ADMINISTRATION

Edward J. DeBartolo, Jr. — OWNER

"I wouldn't want to play for any other owner in the League," says all-pro linebacker Keena Turner when urged to express his feelings about 49ers' team owner Edward J. DeBartolo, Jr. "I say that because this team realizes, and appreciates, the manner and fashion in which Mr. DeBartolo handles his personnel. We are envied by many of our peers in the NFL," concludes Turner.

DeBartolo has developed a team of champions during his eight years as owner of the San Francisco 49ers. He purchased 90 percent of the team in 1977, at age 30. Still one of the youngest owners of an NFL franchise, DeBartolo has grown with the success of his team from the barren consecutive 2-14 seasons of 1978-79, to the bountiful harvest of World Championships in the 1980s.

He has done so by surrounding himself with talented coaches, players, and executives; then, being astute enough to allow those people to structure the current history-making team. By displaying the virtue of patience, DeBartolo weathered the early storms of disappointment, bringing stability with the hiring of Bill Walsh as head coach (now president-head coach) and John McVay to handle player personnel (now vice president and general manager). DeBartolo has entrusted the delegation of responsibility to these men. His supportive approach has reaped large dividends. The DeBartolo-Walsh-McVay triumvirate forms the foundation of the 49ers.

Beyond his success in molding a winning staff, DeBartolo has won the favor of all with his expressions of sincere concern and affection. His involvement with players and staff is punctuated with genuine interest and participation. It is this personal commitment to the members of his organization that inspires the thoughts of Turner, and others in the 49ers family. His desire to win is matched only by his dedication to the individual betterment of all. Gracious in victory, while gritty in defeat, his compassion is unquestioned. Respected San Francisco Examiner columnist Art Spander penned that DeBartolo "responds with contrition and class . . . he knows how to apologize. He does not know how to equivocate."

The mutual devotion by owner and team has transcended from the organization onto the Bay Area sports community. Evidence of this came as DeBartolo walked onto the playing field at Stanford Stadium during the closing moments of Super Bowl XIX. The Niners partisans began chanting "Ed-die, Ed-die, Ed-die" as he crossed the field to congratulate members of his victorious team.

Nick Peters, columnist for the Oakland Tribune, tagged DeBartolo "the real 49ers hero" in the Super Bowl win. Wrote Peters, "Edward J. DeBartolo, Jr., is the real reason behind the Bay Area's euphoria, otherwise known as 49ers Fever . . . he built the sagging 49ers into a powerhouse by delegating authority and showing remarkable restraint in an age of meddling owners."

"The owner should give support and not meddle," says DeBartolo.

As the Chief Executive Officer of the 49ers, DeBartolo's corporate responsibility only begins with the San Francisco football franchise, since he also is the President and Chief Administrative Officer of the worldwide Edward J. DeBartolo Corporation of Youngstown, Ohio. The later role demands nearly all of his attention and time.

Founded in the DeBartolo family hometown of Youngstown in 1948 by Edward J. DeBartolo, Sr., who is the father of the 49ers' owner, the DeBartolo Corporation has become one of America's great business success stories. It is the leading planner, builder, owner and operator of enclosed regional shopping malls in the world, malls that total more than 50 million square feet of retail space.

Anticipating America's move to suburbia in the late '40s, Edward Sr. acquired land and built malls on the crest of suburban expansion. And as one mall succeeded, it was used as collateral for another. And another. Today, there are more than 50 DeBartolo malls from Pennsylvania to California.

Company holdings also include the Toledo Foreign Trade Zone and Overseas Terminal, office complexes, hotels, banks, gas wells, orange groves, real estate, and America's finest thoroughbred race tracks, including luxurious Louisiana Downs in Shreveport. The DeBartolos also own the Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League, the Pittsburgh Spirit indoor soccer team, the Pittsburgh Civic Arena, and hold commercial interest in many banks, including a role as majority stockholder in three of them.

It was this dynasty that Edward Jr. grew up in, starting at the bottom as a teenager and arriving today as one of America's chief executives for a major corporation. Called Eddie by friends and associates, his rise to the top of the DeBartolo Corporation became accelerated upon graduation from Notre Dame in 1968. Prior to that, he had worked for his father in the company, beginning at age 12 gardening and shoveling snow at mall locations and continuing into high school and college as a laborer on the DeBartolo construction crews. "We have a family motto . . . 'work harder than you play' . . . and I have, right from the time I was a youngster," reports Ed Jr.

Following college in 1968, he began an executive training program that had him move from department to department, learning the many facets of the company. In 1971 he was appointed a vice president, and five years later was named executive vice president and assumed leadership of the mammoth in-house DeBartolo staff of some 300 employees. He was appointed President and Chief Administrative Officer in July, 1979.

Edward Jr. purchased the 49ers in 1977 from the Morabito Family of San Francisco, with Jane Morabito and Franklin Mieuli retaining five percent apiece as minority owners, which they remain today.

A lesser known, but just as important, aspect of Eddie's life is his charitable participation throughout the U.S. He received the 1982 Salvation Army Citation of Merit, that organization's highest national honor and one that had previously been bestowed upon Dwight D. Eisenhower, Cecil B. DeMille, Helen Hayes, and William Randolph Hearst, among other notables. At 35, he was the youngest honoree in history.

In 1985, DeBartolo was honored by Boys' Town of Italy as its "Man of the Year" for his support of the organization, aiding homeless and needy children. He was also the recipient of the Warner Award, the prestigious honor given annually by the Pop Warner (youth) Football Association. Previous winners of the highest individual award given by the group include: Joe Robbie, owner of the Miami Dolphins; Irv Cross, CBS sports football analyst; and Joe Tomlin, founder and director of Pop Warner Football.

DeBartolo has given generously of his time and influence to the St. Jude Childrens Research Hospital, having directed the Youngstown effort for actor Danny Thomas, an effort that has netted the greatest sum of any city its size in the nation. He also is active in the Heart Fund and Cancer Crusade, with United Way, and has served as director for a Youngstown Youth Center and as a member of the Board of Trustees at Youngstown State University.

Born Nov. 6, 1946, Eddie is married to the former Cynthia Papalia, who prefers the nickname Candy, and who was his childhood sweetheart. They have three daughters, Lisa Marie (12/17/69), Tiffanie Lynne (11/27/70), and Nicole Anne (7/16/75).

Bill Walsh

PRESIDENT - HEAD COACH

He did not receive his first collegiate head coaching assignment until he was 45-years old, and was not at the helm of a professional football team until well beyond his 47th birthday. Bill Walsh has, however, established that his vastly futile mind and skilled coaching techniques can produce successes equal to the legendary coaches of the NFL.

In just six seasons, he has completely remolded a struggling 2-14 team into one of the premier franchises in the League. With San Francisco's convincing 38-16 victory over the Miami Dolphins in Super Bowl XIX (Jan. 20, 1985), Walsh joined coaching greats Chuck Noll of the Pittsburgh Steelers and the late-Vince Lombardi of the Green Bay Packers as the only coaches with multiple victories and no defeats in Super Bowl competition (Noll is 4-0 and Lombardi was 2-0. Walsh is 2-0).

No team in the history of the NFL has ever experienced the success enjoyed by the San Francisco 49ers last year. The team won an NFL-record 18 games (including playoffs) against one defeat. San Francisco has lost only twice in the last 24 regular and postseason games. The Niners have a 29-8 (.784) mark over the past two years, counting playoffs.

Only the Miami Dolphins (with 44 victories) have won more regular season games than the Niners over the past four years. Walsh has led his troops to a 41-16 (.719) record, while securing three NFC Western Division championships, two National Football Conference titles, and two World Championships during that span. In the decade of the '80s, only the Dolphins have won as many division titles, and San Francisco and the Raiders are the only two of the NFL's 28 teams to have won the Super Bowl twice. Including postseason, Walsh is 48-17 since 1981 for a fine .738 winning percentage.

* * * * *

Although Walsh's teams have performed well during the regular season, it is in the playoffs that the units have really excelled. With seven victories in eight playoff games, Walsh ranks first among active NFL coaches with an .875 postseason winning percentage. In each of those eight contests, the Walsh arsenal has racked up more than 20 points, and has twice exceeded 30 points. The team's average margin of victory has been nearly 10 points, and was just under a staggering 19-point differential during the march to the '84 World Championship! Disdaining the notion that it is best to play conservatively during sudden elimination games, Walsh's offenses have averaged 393 yards a game during the playoffs. The Niners' 537 total yards gained in Super Bowl XIX were high for the year and set a Super Bowl record.

The postseason successes of Walsh-coached teams can be traced to his days as the mentor of the Stanford football squad. While coaching the Cardinal, Walsh made good on both his bowl appearances. His units were winners over LSU (24-14) in the 1977 Sun Bowl, and defeated the University of Georgia (25-22) in the Bluebonnet Bowl the next year. Additionally, Bill's 1980 Niners' coaching staff directed the winning North squad in the Senior Bowl (23-10). Finally, the 1984 NFC Pro Bowl team, coached by the 49ers staff, was a 45-3 winner over the AFC.

In all, Walsh has coached in a dozen postseason games (counting all-star contests), and has won an amazing 11 of the 12 encounters.

* * * * *

The skill of molding the most prolific single season campaign in the annals of the NFL did not go unnoticed by the keen eyes of those who cover the sport. The Professional Football Writers Association voted Walsh their 1984 Coach-of-the-Year in the National Football Conference. Likewise, Football News and United Press International selected Walsh best among NFC head coaches, and Walsh was recipient of the prestigious "Committee of 101" NFC Coach-of-the-Year award sponsored by the Chiefs Club of Kansas City. No stranger to the accolades of success, Walsh had been similarly honored at the end of the Niners' first World Championship season in 1981.

It was during that '81 campaign that the team emerged as one of the powerhouse units in the League. By drafting wisely, and securing veteran players through trades and free agency, the club had a blend of youth and experience, talent and knowledge. That 1981 team catapulted from a 6-10 year in 1980 to a 16-3 mark, and the team's first conference and Super Bowl championships in '81. After a troubled 3-6 finish in the strike-shortened '82 season, Bill rallied his charges to an 11-7 record and the 1983 NFC Championship Game.

In 1983, the San Francisco 49ers returned to the form Walsh envisioned while putting together his team: quick and aggressive on defense, and smart run-pass balanced on offense with the ability for controlled explosion from anywhere on the field. With the additions of running back Wendell Tyler and fullback Roger Craig, opposing teams now had to respect the ground attack, which opened the field for Walsh's highly sophisticated pass offense. Joe Montana's command of the Walsh passing system has vaulted him to the No. 1 ranking among all-time NFL passers entering 1985 . . . a tribute to the talent of Montana and the mind of Walsh.

Since becoming the Oakland Raiders' backfield coach in 1966 under then Head Coach Al Davis, Walsh has gained a reputation as a pass master. In addition to developing the highly acclaimed Montana, Walsh is generally given credit for the development of two of the AFC's top gunners, Cincinnati's Ken Anderson and San Diego's Dan Fouts. Anderson won two NFL passing titles under Walsh's tutelage when Walsh was an assistant with the Bengals in the late '60s and early '70s. In one season as offensive coordinator in San Diego (1976), Fouts says Walsh turned his entire career around. Walsh also developed two NCAA passing champions (Guy Benjamin and Steve Dils) during his two years as head coach at Stanford (1977-78), and his list of either Pro Bowl or All-America pass receivers includes Bob Trumpy, Eric Crabtree, Chip Myers, Isaac Curtis, Charlie Joiner, James Lofton, Ken Margerum and Dwight Clark. He also is credited with cajoling top seasons out of quarterbacks Greg Cook, Sam Wyche, Virgil Carter and Steve DeBerg, and receivers Speedy Thomas, Pat Curran, Charle Young, Russ Francis, Earl Cooper and Freddie Solomon.

Walsh's first coaching experience came as a graduate assistant at San Jose State. As an undergraduate in the early '50s, he had played both ways at end for Coach Bob Bronzan. He entered high school coaching in the San Francisco East Bay area at Fremont's Washington Union High School in 1957. By his second season there, his team was 9-1 and conference champion. Prior to that, Washington Union had been 1-26. It was a complete turnaround, and it would become a familiar pattern when Walsh again became a head coach two decades later.

He began a long apprenticeship as an assistant coach in 1960, when he became defensive coordinator on the staff of Coach Marv Levy at the University of California. In 1963, he moved across the Bay to Stanford as Coach John Ralston's administrative assistant (recruiting coordinator) and defensive backfield coach. In 1966, Bill joined the Raiders. Then just over a year later, when the American Football League expanded into Cincinnati and Paul Brown was given a franchise there, Walsh became Brown's quarterbacks and receivers coach.

Following eight prosperous seasons with the Bengals, Walsh joined Coach Tommy Prothro for a year as offensive coordinator of the Chargers, then moved to Stanford in '77 as head coach. His two Stanford teams were 17-7 overall and captured bowl wins at the conclusion of both seasons — the Bluebonnet and Sun Bowls. Stanford had not played in a bowl game in five years prior to '77.

Edward J. DeBartolo, Jr., the Forty Niners' owner, hired Walsh as the 11th head coach in San Francisco history, Jan. 9, 1979. DeBartolo handed him a team that had gone 31-55 in the previous 86 games, an expansion-like team of talent that had finished 2-14 in 1978 and near the bottom of the League in nearly every offensive statistical category.

* * * * *

Bill was born Nov. 30, 1931, in Los Angeles. Following his sophomore year in high school, his parents moved to Oregon for one year, then moved to Hayward, Calif., in the San Francisco East Bay area, where Bill finished high school.

Following graduation from Hayward High and two years at San Mateo Junior College, he enrolled at San Jose State, where he majored in education. He obtained his master's degree in 1959 and put in a two-year hitch in the U.S. Army.

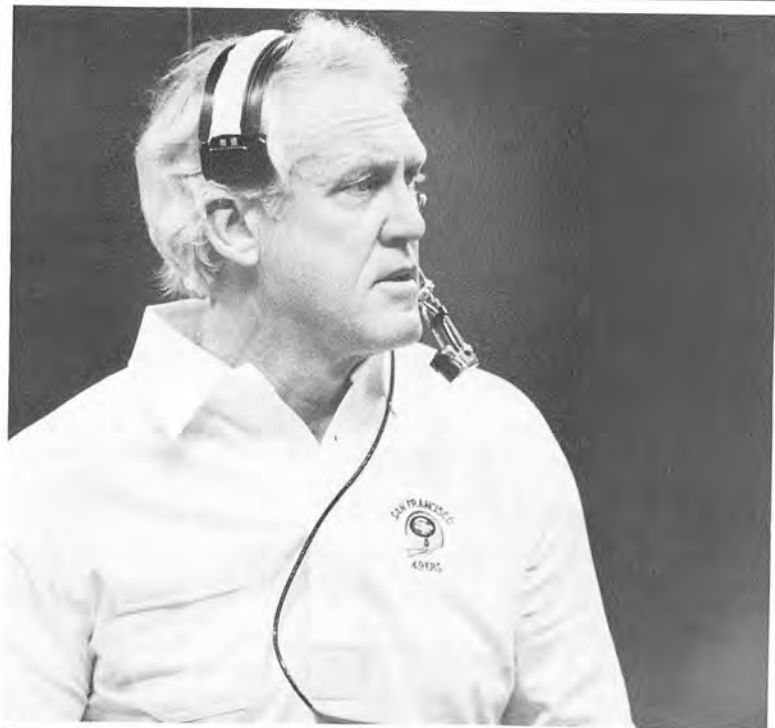

A tennis enthusiast and a constant reader of current events and historical non-fiction works, Bill lives with his wife, Geri, and daughter, Elizabeth (5-28-71), in Menlo Park, Calif. Bill and Geri also have two grown sons — Steve (12-27-55) and Craig (7-10-59).

John E. McVay

VICE PRESIDENT-GENERAL MANAGER

In his second full season as vice president and general manager of the San Francisco 49ers, John E. McVay experienced the same type of success that has typified his career. McVay represented San Francisco admirably in negotiating contracts for nine 1984 draft choices. He was instrumental in constructing (with Bill Walsh) four '84 draft day trades that resulted in the 49ers picking John Frank, Guy McIntyre, Michael Carter, and Jeff Fuller. Additionally, he swung deals that brought the Niners valuable defensive help in Manu Tuia-soso and Gary "Big Hands" Johnson. And, McVay played a vital role in securing the long-term contracts in the sensitive arrangements of many 49ers veterans, including Joe Montana, Keena Turner, Dwight Clark, Ronnie Lott, Dwaine Board, Ray Wersching, and Freddie Solomon.

Although John was saddled with contractual settlements early in the year, he still exercised his role as overseer of all non-football operations. He has been San Francisco's chief administrator (under Walsh) since the conclusion of the 1981 season when he was appointed administrative vice president. McVay began his career with the 49ers in January of 1979 as the team's director of player personnel. He was promoted to director of football operations in 1980 and served in the administrative vice president's capacity until being named vice president and general manager in 1983.

All seven department heads (marketing, scouting, public relations, business, tickets, training, and equipment) report directly to McVay. John coordinates the movement of each department on the counsel of Walsh and team owner Edward J. DeBartolo, Jr. The three embody the major decision-making element of the organization.

A native of Bellaire, Ohio, and a product of famous high school football town Massillon, Ohio, McVay came to the 49ers after having served the New York Giants as head coach for two and one-half seasons (1976-78).

He had been hired by Giants' Owner Wellington Mara in 1975 as an assistant coach in charge of research and development, but was elevated to head coach in the middle of the '76 season when Bill Arnsparger was released. His won-lost record with the Giants was 14-23.

Prior to joining the Giants, McVay was the head coach and general manager of the Memphis Southmen of the World Football League, where his teams were 24-7 in the year and one-half that league existed. McVay had left the University of Dayton, where he was head football coach for nine years (1965-73), and athletic director in '72 and '73, to join the Southmen.

McVay excelled as a player before entering coaching and administrative work. He was an All-Ohio center as a Massillon schoolboy, and an All-Midwest selection and two-time team MVP as a center at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, where he played for both Woody Hayes and Ara Parseghian. Because of John's lack of size, Hayes awarded McVay Miami's last available football scholarship his freshman year, yet John went on to become a four-year regular for the Redskins. He captained the team as a senior, and today is a member of that school's athletic Hall of Fame.

McVay went from Miami to become one of its 60-plus "Cradle of Coaches" alumni who have been successful collegiate and professional football coaches and administrators throughout the U.S. and Canada.

His coaching career began with a three-year stint at Lancaster (Ohio) High School, and he moved to Franklin High (Ohio) for one year, before a five-year stay (41-7) at Canton (Ohio) Central Catholic High School. From the prep ranks he joined Duffy Daugherty's staff at Michigan State as an assistant in 1962 and stayed three years. From MSU, McVay took over the Dayton post, and led the Flyers to their first winning grid season in ten years when they finished 8-2 in 1966.

John and his wife, Lee, have four grown sons (Rick Robinson & John Jr., Jim, and Tim McVay) and live in nearby Belmont, Calif. They also have four grandsons.

Ken Flower VICE PRESIDENT FOR MARKETING AND COMMUNITY AFFAIRS

Ken Flower experienced a very busy, yet productive year as the team's vice president for marketing and community affairs in 1984. Flower has been working directly with the office of the Mayor of San Francisco to secure improvements in the structure and conditions at Candlestick Park. Flower's responsibilities as the liaison between the 49ers and city and county governments in the Bay Area have grown with the expansion of his involvement. His years of contact with prominent members of San Francisco's business community have enabled Flower to successfully negotiate contracts benefiting the 49ers.

Ken began his administrative career with San Francisco in 1976 as a consultant for the team's radio and preseason television broadcasts. He was elevated to director of advertising in 1980, when he took on additional duties of securing advertisers for Gameday Magazine (then called PRO!). Flower assumed directorship of marketing and community affairs prior to the 1981 championship season. With that promotion came added responsibilities and contact with local civic and business organizations.

A native San Franciscan, Ken is a graduate of Lowell High and Menlo College. An outstanding basketball player, and member of the Menlo College Hall of Fame, Flower served as team captain on the 1953-54 basketball squads at the University of Southern California. He was the Southern California Collegiate Player-of-the-Year both seasons at USC, in addition to being selected All-Pacific Coast and All-America.

After taking his degree at Southern Cal, Flower entered the U.S. Air Force as a First Lieutenant, and coached the U.S. Air Force All-Star Basketball Team to the AAU Championship in 1957.

Ken worked as sales account executive for CBS Films, based in New York and San Francisco (1958-61). He later moved over to ABC-TV in sales management (1961-69), and served as vice president of sales and marketing for NFL Films (1969-76). Ken also was a sports communications consultant to the Hyatt Hotel Corp., and a media consultant with the performing group "Up With People", before assuming his full-time duties with the 49ers.

He and his wife, Alvina, live in Sausalito, Calif., and have two sons (Jeff and Ken) and one daughter (Kimberly).

1985 COACHES AND STAFF

George Seifert — DEFENSIVE COORDINATOR

Defensive coordinator George Seifert has mastered the game of "situation substitution". Applying it to full use during the course of the season, he structured a defense that allowed a League-low 227 points in 1984. Every San Francisco defensive player had at least 10 tackles during the regular season (except Jeff Stover, who missed 10 games due to injury), as the Niners utilized a collection of defensive schemes constructed by Seifert to baffle opponents. His units kept the opposition from scoring a touchdown in four regular season games and two postseason contests last year. In Super Bowl XIX, Seifert's use of four down-linemen and six defensive backs shut-out the potent Miami Dolphins offense the entire second half.

Seifert begins his sixth season of coaching in the NFL (the first three as San Francisco's secondary coach) following 15 years in the collegiate ranks.

After graduating from Utah (1963), Seifert served a six-month tour of duty with the U.S. Army. He returned to Utah as a graduate assistant coach in 1964. Then, in 1965, George was named head coach at Westminster College in Salt Lake City.

He moved on to assistant positions at Iowa (1966) and Oregon (1967-71), before joining Stanford University's staff (1972-74) as secondary coach (transforming the defensive backfield into the Pac-8 Conference's best statistically in both '72 and '73).

Seifert left Stanford in 1975 to become head coach at Cornell University (1975-76), but returned to Stanford to join Bill Walsh's staff in 1977. The Cardinal pass defense was second in the Pac-10 in both '78 and '79.

In 1980, George joined Walsh again, this time with the 49ers as secondary coach.

A native of San Francisco, and a graduate of Poly High School there, Seifert was born Jan. 22, 1940. He and his wife, Linda, have two children (Eve and Jason) and live in Sunnyvale, Calif.

Jerry Attaway — PHYSICAL DEVELOPMENT

Jerry Attaway's office is a statement on the scientific evolution of professional football. Attaway's office houses a computer that maintains all the physical and nutritional data of each player on the San Francisco roster. With this information, Attaway is able to create and monitor workouts and diets of the athletes. The programs have proven to be popular, as Attaway's weight room is usually densely populated during the offseason months as well.

Jerry begins his third season as the 49ers' coordinator for physical development, following five years in a similar capacity at the University of Southern California.

Attaway is a product of UC-Davis and Cal State-Sacramento. An injury cut short his football career at UC-Davis, and he finished his undergraduate work in physical education at Sacramento State in 1972.

Following graduation, he served as an assistant coach at the College of Idaho for three years and then spent the next two seasons as an assistant at Utah State, prior to his USC stint.

During his first three years at Southern Cal, Jerry was the assistant offensive line coach as well as coordinator for physical development. He concentrated on those latter duties his last two years with the Trojans. Attaway's first coaching job was with Paul Hackett (fellow 49ers' assistant) as freshman coach at UC-Davis in the late '60s. They also worked together at USC.

Jerry was born Jan. 3, 1946, in Susanville, Calif. He is single and lives in San Carlos, Calif.

Paul Hackett — QUARTERBACKS/RECEIVERS

Joe Montana's two-year statistics under the guidance of Paul Hackett are spectacular. Montana has averaged 3,770 yards passing per season, improving from 2,017 per year over his first four seasons. Additionally, Hackett (along with head coach Bill Walsh) has Montana looking to the end zone with more frequency. Joe has thrown 26 and 28 touchdowns, respectively, over the past two seasons — bettering his previous best of 19 touchdown passes in 1981.

Niners receivers averaged 13.1 yards per reception in 1984, the highest mark since the team recorded a 13.3 gain in '81. Hackett's troops should be more explosive in '85 with the arrival of San Francisco's first-round draft choice, wide receiver Jerry Rice.

Hackett, who enters his 15th season of coaching in 1985, joined the 49ers during the 1983 offseason as assistant coach in charge of quarterbacks and receivers, following two years with the Cleveland Browns.

Just a year after leading the Far Western Conference in passing (1969) to cap a top-flight collegiate playing career, Hackett began his coaching career at his alma mater — UC-Davis in 1970.

Following two seasons at Davis, Paul moved to a post at the University of California (1972-75), where he coached the late Joe Roth and All-America Steve Bartkowski (Falcons). Bartkowski led the NCAA in passing in '74, while Roth led the Pac-8 in passing during Hackett's final year at Cal, 1975.

In 1976, Paul was named quarterbacks coach at the University of Southern California, where from '76 through 1980 his pupils included Vince Evans (MVP of the '77 Rose Bowl — Denver Gold), and Paul McDonald (Browns). McDonald set 17 USC, Pac-10 and NCAA records under Hackett's guidance and won the '78 Pac-10 passing title as well.

Hackett coached the Browns' quarterbacks during 1981 and '82.

Paul is married (Elizabeth) with two sons (David and Nathaniel). They make their home in Redwood City, Calif. He was born July 5, 1947, in Burlington, Vt.

Norb Hecker — LINEBACKERS

The returning veterans under the charge of Norb Hecker comprise one of the younger units on the 49ers roster. Six of the nine returnees have three-or-less years of NFL playing experience. With an abundance of youth, Hecker stands to make many coaching decisions during the competitive 1985 training camp and campaign. Definitely one (a replacement for Jack Reynolds), and possibly two new starters could break into the lineup during the year.

Hecker's guidance of Riki Ellison resulted in the second-year linebacker leading the team with 95 total tackles in 1984. Additionally, outside linebacker Keena Turner tied for team leadership with four interceptions and was named to the Pro Bowl.

The 49ers' linebacking mentor since 1979 ('85 is his seventh season with the Niners), Norb Hecker celebrates his 28th year in professional football as a player and coach.

As a player, Hecker was a Little All-America offensive end at Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, Ohio. His professional career began with Los Angeles, where he played both offensive end and defensive back (1951-53) with the Rams. He spent a season in Toronto (Canadian Football League) in 1954, before signing with Washington (for three seasons, 1955-57).

Norb returned to the CFL as a player-coach in 1958 with the Hamilton Tiger Cats, and the next season joined Vince Lombardi as an assistant coach in Green Bay. With the Packers (1959-65), he was part of the team's glory years of the '60s. Following his Green Bay tenure, Hecker spent two and one-half seasons as head coach of the Atlanta Falcons (1966-68) and three years (1969-71) as defensive coordinator for the New York Giants. He left the NFL in 1972 and spent seven seasons as an assistant coach at Stanford University, his last two coaching on Bill Walsh's staff there. Hecker came to the 49ers with Walsh in early '79.

Co-founder of the NFL Players Association, Norb was born in Olmstead Falls, Ohio, May 26, 1927. He and his wife, Barbara, have five grown children — (Douglas, Jeffrey, Jane, Karen, and Cheryl) and four grandchildren — and live in Redwood City, Calif.

Sherman Lewis — RUNNING BACKS

Sherman Lewis' starting running back tandem of Wendell Tyler and Roger Craig had the second best two-man running total in Niners history (1,911 yards) in 1984, bettered only by the Delvin Williams/Wilbur Jackson total of 1,995 in 1976. However, Lewis was equally pleased with the output of reserves Derrick Harmon, Billy Ring, and Carl Monroe. In all, the Niners rushed for 2,465 yards in '84, just 33 yards shy of the all-time single season team record set in 1954.

By drafting fullback Ricky Moore from Alabama, Lewis hopes to add a big powerful "inside" runner to his current arsenal of ground gainers.

Sherman, who was an assistant coach at Michigan State University for 14 seasons, enters his third year in the NFL as the 49ers' running backs' coach.

An assistant with MSU from 1969 through 1982, Sherman was the assistant head coach and defensive coordinator for the Spartans his final three years there. He was a member of the staffs of Duffy Dougherty, Denny Stolz, Darryl Rogers, and Frank "Muddy" Waters at MSU.

The second runner-up for the 1963 Heisman Trophy (behind Roger Staubach of Navy and Billy Lothridge of Georgia Tech), Lewis was a two-way All-America halfback in football, and earned Football News College Player-of-the-Year honors in 1963. He was also a standout track and field performer for the Spartans.

Born in Louisville, Ky., on June 29, 1942, Sherm and his wife, Toni, have two sons (Kip and Eric) and live in Sunnyvale, Calif. He earned his masters degree from Michigan State in educational administration in 1974.

Bobb McKittrick — OFFENSIVE LINE

When three of your starting five players are voted into the Pro Bowl, chances are you're doing something right. Bobb McKittrick had such a distinction last season when Randy Cross, Keith Fahnhorst, and Fred Quillan all were selected to play in the annual all-star game. McKittrick's units were instrumental in the 49ers setting all-time team records in total yards (6,366) and points scored (475), among others.

With promising youngsters Guy McIntyre, Jesse Sapolu, Allan Kennedy, and rookie Bruce Collie waiting in the wings, the San Francisco offensive line appears deep for years to come.

Bobb enters his 15th season in the NFL and his seventh with the San Francisco 49ers as the coach for the offensive line.

McKittrick has been coaching professional football since 1971 when he was an assistant with the Los Angeles Rams under Tommy Prothro (1971-72). He took a sabbatical from football in 1973 to do graduate work at his alma mater (Oregon State), before rejoining Prothro in the NFL at San Diego (1974-78). He also coached the Chargers offensive line under Don Coryell at the conclusion of the '78 season.

Bobb began his coaching career in 1961 as an assistant at Oregon State, after three years in the U.S. Marine Corps as an officer. He coached at Oregon State (1961-64) and UCLA (1965-70) on the collegiate level.

McKittrick was born in Baker, Ore., Dec. 29, 1935. He and his wife, Teckla, have two sons (Ladd and Mike) and live in San Mateo, Calif.

Bill McPherson — DEFENSIVE LINE

Bill McPherson's rapport with his defensive linemen might be among the best of any coach-player relationship in the League. His knowledge of the game has helped in the rapid development of many young 49er linemen (Dwayne Board, Jeff Stover, Michael Carter, et al).

The 1985 49ers defense recorded 51 sacks during the regular season for 363 yards in losses. McPherson turned his troops loose in the playoffs and they responded with 19 sacks in three games (6.3 per game), including four traps of Dan Marino in Super Bowl XIX.

Entering his eighth year of professional football coaching, Bill is in his seventh season with the 49ers — one as linebackers coach and the last six (counting 1985) as defensive line coach.

A defensive tackle at Santa Clara in the early '50s, McPherson began coaching in 1956 at his high school alma mater, San Jose's Bellarmine Prep (1956-62), following Army service in Korea. He later was the defensive coordinator at the University of Santa Clara (1963-74) for 12 years before moving to UCLA (1975-77). McPherson coached the defensive line with both schools. McPherson was inducted into Santa Clara University's Athletic Hall of Fame as a player and coach in May, 1984.

At UCLA, Bill worked with Dick Vermeil, whom he later joined as an assistant with the Philadelphia Eagles. McPherson was linebackers coach for Vermeil in Philadelphia (1978) for one year, before returning to his native state of California and joining the 49ers.

Bill and his wife, Elsie, have five children (Michael, Claire, Joanne, Marianne, and Patrick — a linebacker and tight end at Bellarmine) and live in San Jose, Calif. He was born there Oct. 24, 1931.

Ray Rhodes — DEFENSIVE BACKS

His starting players reflect Ray Rhodes' game day personality — tough, hard-nosed, and aggressive. Collectively, they're known as either "Dwight Hicks and the Hot Licks" or the "Sting Quartet." Individually, all four (Hicks, Ronnie Lott, Carlton Williamson, and Eric Wright) played in the 1985 NFC-AFC Pro Bowl.

Rhodes' secondary allowed only 14 touchdown receptions in 1984, tying the Chicago Bears for fewest passing touchdowns permitted last year. With backups Tom Holmoe, Jeff Fuller, Dana McLemore, and Mario Clark assisting, the unit accounted for 75 passes defended and 14 interceptions last season.

Ray, who served under George Seifert as the 49ers' assistant secondary coach in 1981 and 1982, is in his third season as San Francisco's defensive backfield coach. He entered the coaching profession in 1981, just in time for the 49ers' first World Championship, after seven seasons in the league as a fine, all-around player.

Rhodes, who played defensive back for San Francisco in 1980, came to the 49ers after six seasons with the New York Giants, where he played both offense and defense. Drafted by the Giants in the tenth round of '74, Ray 20 played wide receiver until 1977 when he was switched to defensive back. He led all NFC receivers in average yards gained (20.7) per catch in 1975.

A collegiate running back at TCU for two years before ending his career at Tulsa as a wide receiver, kick returner and running back, Ray also earned letters in track & field at Tulsa.

Rhodes, a native of Mexia, Tex., was born Oct. 20, 1950. He and his wife, Carmen, have four daughters (Detra, Candra, Tynasha, and Raven) and live in Fremont, Calif.

Fred vonAppen — SPECIAL TEAMS

Fred vonAppen's special teams units had a fine 1984 campaign. The kickoff coverage team had the third lowest average return allowed (19.2) in the NFC while the punt coverage team also ranked among conference leaders with a 6.3-yard average. Conversely, the punt return team often broke loose for more than 50 yards, while averaging 11.6 as a team (second best in the NFC, third in the NFL). The kickoff return unit's 22.1 season average topped the NFC and was second only to the New York Jets' 23.0-yard average in the NFL.

Additionally, vonAppen had the League's leading '84 scorer in Ray Wershing (131); and punter Max Runager's 41.8-yard average was the best by a Niners' punter in nine years.

A former Stanford assistant coach under Bill Walsh, Fred joined the 49ers during the 1983 offseason as special teams coach.

vonAppen worked for Walsh during Stanford's bowl years of 1977 and '78, then left when Walsh came to the 49ers in 1979. At that time, Fred joined the Green Bay Packers as defensive line coach.

He coached at Linfield College in McMinnville, Ore., where he was an all-league selection as a player and where he received both his bachelor's (1964) and master's (1965) degrees. He also has worked at Arkansas ('69 and '81), UCLA ('70), Virginia Tech ('71), Oregon (1972-76), Stanford (1977-78 and '82), and Green Bay (1979 and '80).

Now in his 22nd year of coaching, vonAppen is a native of Eugene, Ore. (Mar. 22, 1942). He and his wife (Sally) have three children (Mark, Molly, and Joe). They live in Cupertino, Calif.

Tommy Hart — DEFENSIVE ASSISTANT

Tommy Hart, a former all-pro defensive end for the 49ers, was named assistant defensive line coach during the 1983 offseason.

Hart, who retired from the NFL in 1980 following 13 seasons, assists defensive line coach Bill McPherson.

He has operated Tommy Hart's Sport Store in Redwood City since his playing days. He concluded his career in New Orleans in 1980, following two seasons in Chicago (1978 and '79).

Hart was born Nov. 11, 1944. He is married (Cherrie Ann) and the Harts' have four daughters (Sebrina, Ywakita, Tanya, and Crystal). They live in Redwood City, Calif.

Jack Reynolds — LINEBACKERS ASSISTANT

At the request of Bill Walsh, Jack Reynolds joined the Niners coaching staff for the 1985 training camp period and possibly the regular season. Reynolds joins the San Francisco coaching staff following an outstanding 15 year career in the NFL. He spent the last four years as a starting inside linebacker for the Niners. During that time he led a young maturing defensive unit into two Super Bowls and three NFC Championship Games. He was named to the Pro Bowl team at the conclusion of the 1975 and 1980 seasons. "Hacksaw's" knowledge of the game, and strong study habits, influenced many of the youthful San Francisco defenders during the two Super Bowl campaigns.

Allan Webb — DIRECTOR OF PRO PERSONNEL

Allan Webb handles all the 49ers' research of player movement within the professional football ranks. He also scouts upcoming 49ers opponents to assist the game plan formulation.

Webb joined the team in 1983, following four years as the Director of Pro Personnel with the Cleveland Browns. Prior to his tenure in Cleveland, Webb had served on John McVay's coaching staff with the N.Y. Giants. He went to the Giants in 1972 as a scout and took over offensive backfield coaching duties in 1974, remaining with the Giants until moving to Cleveland.

Allan earned his way onto the roster of the Giants as a defensive back in 1961 after playing as a two-way back with the Montreal Alouettes. A starting safety with New York in 1962-63, Webb played with the Giants until 1965. A Little All-America pick at Arnold College in Connecticut (1952) as a running back and defensive back, Webb had a try-out with the Los Angeles Rams in 1955 after two years of service in the Navy. He also had a brief baseball tryout with the Milwaukee Braves of the National League before entering the military.

Allan and his wife, Olga, have two grown children (Lisa and Marc) and reside in San Mateo, Calif.

Tony Razzano — DIRECTOR OF COLLEGE SCOUTING

As Director of College Scouting, Tony Razzano is in charge of the team's scouting of college talent, and subsequent drafting of those players.

Tony joined the Niners in 1979 as a special assistant in the scouting department. He was named to his current post in 1981. He came to the team after a three-year stay with the New England Patriots as an area scout.

Razzano began his scouting career with the Washington Redskins in 1963. After five years, he moved west to join the scouting staff of the Chargers, where he scouted the northeast and midwest regions for San Diego from 1967-71.

As president of United Pro Athletes from 1971-73, Razzano represented many of the top collegiate players of the day, including John Brockington, Franco Harris, et al. Instrumental in the founding of the World Football League in 1974, Tony worked with San Francisco Vice President and General Manager John McVay on the staff of the Memphis Southmen of the WFL.

He spent three years in the Army prior to entering the University of Pittsburgh (1946-51), where he earned letters in both football and wrestling.

Tony and his wife, Carolyn, have six children (Robin, Tom, Lisa, Tony Jr., David, and Elizabeth) and live in Palo Alto, Calif.

Billy Atkins — SOUTH REGION SCOUT

Billy Atkins enters his second season as a scout with the San Francisco 49ers in 1985.

Atkins began his professional football career in 1958 as a fourth-round draft choice of the 49ers. Billy was an all-conference choice and MVP of Auburn University's 1957 National Championship team (selected by the Associated Press).

Atkins played defensive back with San Francisco for two seasons prior to spending as many years with the Buffalo Bills. He also played with the New York Jets and Denver Broncos in the old AFL, and was head football coach and athletic director at Troy State for six years before joining the coaching staff of the Buffalo Bills in 1972.

He returned to the 49ers as a defensive backfield coach for the 1976-77 seasons and held the same job with Detroit (1978-79) and St. Louis (1980-81). Atkins had served as a scout for the Green Bay Packers (1982-83) before rejoining the 49ers in 1984.

Billy and his wife, Doris, have two children (Paige and Ace) and live in Marietta, Ga.

Michael Lombardi — MIDWEST/WEST REGION SCOUT

Mike Lombardi joined the 49ers scouting staff just prior to the 1984 collegiate draft.

He served as the "in-house" coordinator of all scouting reports during that period, then scouted players in the northeast region during the '84 fall season. Mike repeated his coordinating responsibilities for the 1985 draft in addition to his scouting duties.

The Ocean City, New Jersey, native played nose tackle at Hofstra University (1978-81) preceding his position as assistant coach at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas. He took over the recruiting coordinator position at UNLV during his last two seasons (1982-83), while coaching the defensive linemen.

Lombardi is single and lives in Mountain View, Calif.

Ernie Plank — NORTHEAST REGION SCOUT

Ernie Plank has scouted the northeast region for the 49ers since 1978. He was hired by San Francisco after serving five seasons as an assistant coach at Northwestern University.

Since joining the team, Plank has scouted an impressive list of current Niner redoubtables including: Joe Montana, Keena Turner, Carlton Williamson, William "Bubba" Paris, John Frank and Derrick Harmon.

The former two-way lineman for the Miami of Ohio Redskins (1946-49) coached at his alma mater from 1956-62. Plank coached at Yale (1963-64) and Indiana (1973-77), before his duty at Northwestern (1973-77).

Ernie and his wife, Virginia, have a son (James) and a daughter (Victoria) and reside in Milford, Ohio.

Neil Schmidt — SOUTHEAST REGION SCOUT

Neil Schmidt is the senior member of the 49ers scouting staff, having served the club for 11 years as an area scout.

An outstanding, two-sport performer at Purdue University, Schmidt was a defensive back for the football team and a starting guard on the Boilermakers basketball squad (1948-50).

Neil took his masters degree from Bowling Green State University in 1958, and began coaching football on the high school level. He moved on to the University of Miami (Fla.), where he concluded a 12-year career as offensive coordinator. Schmidt spent three years (1971-74) with BLESTO scouting combine in the NFL prior to joining the Niners in 1975.

Neil was born July 3, 1927, in Reinfield, Russia. He moved to the United States when he was two-years old. He and his wife, Rosemary, have two children (Diane and Randall) and make their home in Atlanta, Ga.

Bob Whitman — SOUTHWEST REGION SCOUT

Bob Whitman begins his third year on the 49ers scouting staff.

In 1983, he brought with him more than 25 years of experience as a coach and scout on the collegiate and professional levels.

A college quarterback at Tulane University, Bob served on the coaching staff at his alma mater from 1952-61. Whitman had been the head football coach and athletic director at Perkinson Junior College in Perkinson, Miss., before his duty at Tulane. He left his post as defensive coordinator at Tulane to serve as head coach of East Jefferson High in Metairie, La., for seven seasons.

Whitman joined the scouting staff of the New Orleans Saints in 1968. He became chief scout for the Saints in 1971, and was named the team's Director of Player Personnel in 1973. Bob stayed with the Saints until 1983 when he joined the Niners staff.

Whitman and his wife, Miriam, have eight children (Bob Jr., Judy, Mickey, Gerald, Wayne, Kenneth, Joan, and Laura) and live in Metairie, La.

Billy Wilson — WEST REGION SCOUT

One of the all-time great 49er players, Billy Wilson now serves the team by scouting the western region of the U.S.

The San Jose State product played for ten seasons with San Francisco (1951-60), racking up 5,902 yards and 49 touchdowns. He is the all-time leader among 49ers with 407 receptions. Wilson led the NFL in total receptions during three of his ten seasons, and was a six-time selection to the Pro Bowl.

Billy has had three tours of duty as a coach with the Niners, as he coached the wide receivers from 1961-62 and 1964-67. Wilson came back a third time in 1980, and continues to assist the coaching staff during training camp and at games (in addition to his role in the scouting department).

Wilson and his wife, Shirley, have four children (Wynn, Gregg, Holly, and Tracy) and live in San Jose, Calif.

Len Eshmont Award

Keena Turner, the club's outstanding Pro Bowl linebacker, gained the San Francisco Forty Niners' most prestigious annual honor in 1984 — the Len Eshmont Award, by a vote of his teammates.

The award is given each year to the 49ers' player that best exemplifies the "inspirational and courageous play of Len Eshmont," an original Forty Niner from the '46 team, who later coached at Navy and Virginia before dying in 1957.

For more information on Keena Turner, the '84 Len Eshmont Award winner, see his bio elsewhere in this guide.

Lindsay McLean — TRAINER

Lindsay McLean has been an athletic trainer for 25 years, including 11 as head trainer at the University of Michigan. He joined the 49ers as co-trainer in 1979 and was named the team's head trainer in 1983.

Before he joined Michigan's staff (1968-78), McLean served as head trainer at UC-Santa Barbara (1963-64) and San Jose State (1965-67). He was named College Trainer-of-the-Year in 1976.

A native of Nashville and a 1960 graduate of Vanderbilt, McLean received his certification in physical therapy from Herman Hospital in Houston, Tex., in 1961.

He entered the training profession in '61 as an assistant at Michigan (1961-62) prior to joining the UC-Santa Barbara staff.

McLean, who served as chairman of the National Athletic Trainers Association Certification Committee for 10 years and was the U.S. Olympic Team trainer for the 1976 Winter Games, was born June 28, 1938. He is single and lives in Redwood City, Calif.

John Miller — ASSISTANT TRAINER

John Miller is in his sixth season with the 49ers, fourth as the team's assistant athletic trainer.

A 1980 graduate of Penn State (B.S. in health and physical education), John was that school's Marshall (Valedictorian) for the College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation in May of '80. He earned his master of arts degree in physical therapy from Stanford in 1982.

Miller joined the 49ers in 1980 as a part-time assistant trainer prior to moving up to the post of (full-time) assistant athletic trainer with the Niners in '82. He served as an athletic trainer at the Seattle Seahawks' summer training camp in 1979.

John was born Jan. 17, 1958, in Fargo, N.D. He is married (Susan) and lives in Menlo Park, Calif.

Bronco Hinek — EQUIPMENT MANAGER

Frank Bronco Hinek (Hen-ick) enters his second year as the team's equipment manager, following one season (1983) as assistant equipment manager to Chico Norton. He joined the 49ers' staff during the 1983 offseason following 14 years with the San Diego Chargers.

Born in Milwaukee, Wis., where his father (Frank) worked as an equipment manager for Marquette University (and later the Oakland Raiders — 1960-62), Bronco was the chief clubhouse attendant with the Chargers for four seasons (1969-72), and assistant equipment manager with that club from '72 through 1982.

He got his start in the field helping his father at Marquette and Oakland (and serving as a camp assistant with the Los Angeles Rams — 1968-69).

Bronco married the former Trish Bernie of Moraga, Calif., in July, '83. They live in Redwood City, Calif.

Chico Norton — EQUIPMENT MANAGER EMERITUS

Forrest "Chico" Norton has become a San Francisco institution. Chico, whose nickname comes from his hometown of Chico, Calif., begins his 31th season in the 49ers equipment room — second as equipment manager emeritus. He has been with the organization longer than any other employee.

Born Nov. 24, 1919, Norton first entered professional athletics when he went to work for the San Francisco Seals baseball team in 1948. He joined the 49ers as equipment manager in 1955.

He and his wife, Sylvia, live in San Francisco. They have seven grown children.

PLAYERS

John Ayers • 68

GUARD • WEST TEXAS STATE • 9TH YEAR
HT: 6-5 • WT: 265 • BORN: 4-14-53 • (D-8 IN '76)

PRO: When John Ayers was voted by Pro Football Weekly to its 1984 All-NFC team, it represented a breakthrough for the humble Texan. After eight years of anonymity among all but those who lined up against him, John was singled out by the publication for his all-around performances. Hopefully, the honor was the first of many for the former eighth-round draft choice (whose play is consistent, but overshadowed by three of his fellow starting offensive linemen - Randy Cross, Keith Fahnhorst, and Fred Quillan. All three were selected to the Pro Bowl last season). Since being named the starting left guard at the beginning of the '79 season, Ayers has started 88 of 89 possible regular season games, and all eight postseason affairs during that period. His 39 consecutive regular season starts is the second longest current streak on the team (44 including playoffs) to Randy Cross' 40 (45 counting postseason). Dating back to the 1978 season when John started six games at guard and eight at tackle, the product of West Texas State has started 102 of the last 105 games. A bout with the flu, which knocked Ayers out of a contest in Denver (9-19-82), marked the only time the guard has missed a game in his eight professional seasons. Quite a strong record of durability for a man that arrived at his first camp as a 228-pounder, and who had played on the defensive side of the ball while at West Texas State. Offensive line coach Bobb McKittrick sums up Ayers talents thusly: "He's good and the guy he's playing across from each Sunday knows he's good."

COLLEGE: Ayers was an All-Missouri Valley Conference selection as a defensive end at West Texas State in 1975 (as a senior). He lettered for the Buffaloes in 1973-74-75 after transferring there from the University of Texas in Austin. Ayers started 32 consecutive games for WTSU.

PERSONAL: An All-Texas schoolboy team honoree as a senior, John was a standout athlete at Carrizo Springs High School. He and his wife, Laurel, have two children — one son, J.T. (6-5-79), and one daughter, Jolee (6-4-82). They own a home in Canyon, Tex., but stayed at their residence in Redwood City during the past offseason. John was born in San Antonio, Tex. His NFL stats include a 1978 fumble recovery and a tackle following an interception (vs. Atlanta 11-8-81).

STATS: Regular season games/starts - 1976 (missed '76 season on injured reserve), 1977 (14/1), 1978 (16/14), 1979 (16/16), 1980 (16/16), 1981 (16/16), 1982 (8/8), 1983 (16/16), 1984 (16/16), career (118/103); Postseason games/starts - 1981 (3/3), 1983 (2/2), 1984 (3/3), postseason totals (8/8).

Retired Jerseys

The San Francisco 49ers have officially retired six jerseys in their 32-year history. Those retired are, in order of their retirement, No. 34, Joe "The Jet" Perry; No. 39, Hugh McElhenny; No. 73, Leo Nomellini; No. 12, John Brodie; No. 70, Charlie Krueger; No. 37, Jimmy Johnson.

Dwaine Board • 76

DEFENSIVE END • NORTH CAROLINA A&T • 6TH YEAR
HT: 6-5 • WT: 248 • BORN: 11-29-56 • (FA IN '79)

PRO: For several years, Dwaine Board has carried the label as one of the more vital and productive elements in the Niners defense, and last year only added more credence to that reputation. Board led all Niners defensive linemen with 48 total tackles. He was the TEAM LEADER with 10 sacks for 82 yards in losses. Board carried the load of pressuring the quarterback early in the season, in the absence of then-holdout Fred Dean. Through the first five games, Dwaine collected four of the team's 11 sacks. He turned in his first multiple-sack game (two) versus the Los Angeles Rams (10-28). The first of the two sacks forced a fumble by Rams quarterback Jeff Kemp, that later was turned into one of the touchdowns in San Francisco's 33-0 victory. Board (who seems to play many of his best games against the Rams) recovered a fumble, and had two tackles and as many passes defended in the regular season finale against the Rams (12-14). "Pee-Wee" saved his best play for postseason, when he tied for leadership among defensive linemen with 13 tackles, and once again was the TEAM LEADER with five sacks. His two sacks of Dan Marino in Super Bowl XIX marked the first time any defensive lineman had captured Marino more than once in a game during the '84 season. Success in the playoffs is nothing new for Board, who has recorded eight sacks in as many career postseason contests. In 49 career regular season starts, Board has collected 39½ sacks. In addition to his personal productivity, Dwaine's presence in the lineup has directly corresponded with the success of the Niners. Including postseason contests, San Francisco is 48-12 (.800) in Board's last 60 starts, and 6-15 without him. Fellow lineman Jim Stuckey marvels at the play of his teammate: "He plays with a purpose. He plays inspired, and that has a tendency to affect everybody around him," says Stuckey. Board originally was drafted by Pittsburgh in the fifth round of 1979 and waived by the Steelers (8-27-79) in Pittsburgh's final cut that year. San Francisco claimed Board on waivers and he made a surprisingly easy adjustment from small college linebacker to NFL defensive end with the 49ers in '79. He earned a starting nod by mid-season and became the Niners' most successful rookie, leading the team in sacks.

COLLEGE: Board was a four-year starter for North Carolina A&T at linebacker and was selected to the Mutual Black Radio All-America Team three times (1975, '76, '77). An All-Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference first team selection his final two seasons, he was voted the MEAC Defensive Player-of-the-Year in 1977.

PERSONAL: Dwaine is a graduate of Franklin County High School in Rocky Mount, Va., where he was born. He makes his offseason home in San Carlos, Calif. Board received his bachelor of science degree in industrial technology from North Carolina A&T in Greensboro in 1979. His nickname is "Pee-Wee" ("You should see my brother" is his explanation). Dwaine married the former Lynne Wheeler, June 15, 1985.

Dan Bunz • 57

LINEBACKER • CAL STATE-LONG BEACH • 7TH YEAR
HT: 6-4 • WT: 231 • BORN: 10-7-55 • (D-1B IN '78)

PRO: After spending 17 years (high school, college, pros) learning and perfecting his play at inside linebacker, Dan Bunz was asked to move to the strong outside linebacking spot for the '84 campaign. The former first-round selection took the re-assignment as a personal challenge and an opportunity for professional enhancement. He responded to the new position by having his best season since 1981. Dan recorded 33 total tackles, including one sack for a nine-yard loss. His interception of a Richard Todd pass versus New Orleans (9-16) was Dan's first pick-off since the 1979 season. Two weeks later (9-30), he had his best game of the season with eight total tackles against the Atlanta Falcons. Most importantly for Bunz, he was not stricken by any major injury for the first time in five seasons. The year marked the first that Bunz has played in every game since '81. By starting every regular season contest, Dan accomplished a feat he had been unable to repeat since his rookie season as the second of two Niners' first-round draft selections in 1978. The Long Beach State product was in the starting line-up for all three '84 postseason contests, contributing seven total tackles. The fact that Bunz was able to remain healthy for the entire season was a sharp contrast to his experiences over the last few years. Bunz was placed on the "physically unable to perform" list (8-16-83) with a severe groin injury — originally sustained during the 49ers-Raiders season opener of 1982. That injury forced Dan to the injured reserve list for the final seven games of the strike-shortened '82 season, and he reported to training camp in '83 with inflammation and pain in the abductor muscles of the groin (which eliminated his ability to practice or play much in '83). Entering 1982, Bunz had averaged 104 tackles a season and had led the team in total tackles in each of his first three years. Of his 477 career tackles, 13 do not count officially in his statistical records because they came in postseason play. And, among those is one that will live forever on video and in the minds of 49ers' fans everywhere. His hit on Cincinnati's Charles Alexander (at the one-inch line) during San Francisco's historic third-quarter goal-line-stand in Super Bowl XVI was a career highlight. It was one of three key plays Dan participated in during that stand. Bunz was named to the NFL All-Rookie Team in his first season.

COLLEGE: As a three-year starter at Cal State-Long Beach, Bunz recorded 448 tackles, including 72 solo and 99 assists as a senior. He was voted MVP in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association and was honorable mention All-America. He played in both the Senior Bowl and East-West Shrine game.

PERSONAL: Dan graduated from Oakmont High School in Roseville, Calif., and makes his offseason home on a ranch east of Sacramento (just minutes from the Niners' summer training site at Sierra College in Rocklin). Both Rocklin and Roseville had a "Dan Bunz Day" following the 49ers' 1981 World Championship season. Dan was born in Roseville, where he opened a new restaurant "Bunz and Company" last year. He established a donation program with the restaurant that netted $2,100 for Shriners Hospital last year. He played a bit part in the movie "North Dallas Forty" following the '78 season. Dan married the former Elizabeth Anne Roullier (7-7-84). They had their first child, Ashley Elizabeth in April (4-29-85). Elizabeth, Dan's wife, has a dental practice in Sacramento.

Michael Carter • 95

NOSE TACKLE • SOUTHERN METHODIST • 2ND YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 285 • BORN: 10-29-60 • (D-5A IN '84)

PRO: For Michael Carter, 1984 will assume perpetual existence in the annals of his memory. Chronologically, last year, Mike: a. married his college sweetheart (formerly Sandra Porter), b. was drafted by the 49ers, c. graduated from college, d. won a silver medal in the shot put competition of the Summer Olympics, e. signed a professional contract to play football, and f. played on the most successful single-season team in NFL history. Mike stated at the end of 1984: "when my wife and I talk about all the different things that happened it seems like 1985 will be dull." The year certainly didn't start off that way, as Carter's fantasy continued when he took part in the Niners' 38-16 Super Bowl victory over the Miami Dolphins. The game culminated a season of transition for Carter, who reported to training camp four weeks late due to his Olympic experience. Once he arrived, the former Southern Methodist star had to re-direct his regimen from the individualized world of track and field, to the team-oriented football concept. Gradually, Carter made the adjustment and by mid-season he hit his stride with a two-sack performance against the Los Angeles Rams (10-28) in Anaheim. He finished the year with 3½ sacks and 18 total tackles while sharing duty with Manu Tuiasosopo at nose tackle. The fifth-round selection had his best effort of the year in the NFC Championship Game versus the Chicago Bears (1-6) with six total tackles, including two sacks. His ability to rush the passer surprised many who watched Carter play collegiately in the run-oriented Southwest Conference. "He's so explosive, and has so much leg strength and that aids him to get off the ball fast and to power by his opponents," states Niners defensive line coach Bill McPherson. "He's still learning, but you can see that he has got a good feel for the game."

COLLEGE: Carter was an All-Southwest Conference performer during his senior season when he tied for team leadership (among defensive linemen) with 65 tackles. He also was a second team UPI All-America in '83. The four-year starter (1980-83) concluded his Mustang career with 238 total tackles, including a single-season high of 75 in 1982. As a freshman, Michael was selected the Most Valuable Defensive Player in the 1980 Holiday Bowl. Carter was selected to All-America teams in each of his four years of track and field competition. He is the only four-time NCAA indoor shot put champion in collegiate sports history. Additionally, Mike took the outdoor crown three times and placed second in the '84 NCAA meet despite throwing a lifetime best 71-4¾.

PERSONAL: He was born Michael D'Andrea Carter in Dallas, Tex., where he competed in football and track at Jefferson High School. He married his college sweetheart, Sandra Porter, shortly before graduating from SMU with a bachelor of science degree in sociology. Mike and Sandra split off-season living between Dallas and San Carlos, Calif., where they have purchased a home.

Matt Cavanaugh • 6

QUARTERBACK • PITTSBURGH • 8TH YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 212 • BORN: 10-27-56 • (TRADE IN '83)

PRO: The importance of a quality reserve quarterback was very apparent last year when no fewer than 18 first-string quarterbacks missed starts due to injury. Among those was Joe Montana, whose bruised ribs forced him to miss a starting call for the first time since Nov. 23, 1980. Replacing Montana for the Sept. 23 encounter in Philadelphia was back-up quarterback Matt Cavanaugh. Matt responded to the call of duty by completing 17 of 34 passes for 252 yards, leading the team to a 21-9 win. His three touchdown passes that day equaled his best single-game output as a pro. More importantly, Cavanaugh's performance proved that San Francisco's insurance policy—in case of injury to Montana—was solid as a rock. Matt's action for the remainder of the season usually came in the closing minutes of one-sided Niners victories. Even in those appearances he looked sharp, finishing the season with 33 completions in 61 passing attempts for 449 yards, without throwing an interception. One of Cavanaugh's four touchdown tosses in '84 was a 23-yarder to tight end Earl Cooper. That score helped San Francisco rally from a three-point deficit to defeat the New Orleans Saints 30-20 in Week 3. Matt, who had replaced an injured Montana in the third quarter of the Candlestick encounter, hit on three of his eight attempts for 51 yards in his first substantial regular season action as a Niner. Cavanaugh spent 1983 learning the 49ers offensive system. The former second-round draft choice of the New England Patriots (1978) was acquired by the Niners prior to the '83 season. Matt won the back-up quarterback spot in '84. Cavanaugh started the first three games for the Patriots during the strike-shortened 1982 season. He threw three touchdown passes in those games before being replaced in the starting lineup by Steve Grogan. Cavanaugh connected with Stanley Morgan on the longest pass play of 1982, a 75-yarder during a relief appearance late in the season. Matt started eight games for the Patriots in 1981, and established career highs with 42 passing attempts and 325 yards against the Steelers (9-27-81). His best year with New England was 1980, when he set a club record-hitting 60 percent of his passes (63-105), while starting four of the last five games that season. He threw nine touchdowns and averaged 8.43 yards per completion on the year.

CAVANAUGH, Cont.

COLLEGE: Matt held many Pitt passing records, including most touchdown passes in a season (15) and career (31), until they were surpassed by Dan Marino (Miami Dolphins). As a junior, he was named Most Valuable Player in Pitt's Sugar Bowl victory over Georgia that secured the national title for the Panthers. Matt completed 23 of 36 passes for 378 yards and four touchdowns (in his senior year) in a Gator Bowl victory over Clemson. He graduated from Pitt with a B.S. degree in administration of justice.

PERSONAL: He was born Matthew Andrew Cavanaugh in Youngstown, Ohio, and played football for Youngstown Chaney High. Matt met his wife (Nancy) while she was working as a secretary at Bryant College, the summer training site of the New England Patriots. The Cavanaugh's have two children - one daughter, Amy Elizabeth (7-12-83), and one son, Andrew Barrett (5-20-85). They make their offseason home in Foxboro, Mass.

Dwight Clark • 87

WIDE RECEIVER • CLEMSON • 7TH YEAR
HT: 6-4 • WT: 215 • BORN: 1-8-57 • (D-10A IN '79)

PRO: All Dwight Clark did in 1984 was lead the team in reception yardage (880), 100-yard receiving games (3), catch a personal career-long pass (80t), set a personal single season high for average gain per catch (16.9), have the best yardage game by any Niners receiver (127), and extend his TEAM RECORD streak to 72 consecutive regular season games with at least one pass reception. And all this coming from a player who suffered a severe knee injury in the final regular season game of 1983. Yet when asked to evaluate his season, Clark says with customary self-effacement: "I'd like to have done more. I dropped some passes I should have caught, and I didn't catch nearly as many balls as in the past." Clark's 52 receptions in '84 were second only to Roger Craig's 71 among 49ers, but it was the first time since 1980 that Dwight did not lead the team in total catches. During 1980-83 Clark led all NFL receivers with 297 catches, and his 3,849 yards were second only to San Diego Charger Wes Chandler's 3,994. Although Clark didn't catch as many passes in '84, he made the most of the ones he caught. His average per catch (16.9) was nearly four yards better than his career average. Dwight had five receptions of 40-or-more yards, and caught a 39-yarder versus Cincinnati (11-4). In the playoffs, "DC" caught two passes of more than 30 yards, while leading the team in reception yardage (272) and total catches (19). In 1983, Clark led the Niners in receptions and receiving yardage with 70 catches and 840 yards. The rangy receiver scored eight times on pass receptions to lead the team. Dwight was fourth in the NFC in receptions and seventh in receiving yards. In 1982, Clark led the NFL in receptions with 60 (nearly 7 per outing) . . . was second in yardage (first in the NFC) at 913 (15.3 average per catch/101.4 per game) . . . tied the CLUB RECORD for MOST RECEPTIONS-GAME with 12 against San Diego (12-11-82) . . . earned the starting nod in the '83 Pro Bowl, and unanimous all-pro honors . . . and was chosen as Sports Illustrated's NFL Player-of-the-Year. And, to top it all off, his teammates selected him the Len Eshmont Award winner for his "courageous and inspirational play" (the team's highest single annual honor). Clark had at least four catches in each of San Francisco's nine '82 games and 10 of San Francisco's 16 games in '83. He and Kellen Winslow (San Diego) were the only two players since the NFL merger to average over 70 receptions-a-season over four consecutive years. Dwight, with seasons of 82, 85, 60, and 70 (totaling 297) averaged 74.3 catches for '80, through '83, while Winslow, with campaigns of 88, 89, 54, and 88 (totaling 319) averaged 79.8 receptions over that same period. Lionel Taylor (Denver) is the only other professional player ever to do so, and he did it three times from 1960 to 1965 for the spans of '60-63, '61-64, and '62-65. Clark's 85-catch total in 1981 is the 49ers' CLUB RECORD. Clark originally came to the Niners as a 10th-round draft pick in 1979. Since that time he has mounted an all-out assault on the San Francisco 49ers record book. Entering 1985, Dwight is within reach of several personal and team milestones. CLARK NEEDS: 40 receptions to tie Billy Wilson's all-time team mark of 407, with 33 catches he will hit 400 for his career . . . 941 yards to tie Wilson's total of 5,902, second on the Niners all-time list . . . with 39 yards, Clark will hit the 5,000-yard mark.

COLLEGE: Clark caught 33 passes for 571 yards and a 17.3 average per catch in three years of varsity action at Clemson. He played strong safety for the Tigers as a freshman. He had receiving seasons of seven (sophomore), 15 (junior), and 11 (senior) catches for three TDs for the Tigers. Dwight earned his degree in history from Clemson in 1980. His college roommate was QB Steve Fuller of the Chicago Bears.

PERSONAL: Clark was born Dwight Edward Clark in Kinston, N.C., and grew up in Charlotte, where he attended Garinger High School. "DC" favors golf, basketball and tennis as other sports of interest. Dwight and his wife, the former Ashley Stone, had a baby girl, Casey Gene (3-2-84), and added a son, Riley Edward (5-4-85), during the past offseason.

Mario Clark • 29

CORNERBACK • OREGON • 10TH YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 195 • BORN: 3-29-54 • (TRADE IN '84)

PRO: When San Francisco acquired Mario Clark on the first day of training camp, many thought the deal had caused an overabundance of cornerbacks. However, when Tim Collier suffered a season-ending achilles tendon tear in training camp, and both starters Ronnie Lott and Eric Wright were hurt in the initial series of the season opener, that over-stocking quickly became barely enough. Clark stepped in to play nearly the entire opening game in Detroit (9-2), and start in place of Wright the following week against the Washington Redskins (9-10). Not that starting was anything new to Clark, who came into the League as the 18th selection in the first round of the 1976 draft and started every game his rookie year. Prior to his trade to the Niners, Mario had started 113 of 117 career games. However, when acquired by San Francisco, the cornerback realized his role would be to serve as a backup to Lott and Wright, and play as an extra defensive back in the nickel alignment. The "backup" remained in the starting lineup through Week 4 (9-23), when he sprained his knee on the astroturf of Veteran's Stadium in Philadelphia. Ironically, Clark had played his best game of the season against the Eagles, breaking up two passes with hard licks on Eagles' receivers. The knee injury kept the former Oregon Duck out of action four of the following five weeks. Clark had season-highs with nine total tackles and three passes defended against Tampa Bay (11-18), while subbing for Lott. He started the next three games until the ailing Lott returned to play in the regular season finale. For the year, Clark was credited with 32 tackles and 11 passes defended. He recorded his first interception since 1981 in Atlanta (12-2) versus the Falcons.

COLLEGE: Clark was All-Pac Eight and won honorable mention All-America as a senior at Oregon. He tallied 13 career picks for the Ducks, including two versus Stanford in a 15-13 upset victory in 1972. At the conclusion of his senior year, Mario played in the East-West Shrine and College All-Star games, and was selected Defensive Player-of-the-Game in the Senior Bowl.

PERSONAL: He was born Mario Sean Clark in Pasadena, Calif., and played football for Pasadena High. He and his wife, Lisa, a budding journalist, reside in Pasadena during the offseason. Mario spent much of the offseason working with his father at Clark's Upholstery in Pasadena, where the younger Clark has labored during his time off from football for many years.

Tim Collier • 47

CORNERBACK • EAST TEXAS STATE • 9TH YEAR
HT: 6-0 • WT: 185 • BORN: 5-31-54 • (FA IN '82)

PRO: "Suddenly, the leg just gave way." Tim Collier's succinct description of a season-ending Achilles tendon tear expressed both his dismay and disappointment. Fate had been unkind to the nine-year veteran. The injury occurred in a routine drill barely a week into training camp. The subsequent surgery and rehabilitation robbed Collier of the entire '84 campaign. The year figured to be a good one for the fleet cornerback who had conducted an intense offseason workout program following one of his best seasons of a long career. His goal for '85 is to return to the form of 1983 when he was considered the best man-to-man coverage defender on the team. Collier usually served as the "nickel" back in the Niners' pass defense alignment, although he was called upon to start four games in '83 at left cornerback. His start against the Rams (10-9-83) in San Francisco was the first of three consecutive games with Tim in the starting lineup. He responded to the call with an interception and four passes defensed. The following week (10-16-83), "TC" had three passes defensed and his second interception in as many weeks. He injured his shoulder during the Rams contest (10-23-83), his third straight start. The injury kept Collier out of the following four games, before returning and starting against the Bears in Chicago (11-27-83). The highlight of Tim's year came in St. Louis where he returned an interception 32 yards for a touchdown. Collier came to San Francisco as a free agent after being waived by St. Louis the first week of December (1982), following two-and-a-half seasons with the Cardinals. He originally was a ninth-round draft choice by Kansas City in 1976. Tim played 52 games (23 starts) for Kansas City from 1976 through '79, and totaled nine interceptions for 227 yards and one score. That single TD was the result of the ninth longest interception return in NFL history (100 yards vs. Oakland, 12-18-77), and was one of two steals from the Raiders that afternoon by Collier. Collier was traded to St. Louis (12-15-80) for a 5th-round draft pick in '80. In two '82 games with the 49ers, Tim had eight tackles and a defensed pass.

COLLEGE: In three seasons at East Texas State, Collier intercepted nine passes. He earned All-Lone Star Conference honors each year (1973-74-75). Tim also was named to the Lone Star Conference All-Decade team for the 40

'70s. He played both safety and corner for the Lions. As a sprinter on the ETSU track & field team, Collier recorded a 9.4 100-yard dash.

PERSONAL: Born Timothy Collier in Dallas, Tex., he attended South Oak Cliff High School in Dallas, where he was a standout athlete. Some of his high school teammates included Wayne Morris (Cardinals), Harvey Martin (Cowboys) and Michael Downs (Cowboys).

Earl Cooper • 89

TIGHT END • RICE • 6TH YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 232 • BORN: 9-17-57 • (D-1A IN '80)

PRO: Earl Cooper appears to have made a successful transition to tight end, from his former position of fullback. He completed his sophomore season at the new spot with 41 receptions (third on the team) for 459 yards and four scores. "Coop" blossomed during the final eight games of the year when an injury to Russ Francis forced the former Rice Owl into the starting lineup. In those eight games, Earl hauled in 23 passes for 302 yards and three touchdowns. The former first-round draft choice also took advantage of the extended playing time to improve upon the element of his game that caused him the most trouble during the position switch—blocking. Praises offensive line coach Bobb McKittrick: "Earl can now block as well as many other NFL tight ends . . . he's got good technique and he works hard." Albeit, Cooper's blocking has improved, it is as a pass receiver, and open-field runner, that this 227-pounder is at his best. "As an open-field runner, he's probably as fine as we have on our team," states quarterbacks-receivers coach Paul Hackett. Cooper showed those talents with a 23-yard catch-and-run for a touchdown versus the New Orleans Saints (9-29), and had a season-high six receptions in the 20-17 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers

(10-14). Earl had a season-high 51 yards, including an '84 long 26-yard catch against the Falcons in Atlanta (12-2). Cooper also rushed three times for 13 yards last year. His move to tight end began in 1983 when in the season opener versus the Philadelphia Eagles, Cooper took a pass from Guy Benjamin (playing for the injured Joe Montana) at the Niners' 35-yard line and raced up the middle of the field — avoiding tacklers — into the endzone to complete a 73-yard scoring play. "Coop" began his professional career Sept. 7, 1980, in New Orleans with two touchdowns and 148 yards in total offense against the Saints. That game started a string of 81 consecutive contests in which Cooper has played. The durable athlete has not missed a regular or postseason game since he was the 13th player picked in the 1980 draft. Earl completed his first year at tight end (1983) with 15 receptions and three scores, while averaging nearly 14 yards per catch. His '83 opening day touchdown catch-and-run stood as the Niners' longest play from scrimmage until Freddie Solomon's 77-yard touchdown play in the regular season finale against the Cowboys (12-19-83). He played in the San Francisco backfield his first three seasons prior to his move to tight end. The shift in positions was one Earl seemed well fit to manage. After a rookie year (1980) in which he led the NFC and set an NFL RECORD for catches by a first-year player (83), Cooper collected 51 passes in 1981. His pass receiving yardage total (477) bettered his rushing productivity by nearly 150 yards. The pattern continued in 1982, when Earl ran only 24 times for 77 yards, but compiled 153 yards on 19 receptions. In '83, he made the move to tight end.

COLLEGE: Cooper rushed for 1,583 yards on 407 carries and caught 101 passes for 802 yards as a collegian. He scored 21 touchdowns in four seasons with the Rice Owls. As a senior in '79 (Rice finished 1-10), Earl rushed 146 times for 563 yards and hauled in 47 passes for another 463 yards and seven scores. He played in the Blue-Gray, Senior, and East-West Shrine all-star games following his Rice career.

PERSONAL: As a high school quarterback, halfback, receiver, and linebacker, Cooper played at tiny Lexington High in Lexington, Tex. He was a four-event track and field performer and a basketball player there as well. His offseason home is Houston, and he was born in Giddings, Tex. Earl has his degree from Rice (physical education, 1981). A highlight to his '81 campaign was appearing on the covers of Sports Illustrated twice (12-1-81 & 2-1-82).

Roger Craig • 33

FULLBACK • NEBRASKA • 3RD YEAR
HT: 6-0 • WT: 224 • BORN: 7-10-60 • (D-2 IN '83)

PRO: In a span of slightly more than three hours, Roger Craig catapulted from relative football anonymity onto the nation's sports conscience with his scintillating three-touchdown, 135-total offense performance in Super Bowl XIX. Roger set SUPER BOWL RECORDS for points (18) and touchdowns (3) as his play levitated him from out of shadows and into the spotlight. "Yes, it was definitely my best game as a pro," exclaimed Craig. "Maybe not statistically, but for intensity and execution." Roger's Super Bowl heroics capped a brilliant second season for the gifted performer. He was the TEAM LEADER with 71 receptions (good for 675 yards and three touchdowns). A four-game October tear saw Roger catch 23 passes for 282 yards and two touchdowns. Craig started the spree with his best total yardage game of the year (128) against the N. Y. Giants (10-8), which included a season-high 95 receiving yards on seven catches. One of those two scores during the spree came on a career-long 64-yard sprint down the sideline with a Joe Montana pass versus the Rams in Anaheim (10-28). In November, the all-purpose back hit '84 highs with eight receptions versus Cleveland (11/11), and 86 yards rushing against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers (11/18). Craig average 6.1 yards per rushing attempt during the month of December, including a season long run of 28 yards in the second decision over the Rams (12-14). Through the 16-game regular season schedule, the fullback accounted for 1,324 all-purpose yards (649 rushing/675 receiving) while exceeding 100 total yards in three '84 contests. The tandem of Craig and Wendell Tyler set a TEAM RECORD for combined total yardage by running backs — 2,816 (bettering the 1976 mark of 2,602 yards by Delvin Williams and Wilbur Jackson). Craig's reception yardage total established a SINGLE SEASON STANDARD for San Francisco running backs, exceeding Paul Hofer's mark of 662 yards from 1979. Since his arrival in 1983, no 49er has scored as many touchdowns as Craig's 22. Including postseason action, Roger has reached the end zone 26 times in 37 games. President-head coach Bill Walsh spares no accolades when speaking of Craig: "Roger may well be the best all-purpose running back in the League. He has done everything we have asked of him, and equaled our expectations." As the first selection of the Niners in '83 and the 49th player picked overall, the second-round draft choice established a standard among

San Francisco rookies with 12 total touchdowns and 72 points scored. His eight rushing touchdowns surpassed the entire team total of six during the strike-shortened 1982 season. Craig also contributed four receiving scores and 427 yards on 48 catches. Roger rushed for 725 yards, the third highest total ever for a Niners' rookie running back (bettered only by Vic Washington's 811 and Ken Willard's 778 yards). He accounted for more all-purpose yards (1,152) than any other 49er in '83. Craig, seemingly has broken through the "supporting actor" role that has mirrored his athletic career. Roger's older brother, Curtis, was a star wingback preceding the younger Craig at the University of Nebraska, and for the majority of his collegiate career, the 222-pounder served as a backup to Jarvis Redwine and Mike Rozier at Nebraska.

COLLEGE: Craig played tailback and fullback for the Nebraska Cornhuskers and finished his career as the school's No. 4 all-time rusher with 2,446 yards. He ranks sixth in touchdowns scored (26) and eighth in total points (158). He also was a hurdler on the track team at Nebraska. Roger has recorded a 4.6 in the 40-yard dash and a horizontal standing jump of 9-8.

PERSONAL: Roger was born Roger Timothy Craig (7-10-60) in Preston, Miss. He attended Davenport (Iowa) Central High School, where he was a wrestler and hurdler in addition to an All-America tailback. He and his wife, Vernessia, have two daughters — Damesha (3-25-79) and Rometra (10-5-82) — and live in Bettendorf, Iowa, during the offseason. During the offseason, Roger finished fourth in the annual Super Stars competition on NBC-TV, hosted a weekend radio talk show, and aided fund raisers for such groups as: a blood bank, Special Olympics, and youth baseball, among others.

Niners' Notes

On December 10, 1978 when the 49ers defeated Tampa Bay 6 to 3 (2 Field Goals to 1), it was the first time in 49ers' NFL History that an entire game was played without a touchdown being scored.

Randy Cross • 51

GUARD • UCLA • 10TH YEAR
HT: 6-3 • WT: 265 • BORN: 4-25-54 • (D-2 IN '76)

PRO: "Randy Cross is the best guard in the League. It's that simple," says President-head coach Bill Walsh of his all-pro guard. Walsh would be hard pressed to find many detractors of his opinion of the former UCLA star. In 1984, Cross was selected to the All-NFC team by Pro Football Weekly and UPI. He was an All-NFL choice by Associated Press and Newspaper Enterprise Association and made his third starting appearance (in the last four years) in the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl. Like his linemates, Cross excels at both run and pass blocking. The unit's dual abilities were instrumental in aiding San Francisco to establish a TEAM RECORD with 6,366 total net yards. Randy, who developed a reputation as a fine pulling guard, performed admirably against many of the better pass-rushing defensive tackles last year. He managed to start all 16 regular season games (and the three postseason contests) in spite of an injury to his ankle early in the season. Cross suffered a concussion against Minnesota (12-8) that forced him out of the lineup for the second half of that game. Randy now owns the longest streak of consecutive starts on the team (45 including five postseason contests) and has been in the starting lineup for 96 of the last 97 regular season and playoff games. In 1983, Randy re-established his ranking as one of the outstanding guards in the NFL, as he rebounded from a 1982 season, in which he played injured most of the year. Randy has been active for 134 games as a professional (including playoffs) and has started all but five of them. Cross was the team's top choice (2A) in the '76 draft, and he immediately became the squad's starting center until an ankle injury sidelined him for the final seven games of the '78 season. When he came back in '79, he was moved to right guard because of the rapid development of Fred Quillan at center.

COLLEGE: Cross played both guard and center (many times both positions in the same game) and started every game in his junior and senior seasons at UCLA. He was AP and UPI All-America at guard as a senior.

PERSONAL: Cross was the California high school state champion in the shot put, besides being a standout gridder at Encino's Crespi High. He was born Randall Laureat Cross in Brooklyn, N.Y., before moving to Tarzana, Calif., as a youth. He is the son of former television actor Dennis Cross. Randy is the host of "CrossTalk" a 'call-in talk' show on KSFO-Radio, aired following Monday Night Football, and "The Randy Cross Show" is featured on KGO-TV this season. He wrote a week-long "Super Bowl Diary" for the San Francisco Chronicle prior to Super Bowl XIX. He and his wife, Patrice, have one daughter, Kelly Marie (11-23-83), and make their home in Redwood City, Calif. (training home of the 49ers). Randy earned his degree in political science from UCLA in 1976. His NFL statistics include one fumble recovery in 1976, two in '79, and one in 1982. Randy was chosen the 49ers' NFL Man-of-the-Year in 1981 (sponsored by Miller Brewing Co.) as the team's "outstanding citizen-athlete," and is the team's pick for that national honor again in 1985.

STATS: Regular season games/starts - 1976 (14/10), 1977 (14/14), 1978 (9/9), 1979 (16/16), 1980 (16/16), 1981 (16/16), 1982 (9/8), 1983 (16/16), 1984 (16/16), career (126/121); Postseason games/starts - 1981 (3/3), 1983 (2/2), 1984 (3/3), postseason totals (8/8).

Fred Dean • 74

DEFENSIVE END • LOUISIANA TECH • 11TH YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 232 • BORN: 2-24-52 • (TRADE IN '81)

PRO: It was third down and 10 yards to go for a Tampa Bay first down, with the ball resting at the Niners' 38-yard line. Trailing by a touchdown, the Bucs were marching to knot the score in the final minutes of the game. San Francisco was in need of a big defensive play to halt the Buc assault. S.O.S. Fred Dean. To the rescue came the swift defensive end with an eight-yard sack of quarterback Steve DeBerg that took Tampa Bay out of field goal range and leveled any faint hopes of a possible upset victory. Such are the plays that convinced San Francisco to sign the 11-year veteran after he missed the first 11 weeks of the 1984 regular season due to contractual discord with the club. Dean's sack of DeBerg, in his first game of the year (11-18), was the first of four (plus 11 solo tackles) he would record in the final five games of '84. Dean added 3½ sacks and 13 total tackles in postseason play. Although he played in only five regular season games, only two 49ers (Dwayne Board and Gary Johnson) had more sacks. Fred's value can also be measured by how he makes those who play with him better players. Prior to Dean's return, the San Francisco defense averaged 2.9 sacks per game. Once Fred rejoined the team that average increased to 3.8. That number ballooned to 6.3 sacks a game during the playoffs. Significantly, the Niners defense, which had not scored a touchdown prior to Dean's arrival, crossed paydirt three times in the final five games. Two of those scores were created by the quick-silver defensive end's pressure on the quarterback. "He's the best pass rusher I have ever seen," says 49ers defensive line coach Bill McPherson. "When he's at his best, he's something. He is like a thoroughbred who races only on Sunday." Fred's 17½ sacks in 1983 were BEST IN THE NFC and surpassed the Niners' TEAM RECORD of 16 by Tommy Hart in 1976. The former Louisiana Tech star added two sacks during the 1983 playoffs. Dean also tied Hart's TEAM RECORD with six sacks in a single game. Fred equaled the single game mark in the Niners' 27-0 victory over New Orleans (11-15-83), at Candlestick Park. After his 1983 career-high sack total, Fred was named to the All-NFC squad by Pro Football Weekly and UPI. Dean was named to the Pro Bowl for the fourth time in '83, however an injury in the NFC Championship Game forced his withdrawal. Dean is the only man to have won the NFLPA's Defensive Lineman-of-the-Year award in both conferences (1980 with San Diego of the AFC, 1981 with San Francisco of the NFC). Fred originally came into the NFL as the 2B (33rd player taken) draft pick of the San Diego Chargers in 1975. He played 85 games with San Diego before being traded to San Francisco (10-2-81) for a second round pick and the exchange of No. 1 positions in '83.

COLLEGE: Fred was an All-Southland Conference linebacker all four of his years at Louisiana Tech in Ruston, La., on a team that won 44 of 48 games.

PERSONAL: Born Frederick Rudolph Dean in Arcadia, La., he was a standout athlete at Ruston (La.) High School. Dean lives in San Diego during the offseason and Foster City during the season. An accomplished singer, he also writes poetry and loves to read (especially Shakespeare and Poe). He also has a great sense of humor; for example, this is his response to weightlifting — "Every now and then, I get an urge to lift weights . . . and I just go somewhere and lie down until I get over it." To which Anthony Munoz of the Bengals once responded, "Still, he's the strongest guy I've ever faced."

Niners' Notes

On October 25, 1964, against Minnesota, George Mira passed to Bill Kilmer who caught the ball but fumbled when hit. Jim Marshall of Minnesota picked the ball up and ran 66 yards in the wrong direction, scoring a safety for the 49ers.

Riki Ellison • 50

LINEBACKER • SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA • 3RD YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 225 • BORN: 8-15-60 • (D-5 IN '83)

PRO: Riki Ellison clearly likes his chosen profession: "I love Sundays. I love the contact, the building up of all the emotion all through the week and then turning it loose. It's a natural high — seeing everything happen, reading the play and getting to the ball. It makes me want to smile, to jump for joy. It's such a wholesome kind of joy. That's what it's all about." He speaks of football in terms of sheer enjoyment and the challenge of competition. It is that model attitude that delivered the second-year linebacker to the top of the team's defensive charts. Ellison was the 1984 regular season TEAM LEADER with 95 total tackles. He also LED THE TEAM with four forced fumbles, including a jarring hit of L.A. Rams running back Eric Dickerson in Anaheim (10-28), just short of the Niners' goal line, preventing a Rams' score. Riki had a career-high and '84 TEAM-BEST 13 tackles in a superb performance against Atlanta (9-30). One of those 13 stops came on a dramatic goal line stand as Ellison's penetration helped deny a Falcon touchdown. Although the former USC Trojan is platooned in many passing situations, he still managed two quarterback sacks and five passes defended. His fine play continued into postseason with a five-tackle, one-pass defense, one-interception performance in the divisional playoff against the N.Y. Giants (12-29). The interception was the third in the career of the young linebacker — all during postseason play. Riki was second on the team with 14 stops during the three playoff contests. Ellison's professional progression has been a delight for many who thought his knee problems would not allow him to play. Riki had four knee operations during his collegiate career, three on his left knee alone. Yet, he has not missed a game in two seasons with San Francisco, and has started 36 of the team's 37 games (including playoffs) over that two-year span. For a fifth-round draft choice, Ellison proved to be a real "find" for the Niners in 1983. From the moment he was named to start in the season opener, Riki displayed savvy and intelligence that normally is shown from players with years of experience in the League. Ellison established himself as a fixture in San Francisco's starting lineup for 15 of the 16 regular season games and both postseason tilts. He led all linebackers, and was third overall, with 79 total tackles. For his efforts, Ellison was named to the NFL All-Rookie Teams of Football Digest and Pro Football Weekly. If Ellison's play during the regular season was a pleasant surprise, his contributions during the playoffs were sheer joy. The rookie was second only to safety Carlton Williamson with 16 total tackles and Ellison's two interceptions led the team in that category. In the thrilling, 24-23, victory over Detroit (12-31-83) in the divisional playoff game, Riki had 10 total tackles in addition to his two pass interceptions.

COLLEGE: Riki led the Trojans of Southern Cal with 131 tackles during his senior year (1982), after missing all of the 1981 season following his third knee operation. He had 59 stops as a junior and was second on the team with 96 total tackles during his sophomore year. Ellison was a starter on the 1978 national championship team that defeated Michigan, 17-10, in the Rose

Bowl. He took degrees in physical education and international relations while at USC.

PERSONAL: He was born Riki Ellison in Christchurch, New Zealand. His named changed to Gray when his mother remarried, but he later (in 1983, as a matter-of-fact) changed his name back to Ellison. He played football at Amphitheater High in Tucson, Az. Riki lives in Foster City, Calif., with his wife, Sheila, and new baby girl, Wesley (3-6-85).

Jim Fahnhorst • 55

LINEBACKER • MINNESOTA • 4TH YEAR (2ND NFL)
HT: 6-4 • WT: 235 • BORN: 11-8-58 • (FA IN '84)

PRO: Jim Fahnhorst played in 35 professional football games in 1984 and still had his season cut short. After starting in 18 USFL regular season games and three postseason contests (including the championship game), the linebacker joined brother Keith, as a member of the San Francisco 49ers. Jim played in the first 14 games of the year (and started the last two encounters) before tearing the medial collateral ligament in his right knee at Atlanta (12-2). That injury and subsequent surgery kept the former Minnesota athlete on injured reserve (12-5) for the remainder of the year. The younger Fahnhorst had backed up Jack Reynolds at inside linebacker through the first 12 games before making his initial start in New Orleans (11-25). Jim had been utilized as the "second and long yardage" substitute until an injury to Reynolds' back forced the first-year NFL performer into the starting lineup. Jim was the team's fifth leading tackler (55) last year. He snagged his first career NFL interception against the Eagles (9-23), and had his second two weeks later (10-8) in the Meadowlands against the Giants. Fahnhorst had his best game versus Atlanta (9-30), when he registered six tackles and had one of his six '84 passes defended. Jim entered the NFL after two extremely successful seasons with the Arizona Wranglers (1984) and Chicago Blitz (1983) of the USFL. Originally a fourth-round draft choice of the Minnesota Vikings in 1982 (92nd overall), Jim signed an offer sheet with the Niners in June of '83 that was not matched by the Vikings. Fahnhorst was third on the Wranglers with 109 total tackles, while starting all 18 USFL regular season games in '84. His 72 solo stops were second on the team, while he added two sacks for 14 yards in losses, and one pass interception for the Wrangler defense (that was rated No. 1 during the year). He registered a season high 10 total tackles versus the Oakland Invaders (5-13-84). Jim led the Chicago Blitz team of 1983 — that became the Arizona Wranglers during an offseason swap of franchises — with 155 total tackles, while starting all 18 regular season games that year. He additionally recovered four fumbles and had one interception in '83.

COLLEGE: Jim was a four-year letterman and earned All-Big Ten honors following his senior year in 1981. He was named Defensive Player-of-the-Year for the Gophers that season and played in the Blue-Gray and Olympia Gold Bowl games. Fahnhorst red-shirted in 1979 after calcium deposits were found in his right leg.

PERSONAL: He was born James John Fahnhorst in St. Cloud, Minn., and attended St. Cloud Technical High, where he lettered in both football and basketball. Jim is the brother of Niners' starting offensive right tackle Keith Fahnhorst. He followed his older brother, Keith, at Minnesota, where he majored in psychology. Jim is married (Kim), and they split their offseason between Minnesota and California.

Hall of Fame Niners

Five members of the San Francisco Forty Niners are enshrined in Pro Football's Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. Included are three members from San Francisco's "Million Dollar Backfield" of the mid-1950's: Y.A. Tittle, Joe Perry and Hugh McElhenny. Another member of that same team, tackle Leo Nomellini, is also a member. The fifth 49er on display is running back O.J. Simpson. "Juice" was inducted in July of this year.

Keith Fahnhorst • 71

TACKLE • MINNESOTA • 12TH YEAR
HT: 6-6 • WT: 273 • BORN: 2-6-52 • (D-2A IN '74)

PRO: Keith Fahnhorst proved last year that "good things come to those who wait." After playing several seasons of all-pro caliber football, Fahnhorst finally broke through and was selected for the NFC-AFC Pro Bowl game. That honor was the first of many for the 49ers' elder statesman. He was selected all-pro by every major news service and publication including: AP, UPI, NEA, Pro Football Weekly, Football Digest, Football News, College and Pro Football Newsweekly, Sports Illustrated and the Professional Football Writers of America. Pro Football Weekly additionally placed him on the "over 30" all-pro unit. All this for an 11-year veteran who had never been chosen to any all-star teams. How did he go from also-ran to consensus all-pro in one year? "Honestly," said Fahnhorst, "I don't think I played any differently last year than any of the last four years. I had some bad games and some good games, but I played pretty consistently. Since we had such a good record (18-1), I think I got added recognition." The recognition was well earned as he didn't allow a quarterback sack until the 11th week of the season (in Cleveland - 11-11) and played well against many of the better pass-rushers in the League. The durable lineman had his string of 95 consecutive starts (including playoffs) broken versus Pittsburgh (10-14) when he was forced to the sidelines with a sore back. He has 166 games (134 starts) to his credit (counting playoffs) and has started 127 of the last 129 games. As a matter-of-fact, Keith has played in all but three Niners' games since being selected by San Francisco in the second round of 1974 (as a tight end; he was moved to tackle during preseason his rookie season).

COLLEGE: Keith was an All-Big Ten tight end at Minnesota and played in the East-West Shrine and Senior Bowl games. He played three seasons for the run-oriented Gophers and caught 28 passes for 416 yards and one TD. He was the team's top receiver as a senior in '73.

PERSONAL: Keith was born in St. Cloud, Minn., and earned all-league honors in football, basketball, and track & field at St. Cloud Technical High. Keith and his wife, Susan, have three daughters — Tiffany Dawn (6-19-79), Brittney Brook (5-13-81), and Courtney Blair — born Saturday, Jan. 19th, 1985, one day prior to Super Bowl XIX. His NFL stats include one pass reception for one yard and one kickoff return for 13 yards, both in 1975. He recovered two fumbles in '81, both by Ricky Patton (vs. Atlanta — 11-8, and vs. N.Y. Giants — 11-29). Keith holds a psychology degree from the University of Minnesota. Brother Jim Fahnhorst joined the 49ers in July, 1984, after two linebacking seasons in the USFL. Keith has been a 49er longer than anyone else on the 1985 roster.

STATS: Regular season games/starts - 1974 (14/0), 1975 (14/3), 1976 (13/6), 1977 (14/14), 1978 (15/15), 1979 (16/16), 1980 (16/16), 1981 (16/16), 1982 (9/9), 1983 (16/16), 1984 (15-15), career (158/126); Postseason games/starts - 1981 (3/3), 1983 (2/2), 1984 (3/3), postseason totals (8/8); Fumble Recoveries - 1974 (2), 1975 (1), 1977 (1), 1978 (1), 1981 (2), Career (7).

Ron Ferrari • 54

LINEBACKER • ILLINOIS • 4TH YEAR
HT: 6-0 • WT: 215 • BORN: 7-30-59 • (D-7 IN '82)

PRO: Ron Ferrari's strong spirit and competitive nature carried him through an injury-plagued year in 1984. Ron missed virtually all of training camp, recovering from surgery to remove bone chips from his right elbow. He saw his first considerable action from scrimmage versus the Washington Redskins (9-10), when he recorded two tackles and had one pass defense. Ferrari played mainly on punt and kickoff coverage teams, but also served as the team's nickel linebacker in passing situations. Ron had his best game of the year against Cincinnati (11-4), when he totaled four tackles (including a sack for a seven-yard loss) and one pass defense. The following week in Cleveland (11-11), disaster struck as Ferrari tore ligaments in his knee while covering a kickoff. The injury and subsequent surgery forced Ron to the injured reserve list (11-12) for the remainder of the regular season. Characteristically, he worked hard to rehabilitate the knee, and by the time the team was working out for the Super Bowl, Ron was among the practice participants. Ron contributed 14 total tackles and one sack in his 11 games played in '84. He concluded the '83 season with 41 total tackles (counting three sacks) and four passes defended, as he saw more action from scrimmage as the nickel linebacker in '83 after playing mainly special teams during his rookie season.

COLLEGE: Ferrari was voted Illinois' Most Valuable Special Teams player his final two seasons with the Illini (by his teammates). He played fullback/halfback in 1979 and '80, before switching to linebacker for his senior season (1981). As a starting LB, Ron accumulated 83 tackles, including 34 solo stops. He also had eight tackles-for-loss totaling 27 yards, one batted down pass and one recovered fumble.

PERSONAL: Ron holds two degrees: a 1979 associate degree in science from Lakeland Community College in Mattoon, Ill., and a bachelor of science degree in agricultural economics (1982) from Illinois. And, during the '83 offseason, he returned home and married college sweetheart Karen Nicholson (4-16-83), a standout collegiate swimmer at Alabama and Illinois. Ferrari was born in Springfield, Ill., but grew up in Moweaqua, and played four years of football (LB and FB) at Moweaqua High. His full name is Ronald Lee Ferrari. His recorded 40-yard dash time is 4.7. He initially made the Illinois squad as a walk-on running back. His NFL stats include two kickoff returns for 19 yards. Prior to the 1982 season, Ron earned his private pilot's license.

Russ Francis • 81

TIGHT END • OREGON • 10TH YEAR
HT: 6-6 • WT: 242 • BORN: 4-3-53 • (TRADE IN '82)

PRO: Without flash or fanfare, Russ Francis has completed the journey back to the summit among NFL tight ends. His combined blocking/receiving abilities are unequaled by peers at his position. Statistically, his numbers are average at best, but his contribution to the front line with blocking, his ability to catch the tough pass over the middle, and his leadership (especially in postseason action) have made him a complete player. At the mid-way point of the '84 season, Francis had caught 20 passes for 253 yards and two touchdowns before suffering a neck sprain against Houston (10-21). That injury sidelined him for six weeks, all of which were spent on injured reserve. He was re-activated prior to San Francisco's game against Minnesota (12-8), and caught two passes for 21 yards. Russ finished the regular season with 23 receptions, two touchdowns, and 285 yards in 10 regular season games. Francis returned to the starting lineup for the postseason and snagged a nine-yard scoring toss versus the N.Y. Giants (12-29) in the divisional playoff game. He pulled down two passes for 20 yards and figured prominently in the Niners' blocking scheme in the NFC Championship Game victory over the Bears (1-6). His five-reception, 60-yard Super Bowl XIX performance equaled his best single game reception total as a 49er, and was his second best yardage output since joining the team. His Super Bowl game was close to the ideal contest Francis had described earlier in the season. "Ideally, if I can catch the ball a few times in a game and block a lot, I'd be very happy," said Francis. "In my mind that is how the tight end position is supposed to be played." Russ splits time at the position along with Earl Cooper and John Frank. The triumvirate combined for 71 receptions, 804 yards, and seven touchdowns during the 16-game 1984 regular season. Russ caught 33 passes for 357 yards and four touchdowns in 1983, and snagged eight passes and averaged 15.4 yards per reception in the playoffs that year. His clutch receptions kept late-game scoring drives alive against both Detroit (12-31-83) and Washington (1-8-84). Francis began his comeback in 1982, actually, as he started slowly, but by season's end, he was at full speed — finishing third in receiving for the 49ers with 23 catches, 278 yards, a 12.1 average, and two scores. Francis was a first-round draft choice of the New England Patriots in 1975 (16th player selected overall) despite not playing football his senior year at Oregon. He played six seasons for New England before retiring in 1981. Russ returned to the game in '82, when the Pats traded him to San Francisco (4-27-82) for the 49ers' No. 1 and No. 4 picks in the 1982 draft.

COLLEGE: Russ switched from quarterback — a position he played in high school — to tight end as a freshman at Oregon. He injured his ankle as a sophomore, but returned for an All-Pac Eight and honorable mention All-America junior season. Francis ranked third among Pac-Eight receivers with 31 catches and 495 yards as a junior.

PERSONAL: Born in Seattle, Wash., Russ grew up in Hawaii. He attended Kailua High School near Honolulu and Pleasant Hill High in Oregon. He wrestled and played basketball and football at Kailua before his family moved to Oregon for his senior year. At Pleasant Hill, he took up track and field, too, and by season's end he had thrown the javelin farther than any American schoolboy in history — 259 feet, 9 inches. Francis also was drafted by the Kansas City Royals (4th round in baseball out of high school). Russ is licensed to fly helicopters and commercial multi-engine airplanes and enjoys doing so in his homeland of Hawaii. Russ spent the past offseason working as a part-time sportscaster for KGO-TV, the ABC affiliate in San Francisco. His name by birth is Russell Ross Francis. He's had three 100-yard-plus games in his NFL career.

John Frank • 86

TIGHT END • OHIO STATE • 2ND YEAR
HT: 6-3 • WT: 225 • BORN: 4-17-57 • (D-2 IN '84)

PRO: The infusion of young talent is the lifeblood of any sports franchise. If that talent is coupled with unabashed enthusiasm, the combination works as a sparkplug for the rest of the team. John Frank brought that blend with him last year off the campus of Ohio State University. As a rookie in 1984, Frank displayed the talent that brought praise from President-head coach Bill Walsh: "John shows all the signs of being a great player and potential Pro-Bowl pick." Beyond sheer athletic ability, Frank's zeal for the game was apparent from the first day of training camp and carried over all the way to the Super Bowl. "Satellite" (as his teammates have tagged him) worked hard on every phase of his game, but was particularly effective as a blocking end. His fervor and perseverance on blocking assignments brought him the respect of teammates while generating rage among opponents. "I stick to my blocks a little longer than most," understates Frank. "I figure I'm out there to play as hard as I can. I don't try to provoke anyone, it's just my style to play hard." Used primarily as an extra blocker in short-yardage situations, Frank's level of effort intensified during the six-week period when an injury to starting tight end Russ Francis forced John into more action from scrimmage. Frank accounted for seven receptions and 59 yards during Francis' absence. His only other catch in '84 was a one-yard scoring grab in the Meadowlands against the Giants (10-8). The catch was Frank's first as a professional. The former Buckeye dislocated his elbow in the third quarter of the NFC Championship Game versus the Bears (1-6) which kept him out of action for the remainder of postseason play. John was the second selection by the 49ers, and the 56th overall player selected, in the 1984 draft.

COLLEGE: Frank finished his career at Ohio State first among tight ends and second among all-time OSU receivers with 121 catches. He was selected first team All-Big Ten both his junior and senior seasons. Co-captain of the Buckeyes his senior year, John was the team's Most Valuable and Most Inspirational Player in 1983. An academic All-America in 1982-83, Frank was a pre-med major as an undergraduate.

PERSONAL: He was born John E. Frank, April 17, 1962, and attended Mt. Lebanon (Pa.) High. John spent the '84 offseason at Ohio State Medical School. A favorite of young children, John lends his efforts to many youth groups and fundraisers in his spare time.

Jeff Fuller • 49

SAFETY/LINEBACKER • TEXAS A&M • 2ND YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 216 • BORN: 8-8-62 • (D-5B IN '82)

PRO: In football terms, Jeff Fuller is a hybrid. He possesses the size and strength of a linebacker, but has the speed and quickness of a defensive back. Jeff is as large as 49ers' weakside linebacker Keena Turner (6-2, 222), but runs the 40-yard dash in a time (4.49) equal-to, or better-than, many members of the secondary. He is equivalent to a "swing man" in basketball, a player with the ability to perform at two different positions equally well. He could be labeled the team's "safebacker" in the nickel defensive alignment. His assignments in this formation vary from one-on-one coverage of wide receivers and running backs to strong force and run-support at the point of attack. As a rookie in 1984, Fuller accounted for 30 total tackles. The diversity of his assignments are evident by the 1½ sacks, one interception and four passes defended among his '84 totals. He had his first big-play as a Niner versus New Orleans (9-16) intercepting a Ken Stabler pass and returning it 38 yards to the six-yard line (setting up a Ray Wersching field goal). Jeff missed Weeks 10-12, but returned to have his best game of the year versus Minnesota (12-8) with seven total tackles, including 1½ sacks. He played his third position of the year when he started the regular season finale at free safety in place of the injured Dwight Hicks. Fuller saw considerable action during the playoffs, and played nearly all of the Super Bowl game as the nickel linebacker.

COLLEGE: As a junior, Fuller led the Texas A&M Aggies with 90 total tackles, four interceptions and two quarterback sacks, converting from defensive back to linebacker. Jeff followed that season with 55 stops, six tackles for losses and three pick-offs in '83.

PERSONAL: He was born in Dallas, Tex., and played football at Dallas Roosevelt High School. An industrial education major at Texas A&M, Jeff is single and lives in Dallas.

Derrick Harmon • 24

RUNNING BACK • CORNELL • 2ND YEAR
HT: 5-10 • WT: 202 • BORN: 4-26-63 • (D-9B IN '84)

PRO: The San Francisco 49ers have experienced a great deal of success with players drafted in later rounds of the annual selection process. John Ayers (8th round), Mike Wilson (9th round), and Dana McLemore and Dwight Clark (10th round) are examples. The Niners appear to have continued their late-round good fortune with the choice of Derrick Harmon in the ninth round of the 1984 draft. In fact, not only was Harmon a ninth-round pick, he was the second of two choices made in that round by the team. The Cornell graduate caught the eyes of the coaching staff early on in summer training camp, and continued to impress throughout the duration of the '84 season. He won a permanent spot returning kickoffs in the opening preseason game against the Raiders with his 34-yard return at the end of the first half. Harmon broke an '84-season, team-long, 51-yard return that set-up a touchdown against Philadelphia (9-23), and he asserted himself as a runner from scrimmage with 23 yards in just three carries in his first extended duty from the backfield versus the N.Y. Giants (10-8). Derrick rushed for 25 yards against the Rams (10-28), and 29 yards at Cleveland (11-11), both on five carries. He broke a kickoff for 35 yards in the victory over Tampa Bay (11-18) and had his best all-purpose contest against Minnesota (12-2), with 101 total yards (56 rushing/43 returning/2 receiving). His efforts against the Vikings included a career-long 19-yard run, and a three-yard plunge for his first career touchdown. Harmon finished the regular season as the team's third leading rusher (192 yards) and his 4.9 average-per-carry was bettered only by Wendell Tyler's 5.1 average among San Francisco ball carriers. The surprise of the '84 team also had five kickoff returns of 30-or-more yards, and the best average (27.5) among NFC kickoff returners with 13-or-more run-backs. Derrick averaged 4.1 yards-a-carry in nine postseason rushing attempts, and had a team-long, 23-yard kickoff return in the playoffs.

COLLEGE: Derrick was the Ivy League Player-of-the-Year in 1983, when he rushed for 1,206 yards and 10 touchdowns. He also led the conference that season with 36 receptions. Harmon led the Cornell Big Red with nine touchdowns and 905 yards as a junior in 1982. Selected as an Academic All-America in 1982-83, Derrick was also honorable mention All-America those two seasons. The Ivy League Sophomore-of-the-Year in 1981, Harmon finished his career with 3,004 rushing yards. The total is second only to Ed Marinaro's 4,715 among Big Red rushers. An honors graduate, Derrick took his degree in engineering physics.

PERSONAL: Born and raised in Queens, New York, Harmon attended Bayside High in Queens. He is the third of five sons born to Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Harmon. Derrick's two younger brothers (Ronnie and Kevin) are running backs at the University of Iowa. Derrick spent part of the offseason studying statistical mechanics and differential geometry at his alma mater. Although not working on a post-graduate degree, Harmon returned to school because "I just wanted to keep my mind working during my vacation."

John Harty • 75

DEFENSIVE END • IOWA • 4TH YEAR
HT: 6-4 • WT: 260 • BORN: 12-17-58 • (D-2A IN '81)

PRO: John Harty spent the 1984 season on the physically unable to perform (PUP) list, recovering from surgery on his left foot. Harty's 1983 season was also cut short by injury to that foot. Prior to his injury, John played in five games, including starting assignments against St. Louis (9-18-83) and the Rams (10-9-83). Harty had offseason surgery on the foot and hopes to be ready for 1985, although he was a non-participant during the Niners' mini-camp in May. "John could be a real factor in our defense if he is able to recover from his injury," says Bill Walsh. Harty earned his first professional football start in 1982, and by season's end, had started seven times for the 49ers. Harty started the first four games at nose tackle in the 3-4 defensive alignment, Games 6 & 8 at right end, and Game 7 at right tackle in the 4-3 alignment. Harty finished '82 as the team's No. 8 tackler with 31 total stops (20 solo/11 assists) and two-and-a-half sacks for 21 yards. Harty was a 2A draft pick of the 49ers in 1981.

COLLEGE: John was named to several 2nd Team All-America squads in 1980 as a senior at Iowa (including UPI, NEA and College and Pro Football Newsweekly) and he earned All-Big Ten honors in each of his four seasons. Harty had 58 tackles as a senior and 65 in his junior season. The '80 captain of the Hawkeyes, he played in the Blue-Gray and Japan Bowl games to top off his career, after 232 career tackles at Iowa.

PERSONAL: John and his wife, Monica, call Sioux City, Iowa, their offseason home, and have one son, Zachary (10-21-82). John was born in Sioux City, and was a standout in football, basketball, and track & field (winning two letters in each) at Heelan High there. He was all-state in prep football.

Dwight Hicks • 22

SAFETY • MICHIGAN • 7TH YEAR
HT: 6-1 • WT: 192 • BORN: 4-5-56 • (FA IN '79)

PRO: As a starting unit, they are the most celebrated defensive backfield in the game today. Dwight Hicks, Carlton Williamson, Eric Wright, and Ronnie Lott made NFL history in '84 by being the first secondary foursome to play in the same NFC-AFC Pro Bowl Game. Asked who is the unquestioned leader of this distinguished unit, and to the man they will tell you it is the talented and tough Hicks. Dwight had what he personally considered the best season of his career in '84, certainly it was one of the most demanding. His numbers again were impressive — 92 tackles (equaling his career-high and second only to Riki Ellison's 95 stops in '84), a career-high 16 passes defended, three interceptions and two fumble recoveries. He was the only defensive back to start all 16 regular season games last year, and now has started 80 of the last 81 regular and postseason contests. However, statistics tell only half of the story of Hicks' 1984 season. In the ninth week of the campaign, Dwight was asked to abandon his familiar position of free safety and switch spots with cornerback Lott at the L.A. Rams (10-28). For a man who had played only free safety since high school, the move was akin to being transferred overseas. Hicks responded to the challenge by knocking down two passes and recovering a fumble. A quick study, Hicks' second start at cornerback resulted in two more defended passes and 11 total tackles versus Cincinnati (11-4). Dwight had two more passes defended the following week in Cleveland (11-11). Hicks moved back to free safety against Tampa Bay (11-18) when Lott injured his shoulder on the game's first play. Proving there is no place like home, Hicks had his best game of the season with 12 total tackles, two passes defended and one interception against the Buccaneers. The former Michigan All-America started the next three games at free safety before moving back to cornerback in the regular season finale against the Rams (12-14). An injured ankle in the divisional playoff game against the N.Y. Giants (12-29) hobbled Dwight. Still he managed nine total tackles, one pass defended and one interception in postseason action. A leader who backs his talk with action, Dwight has accounted for more fumble recoveries (7) in the last four years than any other Niner and ranks second (to Lott) in interceptions (16). His 281 total tackles since 1981 are second only to Carlton Williamson's 287 stops. He was an '84 selection to the UPI All-NFC team and was on College and Pro Football Newsweekly's second team all-pro unit. "Dwight proved that he is one of the most effective defensive backs in the League last year," stated Bill Walsh. "He played very well when asked to switch from safety to cornerback. He is just a smart player with a great knowledge of the game." Hicks had 53 solo hits and provided backup on 20 others to account for 73 total tackles in 1983. Hicks returned his two '83 interceptions for scores, one for 40 yards in St. Louis (9-18-83), and the other in the Superdome in New Orleans, when he ran 62 yards for a score (10-16-83). In six years with the Niners, Hicks has 26 pass interceptions (3rd among all-time 49ers) and three steals during postseason play. He has been a Pro Bowler for the last four consecutive years. Hicks is the TEAM RECORD HOLDER for MOST INTERCEPTION YARDS, SEASON at 239 (1981), and LONGEST FUMBLE RETURN at 80t (at Washington — 10-4-81). He was signed by the 49ers in '79 (10-24-79) after two other attempts at making it in the NFL. He was drafted by Detroit in the sixth round of 1978 and released (8-15-78); played in Canada (9-16-78 thru 10-14-78); signed with Philadelphia (12-28-78) as a free agent and was released (8-28-79); before finally finding a home with San Francisco.

COLLEGE: Dwight was a four-year letterman at the University of Michigan, playing in 38 wins, two ties and only seven losses there. He was defensive captain for the '77 Wolverine team that played in the '78 Rose Bowl (while former 49ers' teammate Walt Downing was the offensive captain). Michigan played in two Rose Bowls and an Orange Bowl during Hicks' tenure in Ann Arbor. He was named All-Big Ten in 1977.

PERSONAL: Hicks was born in Mount Holly, N.J., and grew up in Pennsauken, N.J. He attended Pennsauken High School and was a standout in football, basketball and baseball. He has interests in broadcast journalism as an offseason profession and future career, and handled the morning sports report on radio station KRQR during the past offseason. Hicks also opened a limousine rental service last offseason.

Tom Holmoe • 28

SAFETY • BRIGHAM YOUNG • 3RD YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 195 • BORN: 3-7-60 • (D-4 IN '83)

PRO: Tom Holmoe matured in his second season in the Niners secondary. After making the switch from collegiate cornerback to professional safety during his rookie season, Tom displayed more confidence and ability as his playing time increased during the 1984 season. Holmoe nearly doubled his total tackle numbers (28) from his rookie year output of 16 stops. A strong tackler, 34 of Holmoe's 44 career stops have been unassisted. A valuable member of San Francisco's punt and kickoff coverage teams, Tom is also called upon to serve as the fifth defensive back in nickel alignments. He made a touchdown saving tackle of Atlanta's Stacey Bailey at San Francisco's nine-yard line (9-30). The save proved to be an important one when the Falcons fumbled the ball away on the ensuing play. He continued to backup both safety positions until Week 14 (again versus Atlanta, 12-2), when Tom started his first game as a pro (replacing injured strong safety Carlton Williamson). He was the team leader that week with seven total tackles. Tom suffered a slight crack of a bone in his back versus Minnesota (12-8), but returned to his nickel-back role for the final regular season game and all three playoff encounters. He recorded five of his nine postseason tackles while seeing considerable action in Super Bowl XIX. In all, Holmoe had a strong season for a player who had to come up with two interceptions in the final preseason game to secure his position on the roster. "Tom played super football last season," said defensive backfield coach Ray Rhodes. "He is smart, fast, and studies the various tendencies of the quarterbacks in the League." A fourth-round draft choice in 1983, Tom played in all 16 regular season games and both of the playoff tilts. He reinforced his reputation as a sure hitter with 14 solo tackles among his 16 total stops in '83. Holmoe also contributed one defended pass and a fumble recovery to his rookie totals. During the postseason, he added two more solo tackles. Tom saw his most extensive play from scrimmage during the Niners' games against the Rams (10-9-83) and New Orleans (10-16-83).

COLLEGE: Tom was an All-WAC performer in 1982, during his senior year at BYU. He totaled 54 tackles and had three interceptions, including a scoring return during that season. Holmoe was awarded the Most Valuable

PERSONAL: He was born March 7, 1960, in Los Angeles, Calif. He won three letters in as many sports at Crescenta Valley High of La Crescenta, Calif., where he set school records for longest pass reception (82 yards) and longest kickoff return (93 yards), while earning All-CIF honors. Tom and his wife, Lori, gave birth to a baby girl — Shannon Renae (3-18-84).

Gary Johnson • 97

DEFENSIVE TACKLE • GRAMBLING • 11TH YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 261 • BORN: 8-31-52 • (TRADE IN '84)

PRO: Paul Zimmerman, the respected senior pro football writer for Sports Illustrated, labeled him "the unofficial most valuable defensive player of Super Bowl XIX." Gary Johnson's all-out assault on Miami's Dan Marino resulted directly in one sack for the defensive tackle and was instrumental in causing three other traps of the Dolphin quarterback. Johnson was at peak performance level by postseason play after being acquired by San Francisco from the San Diego Chargers (Sept. 28, 1984). The trade provided Gary the opportunity to return to the defensive tackle position he had manned for seven seasons prior to being switched to defensive end by the Chargers in 1982. Situated at right defensive tackle, Johnson was able to once again do what he does best—rush the passer. He registered 5½ sacks (second on the team) in 12 regular season games while playing in the nickel defense with San Francisco last year. Gary's sack of Rams quarterback Jeff Kemp resulted in a safety and secured victory for the Niners in the final game of the regular season (12-14). The Grambling product was credited with his first multiple sack game as a Niner against Cincinnati (11-4) when he accounted for two traps and 13 yards in losses. Johnson scored the third touchdown of his career on a 34-yard return of a fumble versus Atlanta (12-2). "Hands" was the TEAM LEADER with three fumble recoveries (36 yards), while Gary's 13 postseason tackles tied with Dwaine Kelcher (all of whom were drafted by San Diego in 1975) on San Francisco's defensive line. On the move that brought him to the Niners, Johnson commented: "I figured being up here in San Francisco and out of San Diego would give me a second chance to prove to myself and others that I was still capable of playing effectively. So far that's the way it has turned out." The four-time Pro Bowler (1980-83) had 67 career sacks for 608 yards in losses when he joined the Niners. Johnson was moved to right defensive end during '83 training camp, after playing right defensive tackle for eight years. He started all 16 games in '83, and finished the year with 51 total tackles and 2½ sacks. Johnson had started 121 of the last 124 games and had played in 130 of a possible 131 career contests prior to 1984. His best year came in 1980 when he led the NFL with 17½ sacks and recorded 52 total tackles. The following year Gary registered 10 sacks and 106 total tackles. He also has two interceptions and in his career.

COLLEGE: An All-America his senior year at Grambling, Johnson was named the Outstanding Lineman in the East-West Shrine and Senior Bowl games. He was the eighth player selected in the 1975 draft.

PERSONAL: He was born Gary Lynn Johnson in Shreveport, La., and played football for Charlotte Mitchell High. He and his wife, Alice, have one son and live in San Diego, during the offseason.

Allan Kennedy • 66

TACKLE • WASHINGTON STATE • 4TH YEAR
HT: 6-7 • WT: 275 • BORN: 1-8-58 • (FA IN '81)

PRO: When you backup a player (Keith Fahnhorst) who hasn't missed a starting assignment in 95 straight games (including playoffs) you can begin to wonder if the opportunity will come to prove your value. Allan

Kennedy had served as Fahnhorst's understudy since his arrival in San Francisco at the beginning of the '81 season. However, when a sore back prohibited Keith from playing against the Pittsburgh Steelers (10-14), Kennedy got his first starting call in 30 games as a professional. Ironically, Allan had not played in his first game since coming to the Niners the previous week at the N.Y. Giants (10-8), after hyperventilating in pregame warmups. Allan rebounded from that encounter and was pronounced fit for his starting assignment the following week. For the season, Kennedy saw action from scrimmage in six contests in addition to his regular duties on the field goal and extra point protection teams. Allan participated in all 16 regular season games and both playoff encounters in '83. His presence adds quality depth at one of the stronger, more veteran units on the team. Kennedy originally was drafted 10B by the Washington Redskins out of Washington State in '81 and released. He was claimed as a free agent by San Francisco (9-9-81) and immediately placed on injured reserve (9-12-81) due to a hand injury (severed fingertip). He spent all but the final three games on injured reserve before being called up (12-3-81) to add depth to the offensive line. He saw most of his playing time on kicking teams. During the '82 offseason, he prepared like never before, but an ankle injury the first day of training camp ended his '82 hopes as he spent the entire year on injured reserve.

COLLEGE: Kennedy earned 2nd team and honorable mention All-America honors his last two years at Washington State University. A five-year player who was redshirted in 1977 after tearing ankle ligaments versus Michigan State, Kennedy started all four of his seasons with the Cougars. An All-Pac 10 (1979) and All-West Coast selection in '79 and '80, Allan was the 1980 team co-captain and played in the Japan Bowl to finish off his WSU career.

PERSONAL: Allan was born a banker's son in Vancouver, BC, and has Canadian citizenship. He earned his criminal justice degree from WSU in June, 1981. He played three years of varsity football at El Camino Real High School in Woodland Hills, Calif., and was All-Valley, all-league, and 2nd team All-Los Angeles. Allan was also an outstanding shot putter at El Camino Real and was a scholar-athlete selection for both sports. He is single and lives in San Mateo, Calif.

STATS: Regular season games/starts - 1981 (0/0), 1982 (0/0 injured reserve), 1983 (16/0), 1984 (15/1), career (34/1); Postseason games/starts - 1981 (3/0), 1983 (2/0), 1984 (3/0), postseason totals (8/0).

Fulton Kuykendall • 59

LINEBACKER • UCLA • 11TH YEAR
HT: 6-4 • WT: 228 • BORN: 6-10-53 • (TRADE IN '85)

PRO: San Francisco obtained linebacker Fulton Kuykendall ("KIKE-in-dahl") from the Atlanta Falcons just days prior to the opening of the 1985 training camp. The 11-year veteran recorded 113 tackles in 1984, while playing in all 16 games. He totaled 167 stops in 1983, including 82 solo hits. Kuykendall had his finest pro season in 1982 with 53 tackles, two interceptions and eight passes defended in the strike-shortened nine-game campaign. He registered 16 stops in a 1982 playoff contest against Minnesota. His teammates selected Kuykendall Most Valuable Player at the conclusion of the year (1982). The former UCLA Bruin has started 91 of 123 career games during his career (entering 1985). He started all 16 regular season games in 1978-79 at outside linebacker in the Falcons 4-3 defensive alignment, then moved to the inside linebacking spot when Atlanta switched to a 3-4 defense in 1980. Kuykendall was a sixth-round draft choice of the Falcons in 1975. He played in all 14 games his rookie year and started seven contests during his second season. Fulton missed all, or parts of, the 1976, '77, '80, and '83 seasons with injuries.

COLLEGE: Kuykendall earned honorable mention All-America honors his senior season, while playing linebacker at UCLA. He was twice named All-Pac Eight and captained the Bruin defense in 1974. Fulton has a B.S. degree in kinesiology from UCLA. His collegiate teammates included Randy Cross and Wendell Tyler.

PERSONAL: Fulton and his wife, Sherri, have one son, Hollis (Trent) Trenton (11-8-83), and live in Atlanta, Ga. He is active in Project CURE for leukemia research in addition to many other civic functions. He grew up in Vallejo, Calif., and attended St. Patricia's High School there.

Ronnie Lott • 42

CORNERBACK • SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA • 5TH YEAR
HT: 6-0 • WT: 200 • BORN: 5-8-59 • (D-1 IN '81)

PRO: When Ronnie Lott twisted an ankle on the third play from scrimmage in the 1984 season opener against Detroit, little did he know it would be an omen for an injury-plagued season. Lott played the second half of the Lions contest with the ankle tightly taped, and was in the starting lineup for the home opener against Washington (9-10), although still slowed by the injured ankle. He sprained his knee in Week 3 versus New Orleans. That injury forced him out of the following game at Philadelphia (9-23). Returning to the lineup for a Sept. 30 encounter with the Atlanta Falcons, Ronnie jammed his toe — sustaining his third injury in the season's first month. Although hobbled, Lott led the team at the end of September with two interceptions and six passes defended. The former Southern Cal Trojan made it through the first two games of October without injury, before suffering a concussion at Houston (10-21). Again, Ronnie returned to the lineup in the fourth quarter of the Oilers contest, playing with pain and dizziness. Due in part to his numerous injuries, Lott "traded" positions with Dwight Hicks and played free safety for the first Rams contest (10-28). With only one week of practice at his new position, Lott contributed four tackles, had one defended pass and an interception. He remained at free safety the following three weeks, recording his best total-tackle game of the season with 12 stops (including one sack) in a victory over Cincinnati (11-4). But just as he was rounding back into shape, Ronnie separated his shoulder on the first play of the game in a home contest with Tampa Bay (11-18). That injury kept Lott out of the lineup for the following three weeks. He returned for spot duty in the season finale against the Rams (12-14) and started at free safety in the divisional playoff game with the N.Y. Giants (12-29). An injury to Hicks forced Ronnie back to cornerback where he registered four tackles, two passes defended and one interception in the game. The return to cornerback lasted through the final two postseason contests with Lott recording four more tackles and one touchdown-saving pass defense in those two games. Because of the injuries, Lott finished with a career-low 51 regular season tackles, while playing in only 12 games. However, his four interceptions tied for TEAM LEADERSHIP with Keena Turner. Lott's 38-yard pass theft in the Giants game established a TEAM RECORD for longest postseason interception return. By vote of his peers in the League, Lott was selected to his fourth consecutive Pro Bowl, an honor he has earned every year he has been a professional. He was a 2nd team All-NFC pick by UPI, and was named a Seagrams' Sports Award All-Pro. Significantly, Lott was honored as the 49ers Ed Block Award winner, the honor given by the NFL trainers to the player on each team that displays courage by playing with injury. He led the team in total tackles with 108, in 1983. He recorded 68 tackles and two interceptions in 1982, returning one for a touchdown that established a TEAM RECORD for MOST CAREER TDs ON INTERCEPTIONS at 4 (3 in 1981, 1 in '82). He set the pace for his career in 1981, when he finished as runner-up for NFL Rookie-of-the-Year honors and made every conceivable all-star team from all-rookie to all-pro.

COLLEGE: Lott was a consensus All-America before being the eighth player selected in the 1981 NFL draft. The All-Pac 10 performer was USC's 1980 MVP and Most Inspirational Player. He had 86 tackles in 1980, 250 for his four-year Trojan career. He ranked second in the nation and No. 1 in the Pac-10 in '80 with eight interceptions for 166 yards (giving him 14 for his career, two for TDs). He also had three fumble recoveries (10 in his career) and 16 defended passes (37 in his career) during his senior season. In addition, Lott played basketball for the Trojans as a junior in 1979-80. He topped his grid career with appearances in the Hula and Japan bowls.

PERSONAL: Ronnie was born in Albuquerque, N.M., and earned his public administration degree from USC in 1981 (in four years). A product of Rialto, Calif., and Eisenhower High School there, he was an All-Citrus Belt League pick at three different positions (defensive back, quarterback, and wide receiver). Lott also was all-league in basketball (three years) as a guard and two years in baseball (shortstop). As a senior, he was Citrus Belt League Player-of-the-Year and unanimous All-America. He is single and lives in Santa Clara, Calif. He was listed in "The American Bachelors Register" (1982, by the editors of Playgirl Magazine) among the country's "Most Eligible 100." And "Man Watchers, Inc." went one better in naming Ronnie among "The Ten Most Watchable Men of 1982." He is the 49ers' candidate for the NFL's Frito-Lay "Crunchman-of-the-Year" award for 1985.

Milt McColl • 53

LINEBACKER • STANFORD • 5TH YEAR
HT: 6-6 • WT: 230 • BORN: 8-28-59 • (FA IN '81)

PRO: "Situation substitution" is a buzz-phrase in the NFL, and San Francisco used the tactic of bringing players in to fill specific roles as well as any NFL team last season. When the Niners needed a hard pass rush from the strong side of the defensive formation they called for No. 53. Milt McColl not only answered that call by recording four sacks (tied for third on the team), but proved he could play many defensive formations. McColl is one of the fine "off the bench" support players for the Niners. Although he did not start any 1984 contests, his total minutes on the field were equal to many of the starting 11. Milt made an impact early in the season when the Niners, needing a pass rush, aligned McColl as a down lineman in passing situations against the Washington Redskins (9-10). The Stanford alum responded with three crucial sacks among his five tackles, and was the outstanding defensive player of the game. Milt had a big game in the Meadowlands against the N.Y. Giants (11-8) with four tackles, two passes defended, and a sack. One of McColl's pass defenses resulted in an interception when Milt hit Giants quarterback Phil Simms while he was attempting to pass (the ball was caught by fellow linebacker Jim Fahnhorst). He contributed five solo stops in the win over Houston (10-21) and three individual tackles in the Superdome versus New Orleans (11-25). McColl suffered a concussion early in the Falcons game in Atlanta (12-2) and did not play for the remainder of the contest. He finished the year with 32 stops. The fifth-year veteran added six tackles, one defended pass and one sack in the three postseason games. "He's used his knowledge and studied the game to become a pretty good football player," says linebackers coach Norb Hecker. "He's not a real burner, but he is awfully strong and plays smart football." In '83, Milt accounted for 10 total tackles and one quarterback sack. He missed four games due to a pulled hamstring suffered in Week 7 versus New Orleans (10-16-83), but returned to action (11-20-83) in Atlanta. Milt tied for TEAM LEADERSHIP with two forced fumbles in 1983.

COLLEGE: McColl was an Academic All-America selection in 1979 and '80 and 2nd Team All-Pac 10, UPI honorable mention All-West Coast, and The Sporting News honorable mention All-America in 1980 at Stanford. He played in the Hula and Japan Bowls to finish off his Cardinal career. He skipped spring football his senior year to study at Stanford's overseas campus in Cliveden, England, and Florence, Italy.

PERSONAL: One of eight McColls to attend Stanford University, Milt was born in Oak Park, Ill. He was honorable mention All-America and All-CIF at South Hills High School in Covina, Calif. He captained his prep basketball team and earned all-league honors in track and volleyball. McColl was valedictorian of his high school class and was named San Gabriel Valley Scholar-Athlete-of-the-Year. His mother (Barbara '53) and his father (Bill '52) and several brothers and sisters are Stanford grads. Milt graduated on-time in human biology at Stanford and has attended Stanford Medical School while playing with the 49ers. His father was an All-America end in 1950-51 and his brother (Duncan) was an All-America defensive end in 1976 for Stanford. The senior McColl played with the Chicago Bears and Duncan played briefly in the NFL with the Washington Redskins. During the 1983 offseason, Milt married his collegiate sweetheart, Cindy Emanuels (3-2-83).

Guy McIntyre • 62

GUARD • GEORGIA • 2ND YEAR
HT: 6-3 • WT: 264 • BORN: 2-17-61 • (D-3 IN '84)

PRO: What a reassuring feeling to know your two starting guards are All-NFC selections, and the player serving as their back-up is projected to be as good as the starters. That back-up is Guy McIntyre, the second-year guard from the University of Georgia.

The mobile athlete displayed plenty of promise during his rookie campaign in the NFL. He impressed coaches and scouts with his speed and tenacity. McIntyre got his first taste of action from scrimmage early in the season when he played the entire second half of the Redskins contest (9-10) at right guard. McIntyre replaced Randy Cross, who had moved to center due to a concussion suffered by starting center Fred Quillan. Guy also saw considerable action in the Giants (10-8) and Rams (10-28) games as San Francisco rested its starters in the fourth quarter. He played the entire second half of the encounter with Minnesota (12-8), when Cross sustained a concussion. Guy received substantial notoriety during postseason play, some good and some not so good. He was aligned in the backfield as a blocking back in the "Angus" formation in two of three postseason games.

McINTYRE, Cont.

The alignment worked successfully against the Chicago Bears in the NFC Championship Game (1-6), as Guy provided a key block, taking out two players, and opening a path for Wendell Tyler's 9-yard touchdown run. McIntyre was not as fortunate in the Super Bowl when, while playing on the kickoff return team, he scooped up a squib kick at the end of the first half, and fumbled the ball when tackled (turning possession over to the Dolphins who scored a field goal as time expired).

COLLEGE: A gifted athlete, Guy was recruited as a tight end. He moved to tackle as a sophomore, and won the starting right tackle job at the beginning of his junior year in 1982. McIntyre was a first team All-Southeastern Conference selection by AP and UPI as a senior and was named to AP's All-America second team. Guy won the Jacob's Blocking Trophy, awarded to the outstanding offensive lineman in the SEC by conference coaches. He was selected to play in the Japan Bowl to cap his career.

PERSONAL: Guy was born in Thomasville, Ga., and competed in football, basketball, and track and field at Thomasville High. He still resides in Thomasville, where they held "Guy McIntyre Day" during the 1984 off-season.

Dana McLemore • 43

KICK RETURNER-CORNERBACK • HAWAII • 4TH YEAR
HT: 5-10 • WT: 183 • BORN: 7-1-60 • (D-10A IN '82)

PRO: A factor. Very simply stated, that's what Dana McLemore is every time he drops back to receive a punt: A Factor! His intrepid style, and natural runners instincts make him a threat to go all the way for a score each time he touches the ball. He broke off a 55-yard return in the 1984 season opener at Detroit (9-2), and his 79-yard touchdown return versus the Giants (10-8) marked the third time in as many seasons Dana has scored on a punt return. McLemore had his third return of 20-or-more yards last season when he recorded a 22-yarder in the first Rams contest (10-28). He concluded the regular season, second to the Rams' Henry Ellard (for the second straight year) among NFC punt returners with an 11.6 average. During the '84 postseason, McLemore's returns were invaluable to the Niners. He constantly turned poor field position into outstanding placement, and his returns allowed San Francisco to mount two Super Bowl scoring drives from mid-field. His ability to negate the punting yardage of the opposition led to San Francisco's first touchdown in the NFC Championship Game against the Bears (1-6). Not just a one-position performer, Dana provided strong back-up at the cornerback post throughout the season, as well. He recorded his first career interception in Houston (10-21), while subbing for the injured Ronnie Lott, and totaled three tackles while playing cornerback and on special teams. Arguably the best multi-dimensional player on the team, Dana displayed that versatility when he recorded six total tackles, returned three punts for 32 yards, one kickoff for 50 yards, and made a 54-yard touchdown on an intercepted pass in Atlanta (12-2). His two touchdowns in '84 gave him TEAM LEADERSHIP for points scored (12) among defensive players. McLemore set TEAM RECORDS last season with 45 punt returns and 521 yards. In just three seasons, he has accumulated more yards in punts returns (1,008) than any other 49er except Bruce Taylor (1,323). "Dana Mac" has five career returns of 50-or-more yards and ranks sixth all-time among NFL returners with a 12.1 yard average. "Dana is as deft a punt returner as I have seen in the NFL," says Niners special teams coach Fred vonAppen. "He doesn't take the ball and go to a prescribed area, he uses the entire field. He can bound and slide and grind his way through traffic in a no-nonsense fashion." McLemore's 10.7 return average on 31 attempts was bettered only by Henry Ellard's 13.6 average among NFC performers in 1983. The defensive back also averaged nearly 20 yards on his 30 kickoff returns, and recorded 23 total tackles while playing in the defensive backfield and on special teams. McLemore's big game of the year was against the Rams (10-23-83), when he made two key stops on kickoff return coverage and forced a fumble. A sure tackler, 17 of McLemore's 23 tackles were solo stops. McLemore was drafted in the 10th round of the 1982 selection of college seniors. Dana's 1982 stats included 16 kickoff returns for 353 yards and a 22.1-yard average, and seven punt returns for 156 yards and a 22.3 average — the best average in the league (though he was listed among "non-qualifiers" because he was two returns shy of the minimum to qualify. However, his 156 yards on nine returns still would have given him an '82 NFL-high 17.3 average).

COLLEGE: McLemore was a return specialist who doubled as a defensive back at Hawaii, too. He was a four-year starter at cornerback for the Rainbow Warriors (41 games) and totaled 180 tackles (140 solo/40 assists). He had 41 initial hits and five assists in 1981 as a senior All-Western Athletic Conference pick. He returned 31 punts for 261 yards and an 8.4 average in '81, with a long of 51 yards.

PERSONAL: Dana was born in Los Angeles and grew up in Southern California. He was a standout athlete at Venice High School. McLemore was a flanker, defensive back, punter (46.4 average), and back-up kicker for PATs and kickoffs in his senior season. He carried the ball 73 times for 392 yards and five scores; caught 21 passes for 386 yards and five TDs; and had 33 tackles (24 solo/9 assists) and three interceptions on defense. Dana has a 4.49 clocking in the 40-yard dash. He resides in San Mateo, Calif.

Carl Monroe • 32

RUNNING BACK-RETURN SPECIALIST • UTAH • 3RD YEAR
HT: 5-8 • WT: 180 • BORN: 2-20-60 • (FA IN '83)

PRO: Last season was a year of firsts for Carl Monroe. He scored his first touchdown as a professional with the Niners' first score of the season on a five-yard pass from Joe Montana in the '84 opener in Detroit (9-2). Monroe had his first career game of more than 100 all-purpose yards against Tampa Bay (11-18), when he accounted for 115 yards (73 receiving/42 returning) to aid the victory. And the highlight of Carl's season came when he scored the first touchdown of Super Bowl XIX on a 33-yard Montana toss. For the season, Monroe was the TEAM LEADER with 27 kickoff returns and 561 yards. He also accounted for 139 yards receiving and 13 rushing yards on three carries. In all, his 713 all-purpose yards were the most by any non-starting player on the team last year. The San Jose product added eight tackles on special teams, including a personal best three-tackle performance against Cincinnati (11-4). Monroe contributed 75 all-purpose yards in three postseason games and that first 49ers' score in Super Bowl XIX. A free agent in 1983, Monroe won a job by performing one of the more dangerous tasks in the game — returning kickoffs. Carl had returned eight kickoffs for 152 yards before sustaining a broken foot in the Niners' contest versus the Patriots in New England (10-2-83). He also had 23 rushing yards and 61 receiving yards through the first five games of that year (at the time of his injury). Monroe was on injured reserve for the final 11 regular season games, but returned for both playoff contests in 1983 (he had no postseason stats on offense, but recorded three tackles).

COLLEGE: Monroe set single season records for rushing attempts (309) and rushing yards (1,507) with the Utes in '82. His yardage total established a WAC record for a single season.

PERSONAL: He was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., and attended Overfelt High in San Jose, Calif. Carl is married (Karen) and they reside in Sunnyvale, Calif.

Joe Montana • 16

QUARTERBACK • NOTRE DAME • 7TH YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 195 • BORN: 6-11-56 • (D-3 IN '79)

PRO: Joe Montana's performance in Super Bowl XIX solidified his position of preeminence among professional football quarterbacks. Joe set a SUPER BOWL RECORD with 331 passing yards, while completing 24 of 35 passes, including three for touchdowns. His overall field generalship and clutch performance won him Super Bowl XIX MVP honors, just as it had in SB XVI. He shares the honor of dual Super Bowl MVP selections with Bart Starr and Terry Bradshaw. However, one game does not a career make, and Super Bowl XIX was merely an excerpt from the long running serial entitled "The Joe Montana Story." The overriding theme of the story has been success. As a collegian, and now as a professional, Montana has displayed the blend of talent, technique, and temperament that spell victory. In his last 68 starts (entering 1985), Joe has directed the Niners to 49 victories (.721) and two World Championships. It is also during this period that Joe has climbed to the summit among all-time NFL quarterbacks. His 92.7 rating is the best for any NFL quarterback who has attempted at least 1,500 passes, and is the HIGHEST NFL CAREER RATING ever recorded. Joe is also the all-time NFL LEADER in completion percentage (.637) and interception avoidance (2.6). Montana, who had been the all-time leader with an 89.8 rating entering 1984, improved his career figures by 2.9 points with a brilliant 102.9 rating last year. He was the NFC INDIVIDUAL PASSING CHAMPION last year for the second time and tied with the Cardinals' Neil Lomax for most touchdown passes (28) among NFC quarterbacks. Montana threw for more than 3,500 yards (3,630) for the third time in the last four seasons, while setting a TEAM RECORD for completion percentage (.646). Joe had the 11th 300-yard game of his career the second week of the season against Washington (9-10), racking up a season high 381 yards. A bruised sternum forced Joe out of the fourth quarter of the first New Orleans Saints game (9-16). He missed his first start in 49 games (including playoffs) the following week in Philadelphia (9-23), but returned to throw two TD passes in a win over Atlanta (9-30). The former Notre Dame star had his first of four three-passing-touchdown games (in '84) versus the N.Y. Giants (10-8). Montana's career-long 80-yard touchdown pass to Dwight Clark in the Astrodome against Houston, capped a 25 of 35 (.714), 353-yard three-touchdowns-passing day. The quarterback had his third consecutive 300-yard passing game while throwing season highs in attempts (42) and completions (27) in the come-from-behind victory against Cincinnati (11-4). He completed an astounding .826 (19 of 23) of his passes versus Tampa Bay (11-18), and threw nine touchdown passes in the final four games of the regular season. Joe threw for 542 yards and four touchdowns in the two playoff games prior to Super Bowl XIX, and was the team's second leading ground gainer in the postseason with 144 yards. He had a career-long 53-yard run in the divisional playoff game with the Giants (12-29) and set a SUPER BOWL RECORD for quarterbacks by rushing for 59 yards in Super Bowl XIX. Although the numbers are impressive, statistics tell only half the story of Montana's equation for success. Possibly, his strongest attribute as an athlete is his ability to improvise at the line of scrimmage, and while the ball is in play. Joe's scrambling ability is the single factor opposing teams can't counter. Last year, that dimension accounted for 118 rushing yards. He hit for over 200 yards and four touchdowns on plays in which he ventured out of the pocket. Montana matched his quick feet with an equally quick mind by throwing for over 400 yards and three touchdowns on plays in which he audibled at the line of scrimmage. Combined, Joe connected on 25% (7 of his 28) 1984 touchdown passes on "improvised" plays. Two scores of 60-or-more yards, and two plays of better than 50 yards came on Montana audibles or scrambles.

COLLEGE: Montana turned down several scholarship offers and was set to go to North Carolina State on a basketball ride before Notre Dame offered him a football scholarship. During his Fighting Irish career, Montana completed 260 of 515 passes (.522 percent) for 4,121 yards and 25 touchdowns. As a senior, he completed 141 of 260 passes (.542 percent) for 2,010 yards and ten TDs, and earned national acclaim in the Cotton Bowl when he guided Notre Dame to a grand comeback against Houston. Montana brought the Irish back from a 34-12 deficit midway through the fourth period to a 35-34 win with no time showing on the clock. Notre Dame won the national championship with Joe at quarterback in 1977. He redshirted in 1976 and didn't start a full season until '78 (Joe once calculated that he was the seventh string quarterback early in his collegiate career).

PERSONAL: Born Joseph C. Montana in New Eagle, Pa., Joe attended Ringgold High School in Monongahela and was a standout in basketball, baseball and football there. The name "Montana" is Italian ("My dad says there used to be a 'g' before the last 'n'," says Joe). He calls Joe Namath (who hails from Beaver Falls, Pa., near Monongahela) his hero; and he earned his business administration/marketing degree from Notre Dame in December, 1978. Joe was named the 49ers' Lite NFL Man-of-the-Year (sponsored by the Miller Brewing Co.) in 1984. He married actress-model Jennifer Wallace (2-24-85) during the past offseason.

Blanchard Montgomery • 52

LINEBACKER • UCLA • 3RD YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 236 • BORN: 2-17-61 • (D-3 IN '83)

PRO: Blanchard Montgomery was one of the stallworths of the impressive San Francisco special teams units in 1984. He played on the punt and kickoff coverage and return teams for all 16 regular season games and all three postseason contests. He recorded 15 total tackles, equaling the total of his rookie season in 1983. Blanchard also forced a fumble on one of his 11 solo stops. He saw the majority of his playing time on special teams, while making the transition from inside to outside linebacker. His ability to play both positions gives the Niners flexibility and depth in the linebacking corps. "Blanchard is maturing into a quality performer," says President-head coach Bill Walsh. "He plays very well on our special teams and always gives the team his all-out effort." Montgomery started the first three games of '83 at the right inside linebacker spot. He played in 11 games in '83, contributing 15 tackles and one defended pass. A neck injury forced him out of the final five regular season games and all postseason play.

COLLEGE: Blanchard had three games of 12-or-more total tackles, including a season high of 19 versus Southern Cal for the Bruins in 1982. His eight tackles, two sacks, and 11-yard interception return of a touchdown were instrumental in UCLA's 24-14 defeat of Michigan in the 1983 Rose Bowl. Blanchard had 93 tackles (fourth on the team) in 1981, after making 17 stops as a backup linebacker during his first year on defense in 1980. He rushed for 20 yards and averaged 4.0 yards a carry as a freshman fullback.

PERSONAL: He was born Blanchard Montgomery III in Los Angeles, Calif., and played football at Granada Hills High, in the suburban Los Angeles area. Blanchard was a tailback on the G.H.H.S. team that featured a pass-oriented offense led by QB John Elway (Denver Broncos).

Renaldo Nehemiah • 83

WIDE RECEIVER • MARYLAND • 4TH YEAR
HT: 6-1 • WT: 183 • BORN: 3-24-59 • (FA IN '82)

PRO: With each season the numbers have improved, not at the dramatic pace originally projected, but the numbers have gotten better. Last season, Renaldo Nehemiah improved his average per catch by nearly four yards (from 15.9 in '83 to 19.8). He had two touchdown receptions of 59 yards, the first an electrifying catch-and-run down the sideline on the sixth play of the game against the N.Y. Giants (10-8). Renaldo hauled in his second 59-yarder in front of a Candlestick Park crowd versus Minnesota (12-8). In the Viking contest, Nehemiah set personal bests with six catches and 125 yards. In all, the speedster had eight catches of 20-or-more yards and his 19.8 average per reception made him the TEAM LEADER in that category. For the year, Renaldo bettered his single season highs in each receiving standard. His 18 catches was one better than the previous high of 17 from '83. The 357 yards, 19.8 average, two touchdowns, and long reception of 59 yards (and he did it twice) all surpassed his personal bests of last season. Nehemiah also had one catch for 10 yards in the NFC Championship Game. "Renaldo played with more confidence and aggressiveness last year than he had displayed before," stated Niners quarterbacks-receivers coach Paul Hackett. After catching eight passes for 161 yards as a rookie in 1982, "Skeets" more than doubled that total with 17 receptions for 236 yards and one touchdown in 1983. Renaldo aided the Niners with three catches (averaging 15.3 yards) during postseason play in '83.

COLLEGE: Sought by colleges in three sports (football, basketball, and track), Nehemiah selected the track program at the University of Maryland and did not play college football. In the fall of '77, he began rewriting the NCAA indoor and outdoor record books, and was ranked No. 1 in the world in the 110-meter hurdles from his first day on campus until turning his attention to pro football in April, 1982.

PERSONAL: Renaldo was born in Newark, N.J., and grew up in Scotch Plains, N.J., attending high school there. A high school quarterback, he was voted New Jersey's Prep Athlete-of-the-Year as a senior. Skeets set the world record in his specialty (the 110-meter high hurdles) with a 12.93 clocking at the Weltklass International Track Meet in Zurich, Switzerland, August 19, 1981. At the time he entered professional football, Renaldo held four world indoor hurdles marks: 50 yards (5.92), 60 yards (6.82), 50 meters (6.36) and 55 meters (6.89). He first broke the world record outdoors at the 1979 Bruce Jenner Classic at San Jose (Calif.) City College, running a 13.16. Some of his major wins include: 1978 — AAU; 1979 — NCAA (12.91w), AAU (13.19), Pan Am Games (13.20), World Cup (13.39); 1980 — AAU/TAC (13.49), US Olympic Trials (13.26). Skeets won three consecutive (1981-83) U.S. Mens' Superstars competitions (an event staged for ABC-TV by Trans World International each year in Florida). And it was at the 1982 Superstars event that Nehemiah was encouraged to give the NFL a try (by 49ers' Dwight Clark, Cincinnati's Cris Collinsworth and the Jets' Mark Gastlineau). Renaldo

William "Bubba" Paris • 77

TACKLE • MICHIGAN • 3RD YEAR
HT: 6-6 • WT: 299 • BORN: 10-6-60 • (D-2 IN '82)

PRO: Offensive left tackle is a critical position in most NFL offenses. The player must be an effective run blocker on weak-side sweeps, while protecting the "blind side" of his quarterback in passing situations. William "Bubba" Paris has occupied the left tackle spot for San Francisco the last two seasons. His play on the line has been instrumental in aiding the Niners offense to run effectively. The massive tackle caved in defensive lines with his large frame and strong drive blocking. "Bubba" has shown steady improvement in his pass blocking abilities while facing many of the best pass-rushing defensive ends in the NFL. He took on one of the toughest challenges of his career in the NFC Championship Game (1-6), facing Chicago's Richard Dent. The Bear's lineman led the NFC with 17½ sacks during the regular season, and had three traps in the divisional playoff game the week prior to the championship contest, but Paris allowed Dent only four total tackles and no sacks. A knee injury in the final preseason game of 1982 robbed "Bubba" of what should have been his rookie season. He competed in all 16 regular season games and both playoff contests in 1983. He had his string of 28 consecutive starts (including playoffs) broken when a bruised knee relegated him to the extra point and field goal protection teams at Cleveland (11-11). "Bubba is a powerful man with outstanding agility for his size," says Bill Walsh. "We think that he has great potential and will show continued development." The 49ers' first pick in the '82 NFL draft (as a second round choice — 29th player selected overall), he was the first offensive lineman since Randy Cross chosen first by the 49ers in the annual NFL draft (Cross was picked in the second round of 1976 as the 49ers' initial choice as a center out of UCLA). Paris also was the first offensive lineman drafted in any round by Bill Walsh.

COLLEGE: Paris earned a bundle of honors for the Wolverines while starting the final 32 games of his Michigan career. He played in three postseason all-star bowl games (Hula, Japan, Olympia Gold) and earned Walter Camp All-America, 2nd team Academic All-America, College and Pro Football Newsweekly 2nd team All-America and All-Big Ten.

PERSONAL: Bubba was born in Louisville, Ky., and attended DeSales High School in that city. He was his high school's MVP, team captain, all-state and All-America. His nickname was given him by high school teammates who compared him to former All-NFL defensive end Bubba Smith. He and his wife, Lynne, have three sons — Wayne (4-27-80), David Allen (2-3-84), and Austin Bubba (2-5-85). Paris is president of Paris Enterprises, a communications-advertising firm located in Redwood City, Calif. He also served as a motivational speaker for charitable and business events during the '84 offseason.

STATS: Regular Season Games/Starts - 1983 (16/16), 1984 (16/15), career (32/31); Postseason Games/Starts - 1983 (2/2), 1984 (3/3), postseason totals (5/5).

Fred Quillan • 56

CENTER • OREGON • 8TH YEAR
HT: 6-5 • WT: 266 • BORN: 1-27-56 • (D-7 IN '78)

PRO: According to Fred Quillan: "the center position is probably the most anonymous of the most anonymous group (offensive linemen) on the football field." However, opposing players recognized Quillan's talents by voting him as the starting center for his first NFC-AFC Pro Bowl game last year. Bill Walsh was delighted with the selection of Quillan as one of three starting 49ers linemen in the Pro Bowl. "When a player is voted to the Pro Bowl as Fred Quillan was, without much fanfare, without a lot of publicity, that means he's really respected by everyone in the League," said Walsh. Quillan, and his mates on the Niners front line, clearly earned the respect of Bears head coach Mike Ditka, who's No. 1 ranked defense yielded nearly 400 total yards and 23 points in the NFC Championship Game (1-6-85). "The San Francisco offensive line blocked us and blocked us good," said Ditka. "They blocked us better than any other team did all last year." Quillan serves as the focal point of the line that allowed the Niners to set a SUPER BOWL RECORD with 537 total yards. Fred started all 16 regular season games, although he missed the second half of the Redskins contest (9-10) with a concussion. Steady and durable, Fred has started 100 of the last 102 regular and postseason 49ers games. He was named All-NFC by UPI and Pro Football Weekly last year, in addition to a 2nd team selection to the College and Pro Football Newsweekly's all-pro team. Quillan was forced out of his usual role of starting center for two games in 1983. He returned against the Saints (11-13-83) and started the final six games of the regular season and both postseason confrontations. Quillan was selected in the seventh round of the 1978 draft by San Francisco. He earned his first start for the 49ers in Game 10 of 1978 (at Atlanta, 11-5-78). Fred received that initial starting nod in '78 when Randy Cross — then the team's center — was injured and had to sit out a portion of the campaign. Cross was moved to guard upon his return to good health (because Quillan was doing so well at center).

COLLEGE: Fred played several positions at Oregon and was named an All-West Coast center as a junior. He played mostly tackle during his senior season.

PERSONAL: Quillan was born in West Palm Beach, Fla., and grew up in Portland, Ore. He graduated from Central Catholic High School in Portland and was a three-sport athlete there. He originally was recruited as a tight end by the Ducks. His NFL stats include a kickoff return for eight yards in 1978. Fred got married (Susan) during the '83 offseason (7-9-83), and the Quillans make their home in San Mateo, Calif.

STATS: Regular season games/starts - 1978 (14/7), 1979 (16/16), 1980 (16/16), 1981 (16/16), 1982 (9/9), 1983 (14/14), 1984 (16/16), career (101/94); Postseason games/starts - 1981 (3/3), 1983 (2/2), 1984 (3/3), postseason totals (8/8).

Bill Ring • 30

RUNNING BACK • BRIGHAM YOUNG • 5TH YEAR
HT: 5-10 • WT: 205 • BORN: 12-13-56 • (FA IN '81)

PRO: A classic overachiever, Bill Ring has far exceeded the parameters of most men of his size and talent in the tough job market of the National Football League. He has done so by applying his upmost energies on becoming the best he can be. As captain of the 49ers special teams units, Ring totaled 16 tackles, despite being double-team blocked on many kickoffs. He sacrificed his body in blocking a punt against the Atlanta Falcons (12-2). The punt struck a diving Ring in the stomach, and the alert athlete recovered the aborted punt at the Falcons 37-yard line. Although he had the fewest rushing attempts since his rookie season, Billy had a career-high three rushing touchdowns. Ring rambled for a career-long 34-yard run in his best ground gaining performance of the season (48 yards) in Cleveland (11-11). Billy was in the starting lineup (for the only time in '84) the following week against Tampa Bay replacing Wendell Tyler. The Brigham Young University graduate had three receptions last year (matching his rookie season total) for 10 yards. The five-year star also had a 27-yard kickoff return last season. Ring had an incredible six tackles in the three postseason games, including four in the NFC Championship Game versus Chicago (1-6). He set the tone of that game on the opening kickoff by nailing Bears speedster Willie Gault on Chicago's 18-yard line. "Billy is one of our team leaders," says Bill Walsh. "He has a vital role in every one of our games, both on special teams and from the line of scrimmage." Bill led the special teams units with 15 total tackles in 1983. He also returned four kickoffs last year in addition to his duties as backup fullback. Billy started five games in '83 at the fullback position and accounted for 254 yards rushing on an impressive 4.0-yards per attempt. Ring also contributed 182 yards on 23 receptions. He rushed for 52 yards and added 26 receiving yards in his best game of '83, the 49ers 24-20 win over Atlanta (9-25-83). His 504 combined yards (rushing/receiving/returns) was fourth highest total on the team that season. At the conclusion of the campaign, Bill's teammates selected him recipient of the Len Eshmont Award, given annually to a Niner for his "courageous and inspirational play" (the team's single highest honor). Originally, Bill signed as a free agent with Pittsburgh (5-7-80), but was released in that team's final preseason cut (8-25-80). He signed with the 49ers a year later (4-14-81) as a free agent, but was placed on injured reserve (8-17-81) after severely cutting his hand at summer training camp. He was activated a month later (9-18-81), was waived (9-22-81), and was re-signed three weeks later (10-7-81), this time to stay.

COLLEGE: Bill played two years at the College of San Mateo before transferring to BYU, where he rushed for 782 yards, averaging 4.5 yards per carry. He was the MVP of the 1979 Japan Bowl.

PERSONAL: Ring was born in Des Moines, Iowa, grew up in California, and attended Carlmont High School in Belmont, Calif. He earned his degree in finance from BYU in April, 1980. Ring is involved in many fundraisers and has willingly given of his time for more than 100 charities each of the past four offseasons. He was named the 49ers' Lite NFL Man-of-the-Year (sponsored by the Miller Brewing Co.) in 1983. During the past offseason, Billy married the former Connie Wooding (6-19-85). They call San Mateo, Calif., their home.

Max Runager • 4

PUNTER • SOUTH CAROLINA • 7TH YEAR
 HT: 6-1 • WT: 189 • BORN: 3-24-56 • (FA IN '84)

PRO: He stabilized what might have been the Niners only suspect position entering the '84 campaign. Max Runager gave San Francisco the caliber of consistent punting that had been lacking for many years. Max joined the team following the second regular season game, replacing the waived Tom Orosz. He punted five times in his initial contest as a 49er (vs. New Orleans, 9-16) and averaged 40.8 yards. Two weeks later against Atlanta, Max booted five times and averaged 43.8 yards. His best punting game of the season came in Houston (10-21), when he averaged nearly 50 yards (49.3) on three punts. His punting remained consistent throughout the season as in eight of 14 games Runager averaged better than 40 yards per kick, with five contests in which he bettered 45 yards per punt. Conversely, Max had only one game in which his average dipped below 38 yards a punt. For the season, Runager set a career-high with his 41.8 mark on 56 punts. The average was the highest for a 49er punter since Tom Wittum posted a 41.9 mark in 1975. Additionally, Runager's accurate placements pinned opponents inside their 20-yard line 18 times in 1984. Due to his excellent hang time on punts, the coverage teams allowed only 6.3 yards a return, the fifth-lowest mark in the League. "Max has proven to be an excellent competitor and good clutch punter," says Bill Walsh. "He actually has become a team leader, well received by the squad." Max had been among the final cuts of the Philadelphia Eagles in '84. He had played five years in Philadelphia after being selected in the eighth round of the 1979 draft. Runager's final season with the Eagles (1983) was a roller coaster ride in which he was cut after four games and re-signed four weeks later. Max established a then-career high with a 41.7-yard average, while playing in 12 games. He also dropped 12 punts inside the 20-yard line. He averaged 40.5 yards in '82, and kicked a career-long 64-yard punt, while averaging 40.7 yards per attempt in 1981.

COLLEGE: Runager was a walk-on for the South Carolina Gamecocks. He set a school record, averaging 42.8 yards as a junior. Max was a team captain, and averaged 40.8 during his senior season.

PERSONAL: Max was born in Orangeburg, S.C., and played football for Orangeburg Wilkerson High. He and his wife, Mikie, have one son, Kolby (4-7-83). Runager is very involved in civic and charitable affairs in both the San Francisco and Philadelphia areas. The Runager family lives in Williamsburg, Va., during the offseason.

Jesse Sapolu • 61

GUARD • HAWAII • 2ND YEAR
HT: 6-4 • WT: 260 • BORN: 3-10-61 • (D-11 IN '83)

PRO: 1984 was a season of frustration for Jesse Sapolu. The second-year guard fractured his right foot while working out just days prior to the opening of summer training camp. He stayed in a cast throughout the preseason and remained on the physically unable to perform (PUP) list until after the mid-way point in the campaign. Jesse was finally activated for a contest in Cleveland (11-11), where he played on short yardage situations. However, his foot was refractured the following week in practice when it was stepped on by a teammate. That injury placed Jesse back on I.R. for the remainder of the year. Jesse played in all 16 regular season games and both postseason tilts during his rookie year in the League in 1983. He started at right guard the 10th week of the season against Miami (11-6-83), when Randy Cross moved over to center — replacing the injured Fred Quillan. Sapolu also saw plenty of playing time two weeks prior, versus the Rams (10-23-83) — when Quillan originally was injured. In addition to his play from scrimmage, Jesse had two solo tackles on special teams and played on the field goal and extra point protection teams in '83. Sapolu was drafted in the 11th round in 1983.

COLLEGE: Jesse started three years at guard (before moving to center his senior season) for the Rainbow Warriors of Hawaii. He was named to the Freshman All-America Team in 1979 and was the only sophomore selected to the All-WAC Team in 1980. He also received all-coast and All-America honorable mention awards following the '80 season.

PERSONAL: He was born in Western Samona. He served as team captain and won all-state honors in football at Farrington High in Southern California, where he also lettered in track, basketball, and wrestling. Jesse resides in Honolulu, Ha., during the offseason with his wife, Melanie Ann, and their daughter, Lila Kawailehua (1-16-84).

PRO: Being a No. 1 draft choice means carrying the mixed bag of potential and pressure. The player must prove to teammates and coaches that he is worthy of the promise the team has invested in him.

Todd Shell was San Francisco's first round selection in 1984, and the team's first initial round pick since Ronnie Lott was taken in 1981. In his rookie season, Todd displayed flashes of brilliance. He was the leader among non-starting defenders with 42 tackles. Shell made the majority of his stops while covering punts and kickoffs, but he did see considerable action at the nickel linebacker position during the month of November, replacing Jeff Fuller. It was during that period that Shell had his best overall game of the year — in New Orleans (11-25) with six tackles (including two sacks for 17 yards), two passes defended, and a 53-yard interception return for a touchdown. The score was the first for the Niners defensive unit in 1984. Todd had a personal single game-high nine tackles and another interception to aid the victory over the Minnesota Vikings (12-8). Shell continued his strong play during the postseason, racking up 11 total tackles in the three games. He had eight stops and one pass defended in a non-starting role in the NFC Championship Game against Chicago (1-6). Shell's strong showing during the second half of the season differed from earlier in the year when the young linebacker spent more time in the training room than on the playing field. He injured a knee during summer camp, then had problems with his hamstring and ankle during the opening weeks of the regular season. However, his progress in the later stages of the year (and increased weight) makes Shell a possible prospect at starting strongside linebacker. Shell was the 24th player selected in the first round of the 1984 draft.

COLLEGE: Shell averaged over 100 tackles in each of his last two years at BYU, and was named All-Western Athletic Conference both seasons. He finished his career with 272 tackles, 24 sacks and seven fumble recoveries.

PERSONAL: Todd was born in Mesa, Az., and played football and participated in track and field at Mountain View High there. A high-jumper during his prep days, Shell cleared 6-10 in competition. His high school football teams won the state championship during Shell's junior and senior seasons, and BYU won four consecutive WAC crowns during Todd's collegiate career. By being on the winning team in Super Bowl XIX, Shell has a string of seven consecutive championship seasons in progress. His two favorite teams (BYU/13-0 and the 49ers/18-1) combined for a 31-1 record in 1984. Todd and his wife, Kelli, have one son, Todd Tanner (10-20-80), and live in Mesa.

"Name" Backfields

The San Francisco 49ers have been known for their "name" backfields. From 1954 through 1956 it was "The Million Dollar Backfield" of Y.A. Tittle, Joe Perry, Hugh McElhenny and John Henry Johnson. Then, in 1960, came "The Alphabet Backfield" of Y.A. Tittle, J.D. Smith, R.C. Owens and C.R. Roberts.

Billy Shields • 67

TACKLE • GEORGIA TECH • 11TH YEAR
HT: 6-8 • WT: 279 • BORN: 8/23/53 • (FA IN '84)

PRO: With "Bubba" Paris suffering from ailing knees, San Francisco acquired veteran tackle Billy Shields (9-27-84) on waivers from San Diego. The insurance move paid off when Shields replaced the injured Paris in the starting lineup for the Niners-Browns clash (11-11). Although he played mainly on field goal and extra point protection teams for the remainder of the season, Billy's experience and team dedication were valuable to San Francisco. "Billy came to this team with an excellent attitude," stated Bill Walsh. "He really helped in the development of our young offensive linemen." Shields' sideline counseling of Paris during the Tampa Bay game helped the latter in his play against all-pro defensive end Leroy Selmon. "Billy may have been one of the unsung heroes today," said offensive line coach Bobb McKittrick following the Tampa Bay game. "I could see what was happening, but sometimes it's better to have a player tell another player what's going on out there." Shields was waived by the San Diego Chargers following a long contract dispute. Prior to last season, Billy had started 97 consecutive games for the Chargers, and 113 of the last 114. Shields was traded to the Minnesota Vikings from San Diego during training camp, but could not reach an agreement with his new club. Minnesota then sent Shields back to San Diego, where he was released by the Chargers. Shields had served as a mountain of protection in a pass-oriented offense. His ability to keep many of the best weak-side pass rushers away from the quarterback helped the Chargers lead the NFL in total offense for five consecutive years (1979-83). The former 1975 sixth-round draft choice developed from a 220-pound drive-blocker to a fine all-purpose tackle. He was selected as an alternate to the Pro Bowl following the 1982 and '83 seasons.

COLLEGE: Billy was co-captain of the 1974 Georgia Tech team, and an All-Southeast Independents' choice that year.

PERSONAL: He was born William Dean Shields in Vicksburg, Miss., and played football and basketball for Banks High in Birmingham, Ala. He and his wife, Laurel, have three children — Brian (1-9-75), Preston (10-6-77), and Rebecca (8-19-80). They are very active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Freddie Solomon • 88

WIDE RECEIVER • TAMPA • 11TH YEAR
HT: 5-11 • WT: 188 • BORN: 1-11-53 • (TRADE IN '78)

PRO: Excluding quarterback Joe Montana, Freddie Solomon could be the most important element in the multi-dimensional 49ers offense. Solomon provides the team with a legitimate "deep threat" receiver who has proven over his ten years in the League that he is capable of making the big play. He was the TEAM LEADER and set a career-high with ten receiving touchdowns. Freddie also scored on a three-yard run to establish another career-high with 66 total points scored during the '84 campaign. He became the only Niners' receiver to catch more than one touchdown pass in a game last season when he snagged two against the Cleveland Browns (11-11). The first of the two scores, Solomon combined with quarterback Joe Montana on what was possibly the best display of athletic ability (by two 49ers on a single play) during the entire 1984 season. Montana scrambled left and threw back across the field to Solomon on the right sideline. Freddie spun away from one tackle, then stepped out of another defender's grasp, prior to racing the final 40 yards to complete a 60-yard touchdown play. The former University of Tampa quarterback had a 64-yard TD on his only reception at Atlanta (12-2). He recorded his third touchdown catch of 40-or-more yards with a 47-yarder in the season finale against the Rams (12-14). Freddie continued to come through with the big play during postseason. His critical 29-yard TD catch helped swing momentum back to San Francisco after the New York Giants had rallied to within four points. In the NFC Championship Game against Chicago (1-6), Solomon had a season-high seven receptions for 73 yards, including a 10-yard fourth quarter touchdown catch to give San Francisco a 20-0 lead. For the season, Solomon totaled 40 receptions and 737 yards. His 18.4 average bettered his career mark of 16.1. Solomon's impact as a player is probably best measured by the team's lack of success when he is not on the field. In the last two years, the 49ers have lost four of the six contests in which Freddie has not played (S.F. is 27-4 with Freddie in the line-up over that same period, and 2-4 without him). Last season, the fleet receiver pulled a hamstring muscle versus Atlanta (9-30) that took him out of the lineup for the following two games. He was forced back into action against Houston (10-21), although still hobbled, when his replacement, Mike Wilson, sustained a knee injury. Freddie started the next week in Anaheim versus the Rams and made a brilliant touchdown catch in the back of the endzone that put San Francisco ahead, 19-0, just before halftime. That catch began a TEAM-RECORD streak of eight consecutive games (10, counting playoffs) scoring a touchdown in a single season. The string continued for the first two games of the playoffs, and Solomon just missed on a touchdown hook-up in Super Bowl XIX. In addition to his impressive receiving statistics, Solomon had an '84 regular-season TEAM-LEADING 47-yard run from scrimmage on an end reverse at New Orleans (11-25). "Freddie is more like a quarterhorse than any football player I know," said Bill Walsh. "He has explosive quickness and is very tough. Against blitzes, he's really a weapon because he accelerates so fast by the individual defenders." Solomon established a TEAM RECORD with his 21.4-yard average per reception in 1983. He had collected 520 yards and 25 receptions through the first half of that season before sustaining a pulled muscle in the Niners-Rams contest (10-23-83). That injury kept him out of the next four games as San Francisco fell from 6-2, to 7-5 without Freddie in the lineup. Solomon finished the '83 regular season with 31 receptions (5th on the team), 662 yards (2nd on the team), and four touchdowns. Freddie originally was drafted 2A by Miami in 1975. He played three seasons for the Dolphins before coming to San Francisco prior to the 1978 campaign. In 1980, he became the first 49er in history to return two punts for scores in a single season and was named All-NFC as a punt returner by Pro-Football Weekly.

COLLEGE: Solomon played quarterback at the University of Tampa for four years (1971-74), rushing for 39 TDs and passing for 11 others during his career. He had 17 games with 100-or-more yards rushing, and his career totals were 3,299 yards on 557 carries and 2,504 yards on 188 completions in 436 attempts. He played in the College All-Star Game in Chicago in '75.

PERSONAL: Freddie was born in Sumter, S.C., and attended Sumter High School. He and his wife (former Delilah Jeffers) split their off-season time between their homes in San Carlos, Calif., and Tampa, Fla. He once had an amazing 252-yard, three-TD game against Buffalo (1976), when he scored on a 79-yard punt return, a 59-yard flanker reverse, and a 53-yard pass reception for the Miami Dolphins. Over the past few years, Freddie has become more and more involved with charitable organizations and his favorite charity is the National Kidney Foundation. He sponsors celebrity golf tournaments in both California and Florida (and this past off-season those two events grossed over $50,000, and over the past four years, they've made more than $160,000) for NKF each spring. Fred earned his P.E. degree in April, 1975, from Tampa. He was selected 49ers' NFL Man-of-the-Year for 1982 (sponsored by Miller Brewing Co.) as the team's "outstanding citizen-athlete."

Jeff Stover • 72

DEFENSIVE END • OREGON • 4TH YEAR
HT: 6-5 • WT: 275 • BORN: 5-22-58 • (FA IN '82)

PRO: Jeff Stover's 1984 season was a triumph of individual dedication and desire. In only his third year of returning to football (after a six-year absence), Jeff won the starting job at defensive left end. His play during training camp, and in the early preseason games, convinced the San Francisco coaching staff of Stover's arrival as an NFL player. Unfortunately, Jeff tore ligaments in his knee in the fourth quarter of the opener in Detroit (9-2), which appeared to be season-ending at the time of the injury. Astoundingly, Jeff stayed on the injured reserve list only ten weeks! He was back in uniform playing in passing situations for the San Francisco-Tampa Bay contest (11-18). He recorded his first sack of the season in his second game back from the knee injury — against New Orleans (11-25). Stover was back in the starting lineup facing the Minnesota Vikings (12-8) and picked up half-a-sack in the game, finishing the regular season with five total tackles and 1½ sacks for 13½ yards. He equaled his regular season sack total in the three playoff contests while recording six total tackles. Stover spent his sophomore season in the NFL as a valuable utility player on the Niners' defensive line. He played in all 16 regular season games and accounted for 16 total tackles and 2½ quarterback sacks in 1983. Jeff also forced a fumble and had one fumble recovery, as he continued to show improvement in only his second season of football since his senior year of high school, back in 1975. Jeff has been able to learn a lot in a short amount of time. In 1982, Stover was working as a carpenter, building houses in Chico, Calif., regretting never having played football beyond high school. He decided to find out if he could still play. Jeff asked former Niner Leon Donohue, a friend and Shasta College football coach, to help. Donohue called Seattle first since the Seahawks were in Jeff's college "neighborhood," and they expressed an interest, but when Donohue called San Francisco, the Niners immediately paid his way for a tryout. "I ran a 4.7 40 for the 49ers, and the rest is history as they say," explains Stover.

COLLEGE: Jeff did not play football for the Ducks; instead he threw the hammer and put the shot for Oregon's perennially powerful track and field team. He still ranks third among the all-time Oregon shot putters (68-4½ personal record from 1980) and seventh among the career hammer throwers (193-1 personal record from '79). Stover was a four-year letterman (1977-'80) in that sport in Eugene, and won the Pac-10 shot crown as a sophomore (64-9½) and senior (64-1¾). He was fourth in 1979.

PERSONAL: Jeff Owen Stover was born in Corning, Calif., and attended high school there. He played fullback and defensive end at Corning High. He is married (Lori) and they make their offseason home in Chico, Calif., with a baby girl — Stefanie Lynn (3-22-83). 49ers' veteran offensive tackle Keith Fahnhorst describes Jeff as "so damn strong, it's unbelievable (he can "clean" 400 pounds — that's a weight lift from the floor to above the shoulders in one motion). I remember the first time I lined up across from him, he shocked me with his quickness and strength."

Jim Stuckey • 79

DEFENSIVE END • CLEMSON • 6TH YEAR
 HT: 6-4 • WT: 253 • BORN: 6-21-58 • (D-1B IN '80)

PRO: Jim Stuckey is the "steady and heady" player among the Niners defensive linemen. Jim has played in every regular season game for the 49ers over the last three seasons. No other member of the San Francisco defensive line can boast of that feat. The Clemson product registered more total tackles last season (32) than in any of the last three years, and for the second consecutive year, "Stuck" recorded 2½ sacks as he started seven games. He also played in the Niners nickel defense. "Jim was more physical last year," said defensive line coach Bill McPherson. "He was able to use the strength developed from offseason weight training on the playing field for the first time. That really helped his effectiveness." Stuckey saw limited action during the three postseason games, but did manage one quarterback sack for a two-yard loss. Stuckey provided solid play through all regular and postseason games in 1983, contributing 27 total tackles. After being drafted 1B (20th player selected overall) in '80, "Stuck" ignored an ankle injury, a hip pointer, and the pressures that go with being a rookie starter in the NFL, to lead the squad in quarterback sacks with 8½ and earn All-Rookie honors. His second season was not bad either, highlighted by a "game saving" fumble recovery in the closing seconds of the 1981 NFC Championship Game with Dallas (1-10-82).

COLLEGE: Stuckey was a two-year All-America at Clemson and one of 12 finalists for the Lombardi Trophy in 1979. He was All-Atlantic Coast Conference three straight seasons and played in the Senior and Hula bowls following his career with the Tigers. In four seasons (he became a starter in the eighth game of his freshman year), Jim piled up 267 tackles (146 unassisted), 28 tackles-for-loss, four passes defended, one fumble recovery, and one intercepted pass.

PERSONAL: Born in Columbia, S.C., Jim attended Airport High School in Columbia. He splits his time between Foster City, Calif., and Clemson, S.C., during the offseason.

Manu Tuiaosopo • 78

DEFENSIVE TACKLE • UCLA • 7TH YEAR
HT: 6-3 • WT: 262 • BORN: 8-30-57 • (TRADE IN '84)

PRO: When San Francisco acquired Manu Tuiaosopo from the Seattle Seahawks last year for just two draft picks (fourth and tenth-round choices), most observers considered the deal a steal by the Niners. After watching Manu perform during the '84 season, the crime was upgraded to grand theft. Tuiaosopo (pronounced: TWO-ee-ah-so-so-po) was a pillar of stability for the 49ers last season at a position (nose tackle) suspected to be the "soft underbelly" of the defense when the year began. He started all 16 games at the demanding spot, and was in the opening lineup for all three postseason affairs. His 41 tackles were second only to Dwaine Board's 48 among niners' defensive linemen. Although smaller than most who play the position, Manu used his speed and quickness to reach the quarterback four times (third among defensive linemen). Alert and aggressive, Tuiaosopo's two fumble recoveries were second only to Gary Johnson's three pick-ups by San Francisco defenders. Manu had eight total tackles during postseason play, and made a big sack of Miami quarterback Dan Marino in the third quarter of Super Bowl XIX. "Manu came to us with just a tremendous attitude that was manifest in his play last season," stated Bill Walsh. "He filled a void in our defensive line and played beyond our expectations." Tuiaosopo was the 18th player chosen in the first round of the 1979 draft. He did not miss a single regular season game (73) during his career with the Seahawks, and also saw action during Seattle's three playoff contests in '83. Tuiaosopo was named to the All-Rookie team after starting 16 games at right defensive tackle in '79. He played defensive end for the 'Hawks for the majority of the '81 season, but was switched back to tackle in 1982. Manu was the starter at the nose tackle position in Seattle's 3-4 defensive alignment for the first eight games of '83, and concluded the year with 26 total tackles and 1½ sacks.

COLLEGE: Manu was a second team All-America in both his junior and senior years at UCLA. He was a starter on the 1976 UCLA Rose Bowl team that defeated Ohio State, and he finished his senior season with 101 tackles, second only to current Philadelphia Eagle linebacker Jerry Robinson.

PERSONAL: He was born Manu'ula (Happy Bird) Asovalu Tuiaosopo in Los Angeles, Calif. He played football and competed in the shot put for St. Anthony's High of Long Beach, Calif. Manu and his wife, Tina, have three children - Leslie (8-2-77), Marques (3-22-79), and Zachary (12-19-81) - and make their offseason home in Woodinville, Wash.

Keena Turner • 58

LINEBACKER • PURDUE • 6TH YEAR
HT: 6-2 • WT: 222 • BORN: 10-22-58 • (D-2 IN '80)

PRO: Keena Turner came of age in 1984. His ascension had been well documented by those who have watched the Purdue product develop into one of the premier linebackers in the League. But last season Turner received the ultimate compliment when he was voted by his peers to play in his first NFC-AFC Pro Bowl. That selection was symbolic of Turner's status among the elite players in the League, considered the best of the best in playing ability. Moreover, last season Keena's teammates chose him as the recipient of the Len Eshmont Award, given annually to a Niner for his "courageous and inspirational play" (the team's only single honor). What Turner did in 1984 was what he has been doing since he became a full-time starter in 1981. He shored the weak-side of the Niners defense in all facets of the game. His 70 tackles (fourth on the team) attest to his ability to defend the run. Turner's two sacks speak only partially of his impact as a blitzing linebacker, as many of Keena's rushes led to sacks by his teammates. He tied Ronnie Lott for TEAM LEADERSHIP with four interceptions, and led all Niner linebackers with 11 passes defended. Because his game is so complete, Turner is asked to play in all of the numerous San Francisco defensive alignments. No other member of the team's "front seven" must carry such a burden. Although light for his position (by NFL standards),

TURNER, Cont.

Keena annually delivers many of the "big" hits made by 49ers defenders. His second quarter stop of Miami running back Tony Nathan (following a pass reception) in Super Bowl XIX was textbook material. He recorded a team-high six tackles in the win over the Dolphins, to finish the postseason with 14 total stops (tied with Riki Ellison for second), and only cornerback Eric Wright had more passes defended (5) than Turner's three breakups during postseason play. "What amazes me about Keena," says teammate Wright, "is how things seem to come so easily to him. He does everything so well. He's multi-talented, and because of it he always gets the toughest assignments." In addition to his Pro Bowl selection, Turner was named to the College and Pro Football Weekly's all-pro second team, and UPI's All-NFC second team. In 1983, Turner had 64 total tackles (second among linebackers, fifth overall). He ruined the opposition's passing games to the tune of 3½ quarterback sacks and 10 passes defended that year. He was a second team all-pro (by NEA) in 1982, when he accounted for 58 tackles and one sack. Keena was drafted in the second round of '80 (behind two first round picks — Earl Cooper and Jim Stuckey) and finished his initial campaign with 48 tackles and two interceptions. During San Francisco's 1981 championship season, he started 17 times, counting all three playoff games.

COLLEGE: Turner was a two-time All-America and an All-Big Ten pick as one of Purdue's tri-captains. The Boilermaker MVP as a junior, Keena's senior stats included 11 tackles against UCLA; ten tackles, two QB sacks and two forced fumbles versus Ohio State; and 11 tackles against Illinois. He had 57 tackles-for-loss totaling 345 yards during his three years as a starting defensive end, and played in the Japan and Hula bowls following his Purdue career.

PERSONAL: Keena was born in Chicago, Ill., and is a product of Chicago's Vocational High School (CVS) — the same school that produced Dick Butkus (former Chicago Bears great). About his unique first name, Keena explains: "My mother (Decy) named me after a little Indian boy on a TV program." Turner was married (6-12-82) to the former Therese Hopkins, his college girlfriend. They have a daughter, Sheena, born Sept. 15, 1984, and make their home in San Carlos, Calif. When Turner had chicken pox during the 1981 playoffs, teammates joked with him: "Why don't you go line up in their huddle, not our huddle?" Keena's sideline routine in those games: "I just kept my helmet on and wouldn't look at the cameras. I looked awful."

Wendell Tyler • 26

RUNNING BACK • UCLA • 8TH YEAR
HT: 5-10 • WT: 207 • BORN: 5-20-55 • (TRADE IN '83)

PRO: You couldn't ask for a better season out of a seven-year running back than Wendell Tyler gave the 49ers in 1984. He established a personal best and all-time San Francisco TEAM RECORD with 1,262 rushing yards. The mark exceeded the previous high of 1,203 set by Delvin Williams in 1976. Tyler's 5.1-yard average per rush also set a TEAM RECORD for highest average in a single season among runners with 200-or-more attempts. Adding Wendell's 230 receiving yards, he surpassed another TEAM RECORD with 1,492 rushing/receiving yards, again bettering a Williams' record of 1,486 in '76. In all, the former UCLA Bruin was the TEAM LEADER in five offensive categories: rushing attempts, 246; rushing yards, 1,262; rushing average (min. 10 attempts), 5.1; rushing touchdowns, seven (tied with Roger Craig); and total combined yards, 1,492. The fifth ranked rusher in the NFL in '84, Tyler had four games of 100-or-more yards, including a season-high 117 yards on 15 carries (7.8 average) in New Orleans (11-25). He toted the ball an '84-high 23 times for 108 yards in the Astrodome versus Houston (10-21). Tyler accounted for 141 total yards (113 rushing/28 receiving) on the road in Philadelphia (9-23), and had his fourth 100-yard game (all on astroturf) in the Meadowlands against the N.Y. Giants (10-8). In addition to his plus-100 yard performances, the Los Angeles native had two games of more than 90 yards and three contests in which he exceeded 80 yards. In just two seasons with the 49ers, Tyler already ranks seventh on the all-time team rushing list (2,118 yards) and needs slightly more than 800 yards to surpass Wilbur Jackson and Williams for the fifth spot. His 1984 rushing total marked only the fifth time in Niners history that a running back had gone over the 1,000-yard mark in a single season. In tandem with fullback Roger Craig (649 rushing yards) their combined 1,911 rushing yards were second all-time among San Francisco ball-carrying duos. Only the Williams-Jackson 1,995 total of 1976 ranks higher. However, the Tyler-Craig total of 2,816 combined rushing/receiving yards did set a TEAM RECORD bettering the 2,602-yard mark of Williams-Jackson in '76. Tyler also LED THE

TEAM with 168 yards rushing in the three postseason games. He gained 68 tough yards, and provided the Niners first touchdown of the game on a nine-yard scoring run, against Chicago in the NFC Championship Game (1-6). The back recorded 135 total yards (65 rushing/70 receiving) in Super Bowl XIX. Wendell averaged nearly eight yards every time he touched the ball in the title game and his 40-yard reception was the team's longest play from scrimmage. Following the Super Bowl win, Tyler played in his first NFC-AFC Pro Bowl. "All season long I played to gain 1,000 yards, be in the Pro Bowl, and win the World Championship. Everything worked out just like a story book," said the elated Tyler. When the Niners acquired Wendell from divisional rival Los Angeles the day before the 1983 collegiate draft, it was expected that he would contribute mightily to the team's rather slight running attack of the previous year. And Wendell lived up to his advance billing by leading the team with 856 yards rushing. Wendell was among the league leaders with five runs of 20-or-more yards. His 4.9 average per rushing attempt was the best in the League among runners with 150 or more carries that season. Wendell played five years with the Rams prior to the deal that sent him, defensive lineman Cody Jones, and a third round draft choice (59th overall) to the Niners for San Francisco's second and fourth round (36th and 87th) picks from the '83 draft. The Los Angeles prep product had two 1,000-yard seasons with the Rams as he compiled 1,109 yards in 1979 and 1,074 yards in 1981. A hip injury received in an auto accident forced Tyler to miss most of the 1980 season. He ran for 564 yards during the nine-game 1982 season. Wendell ranks among the League leaders in touchdowns scored over the last three seasons with 36 tallies. Starting offensive guard John Ayers offered this lineman's view of Tyler's ability: "Subconsciously or not, I think that we have a little more incentive because every time we walk up to the line we know in our minds that there is a chance he can break it all the way."

COLLEGE: Tyler gained 3,181 yards during his four-year UCLA career and was named AP All-America and All-Pac Eight. He gained 172 yards in the Bruins' 23-10 win over Ohio State in the '76 Rose Bowl, including a 57-yard TD run and capped his fine career with appearances in the East-West Shrine and Senior Bowl games

PERSONAL: He was born Wendell Avery Tyler in Shreveport, La., but moved to California at an early age. He attended Crenshaw High School in Los Angeles. Wendell and his wife, Carmen, call West Covina, Calif., their offseason home. They have two children: a daughter, Candace (12-24-78), and son, Wendell Avery, Jr. (12-14-81).

Michael Walter • 99

LINEBACKER • OREGON • 3RD YEAR
HT: 6-3 • WT: 238 • BORN: 11/30/60 • (FA IN '84)

PRO: When the Dallas Cowboys found Michael Walter expendable, the San Francisco 49ers got excited. Just as soon as Walter's name appeared on the waiver wire (as one of the Cowboys final cuts of the '84 preseason) the Niners claimed him. Here was a player that the team wanted to draft before Dallas spent a second-round pick to get the linebacker in 1983. The collegiate defensive lineman did not fit into the Cowboys scheme at the outside linebacker spot they had prescribed. However, 49ers coaches thought the player could make a fine inside linebacker with their team. Michael joined his new team the week prior to the regular season opener (8-28), and immediately made a contribution with two tackles while covering kickoffs against Detroit (9-2). In his first extended action from scrimmage, Walter recorded four tackles in the Niners-Giants encounter (10-8). Playing mainly in passing situations, Mike recorded three stops the following week against Pittsburgh. With Jack Reynolds nursing a sore back, and Jim Fahnhorst out with a knee injury, Walter took over at inside linebacker versus Atlanta (12-2). His eight tackles, including one sack, against Minnesota (12-8) the next week were season highs. Michael finished the regular season with 29 total tackles and had 10 stops in the postseason, including six in the NFC Championship Game (1-6). "We really like Mike," says Bill Walsh. "I think, with a training camp under his belt, he'll be fighting for a starting spot at inside linebacker. He's intelligent, very fast, aggressive, and has good size."

COLLEGE: Walter was a three-year starter at defensive end for the Ducks, and played in 44 straight games. He was captain and Most Valuable Player during his senior season, when he led the team in sacks and tackles-for-loss. He led in those two categories as a junior, too.

PERSONAL: He was born Michael David Walter in Eugene, Ore., and played football and basketball for Eugene's Shelton High. Mike is single and lives in Eugene during the offseason.

Ray Wersching • 14

KICKER • CALIFORNIA • 13TH YEAR
HT: 5-11 • WT: 215 • BORN: 8-21-50 • (FA IN '77)

PRO: Ray Wersching has reached a point in his career that has to be a mixed blessing. "Mo" is so good that he is taken for granted. Ray established a TEAM RECORD and led the NFL with 131 points scored in '84. He also tied the single season NFL RECORD (set in 1966 by the Cowboys' Danny Villanueva) by converting all 56 of his extra point attempts. The Austrian born kicker is second on the 49ers all-time scoring list with 689 points, only 49 points (entering 1985) behind Tommy Davis' team standard 738 points scored. With his 25 field goals last season, Wersching moved ahead of Davis to assume the No. 1 spot in team history with 139 successful placements. Including his four seasons with the San Diego Chargers (1973-76), Wersching has scored 832 points. That total places the thirteen-year veteran 18th on the all-time NFL scoring list. "Mo" opened the season by kicking a 22-yard field goal with :04 remaining in the game to give San Francisco a 30-27 win over Detroit (9-7). Earlier in the game, Wersching had hit on a career-long 53-yard boot. He totaled 12 points in the Lions game, and started a string of three consecutive contests in which he scored in double figures. He had 13 points in the second game of the year against Washington (9-10), and followed with 12 points versus New Orleans (9-16). For the season, Ray had seven games of 10-or-more points, including a season-high 15-point performance against Minnesota (12-8). He tied his personal best, and fell one short of the team record, with 25 converted field goals in '84. Wersching was successful on four of six field goal attempts in postseason play, including a 27-yarder in Super Bowl XIX. He is now second only to Franco Harris (24), and leads among kickers with 22 points scored in Super Bowl games. Ray's 131 points paced the team in scoring for the seventh consecutive year. He has converted 139 of 188 field goal attempts with San Francisco for a .739 accuracy percentage, best of any kicker in Niners' history. A highlight to his career probably came in San Francisco's 26-21 Super Bowl XVI win over Cincinnati (1-24-82), when Wersching had the Bengals backed up against the wall with his squib kickoffs and tied a Super Bowl record with four field goals (22, 26, 40, and 23 yards). Originally, Ray was signed as a free agent by San Diego in 1973, released (9-6-76) in 1976, and re-signed (10-16-76) that same season. He was released by the Chargers again in August of '77 and signed by San Francisco (10-16-77) later that season.

COLLEGE: Ray attended Cerritos JC and the University of California (Berkeley), and had outstanding careers at both schools.

PERSONAL: Born Raimund Wersching in Mondsee, Austria, he grew up in California and attended Earl Warren High School in Downey, Calif. He has a bachelor's degree from Cal in accounting and works during the offseason as a CPA for Price Waterhouse Company. Wersching toured USO Installations in Europe with four others in the trip sponsored by NFLPA this offseason, for the second year in a row. He's been nicknamed "Mo" by teammates for the following reasons — take your pick: short for "Mo-chine"

as in "Wersching Mochine" . . . or short for "La Mo-chine" as in his kicking is as automatic as a machine . . . or short for "Mo-hair" as in he has "Mo-hair" on his body than anyone else on the team. Ray had a rare distinction for a kicker in Super Bowl XVI by initiating five consecutive plays, each of which resulted in time elapsing on the game clock: Play 1 — 22-yard FG; Play 2 — kicked off, fumbled by Cincinnati; Play 3 — 26-yard FG; Play 4 — kicked off as first half ended; Play 5 — kicked off to begin second half.

Carlton Williamson • 27

SAFETY • PITTSBURGH • 5TH YEAR
HT: 6-0 • WT: 204 • BORN: 6-12-58 • (D-3 IN '81)

PRO: In the vernacular of the modern pro football player, Carlton Williamson can "bust" with the best of them. In a defensive backfield known for its intimidating and ferocious hitting, Williamson dishes out the capital punishment. He was the TEAM LEADER with 72 solo stops, while ranking third overall with 89 total tackles in 1984. Since coming to the team in 1981, Williamson has recorded more tackles (287) than any other Niners defender during that period. Carlton added two interceptions and 10 passes defended to his '84 tackle totals, and recorded one sack for a nine-yard loss. For the second consecutive season, the strong safety was the TEAM LEADER during postseason play with 16 total tackles. He had his first career postseason interception in the 38-16 victory over Miami in Super Bowl XIX. Carlton was a starter in 15 of the 16 regular season games of '84, and all three postseason affairs. He missed the second Atlanta contest (12-2) due to a pinched nerve in his neck. Williamson had five games during the '84 campaign in which he led the defense in total tackles. He recorded 12 stops in his highest tackle game of the year versus New Orleans (9-16). "CW" (as he is known to teammates and friends) had back-to-back games leading the team with seven tackles and three passes defended against the N.Y. Giants (10-8), and eight stops against the Pittsburgh Steelers (10-14). Commenting on his jarring hits, Williamson says: "Hitting hard shows a sense of dominance. To hit a guy well and stop him cold, or make him fall back, gives me great satisfaction. I want the other team to know that there is somebody out there on the field that is going to hit them when they come into my area." Apparently, Williamson got his message across in '84, as the members of the NFC voted him to the Pro Bowl for the first time in his career. "Carlton is a real force as a tackler and downfield zone player," says Bill Walsh. "Offensive players know he is there to make the big hit." 1983 should have been the year that Carlton Williamson broke through and received much deserved recognition as one of the premier strong safeties in the game. However, a broken left leg suffered during the Niners' 1983 preseason game in L.A. — against the Raiders (8-6-83) — kept this jarring tackler out of the lineup for the first seven regular season games. He returned for the Niners-Rams clash (10-23-83), wearing a leg brace that forced him to wear a left shoe one size larger than the right, and immediately asserted himself with 12 total tackles. He averaged better than six tackles a game, while concluding the year with 58 total tackles. Additionally, Williamson was credited with five passes defended and one forced fumble. The fourth player taken by San Francisco as a third-round choice in 1981 (65th overall selection), Williamson was named to the NFL All-Rookie Team (UPI, Pro Football Writers Association and Football Digest).

COLLEGE: Williamson led the Pitt defensive backs in tackling as both a junior and a senior. He was recruited by Pittsburgh as a fullback and switched to defense to make the traveling squad, then took over at strongside safety in his junior year. He had 65 tackles as a junior and 46 in 1980. Carlton intercepted seven career passes and had 7½ quarterback sacks on blitzes. He earned his urban science degree from Pitt in the summer of 1981.

PERSONAL: Carlton was born in Atlanta Ga., and grew up there. He attended Brown High School in Atlanta, and was an All-America schoolboy quarterback. He married the former Donna Smith Prior at the start of the '84 season and they call Mountain View, Calif., their home. They are expecting their first child in Jan. '86.

Mike Wilson • 85

WIDE RECEIVER • WASHINGTON STATE • 5TH YEAR
HT: 6-3 • WT: 215 • BORN: 12-19-58 • (FA IN '81)

PRO: Big, fast, and strong, Mike Wilson has the status of a very good wide receiver on a team of outstanding players at his position. Wilson is considered a third, or non-starting, wide receiver in the Niners offense although he has started eight games (including playoffs) over the past two seasons. Mike was in the opening lineup (replacing the injured Freddie Solomon) for the first three games of October, last year. He spelled Solomon after Fred pulled a hamstring muscle against Atlanta (9-30). Mike responded to that call to duty with a 21-yard touchdown reception, outmaneuvering Falcon defenders enroute. He caught six passes for 73 yards in his three starts prior to injuring a knee in the Astrodome (10-21). That injury kept Mike out of action for almost a month. He returned with three catches for 44 yards against Tampa Bay (11-18), and had a two-reception, 16-yard performance while facing the Minnesota Vikings (12-8). As he had done the previous season, Mike came on strong in the playoffs, first with three catches and 37 yards in the divisional playoff game against the N.Y. Giants (12-29), and then with two receptions for 25 yards in the NFC Championship Game with the Chicago Bears (1-6). "There's no question Mike is underrated," says quarterbacks-receivers coach Paul Hackett. "He just does a 'helluva' job. Who can say, if he was in for every snap, how good he would be." He concluded the season with 30 catches and 433 yards. In 1983, Wilson had four catches of 30-or-more yards, including a career long of 49 yards versus Minnesota (9-8-83). His 14.4 average per reception was second only to Freddie Solomon's team-record 21.4-yard average among Niners' pass-catchers. Originally, Wilson was drafted by Dallas in the ninth round of '81, but was released in training camp (8-24-81). The 49ers signed him three days later (8-27-81), and Mike played in all 19 games as a rookie. A highlight to his '81 campaign was a key 22-yard reception in Super Bowl XVI (which kept alive an important fourth-period 49ers' drive).

COLLEGE: Wilson caught 47 passes for 716 yards and six TDs in three seasons at Washington State. He also rushed for 176 yards on 11 carries.

PERSONAL: Mike captained the football and basketball teams, and was a sprinter on the track team, at Carson High in Carson, Calif. He was All-America in basketball and football there as well. He was born in Los Angeles and grew up in Carson. Mike married Tona Collette Broussard (7-13-85) during the past offseason, and they call San Mateo, Calif., home.

Eric Wright • 21

CORNERBACK • MISSOURI • 5TH YEAR
HT: 6-1 • WT: 185 • BORN: 4-18-59 • (D-28 IN '81)

PRO: They just don't come any better than Eric Wright. He has all the natural attributes: size, speed, quickness, and good football instincts, along with the mental attitude that will not allow him to give anything short of 100% of his energy and desire. This combination of tough body and tougher mind makes Wright the best pass-defender among the 49ers, and one of the best in the entire NFL. As in 1983, Wright was the TEAM LEADER

interceptions and recorded 49 total tackles. Eric racked up these impressive statistics despite the fact that many teams simply avoided passing against him. A demon of a cover-man, Wright had five passes defended in the three postseason contests. Three of those five breakups came against quarterback Dan Marino of the Miami Dolphins in Super Bowl XIX. Probably the single best defensive play of the game came when Eric made a spectacular leaping interception near the Niners end zone. His superior performance in Super Bowl XIX gave the entire football public a chance to see the abilities that Wright's teammates have grown to cherish. "Eric is a problem to pass against even in practice," says San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana. "He probably has the best combination of quick feet and hands that I have ever seen." Teammate Carlton Williamson praises: "He is the best pass defender we have on this team. It is amazing how a receiver may get away from him and then, a split-second later, Eric has him again." Niners wide receiver Dwight Clark agrees with Williamson. "Eric's ability to recover really stands out," says Clark. "You may think you beat him, but before the ball comes, he's back on top of you." Wright stayed on top of the opposition all season long, yielding just one touchdown reception in 1984. Eric's season got off to a tough start when he twisted his knee on the first play of the opening game versus Detroit (9-2). He did not play the following week, but came off the bench in the second half of the New Orleans game (9-16) to make two big pass deflections. He started all remaining games, including the three postseason contests. At the conclusion of the year, he was named to Pro Football Weekly's All-NFC team, and was selected to the second unit of AP's all-pro team. Voted as a first alternate for the NFC squad in the 1985 Pro Bowl, Wright played in the game — replacing the injured Mark Haynes. Wright joined teammates Dwight Hicks, Ronnie Lott, and Williamson as the first set of starting defensive backs from one team to play in the same Pro Bowl. When a guy leads in interceptions and is second in tackles on a team with a 10-6 record — the guy is doing something right — or in this case something Wright. Eric put together a season that was equaled by few, if any, NFL pass defenders in 1983. His 164 interception-return yards led the League, and he tied for NFL honors with two interception returns for touchdowns. His career-high seven interceptions were bettered only by Lionel Washington (St. Louis) among NFC cornerbacks. Wright's pickoff, and 48-yard TD return, in the season finale against the Cowboys (12-19-83), paved the way to a victory that clinched the Niners' home-field advantage for the first round of the conference playoffs. His second quarter theft, and 60-yard touchdown return, versus the Vikings (9-8-83), sparked a rally that concluded in a 48-17 romp (it stands as the fifth longest interception return for a score in the team's history). That was one of three interceptions Wright had in the Viking contest (marking the first time a Niners' defender has picked off three passes in one game since Anthony Leonard's tri-interception performance against Cincinnati, 10-1-78). He established a career high, and was second on the team, with 80 total tackles, including 69 solo stops. Eric also led the team with 19 passes defended, and had one fumble recovery. During the playoffs, the former Missouri Tiger accounted for nine total tackles, and intercepted a pass on the final play of the first half of the NFC Championship Game in Washington (1-8-84). Wright's season didn't go unnoticed as he was named All-NFC by UPI. This recognition gave the Niners with 18 passes defended. Additionally, he positioned himself for two the unique tandem of starting cornerbacks with All-Conference status; as Ronnie Lott was named All-NFC by Pro Football Weekly and was on the second team of the UPI selections. The Lott-Wright twosome combined for 188 tackles and 11 interceptions. Their 35 passes defended was more than one-third of the team's total. They ranked in the top two in just about every defensive category for the 49ers in '83. Wright was the 40th player taken in the 1981 NFL draft (2B by the 49ers) and started all 19 games as a rookie for the world champs. He was the team's sixth leading tackler with 75 stops and paced the squad in passes defended with 24. He also participated in two of the featured plays of Super Bowl XVI — an interception of a Ken Anderson pass intended for Cris Collinsworth late in the fourth quarter (that theft gave the 49ers a possession — following Wright's 25-yard return — that led to their final field goal of the game and thwarted a Bengals' scoring opportunity). And he forced a fumble on the Niners' 9-yard line by Collinsworth, following a reception in the second quarter (Wright stripped him of the ball and that possession led to San Francisco's second TD of the afternoon). Wright also is credited with a game saving tackle in the NFC Championship (1-10-82), that paved the way for the 49ers' trip to Michigan. On that play, he collared Drew Pearson from behind following a 31-yard reception at the Niners' 44-yard line (he was the only San Francisco defender near or between Pearson and the goal).

COLLEGE: Wright was a free safety throughout college at Missouri and was a three-year starter. He was named All-America by AP and UPI as a junior, when he notched a career-high 55 tackles, and made honorable mention All-America (AP and Sporting News) his senior season. He played cornerback on the North squad (coached by the 49ers' coaching staff) at the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala. Eric had five interceptions and three fumble recoveries in 1980, and his 47 tackles gave him 156 for his career (94 solo). He had three interceptions against San Diego State for a Tiger record (including one for 77 yards and a score) and ended his career with 11 thefts and seven fumble recoveries.

PERSONAL: Born in St. Louis, Mo., Eric grew up in East St. Louis, Ill., where he attended Assumption High School. He married the former Alvida Nicks (6-26-82), a graduate of Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., during the 1982 offseason. They had their first child (Erica) May 5, 1985.

NINERS 1985 DRAFT CHOICES

Jerry Rice • 80

WIDE RECEIVER • MISSISSIPPI VALLEY STATE • ROOKIE
HT: 6-2 • WT: 200 • BORN: 10-13-62 • (D-1 IN '85)

The San Francisco 49ers selected wide receiver Jerry Rice of Mississippi Valley State with the 16th choice in the first round of the 1985 collegiate draft.

Rice (6-2, 200) set 18 NCAA Division 1-AA records while compiling 4,693 yards receiving during his four-year career at MVSU. Rice registered more than 1,000 receiving yards for three consecutive seasons.

"We are extremely pleased with our selection of Jerry Rice," stated Niners' President-head coach Bill Walsh. "I recall watching him during the season and he is a sensational player, along the lines of a John Jefferson (Green Bay) or Wes Chandler (San Diego) as a receiver. He has super instincts and is just a natural football player."

His 103 receptions and 1,682 receiving yards in 1984 were both NCAA Division 1-AA records. Rice capped his senior season with a 9-catch, 155-yard performance versus Louisiana Tech in a conference playoff game. He was the leading scorer (in NCAA Division 1-AA) with 162 points and 27 touchdowns.

Rice displayed his versatility by performing as a shotgun quarterback, completing six of seven passes for 123 yards and five touchdowns in '84.

As a junior, Rice caught 102 passes for 1,450 yards and 14 touchdowns. During that year, he set an all-time divisional record with 24 receptions against Southern University. He had his first 1,000-season in 1982 with 1,333 yards and a 17.3 average on 66 receptions.

Rice was the third wide receiver (Al Toon, N.Y. Jets; Eddie Brown, Cincinnati) selected in the draft, and is the first wide receiver selected by San Francisco with a first round pick under Bill Walsh. He would be only the second athlete from Mississippi Valley State to play for the Niners. Defensive back Melvin Morgan was with San Francisco from 1979-80. Jerry is the first MVSU player ever to be selected in the first round of an NFL draft.

Born Jerry Lee Rice (Oct. 13, 1962) in Starkville, Miss., he attended Moor High in Crawford, Miss., where he caught 85 passes during his senior season. An auto mechanics major, Jerry is single and resides in Crawford.

Ricky Moore • 25

FULLBACK • ALABAMA • ROOKIE
HT: 5-11 • WT: 236 • BORN: 4-7-63 • (D-3 IN '85)

San Francisco used its second pick to select University of Alabama fullback Ricky Moore in the third round (19th in 3rd, 75th overall) of the 1985 draft.

Moore (5-11, 236) was the Tide's leading rusher each year from 1981-83 and had a career-best 947 rushing yards and eight touchdowns as a junior. Moore exceeded the 100-yard mark in the final six games of '83 to tie a school record (set by Johnny Musso). Ricky was selected All-Southeastern Conference by AP, UPI, and The Sporting News following the 1983 season.

During his four seasons at Alabama, Moore rushed for 2,270 yards, just 471 yards short of the school record set by Musso (1969-71). The fullback averaged 4.8 yards per rushing attempt in his career and scored 11 touchdowns on the ground. He added two touchdowns receiving on 54 career receptions.

Born Ricky Delano Moore (April 7, 1963) in Huntsville, Ala., he played football and baseball for Huntsville's Lee High. Moore was a communications major at Alabama, where he also played baseball. A resident of Huntsville, Moore is single.

TACKLE • TEXAS-ARLINGTON • ROOKIE
HT: 6-6 • WT: 275 • BORN: 6-27-62 • (D-5 IN '85)

San Francisco chose its third offensive player in the '85 draft with the fifth-round selection of giant tackle Bruce Collie of the University of Texas-Arlington.

The 6-6, 275-pound offensive lineman was an All-Southland Conference performer for three consecutive seasons (1982-84) while at UTA. Collie also was selected to NCAA Division 1-AA All-America teams by AP and Kodak. He was the 1984 recipient of the ex-letterman's award for outstanding performance by a senior at UTA.

He was born Bruce Stokes Collie (June 27, 1962) in Nuremberg, Germany. The son of an Army doctor, Bruce returned to the U.S. at age three. He played football and participated in track and field at Robert E. Lee High in San Antonio, Tex.

COLLIE, Cont.

Collie comes from an athletic family in which his father played football at South Carolina, and brother, Lamar, was a four-year track letterman at the University of Texas.

Scott Barry • 11

QUARTERBACK • UC-DAVIS • ROOKIE
HT: 6-2 • WT: 190 • BORN: 10-17-62 • (D-6 IN '85)

Scott Barry, a former 49ers camp aide and quarterback at Cal-Davis for the last four years, was taken by San Francisco with the 168th selection (28th pick of round six) in the 1985 draft.

Barry (6-2, 190) worked for San Francisco at its summer training camp in Rocklin, Calif., near Davis, where he followed former N.Y. Jets No. 1 choice, Ken O'Brien, at quarterback.

Runner-up to Northwest Missouri's Brian Quinn in NCAA Division II passing efficiency as a senior with a 64.5 completion percentage, Barry completed 189 of 293 passing attempts for 2,365 yards and 17 touchdowns. Scott led the Northern California Athletic Conference in passing and total yardage, while earning NCAC Most Valuable Player honors in '84.

In 1983, Barry threw for 2,237 yards and 18 touchdowns, while again completing better than 64% of his tosses. He set a school record for passing accuracy (63.3), while throwing only 25 interceptions in 736 passing attempts over the past three seasons. Scott finished his career at Davis with 5,387 passing yards and 37 touchdowns.

He was born Scott Sundell Barry (Oct. 17, 1962) in Sacramento, Calif., and attended Delta High School (where Tony Eason — New England — was a teammate) in Clarksburg, Calif. Scott majored in mechanical engineering.

David Wood • 71

DEFENSIVE END • ARIZONA • ROOKIE
HT: 6-4 • WT: 255 • BORN: 5-12-62 • (D-11 IN '85)

After taking offensive players with its first four selections, San Francisco picked Arizona defensive end David Wood in the 11th round of the 1985 NFL draft.

Wood (6-4, 255) was an All-Pac 10 defensive tackle last season for the Wildcats. He had one of his best games of the '84 season against Stanford, recording 10 tackles and two sacks. Wood also had a 17-tackle performance versus Washington and 14 stops vs. Southern California last season. He was leading tackler among UA linemen with 114 hits, and added 11 sacks in '84.

In 1983, Wood totaled 96 tackles (including four sacks). He also had three tackles-for-loss and one fumble recovery. He gained honorable mention All-Pac 10 honors as a junior.

In his first full season as a starter in '82, David was in on 73 tackles and six sacks. Wood had 43 tackles and two fumble recoveries as a freshman in 1981.

A linebacker/defensive tackle in college, he is projected as a defensive end in the San Francisco alignment.

Born David Wayne Wood in Phoenix, Ariz., he played football for Phoenix Washington High, where he was an all-state performer.

David and his brother, Brent, both played linebacker for the Wildcats until David moved to defensive line in 1981. A business major, David resides in Phoenix.

Donald Chumley • 77

DEFENSIVE TACKLE • GEORGIA • ROOKIE
HT: 6-4 • WT: 259 • BORN: 3-14-62 • (D-12 IN '85)

Donald Chumley, defensive tackle from the University of Georgia, became the last player selected in the 1985 draft when his name was called by San Francisco with the 336th and final pick.

In '84, Chumley (6-4, 259) had the best season of his collegiate career with five sacks and 83 total tackles. One of the big games of his senior year came against Vanderbilt, when he recorded eight tackles—including two sacks—and forced two fumbles. Chumley averaged nearly eight tackles-a-game in 11 contests last year.

As a junior, the lineman registered 75 tackles and four sacks, while starring in 11 games. He had 11 tackles, one sack, and a fumble recovery in the Bulldogs' victory over Ole Miss that season.

Chumley played briefly as an offensive lineman during spring drills prior to the 1982 season. He was moved back to defense for the fall football season.

Over the three-year period of 1982-84, Chumley collected 171 tackles and 10 sacks.

He was born Donald Wayne Chumley in Heidelberg, West Germany. The son of a military (Army) man, young Chumley's family returned to the United States when Donald was three-months old.

Chumley played football at Savannah Groves High in Savannah Ga., where he resides. His college major was distributive education.

★Nine-game season due to players strike.

The 49ers' Historical Highlights

Here are the team's historical highlights beginning with its first year in the NFL:

1950 — The 49ers fell flat on their faces in their NFL debut, winning only three games. A rival coach described them as "not big enough or tough enough."

1951 — In an amazing reversal of form sparked by a great rookie group, the 49ers were in the race to the final day and finished only a half game off the top. Led by Hardy Brown and his famed "shoulder tackle" the club had one of the toughest defensive units in the league. Y.A. Tittle and Billy Wilson began their great careers.

1952 — After a blazing start, the 49ers slumped in mid-season. Hugh (The King) McElhenny came off the University of Washington campus to become "Player of the Year" and the most feared runner in football.

1953 — The 49ers had their best NFL showing, 9-3, normally good enough for a championship. Detroit, however, was 10-2. Two of the San Francisco losses came with Y.A. Tittle sidelined because of a severe facial injury. The three defeats were by a total of nine points. Joe (Jot) Perry became one of the few players in pro history to gain more than 1,000 yards in a single season. Gordy Soltau was the league's top scorer for the second straight year.

1954 — Early momentum was broken by injuries to key players such as Y.A. Tittle, Hugh McElhenny, and Joe Perry. Perry gained more than 1,000 yards again, the first man ever to achieve this distinction.

1955 — With Hugh McElhenny hobbled by a foot injury, the 49ers had their second worst season in history under Norman P. Strader who succeeded Buck Shaw as a head coach.

1956 — In Frankie Alberti's first year at the helm, the 49ers were bogged in last place at mid-season with a 1-6 record. They won four and tied one of their last five games for a brilliant stretch drive.

1957 — This undoubtedly was one of the most emotional and dramatic seasons in 49ers history. Every game was a "Cliffhanger" and the "Alley-Oop" pass from Y.A. Tittle to rookie R.C. Owens became a household byword. Emotions reached a peak when the beloved Tony Morabito collapsed and died of a heart attack at the Chicago Bears game on Oct. 27. Trailing 17-7, the 49ers fought back for a great victory, 21-17. The magnificent Billy Wilson caught a pass from Tittle for the winning touchdown in the fourth quarter. Tied with Detroit at 8-4 when the season ended, the 49ers lost the playoff game, 31-27, although they held a 27-7 lead in the third quarter.

1958 — An up-and-down season which finished on a high note when Green Bay and Baltimore were defeated in the last two games. The 6-6 record, however, was blackened by the 33-3 and 56-7 lacerations at the hands of Los Angeles and Frankie Alberti resigned at the end of the year.

1959 — With Howard W. (Red) Hickey in charge, the 49ers were in contention all the way and John Brodie came into his own at quarterback when he led the team to a 21-20 upset of Cleveland. J.D. Smith, converted from a defensive back, became the second 49er to accumulate more than 1,000 yards rushing.

1960 — Howard W. (Red) Hickey saved a seemingly hopeless season when he installed his Shotgun attack and the club captured four of the last five games to finish in a tie for second place. Third-string quarterback Bobby Waters threw the passes that upset Baltimore, 30-22, in the final two minutes.

1961 — The success of Howard W. Hickey's Shotgun amazed the football world, especially the 49-0 victory over Detroit. Quarterback Bill Kilmer, a passing-running rookie from UCLA, was made to order for the new offense. When the Shotgun was stopped, John Brodie took over again in the "T" and had the finest season in 49er QB annals. Indicating the evenness of NFL competition, the 49ers were playing for a second-place tie, plus a trip to the Runner-up Bowl at Miami, or a fifth-place position on the last day of the season. The Colts again won by three points, but 1961 must remain as one of the most exciting and interesting years in 49ers history.

1962 — For the first time since 1956, the 49ers finished a frustrating season with more defeats than victories. In so doing, the honored adage of "it's easier to win at home than on the road," proved false — the 49ers won only one of seven at home, but captured five of seven road contests.

1963 — Injuries in multitude to key personnel started the 49ers off to a disappointing 2-12 league season. One of the victories, however, was a smashing 20-14 upset of ultimate World Champion Chicago, the only league defeat suffered by the Bears all season.

1964 — Club chief executive Victor P. Morabito died of a heart attack in May. Injury to key personnel prevented the 49ers from gaining enough offensive momentum to forge a winning season although they proved to be one of the toughest defensive clubs in the league. Outstanding rookie performances by end Dave Parks, quarterback George Mira and linebacker Dave Wilcox also took some of the sting from the 4-10 overall record.

1965 — Outstanding offensive performances enabled the 49ers to jump from the bottom to fourth place in the Western Division as the team led the NFL in both scoring and total offense. John Brodie was the most productive passer in the NFL, Dave Parks led the league in receiving and rookie Ken Willard and veteran John David Crow, acquired in an off-season trade, led a strong ground game. The over-all record was 7-6-1 and the season-opening 52-24 beating of the Chicago Bears marked the largest number of points ever scored by the 49ers in NFL play.

1966 — After a somewhat slow start, the 49ers got in gear just before midway in the season and became one of only two teams to beat the eventual World Champion Green Bay Packers. After that, they rolled to a respectable 6-6-2 record and were in the battle for second place in the Western Division until the final league game. Guard John Thomas and end Dave Parks were all-pro, and they joined guard Howard Mudd, center Bruce Bosley, fullback Ken Willard and linebacker Dave Wilcox in the Pro Bowl.

1967 — An auspicious start (they were 5-1) disintegrated into disappointment for the 49ers as injuries took a heavy toll and a six-game losing streak took them out of the running. Quarterback George Mira came off the bench to lead the squad to two season-ending victories and salvage a 7-7 record. There were bright spots however, as, with John Brodie in fine form, the 49ers were the only team to beat the power-laden Rams in a league game, guard Howard Mudd and linebacker Dave Wilcox were named to all-pro teams, and Mudd and center Bruce Bosley played in the Pro Bowl for the second straight time.

1968 — Under new coach Dick Nolan, the 49ers posted a 7-6-1 record as the season turned on key wins over New York Giants, 26-10, and Green Bay, 27-20. Brilliant performances by QB John Brodie, receiver Clifton McNeil and running back Ken Willard led a prolific offense, while defensive tackle Charlie Krueger, linebacker Dave Wilcox and defensive back Kermit Alexander, sparked a revitalized defense. McNeil and guard Howard Mudd were chosen All-NFL, and joined by Wilcox, Willard and Alexander in the Pro Bowl.

1969 — Beset by injuries that nearly decimated the defensive unit, the 49ers struggled through the early part of the season, went five games before beating Baltimore, the first time they had done that in 13 previous games. It got a little better after that (final record was 4-8-2) and five players — Jimmy Johnson, Dave Wilcox, Elmer Collett, Ken Willard and rookie Gene Washington — were selected for the Pro Bowl. Johnson was also all-pro and winner of the Eshmont Award.

1970 — This was the greatest year since the club became a member of the NFL in 1950. The 10-3 record was the best as an NFL club, the Western Division (NFC) Championship was the first in the NFL. In a season of superlatives, John Brodie was the NFL's "Player of the Year," Bruce Taylor was NFC "Rookie of the Year," Coach Dick Nolan was a near-unanimous choice as NFC "Coach of the Year." Brodie, receiver Gene Washington, linebacker Dave Wilcox and cornerback Jimmy Johnson were all-pro and joined by tackle Len Rohde in being selected for the Pro Bowl.

1971 — The 49ers forged a 9-5-0 record and won their second consecutive NFC Western Division title, clinching the crown on the final day by beating Detroit, 31-27, the identical score by which the Lions had knocked the 49ers out of championship play in the bitterly-remembered 1957 game. The season was also the club's first in its plush new home, Candlestick Park. Center Forrest Blue, linebacker Dave Wilcox and cornerback Jimmy Johnson were all-pro and joined in the Pro Bowl by Ted Kwalick, Gene Washington, Vic Washington, Cedrick Hardman and Bruce Taylor.

1972 — Early-season inconsistency compounded by an injury to John Brodie in the fifth game of the season cast appraisal on 49er prospects for a third-straight NFC Western Division title, but Steve Spurrier stepped in for Brodie and turned things around with a brilliant, poised performance. In the final quarter of the final game the recovered Brodie relieved Spurrier and threw two TD passes for a 20-17 win over Minnesota that clinched divisional title No. 3, but Spurrier's nine-game contribution was the key. Center Forrest Blue, defensive back Jimmy Johnson, tight end Ted Kwalick, wide receiver Gene Washington and linebacker Dave Wilcox were all-pro selections.

1973 — In what was both a disappointing and significant year, the 49ers were 5-9 after tackling the NFL's toughest schedule and falling victim to a rash of key injuries and an unsettled quarterback situation. It also marked the end of the brilliant careers of quarterback John Brodie and defensive tackle Charlie Krueger, both of whom retired at year's end. Center Forrest Blue and Dave Wilcox were all-pro and joined in the Pro Bowl by Ted Kwalick, Woody Peoples and Tom Wittum.

1974 — The 49ers used five different quarterbacks after an injury to starter Steve Spurrier a week before the season opened sidelined him for most of the year. After winning the first two games the club lost a team record seven straight and then closed with a rush, winning four of the last five games to finish the season at 6-8. Running back Wilbur Jackson was named The Sporting News "Rookie of the Year" and was named to the NFL All-Rookie team along with quarterback Tom Owen and defensive back Mike Holmes. Center Forrest Blue and punter Tom Wittum were All-NFC and selected for the Pro Bowl along with Jimmy Johnson. A knee injury forced perennial all-pro linebacker Dave Wilcox to retire after a brilliant 11-year career with the 49ers.

1975 — A strong defensive performance throughout the season couldn't offset an erratic offense troubled by an unsettled quarterback situation and a rebuilding offensive line. High point of the 5-9 season was a 24-23 win over Los Angeles to end a 10-game losing streak to the Rams. At season's end, defensive end Cedrick Hardman was the club's only all-pro selection and only player chosen for the Pro Bowl. Jimmy Johnson became the club's first-ever two-time Eshmont Award winner.

1976 — A turnaround year for the 49ers as the team, under coach Monte Clark, posted an 8-6 record, their first winning season since 1972. With new quarterback Jim Plunkett at the controls, the 49ers got off to their best start ever, 6-1, before hitting a mid-season four-game losing streak that knocked the club out of playoff contention. The season saw the emergence of a powerful defensive unit that led the league in quarterback sacks with 61. Delvin Williams set a 49ers single-season rushing record with his 1,203 yards on the ground. Tommy Hart was named all-pro and played in the Pro Bowl along with Williams, Cleveland Elam, and Dave Washington. Center Randy Cross was an All-Rookie team selection. Tommy Hart became a two-time winner of the Eshmont Award and Cornerback Jimmy Johnson retired after a brilliant 16-year career with the 49ers.

1977 — In the 32nd year of their existence, the 49ers began an all new era. On March 31, 1977, the club became the property of Edward J. DeBartolo, Jr., and came under the guidance of Joe Thomas as general manager. The changeover was made more dramatic because the San Francisco 49ers were one of the few NFL franchises which had never previously changed ownership or location. On the field, under Coach Ken Meyer, the 49ers ran hot and cold. The club lost its first five games, then won five of the next six before dropping the final three contests for a 5-9 record overall. Strong safety Mel Phillips was named winner of the coveted Eshmont Award. Cleveland Elam was selected all-pro and played for the NFC team in the Pro Bowl.

1978 — The 49ers suffered through their longest season as the club fell to 2-14 in '78 and three coaches were hired and fired in less than 12 months. First, Pete McCulley departed after nine games with a 1-8 record, and his replacement, Fred O'Connor, was let go at the end of the year as the team won just one of its final seven contests. Bill Walsh was hired as the new Coach and General Manager on January 9, 1979, replacing O'Connor as coach and Joe Thomas as General Manager. Running back Paul Holar, who replaced acclaimed O.J. Simpson when the newly-acquired star went to the sidelines for the year with a shoulder injury, was named recipient of the Len Eshmont Award.

1979 — The 49ers suffered through their second consecutive 2-14 season, but there were several indications of improvement. San Francisco went from virtually the worst ranked offensive team in the league in '78 to one of the most productive offensive units in the NFL in '79, ranking first in passing offense in the NFC and sixth in total offense in the NFL. Running back Paul Hofer again was the Len Eshmont Award recipient and individual leader, racking up 615 yards rushing and an additional 662 yards receiving on 58 catches in only seven starts. Quarterback Steve DeBerg broke Fran Tarkenton's NFL record for completions by connecting on 347 passes. Kicker Ray Wersching set a club record 83.3 field goal percentage, also leading the league with that mark. No 49ers were named to the Pro Bowl squad. O.J. Simpson retired from the 49ers and the NFL, finishing as the second leading rusher of all time with 11,236 yards.

1980 — In their second season of the Bill Walsh era, the 49ers showed gradual improvement in their rebuilding program. A three-game winning streak to open the season, combined with a three-game victory string from Week 12 through Week 14 enabled the Niners to post a 6-10 season, tripling the number of victories from each of the previous two 2-14 campaigns. Week 14 was a day when the 49ers made NFL history. That Dec. 7 in Candlestick Park, the 49ers overcame a 35-7 halftime deficit to the New Orleans Saints to win in overtime, 38-35. The 28-point comeback was the biggest points-margin-comeback in NFL history. Randy Cross at guard and Freddie Solomon as a punt returner were All-NFC selections by Pro Football Weekly. In addition, linebacker Bobby Leopold, defensive end Jim Stuckey and punter Jim Miller were named to All-Rookie teams, while another rookie, fullback Earl Cooper, led the NFC in receptions with a team-record 83, the most catches ever by an NFL rookie. Dwight Clark caught 82 passes to break the team wide receiver mark, and Joe Montana set the club passing percentage record at .645 with 176 completions in 273 attempts.

1981 — It was a year of firsts and bests for the 49ers in 1981. In his third season as head coach and general manager, Bill Walsh guided San Francisco to: a 16-3 record (best 1981 record in the league, fourth best in NFL history, and best ever for the 49ers), the NFC Western Division title (first since '72), the NFC Championship crown (first ever for the 49ers), and the World Championship/Super Bowl XVI win (first ever for the 49ers). Walsh was named to every possible NFC Coach-of-the-Year award and to all seven NFL Coach-of-the-Year honors, while six 49ers were named to the Pro Bowl — Dwight Clark, Randy Cross, Joe Montana, Fred Dean, Ronnie Lott, and Dwight Hicks. Three San Francisco players were selected to all-pro teams as recognized by the NFL — Cross, Lott and Dean. Montana, who led the NFC in passing in '81, was named MVP of Super Bowl XVI (for leading his team to a 26-21 win over the Cincinnati Bengals of the AFC). Dean was picked UPI NFL Defensive Player-of-the-Year, NFL Outstanding Defensive Lineman-of-the-Year (NFL Players Association), and NFC Defensive Player-of-the-Year (Kansas City Committee of the 101). San Francisco opened and closed the season in Pontiac, Mich., in drastically different styles. The 49ers lost two of their first three games of 1981, including that season opener on the road against Detroit, then ran off seven wins — before a loss to Cleveland 15-12 — and ran off eight more wins (including the playoffs, the NFC Championship, and Super Bowl XVI). The 49ers won 15 of their last 16 games, beat five opponents twice — including all three postseason foes — and became the first team since Chicago in 1945-46-47 to go from the worst NFL record (2-14 in 1979) to the league's best (13-3 in '81) in just three seasons. All this happened with three rookies (Carlton Williamson, Eric Wright, and Lott) starting in the defensive secondary. Those three rookies, along with Montana, Clark, Cross, Freddie Solomon, and Hicks, combined with "old veterans" Dean and Jack "Hacksaw" Reynolds to form a nucleus of world championship vintage.

1982 — The defending world champions — the San Francisco 49ers — did not enjoy the 1982 season . . . but then, not many NFL fans, coaches and players throughout the league did either (except maybe in Washington, where the Redskins were Super Bowl XVII champs). The Niners fell to 3-6 and missed out on the playoffs in the strike-shortened season. San Francisco went winless at home (0-5) but did manage a 3-1 road record (the Niners were 0-2 prior to the 57-day players' strike and 3-4 following it). Dwight Clark had an outstanding season, leading the NFL with 60 receptions and being named consensus all-pro (and NFL Player-of-the-Year by Sports Illustrated). Keena Turner (2nd team all-pro), Ronnie Lott (Pro Bowl), Randy Cross (Pro Bowl), Dwight Hicks (Pro Bowl), Keith Fahnhorst, and Joe Montana (NFL record for five straight +300-yard passing games) were bright spots in an otherwise disappointing season.

1983 — For the second time in three seasons, San Francisco played in the NFC Championship Game . . . and almost returned to the Super Bowl. The '83 49ers were 10-6 (3rd best regular season victory total in club history) and Western Division Champions (5th time since 1970, 2nd time since 1981). In the playoffs, San Francisco squeezed past Detroit, 24-23, but lost to Washington, 24-21, in the NFC Championship contest. The Niners blew past six teams by 15-or-more points, including Dallas, Minnesota, St. Louis and New Orleans. The bad news was a mid-season losing streak that included four defeats in five weeks, and the snapping of the club-record road string after eight wins. Individual standouts included: Joe Montana (the League's No. 1 all-time QB entering the 1984 season), Ronnie Lott (making his third Pro Bowl appearance in as many years), Fred Dean (leading the NFC in sacks with 17½), Dwaine Board (second in sacks with 13), Eric Wright (team leader in interceptions with seven . . . two for scores), Dwight Clark (team leader with 70 receptions and eight TDs), Freddie Solomon (club record 21.4 yards per catch), Ray Wersching (team record 126 points, including a perfect 51 of 51 PATs), offensive linemen Randy Cross, Keith Fahnhorst, and John Ayers, running backs Roger Craig (752 yards rushing, 427 receiving) and Wendell Tyler (856 rushing yards, 285 receiving), and NFL All-Rookie Team pick Riki Ellison (two interceptions in the playoffs).

1984 — The 49ers experienced the most successful regular season in NFL history by winning a League record 15 games, including all eight road contests — setting yet another NFL standard. The Niners broke 14 team records in '84, while becoming the first NFC team to sweep all of its conference games, and the first NFC West unit to win all contests within the division. San Francisco capped the year by defeating the New York Giants and Chicago Bears in the divisional playoff and championship games, respectively, S.F. set 12 Super Bowl records, and tied four others while routing the Miami Dolphins in Super Bowl XIX, 38-16. The win was the 18th victory of the '84 campaign, establishing a new NFL standard for wins in a single season (including playoffs). During the regular season, San Francisco racked up a team-record 6,366 yards on offense, second only to the Dolphins' 6,936 total yards. San Francisco scored 30-or-more points in 10 games on its way to a team-record 475 points. The 49ers defense was the stingiest in the NFL in '84, allowing a League low 227 points scored. The defensive unit kept opponents from scoring a touchdown in four regular season games, and in both the divisional playoff clash against the New York Giants and championship games versus the Bears. That defensive unit held the Dolphins to just one touchdown and allowed a Super Bowl-low nine rushing attempts. The play of the Niners special teams was exciting and inspired . . . the units ranked among the League leaders in most coverage categories. Following the team's Super Bowl victory President-head coach Bill Walsh stated: "This is the greatest football team and the greatest group of people I've had the pleasure to be associated with during my coaching career. Without a doubt this is the best team in pro football today." Honors were numerous, including Pro Bowl recognition for 10 of Walsh's charges — Joe Montana, Wendell Tyler, Keith Fahnhorst, Randy Cross, and Fred Quillan on offense and Dwight Hicks, Ronnie Lott, Carlton Williamson, and Eric Wright (the entire Niners' secondary); and Koena Turner on defense.

The 49ers On Radio

The 49ers 1985 radio signal will be carried by nearly 30 stations in eight states. KCBS, for the fifth consecutive year, will serve as the flagship station for the signal that will reach 35 California counties, in addition to stations in Nevada, Hawaii, Alaska, Oregon, Arizona, Montana, Ohio, and Guam. The 50,000-watt range is one of the most comprehensive in professional football.

Don Klein and Don Heinrich will again handle the play-by-play and color commentary, respectively, for the 49ers.

Klein joined KCBS as sports director in 1956. He was the voice of Stanford University football and basketball for 26 years and has done a number of radio broadcasts for CBS Monday Night Football games.

Heinrich enters his third season with the 49ers as color analyst. He is a former NFL quarterback (NY Giants, 1954-59; Dallas, 1960) and, a former 49ers' assistant coach (1971-75). Don is currently the publisher of "Scouting Report", an NFL preview magazine.

The 1984 network includes: KCBS (74am), San Francisco; KPAY, Chico; KINS, Eureka; KYNO, Fresno; KDAC, Fort Bragg; KRKC, King City; KWSD, Mt. Shasta; KOCN, Monterey; KHYV, Modesto; KQMS, Redding; KIQQ, Atascadero; KUBA, Yuba City; KSYC, Yreka; KIAH, Ukiah; KJOY, Stockton; KFBK, Sacramento and KVML, Sonora. San Francisco's games will also be carried by: KTNX - Anchorage, Alaska; KJJJ - Phoenix, Arizona; KHVH - Honolulu, Hawaii; KBOW - Butte, Montana; KMJJ - Las Vegas, Nevada; KROW - Reno, Nevada; KWNA-Winnemucca, Nevada; KBND - Bend, Oregon; KMFR - Medford, Oregon; KLIQ - Portland, Oregon; WKBN - Youngstown, Ohio, and KUAM-Agana, Guam.
