The World's Best Stadium

This great new 50,000-seat D.C. Stadium has been built for comfort and convenience:

- There are no pillars or posts to obstruct anyone's vision even though this Stadium is double-decked and roofed.

- There are no bleacher, backless seats—every seat in the stadium is a comfortable chair with restful back and arm rests.

- The individual chairs average 21 inches in width—about three inches wider than normal seats.

- There are more seats under cover than in any other athletic field—ABOUT 70 per cent of the 50,000.

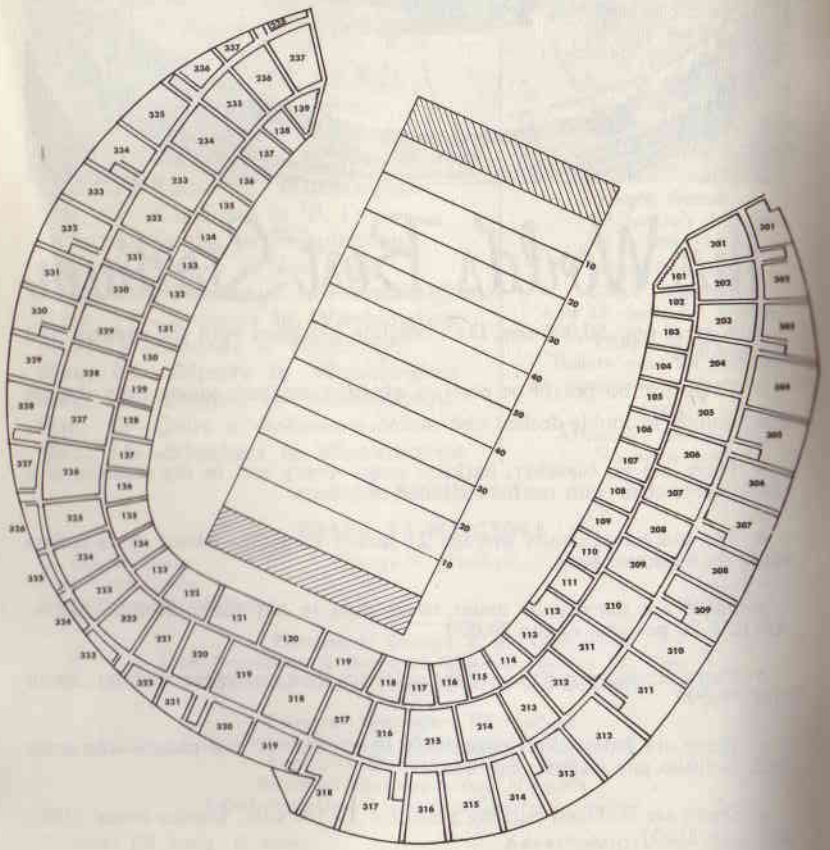

- There are more seats along the sidelines than any other stadium: more than 30,000.

- There are 26 spacious concession stands and 45 rest rooms—the most such facilities any stadium can boast.

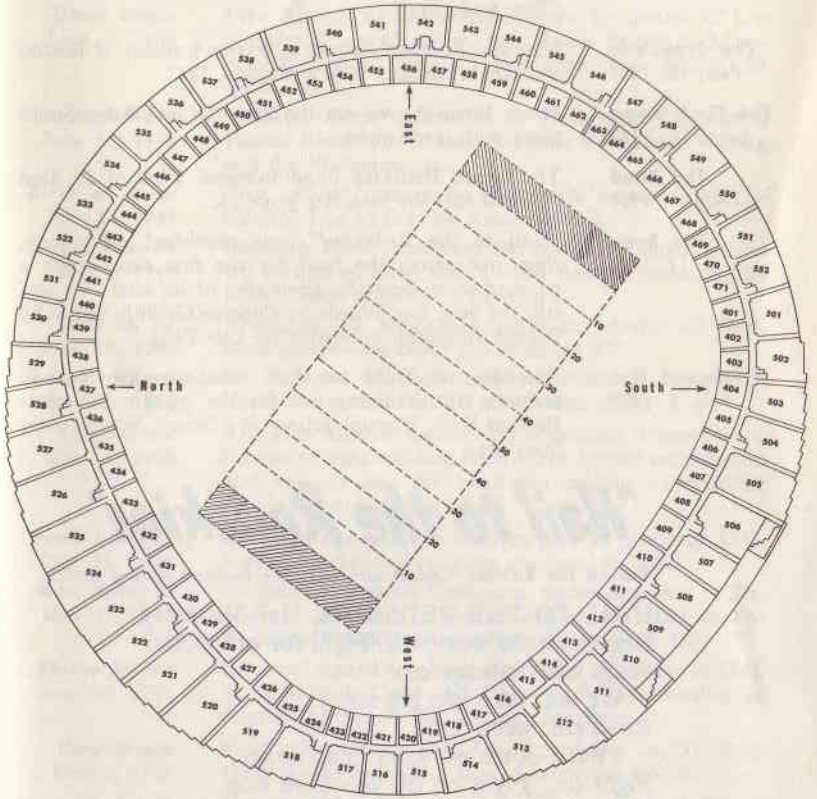

- There are surfaced parking areas for 12,500 cars, besides buses (300) and cabs (300).

- There is a giant electric scoreboard (240 feet wide and 40 feet high) which flashes messages to the crowd.

THE MILLION DOLLAR GAMES

It was the Redskins who started it—the Good Samaritan Schedule, those gigantic pre-season charity football games played by the National Football League from coast-to-coast, each summer.

And now that the facilities are available for the first time at home, it's not surprising to find that the Redskins this summer will inaugurate what may become the greatest charity game of them all—the annual Shrine Bowl in D.C. Stadium.

The kickoff game will be against the Colts on Aug. 16 and it will mark the first time the Redskins have played a night game in Washington since their first year in the National Football League in 1937.

The Redskins signed a five year contract to play this game with the Almas Temple of the Washington Shrine and the Colts will alternate with the Chicago Bears as the visiting team making this one of the NFL's greatest pre-season attractions.

Over the years the Redskins have played in pre-season games in over 30 cities from coast-to-coast and have helped raise more than $2,000,000 for charities. These games normally are sponsored by newspaper publishers and various civic organizations.

A series sponsored by the Variety Clubs of Washington and Baltimore not only introduced pro football to Baltimore but raised over $125,000 for boys' club activities in the two cities.

During World War II, two Redskins games netted about $125,000 for service relief funds. And in Winston-Salem, North Carolina the Piedmont Bowl series raised about $100,000.

This series has now been switched to Columbus, Georgia and the first game last fall greatly aided the boys' clubs in that area.

Another series, relatively new to the Good Samaritan Schedule is the annual Kiwanis Bowl game in Norfolk, Va. In two short years this game has become a summer must.

But, by far the most successful, has been the annual Los Angeles Times Charities game in the Coliseum in Los Angeles against the Rams. This summer marks the Redskins farewell appearance in this game which they helped launch back in 1946. The 16 games between these two teams have netted almost $1,500,000 for the Times Charities. It has built three boys' clubs.

Now, for the Redskins, charity begins at home with the Shrine Bowl.

THE EDUCATION OF A QUARTERBACK

Snead, running for his life, still looks down field to find that open receiver.

Down he goes. Snead is gang-tackled by the hard-charging Eagles before he had a chance to unload the ball.

est for the weary — Snead ducks and away from a clawing Eagle after getting away a pass.

Fire — Snead rears back, despite on-charging lineman and takes dead a on his receiver.
