THE ORGANIZATION

The pledge first made in 1963 to build the Oakland Raiders into the finest organization in sports today finds the Raiders at the very top as World Champions of Professional Football and now in the third decade as Professional Football's Winningest Team.

Much has been accomplished in the 18 years since that pledge was made, including two World Championships, an American Football League Championship, two American Football Conference Championships, nine Division Championships, 11 years in the Post-Season Playoffs and 17 winning seasons, including an on-going all-time professional football record of 16 consecutive winning seasons.

The Raiders remarkable record of 179-68-11 (.725) since 1963 is by far the best in pro football. Since the first of nine Division Championships was won in 1967 the Raiders have maintained an even more incredible domination of pro football in terms of consistent victory. In these last 202 games the Raiders have won 148, tied 7 and lost only 47 for an unbelievable winning percentage of .759.

COACH OF THE YEAR

Another tribute to the Raider organization is that three of the head coaches who led the Silver and Black in the last 18 years have been named "Coach of the Year."

Al Davis	1963
John Rauch	1967
John Madden	1969

The monumental rise of the Raiders was achieved by meticulous design and an unwavering total commitment to excellence. These challenging years have been marked by the loyalty, dedication and determination of all who work for the Raider organization — Professional Football's Winningest Team.

AL DAVIS
Managing General Partner

A total commitment to excellence has marked the World Champion Oakland Raiders' monumental rise during the last 18 years to the very top of the pro sports world. During this period the Oakland Raiders earned the best record in professional football.

In these memorable 18 years the Raiders have had 17 winning seasons, the last 16 in a row. The Silver and Black have won nine Western Division Championships (1967-68-69-70-72-73-74-75-76), the AFL Championship, the AFC Championship and two World Championships of Professional Football.

The Raiders winning percentage during this period stands at an incredible .725, with 179 wins, 11 ties and only 68 losses.

The astute leader who charted, then guided the progress of the Raiders organization during these 18 challenging years is owner-managing general partner Al Davis.

Davis' 21-year professional football story, from assistant coach of the Chargers, to head coach and general manager of the Raiders, to Commissioner of the American Football League and finally to principal owner and chief executive officer of pro football's winningest team — the Oakland Raiders, — is one of the most remarkable chronicles in sports history.

In April, 1966, the then 36-year-old Davis, head coach and general manager of the Raiders, became Commissioner of the American Football League. It was a post he accepted with some reluctance, for first and foremost he was a football coach, and knew that assuming the commissionership would in all probability mean an end to his coaching career. But the AFL owners, needing drive and direction in their battle with the rival National Football League, prevailed on Davis to accept the position. He was described by AFL president Ralph Wilson as "a coaching genius and astute administrator". AFL owners pointed to his brilliant coaching and administrative record and the high esteem in which he was held by players, the news media and coaches across the country.

Eight weeks later, when pro football's two major leagues put an end to their six year war, Davis was acclaimed nationally as the driving force who brought the leagues to the conference table. When the historic merger was completed, Davis resigned his post as AFL Commissioner.

In May, 1969 he was once again a prime force in the dramatic realignment of professional football when three NFL teams, Baltimore, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, moved over to the AFL as two 13-team conferences were formed for 1970.

As a member of the NFL Owners Executive Committee Davis continues to play a key role in the growth and direction of all phases of professional football.

Al Davis first came to Oakland in January, 1963, dedicated to rescuing the faltering Oakland franchise and to building the Raiders into pro sports' finest organization. Davis was the youngest (33) in pro football holding down the demanding dual positions of head coach and general manager.

But Davis already possessed 14 years' coaching experience. He had been tabbed a "young coaching genius" by Sports Illustrated and "the most inventive mind in the country" by Scholastic Coach Magazine. The Raiders, who had won only three of their last 28 games, were failing badly on the field and in the front office and survival of both the franchise and the young league were at stake.

But 1963 saw the start of one of the great rehabilitation jobs in football history. Introducing a meticulously designed, explosive offense and entirely new concepts in team defense, the "picked to finish dead last" Raiders thundered to a 10-4 record and missed the Division Championship by just one game.

Davis was named Coach of the Year by Associated Press, United Press International, Sports Illustrated, Sporting News and his fellow coaches. He was honored as Oakland's Young Man of the Year, the first in athletics to win this prestigious Chamber of Commerce award. Aside from his deep love of the Raiders, the community and the great Raider fans, he remains vitally interested in Bay Area baseball and basketball teams.

Al Davis was born July 4, 1929 in Brockton, Massachusetts, but was raised in Brooklyn, New York. He attended Wittenberg College and Syracuse University, earning a degree in English. In college he played football, basketball and baseball.

In 1950, he joined the staff at Adelphi College in New York as line coach. His technical football articles published in coaching magazines gained him wide attention and acclaim. He then went into the Army, being assigned as head football coach at Ft. Belvoir, Virginia. There he molded a national power service team and capped one year by defeating the University of Maryland, national collegiate champions, in a squad game.

Davis next served on the staff of the NFL's Baltimore Colts in 1954 (at age 24), concentrating on player personnel work. During 1955-56, he was line coach and chief recruiter at The Citadel. He then spent three years at the University of Southern California as line coach for head coach Don Clark. In 1959, Davis was in charge of the defense for the Trojans.

In 1960, head coach Sid Gillman hired Davis as offensive end coach of the newly-formed Los Angeles Chargers. There Davis developed the finest passing attack in the league and kept the Chargers aggressively in the forefront among all pro clubs in the fight for collegiate talent. From the Chargers, in San Diego in 1963, it was on to meet the challenge at Oakland.

Ed McGAH
General Partner
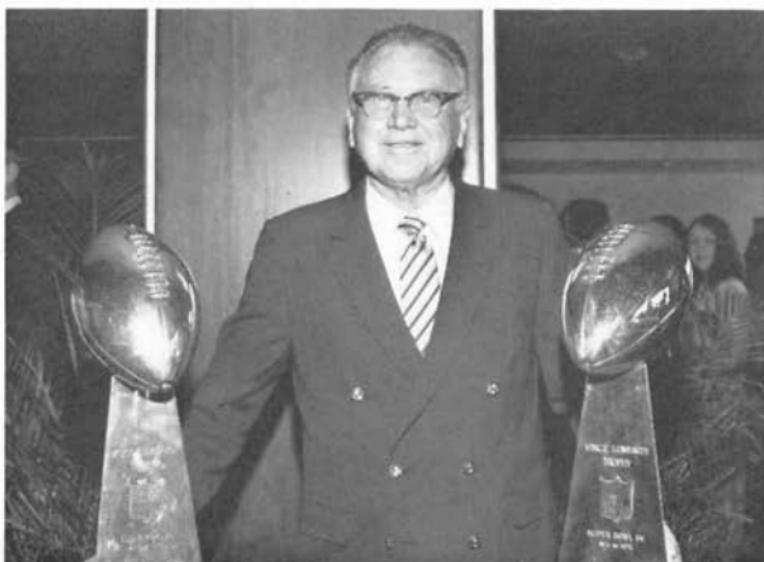

Raider General Partner Ed McGah is a highly successful businessman with a deep interest in sports. It is a fitting tribute to his wisdom, judgment and courage that he emerged as the "strong man" from the group first awarded the American Football League franchise in 1960.

Since then, the ownership of the Raiders has evolved into a limited partnership, with Managing General Partner Al Davis and McGah heading the group.

As the only remaining member of the original partnership, McGah utilized his vast business expertise and financial soundness to establish the Raiders. Even more importantly his unyielding faith in the ultimate success of the organization added stability and credibility to the franchise.

McGah's style remains a thoughtful, low-key approach that places organizational goals over personal recognition. Yet he has played a vital role in the memorable rise of the Raiders to their position atop the world of sports. He is equally respected for his contributions to the community, as well as his dedication to the growth of the Raiders.

McGah has enjoyed a long, distinguished career in real estate, construction and land development. He built and guided a major construction company that earned him an outstanding reputation in his field.

McGah is rated as one of the outstanding semi-pro baseball players ever to perform in the Oakland area. McGah's son, Ed Jr., followed in his father's illustrious footsteps and played in the Boston Red Sox organization. Ed Jr. eventually left baseball to return to the Bay Area to work in home building and real estate development with his father.

TOM FLORES
Head Coach

In only his second year as head coach of the Raiders, Tom Flores demonstrated the organization's unwavering commitment to excellence as he directed the Silver and Black to the World Championship of professional football, defeating the Philadelphia Eagles 27-10 in Super Bowl XV on January 25, 1981.

Under Flores' guidance, the Raiders finished the 1980 season with an impressive 11-5 record, tied for the AFC Western Division lead, then entered the playoffs as a wild card representative.

Defeating powerful Houston and Cleveland in the first rounds of playoff competition, San Diego for the American Football Conference title and finally Philadelphia to claim the World Championship, the Raiders became the first wild card team in NFL history to win the Super Bowl.

"We went the long, hard route to get to the top," noted Flores, a 15-year contributor to the success of the Raider organization.

Flores, now 44 years old, had been on the Oakland staff as receivers coach since 1972 before being named head coach on February 8, 1979. He had earlier quarterbacked the Raiders during the formative years for pro football's winningest team, 1960-1966.

The Fresno, California native attended Sanger (Calif.) High School where he starred in football, basketball and baseball. He then attended Fresno City College, quarterbacked the 1954 and 1955 teams, captained the 1955 squad and was Honorable Mention Junior College All-America.

Flores moved on to the College of the Pacific, where he starred in football for two seasons and lettered in baseball and basketball while earning his bachelor of arts in education. In 1956 he was the sixth ranked college passer in the nation and finished fourth nationally in total offense. In 1956 he ranked seventh nationally in the NCAA statistics, received Honorable Mention on All-America and All-Pacific Coast teams and was named to the West squad for the East-West Shrine Game.

In 1958 Flores signed a professional football contract with the Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League but was unable to play due to recurrence of a shoulder ailment which developed during his senior season in college. He was again hampered by the shoulder problem when trying out with the Washington Redskins in 1959. Shortly thereafter he underwent shoulder surgery, gave up active football participation and started a teaching career.

In 1960 Flores was contacted and signed by the Oakland Raiders of the newly-formed American Football League and began a program to rehabilitate his shoulder. In that initial season of play in the AFL, Flores beat out a dozen quarterback candidates to start for the Raiders and led the entire league in pass completion percentage (54%) and fewest interceptions (12). The following season, 1961, Flores finished second in the league in passing behind only George Blanda of the AFL Champion Houston Oilers.

Prior to the 1962 season Flores was stricken with a non-infectious lung ailment which forced him out for the season and again threatened an end to his football playing career. But with a year of complete rest he was declared medically sound and reported to new Raider head coach and general manager Al Davis for the 1963 training camp.

Flores was brought along slowly in 1963 before being returned to the helm as the Raiders finished strong with a 10-4 record, only one win short of the championship, and achieved the very first of the 16 winning seasons the organization has recorded since 1963. In the final game of that 1963 season Flores threw six touchdown passes against the Houston Oilers, a club record that still stands, en route to a ranking as the No. 2 passer in the AFL. In the next three season Flores added 45 touchdown passes in league play to finish his Raider playing career with 810 completions for 11,635 yards and 92 touchdowns, the third best career total in Oakland Raider history.

In 1967 Flores was traded to the Buffalo Bills where he played in 1967 and 1968. He spent 1969 and 1970 with the Kansas City Chiefs, earning the first of his World Championship rings as the AFL Chiefs downed the NFL Minnesota Vikings 23-7 in Super Bowl IV.

Flores began his pro coaching career in 1971 as quarterback coach for the Buffalo Bills. In February of 1972 Flores returned to the Raider organization, helping to continue a passing game that was the most feared in professional football. During his seven seasons on the staff the Raiders were in the playoffs six times, won five Western Division Championships, the AFC Championship and the World Championship of Professional Football.

Flores and his wife Barbara reside in Lafayette, CA., with their 16-year-old daughter Kim. The Flores have twin 19-year-old sons, Mark, who attends the University of California at Irvine, and Scott, who attends U.C. Santa Barbara.

Dan Conners, now in his 12th year with the Raiders, rejoined the organization in 1980 after serving as a scout for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers from 1975-78 and the San Francisco 49ers in 1979. Conners, 38, was an outstanding middle linebacker for the Silver and Black for 11 seasons, 1964-74. He was named to the AFL All-Star game three times, 1967-69, and intercepted 15 passes, an all-time record for Raider linebackers. He also returned three interceptions and two fumbles for touchdowns during his career. The Clearfield, Pennsylvania native attended the University of Miami and obtained a B.A. in education, in addition to being a three-year starter as a defensive tackle. He was named the outstanding defensive player in the Senior Bowl, and participated in the North-South, All-America and College All-Star games. Conners, his wife Marilyn, son and daughter reside in Pleasanton.

Executive Assistant

Al LoCasale joined the Raiders in 1969 after serving as Director of Player Personnel of the San Diego Chargers and Cincinnati Bengals. LoCasale is an original AFL executive, being with the Los Angeles Chargers when the league started in 1960. After seven years with the Chargers, including five division championships and the AFL Championship in 1963, LoCasale was the first employee hired by Paul Brown when the Cincinnati Bengals were formed in 1967. LoCasale built the player personnel system that provided Cincinnati with the talent nucleus for becoming the only expansion team to win a division championship in just its third season of play.

Now in his 29th year in football, LoCasale was administrative assistant at the University of Southern California in 1959 and coached at the University of Pennsylvania, his alma mater, Bainbridge Naval Training Center while in the Navy and in high school. He has also done extensive radio and television work.

LoCasale, 48, a founder of the NFL Working Executives Group, is on the Board of Directors of NFL Properties and NFL Films, and serves on the NFL Management Council. He, his wife Jananne and son Nicholas make their home in Alameda.

JOHN MADDEN
Special Projects

Former head coach John Madden now serves the organization in special projects. He is also currently the top analyst for CBS-TV, assigned to their number one NFL telecast each week. Madden, 50, is in his 15th year with the Raiders, having been linebacker coach in 1967-68 before being named head coach in 1969. During Madden's 10 years as field boss the Raiders won 103 games, tied 7 and lost only 32; won seven division championships, an AFC championship and the World Championship. Madden is only the second NFL coach in the modern era to win 100 games in just 10 seasons.

Madden was defensive coordinator at San Diego State from 1964 to 1966. He began coaching at Hancock Junior College in Santa Maria, California, as an assistant for two seasons, then served as head coach in 1962-63.

Madden earned his bachelor and masters degrees at California Polytechnic College at San Luis Obispo where he was an All-Conference tackle in 1957 and 1958. He was also a catcher in baseball. Madden was drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles in 1958 but a knee injury in his rookie year ended his playing career.

Born in Austin, Minnesota, Madden was raised in Daly City, California. He, his wife Virginia and their two sons now reside in Pleasanton.

KEN LaRUE
Business Manager

Ken LaRue is now in his 11th year with the Raiders, having rejoined the organization in 1978. LaRue, who was business manager for the Silver and Black from 1969 thru spring of 1975, returned after serving as assistant general manager for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. He first came to the Raiders in 1969 from Ball State University, his alma mater, where he was director of conferences and special events. LaRue was also a personnel scout for the San Diego Chargers. He coached at Kansas State University for seven years after four years of high school coaching in Indiana. A native of Goshen, Indiana, LaRue was an All-State end in high school and also won honors as a receiver at Ball State. He spent 1952-56 in the Air Force. He now makes his home in San Leandro.

STEVE BALLARD
Comptroller

Steve Ballard is presently in his 15th season with the Oakland Raider organization. Now responsible for the accounting department and numerous related administrative areas, Ballard first joined the Raiders as a part-time public relations department aide while only 15 years old. He then served in a varied training program including extensive work in Raider ticket office operations and insurance matters while earning his bachelors degree in business administration at California State University at Hayward. Ballard, 29, assumed his current position in 1974. Born in Norfolk, Virginia, he now makes his home in San Leandro.

GEORGE GLACE
Ticket Manager

George Glace is another veteran Raider staff member, now starting his 19th year as ticket manager. He came to the Raiders in 1963 after serving three years with the Chargers. Glace, a native of Jamestown, New York, worked in the sports ticket field in Southern California at the Pan Pacific Auditorium, the Los Angeles Coliseum and Sports Arena and other athletic complexes. He gained administrative experience as manager of a bowling facility for eight years. Glace resides in San Leandro.

BILL GLAZIER

The Raiders outstanding medical staff is comprised of Team Physician Dr. Donald Fink of Castro Valley and Orthopedic Specialist Dr. Robert Rosenfeld of Beverly Hills.

Dr. Fink, who joined the Raiders five years ago, graduated from the University of Michigan and interned at the University of Nebraska Medical Center. He served two years as a corpsman in the U.S. Army.

Dr. Rosenfeld, one of the nation's outstanding orthopedic surgeons, joined the Raiders in 1969. He earned his degree from the University of Iowa in 1938 and has practiced in Beverly Hills for more than 40 years. He is also a consulting orthopedist for the USC Trojans and Chief of Orthopedics at Cedar/Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles, one of America's top medical facilities.

Additional national rights to Raider Radio are held by Bob Speck Productions of Los Angeles who have developed a network bringing the World Champion Raiders to major markets throughout the land.

A CHAMPIONSHIP RING

After Super Bowl XV Raider Managing General Partner Al Davis, Head Coach Tom Flores and Executive Assistant Al LoCasale met to oversee creation of the Raiders World Championship ring. Their design guidelines were explicit - white gold, a raised football-shaped crest of diamonds on a black surface, the same "massive elegance" that had made the Raider 1976 World Championship ring one of the most memorable pieces of championship team jewelry ever awarded.

"Following the Super Bowl I stated that our team was magnificent," said Davis. "I would only hope that our players, coaches, staff and partners would be able to echo a similar sentiment about their World Championship rings that symbolize the finest hour in the history of the Oakland Raiders."

Using the Raider guidelines several top companies submitted drawings and sample designs. After a thorough evaluation the Raiders authorized Lenox Awards, Inc. of St. Charles, Illinois - makers of their Super Bowl XI World Championship rings - to produce the new ring. Lenox Awards President Tom Brasher's creative concept incorporated all the elements the committee sought and maintained continuity with their striking Super Bowl XI design.

One shank of the 30 penny-weight ring commemorates winning the Super Bowl and the AFC Championship. The other shank recognizes the individual and carries his name and number, his area (offense, defense, staff, etc.), his position and the Raider emblem.

There are 33 five-point diamonds on the ring face. The 14 in the border and four corners represent the years during which the Raiders have dominated professional football since their participation in Super Bowl II. The four stones in the corners also symbolize the Raiders remarkable achievement in becoming the first team in NFL history to win four post-season games enroute to becoming the World Champions of Professional Football.

The 19 small stones in the raised crest represent the 19 games played by the Oakland Raiders on the challenging road to Super Bowl XV. With the two center diamonds, the 21 stones on the crest recognize the memorable 21-year history of the Raider organization. The two three-quarter carat center stones symbolize the two World Championships won by the Raiders in the last five years.

1981 OUTLOOK

THE THIRD DECADE CONTINUES

In 1980 the Raiders opened their third decade by adding to an already unrivaled record of excellence. Highlighting this 21st season of competition for the Silver and Black was the second World Championship in the last five years, won over a long 20-game campaign that saw the Raiders go 13-2 during the final 15 games.

Their 11-5 mark in 1980 league play gave the Raiders their 16th consecutive winning season, a record never equalled in the 61-year history of the National Football League.

The 1981 campaign will be a challenging one for the World Champions, with only four of the 16 league games against teams that had losing records last season. As usual, the Raiders open on the road, with three of their first four league contests played away from home. Four of the first six games are against AFC Western Division opponents magnifying the need for a strong start in this toughest division in pro football.

Three Monday night national telecasts involve the Silver and Black — on the road against the reigning NFC Central Division Champion Minnesota Vikings (September 14), at home against the powerful Pittsburgh Steelers (December 7) and on the road again for the season's final Monday night clash, in San Diego (December 21). In the 11 years of Monday night football the Raiders have earned an incredible 16-1-1 record, by far the best in the NFL.

As part of 28,000 miles of team travel in the '81 league season, the Raiders are scheduled for three other long trips — besides the one to Minnesota — to tangle with the Detroit Lions, Houston Oilers and Miami Dolphins. Three of the Raider home games will be played indoors — at the Houston Astrodome, the Seattle Kingdome and the Pontiac Silverdome (home of the Detroit Lions).

The Raiders, who have compiled a 27-7-1 record against NFC opponents since merged play began in 1970, play four games this season against rugged NFC Central Division Competition. At home the Silver and Black will host the Chicago Bears with NFC top rusher Walter Payton and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to go with the road games against the Lions and Vikings.

Though known as a veteran team the Raiders list more than two dozen players who go into the 1981 season with four or less years of prior pro football experience — including nine who were starters in Super Bowl XV. With returnees from the injured list, free agent signings and the college draft the Raider training camp in '81 should again be a highly competitive one.

But the entire Raider organization stands ready to meet the continuing challenge of the Eighties in a drive for the championship playoffs and a 17th consecutive winning season, proudly aware that through three decades no team has won as often or as dramatically as the Oakland Raiders.

OFFENSE

With re-emphasis on the deep passing capability plus a quick strike threat on the ground the Raiders topped the 40 point mark in one game, exceeded 30 points in four other games and finished third in the Conference in scoring with 364 points in league play. The Raiders added 16 more games to their extraordinary consecutive games scoring string, running the total to 214. In winning the World Championship in Super Bowl XV the Raiders scored 27 points against a powerful Philadelphia defense that had yielded an average of only 13.9 points a game in 1980.

The Raiders 1980 rushing average of 4.0 yards per carry was topped by only one team in the Conference while only one team in the entire league topped the Raiders 14.0 yards per pass completion average. Both the longest run-from-scrimmage in the league in 1980 (89 yards by Kenny King) and the longest pass completion in the AFC (86 yards, Jim Plunkett to Cliff Branch) were recorded by wearers of Silver and Black.

Head Coach Tom Flores and his outstanding offensive staff will again stress getting the ball downfield thru design, technique and personnel in ways to best utilize full field width and depth, while still developing ball control capacity for situations that require a possession approach.

QUARTERBACK

Three former first round draft choices make up the Raiders high-quality quarterback corps. Ten year veteran Jim Plunkett, Most Valuable Player in Superbowl XV and NFL-Comeback-Player-of-the-Year in 1980, led Oakland to a 13-2 record after taking over the starting role from injured Dan Pastorini in the sixth game of the 1980 season. Plunkett passed for 2,299 yards and threw 18 touchdown passes, averaging almost 14 yards per completion. The former Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford also averaged five yards per carry rushing the ball. In postseason play Plunkett added 889 yards to his passing total, threw for seven touchdowns, and played nearly errorless ball, being intercepted only three times in 92 attempts.

Dan Pastorini, another ten-year veteran, who led the Oilers to two consecutive AFC Championship Game appearances, came to the Raiders in a trade with Houston prior to the 1980 season. Before suffering a broken leg in the fifth league game he had passed for 932 yards and five touchdowns, averaging just over 14 yards per completion. In his very first start for Oakland, Pastorini became only the fifth Raider quarterback to throw for over 300 yards in one game, passing for 317 yards against Kansas City.

Tall, talented rookie Marc Wilson saw very limited service in 1980 preseason and league play but clearly demonstrated the poise, ability and leadership that made him the organization's first pick in the 1980 draft. Wilson, the nation's top passer while leading Brigham Young University to an undefeated season in 1979, completed three of five passes in his two short league game appearances.

Perennial All-Pro punter Ray Guy also practiced at quarterback after Pastorini was lost and Coach Flores has indicated that Guy will again get practice time under center this season to provide emergency depth.

RUNNING BACKS

For the fifth consecutive season fullback Mark van Eeghen topped Raider ball carriers, gaining 838 yards to finish fourth among AFC rushers. Van Eeghen is now the leading rusher in Oakland Raider history, having pounded out 5,757 yards in his seven seasons in Silver and Black. The former Colgate University star added 29 pass receptions to raise his career total to 155, ninth among all-time Raider receivers. Van Eeghen ranks eighth among all-time Raider scorers with 222 points on 37 touchdowns and has seen action in 104 consecutive league games.

In a draft-day trade a year ago the Raiders acquired second year pro Kenny King from the Houston Oilers. In just his first season with Oakland, King set a club record with an 89-yard scoring burst against the Chargers, rushed for 761 yards in league play, averaged 4.4 yards per carry, set a Super Bowl record with an 80-yard pass reception and was chosen to the AFC Pro Bowl squad. The speedster from the University of Oklahoma developed into a capable receiver and a solid blocker as well as a big play running threat.

Halfback Arthur Whittington provided additional speed both as a runner and receiver. The third year pro from SMU gained 299 yards rushing and 205 more on 19 receptions in league play, then averaged 17 yards per catch in the post-season drive to the World Championship.

Second year fullback Derrick Jensen added blocking power, short yardage strength and averaged over 12 yards per reception, as well as excelling on special teams.

Late draft choices Frank Hawkins, a tenth round choice from University of Nevada, Reno, where he gained over 5,000 yards in four varsity seasons, and eleventh round pick Chester Willis, a speedster from Auburn University, and last year's eighth round choice, Kenny Hill from Yale, who spent the 1980 season on reserve, will also compete for spots in the offensive backfield.

WIDE RECEIVERS

A pair of proven veterans — ninth year pro Cliff Branch and tenth year pro Bob Chandler — led the Raiders potent passing attack in 1980, combining for 17 touchdowns in league play.

Branch caught 44 passes for 858 yards and seven scores and his averge of 19.5 yards per catch was tops among all NFL receivers with 40 or more receptions. The former world class sprinter also tied an NFL record with two touchdowns in the Raiders Super Bowl XV triumph. Branch is now the number two receiver in Raider history with 364 catches for 6,378 yards and 57 touchdowns.

Chandler, acquired in a trade with Buffalo prior to the '80 season, led the Raiders in receptions with 49, in touchdowns with 10 and added great outside blocking as well. His ten touchdowns were surpassed by only one receiver in the entire league. Chandler has now caught 344 passes in his pro career for 4,785 yards and 44 TDs.

Seven year pro Morris Bradshaw and young veterans Rich Martini and Ira Matthews provided depth at wide receiver and played prominent special teams roles. Bradshaw averaged 22 yards on his six receptions, Matthews caught three for 33 yards and Martini one for 36 yards. Malcolm Barnwell, a seventh round pick a year ago out of Virginia Union who was on reserve in '80, will also battle for an outside receiver berth.

TIGHT END

Great depth allowed the Raiders to trade outstanding tight end Dave Casper early in the 1980 season to Houston for three high draft choices. Eleven-season star Raymond Chester and talented, versatile, youngsters Derrick Ramsey and Todd Christensen maintained the high-level receiving and blocking at tight end that has long been a Raider tradition.

Chester, like Casper a Pro Bowl choice in 1979, became the number five receiver in Raider history during the '80 campaign. His 28 receptions gave him a career total of 203 catches for 2.798 yards and 36 touchdowns for the Silver and Black. Chester led Raider receivers in the postseason with 12 receptions for 202 yards.

Ramsey, now entering his fourth pro season, saw heavy action in 1980 at tight end and on special teams. A converted college quarterback, the former Kentucky star averaged over 23 yards a catch, including a career-high 58-yarder against Seattle.

Christensen, captain of Radier special teams in 1980, was used primarily in short yardage and goal line situations. He scored a crucial touchdown in the "Wild Card" playoff win over Houston on his only reception of the season. The one-time running back from BYU has developed into an excellent blocker.

Terry Nelson — twelfth round draft choice this year — is a big, raw-boned prospect out of the University of Delaware.

OFFENSIVE LINE

A physically impressive, powerful, deep offensive line remains a trademark of the World Champion Oakland Raiders. The veteran starters, young reserves and newcomers acquired in the draft appear primed to keep this unit one of the best in the game.

Gene Upshaw, a six-time Pro Bowl selection, has started 202 consecutive league games at left guard, the longest such streak of any player active in the entire NFL today, and still ranks among the best. Left tackle Art Shell has missed only five league games out of 186 played during his tenure with the Silver and Black and made the Pro Bowl squad for the eighth time in 1980. Center Dave Dalby had another solid season in '80 and raised his consecutive games played total to 132.

The right side of the Raider line — guard Mickey Marvin and tackle Henry Lawrence — has achieved top status with outstanding play in 1980. Marvin, the only second-year pro to become a regular in the Raider offensive front in over a decade when he broke into the lineup in 1978, came back completely from an injury that forced him out for most of the 1979 campaign to be a powerful force on runs or passes.

Henry Lawrence has played in 70 consecutive games for Oakland, and has been a starter in the last 53. He has developed into one of the stellar right tackles in the game today.

Versatile six-year veteran Steve Sylvester is the top back-up at center and adds experienced depth at both guard and tackle spots. He also is a capable long snapper as well. Massive third year pros Lindsey Mason and Bruce Davis have developed into promising performers at either tackle or guard.

Curt Marsh of the University of Washington, second of the Raiders two first round draft choices in 1981, and ninth round choice Curt Mohl from UCLA, plus Phil Livingston, a rookie from Maryland who spent the 1980 season on reserve, are additional high quality challengers in the offensive line.

DEFENSE

Coach Tom Flores and his outstanding defense staff will again deploy the Raiders in a wide variety of fronts, stunts and coverages involving emphasis on both the 3-4 and 4-3 alignments and a heavy use of "situation substitution".

Aggressiveness and alertness were keys to Raider defensive success in 1980 when the Silver and Black led the league in pass interceptions (35 in league play plus 10 more in the post-season), led the league in lowest average rushing gain allowed (only 3.4 yards per carry), finished second in the league in yardage gained on interception returns (501) and third in the league in quarterback sacks (54). Only one team in the league scored more touchdowns on defense than the opportunistic Raiders who converted interceptions or fumble recoveries into touchdowns four times during the regular season.

To earn their way into Super Bowl XV the Raider defense had to slow the top three offensive yardage producers in the American Conference — San Diego, Houston and Cleveland. In the 1980 postseason games the Raider defense yielded a total of only 56 points, holding four teams with a combined average of 23 points a game to an average of only 14 points each.

DEFENSIVE LINE

Up front seven linemen — ranging from an 11-year veteran to a pair of second year pros — worked in different combinations to anchor the Raider defense.

The starting group in the 3-4 alignment were John Matuszak and Dave Browning at the ends with Reggie Kinlaw at middle guard. Super-quick defensive ends Cedrick Hardman and Willie Jones served as "designated rushers" while Dave Pear filled inside and Joe Campbell outside.

Matuszak was a pillar of strength against run and pass at left end in the 3-4 and also moved inside to provide additional size in the 4-3. Browning, increasingly strong through work with the Raider weight program, held down the right end effectively and also saw service at tackle in the 4-3. Kinlaw showed both great range and penetration ability as a nose guard or defensive tackle and led the line group in total tackles.

Hardman, now entering his 12th year in the league, was a steadying force for the young defenders and led the line in quarterback sacks. He made numerous big plays, including hits that created defensive touchdowns against San Diego and Pittsburgh. Jones, going into his third pro season, again finished high in sacks after leading the club as a rookie. Pear, equally adept at middle guard or defensive tackle, finished the season in high gear, culminating with some big plays in Super Bowl XV. Campbell, a number one pick by New Orleans five years ago, came to the Raiders in a trade after the sixth league game and showed considerable ability and potential in a back-up role and as a special team performer.

Mickey Sims, a veteran of three years play with the Cleveland Browns, and two high draft choices — second round pick Howard Long from Villanova and fourth round selection Johnny Robinson from Louisiana Tech — will help make the defensive line one of the most competitive areas in training camp.

LINEBACKERS

Ted Hendricks, a Pro Bowl selection in 1980 — his 11th season in the league — continues as one of the game's best outside backers. Operating from a wide variety of locations in the Raiders unique defensive system Hendricks, who has played in 174 consecutive league games, made big plays against run and pass, had three pass interceptions and led the team in quarterback sacks. Tough Rod Martin took over at the other outside backer in mid-season, improved from week-to-week and set an NFL record with three interceptions in Super Bowl XV. Jeff Barnes, a four year veteran, has excellent speed and range outside and excels on special teams.

Inside the Raiders paired two newcomers in 1980 — Bob Nelson, in his fifth year in the league but his first active season in Silver and Black, and rookie Matt Millen, a second round choice converted from the defensive tackle spot he played at Penn State. Both were strong, aggressive and intimidating, giving the defense stability against the run inside. Young veterans Randy McClanahan, who started eight games while Nelson was injured, and Mario Celotto, provided depth inside and heavy hitting on special teams.

A pair of 1980 draftees — John Adams and William Bowens — who were on reserve in their rookie seasons are ready to compete for playing time as outside backers.

DEFENSIVE BACKS

With a secondary unit that had never played together previously, the Raiders led professional football in pass interceptions in 1980. Pro Bowl left corner Lester Hayes topped the NFL with 13 interceptions in league play plus five more in post season play — and had four taken away through penalties. The fourth year pro missed the all-time league record by only one interception. Dwayne O'Steen, a combative corner in his third pro season, was acquired from the Rams in a late preseason trade and started the final ten games, including the Super Bowl, on the right side. Monte Jackson, a former two-time Pro Bowl selection, played a prominent role in the pass defense unit throughout the playoffs. Odis McKinney, acquired from the Giants before the season, provided quality depth at all spots and as a regular in five back coverages and on special teams.

Rugged Mike Davis, a third year pro and second year starter at strong safety, was equally solid against run or pass and rapidly developed into one of the conference's best. At free safety the Raiders started Burgess Owens, acquired in a draft-day trade after seven seasons as a regular with the Jets. Owens led the Raiders in unassisted tackles in 1980, had three interceptions and provided seasoned leadership in the young secondary. Keith Moody, signed in midseason, adds experience at free safety.

Leo Gray, a converted wide receiver who missed last season returns. Add top draft choice Ted Watts, a number one pick out of Texas Tech. James Davis, a fifth rounder from Southern University, Kenny Hill who may work here as well as on offense and veteran Danny Reece, signed as a free agent after five seasons with Tampa Bay, and the secondary becomes another highly competitive area for the World Champions.

SPECIALISTS

Punter Ray Guy, a seven-time Pro Bowl selection, averaged 43.6 yards, bettering his remarkable 43.1 yard career average and also ably handled some of the kickoff duties. Chris Bahr, a five year vet signed as a free agent as the season opened, led the team in scoring with 98 points on 41 PATs and 19 field goals. Bahr was deadly in the post season, drilling six of seven field goal attempts. He ranked eighth in the NFL on average length of field goals made in 1980 (35.9 yards) and tied a club record with four field goals made in the home game against Seattle.

Ira Matthews tied a Raider season record with 48 punt returns and averaged almost nine yards per return. Matthews, Arthur Whittington and Keith Moody shared the kickoff return role. The Raiders topped the league with two kickoff returns for touchdowns — one by Whittington (90 yards vs. Cincinnati) and one by Derrick Jensen (33 yards vs N.Y. Giants).

GORMAN AWARD

The prestigious Gorman Award, named in honor of the late William H. Gorman, is presented annually by the Oakland Raiders Boosters Club "To The Player Who Best Exemplifies The Pride And Spirit Of The Oakland Raiders."

Bill Gorman was a major organizer of the Oakland Raider Boosters, the first of many such clubs formed throughout Northern California in response to the great fan interest in the activities of the Silver and Black.

The winner of the Gorman Award is chosen at the end of each season by the vote of his Raider teammates. Presentation of the trophy is made prior to the final league home game.

Eleven different Raider players have won this coveted honor since its inception in 1967.
