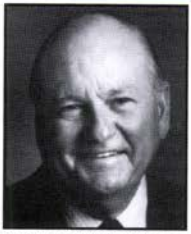
★ TEX SCHRAMM ★
Cowboys President and General Manager 1959-1989



Texas Earnest Schramm, better known as "Tex," rose to Professional Football Hall of Fame status during his 29 seasons as president and general manager of the Dallas Cowboys, turning a 1960 expansion franchise in Dallas into "America's Team."

With Schramm overseeing the birth and growth of the Cowboys organization, the team reached five Super Bowls, winning two, and compiled an NFL-record 20 consecutive winning seasons, one of the longest such streaks in all of professional sports.

Along the way, Schramm pioneered such revolutionary ideas as creating the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, the first of their kind in professional football; bringing the NFL to the nation on Thanksgiving Day; developing the Cowboys' Ring of Honor; spearheading the involvement of instant replay in the officiating of the game; giving the head referee a microphone for penalty announcements; shortening the playclock; and helping to develop the wild-card playoff system.

His position as chairman of the NFL Competition Committee from 1966 to 1988 aided his innovative efforts. Schramm's impact on the league was widespread, and probably his most cherished legacy since the one-time TV-exec at CBS who first came up with the idea of televising the Winter Olympics in 1960 from Squaw Valley was such a firm believer in preserving and making history.

Maybe Schramm's most significant accomplishment in the NFL was coordinating the merger of the established NFL and the fledging American Football League in 1966, holding what amounted to as secret meetings with Kansas City Chiefs owner Lamar Hunt at the insistence of NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle. The merger of the two warring leagues led to what became known as the Super Bowl, and when the leagues combined in 1970, the most powerful sports league in the world.

After Schramm departed the Cowboys in 1989 once Jerry Jones bought the club, he went international, becoming president of the upstart World League of American Football, later to become known as NFL Europe. He was inducted in to the Hall of Fame in 1991.

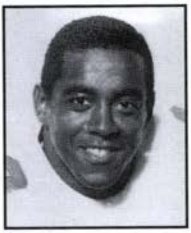
"I'm not one of the great athletes like the men behind me," a jubilant Schramm said during his Hall of Fame induction speech. "But I'm thrilled to be standing in front of them. Many of the men in here were my heroes. To be rubbing shoulders with them, it's beyond my comprehension."

In all, Schramm spent 44 years of his life in professional football, starting as a sportswriter for the Austin American-Statesman in 1947 – a natural step for the California-born Schramm who earned a bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Texas. Before going to CBS for a brief period (1957-59) and then being hired by Clint Murchison in 1959 to oversee the startup of the Dallas expansion franchise, Schramm spent 10 seasons with the Los Angeles Rams (1947-56). It was then Schramm first came in contact with Rozelle, actually hiring him to be the Rams' public relations director.

Born June 2, 1920, San Gabriel, Calif.

Schramm's Accomplishments:

- ★ 1991 Pro Football Hall of Fame Inductee
- ★ 1977 Bert Bell Memorial Award
- ★ 1978 Executive of the Year
- ★ 23-year member of NFL Competition Committee
- ★ Super Bowl VI and XII Titles
- ★ 5 Conference Championships
- ★ 13 Division Titles



33 ★ TONY DORSETT ★ Running Back, 1977-87

Tony Dorsett arrived in Dallas in 1977 via a draft-day deal the Cowboys swung with the Seattle Seahawks for the sole intention of selecting the Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Pittsburgh. Then Cowboys president and General Manager Tex Schramm paid what seemed like a bundle for the right to draft Dorsett: One first-round, and three second-round choices.

As his 11-career turned out in Dallas, a steal of a deal for an eventual Pro Football Hall of Fame player.

The Dorsett deal paid dividends in his very first year with the Cowboys, the four-time All-American picking up where he left off in college, rushing for 1,007 yards to earn NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year honors and set the rushing bar for rookie running backs in Dallas.

"A lot of the people said I wouldn't last in this league," Dorsett said in 1987. "I was the skinny little kid from Aliquippa, Pa., who wasn't supposed to make it."

Dorsett did make it, in fact he became one of the greatest running backs in NFL history. On Sept. 26, 1988 while playing his final NFL season with the Denver Broncos, Dorsett moved into second place on the NFL all-time rushing list with 12,306 rushing yards, and eventually finished his career with 12,739 yards. At the time, Dorsett trailed only Walter Payton when he retired after suffering a knee injury the following summer, but now ranks fifth behind Payton, Emmitt Smith, Barry Sanders and Eric Dickerson.

By the time Dorsett completed his 12-year career, he had collected a victory in Super Bowl XII, four Pro Bowl selections, one All-Pro honor and three All-NFC selections.

One of the most notable moments of Dorsett's career came on Jan. 2, 1983, before a Monday Night Football television audience playing against the Minnesota Vikings. Dorsett received a handoff from quarterback Danny White and proceeded to run 99-yards for a touchdown, thus recording an unbreakable NFL record. Dorsett's greatest season came in 1981 when he rushed for 1,646 yards, a franchise record at the time, a total that now ranks third to only Emmitt Smith's two, 1700-yard seasons.

"When he came to us, we hadn't had a strong running attack for about three years," Hall of Fame quarterback Roger Staubach once said. "Tony Dorsett is one of the greatest backs in NFL history."

Dorsett was the Heisman Trophy winner in 1976 and was the first Pitt football player to have his jersey retired. Dorsett left Pitt as a four-time All-American and four-time 1,000-yard rusher. His final collegiate highlight was a 27-3 victory over Georgia in the Sugar Bowl to claim the national title.

In 1994 Dorsett became the ninth Cowboys player inducted into the Ring of Honor, and that same year he was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Born April 7, 1954, in Rochester, Pa.

Dorsett's Accomplishments:

- ★ 4-Time Pro Bowl
- ★ 1-Time All-Pro
- ★ NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year

★ RANDY WHITE ★
54

Randy White came to the Cowboys from the University of Maryland as the No. 2 pick in the 1975 NFL Draft. Before his career was over, 14 years later, he would become known as the "Manster" – half man, half defensive monster – setting numerous franchise records as the heart-and-soul of the famed "Doomsday Defense".

White struggled in his first two years with the Cowboys when then head coach Tom Landry moved White from his familiar defensive tackle position to linebacker. But, after Landry moved White back to right tackle in 1977, White became one of the NFL's most dominating defensive linemen and a coveted co-Super Bowl MVP.

"Coming out of college a lot was expected of me," White said. "But I never did feel comfortable playing linebacker. Those first two years I was fighting for my life out there. Then they switched me to defensive tackle, where I was a lot more comfortable and from there my career took off."

White played 14 seasons, tying him for second all-time in franchise history, and he set a franchise record with eight All-Pro selections. White also was selected to nine Pro Bowls, ranking third in franchise history for Pro Bowl appearances. White's 16 sacks in 1978 rank third in franchise history for a single season, and he still remains third all-time in career tackles with 1,104 and second with 701 career solo tackles.

"His performances range anywhere from spectacular to spectacular," Landry once said. "He could outmatch anybody's intensity from game to game."

In his career, White played in six NFC Championship Games and three Super Bowls, claiming victory in Super Bowl XII and co-MVP honors with teammate Harvey Martin. Even more astounding, White only missed one game in his 14-year career.

In 1994, White was inducted into the Ring of Honor with teammate Tony Dorsett, the same year he was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

"Any honor I receive is a reflection on the great teammates and coaches I had in my career," White said. "There's a real special group of guys with the Cowboys, and to be a part of that was a great honor."

Born Jan. 15, 1953, in Pittsburgh, Pa.

20 ★ MEL RENFRO ★
Defensive Back, 1965-77

Mel Renfro first came to the Cowboys a highly-acclaimed running back out of the University of Oregon. But Cowboys head coach Tom Landry saw Renfro as a defensive back when they selected him in the second round of the 1964 draft.

And what a defensive back he was, becoming arguably the best safety-cornerback during his 14-year career to ever play for the Cowboys, and one of the best to ever play in the NFL. His 52 career interceptions and 26.4-yard career kickoff-return average still stand as team records, both a tribute to his running ability.

The NFL certainly got to know Renfro in a hurry, having been elected to the Pro Bowl in each of his first 10 seasons in the NFL – the first six at free safety and the final four at cornerback. His 10 Pro Bowl appearances is second to only Bob Lilly's 11 for the Cowboys.

On top of his 10 Pro Bowls, Renfro was a four-time All-Pro, playing in four Super Bowls and eight NFC Championships. He became the fifth member of the exclusive Ring of Honor in 1981, and was finally elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1996 in his 14th year of eligibility.

Renfro's 14 seasons with the Dallas Cowboys ties him for second in club history, just one shy of the record.

While at Oregon, Renfro led the team in rushing three consecutive years and was a two-time All-American. Despite coming to the NFL as an acclaimed runner, Renfro only ran the ball eight times during his career, all in 1966. Landry saw a free safety first, Renfro spending his first six seasons at safety and the final eight at corner.

In the middle of Renfro's All-Pro 1969 season, Landry was uncharacteristically complimentary toward one of his players, calling him "the best in the league at free safety."

But the Cowboys certainly figured out a way to capitalize on Renfro's running ability, having him return punts and kickoffs early in his career. He led the NFL in kickoff and punt returns his rookie season, and had seven interceptions, returning one for a touchdown. Renfro still is tied for the franchise lead with two career touchdown returns, and his 30-yard kick-off return average in 1965 still remains as the single-season high.

But it was interceptions Renfro was best known for during his career. In his first six years at free safety, Renfro totaled 30 interceptions. His interception totals declined somewhat when Landry moved him to cornerback for good in 1970. The decline had more to do with quarterbacks' reluctance to throw his way than any diminishing skills or quickness. His 626 interception return yards still stands as a career record for the Cowboys.

That 1971 Pro Bowl possibly was the greatest indication of Renfro's all-round ability. Not only did he play cornerback, but be also returned two punts for touchdowns, leading the NFC to a 27-6 win and earning the game's Most Valuable Player award.

Born Dec. 30, 1941, in Houston, Texas.

Renfro's Accomplishments:

- ★ 4-Time All-Pro
- ★ 10-Time Pro Bowl
- ★ 3-Time All-NFC
- ★ Cowboys Career Record 52 interceptions
- ★ Cowboys Career Record 26.4-yard kickoff-return average
- ★ Cowboys Career Record 626 interception return yards

The glittering showcase of Cowboys football is Texas Stadium, a state-of-the-art modern football facility built at a cost of $35 million in 1971. The Cowboys opened their facility on Oct. 24, 1971 with a 44-21 victory over New England. Since then, the Cowboys have posted a 178-78 record (.695) overall, including a 16-5 (.762) mark in postseason, at home. Prior to moving to Texas Stadium the Cowboys spent the 1960-71 seasons at the Cotton Bowl, where they posted a 45-33-4 record, including a 2-2 mark in postseason.

Located in the Dallas suburb of Irving, Texas Stadium has a seating capacity of 65,639 and features two DiamondVision color replay screens, 381 luxury suites, three sports bars, 52 concession stands, 40 specialty stands, 86 restrooms, 115 drinking fountains and 130 acres of parking. Cowboys Summer Training Camp

One of the annual highlights for Dallas Cowboys fans is the opportunity to visit Dallas Cowboys Training Camp. This year's camp will take place at the Alamodome in San Antonio, Tex. The 2002 camp marks the team's 13th camp in Texas.

Since moving their training camp to Texas, the Cowboys have had seven winning seasons, won six NFC Eastern Division titles, won three Super Bowls and played in four NFC Championship Games. The team has also compiled a composite record of 123-86 for a winning percentage of .589 since moving to Texas from Thousand Oaks, Calif., prior to the 1990 season.

San Antonio is a convenient location for Cowboys fans throughout Texas and the neighboring states to visit. In each of the past 12 seasons, the Cowboys have drawn an average of nearly 100,000 fans to the summer practice sessions and scrimmages with other NFL teams.

The camp at The Alamodome offers a rare opportunity for Cowboys' fans from all over the State of Texas and the Southwest to get an "up close and personal look" at their favorite team with all practice sessions free and open to the public.

The team will dress and conduct all practices at the Alamodome. A RealGrass natural playing field will be built in the parking lot south of the dome. Indoors, a state-of-the-art Sportfield NT synthetic grass system as well as a RealGrass natural surface will be installed inside the dome. These two surfaces will accommodate morning, afternoon and evening practices during the club's stay in San Antonio. The San Antonio Marriott Riverwalk will be the Cowboys home away from home for lodging, meals and meetings. Located at 711 East Riverwalk, the hotel is located on the city's scenic River Walk.

The Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders recently reached a major milestone in the entertainment industry by making more international entertainment trips to U.S. military bases than any other professional performer or group over the past ten years. An American institution that is recognized worldwide, the Cheerleaders are currently in their third decade of operation at Texas Stadium.

The Cowboys transformed the idea of sideline cheerleaders in 1972 when they mixed a unique blend of glamour and dance with an old football tradition. Nobody at the time predicted the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders would become an international phenomenon, but that's precisely what happened. This year the squad will celebrate it's 30th anniversary.

The image and style of the Cowboys Cheerleaders has had an enormous influence on entertainment in sports. But while the Cowboys Cheerleaders have been imitated throughout the sports world, no one has been able to equal their stature.

The strength of their national popularity was evident during the 1970's when two made-for-TV movies about the Cowboys Cheerleaders drew top ratings. That popularity has grown in the 1990's with an annual ESPN Swimsuit Special and appearances on Saturday Night Live, the Today Show and The David Letterman Show. More recently, the Cheerleaders had a featured role in Dr. T and the Women, starring Richard Gere and released in 2000.

Besides being an integral part of Cowboys games at Texas Stadium, the Cheerleaders perform at numerous state fairs, college halftime shows and other events around the country. They have also performed alongside celebrities such as Clint Black, Shania Twain, Randy Travis, Reba McEntire and Creed at nationally televised Texas Stadium spectaculars.

The Cowboys Cheerleaders also donate their time to many charitable and civic causes. Every year the Cheerleaders visit hospitals, nursing homes and schools. They perform at telethons and other fund-raising events around the United States. And they bring their special brand of goodwill to American military bases in places like Korea, the Philippines, Cuba, Panama, Italy, the Indian Ocean, Bosnia, Albania, Macedonia and the Persian Gulf.

The Cowboys Cheerleaders' annual USO/Department of Defense tours every Christmas and spring have become a special tradition. Since 1979 the Cheerleaders have visited and entertained hundreds of thousands of United States military personnel all over the world on 47 USO/DOD tours. In 1997 the squad received the first-ever "Spirit of Hope" Award from the USO in recognition of distinguished service to American Troops stationed overseas.

Community Outreach and the Dallas Cowboys

GENE AND JERRY JONES FAMILY
DALLAS COWBOYS CHARITIES

For the past 13 years, Jerry Jones and his family have owned and operated the Dallas Cowboys with a management style that places just as much emphasis on community leadership as it does on the goal of winning the Super Bowl. The dominant theme which underscores the Cowboys role in the community is to maximize the visibility, energy and celebrity of the world's most recognizable sports franchise and use those dynamic forces as a powerful means to help others.

The results on the field have brought championships to Dallas. The results away from the field have touched the lives of thousands.

THE MISSION

"In the area of community service, our organization's mission is built upon an overall philosophy of helping those who don't have the strength, the resources or the means to help themselves," says Jones. 'As a sports entity that has enjoyed unprecedented success and recognition for more than four decades, we feel a very strong obligation to transfer that championship tradition and the magic that it creates toward the bigger purpose of making a difference.'

Jones enlists the talents, skills and resources of his entire family, all of the Cowboys players, and every member of the organization to provide a cutting edge approach to community outreach. 'Any personal contact with an individual member of our organization can provide help for hundreds of people in need,' adds Jones. "The star on the helmet can move mountains."

THE ARMY AND THE STAR

The Jones family's dynamic association with the Salvation Army is a visible example of the creative and innovative manner in which the Cowboys can make a difference in the world.

Quincy Carter and his rookie teammates, joined by rookie Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, volunteer at the Salvation Army Christmas Assistance Center as part of the organization's annual support of the Salvation Army.

For the past five seasons, the Jones family has dedicated the Cowboys annual Thanksgiving Day halftime show as a national showcase to kickoff the Salvation Army's annual Kettle Drive. The team's association with network television has spawned a donation of $20 million worth of airtime to present nationally televised entertainment extravaganzas that have created a new holiday tradition.

Under the direction of Charlotte Jones Anderson, the Cowboys have produced the annual halftime event and welcomed nationally renowned entertainers Reba McEntire, Randy Travis, Clint Black and Billy Gilman &

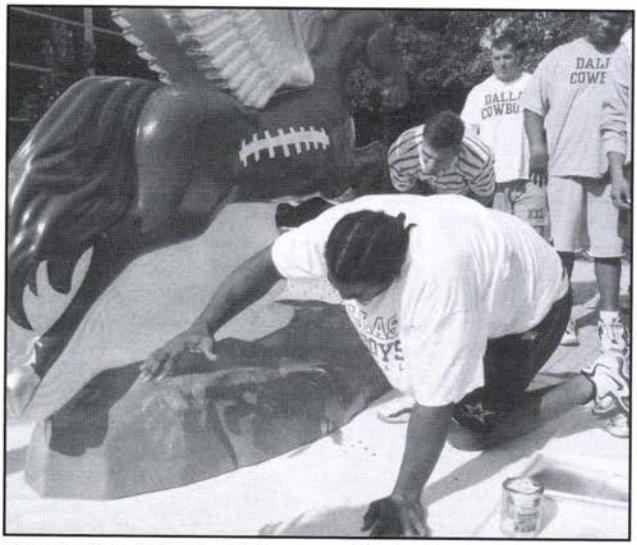
Jessica Simpson and Creed to highlight each of the five Kettle Kickoff celebrations. The efforts have resulted in increases of over $20 million, for the Army, from the previous year's total while reaching over 180 million people nation-wide.

On the local Salvation Army front, The Gene and Jerry Jones Family Center for Children opened in November of 1998 in conjunction with the Army. The center offers low-income families accessibility to affordable childcare programs that meet the needs of quality care and intellectual development. In each of the last eight years, Gene and Jerry Jones Family Dallas Cowboys Charities has served as host, and underwritten the costs, for the Super Lunch, a fundraising event for The Salvation Army Irving Corps Community Center and its special projects including the Family Center for Children. This annual event has raised nearly $1 million since its inception, including $200,000 in 2000.

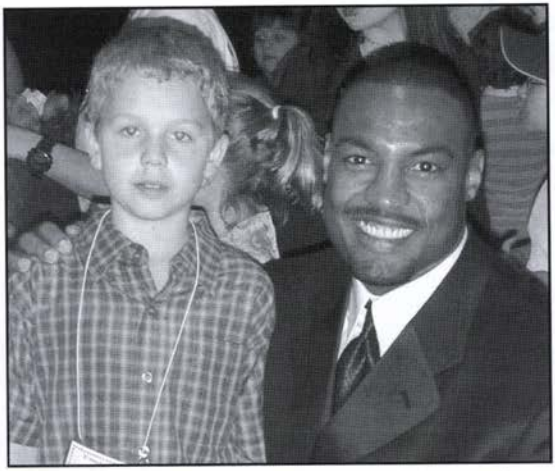
Gene and Jerry are members of the Salvation Army's Dallas County Board and the National Advisory Board, respectively. The family was presented the Army's Partner of the Year Award in 1997 and in 1999 received the Evangeline Booth Award, one of the Army's highest national community service awards. Annually, the entire Cowboys organization supports the Army's Corporate Angel Tree Program, helping those in need during the holiday season. Individuals in the organization, including front office staff and players adopt angels to provide gifts and volunteer at the distribution center.



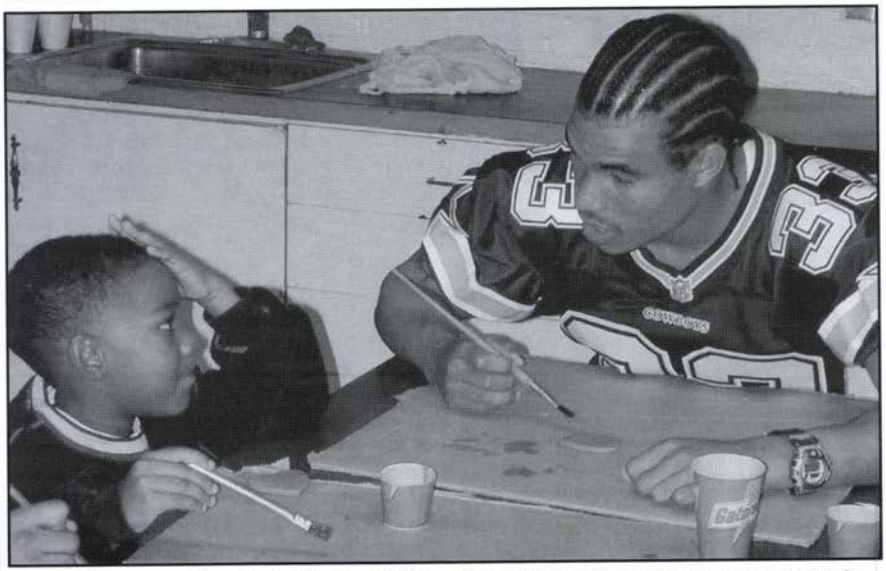
Solomon Page joins the entire Cowboys offensive line in placing a hand print on a Pegasus statue donated to The Rise School of Dallas in support of the team's annual "First Downs for Down Syndrome" program.

MAGIC BY ASSOCIATION

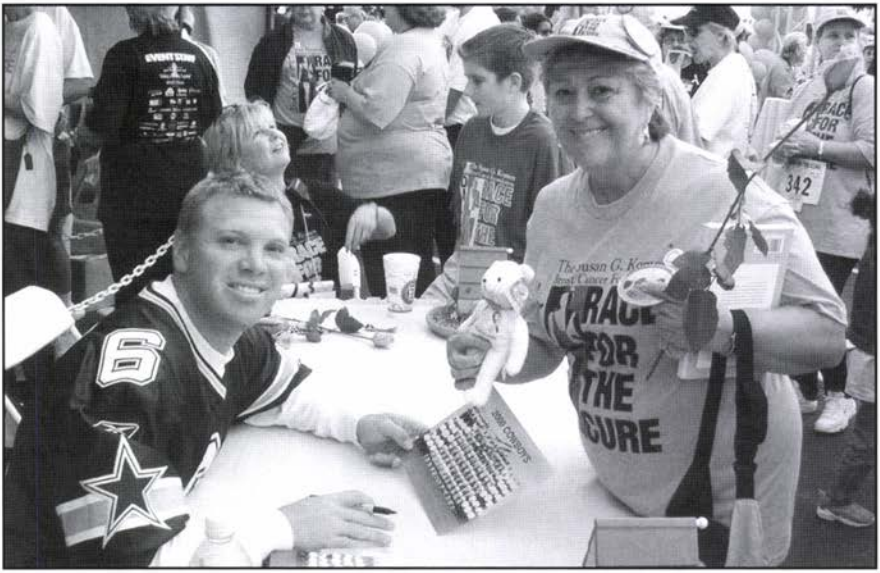
Maximizing the 'magic' of the Dallas Cowboys celebrity, and using that influence to assist others through community service, is the backbone of the organization's mission away from the field of competition. Each year, the team fulfills thousands of requests for ticket packages and autographed memorabilia items that can produce proceeds that range from $100 to tens of thousands of dollars per donation. Non-profit player appearances for charity, and 'Make-A-Wish' visits are a staple item in every Cowboys player contract. In addition, the Gene and Jerry Jones Family Dallas Cowboys Charities is the active philanthropic arm of the organization that annually makes significant contributions to organizations on both the local and national levels. In April of 1999, Gene and Jerry Jones made a $1 million gift to the Library of Congress for the purpose of promoting education on the national and international levels. In their continuing desire to enhance education and support young people in the community, the Jones family served as underwriting sponsor for The Dallas Cowboys/Gene and Jerry Jones Family – Dallas Morning News All-State Scholar-Athlete Team. The program honors and provides scholarships for 12 college-bound student-athletes from across the State of Texas who have distinguished themselves through academic and athletic excellence.



Darren Woodson serves as a celebrity escort in the annual Children's Cancer Fund Fashion Show & Luncheon that raised approximately $450,000 in 2002.



Jason Bell interacts with a child at the Oak Cliff Boys & Girls Club while working on an arts and crafts project during a Rookie Club visit – the Dallas Cowboys Rookie Club introduces new players to the importance of community service, enabling them to work as a team and gain confidence in interacting with the community as professional athletes and role models.

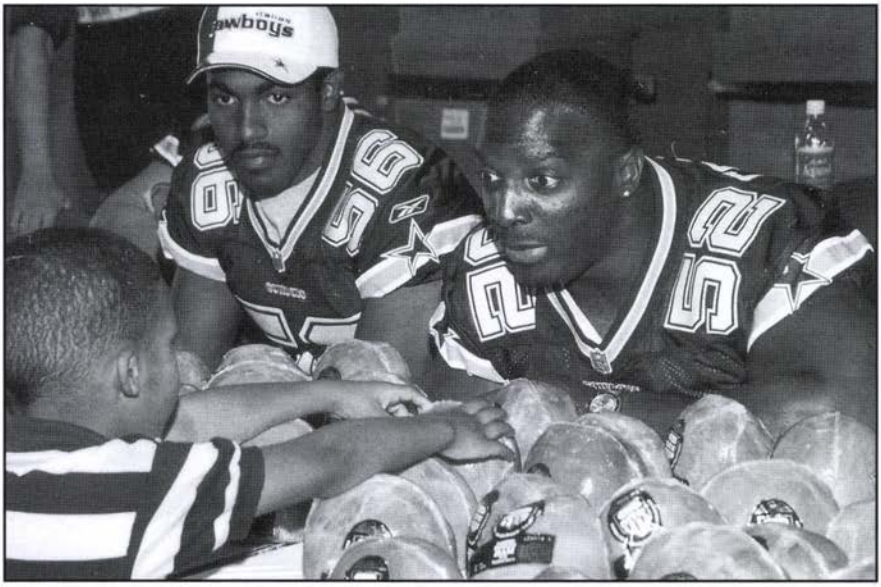


Tim Seder signs autographs for breast cancer survivors, showing support for the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation at the annual Dallas Race for the Cure.

A wide variety of recent charitable efforts highlight the Jones family's continued activity in the local community. Some of those events include: 'First Downs for Down Syndrome,' a program in which the Cowboys' offensive production on the playing field produced corporate funding for down syndrome; a record setting celebrity roast of Jerry Jones for St. Philips School in Dallas, a facility where the team had previously funded a new playground; the Ticket Art Program, which featured the artwork of regional children's hospital patients on Dallas Cowboys season tickets in 1997 and raised money for the children's respective hospitals; the annual Cystic Fibrosis Sports Challenge hosted at Texas Stadium; in 2001, participation in and support of the Mayor's Summer Reading Program with player spokesperson Ebenezer Ekuban encouraging children to read; in 1998/99, the 'Be Cool, Go To School' program, which rewarded Dallas city elementary schools who boasted the best attendance with a visit from a Cowboys player and team mascot Rowdy; in 1999/2000, the "Prepare to Pass" program, an incentive program where Cowboys' spokesperson Darren Woodson encouraged 10th grade students in Dallas to pass the mandatory TAAS test; and with the guidance of special teams coach Joe Avezzano, the Cowboys have been major supporters of the Special Olympics effort in North Texas for nearly a decade. The Cowboys also took an active fundraising role in the aftermath of the Sept. 11 tragedies.

Jerry Jones' passion for helping those who have been hit with adversity has inspired him to enlist the assistance of his players on several goodwill missions that have touched the hearts of those in need. The organization's presence in these areas often extends far beyond the boundaries of the Dallas-Fort Worth area. In the spring of 1997, Jones joined Cowboys Troy Aikman, Herschel Walker and Charles Haley on a relief trip to the tornado-ravaged state of Arkansas. Three years earlier, the entire World Champion Cowboys team went to the Oklahoma City bombing site within two weeks of the tragedy. For years, Gene and Jerry Jones have been avid supporters of the Susan G. Komen Foundation and Race for the Cure for Breast Cancer. Annually, the Cowboys participate in the Fort Worth, Plano and Dallas Race for the Cure events. Additionally, the Dallas Cowboys honored the Komen Foundation and 450 breast cancer survivors in a special halftime tribute at Texas Stadium on Oct. 24, 1999.

The Cowboys are also very active in raising a large portion of the annual funds for the Happy Hill Farm and Academy. The Dallas Cowboys Family Cookbook and the team's annual Kickoff Luncheon serve as major revenue producers for the local academy that houses and educates abused and neglected children. The academy is also home to the Dallas Cowboys Courage House.



Dexter Coakley and Orantes Grant help the Cowboys blitz hunger at the Salvation Army Irving Corps as part of the Hormel Hams for the Holidays program, which donates hams to underprivileged families.

Under the enthusiastic guidance of Gene Jones, who serves as a member of the board of trustees for Children's Medical Center of Dallas, the entire Cowboys team has conducted annual Christmas visits to local children's hospitals in each of the past 13 years. The holiday visitation program, which involves not only every player, but also the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, now extends to five different hospitals throughout Dallas and Ft. Worth.

Each year, the Cowboys underwrite and produce the annual 'Dallas Cowboys Let Us Play! Sports Camp for Girls,' a three-day camp for inner-city girls between the ages of 12 to 15 which encourages involvement in athletics for women with a focus on building character and self-esteem in at-risk youths. The team also sponsors a free coaching clinic for regional youth league and middle school coaches, from seven states, who spend a day with head coach Dave Campo and the entire Cowboys coaching staff at Texas Stadium.

POWERFUL PARTNERSHIP WITH THE NFL

Through national public service announcements, local promotional events and their association with the NFL, the Cowboys are responsible for $1 million in annual support of the United Way each year. The inaugural NFL & United Way Hometown Huddle took place on October 19, 1999 when the Dallas Cowboys and NFL players nationwide showed support in their communities. In 2000, the Second Annual Hometown Huddle on October 17th involved the Dallas Cowboys secondary serving lunch to the homeless and visiting with children at The Salvation Army, Carr P. Collins Social Service Center. In 2001, the team hosted the Hometown Huddle at their training facility, inviting 100 boys and girls to participate in a junior training camp.

In addition, the Cowboys and the entire NFL have formed a partnership that will designate $1 million of annual support to the development of youth football programs throughout the country. In conjunction with that effort, the Cowboys will present a $100,000 grant to the St. Philips School and Community Center in South Dallas. The grant will help fund a new $750,000 recreation center that will include a football field. In 1998, the Cowboys presented Dallas Moorland YMCA with the funding to build new football fields to support their growing youth football program.

The Cowboys participated in the first annual Dallas Cowboys Community Quarterback Award, a league-wide volunteer recognition program that donated nearly $1 million to community organizations served by outstanding volunteers. The 2000 Dallas Cowboys Community Quarterback Award was awarded to Coach Robert Green—nominated for her volunteer work at St. Philip's School & Community Center in Dallas, Texas. Coach Green received a $11,000 grant from the Gene and Jerry Jones Family Dallas Cowboys Charities donated in her name to St. Philip's. The runners-up, each receiving a $3,500 grant, were Percy Borbin, Happy Hill Farm and Academy and Nancy Underwood Ippolito The Salvation Army.

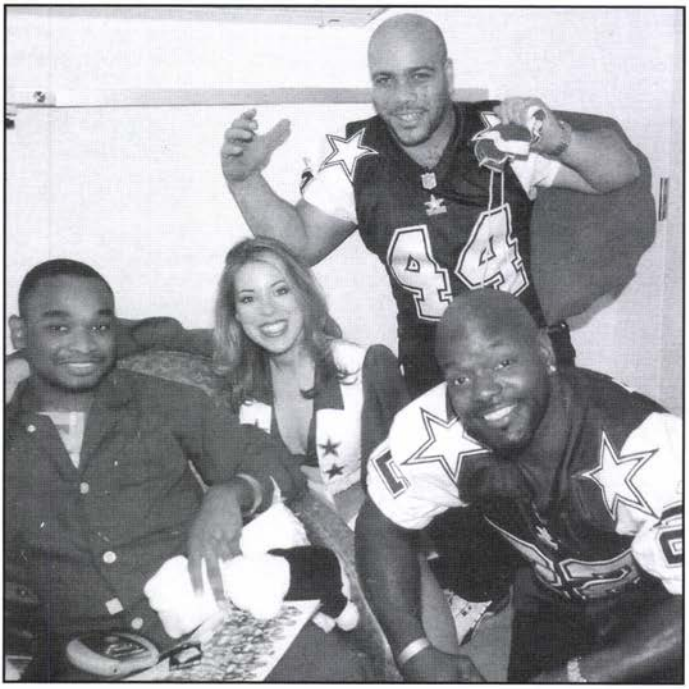
AMBASSADORS OF GOOD CHEER



The world famous Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders organization is completely subsidized by the club for the primary purpose of providing goodwill and a sense of caring on a local, national and international platform. Aside from their obvious presence on game days and their diligent work in local hospitals and homes for the elderly, the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders have now made more U.S.O. visits to U.S. troops stationed oversees than the legendary Bob Hope.

Emmitt Smith, along with teammate Robert Thomas and a member of the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, visit patients at Children's Medical Center of Dallas during the team's annual holiday hospital visits.

In wake of the Sept. 11 tragedies, the nationally televised Dallas Cowboys Thanksgiving Day Halftime show, annually kicking off the Salvation Army's Red Kettle Campaign, held a patriotic theme with a performance by Creed.

A FAMILY PASSION

The operation of the Dallas Cowboys is a very visible family passion for Gene and Jerry Jones and their three children. Jerry Jones serves as the club's owner and general manager, while Stephen Jones (player personnel), Charlotte Jones Anderson (marketing, special events and community relations) and Jerry Jones, Jr. (legal operations) are all actively involved with the daily management of the club as vice presidents. Their shared dedication to community involvement has been a family source of pride for several years, and it extends far beyond the realm of the athletic world.

Gene Jones is also a current member of the advisory board for the Meadows School for the Arts at Southern Methodist University, the board of directors for the John G. Tower Center for Political Studies at SMU, the advisory board for Family Gateway and the Children's Education Fund advisory board. She has previously served on the advisory board for the March of Dimes, the executive board of TACA and the executive board of the Mental Health Center. She has also been a member of the Dallas Symphony League and the Associates of the Dallas Museum of Art. In addition, she has been a past honorary chairman for major fund-raising events that benefited Neurofibromatosis and the Easter Seals Society.

In the spring of 1998, the Jones' hosted a celebrity fundraiser at their home with Lauren Bacall as the featured guest. On that one evening, for the benefit of SMU's Meadows Foundation, the family helped produce the single largest fund raising event in University history. As a result of her efforts, the University established the Gene Jones Scholarship in her honor.

Jerry Jones has a lifetime association with the Boys and Girls Clubs of America. In 2001, the Joneses were awarded the Chairman's Award by The Boys and Girls Clubs of America. This award is given to recognize individuals who made a positive difference in people's lives – particularly in the lives of children. The Chairman's Dinner, chaired by daughter, Charlotte Anderson, raised $1.9 million for The Boys and Girls Clubs. Jerry currently serves as a national trustee for the Southwest region of the organization and was previously named the Man of the Year by the Boys and Girls Clubs of Little Rock, Arkansas.
