BRONCO 1968 PREVIEW

A winning professional football team isn't constructed overnight, or in a single season. Denver Bronco General Manager and Head Coach Lou Saban doesn't argue the point. But, Lou believes that the Broncos will be improved in 1968.

"We'll be better in 1968 because of 1967," Saban said as the Rocky Mountain team headed into training camp. "Despite our won-lost record, we feel that 1967 was an important season for us. We were able to evaluate players . . . sort out personnel."

"We now have a working nucleus," Saban continued, "something that we didn't have at this time a year ago. Though we still have some gaps to fill, we feel that the Broncos will be competitive this season."

In general, Saban feels that the major Bronco trouble spot going into camp is the defensive secondary. Only two of the men who were starters at the close of the 1967 campaign, corner Nemiah Wilson and safety Jack Lentz, are expected to be available this season.

Saban also sees some spots in the offensive line that need improvement. And, he realizes that his sophomore linebackers must not make rookie mistakes.

On the positive side, the Bronco skipper believes that All-Leaguer Al Denson and Eric Crabtree give Denver outside receiving equal to that found anywhere in the AFL. Talented Dave Costa heads up a defensive line that showed steady improvement throughout the 1967 season.

The major question mark area — and the key to Bronco success, or lack of same — is the quarterback position. Steve Tensi, acquired last August from San Diego, begins his second season as a starter. As a "rookie," the lanky signal caller improved continually. But, Steve must continue to improve, if Denver is to be a winner.

Saban believes that the proper way to build is with youth. Thus, the Broncos were the youngest team in the AFL or NFL in 1967. The inexperience resulted in setbacks.

But, there was improvement . . . improvement that should be reflected in the won-lost columns in 1968. Against the six teams that Denver played twice last season, the Broncos were no less than 114 points better the second time around. They won two of their final four games.

THE OFFENSE

In the final four games of the 1967 season, Denver averaged 24.5 points per game, well above its average for the first 10 games of the season. Included was a seasonal high of 33 points in downing the New York Jets (33-24) at Shea Stadium. The key to continued offensive improvement will be quarterback Steve Tensi. Al Denson and Eric Crabtree give Denver quality outside receiving. A year of experience should make Floyd Little a standout as a running back. Up front, Saban feels that some adjustments must be made.

QUARTERBACKS

Steve Tensi is the man on the spot. After a season of bench-riding and a season of subbing at San Diego, Tensi had to struggle at times as a starter for Denver in 1967. But, he showed improvement throughout the year. Able to throw long at the season's outset, he gained effectiveness throwing short as the season wore on. On the year, Tensi completed 131 of 325 passes for 1,915 yards and 16 touchdowns. He was intercepted only 17 times.

Backup man Jim LeClair is back, but the second-year man will have to ward off challenges from rookies Mickey Beard and Marlin Briscoe and others to hold onto his job.

How much Tensi continues to improve will be a major key to Denver Bronco success.

RUNNING BACKS

Floyd Little, fully recovered from a shoulder injury that forced him out of the final game of the 1967 season, is solid at the halfback position. But, Bo Hickey can expect a real battle from draftee Garrett Ford, a 230-pounder, for the fullback spot. Little was No. 13 in the AFL in rushing as a rookie with 381 yards on 130 carries. He was an outstanding performer by the close of the campaign. Floyd doubles as a top kickoff and punt returner. He was No. 1 in the league in the latter department in '67.

Hickey, who rushed for 263 yards, has talent, but must keep his weight down. Ford, a top prospect, was hampered by an ankle injury as a senior at West Virginia last season. He ran for 894 yards as a sophomore and 1,068 as a junior. Rookie Ron Lamb also has a shot at the fullback post. With halfback-fullback Wendell Hayes gone via the trade route to Kansas City, service returnee Fran Lynch and dark-horse rookie Steve Grady are the other top contenders at halfback.

Saban feels that the Bronco running game should be stronger in 1968.

RECEIVERS

Flanker and All-Leaguer Al Denson and Eric Crabtree make outside receiving the Bronco long suit going into training camp. Tom Beer, a second year man, is the incumbent at tight end. Denson, who rates with the best in the AFL or NFL, caught 46 passes for 899 yards and had a brilliant 19.5 average in 1967. He tied KC's Otis Taylor for the league lead in touchdown catches with 11. Al has a fine combination of size (6-3, 210) and speed (9.6 in the 100). Denson was an AFL all-star selection last season.

Crabtree, who caught one pass as a Bronco rookie in 1966, snared 46 to deadlock Denson in 1967. He totaled 716 yards, had a 15.6 average and tallied five TDs. Beer, starting slowly, grabbed 11 for 155 yards and a 14.1 norm. Soph Neal Sweeney will be hard to beat as the outside backup men. He averaged 22.7 on six grabs in spot work in '67. Bob Scarpitto has experience, and rookie Mike Haffner has a chance. Dave Moton and Dave Washington lead a group trying to unseat Beer.

OFFENSIVE LINE

Though a number of men showed promises as the 1967 season progressed, the offensive line is still unsettled. At the outset, Sam Bruneli and Tom Cichowski are the men to beat at the tackles, George Goeddeke is out front at left guard, and Larry Kaminski is the No. 1 man at center. With the departure of right guard Pat Matson to Cincinnati in the expansion draft, that position is wide open. But, both Brunelli and Cichowski would fit in well at guard positions, and Goeddeke played center as a collegian.

Former defensive lineman Bob Young, vet Dick Tyson and rookie draftee Bob Vaughn will all battle for guard positions. Rookies Bob Hendrix and George Gaiser and soph Mike Current are in the tackle picture. Newcomer Jon Bruno is a threat to Kaminski at center. Sound-blocking Tom Beer will be hard to unseat at tight end.

Saban feels that there may be a number of adjustments in the line prior to the regular season. He would be happy if a big man would come out of the pack to earn a tackle post. All of the current starters will have to stay on their toes.

DEFENSE

Generally, Saban feels that the Broncos have men up front capable of doing the job. However, rookies will keep Captain Dave Costa and his veteran associates of 1967 toeing the mark. The linebackers, mostly second-year men, should be improved over 1967.

The secondary present serious problems. Two gaps, possibly more, will have to be filled if the Broncos are to be a better defensive football team. "Without a defense," Saban says, "you simply don't win."

DEFENSIVE LINE

Tackle Dave Costa had his best season as a pro in 1967, and was an all-star selection. Saban feels that Dave has the ability to hold his own with most pro forwards. Running mate Jerry Inman was a pleasant surprise. End Dick Jackson was in-and-out in his first season up front, after shifting from a linebacker position, but the coaches have high hopes for continued improvement.

Rex Mirich and Pete Duranko are the top candidates for the other end job. Soph Duranko played solid football late in 1967. Vet Larry Cox and rookies could also play a major role in this area. Curly Culp, a 255-pounder and Denver's top draft choice, may bid for a tackle spot. Gordon Lambert and Bob Langford are other draftees who are highly-regarded.

With some solid veterans and capable newcomers, the defensive line could turn out to be a bright spot.

LINEBACKERS

Denver played the 1967 season almost exclusively with rookies, middle man John Huard and Chip Myrtle, Frank Richter, Lou Andrus and Carl Cunningham. All were starters at times. Saban hopes that the year of experience will pay off with improved linebacking in 1968.

Huard was a capable performer by the close of '67, and Richter was coming fast. Three rookie draftees, Paul Smith, Jeff Kuhman and Adin Brown, head the list of newcomers.

Over-all, Saban expects less mistakes from his linebacker corps this year, due to a measure of experience, and thus a better degree of productivity.

DEFENSIVE BACKS

"This is our biggest problem area," says Saban. He gets few dissenters. Only corner Nemiah Wilson and free safety Jack Lentz return from the group serving as starters for most of last season. Strong safety Lonnie Wright was selected by Cincinnati in the expansion draft, and corner Goldie Sellers was traded to Kansas City. Corner Jim Summers, a standout rookie early last year, will not play due to injuries suffered midway through the 1967 season.

The Broncos have loaded up with secondary acquisitions during the off-season, and Saban will test all hands during the training season. Lentz came on strong at the free safety spot last season. Rookie college All-American Frank Loria will challenge. Veteran Bobby Ply, second-year man Tom Cassese and rookie draftee Gus Hollomon will be in the forefront of the battle for the other safety post.

Wilson, who checks in at 165 pounds, will have to ward off rookie draft choice Drake Garrett and others to retain a starting post. At the other side rookies Steve Holloway, Charlie Greer, Vernon Dickey, Trent Walters and others will battle it out.

Patching up the secondary is a must for Saban and his aides. It is their major concern going into training camp.

PUNTING

Bob Scarpitto gives Denver outstanding punting. The former Notre Damer average 44.9 yards per effort in 1967 to lead both the AFL and NFL in punting for the second straight year. (He set a league record with a 45.8 average in 1966.) Bob established AFL standards for most kicks and most yardage in a season in '67 with 105 for 4,713. He also had the league's longest boot of the season, 73 yards. Rookies Bill Van Heusen, Gene Fisher, Gus Hollomon and Joe Divito are also punters.

FIELD GOALS, KICKOFFS, PATs

The Broncos tried a number of placekickers in 1967, winding up with former discus champion Bob Humphreys. Bob was seven of 15 on field goal tries and made 18 of 19 PAT placements. Late in the season. Humphreys banged through 47 and 43 yard attempts. Jack Abendschan heads a newcomer group. Denver looks for improvement in this department in 1968.

KICKOFF AND PUNT RETURNS

Denver led the AFL in both punt and kickoff returning in 1967, averaging 13.5 per punt and 25.3 per kickoff. The Broncos would like nothing better than to lose the team kickoff return derby in 1968.

Floyd Little became the first rookie to pace the loop in punt returns since the league's initial season, bringing back 16 for 270 yards and a 16.9 average. Floyd's 72-yard return against the Jets was the AFL's only touchdown-getting return of the season. Little was third in kickoff returns with 35 for 942 yards and a 26.9 average. Eric Crabtree, Nemiah Wilson, Fran Lynch and rookies should make Bronco punt and kickoff returning potent again in 1968.

Gerald H. Phipps

Chairman of the Board

Gerry Phipps has been an integral part of the Denver sports scene for more than two decades — two decades which saw the metropolitan area attain major league status and nationwide recognition.

In 1947, he became part of the organization that brought the Denver Bears here as members of the old Western League. The Bears, during the years which immediately followed that move, set minor league baseball attendance records which stood unchallenged for many years.

In 1961, one year after big league professional football had arrived here in the form of the Denver Broncos of the American Football League, Phipps became a major owner.

Four years later, he and his brother, Allan, became virtually the sole owners of the club and he assumed duties as board chairman. In 1966, with the consolidation of the two major leagues announced effective 1970, Denver joined the select handful of cities honored with a franchise in the combined leagues.

It was the culmination of hard work—and long-held dreams.

Now, more than 20 years after Gerry Phipps first found himself involved in Denver's sports picture, the dreams are becoming reality — much to the delight of the metropolitan area's sports and civic minded enthusiasts.

Phipps, 53, is a member of the Denver Country Club, the Denver Athletic Club, Denver Club, Cherry Hills Country Club and the Williams Club of New York.

He was born March 4, 1915, in Denver to Lawrence C. and Margaret Rogers Phipps and received his bachelor's degree from Williams College in 1936.

He was employed by the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad from then until he entered the Navy as an Ensign in May, 1942.

Following his separation from the service in 1945, he was employed by a general contracting firm in Denver until 1952, when he formed his present company. In 1958, he was elected vice-president and treasurer of California Electric Power Co. and when that company merged with Southern California Edison Company late in 1963, he was named a director of the latter. He is a past president of the Associated Building Contractors of Colorado, Inc., and a director of The First National Bank of Denver and The Western Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Phipps was married in New York City on Sept. 24, 1937, to the former Janet Alice Smith. They have three daughters.

Expanded Stadium, Facilities Aid Broncos

The Denver Broncos, on the climb off the field as well as on, will play home football games in an enlarged 50,000-seat stadium in 1968 and prepare for game action on an expanded practice field.

Expansion of Bears Stadium was the end product of a successful civic drive to raise $1.8 million by nonprofit groups called Metro Stadium, Inc. and the DOERS (Dedicated Organization for the Erection of the Right Stadium).

With the completion of the drive earlier this year, Metro Stadium purchased the stadium from Empire Sports, Inc. and presented it to the City of Denver as a gift. The Broncos now lease the facility for home football games.

A $3 million revenue bond issue allowed for construction of the new 16,000-seat upper deck in the West, plus the improvement of other stadium facilities. The new Bears Stadium will be dedicated on Sunday, Sept. 29, when the Broncos open the home season against the Boston Patriots. (Pre-season games will be played at DU Stadium.)

The Bronco practice field, at 57th Ave. and Valley Highway in suburban Denver, has been enlarged and improved. Adjustments, including additional locker room space, have been made to the Bronco Fieldhouse at the practice site.

Lou Saban

General Manager — Head Coach

Lou Saban AFL Coach-of-the-Year as skipper of the Buffalo Bills in 1964 and 1965, has been the chief executive of the Denver Broncos since December 1966, when he signed a 10-year contract as General Manager and Head Coach.

Saban's first season at Denver, a year of transition, was a rebuilding campaign both on and off the field. The 1967 Broncos posted a 3-11 record. However, Denver came on strongly after mid-season. The Broncos won two of their final four games and were no less than 114 points better in the second game with the seven AFL teams they faced twice.

Off the field, 1967 found Saban and his staff in the forefront of a drive that saw Bronco fans raise $1.8 million for the purchase of Bears Stadium by the city, allowing for subsequent rennovation and expansion of the facility that will mean 50,000 seats for the 1968 season.

"We feel that we have constructed a sound organization," Saban said, looking ahead, "and that we now have the player nucleus that we require to be competitive in pro football. Our goal is to climb to the top."

At Buffalo, Saban transformed an also-ran into a winner. When the Bills finished last in the AFL's Eastern Division in 1961, Lou was elevated from Director of Player Personnel to Head Coach. Saban produced a winning team his first year. The next season, 1963, the Bills moved up to second place in their division. In 1964 and 1965, the Saban-coached Bills won both their divisional title and the over-all AFL championship.

The 46-year-old Bronco GM-Head Coach began his professional coaching career in 1960, when the AFL came into being. He directed the Boston Patriots in 1960 and for the first five games of the 1961 season. After winning the AFL title for the second straight time at Buffalo in 1965, Saban decided to return to the college coaching ranks at Maryland. However, Bronco owners Gerald and Allan Phipps persuaded Lou to return to the AFL in the dual capacities of General Manager and Head Coach a year later. His won-lost record for six-plus seasons is 46-40-3.

A single wing quarterback at the University of Indiana, Saban was the Hoosiers' captain and most valuable player in 1942, as well as an All-Big Ten selection. An almost sure bet for All-America honors the following year, as a senior, Saban found the military taking prior claim. And, in due course, he was commissioned a First Lieutenant in the Army's O.S.S.

After completing language school at Fort Benning, Georgia, Lou was assigned to the China-Burma-India theater of operations as a student of the Chinese language (Mandarin dialect).

Three and a half years later, Saban received his honorable discharge and signed a professional football contract with the Cleveland Browns in the newly-formed All-America Conference.

It was the start of one of sports' most successful sagas. During the four years Saban played for the Browns, they won four league championships. Lou captained the Browns each season. Twice, in 1948 and 1949, he was an All-League linebacker selection.

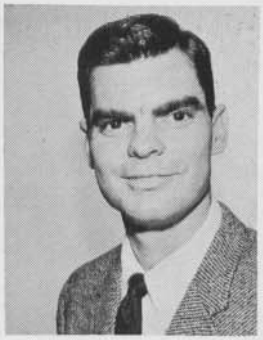

When the AAC folded and merged with the NFL, Saban retired as a player. From there on, with the exception of 1956 when he entered the insurance business, Lou has been in the coaching profession.

From 1950 through 1952, Saban was head coach at Case Institute of Technology. From there he went to the University of Washington as an assistant coach. Lou joined the staff at Northwestern in 1954 as an assistant for the Wildcats, and the following year became their head coach.

After his brief tenure in the insurance business in 1956, Saban returned to football the following year as head coach at Western Illinois. In 1958 and again in 1959, Lou's Leathernecks won conference championships. The latter year his club was undefeated and ranked second in the nation among small colleges.

Saban returned to pro football in 1960 as head coach of the Boston Patriots in the new AFL.

Lou and his wife, Lorraine, who were married in 1947, have four children . . . Tom, Barbara, Patricia and Christine.

Hunter Enis

Offensive Backfield Coach

A quarterback with the Denver Broncos during part of the 1962 season, Hunter Enis, 31, is the youngest member of Lou Saban's coaching staff.

A native of Fort Worth, Texas, Enis entered Texas Christian University after graduating from Polytechnic High School at Fort Worth in 1955. He went on to star at quarterback for the Horn Frogs, guiding them to the Southwest Conference Championship in 1958.

After receiving his B.A. Degree in math and geology in 1959, Enis signed with the old Chicago Cardinals. Released after five games, Hunter returned to TCU as an assistant coach and to work on his Master's Degree.

He signed on with the Dallas Texans of the American Football League in 1960, and moved on to the San Diego Chargers in 1961. He coached and studied at TCU in the off-season.

In 1962, Hunter was traded to the Broncos and played in seven league games before being dealt to the Oakland Raiders.

He completed work on his Master's Degree during the off-season and decided to retire and accepted a full-time job at TCU.

A veteran of six years of Air Force reserve training, Enis is married. He and his wife, Gloria, have a daughter, Jill, who is four, and a boy, James Hunter, born a year ago.

William "Whitey" Dovell

Offensive Line Coach

Whitey Dovell, 41, joined the Denver Broncos after 15 years at the University of Maryland as an assistant coach.

1968 OUTLOOK

Will Coach Mike Holovak's men force history to repeat itself in 1968? The only other time in the past seven years that the Boston Patriots finished with a losing record (4-8-2 in 1965), they bounced back with what was probably the strongest and most exciting showing in their history (8-4-2 in 1966) . . . Again, like so many times in past seasons, it will be quarterback Babe Parilli on the spot. As the ageless Boston Babe goes, so go the Pats . . . The Beantowners have a great fullback in Jim Nance, and if Holovak can come up with a consistent performance from another running back, Nance should be that much more effective . . . A veteran line spearheads the Boston offensive attack, led by center Jon Morris, guards Charlie Long and Len St. Jean, and tackles Tommy Neville and Don Oakes . . . Rookie Tommy Funches, Boston's second-round draft choice from Jackson State, is big, strong and fast, and could push for a starting job at offensive tackle immediately . . . On defense the Pats have a front four that has played together longer than any other in pro football. Bob Dee, Jim Hunt, Houston Antwine and Larry Eisenhauer, at one time or another, have all been All-AFL selections. Reinforcement in this area could come from No. 1 choice, All-America Dennis Byrd of North Carolina . . . Two rookies who broke into the starting secondary last season—John Charles and Leroy Mitchell—should strengthen that area even more this year . . . The linebacking is solid . . . Parilli's counterpart on the receiving end, Gino Cappelletti, is a master craftsman in his own right. And when he's not hauling in aerials, Cappy can be counted on to hurt you with his toe, as one of the premier placekicking specialists in the game . . . Holovak's master plan is for another well designed comeback. As he exclaimed: "Just a little more speed and a couple of changes at the right spots and we've got it all."

BOSTON-DENVER GAME IN 1967

Sept. 3, 1967—at Denver Denver 26, Boston 21

Attendance—35,488

The Denver Broncos kicked off the 1967 American Football League season against the Boston Patriots with a thrilling, come-from-behind, 26-21 win. The game, which was televised nationally by NBC, was a bell-ringer from the start and the outcome was in doubt until the final gun. Denver got on the scoreboard first. With just over three minutes gone in the initial period, quarterback Steve Tensi hit Al Denson for 12 yards. Veteran Pat signal caller Babe Parilli, quickly got his club even a few minutes later on a 79-yard bomb to Art Graham. Gary Kroner gave the Broncos a 10-7 lead to carry into the third quarter. He split the uprights from 20 yards out with two minutes remaining in the second quarter. Tensi and Denson teamed up once again for a score early in the third stanza, this time on a 55-yard pitch. But, Parilli showed his mettle by throwing scoring strikes of 55 yards to Jim Nance and 20 yards to Larry Garron, giving the Beantowners the lead for the first time in the game. Trailing 21-16 early in the fourth period, Kroner narrowed the count to 21-19, driving the ball home from nine yards away. The field goal was set up by Tensi's 58-yard sideline aerial to Denson. Just over a minute later the Broncos got their winning margin. Goldie Sellers stepped in front of Gino Cappelletti on Boston's 24-yard line, stole Parilli's pass, and scampered unmolested into the end zone for Denver's final score. Nemiah Wilson then dashed Boston's last hopes, with time running out, registering Denver's sixth interception off Parilli and insuring Denver's first opening day win since 1962.

1968 OUTLOOK

Buffalo expects that such key performers as ends Art Powell and Bobby Crockett, offensive tackle Dick Hudson, middle linebacker Harry Jacobs and defensive end Roland McDole, will bounce back after injury-riddled years . . . Healthy efforts by these people, coupled with a top performance by veteran quarterback Jack Kemp, who had a below par year, and the New Yorkers could be right back in the thick of the flag chase . . . Keith Lincoln has few peers as one of the game's great competitors. He led the Bills in rushing and pass receiving last season . . . Given assistance from Wray Carlton, who also fought the injury bug most of the '67 campaign, or rookie Max Anderson, a speedster from Arizona State, and Buffalo could have a formidable running game . . . Offensively and defensively, Buffalo is always tough, with veteran talent at all positions . . . The same is the case in the secondary . . . Along with Powell and Elbert Dubenion, rookies Dick Trapp and Haven Moses the Bills could have the best depth they have had in receiving . . . Only time will tell on comeback efforts by key players, but the nucleus is there for a return to football supremacy for the Buffalo Bills.

BUFFALO-DENVER GAMES IN 1967

Oct. 8, 1967—at Denver Buffalo 17, Denver 16

Attendance—35,188

Keith Lincoln banged four yards to pay dirt with a little over three minutes remaining in the game, to give the Buffalo Bills a tight 17-16 win over the Broncos. The game saw the Broncos squander a 16-3 fourth quarter lead. Until the fourth period the contest was a rugged defensive struggle. Buffalo rang up three points just before the half ended on Tom Mercer's 32-yard field goal. That wiped out a two-point advantage Denver had gained just as the second quarter began . . . when Rich Jackson hit Jack Kemp for safety. Denver finally broke the six-point ice to take a 9-3 lead. With time running out in the third stanza, Wendell Hayes capped a 80-yard, 11-play drive, slashing over from the one. A brief minute and thirty seconds later, and just into the final period, quarterback Jim LeClair fired into the end zone, where Al Denson literally stole the ball away from a defender to give Denver a 13-point lead. But a Bronco fumble was recovered by the Bills deep in Denver territory. Three plays later Kemp hit Art Powell on a five-yard pitch, and the Bills were back in the game. The New Yorkers then got their biggest break of the game. Bob Scarpitto, who had run successfully from punt formation six times in the previous three seasons, lost his gamble on a fourth and 11 situation from his own 24. He was dropped after picking up just six yards. The Bills took over and Kemp and Lincoln took care of the rest.

Adverse weather proved to be just what the doctor ordered for the Broncos, as they gained a 21-20 win over the Buffalo Bills. The victory not only broke a nine-game losing streak, but served as a stimulus to Denver's play for the remainder of the season. It was irony of ironies that Mike Mercer missed a 24-yard field goal with 19 seconds left that sealed Buffalo's defeat. For, in their first meeting, when the Broncos suffered a one-point loss, Denver kickers missed five field goal attempts. Denver did all of its scoring in the first half, two touchdowns by Al Denson just 36 seconds apart, plus an earlier one by Floyd Little . . . his first in league play . . . on a brilliant 13-yard dash around left end. After taking a 21-7 halftime lead, the Broncos lost momentum in the final 30 minutes of play. The Denver team got past midfield twice, and each time an error wiped out the gain. But Denver's aggressive young team frequently outhustled Buffalo. And, alert play created the breaks that got the job done. Buffalo collected its second half points on a 19-yard Kemp to Lincoln combination midway in the third quarter, and two Mercer field goals later in the same period.

1968 OUTLOOK

Paul Brown says he will field "one of the youngest teams in professional football history." How fast the new Bengels will develop and become competitive in the American Football League remains to be seen, but Brown promises a well-conditioned and well-disciplined team resembling his championship Cleveland Browns teams . . . John Stofa, obtained in a trade with Miami, is expected to lead the Bengals at quarterback although he could be pressed for the starting spot by Dewey Warren, an All-American from Tennessee, and third round draft choice Gary Davis of Vanderbilt . . . Brown is depending on several players picked up in the AFL allocation draft. These include offensive tackle Ernie Wright; linebackers Frank Buncom and Sherrill Headrick; safetyman Bobby Hunt and offensive guard Pat Matson . . . Brown took a gamble in selecting Bobby Burnett, who was 1966 rookie of the year with Buffalo. Burnett suffered a leg injury last season but appears to be recovered. If so, he could be a big man for the Bengals. The Bengals will be a young team in most areas and the men Brown is banking on to do the job include No. 1 draft pick Bob Johnson, All-America center from Tennessee; Bill Staley, 6-3, 245-pound defensive tackle from Utah State; Tom Smiley, a 6-2, 240-pound fullback from Lamar Tech; and, of course, Warren and Davis, the two top flight quarterbacks from the Southeastern Conference . . . The Bengals also picked up such stars as Paul Robinson, Arizona running back; Dale Livingston, Western Michigan punting and place-kicking specialist, and Jesse Phillips, versatile backfield man from Michigan State. "We're taking the material, putting it into a pot and filtering it through," says Brown. "We hope what we come up with will be a representative football team."

1968 OUTLOOK

Head Coach Wally Lemm hopes for improved passing in 1968 . . . With Pete Beathard on hand for a full training camp, Lemm and his staff are confident that the fifth-year All-America from Southern California will be a much improved passer in 1968. While Beathard was going through the adjustment period under fire in '67, the Oiler receivers were in much the same situation. There is good potential among a corps of 11 wide receivers who are ticketed for training camp . . . Lemm feels that the offensive line is solid and needs only a little depth, which should come from the '68 rookie crop. The backfield is outstanding, with Hoyle Granger and Woodie Campbell on the front line. Veteran Sid Blanks, second-year man Roy Hopkins and rookie speedster Johnny Brunson will be pushing for starting jobs . . . Strength on the defensive revolves around All-League end Pat Holmes and George Webster and Garland Boyette at linebacker . . . in the secondary, Lemm feels he has the best cornerbacks in the AFL in Miller Farr and W. K. Hicks. Farr led the league in interceptions with 10, returning three for touchdowns. Only one TD pass was thrown in Farr's territory during the season. Nine-year veteran Jim Norton had one of the finest seasons of his career last year, as a free safety . . . There is plenty of youth and speed on defense. These factors played a key role in Houston success last season, and will be a determining factor, along with a blended offense, for an encore in 1968.

HOUSTON-DENVER GAMES IN 1967

Oct. 1, 1967—at Houston — Houston 10, Denver 6

Attendance—21,798

Denver's journey to Houston was a journey of frustration. Despite not allowing a single touchdown from scrimmage, and virtually shutting off Houston's aerial game the Bronco's felt the sting of an interception return turn the tide of battle in favor of the Oilers, 10-6. However, at the same time, Lou Saban's team had problems generating any offense. Denver, like Houston, could not sustain a passing attack. Steve Tensi completed just six of 22 attempts for 49 yards, while having three passes intercepted. Denvers' only points came on 38 and 31 yard field goals in the first and second quarters, wiping out a three-point Houston lead. The Broncos nursed their 6-3 margin through 14 minutes and 49 seconds of the third period, before lightning struck. With a second and ten from his own 20 yard line, Tensi stepped back and fired to Eric Crabtree, who had his defender, Miller Farr, beaten. But, the throw was errant and directly to Farr, who raced untouched into the end zone for the margin of victory. The final period was scoreless with neither team able to move the ball.

Too little, too late was the story of Denver's second encounter with the Houston Oilers, as Wally Lemm's team managed to withstand a heroic fourth quarter scoring spree by the Broncos for a 20-18 win. It was the ninth straight loss for Denver, but the young Broncos went down fighting. Trailing 20-0 shortly into the fourth period, Denver took advantage of a fumble recovery which seemed to breath new life into the Broncos. With 11:45 remaining, Steve Tensi culminated a nine-play drive with a 22-yard touchdown pass to Bo Hickey. A pass for two points was good, and the deficit was 20-8. Three and a half minutes later, Tensi hit Eric Crabtree 17 yards away for another six-pointer. This cut the Oiler margin to only five points. the score narrowed to two points a moment later, when Bob Humphreys booted a 43-yard field goal. However, with six minutes left the Oilers tightened up their belts and used ball control to insure victory. They maintained possession of the ball for the next four minutes, and then used a blitzing defense to erase any Bronco hopes of pulling the game out of the fire in the final seconds of play.

1968 OUTLOOK

1968 looms as a rebuilding year for the Kansas City Chiefs. Coach Hank Stram must restock and realign his team in several key areas, if the Chiefs hope to contend for the Western Division title . . . Missing from the Chiefs '68 roster are seven players. They are Chris Burford, Sherrill Headrick, Fletcher Smith, Al Reynolds and Bobby Hunt, all of whom went to Cincinnati in the expansion draft. Jon Gilliam was forced to retire due to injuries and Fred Williamson was released. Two starters, linebacker E. J. Holub and defensive end Chuck Hurston, will be tried at new positions. Holub will be switched to center and Hurston to linebacker . . . As a result of the departures and player shifts, Stram will be faced with making eight major position changes. Five of the changes will be on defense. Offensively, Stram must make three changes in the line at split end, center and right guard. The most solid part of the Chiefs team is the offensive backfield comprised of quarterback Len Dawson (the AFL's all time passing leader), running back Mike Garrett (third in the league in rushing in '67), fullback Curtis McClinton and flanker Otis Taylor (the league's fourth leading receiver) . . . The Chiefs also have a strong corps of specialists. Placekicker Jan Stenerud was the league's second leading scorer last year with 108 points, pint sized Noland Smith was No. 2 in kickoff returns. The Chiefs had their best draft since 1962. If their young people deliver and the whole squad remains healthy, the Chiefs should be in the thick of the Western Division race in 1968.

KANSAS CITY-DENVER GAMES IN 1967

Oct. 29, 1967—at Kansas City Kansas City 52, Denver 9
Attendance—44,002

A mistake-prone Denver team saw the Kansas City Chiefs capitalize on every opportunity and crush the Broncos 52-9. The Broncos had three passes intercepted, fumbled five times, and had breakdowns in the defensive secondary. Three first half fumbles were turned into KC touchdowns, and a second half interception set up another six-pointer. For all practical purposes, the game was over for Denver halfway thru the second quarter, when the Chiefs had rolled up an insurmountable 35-0. Denver managed to get its only touchdown in the waning moments of the second period on a 52-yard Steve Tensi bomb to Al Denson. Even this score was neutralized less than a minute later when Len Dawson hit his third touchdown pass of the half, a five-yard toss to Gene Thomas. Denver netted only a second half safety, while KC was coasting home with 10 additional points.

It took a record-setting 106-yard kickoff return by little Noland Smith to insure a 38-24 Kansas City win in the season's final game. As in October, the Chiefs started off fast, taking advantage of defensive lapses and a fumble to jump off to a 28-7 halftime lead. It took Hank Stram's men only five plays after the kickoff to hit paydirt, driving 80 yards for the score. A fumbled punt return later in the initial period led to a second touchdown. And, a mental lapse in Denver's secondary increased the Chiefs lead to 21-0 early in the second quarter. Denver finally broke through minutes later, when Steve Tensi hit Eric Crabtree for 76 yards. But once again the Broncos secondary faltered, and Dawson drilled Otis Taylor for a 46-yard six-pointer, and a 28-7 halftime bulge. Denver stormed back in the third quarter, taking new life when Mike Garrett fumbled a punt. Three plays after the recovery, the Broncos had narrowed the score by seven. Minutes later the Broncos took possession of a deflected Kansas City punt on the Chiefs' 19-yard line, but the drive fizzled and Denver had to settle for a field goal. It now looked like the Broncos had the momentum to really make a run for the game, trailing by only ten points. But, Smith stepped into the picture with his 106-yard dash. The margin proved too much to overcome, although Denver lighted up the board once more on Nemiah Wilson's 70-yard interception return of a Dawson pass.

1968 OUTLOOK

Dolphin Head Coach George Wilson thinks that 1968 will see the Florida team continuing to improve . . . "For the first time, we are entering a season with a quarterback not regarded as a question mark," exclaimed Wilson. "Bob Griese had an outstanding rookie year." . . . Jack Clancy, who set a new AFL rookie pass-catching record, snaring 67 receptions, was Griese's prime target. The two could combine to be even better this season. Frank Jackson, John Roderick and Howard Twilly also afford excellent targets . . . The biggest stimulus the Dolphin ground game could receive would be for No. 1 draft choice Larry Csonka, the former All-America from Syracuse, to make it big at fullback . . . Doug Crusan, another first round selection, and an offensive tackle, could blend right into an already youthful and improving line . . . Defensively, Miami can count on aggressive play from linebackers John Bramlett, Wahoo McDaniel and Jerry Hopkins —all veteran performers . . . Tough Ray Jacobs anchors a coming front four that intergrates youth and experience. The Dolphins would like to find some depth in this area . . . Like the front four, the Dolphins are relying on the same kind of combination of youth and veteran talent in the secondary. Dick Westmoreland and Jim Warren, both picked up in the expansion draft three years ago, have given excellent performance. Second-year men Bob Petrella and Bob Neff developed rapidly last season.

MIAMI-DENVER GAME IN 1967

Sept. 17, 1967—at Miami Miami 35, Denver 21

Attendance—29,381

The Miami Dolphins scored in every quarter, to beat the Denver Broncos for the second straight year in the Orange Bowl, 35-21. The game, played in 89 degree heat, saw the Dolphins take a 14-0 halftime lead, then stave off a furious Denver rush in the third quarter and the opening moments of the fourth period. After a scoreless eight minutes of the third stanza, the Broncos finally got on the scoreboard. Wendell Hayes blasted over from a yard away. But, the Dolphins came back just 43 seconds later when quarterback Bob Griese spotted Joe Auer all by himself at midfield to complete a 68-yard scoring play. This made the score 21-7. Denver, aroused by a 59-yard kickoff return by Floyd Little, who set a Bronco record for most yards returned in one game with 185 yards on five attempts, struck back with straight running plays. Fullback Bo Hickey culminated the drive, slashing over from two yards out. Trailing by only seven points entering the final 15 minutes, Denver took advantage of a Miami fumble on the Dolphins 27-yard line to get the equalizer. Once again it was Hickey getting the job done, bulling five yards for the six-pointer. Eric Crabtree set up the score with a brilliant 22-yard reception. However, the Florida team was not to be denied, and it was ex-Bronco Abner Haynes emerging as the man of the hour for Miami. Haynes got Miami back in front with a three-yard scamper and, with under two minutes to play, iced the game, breaking loose on a 65-yard scoring dash.

1968 OUTLOOK

Last year the New York Jets were one game away from a division title. This year, many feel the Jets have the promise to become champions . . . Joe Namath is perhaps the premier passer in the league. Namath passed for more yards than any player in the history of the game (4,007), led AFL quarterbacks in completions (258), attempts (491), and was second in touchdown passes (26) and percentage (52.5) last year . . . In Don Maynard, George Sauer and Pete Lammons, Namath has as good a trio of pass receivers as there is in the league. Last year, they accounted for 191 receptions and 18 touchdowns. Sauer and Maynard finished one-two in the AFL in receptions and yardage . . . With both Emerson Boozer and Matt Snell back in full stride this year—each missed almost half of the 1967 season with injuries—New York's running game could be a perfect compliment for the aerial attack. Coach Weeb Ewbank is looking for improved play in the offensive line . . . Defensively, the Jets look relatively good . . . In the front line, Gerry Philbin and Verlon Biggs give any club a bruising reception from their end positions. John Elliott and Paul Rochester handle the interior area . . . The secondary was solid last year and the linebackers are capable . . . in the draft, the Jets picked up Lee White, a bruising 6-4, 240 pound fullback as their No. 1 selection.

NEW YORK-DENVER GAMES IN 1967

Sept. 24, 1967—at Denver — New York 38, Denver 24

Attendance—35,565

Joe Namath was magnificent as he guided his New York Jets from a 24-7 second quarter deficit to a 38-24 win. Namath completed 22 passes for 399 yards and two touchdowns. The Broncos, who looked like they would run the Jets right off the field, stormed to 24 points in the first 21 minutes of play. Denver used touchdown passes from Steve Tensi of 49 yards to Eric Crabtree and 18 yards to Al Denson, plus a four-yard scoring jaunt by Bo Hickey and a 29-yard Roger Leclerc field goal, to pile up its big lead. However, the New York defense, stimulated by Namath, stiffened to blank Denver in the second half. Meanwhile, slinging Joe was busy beating the clock in the second quarter to draw the Jets to within three points of the Broncos, 24-21, as the gun ended the half. In the final 30 minutes of play, it was all New York.

Dec. 3, 1967—at New York — Denver 33, New York 24

Attendance—61,615

For Joe Namath and the New York Jets, the second quarter was a nightmare. For the Denver Broncos, it was a record scoring 15 minutes that netted 26 points and paved the way to a 33-24 upset Not only was the game sweet revenge of the 38-24 win by the Jets earlier in the season in Denver, but it was also the first win for a Denver team in New York since 1962. Namath saw a tenacious Bronco secondary pick off four of his pitches in the second period. All led to Denver points. Sandwiched into the 19 points Denver chalked up at the expense of Namath was a brilliant 72-yard punt return by Floyd Little. After Denver had increased its lead to 33-3, on a five-yard scoring run by Wendell Hayes early in the third stanza, Namath valiantly tried to rally his forces. He threw the pigskkin 33 times in the remaining 25 minutes left in the game, accounting for three touchdowns. In all, Namath tossed the ball a career high of 60 times . . . but some of the completions were to the wrong people.

1968 OUTLOOK

It has been said that the only thing tougher than winning a championship is to defend it. In 1968, the Oakland Raiders intend to test the validity of the statement . . . The same Raider offensive and defensive units that topped the AFL in a total of 15 statistical categories in 1967 are intact for the coming season. And, the usual intense training camp competition will take place this summer as new faces fight to make the squad . . . Once again the man leading the offense will be Daryle Lamonica, the league's "Most Valuable Player" last year. Daryle realized his potential in his first season as a starter, after being a back-up man to Jack Kemp at Buffalo . . . Clem Daniels, who fractured his ankle late last season, but is now healthy, and pile-driving Hewritt Dixon, give the Raiders excellent running power . . . Wide receivers Fred Biletnikoff and Bill Miller did an adequate job, but should be pushed by Oakland's No. 1 draft choice, Eldridge Dickey. A great quarterback in college, Dickey, could become an outstanding receiver . . . Up front, Oakland, paced by eight-time All-League center Jim Otto, is solid . . . Defensively the Raiders were tops in nine statistical departments. Ben Davidson, Ike Lassiter, Dan Birdwell and Bill Keating make up a front four equal to any . . . The linebacking and secondary feature veteran talent. Willie Brown, Kent McCloughan and Roger Bird pace the deep backs, while Gus Otto, Dan Connors and Bill Laskey spearhead the linebacking. Bill Budness and John Williamson give Oakland linebacking depth . . . In all, the outlook for 1968 is good. But, every opponent will be pointing for the Raiders . . . The championship flag is flying at Oakland after a long wait and the Raiders hope it will stay there.

OAKLAND-DENVER GAMES IN 1967

Sept. 10, 1967—at Oakland Oakland 51, Denver 0

Attendance—25,423

The Oakland Raiders, who only two weeks earlier dropped a 21-17 pre-season verdict to Denver, played the part of a rude host at their home opener, dumping Coach Lou Saban's young charges, 51-0. The Raiders dominated almost every phase of the game. So effective was the Oakland defense, Denver was forced to punt a record high of 12 times, was limited to a minus 53 yards passing, and held to minus five yards total offense. At the same time, Oakland racked up 388 yards. Paced by the bull-like rushes of Clem Daniels and Hewritt Dixon, the Raiders churned out 208 yards rushing and four touchdowns. Quarterbacks Daryle Lamonica and George Blanda accounted for the remaining yardage with a sharp aerial game that accounted for two more scores. From the second period on, the Bay team scored as it liked, reeling off 13 points in the second period, 14 more in the third stanza and 17 fourth quarter points.

Nov. 5, 1967—at Denver Oakland 21, Denver 17

Attendance—29,043

The Raiders' superior fire power and staunch defense won out over a spirited effort by Lou Saban's young club, 21-17. The story of this game was Oakland's ability to control the ball (75-57 in plays) and the blitzing defense that dumped Denver quarterbacks 11 times for 95 yards. The Raiders jumped off to an 18-0 lead in the first two periods. But, Steve Tensi found Al Denson streaking down the sidelines on a third and nine situation from Denver's own 32-yard line late in the second quarter, and the Raiders netted only an 18-7 lead at halftime. Oakland was to get only three more points on a 43-yard field goal by George Blanda with time running out in the third period. In the fourth quarter, the Broncos used a fumble recovery and short punt to chalk up a touchdown and field goal, leaving the game very much in doubt with eight minutes left to play. But, Daryle Lamonica rallied his forces for one long, time-consuming drive that preserved the triumph.

1968 OUTLOOK

"A Championship Date in '68" is the optimistic election-year slogan of the San Diego Chargers . . . To achieve this goal, Coach Sid Gillman is plotting a campaign which calls for the Chargers to pick up this September where they left off last December . . . Going into December, San Diego had a record of 8-1-1 with a team which had been neglected in the pre-season polls and drubbed in the primaries. But a combination of injuries and defensive breakdowns shattered "the impossible dream" and resulted in a final record of 8-5-1 . . . The Chargers can pass—John Hadl to super-star Lance Alworth, Willie Frazier and Gary Garrison; can run—Dick Post and Brad Hubbert (No. 4 and No. 5 among AFL runners as rookies last season) plus Gene Foster, Paul Lowe and Jim Allison; can block—San Diego topped both leagues by allowing the enemy only 11 tackles of Charger passes for only 107 yards in losses . . . Overhauled in 1967, the San Diego defense should be a much stronger and cohesive unit this season. The Chargers used their two No. 1 draft choices to bolster the defense—Russ Washington, a 6-6, 290-pound lineman from Missouri, and Jim Hill, a 6-2, 192-pound cornerback from Texas A&I . . . Jeff Staggs, rookie linebacking sensation last year, should bid for all-league honors, and spectacular Speedy Duncan already merits that distinction in the defensive backfield . . . "We have spent the off-season studying ways and means to strengthen the defense," said Gillman. "We think we have."

SAN DIEGO-DENVER GAMES IN 1967

Oct. 22, 1967—at Denver San Diego 38, Denver 21

Attendance—34,465

The Denver Broncos got on the scoreboard first, but the San Diego Chargers did it more often, cruising to a 38-21 triumph. The Chargers were guided by the superb quarterbacking of John Hadl, who accounted for 345 yards and three touchdowns on 15 completions, and the slashing runs of rookie Dick Post, who chalked up two scores and 70 rushing yards. Nemiah Wilson got Denver off and running, when he picked a Hadl pass out of the air five plays into the game and netted a 40-yard TD. Post got the equalizer seven minutes later on an eight-yard run, and put his club in the lead for good in the second period with a two-yard dash. From there, Hadl took over in the final 30 minutes, drilling home three touchdown heaves. Denver tried to keep pace in the action-packed second half, at one time, even drawing to a 14-14 count. But, Hadl kept passing and his club was never headed.

Attendance—34,586

Although playing their best over-all game of the season, the Broncos found lady luck frowning on them. The San Diego Chargers turned two breaks into fourth quarter touchdowns, and a 24-20 victory. With his team trailing 20-10 in the opening moments of the final period, San Diego's Speedy Duncan turned what looked to be a sure Bronco field goal, and a bigger lead, into a seven-point Charger play. Denver, putting on pressure, as it had been doing all day, had driven deep into San Diego territory. The drive stalled and Bob Humphreys was called upon for the three-point play from the 28-yard line. Duncan stormed through to block the kick and, in full stride, gathered the ball in and streaked down the sidelines for the score that turned the tide of battle. A fumble deep in their own territory with just under four minutes left, then broke the Broncos back. Three plays later, the Chargers went in front to stay on Dick Post's eight-yard burst off the right side. Until the weird turn of events, Denver had dominated the game. The Broncos scored in each of the first three quarters, putting together 65 and 63 yard drives in the first two stanzas to gain a 14-0 margin, before the Chargers could muster a score. Denver put on another long drive, only to have it stall inside the 10, and settled for a field goal and a 17-7 halftime lead.
