John Riggins watches the official signal his NFL record-tying touchdown in the fourth quarter of the Redskins' 31–10 win over Dallas. This 23rd touchdown tied John with O.J. Simpson. One week later against the Giants, he scored again to break the mark. While Big John was shattering individual records (Most Total Touchdowns, Season; Most Rushing Touchdowns, Season; Most Consecutive Games, Rushing Touchdown; Most 100-Yard Rushing Games, Playoff History; Most Consecutive 100-Yard Games, Playoff History; Most Carries, NFC Championship), the Redskins were setting an all-time NFL season scoring record of 541 points and teammate Mark Moseley was kicking his own NFL mark with 161 points.

GENERAL MANAGER

The reaction from most general managers in the NFL to picking 28th in the first round of the NFL Draft would probably go something like this: "Well, there's got to be one down side to winning the Super Bowl."

But for Bobby Beathard there was no down side. With just two previous first-round picks in his six years with the Redskins, he revelled in this "last" chance.

And, as usual, came up with a winner. Twenty-seven players were chosen before Darrell Green last May; only one, however, finished ahead of him in the voting for 1983 NFL Defensive Rookie of the Year. But such a coup is now becoming commonplace for Beathard. Last year, Vernon Dean, a second-round choice and 49th pick overall (but the Redskins' first), was voted "Football Digest" Defensive Rookie of the Year.

In the NFL there's no Midas, just Beathard.

The NFL Executive of the Year the past two seasons, he has now worked on five Super Bowl teams (with four wins). This past season he had the pleasure of seeing two of his many Redskin free agents make the Pro Bowl squad in Jeff Bostic and Joe Jacoby. Also, Charlie Brown an eighth round Beathard choice in '81, played his second straight Pro Bowl game.

Amazingly, of the 49 Redskins who took part in Super Bowl XVIII, 26 were free agents, and 11 more were players drafted in the fifth round or below. And 35 of those 49 arrived in Washington over the last three seasons. Never, perhaps, has a championship calibre club been built so quickly.

Only Joe Theismann, John Riggins, and George Starke on offense, and Dave Butz and Mark Murphy on defense, are starters that Beathard was not responsible for obtaining. Of 36 Redskin draft picks over the last three years, 18 are on the current team—either active or injured reserve.

A 20-year veteran of professional football, Beathard set the trend for his Redskin success in 1978. Drafting with the fewest picks in NFL history, and no picks in the first five rounds, he chose a Pro Bowl player in round six (Tony Green) and a starting middle linebacker in round eight (Don Hover). Other Beathard "finds" include three-time Pro Bowler Mike Nelms in Canada, and little-regarded free agents (among the 26) like Neal Olkewicz (Redskins' leading tackler), Mel Kaufman, Rick Walker, Jeff Hayes, Alvin Garrett and Virgil Saay.

Among Beathard's finer trades are a 1981 deal for the Joe Washington, who ran and caught for over 1,200 yards in '83 and a 1982 swap for Tony McGee, who became a leader on the two Super Bowl defenses.

A native of El-Segundo, California, Beathard quarterbacked Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo to 9-1 records in 1957-58, rooming with CBS color man John Madden. He signed with the Redskins in 1959, but did not make the club. He also tried out with Minnesota and later played five games with San Diego in 1960. The Kansas City Chiefs hired Beathard in 1963 as a part-time scout and he stayed with them until 1966, when he moved to the AFL front office headquarters, working with Al Davis. Kansas City hired him full-time after three months at the League office and he then moved to the Atlanta Falcons in 1968 as a personnel scout.

In 1972, Miami named Beathard Director of Player Personnel, and over the next six years he was a key force for Miami's consistently top teams. In fact, Beathard was responsible for several of the leading players who guided Miami to Super Bowl XVII. On February 24, 1978, he was named Redskins' General Manager.

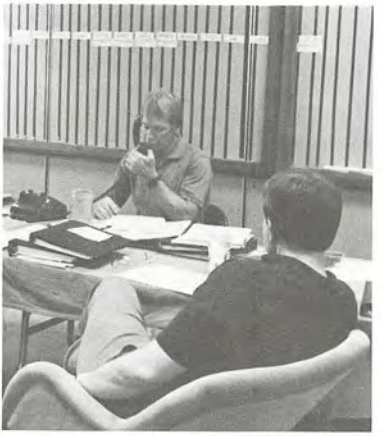

Born January 24, 1937, Beathard is an avid runner. He has run several Boston Marathons, plus many other road races, and usually runs 10-15 miles daily.

Beathard and his wife, Christine, reside in Oakton, Virginia. He has four children: Kurt, 21, and Jeff, 20, who both play football at Towson State; Casey, 18, and Jamie, 16.

BOBBY BEATHARD

HEAD COACH

With a 36-12 record (including postseason) in his three-year stint as Head Coach of the Washington Redskins, Joe Gibbs has proven himself to be both a leader and a winner.

But curiously enough, it has been in rebounding from his few defeats, that Coach Gibbs has shown his heaviest mettle. He has taught Redskin teams to lose with pride, and more importantly to come back tougher the next week.

The four Redskin losses prior to Super Bowl XVIII all marked the start of sizeable win streaks: seven straight after an '81 loss to Buffalo (how many teams have to go back to 1981 to go over its last four losses?); eight straight wins after an '82 loss to Dallas; five straight wins after an '83 (one-point) loss to Dallas; and 11 straight wins after last season's one-point Packer loss.

With such success, Redskin fans can hardly wait for the 1984 season to get under way.

And neither can 1983 Coach of the Year Joe Gibbs.

Football historians have to flip their annals back to 1961-62 to find the last time Associated Press awarded its coaching prize to the same man in successive years. But how many coaches can boast back-to-back seasons of 12-1 and 16-3? Or an offense which shatters the NFL scoring mark (541 points)? Or a defense which allows just 80.6 yards rushing per game (best in NFL)? Or a team which sports a +43 turnover ratio?

"Pro Football Weekly" and "The Sporting News" also honored Gibbs as Coach of the Year in '83. Since beginning on the Redskin sidelines at 0-5 in 1981, Gibbs has coached his team to 36 wins in 43 games, and a current nine-game regular season victory streak. Much of Gibbs' success stems from his ability to keep his team at a high level of intensity each week.

This coming season he has a chance to become the first coach to guide an NFC team to three straight Super Bowls. Joe Jackson Gibbs welcomes the challenge.

Under Don Coryell, Gibbs played tight end, linebacker, and guard at San Diego State on teams that were 22-6-1. In 1964, Gibbs served as a graduate assistant coach (offensive line) under Coryell, winning 27 of 31 games and completing a perfect 11-0 season in 1966. Florida State's Bill Peterson selected Gibbs on his coaching staff in 1967 and the Seminoles compiled a 15-4-2 with a pass oriented team that saw Ron Sellers set receiving records that still stand during those two seasons. Coach John McKay brought Gibbs to his Southern California staff in 1969 to serve as offensive line coach and the Trojans were 15-4-1 in his two years there. The year 1971 saw Arkansas' Frank Broyles offer Gibbs his next job and the Razorbacks posted a 14-8-1 mark with QB Joe Ferguson as the star pupil.

The NFL and Don Coryell welcomed Gibbs to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1973 as offensive backfield coach. From '73-77, the Cardinals were 42-27-1 with two NFC East titles. The NFC's number one offense featured new Redskin Jim Hart, Terry Metcalf, Mel Gray and Jim Otis. In 1978, Gibbs became the offensive coordinator for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers under friend John McKay. Coach Coryell called again in 1979 and Gibbs became the Chargers' offensive coordinator. In two seasons there, he helped them to two AFC West titles, setting offensive records en route.

Born in Mocksville, NC, on November 25, 1940, Gibbs moved to the west coast as a child and graduated from Sante Fe Spring High. He attended Cerritos (CA)

Junior College and then transferred to San Diego State.

Gibbs and his wife, Patricia Escobar, have two sons, Jason Dean, 15, a high school football player himself now; and Coy Randle, 11. The family resides in Vienna, Virginia.

A racquetball enthusiast, Gibbs was a 1976 national champion (35-over) and ranked second in 1977. He is also very active in church and youth programs and enjoys precious time with his family.

THE 1984 REDSKINS CONFERENCE CHAMPIONS

58 STUART ANDERSON
Linebacker

Virginia
3rd Year
Ht: 6-1 Wt: 225
Born 12/25/59

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on Dec. 21, 1982
Games Played In/Games Started: 18/0 - 1982 (2/0); 1983 (16/0)

1983 Season: Stuart was one of the players to make the Redskin special teams as special as it was last season. One of 27 Redskins to play in every game, Stuart finished fifth on the team in total hits (107), leading the way on both punt and kickoff coverage. He forced two fumbles (against Eagles and Giants), both of which were recovered by the Redskins. An outside linebacker by trade, Stuart saw occasional action all season on defense, with season-best four tackles and six coverages against Eagles in Philadelphia. He had excellent summer camp and preseason last year to become a part of a very good linebacking corps. With good speed for his size, Stuart is perfect man for outside position on punts.

Pro Career: The Redskins signed Stuart towards end of '82 season when special teams captain Pete Cronan went down with injury. A fourth-round draft choice of the Kansas City Chiefs in '82, he was one of Chiefs' last preseason cuts. Washington scouts liked Stuart's athletic ability, and believed he could be a valuable performer. The prognosis proved correct as Stuart excelled on the special teams in the four games he played (two regular season and two playoffs). He was placed on the injured reserve January 21st with a bad knee, missing the NFC Championship and the Super Bowl.

College, Personal: Stuart excelled at several positions in his four years at the University of Virginia, including nose guard, defensive tackle, middle linebacker and fullback. He ended his collegiate career with an outstanding 481 tackles, with 140 coming as a senior. Named Sporting News Honorable Mention all-America in 1981 and first-team ACC in '81 and '82, Stuart was chosen to play in the Blue-Gray Game and Olympia Gold Bowl as a senior. While leading the Cavs in tackles in '79 (125) and '80 (120), Stuart made 24 tackles against Outland Trophy winner Jim Ritcher in '79 loss to NC State. An excellent pass rusher, he finished career with 43 tackles behind line for loss of 226 yards. Stuart attended Mathews High in Cardinal, VA., where he lettered in football, basketball, and track, and was team captain in all three. He rushed for 1,350 yards his senior season there. A Special Education major, Stuart is a bachelor and resides in Herndon, VA.

JEFF BOSTIC
Center

Clemson
5th Year
Ht: 6-2 Wt: 258
Born 09/18/58

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on Sept. 2, 1980

Games Played In/Games Started: 57/41 - 1980 (16/0); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: Less than four years ago he was a free agent hired to play special teams. Last January, he played on the most special team of all—the NFC Pro Bowl squad as the starting center. Jeff was the center of attention for the Hogs last season, controlling the middle of the line perhaps better than any center in football. With Jeff knocking people off the line, the Redskins were third in the NFL last season in rushing offense (164.1 yards per game). He was also recognized by United Press International (First-team NFC all-Pro) and in preseason by the Redskin Alumni Association. The smallest of the Hogs, Jeff made all the long snaps for the Redskins in '83, and contributed 13 tackles on punt coverage. He also downed two punts on the one yard-line (against Giants and 49ers in NFC Championship), and recovered two fumbles (against Eagles and Giants). It's extremely rare to see Theismann and Bostic have a bad connection. The protection Jeff and his Hogmates provided in '83 helped Redskins score 21 points or more in all but final game. Jeff also pounced on a rare Riggins fumble against Cowboys. His Redskin 57-game consecutive streak is the fourth-longest on the team.

Pro Career: The Philadelphia Eagles had their chance with Jeff, signing him as a free agent following the 1980 collegiate draft. But on August 26, the Redskins got good news when the Eagles released him. He was officially signed by Washington on Sept. 2, for all the snaps of punts and field goals. He earned his first game ball vs. San Diego when he caused a fumble and made numerous hits on special teams. In 1981, emerging as one of the stars of training camp, Jeff earned the starting slot and kept it, precipitating Russ Grimm's move to left guard. A tribute to his hustle, he led the punt coverage team in total tackles that season. In 1982, Jeff was on the verge of all-Pro, according to his coach, Joe Bugel. His flawless snaps were a key to Mark Moseley's record field goal streak. An amazing blocker, Jeff fit the role of Hog to perfection, and was once nicknamed "Pop-N-Fresh" as in the Pillsbury Dough Boy.

College, Personal: After earning all-ACC honors as a center at Clemson, Jeff switched to guard his senior year. He had followed brother Joe to Clemson and then to the NFL; Joe now starts at guard for the Cardinals. The son of a police officer, Jeff was born in Greensboro, NC, and graduated from Benjamin L. Smith High in that city. This past offseason, Jeff became a star of sorts, filming with his fellow Hogs a McDonalds commercial, and later a small role in a film called "The Imagemaker." He also contributed time and money to two charities: Martha's Table and Soup Kitchen. Jeff and his wife, Lynn Smith, reside in Reston, VA.

PERRY BROOKS

Defensive Tackle

Southern
7th Year
Ht: 6-3 Wt: 270
Born 12/04/54

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on March 1, 1977

Games Played In/Games Started: 76/23 - 1978 (16/2); 1979 (12/0); 1980 (12/4); 1981 (15/12); 1982 (5/5); 1983 (16/0)

1983 Season: An important part of the defensive substitution pattern, Perry entered the game in passing situations replacing Darryl Grant. He recorded 2½ sacks in that capacity, and added 18 tackles for the regular season (11 solos). In the playoffs, Perry added four tackles and one forced fumble (in the Rams game). His large presence on the defensive line helped the Redskins come up with 51 sacks in 1983, tied for 5th-best in the NFC.

Pro Career: Another of the famed Redskin free agents, Perry was a 1976 seventh-round choice of the New England Patriots, but was released two days before the season opener on the final cutdown. Washington signed him in 1977, but a knee injury in a preseason contest in Miami sidelined him for the entire campaign. In 1978, Perry played all 16 games as a reserve, recording three quarterback sacks along the way. After a torn biceps in '79 training camp, he came back to play 12 games, registering 20 tackles, four QB sacks, and a fumble recovery. In 1980, Perry started four games, made 45 tackles and had three quarterback sacks before an ankle injury placed him on injured reserve the final four weeks. In '81, Perry started 12 games, played in 15, led the club with 6½ sacks and four forced fumbles. He was second among defensive linemen and seventh on the team in tackles with 81½, while also recovering two fumbles. A sprained neck forced him to miss one game but Perry came back strong to start the final ten games. In '82, Perry was enjoying an excellent season until he broke his leg in the Dec. 5 loss to Dallas. The injury occurred on the Cowboys' first offensive series, but Perry went on to play the entire game. Perry came back on Jan. 21. Prior to the injury, he had made 21 tackles, including 17 first hits, recovered a fumble, had one sack, and also forced a fumble.

College, Personal: Perry earned all-SWAC honors for two seasons at Southern (LA) University. He was a fullback at Wesley Ray High in Angie, LA, gaining over 1,000 yards rushing. A graduate in agricultural agronomy, Perry spent much of the offseason in a suit and tie, working as a consultant for the Heritage Financial Group, an Alexandria, VA. firm dealing in investments, real estate, and stock, etc. He also worked in the personnel department of Giant Foods; and Perry and his wife, Vergie, have opened a Speedy Prining Shop in the area. Perry and his wife welcomed a new addition to the family this offseason; Ahmad is the Brooks' third child; Krsunthia is 9, and Perry Jr. is 4. Born in Bogalusa, LA, Perry and his family now reside in Fairfax, VA.

QUARTERBACK SACKS: 1978-3; 1979-4; 1980-3; 1981-6½; 1982-1; 1983-2½; Total: 20

CHARLIE BROWN

Wide Receiver

S. C. State
3rd Year
Ht: 5-10 Wt: 179
Born 10/29/58

How Acquired: Selected in eighth round of 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 24/22 - 1981 (0—injured reserve); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (15/13)

1983 Season: Charlie more than lived up to his nickname of "Downtown" in '83 by becoming the first Redskin since 1966 (Charley Taylor) to total over 1,000 yards receiving. His 1,225 yards (4th in NFC) of zigs and zags is the third highest total ever by a Redskin, trailing only Bobby Mitchell's 1,436 (1963) and 1,384 (1962). Charlie's 78 catches (tied for NFC best) trail no one in Redskin lore, however, with Mitchell and Taylor sharing previous record of 72. In short, Charlie Brown has caught on, as his second straight Pro Bowl selection attests. He turned on the RFK crowd and his own afterburners for a 70-yard touchdown against San Francisco in the NFC Championship. With a tremendous vertical leap, Charlie led the Redskin receivers in playoff action as well, grabbing 14 passes for 401 yards (an imposing 28.6 yard average) with one TD. He was the third-best Redskin scorer in regular season with eight touchdown catches (4th in NFC), longest being 75-yarder versus the Eagles in RFK. An original Fun Bunch celebrator, Charlie had six catches over 40 yards last season, and has seven over 50 yards in his career, all for TD's. All of these numbers added up to a second-team all-NFC selection by UPI (for the second straight season as well), and the respect of cornerbacks throughout football. His biggest days of the 1983 season came against the Raiders in RFK (11 catches, 180 yards), the Rams in Anaheim (eight catches, 140 yards), the Chargers (eight catches, 101 yards), the Eagles in RFK (seven catches, 147 yards), and the Rams in the playoffs (six catches, 171 yards). Charlie also ran four times on the year for 53 yards, with a long of 17. He caught passes from Joe Theismann, John Riggins, and Art Monk, and did not fumble once in the 96 times he handled the ball. In all, he enjoyed six 100-yard games in '83, earning a place on the Redskins' Velvet Hands Trophy for his performance against the Raiders. In Super Bowl XVIII, Charlie caught three balls for 93 yards. He also recovered an onside kickoff during game in Seattle. Smurf Charlie is also applauded regularly by coaches for blocking ability. But Hogdom does not await. Downtown will do just fine.

Pro Career: After sitting out '81 season with knee injury, Charlie burst upon scene in '82, catching 78-yard touchdown pass in first game of season (vs. Eagles). By year's end, his name was listed eight times in the Redskins' ten longest gains of '82 with receptions of 78t (touchdown), 65t, 58t, 57t, 45, 43, 39t, and 38. His 21.6 yard average per catch was the NFL's best for anyone with over 20 catches. Earning a Pro Bowl trip, Charlie finished season with 690 yards receiving (3rd in NFC), and eight touchdowns (best in NFC, 2nd in NFL). With 17 playoff catches that season, Charlie now has, in seven playoff contests, 31 catches for 643 yards (4.4 catches and 92 yards per game), which is slightly above his incredible 24-game regular season average of 4.6 catches and 80.2 yards per game. Highlighting '82 season,

Charlie caught a TD in NFC Championship vs. Dallas, and then the clinching touchdown in Super Bowl win over Miami. In addition to the Pro Bowl and UPI all-NFC second-team selections, Charlie was also named to the Pro Football Writers All-Rookie Team (though he was actually considered first-year player because of year on IR). He caught six passes in Super Bowl XVII for 60 yards.

College, Personal: A 4.45 speedster, Charlie caught 61 passes for 1,533 yards at South Carolina State. He averaged 25 yards per catch (career) with a 26.7 average his senior season. Charlie scored 19 touchdowns at South Carolina State, a small college, but one with a good football program which has placed several top players in the NFL (Deacon Jones and Harry Carson, among others). Born in Charleston, S.C., Charlie has seven brothers and sisters. A graduate of St. John's High, John's Island, SC, Charlie earned a Bachelors Degree in Physical Education. Last off-season, the city of Charleston gave Charlie his own day and parade. This past offseason, Charlie played a full slate of basketball games, along with some Redskin teammates, and finished as the team's leading scorer. (At 5-10, he can dunk from a standing start.) A bachelor, Charlie resides in Herndon, VA.

DAVE BUTZ

Defensive Tackle

Purdue
11th Year NFL (9th Redskins)
Ht: 6-7 Wt: 295
Born 06/23/50

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on August 5, 1975. In compensation, the Redskins gave the Cardinals three draft choices (two number ones and a number two), while St. Louis gave the Redskins a fifth, sixth, and 15th round pick. This is considered the largest compensation deal in NFL history.

Games Played In/Games Started: 141/114 - 1973 (12/10); 1974 (1/1); 1975 (14/1); 1976 (14/8); 1977 (12/7); 1978 (16/16); 1979 (15/14); 1980 (16/16); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: Some players have seasons to remember; others have specific games to remember. In 1983, Dave Butz had one of each. His season was, in a word, spectacular. In reaching the Pro Bowl for the first time in his career (an overdue honor), Dave made 69 tackles (2nd best among defensive linemen), piled up a team-leading 11½ sacks, forced a team-best five fumbles, and even recovered one. He was the anchor of a defense which led the NFL in stopping the run (80.6 yards per game). And then there was the game. People in Texas Stadium that day will never forget the afternoon number 65 enjoyed at the expense of their celebrated heroes. Week 15. Redskins vs Cowboys for Eastern Division title. Dave is everywhere, getting 2½ sacks, stopping three running plays for losses, and adding four more tackles for a total of 9½, including even catching Tony Dorsett from behind on a screen pass. Final score: Washington 31, Dallas 10. Dave was well-rewarded for his hard work last year. Besides his trip to Hawaii, he was also named to the AP NFL all-Pro team, the Pro Football Weekly all-Pro NFL team, the UPI all-NFC Second Team, and the Sporting News all-Pro NFL team. He also received awards from the Washington DC Touchdown Club, and the Kansas City 101 Club. Once again, Dave started all 16 games last year to increase his consecutive regular season streak to 71 games played, third-best on the team. Dave also contributed five tackles in the playoffs last year. Along with Darryl Grant, Dave was able to successfully clog the middle for the Redskins and stuff many an opponent running game.

Pro Career: The fifth player picked overall in the 1973 draft (by St. Louis), Dave earned all-NFL rookie honors for the Cardinals. In the first game of the 1974 season, he suffered a knee injury and missed the entire season. After playing out his option, Dave accepted the Redskins offer and the compensation was completed to sign him. He has intercepted two passes in his career (both vs the Bears), recovered four fumbles, and returned one kickoff for 23 yards. In 1981, Dave was honored as the Redskins' Defensive Player of the Year by the Brookland Club (repeating his 1978 honor). Dave was the alternate for the Pro Bowl in the player balloting in the NFC in 1981. In 1980, the Monday Morning Touchdown Club honored him as "Outstanding Redskin." For the 1979 season, Dave was a second-team all-NFC pick of UPI. In 1982, Dave was the leader of the NFL's stingiest point defense (128). He led the defensive line with 55 regular season tackles and 19 post-season stops, and was a unanimous "Why didn't he get picked for the Pro Bowl?" selection. He also recorded 4½ regular season sacks, forced one fumble and recovered a fumble. In the playoffs, Dave forced two fumbles, and recovered a very big one. It was David Woodley's fumble after Dexter Manley knocked the ball loose in the Super Bowl. A Moseley field goal shortly followed. He was given a Timmie Award from the Washington Touchdown Club. Having now played in 125 of 128 games since coming to the Redskins, Dave has led the defensive line in tackles three of the last four seasons.

College, Personal: An all-American at Purdue, Dave was a three-year starter. He obtained a double major in Physical Education and Health and Safety with a minor in Speech. In high school at Park Ridge (IL) Maine South, Dave was State shot put champion and played basketball, once shattering a backboard, before Darryl Dawkins made it fashionable. His biggest problem may be finding shoes to fit him with a 12½ length to go with a 7EEEEEEE width. Dave is the nephew of former Secretary of Agriculture, Earl Butz. In the offseason, Dave works for James Madison Banks in Marketing Home Banking Systems, and for PEPCO in the public relations department dealing with energy conservation programs. His commercial last season for a heat pump was a hugh success, with Dave sitting on the pump and the old woman coming along. His chief hobby has become decoy (duck) carving, with a local Virginia jewelry store (Reston International Jewelers) selling several of Dave's carvings. Other hobbies include hunting, boating, wine-making, fishing, camping, hiking, and computers. Dave and his wife, Candyce, have two children: David Jr., 7, and Kiffen, 2. The Butz family resides in Belleville, IL in the offseason. Dave was born in Lafayette, AL., but moved to Illinois at an early age. He remains very active on the speaking circuit. He had his own radio show this past season on WEEL (1310 AM), giving two reports a day on Mondays and Fridays.

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent prior to the 1983 season opener
Games Played In/Games Started: 19/0 - 1982 (4/0); 1983 (15/0)

1983 Season: Acquired just before the start of the season, Brian proved to be a valuable asset in the secondary, playing a great deal of nickel back and drawing much praise from Defensive Coach Richie Petitbon. He progressed well over the season's course, making his first career interception against the Rams in Anaheim on a diving catch. He finished with 14 regular season tackles (12 solos), and one more in postseason. Also a solid performer on the fine Redskin special teams, Brian placed seventh on the team with 76 total hits, including 51 blocks on punt returns (2nd best). He played in all but one game in '83, missing the second Eagle contest with a sore shoulder. Coach Gibbs indicated he would like to get a longer look at Brian in training camp this summer.

Pro Career: A 4th-round draft choice of the Dallas Cowboys in 1982, Brian was released on the final cut and later signed by the Giants during the regular season. He saw limited action on special teams and reserve cornerback. Brian was then released on the Giants final cut in the 1983 preseason.

College, Personal: A starting cornerback for Michigan his junior and senior years, Brian finished with six career interceptions, displaying a knack for making the big play. He had a key theft at the Michigan eight yard-line in the Wolverines' 1981 Rose Bowl win over Washington. He led Michigan in interceptions in 1980 with five, including two in a victory over Indiana. An Honorable Mention all-Big Ten choice in 1980, Brian moved up to second-team all-Big Ten his senior season, while being selected for the Olympia Gold Bowl and East-West Shrine Game. He also returned 16 punts for a 7.7 average at Michigan. An Education Major, Brian and his wife, Lenora, reside in Reston, VA. He spent part of the offseason working at a Reggie McKenzie's Football Clinic in Detroit, and hails from Michigan originally.

48 KEN COFFEY

Strong Safety

SW Texas State
2nd Year
Ht: 6-0 Wt: 190
Born 07/11/60

How Acquired: Drafted in the 9th round in 1982

Games Played In/Games Started: 13/2 - 1982 (0-injured reserved); 1983 (13/2)

1983 Season: Everyone remembers the Redskins stopping Ron Springs of the Cowboys on fourth down. But does anyone remember Ken Coffey's splendid one-on-one stop of Springs on third down? It was just one of a host of solid plays made by Ken last season. Unfortunately, another of his better plays got lost in the shuffle in '83: a block of a Bucky Scribner punt in Green Bay. When the final score is 48-47, favor of the other team, a third quarter blocked punt does not linger in people's minds. In his first season of action (he spent 1982 on injured reserve with a blood disorder), Ken started five games and played in 13, while missing three games with a knee injury. He was the team's third leading interceptor with four for 62 yards and a long of 29. The thefts came against the Eagles, Raiders (a diving grab), Eagles, and Falcons, plus another in the playoffs against the Rams. Fast becoming a big-play maker for the Redskins, Ken also added a quarterback sack (in first Eagles game) and a fumble recovery to his impressive stats. He ended the season as the Redskins' 10th leading tackler with 64, and second-best in the forced fumbles department with three (Chiefs, Eagles, and Giants). He moved up to start all three playoff contests, finishing as the team's second-best tackler in those games (21). He is an extremely active player on defense who the coaches feel needs only time to become top defensive back.

Pro Career: On August 24, 1982, Ken was placed on injured reserve with a blood disorder, and remained there for entire season. He recovered, however, to engage in all practices with the team in the latter part of the season, and thus familiarize himself with the system.

College, Personal: A first-team all-Lone Star Conference selection in 1981, Ken helped lead the Bobcats to the NCAA DIvision II Championship. He paced SW Texas State with eight interceptions, including a 41-yard return for a touchdown against Abilene Christian. A defensive captain, Ken was a main cog in the defense which recorded four shutouts in 1981, including a 62-0 blitzing of Northern Michigan in NCAA Playoff Game. He transferred from Tyler College to SWTS in 1980, where he graduated as a Finance major in 1982. Ken was twice named all-District split end at Big Spring (TX) High and lettered three times in track and was the District long jump champion. This past offseason, Ken spent some time at the D.C. Association of Retarded Citizens, and also at the Drug Rehabilitation Center in Washington. Road trips will often find Ken reading a novel, usually with headphones around his ears and a cassette on his lap. Ken was married this offseason to the former Brenda Henry on May 19, the last day of mini-camp. The ceremony was in a church, however, and not on the 50 yard-line, as rumor had it. The couple, who both have a good sense of humor, reside in Reston, VA.

51 MONTE COLEMAN

Linebacker

Cent. Arkansas
6th Year
Ht: 6-2 Wt: 230
Born 11/04/57

How Acquired: Drafted in the 11th round in 1979

Games Played In/Games Started: 62/23 - 1979 (16/0); 1980 (16/10); 1981 (12/11); 1982 (8/2); 1983 (10/0)

1983 Season: With a Division Title hinging on the outcome, the Redskins were banking on their defense to hold a 24-22 lead against the Giants in the season finale. A loss would open the swinging doors for the Cowboys to grab the title and a week off. But suddenly, oh so suddenly, Monte Coleman closed those doors for good. He rushed in untouched on quarterback Jeff Rutledge ("Only the crowd saw me," he later said) and hit him hard enough to force a fumble which Dave Butz recovered. Not many linebackers would have had the quickness to execute such a play, but Monte did. It was just one of many plays made last year by the man teammates call "Super" because of his Herculean build. After missing the first six games with a thigh injury sustained in Buffalo, Monte came back for the last 10 games to record 29 tackles, two sacks, and two recovered fumbles. He also contributed heavily in the playoffs, recording 13 tackles, and adding two sacks, one forced fumble, and one recovered fumble. His regular season sacks came against the Cowboys and Cardinals. Monte was used on a reverse kickoff return in the NFC Championship Game that gained 40 yards but was called back by penalty. Monte had a fine game in that 49er contest, making five tackles, defending two passes, and recovering a fumble. He also contributed on special teams, with 22 hits, and eight tackles on punt coverage.

Pro Career: Another of Bobby Beathard's excellent late-round picks, Monte has been just a couple of nagging injuries short of becoming one of the NFL's top linebackers. As a rookie, he recovered three fumbles, intercepted a pass, had two sacks, and made 37 tackles. His second season saw him replace Brad Dusek at left linebacker and then later Pete Wysocki on the right side. He started 10 games and recorded 115 tackles (second on the team).

In 1981, Monte suffered a fractured shoulder in Week 2 vs the Giants, missed four games, but then came back strong to finish third on the team in total tackles (114½). His biggest moment came in Week 14 against the Eagles when he picked off a pass in the fourth quarter and returned it 52 yards for the game-winning touchdown. In addition, he had 3½ quarterback sacks, a fumble recovery, and three pass interceptions for the year.

In 1982, Monte was the starting outside linebacker (left side) until he suffered a shoulder injury before the New York Giants' game (Nov. 21). Although never fully recovered, he played every game but one (Philadelphia—Nov. 28) and made 27 tackles. Coming in on passing situations in the playoffs, Monte excelled, getting a sack in the Detroit game, making eight tackles, and then causing and recovering a fumbled punt against Dallas in the NFC Championship Game. He recovered that in the end zone but the ball was brought back to the 11. The Redskins scored a touchdown soon after. He also led the team in getting downfield first on punt returns.

College, Personal: After earning NAIA honors at little-known University of Central Arkansas, Monte became his school's first NFL draftee. He recorded a school mark of 22 interceptions as a safety and linebacker. He enrolled at UCA to follow his brother, Sam, a running back, who also had a tryout with the Redskins. Monte majored in Commercial Art and enjoys landscape painting. He stays active in the offseason playing softball and basketball, hunting, and especially fishing which he indulges in most often (a lot of bass fishing, he says). He graduated from Pine Bluff High, but now resides in Reston, VA. Monte has two children: a son Corry, 7; and a daughter Londie, 4. He remains a very popular figure in the Washington area, and does much public speaking.

54 PETER CRONAN

Linebacker

Boston College
7th Year NFL
(4th Redskin)
Ht: 6-2 Wt: 238
Born 01/13/55

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, Oct. 15, 1981

Games Played In/Games Started: 82/5 - 1977 (14/1); 1978 (15/1); 1979 (16/1); 1980 (0/0); 1981 (14/2); 1982 (7/0); 1983 (16/0)

1983 Season: In the world of special teams, Pete Cronan is like an Atlas holding up that world. He is the Redskins special teams captain who tied for the team lead last year in total hits with Otis Wonsley. (Both had a team record 157.) He led the team in blocks on punt returns with 53, and had his top day with 12 total hits in 31-10 win over Cowboys. Having played in all 16 games, Pete was in on five tackles on kick coverage vs. Detroit. His 16 "1st hits" on kickoff coverage led the team. "Cronan the Barbarian" was instrumental in the coverage units which allowed only 2.7 yards per punt return and 16.6 yards per kickoff return in the first two playoff games last year. If NFL had decided a year sooner to send one special teams player to the Pro Bowl, Pete might have ended up in Hawaii last year. He had 52 blocks on kickoff returns, third-best on team. Also a reserve middle linebacker, Pete is the player you always see waving his arms trying to fire up the crowd at RFK Stadium. More often than not, he is successful.

Pro Career: A second round draft choice (51st overall) of the Seattle Seahawks in 1977, Pete played in 45 games his first three seasons there, starting three. He missed the 1980 season, suffering a herniated disc in his neck in August. His career best for tackles was 16 in a 1979 start vs Denver. He was credited with 58 and 53 tackles, respectively, for the 1979 and '78 seasons. He has recovered six fumbles, intercepted two passes for 15 yards, had two quarterback sacks, and blocked a punt in his NFL career. In 1981, Pete was active for the Redskins in the final 10 games of the season and started the last two when Neal Olkewicz was injured. For the season, he was credited with 20 tackles, and 57 total hits on the specialty units. Named captain of the special teams in '82, Pete responded by leading the group to the best kickoff and punt coverage in the NFC. He was an intimidating force in the Redskins' first seven games before a hamstring injury put him on injured reserve. He returned for the NFC Championship Game against Dallas and the Super Bowl against Miami. At the time of the injury, Pete was third on the team with 46 hits on special teams and led the kickoff coverage with 12 tackles and eight assists. One of the more physical players in NFL, Pete had key fumble recovery in Redskins' first victory over Giants. He also served as a reserve linebacker making one tackle.

College, Personal: At Boston College, Pete was named the East's Player of the Year by the ECAC in 1976, New England Sportswriters Outstanding Player, and Sports Illustrated Lineman of the Week for his 22-tackle effort vs Texas. BC's captain, he was winner of the Swede Nelson Sportsmanship Award, presented nationally by the Boston Gridiron Club. A four-year letterman, he received his degree in Elementary Education with a minor in sociology. Pete lettered in five sports (football, basketball, hockey, baseball, and track) at Marian High in Framingham, MA. During the offseason, Pete was one of the busier Redskins, operating a camp (the All East Football Academy) in Framingham with fellow NFL pros Jim Rourke, Joe Nash, and Tom Lynch. "Our motto was to get pros in touch with kids," Pete said. He also studied to obtain his securities license, dealt in real estate, and continued to stay active on the speaking circuit. Previously, he has worked with the Muscular Dystrophy Association and Arthritis Foundation in offseasons. He and his wife, Debbie, have one daughter, Allyson, 1½. The Cronans reside in Framingham.

32 VERNON DEAN

Defensive Back

San Diego State
3rd Year
Ht: 5-11 Wt: 178
Born 05/05/59

How Acquired: Selected in second round of 1982 draft (49th overall)
Games Played In/Games Started: 25/21 - 1982 (9/8); 1983 (16/13)

1983 Season: Vernon once again displayed a knack for being in the right place at the right time last season. When Wayne Morris fumbled into his own Cardinal end zone in the first quarter of a scoreless duel in RFK, Vernon out-hustled countless others for his first NFL touchdown. And when Joe Montana needed the long pass to rally his 49ers in the last minute of the NFC Championship, Vernon was there to intercept the ball and guarantee Washington's return trip to the Super Bowl. He was second on the Redskins in interceptions with five (for 54 yards), and eighth in tackles with 69. In addition, Vernon forced three fumbles during the regular season, and made two solo tackles in the playoffs. Starting 13 games and playing in all 16 (despite an injured shoulder), Vernon led the Redskins in fumble recoveries with three (one vs Chiefs and two vs Cardinals). He also came on to play extremely well on special teams in the latter part of the season.

Pro Career: As the Redskins' third-highest draft pick since 1971 (49th overall), Vernon enjoyed an outstanding rookie season, finishing as runner-up to Cleveland's Chip Banks in the balloting for AP NFL Defensive Player of the Year. His three interceptions tied him for the team lead, as he also contributed 47 tackles and one forced fumble, replacing Joe Lavender (injury) in the second game of the season. Vernon was well-honored for his fine season: Football Digest NFL defensive Rookie of the Year, second-team UPI all-NFC, and first-team NFL all-rookie team by the Pro Football Writers Association. In the playoffs, Vernon finished third on the team with 24 tackles, forced another fumble, and contributed a sack.

College, Personal: A first-team all-WAC selection at San Diego State in 1981, Vernon earned AP Honorable Mention all-American honors. He took part in the Blue-Gray game, the Olympia Gold Bowl, and the East-West Shrine Game. In his first game with San Diego State after transferring from US International University, Vernon broke Brigham Young (and now Chicago Bear) QB Jim McMahon's string of 152 pass attempts without an interception. Vernon graduated from Los Angeles High and entered Los Angeles Valley Junior College where he started in 1977 and '78 before transferring to USIU. In his final season there, he had 10 air thefts for 179 yards. In '81, he led the WAC with six intercepts (89 yards), while making 52 tackles and batting down eight passes. A bachelor, Vernon resides in Los Angeles in the offseason. A Business Administration Major, he enjoys spending time with children.

86 CLINT DIDIER

Tight End

Portland State
3rd Year
Ht: 6-5 Wt: 240
Born 04/04/59

How Acquired: Selected in 12th round of 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 24/2 - 1982 (8/0); 1983 (16/2)

1983 Season: For Joe Theismann last season, the best idea was to throw the ball into the hands of Clint, because there was almost a one-in-two chance that the reception would be a touchdown. In other words, of nine catches Clint had, four went for touchdowns. That defines a money man. A speedy tight end, he scored TD's on a 40-yard pass play (in Dallas), a 39-yard play (vs Kansas City), an 18-yard play (vs Atlanta), and a seven-yard catch (in finale vs Giants). He added a fifth season TD when he recovered John Riggins fumble in the end zone for a touchdown against Green Bay. Those five touchdowns made Clint the Redskins' fifth leading scorer last year (tied). Clint then enjoyed an outstanding playoffs, grabbing nine more passes for 133 yards (14.8 average), as the Redskins' second-leading playoff receiver. He was one of few to have good Super Bowl, hauling in five passes for 65 yards, with a long of 20, taking advantage of one-on-one coverage. His 17.0 average per catch on regular season was team best for anyone with more than five catches. He had three catches for 61 yards in NFC Championship against 49ers, including 46-yard bomb. A starter for two games after Don Warren bruised his back against Rams, Clint enjoyed best games against Giants (three catches), and against Dallas (40 yards). With speed and deftness plus good blocking ability, Clint has bright future with Redskins.

Pro Career: The 314th player chosen in the 332-man draft, Clint suffered a pulled hamstring in training camp in 1981 and was placed on injured reserve in August. He had already scored a touchdown by that time, hauling in a 37 yarder in a preseason contest against then-AFC Champion Cincinnati. Clint had an excellent training camp in '82 and became one of Washington's best special team players that season. He also excelled later in the season, scoring his first regular season TD in the finale against St. Louis (a two-yard score), and then contributing a key block on John Riggins' Super Bowl-winning touchdown run. Clint played well in Pasadena, filling in for Don Warren, who was injured in the game. He had another regular season catch as well in '82 (eight yards). Clint was often the first man downfield on punts (10 times—second-best on team), and made a great play in the first Giants' game, leaping into the end zone to keep a punt from falling there, knocking the ball out to the one. The move kept the Giants pinned in their fourth quarter attempt for a tying touchdown.

College, Personal: A super athlete, Clint earned the nickname "Frog" by running a 4.5 40-yard dash, leaping 33 inches in the vertical jump, and leading all players with a record 35-foot plus triple broad jump. At Portland State, Clint caught 118 passes for 1,963 yards from Cardinal QB Neil Lomax. As a senior he had 67 catches, a 16.3 average per catch, and scored 12 touchdowns. He transferred to Portland from Columbia Basin (WA) Junior College. Born in Pasco, WA, Clint graduated from Connell High where he was a track hurdler as well as a football player. The son of a farmer, Clint spends his offseason working at home. He has three brothers and a sister. His brother, Curt, signed as a free agent with the Raiders in 1980. Clint and his wife, Kristie Trapp, have one child, a daughter, Brandie Rae, 1½, and are expecting a second in the fall. The Didiers reside in Kennwick, Washington.

REGGIE EVANS

Running Back

Richmond
2nd Year
Ht: 5-11 Wt: 201
Born 01/05/59

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent following 1982 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 15 - 1982 (0-injured reserve); 1983 (15/0)

1983 Season: The Redskins' designated scorer of 1983, Reggie only carried the ball 11 times on the season, but scored four touchdowns. Even John Riggins couldn't match such a percentage. After sitting out the '82 season with a knee injury, Reggie worked hard to become yet another free agent on the Redskin roster. He earned his place on the squad with a terrific preseason, and proved valuable as a short yardage specialist and on special teams as well. His big moment of glory in '83 came against Detroit in Week 8, when he filled in at fullback for an injured Riggins, and scored three touchdowns, while also picking up a key 3rd-down gain. For the year, Reggie carried 16 times, picking up 11 yards with a long gain of five; but most of those carries were when defenses were packed in. He also served all season as one of three deep men on opposing kickoffs, returning 10 kicks for 141 yards, with a long of 28 vs. the Giants. His 24 points were seventh-best on the team. In the playoffs, Reggie had three carries for four yards, and one kickoff return for eight yards. He totalled 72 hits on the special teams, blocking and tackling, including 25 tackles on kickoff coverage.

Pro Career: Reggie injured his knee in training camp of 1982 and was placed on the injured reserve list August 2, remaining there the entire season.

College, Personal: A four-year letterman at the University of Richmond, Reggie averaged 4.4 yards a carry during his career. He was used primarily as blocker for number one draft choice (Rams) Barry Redden there, but Redskin scouts saw ability. He gained 1,223 yards on 276 attempts and scored nine touchdowns, with scoring jaunts of 77 and 79 yards to his credit. Reggie spent offseason hours visiting Childrens Hospital from time to time, and also the DC Street Academy for troubled kids. In addition, he found time to tie the wedding knot with the former Beverly Methura, March 17. That did not stop Reggie, however, from escorting a Cherry Blossom Princess in annual spring parade. The Evans reside in Reston, VA.

Born 05/01/60

How Acquired: Selected in Round 10 (279th) of the 1983 draft
Games Played In/Games Started: 0 - 1983 (IR)

1983 Season: Geff was placed on injured reserve with a knee injury prior to the season opener with Dallas. He participated in all four preseason games, making three tackles against Atlanta and two against Buffalo. Later in the season, Geff began practicing with the team.

College, Personal: Geff led Baylor in tackles his senior year, for the second consecutive season, with 137, 63 unassisted. He never missed a game for the Bears, playing in 44 straight. A middle linebacker, Geff snared two interceptions in 1982, and broke up another pass. He also dropped a runner for a loss of four yards. A defensive co-captain at Baylor, Geff was the leader of one of the sturdiest defenses in the Southwestern Conference, holding a high-powered Texas A&M offense to 130 yards rushing. Geff also blocked three kicks in his career, one of which was recovered in the end zone of Texas Tech for a Baylor touchdown. He had 115 tackles, three of which behind the line, in his junior season. Geff had a very successful high school career at Churchill H.S. in San Antonio that saw his teams win the state title his sophomore season, district champs his junior year, and state semi-finalists as a senior. He was all-District his senior season. A Business Major, Geff is single and resides in San Antonio, Texas.

1983 Season: It was the Alvin Show during last season's Monday Night opener with Dallas; the original "Smurf" caught 10 passes for 101 yards, including a near-record nine for 80 yards in the first half alone. He started the first five games of the season as Art Monk recovered from a twisted knee. But as that first-game performance proved, the Redskins didn't miss a beat with Alvin in the lineup, and Alvin didn't miss a pass. In Week Four against Seattle, he had three catches for 62 yards, including a 47-yard TD grab, his lone score of the season. Alvin finished the regular season with 25 catches for 332 yards (both fifth on team), adding three more catches for 30 yards in the playoffs. He had a long catch of 84 yards (the Redskins' longest play of the season) against Detroit, the second longest pass play in the NFC last year. Alvin's other prime value is in the special teams area, where he is one of the more versatile players on the team. He returned two regular season kickoffs for 50 yards, and then took over those chores in the playoffs, with Mike Nelms injured. He returned nine playoff kickoffs for 178 yards and a long of 38. He's also an excellent coverage tackler on kickoffs (17 tackles), and a superb blocker on runs from scrimmage. Alvin ran twice himself in '83 with a long gain of four yards. He wisely fair caught a Giants' onside kickoff in November game. An original Fun Buncher, Alvin was called upon to start the Lions game when Charlie Brown was injured. A true role player, he performs well wherever placed on the football field.

Pro Career: The San Diego Chargers, with offensive coordinator Joe Gibbs, drafted Alvin in the ninth round of the 1979 draft, but released him in training camp. The Giants signed him in 1980 and he played 15 games before fracturing ribs in the 15th game. He netted 914 total combined yards in 1980, including five pass receptions for 69 yards and a touchdown. He also had a 66-yard punt return and tied a club record with seven kickoff returns in one game. In '81, Alvin was with the Giants for nine games before being placed on waivers and claimed by the Redskins. He returned two kickoffs for 40 yards for the Redskins before suffering a broken arm and being placed on injured reserve. The 1982 playoffs saw stardom touch little Alvin, as he tied an NFL record by catching three touchdown passes versus Detroit, subbing for the injured Art Monk. Alvin concluded the four-game playoffs with 15 catches (2nd-best to Charlie Brown) for a team-best 244 yards and five touchdowns. He had a sensational Super Bowl against Miami, catching a touchdown pass, and setting up a field goal with a 44-yard run off a reverse in the opening second-half drive. His TD was the Redskins' only one before intermission. During the regular season, he earned his pay on special teams, mostly, finishing second on the team in getting downfield on kickoffs, and piling up 29 blocks on punt returns.

College, Personal: Alvin was the Most Valuable Player on the 1978 NAIA champions (14-0) at Angelo State (TX). A second-team all-Lone Star Conference performer, he caught 33 passes for 588 yards, a 17.8 yard average, with six touchdowns. Born in Mineral Wells, TX, he attended Mineral Wells High there. In the '83 offseason, Alvin was one of only two Redskins to compete in the Superstars Competition. A bachelor, he enjoys golf and sports cars, and resides in Reston, VA.

77 DARRYL GRANT

Defensive Tackle

Rice
4th Year
Ht: 6-1 Wt: 275
Born 11/22/59

How Acquired: Selected in the ninth round of the 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 40/20 - 1981 (15/0); 1982 (9/4); 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: When the corps of offensive linemen looked thin in training camp, it appeared that, once again, Darryl Grant would endure a position change. He had just enjoyed a splendid 1982 season at defensive tackle, highlighted by his game-clinching touchdown against Dallas in the NFC Championship. But Coach Gibbs was confident that Darryl could be a starter on offense, too. Richie Petitbon, the Assistant Head Coach in charge of Defense, wasn't ready to give Darryl up, however. He realized how important Darryl was to the defense that gave up the fewest points in football (128) in 1982. "It's just a loan," urged Petitbon. Thankfully for Petitbon, but unfortunately for Redskin 1983 opposing offenses, it was just a loan. Starting every game at defensive tackle, Darryl led the defensive line with 101 tackles (including 67 solos—fifth-best on team), adding 2½ sacks, three forced fumbles (two vs. Chiefs), and two recovered fumbles. During the playoffs, he made 14 tackles with one sack. Darryl had game-highs in 1983 of 11 against San Diego (8 solo), and six solos against Seattle. Besides being able to fill in at offensive guard, where he began his Redskin career in '81, Darryl is also the team's back-up long-snapper, and plays the middle of "the wedge" on kickoff returns. In that latter capacity. Darryl had 39 blocks on the season. Durable and versatile, Darryl was major force in Redskins leading NFL in run defense, allowing just 80.6 per game.

Pro Career: If that move to offense had become reality, Darryl said it would have been about the seventh straight season he had played a different side of the ball than the previous season. The 231st player picked in the 1981 draft, Darryl earned a spot on the roster and proved to be a valuable addition to the club. He saw action at offensive guard and tackle, before being tried at defensive tackle in the season finale, a move that obviously impressed the coaches. As a member of the special teams that season, Darryl ranked third overall with 84 total points and led the club with 42 blocks on kickoff returns. He began 1982 as a reserve, but when starter Perry Brooks went down with a broken leg in the Dallas game (fourth game of season), Darryl started remaining games. Twenty-one straight starts later, and he gets better with each game. Darryl's numbers for '82 were 37 tackles and three sacks in the regular season, and 11 tackles and one recovered fumble in the playoffs. His TD against Dallas resulted when Dexter Manley tipped Gary Hogeboom's pass in the air, and Darryl was there to catch it and high-step into the end zone. The score gave Washington an insurmountable 31-17 lead.

College, Personal: Seemingly to prepare for his pro life, Darryl played several positions at Rice, tackle and center on offense, and linebacker and noseguard on defense, earning four letters. He has good speed and quickness for a man his size, enabling him to switch positions. In high school (Highlands in San Antonio), he was an all-American center. Darryl and his wife, Mary, travelled to the Caribbean this past offseason between trips back to San Antonio. With daughter, Nicole, 4, they reside in Reston, VA.

DARRELL GREEN

Cornerback

Texas A&I
2nd Year
Ht: 5-8 Wt: 170
Born 02/15/60

How Acquired: Selected in first round (28th player) of 1983 draft
Games Played In/Games Started: 16/16 - 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: The first time Darrell touched the ball in a Redskin uniform, he sped 61 yards for a punt return touchdown in preseason against Atlanta. In his first regular season game, Darrell ran down Tony Dorsett from behind, saving a sure TD. (The Cowboys had to settle for a field goal soon after.) And in his first playoff game, Darrell returned an interception 72 yards for a score against the Rams. For the first-round draft choice it all made for one super first season. When watching Darrell, one reporter said last year, you must listen for the thunder; for lightning must be accompanied by thunder, he thought. The runner-up for Associated Press NFL Defensive Rookie of the Year, Darrell was the only member of the Redskin secondary to start every game in '83. He finished fourth on the team in tackles (109), though leading the team with 79 solo tackles. He also intercepted two passes, one coming in the important win over the Cowboys in Dallas. He was all over the field that game, making numerous deflections. He was chosen for the NFL all-rookie first team by Football Digest, and similarly for AP. He capped off his outstanding season with a Super Bowl record 34-yard punt return against the Raiders. With 19 tackles, Darrell excelled throughout the playoffs. He had nine tackles and six deflections against the Rams, and then seven tackles, two deflections, and a forced fumble in the NFC Championship against the 49ers. Darrell's top tackle game of the year was versus Atlanta (12), while he forced a fumble against the Falcons also, and both forced and recovered a fumble in game against Raiders. Nicknamed "Ten-speed" and "MX," as in the missile, Darrell could also have been an outstanding return specialist last year, but the coaches held him back for defensive purposes. (Though Coach Gibbs hopes that added depth in '84 will free Darrell up for some more return duty.) His 4.3 40 time makes him a touchdown threat whenever he touches the ball. As it was, Darrell returned just four regular season punts for 29 yards, with a long of 18. He sped 53 yards with a lateral (ruled forward) in the Championship Game. A great tackler on sweeps, Darrell is destined for a prolific career with Washington.

College, Personal: A 10.08 100-meter man in college, Darrell averaged an incredible 20.6 yards on 19 punt returns for Texas A&I, to lead all of Division II in 1982. He was named to Football Coaches All-America Division I team, after turning in a splendid season for the Javelinas, which included 56 tackles and four interceptions. The Lone Star Conference Defensive Player of the Year, Darrell was also selected for AP 1st Team Little All-America (in reference to his college, not size). An all-America track performer as well, Darrell was clocked only behind Carl Lewis that season in the 100. Equipped with a 32-inch vertical leap, he returned two punts for TD's as a senior (76 and 96 yards). His 4.3 40 clocking turned many heads in minicamp. An all-State Track and all-City football star from Jones High in Houston, Darrell is very active in local youth groups, while serving as a local VP of the Fellowship of Christian athletes. He's also very involved in those interests in Washington. A Physical Education Major, he spent the offseason in Houston, remaining a bachelor. Darrell is already one of the most popular Redskins, and is a spokesperson for Big Brothers of America in the D.C. area.

Darrell also returned four punts for 29 yards in the regular season and one for a Super Bowl record 34 yards in Tampa Bay.

PRECISION PUNTING

Of 72 punts in 1983, Jeff Hayes landed an amazing 29 of them inside the opponent's 20 yard-line, with only two punts carrying into the end zone for touchbacks. In the playoffs, Jeff even improved on his percentage, putting four of his eight punts inside the 20.

RUSS GRIMM

Guard

Pittsburgh
4th Year
Ht: 6-3 Wt: 275
Born 05/02/59

How Acquired: Selected in third round of 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 39/38 - 1981 (14/13); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: A mainstay of the Hogs, Russ was an all-Pro selection by almost every organization which selected a team last season. To make it official, he was a starting Pro Bowler, 1st Team all-NFC by UPI, 1st Team all-NFL by AP, and all-Pro by Pro Football Weekly. Starting every game for the second straight year, he was major reason why Redskins were able to lead the NFL in time of possession (33:48 per game), and in points scored (541). Washington's 30 rushing touchdowns were also credit to work of "Hogs." Russ even got to play center, his college position, for a game, when Jeff Bostic was injured in season finale against Giants. All snaps were flawless that game, Redskin coaches thought Russ played as well as any offensive linemen in football last season. Russ and fellow Hogs can be proud of fact that Theismann was sacked just 35 times last year, tied for second-best in NFL. Though beset with minor injuries all season, Russ still did not miss any playing time.

Pro Career: As the 69th player selected in the '81 draft, Russ was expected to come into the Redskins camp and win the starting center position. Injuries along the way, plus Bostic's fine play necessitated his move to left guard in training camp, a move no one has regretted. Despite a knee injury and the new position, Russ earned a spot on the all-NFL Rookie Team. In '82, he was a second-team all-NFC selection by UPI, capping off the Hogs' fine year by helping the Redskins to 276 rushing yards in Super Bowl XVII, their highest total of the season. He also was able to neutralize Randy White in the NFC Championship Game, allowing John Riggins to surpass 100 yards rushing for the third straight playoff game. To get Grimm, the Redskins traded away their 1982 first-round choice in exchange for a third in '81 (Grimm), a second in '82 (Dean), and two fifths in '81 (Manley and Gary Sayre).

College, Personal: Russ earned Honorable Mention all-American status as a two-year starter at center for Pitt teams that were 22-2 and nationally ranked. He also was a snapper for extra points and a reserve punter for the Panthers. At Southmoreland (PA) High, Russ was the quarterback, played linebacker, and punted. He earned nine letters, while once scoring 41 points for the basketball team, and was a National Honor Society student. Born in Mt. Pleasant, PA, Russ got married last year to the former Karen Hawk. An avid golfer, Russ makes his home in Oakton, VA. He appeared in a small role in the movie titled, "The Imagemaker." Russ did some work for Annheuser Busch in the offseason.

Southern Illinois
19th Year NFL
(1st Redskin)
Ht: 6-1 Wt: 210

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent in February, 1984

Games Played In/Games Started: 199/176 - 1966 (1/0); 1967 (14/14); 1968 (13/12); 1969 (9/3); 1970 (14/14); 1971 (11/9); 1972 (6/3); 1973 (12/12); 1974 (14/14); 1975 (14/14); 1976 (14/14); 1977 (14/14); 1978 (15/15); 1979 (14/11); 1980 (15/15); 1981 (10/9); 1982 (4/0); 1983 (5/3)

1983 Season: In his record 18th season with the Cardinals, Jim played in five games, starting three (Dallas–9/11; Philadelphia–9/25; and Kansas City–10/2). He played entire second half of season opener against New Orleans, completing 11 of 20 passes for 141 yards with one touchdown and one interception as the Saints won 28-17. Against Dallas the next week, Jim completed 22 of 39 passes for 295 yards and one TD, as the Cowboys won 34-17. Two weeks later Jim led the Cardinals to their first victory of the season, a 14-11 win in Philadelphia. In that game, he completed 12 of 19 aerials for 123 yards with two touchdowns and two interceptions. The next week, Jim got the start again against Kansas City. He completed five of 13 passes for just 33 yards before being relieved by Rusty Lisch as the Chiefs routed the Cardinals. Regular starter Neil Lomax returned from injury the next week and started the remaining 11 games. For the year, Jim completed 50 of 91 passes for four touchdowns and eight interceptions. He had a long pass of 39 yards that went for a touchdown against Dallas. He also ran five times on the season for 12 yards, with a long gain of 13 against New Orleans.

Pro Career Totals: Jim's 18 seasons with St. Louis was the second-longest stint for one player with an NFL team ever, behind Jim Marshall's 19 seasons with Minnesota. He ranks third all-time in the NFL in three passing categories: most passes completed, 2,590 (behind Tarkenton and Unitas); most passes attempted, 5,069 (behind Tarkenton and Unitas (5,186)); and behind the same two in most yards gained, 34,639. His 209 touchdown passes rank ninth on the all-time list. Jim played in four Pro Bowls, from 1974-77.

Pro Career: Signed as a free agent by St. Louis in 1966, Jim earned a roster spot as a reserve quarterback. In1967, he became a starter four days before the season opener when Charley Johnson was called into the Army. Jim was voted NFC Player of the Year in1974 when he threw a career-high 20 TD passes in leading the club to its first divisional championship. In 1976, Jim had his best passing rating, 81.7. He enjoyed one of his best days ever that year, against Dallas (10/17/76), completing 22 passes for 346 yards and three TD's. His Cardinals reached the playoffs in 1974 and '75, losing in the first round both times. In 1978, Jim set club records for both completions (240) and attempts (477) in one season. He was voted team MVP that year, as he was in 1973 and '75. He completed his 2,000th pass on Sept. 16, 1979.

In 1980, Jim reached a major milestone in his career, passing the 30,000-yard plateau against Detroit (Sept. 21), becoming only the fifth player in history to accomplish that. He performed at a high level despite suffering 40 sacks, the most of his professional career, because of many injuries to the line. He tied a then-club record, with 28 completions against the 49ers. He threw for over 300 yards twice in 1980, starting 15 games, but missing the season finale with a cracked rib, which also forced him to leave in the second half of Week 15 vs Philadelphia. Half of his 1980 TD passes covered more than 30 yards. For the season, he completed 53.6% of his passes (228 for 425) for 2,946 yards, with 16 touchdowns. Against Atlanta, Jim completed 25 passes for 344 yards and two TD's.

The 1981 season saw a rough beginning as Jim suffered a bruised knee in opening quarter, missing 1½ games. He returned against Washington Sept. 20 to lead the team to first win (40-30) with three TD passes. The 40 points were most allowed by Redskins in 11 years. On same day, he jumped past former Redskin QB Sonny Jurgensen into third place on all-time NFL list for yards passing. He attempted 49 passes vs Atlanta (10/18), to tie personal high (completed 24 for 263 yards). In win over Vikings (30-17), he threw for 200th TD pass. His 300-yard passing game vs Redskins was 15th of career. Year's stats read 134-241 for 1,694 yards and 11 TD's; the 55.6 percentage rate was second-highest of illustrious career.

Seeing spot duty in 1982, Jim helped the Cardinals to one victory (Chicago), and almost worked his magic to upset the Redskins. He saw first action vs San Francisco in the third game, completing 8-11 passes for 72 yards in the fourth quarter. Down 12-0 to Washington Dec. 12, he entered the game in the fourth quarter and drove the club 63 yards for TD. He later threatened again as time ran out. Against Chicago, he played most of fourth quarter, directing the team into position for game-winning field goal as time ran down, completing four of nine passes.

Jim ranks as the NFL's leading active passer in yards, completions, attempts, and touchdown passes. His 18 years of service are one more than former Cardinal Jim Bakken. His 199 games in a Cardinal uniform are second to Bakken's 234. He has 16 career rushing TD's, combined with 209 touchdown passes, making him responsible for 1,350 points for St. Louis on 225 TD's. The longest run from scrimmage in his career is 23 yards.

College, Personal: A record-setting passer at Southern Illinois-Carbondale, Jim is a member of the Hall of Fame there. A couple years behind him there was a youngster named Walt Frazier. He has a B.S. in Education from SIU. Born in Evanston, IL., he is a graduate of Niles West (Skokie, IL) High. In 1976, Jim received the Whizzer White Award from the NFLPA, signifying the NFL's top humanitarian, and in 1980 he was awarded the YMCA Brian Piccolo Award as the most civic-minded athlete in professional sports. He is an active civic leader in St. Louis, involved with several charities; among them he is on the Board of Directors for Multiple Sclerosis, Special Olympics, March of Dimes, Missouri Read-A-Thon, chairman of St. Louis Heart Association, state chairman for cerebral palsy and Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He has his own radio show in St. Louis (KMOX) with Dan Dierdorf, and did some work for them at Super Bowl XVIII. That, incidentally, is where he and Coach Gibbs first discussed Jim coming to Redskins. He would like to continue broadcasting career when playing days are over. Jim is co-owner of Dierdorf and Hart's Steak House in Westport Plaza in St. Louis. Jim and his wife Mary reside in St. Louis with daughters Suzanne, and Katie, and son, Bradley. Suzanne and Bradley are twins, 15, and Katie is 5. Jim is also an avid pilot, owning his own single-engine plane (a Bonanza) which he flies regularly.

JEFF HAYES

Punter

North Carolina
3rd Year
Ht: 5-11 Wt: 175
Born 09/19/59

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on May 3, 1982

Games Played In/Games Started: 25/0 - 1982 (9/0); 1983 (16/0)

1983 Season: Jeff could have written a book titled, "The Art of Pooch Punting" after season he had. No less than 29 of Jeff's 72 punts were downed inside the 20 by Redskin teammates; that tied the Giants' Dave Jennings for best in the NFL. Driving his punts high and far, Jeff also dropped four of his eight postseason punts inside the 20. And of his 72 regular season punts, only two sailed into the end zone for touchbacks. The 29 inside the 20 also tied Mike Bragg's club record. An unsung hero of the team, Jeff has the athletic abilities to run from the punting position, a move he made three times in '83: a 48-yard run against San Diego on a Monday Night, which brought the ball to the two yard-line and set up a key Riggins TD; a 15-yard romp for a first down against Detroit in the RFK slosh; and a 14-yard burst for a first down in the NFC Championship against San Francisco. Jeff also handles all of the Redskin kickoff chores. Of 109 kickoffs last season, 17 were touchbacks, and 58 were inside the five yard-line. Opponents averaged starting on the 23.8 yard-line as a result of his kicks. He's also an excellent tackler on both coverage units, and is extremely adept at onside kicks. His "power kick" in the fourth quarter of the regular season clash with the Raiders, was perfect, allowing Greg Williams to recover the ball, and the Redskins to recover from a 15-point deficit to win. Jeff's 48-yard run was longest Redskin run from scrimmage all season. Jeff averaged 38.8 yards a punt in '83, with a long of 56 yards.

Pro Career: Jeff came into training camp in 1982 as an unknown free agent, but with a superb summer won the job outright from incumbent Mike Connell. His ability to kick off was immediate help to Redskins, as a fresher Mark Moseley connected on his first 20 field goals of season. In addition, the Redskins kickoff coverage unit ranked number one in the NFL. Jeff kicked extremely well in Super Bowl XVII, punting four times for an average of 42 yards, dropping one inside the 20, and booming another for 54 yards. On the season, Jeff punted 51 times for an average of 38 yards per kick, with 10 inside the 20 and a long of 58. Jeff averaged 40 yards per punt in the NFC Championship against Dallas, helping the special teams set up a touchdown on one punt (opponent muff), and making a tackle on a kickoff to prevent a long gain.

College, Personal: A multi-purpose kicker at North Carolina, Jeff handled all the punting, kicking off and PAT's in 1981. He averaged 41.8 yards on 54 punts on a Tar Heel squad that led the ACC in net punting and finished eighth in the nation in that category. Opponents returned just 17 of his 64 kickoffs, and he made 45 of 46 PAT's, his only miss coming after he had run 70 yards on a fake punt for a touchdown. Jeff played for the basketball team of Redskins in the offseason, but most of his time was devoted to the restaurants he opened with fellow Redskin Curtis Jordan called "Rocco's." As "the only one who knows how to make the secret sauce," Jeff put in long hours trying to make the Italian restaurant a success (one is in Fairfax and one is in Springfield). A graduate of Elkin High in Elkin, NC, Jeff is married to the former Mary Bostic. They reside in Centreville, VA.

BOB HOLLY

Quarterback

Princeton
3rd Year
Ht: 6-2 Wt: 205
Born 06/01/60

How Acquired: Selected in 11th round of 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 5/0 - 1982 (0); 1983 (5)

1983 Season: Competing in his first playoff game, against the Rams, Bob was responsible for the Redskins setting a record in passing percentage for a team in a playoff contest. Joe Theismann went to the sidelines having completed 18 of 23 passes (78.3%). Good stats, but not quite a record. Enter Bob. Two completions later and Washington's 20 of 25 passing numbers was the new NFL record (20 attempts or more). Bob completed his only pass of the season, a five-yarder to Clint Didier against St. Louis (at RFK). In just his second year, Bob took part in five regular season games: at St. Louis, Detroit, St. Louis, at the Rams, and Atlanta. In those games, he ran four times for 13 yards, with a long of 13. Bob's two completions in the playoffs went for 13 yards. In the preseason, Bob completed 18 of 37 passes for 241 yards and one touchdown, a five-yard TD pass to Don Warren in Atlanta.

Pro Career: Bob was on the Redskins roster for all 13 games of the 1982 season (nine regular season and four playoffs). He earned a spot on the roster with a fine preseason performance against Cincinnati, completing 9 of 19 passes for a touchdown and no interceptions. Bob was the number one backup for Joe Theismann in the first two games before the Redskins acquired Tom Owen in a trade.

College, Personal: At Princeton, Bob threw for 2,622 yards and 16 touchdowns while completing 61% of his passes as a senior. He was the 1981 Ivy League leader in both passing and total offense, establishing 20 records in his career there. Bob had consecutive passing games of 446, 422, and 501 yards during his record-setting senior year. Intercepted only 11 times in 425 attempts during his last two years (2.6%), Bob threw for 3,624 yards in his three varsity seasons. He was also a starting pitcher for Princeton's baseball team and won the Kellogg Award as the baseball team's top freshman in 1979. Following his senior year, Bob was accepted into Fordham Law School. He earned nine letters in football, baseball, and basketball at Clifton (NJ) High. He and his wife of a year, Ginny, reside in the Georgetown section of Washington.

KEN HUFF

Offensive Lineman

North Carolina
10th Year NFL
(2nd Redskin)
Ht: 6-4 Wt: 265
Born 02/21/53

How Acquired: Signed as free agent, 1983

Games Played In/Games Started: 113/80 - 1975 (9/0); 1976 (8/0); 1977 (14/9); 1978 (16/16); 1979 (14/14); 1980 (16/16); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/8); 1983 (11/1)

1983 Season: A valued reserve signed just prior to last season, Ken got to start one contest (Atlanta) when Mark May twisted a knee. The veteran responded with one of the finest efforts by a Redskin offensive lineman all season, earning plaudits from the coaches. With Ken, the Redskins felt confident if injury had felled a starting Hog. As it was, Ken appeared in 11 games, often at crucial times, such as last game against Giants when Jeff Bostic started but could only go a quarter. Russ Grimm moved over to center and Ken filled in at guard. He is rated as second strongest Redskin on team behind Mr. Jacoby, of course. A devastating run blocker, Ken had a couple of "kayo" hits in Atlanta game. He would be sure starter on most NFL teams.

Pro Career: The Colts' first-round selection in the 1975 draft (third pick overall), Ken had the longest tenure of any Colt (nine years) before becoming a free agent after the 1982 season. He had started 45 straight games until missing the starting assignment in the 1982 season opener. Ken had been a starter at right guard for the Colts since replacing Elmer Collett in middle of 1977 season. Colts went on to win Division that season with 10-4 record. He started all 16 games in 1978, and then 14 of 16 in 1979 missing Tampa Bay and Cleveland games because of kidney injury. Again started all 16 in 1980 and '81, plus serving on kickoff team in '81 as one of the three blockers in the wedge. Ken started final eight games of 1982 season also. He played in three postseason games with Colts.

College, Personal: A consensus all-American at North Carolina, Ken was an all-ACC selection in 1974. He was three-year letterman and starter at guard for the Tar Heels. A captain his senior year, he played in two Sun Bowl games, and the 1975 Hula and Senior Bowls. Ken earned a degree at UNC in psychology. Born in Hutchinson, Kansas, Ken lived in Japan, France, and many areas of the U.S., his father being a career officer in the Navy. He attended Coronado (CA) High School and then Deerfield (MA.) Academy before Carolina. An all-America Prep swimmer, Ken was offered more scholarships for swimming than football. He and his wife, Sue, own and operate Happy Acres Day Care Center in Owings Mills, MD. Ken also has a General Contracting business for home improvements. Ken and Sue and their son, Matthew, live in Glen Arm, MD.

MONTY HUNTER
Safety

Salem College
3rd Year NFL
(1st Redskin)
Ht: 6-2 Wt: 202
Born 1/21/59

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent in February, 1984
Games Played In/Games Started: 13/0 - 1982 (9/0); 1983 (4/0)

1983 Season: After being released by the Cowboys, Monty was signed on by the Cardinals and appeared in four games with St. Louis before being waived. He contributed two tackles in those four games, playing mostly on special teams.

Pro Career: A fourth-round draft choice of the Dallas Cowboys in 1982, "Big Game" progressed well that season, playing in every game, and making the play that put Dallas into the NFC Championship Game in RFK. With the Cowboys trailing Tampa Bay 17-16 early in the fourth quarter, Monty picked off a Doug Williams pass and returned it 12 yards for the go-ahead touchdown in Dallas' 30-17 win. He also contributed to a regular season victory over the Bucs when he stripped the ball from tight end Jimmy Giles inside the 10-yard line with less than 10 seconds to play. Michael Downs recovered the fumble at the two to preserve the win. Playing regularly in the Cowboys' passing defense, Monty covered receivers, linebackers and running backs equally well.

College, Personal: A four-year starting cornerback, Monty intercepted a school-record 19 passes in his career at Salem (enrollment 1,000) in Salem, WV. He earned all-West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and Honorable Mention Little all-America honors in 1981. He returned a kickoff 93 yards for a touchdown against West Virginia Wesleyan. Monty was a running back at Dover (Ohio) High. In June of 1983 the town of Dover celebrated "Monty Hunter Day" and Dover High retired his number 18 jersey. Monty has spent time speaking to three Dover area Starlight Schools for retarded citizens. An Industrial Technology and Safety major at Salem, Monty now resides in Jacksonville, FL.

MONDAY NIGHT TV . . . The Redskins have appeared 21 times in the Monday night 14-year history of NFL games. One of only six clubs with over 20 appearances, the Redskins played the fifth game in the series beginning (Week 5, 1970 vs Oakland). Overall, the Redskins are 13-8 tying them for the third most victories on Monday night TV. At home they own a remarkable 8-2 record. Their 48-47 loss in Green Bay last season stands as the highest scoring game ever on Monday night.

In addition to all the important records set by the Redskins last year (most points, most wins, etc.), one less important record stood out: the 91 opponent kickoff returns eclipsed the NFL record for most in a season. And the outstanding Redskin special teams were able to keep the kickoff return average for those many kickoffs to under 20 yards (19.5) . . .

JOE JACOBY
Tackle

Louisville
4th Year
Ht: 6-7 Wt: 305
Born 07/06/59

How Acquired: Signed as free agent on April 30, 1981

Games Played In/Games Started: 39/38 - 1981 (14/13); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: Joe established himself as one of the most dominating offensive tackles in the NFL last season, playing exceptional football week in and week out. His peers voted him to start in the Pro Bowl alongside Hogmates Bostic and Grimm. Whenever tough yards were needed, Joe was the player the Redskins would get behind. At a position where good blocking is hoped for, he went beyond that and simply mauled people. UPI, AP, Pro Football Weekly, and the Sporting News all honored Joe with first-team selections. Without him, club rushing record and NFL scoring record probably would not have come Redskins' way last year. Joe's large frame became extremely noticeable late in season on now-famous counter-treys, where his speed enabled him to lead running backs into right side of line; he buried many a safety on such plays. Joe limited Lyle Alzado, the Radiers' great end, to just one tackle and ½ sack in regular season Raider game. He completely shut down (0 sacks) such fine defensive ends as Harvey Martin, Dennis Harrison, Gary Johnson, Mike Bell, and Curtis Greer during course of regular season. Against 49ers, he limited Fred Dean, the NFC's leading sacker, to two tackles and one sack. Durable Joe has now started 33 straight games. His powerful blocking helped Redskins lead NFL in rushing touchdowns with 30.

Pro Career: Joe's NFL career has been a real Cinderella story with one major difference: the clock is not near midnight. For after a humble beginning as a free agent signed after the 1981 draft—primarily because of his huge size—Joe has become the toast of pro ball. Though there were doubts at the beginning. Coach Gibbs at first mistook him as a defensive lineman, and upon finding out Joe was an offensive lineman, nearly released him. Coming to camp with five draft picks and seven veterans as competition, Joe won a spot despite having to leave camp because of the death of his mother. After getting chances to start at left guard and right tackle because of injuries, Joe replaced Mark May after eight weeks and never relinquished his spot, going on to earn NFL all-rookie honors. A hard worker, Joe had built himself up from 270 pounds to over 300 when he reported to training camp, as a result of weightlifting.

College, Personal: Joe co-captained Louisville his senior season, earning a second-team all-South selection in leading the Cardinals to an Independence Bowl berth. He received all-American high school honors in both football and basketball at Western High in Louisville. A Vienna bachelor, Joe spent the offseason in various activities ranging from a golf tournament in Williamsburg to the Kentucky Derby to the Annual Gridiron Dinner, and even to having a small role in a movie called "The Imagemaker," shot in Georgetown and in a McDonald's commercial as well. He also spent some time working for the American Heart Association.

CURTIS JORDAN

Safety

Texas Tech
8th Year NFL
(3rd Redskin)
Ht: 6-2 Wt: 205
Born 01/25/54

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on December 11, 1981 after being claimed on waivers from Tampa Bay

Games Played In/Games Started: 96/44 - 1976 (11/9); 1977 (12/2); 1978 (16/4); 1979 (16/2); 1980 (16/16); 1981 (1/0); 1982 (9/0); 1983 (15/11)

1983 Season: Adding stability to a young defensive backfield, Curtis stepped in to start 11 games last season, and finish fifth on the team in tackles with 105. He missed just one game in all despite suffering a broken thumb near the end of the year. Curtis forced a fumble against the Eagles (11/27) leading to a touchdown, and also recovered fumbles in back-to-back games versus Raiders and Cardinals. Also in that Raiders game, Curtis snared his lone interception of the season, returning the Jim Plunkett pass 20 yards. He had a hand in a touchdown later in the season, when he made a diving tip of a Neil Lomax pass against the Cardinals which Mel Kaufman caught and returned 70 yards for a touchdown. His best days of '83 were a 10-tackle performance in St. Louis, and an eight-tackle against the Giants.

Pro Career: When Tampa Bay tried to activate Curtis at the end of the 1981 season by exposing him to waivers, the Redskins did not hesitate to pick him up. He got a little revenge against his former team of five seasons in 1982 when he earned the game ball by blocking a punt and recovering the ball in the end zone. A sixth-round pick of Tampa Bay in 1976, Curtis has started 44 NFL games at all four defensive backfield spots (23 at left cornerback, one at right corner, five at free safety, and 15 at strong safety). He had played in 50 consecutive games prior to an injury in 1981, and in 71 of Bucs' 76 regular season games. In 1980, Curtis started all 16 games, breaking up 21 passes (most in club history) and making 85 tackles. A hard hitter, Curtis has had seasons of 85, 63, and 70 tackles, and has twice recorded 11 tackles in a game (Atlanta, 1979, and Kansas City, 1976). He has had six career fumble recoveries, including a game-saver in a 16-14 win over Detroit (11/11/79). In 1981, Curtis suffered a broken collarbone in the Bucs' first preseason game, and was kept there until the final two weeks of the season. He was on the Redskin roster for the last two games, and appeared in the season finale in Los Angeles. In '82, Curtis played mostly on short yardage situations where he made four tackles during the regular season, and four more in the playoffs. A prime contributor on special teams that season, Curtis led the team in getting downfield on kickoffs (14 times), had 10 tackles on punt coverage, and finished with 49 hits.

College, Personal: At Texas Tech, Curtis earned all-Southwest Conference honors his final two seasons. He intercepted seven passes with four of those coming his senior year to lead the team. He graduated with a degree in advertising and public relations. Curtis starred as school MVP at Monterey High (Lubbock, TX). Curtis enjoys snow-skiing and basketball in the offseason, but this past off-time was spent mostly on a restaurant called "Rocco's," which he co-owns with Jeff Hayes. At this time, there are two franchises which they operate, in Fairfax and Springfield. Rocco's specializes in Italian food. He resides in Oakton, and has two sons, Matthew (5), and Zachary (4).

MEL KAUFMAN

Linebacker

Cal Poly-SLO
4th Year
Ht: 6-2 Wt: 218
Born 02/24/58

How Acquired: Signed as free agent, May 5, 1981

Games Played In/Games Started: 36/29 - 1981 (11/6); 1982 (9/7); 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: Teammates weren't exactly calling him Touchdown Mel, but thanks to two outstanding plays, Mel led the Redskin defense with a pair of TD's in '84. The first came on a 70-yard interception return against the Cardinals, as Mel was alert enough to see Curtis Jordan tip Neal Lomax's pass in the air, collect it in and sprint for the end zone. The second occurred when Dave Butz stripped Falcons' quarterback Mike Moroski of the ball, and Mel picked it up and ran 30 yards for the TD. But Mel's splendid season consisted of more than a couple of plays. He finished fifth on the team with 105 tackles, and also contributed 1½ sacks, one forced fumble, and two interceptions. (His other theft came in the regular season Raiders contest, setting up a Mark Moseley field goal.) In the playoffs, Mel had three tackles. He started every game, playing in all situations until Monte Coleman returned from injury to play in passing situations in the final 10 games. His 70-yard interception return was the longest of any Redskin last year during the regular season.

Pro Career: The Mel Kaufman Story began when Bobby Beathard travelled to his alma mater (Cal-Poly) to check out a much-heralded running back. Needing someone to cover the back, Beathard asked an undersized linebacker on the sidelines to help him out. Well, the GM was more impressed with the linebacker (Mel) than the back, and signed him as a free agent. Mel beefed up that offseason, and proved to be one of the major surprises at 1981 training camp, winning a spot on the squad and being thrust into the starting lineup in Week 2 due to injuries to Brad Dusek and Rich Milot. In Week 3, he started at another spot to replace injured Monte Coleman. All told, he played in 11 games and started six before suffering a shoulder separation, which put him on injured reserve. His top game was against St. Louis in Week 9 when he intercepted two passes for 25 yards, made eight tackles, had a quarterback sack, and deflected a pass in the Redskins' 42-21 win. He also accumulated 37 points on the special teams, proving to be a good blocker for all-pro Mike Nelms on punt and kickoff returns. He was credited with 33½ tackles for the season. In '82, Mel highlighted a fine season by picking off the biggest pass of his life, one from the hands of Gary Hogeboom of the Cowboys in the second half of the NFC Championship Game. The theft helped preserve Washington's spot in the Super Bowl. Stepping in again for the injured Coleman, Mel began starting in Week 3 and never relinquished his spot. He finished sixth on the team in tackles with 49, adding 17 in the postseason. Mel also had one recovered fumble and two key sacks during the regular season. A member of the Airborne Rangers, he had an excellent Super Bowl, making two solo tackles and assisting on three others.

College, Personal: Mel started three seasons at Cal Poly, including a Division II national championship team. Despite averaging 13 tackles a game at Santa Monica High, he was shunned by major colleges and opted for Cal Poly, which wanted to switch him to safety. Tutored by ex-Charger LB Bob Lane, Mel developed into an excellent linebacker at Cal Poly. He has devoted a day during the last three Christmas times to the No Greater Love Party, an annual event for children of fathers killed in service to their country. A bachelor, Mel resides in Los Angeles in the offseason.

TRAINING CAMP . . . The Redskins have had seven different "summer homes" where they have prepared for the regular season. This will mark the 22nd consecutive year the team has trained at Dickinson College in Carlisle, PA. The other six include Fairlawn Playground in Anacostia (1937), a Ballston, VA softball field (1938), Spokane, WA (1939-40), San Diego, CA (1941-44), Georgetown University (1945), and Occidental (CA) College (1946-62).

BRUCE KIMBALL

Offensive Guard

Massachusetts
3rd Year NFL
(2nd Redskin)
Ht: 6-2 Wt: 260
Born 08/19/56

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent prior to 1983 season
Games Played In/Games Started: 17/1 - 1982 (1/1); 1983 (16/0)

1983 Season: When the Redskins brought Bruce in for a tryout at the tail end of preseason, he was impressive enough to earn a roster spot as a quality reserve guard. But little did the Redskins know then where the bulk of Bruce's contributions would come from in the '83 season: special teams. As part of the three-man wedge on kickoff returns, he led the team in blocks with 55. His 107 total hits on "teams" tied him for 5th on the squad. Several times, Bruce earned praise from the coaches for his special work on special teams. He remained healthy all season, playing in every game, including the three playoffs. Bruce also saw limited action at his more-familiar guard position.

Pro Career: The "tough-luck kid" with the Giants, Bruce was signed by that team in 1981 as a free agent, after spending two seasons as a starter with the Toronto Argonauts of the CFL. He showed great promise in training camp, but then suffered torn knee ligaments in an '81 squad scrimmage, sidelining him for the entire season. Bruce came back strong, however in '82 camp, and with some fine preseason efforts, won the starting right guard spot. Then, in the season opener against Atlanta, he broke his leg on the first play of the game and was out for the rest of the season! A strong conditioning program built Bruce back up in the '83 offseason. Drafted on the seventh round by Pittsburgh in 1979, Bruce was released and headed up to the CFL.

College, Personal: Bruce accumulated four varsity letters as a guard at University of Massachusetts. A co-captain his senior year, he started since the middle of freshman season until graduation. He earned selection as AP College Division First Team all-American and New York Times all-East, as a senior. A two-time ECAC and all-Yankee Conference first-team choice, Bruce was a Kodak all-American as well in 1977. Born in Beverly, MA., Bruce played high school football at Triton Regional in Byfield (MA). He spent the offseason working for Midlantic Bank of New Jersey. He and his wife, Diane, reside in Old Bridge, NJ, in the offseason. One of strongest guys on team, Bruce can press over 500 pounds.

RFK STADIUM . . . The Redskins played their first regular season game at DC Stadium (now Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium) on October 1, 1961. Since, they have played a total of 170 regular and post-season games at that site with a 103-64-3 overall record. Since 1972, the Redskins are 71-22 (76%) and have won 14 of the last 15 games at home. In that same span the Redskins are undefeated in playoff games (7-0) at RFK.

LARRY KUBIN

Linebacker

Penn State
3rd Year
Ht: 6-2 Wt: 234
Born 02/26/59

How Acquired: Selected in sixth round of 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 21/0 - 1981 (0/0); 1982 (9/0); 1983 (12/0)

1983 Season: There was a certain play in Dallas last year which Larry played a big role in, as did Cowboy coach Tom Landry. Ron Springs took a handoff—after a delayed hike—and met Kubin eye-to-eye. Springs recoiled, and Kubin pounced. It happened to be fourth down at around midfield, so the play proved very important. Though Larry only had four tackles on the season, no one could have made a bigger play than that all season. He particularly excelled on special teams, recording 69 total hits as an especially strong blocker on the kick return team. He was also good on the kickoff coverage team which allowed an average of just 19.5 yards on regular season returns. As the reserve middle linebacker, Larry could be starting for many teams with less depth there. The Redskins do employ a 3-4 defense at times, which was developed to get Larry into the game more. A nagging ankle injury forced Larry to miss four games, though, and really slowed down his year.

Pro Career: Larry spent the entire 1981 season on injured reserve, rehabilitating his knee from surgery in 1980, and learning the Redskin system. In '82, he surfaced in fine shape to help the Redskin defense and special teams rank near the top of the League. Larry recorded 14 tackles, was in on a quarterback sack, and recovered a fumble in '82. His 66 special teams' total hits were fourth on the club. On kickoff coverage, Larry had the highest number of first hits on the team with seven.

College, Personal: Another in the long line of Penn State linebackers, Larry set a school mark for career quarterback sacks (50 for minus 310 yards), while registering 128 tackles. He played defensive end and linebacker during his career that was shortened when he tore knee ligaments in practice after three games into his senior season. He was eligible to remain for a fifth year, but opted to turn pro instead. He was a 1980 preseason all-American pick after being an Honorable Mention all-American in 1979. He also had five fumble recoveries after earning a starting spot as a sophomore. He was a baseball pitcher for the Nittany Lions, and had been all-State in baseball at Union (NJ) High School, as well as an all-state fullback in football. A Marketing Major at Penn State, Larry has previously worked for Annheuser-Busch in offseasons. He and his wife, the former Mary Margaret Koslosky, reside in Reston, VA., along with their very huge dog, Simba. The couple also has a house on the Jersey Shore where they spend much time at.

1983 Season: After starting all four preseason contests at the right guard spot (replacing injured starter Mark May), Don, himself, became injured, and had to be placed on injured reserve prior to the season opener, with a neck injury. With the starters and reserves remaining healthy all season (Mark May was only lineman to miss game), Don stayed on IR for entire season.

Pro Career: Don saw action in 12 games in 1982, blocking on several of the special teams. A Hog, Don also backed up tackles Joe Jacoby and George Starke, and gained some valuable professional experience.

College, Personal: Don was selected to the 1981 Sheridan all-America First Team, and started in the 1982 Senior Bowl. At Tennessee State, he was the mainstay of an offensive line that enabled quarterback Brian Ransom to rank first among Division 1-AA quarterbacks in passing yards and second in efficiency yards. The team allowed only nine quarterback sacks the entire season. Don also helped quarterback Joe "747" Adams establish numerous records there. His 4.85 speed in the 40 gives him great pulling ability. Don earned all-City and all-State honors at Dougherty (GA) High. A Health and Physical Education Major, Don and his wife, Dorrine, reside in Steubenville, Ohio.

How Acquired: Drafted in the sixth round, 1983
Games Played In/Games Started: 0/0 - 1983 (0/0)

1983 Season: On the active roster for the entire season, Babe made a fine showing in a preseason stint against Miami to earn his place on the 1983 Redskins. Against the Dolphins, he passed for 86 yards, completing nine of 17 attempts with a long of 29. In that contest he also had two carries for 14 yards accounting for an even 100 yards of offense that hot night in RFK. Babe served as third-string quarterback throughout the season, backing up Joe Theismann and Bob Holly. He charted plays during the games for Coach Gibbs. Quarterback Coach Jerry Rhome is very high on Babe, and feels he can become a good pro quarterback.

College, Personal: Babe set an Indiana record for passing yards (2,468) in 1982, completing 60 percent of his passes for 11 touchdowns. An East-West Shrine Game and Japan Bowl performer, Babe ranked 14th in Division 1A in total offense. He emerged as a fine quarterback in two years as a Hoosier after stints at Stanford, Missouri, and Pierce Junior College (Los Angeles). The '82 Indiana MVP, Babe redshirted in 1978 behind QB Steve Dils (Vikings), and then lost his spot to John Elway (Broncos) the next season. He set Hoosier records for most passes completed season (217), game (34), and career (361), and enjoyed two 300-yard passing games in '82—vs. Ohio State (362) and Michigan State (309). As a junior, Babe passed for eight touchdowns, having streaks of 11 straight completions in the first game (Northwestern), and 12 straight in the last game (Purdue). At Pierce, he threw for over 1,600 yards in seven games before hurting an ankle (1980). An all-Conference athlete at Crespi High (CA), Babe completed 110 of 201 passes as a senior there. He was dubbed Babe as a youngster by older brother Jeff: his real name is Brandon Hugh Laufenberg. A business major, Babe resides in Canoga Park, CA., in the offseason.

TODD LIEBENSTEIN

Defensive End

Nev.-Las Vegas
3rd Year
Ht: 6-6 Wt: 255
Born 01/09/60

How Acquired: Selected in fourth round of 1982 draft (99th pick overall)
Games Played In/Games Started: 24/15 - 1982 (9/0); 1983 (15/15)

1983 Season: Earning a starting berth with a solid training camp, Todd started 15 games last season, missing only the Rams contest (Nov. 20) with a sprained knee. He played mostly on running situations, compiling 50 tackles and making 1½ sacks. A hard worker, Todd showed outstanding quickness in recovering two fumbles, against St. Louis and San Diego. He also started all three playoff contests, making eight tackles in those games. A consistent performer, Todd always gives 110% on the field. In the final game against the Giants, Todd had three tackles and one sack.

Pro Career: The 99th player drafted in 1982, Todd had five tackles and one sack in his rookie season, and another tackle in the playoffs. He backed up Dexter Manley most of the season, and then played most of season finale against St. Louis when Manley was ejected. Todd was also a special teams player, finishing with 35 total hits, including 20 blocks on kickoff returns. His game-high was two tackles against St. Louis.

College, Personal: Regarded as a legitimate Lombardi Trophy candidate entering the 1981 season, Todd suffered a knee injury after the fourth game and was lost for the rest of UNLV's season. Despite injury, he was named Honorable Mention all-West by the UPI. An excellent pass rusher, Todd was nicknamed "Sackenstein" by UNLV teammates. He led all Rebel linemen with 45 tackles and 10 quarterback sacks in 1980. He had 23 tackles and four sacks in just 3½ games before being injured in '81. A football and basketball star at Valley High in Las Vegas, Todd gained all-American status in both sports his junior and senior years. He originally considered basketball scholarship offers from such schools as Texas and Ohio State, but decided to remain close to home and his family and attend UNLV. A Business Administration major, Todd devoted some offseason time to helping Children's Hospital raise money, riding in a parade on their behalf, and answering telephones during a telethon. A bachelor, he resides in Reston, VA.

DEXTER MANLEY

Defensive End

Oklahoma State
4th Year
Ht: 6-3 Wt: 250
Born 02/07/59

How Acquired: Selected in fifth round of 1981 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 41/34 - 1981 (16/9); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: Continuing his flamboyancy for both life and football, Dexter went through opposing quarterbacks and haircuts with equal ease in '83, enjoying the best year of his three-season career. His 11 sacks were second only to Dave Butz' 11½ on the team, and his 55 tackles were third among all Redskin defensive linemen. But his Mohawk hairstyle trailed no one; it was in a class by itself. Proclaiming himself "Mr. D.," Dexter was the talk(er) of training camp. Fortunately, he backed it up. He excelled against the Lions, recording a season-high 2½ sacks. Dexter also contributed a big play against the Giants in New Jersey, as he intercepted his only pass of the year on the Giants' first possession to start the 'Skins on their way to a rout. Coincidentally, Dexter's first career interception occurred on the same field one year ago. He also surfaced strongly in the playoffs coming up with an important sack against the Rams, and several pressures against the 49ers. He extended his string of consecutive games to 41, and started all three playoff contests as well, adding four tackles (three solo) in that short span. Flashy Dexter was one of the few Redskins to play almost every down on defense. He has ability to play the run as well as the pass. His first half of '83 was probably as good as any defensive end in football. Dexter was instrumental in the Redskin defense ranking first in the NFL in run defense.

Pro Career: The Redskins' pass rush and special teams took an immediate upswing when Dexter arrived here in 1981. A pass rush specialist, he worked his way into the starting lineup and finished with six quarterback sacks from the right end position. Utilizing his 4.5 speed, Dexter lined up as the outside man on the punt coverage unit and earned 23 special teams points. Despite double-teaming, he was the first man downfield on 24 punts. He ended the season eighth on the team with 63 total tackles and one forced fumble. In 1982, Dexter established his reputation for making the big play. He had a playoff series to remember, first knocking out Dallas quarterback Danny White in the NFC Championship on a great rush; then deflecting a Gary Hogeboom pass in the fourth quarter which fell safely in the arms of Darryl Grant, who scored the clinching touchdown; and then knocking the football away from Miami quarterback David Woodley in Super Bowl XVII for Dave Butz to recover, and the Redskins to recover from an early deficit. He had forecasted himself as MVP of that Super Bowl, and if it not for John Riggins' heroics, might have been a true prophet. Miami was threatening to make the game 14-0, but Dexter's forced fumble led to a Moseley field goal and a small 7-3 Dolphin lead. He led the Redskins in '82 with 6½ regular season sacks and three more in the playoffs. He recorded 48 tackles and forced one fumble, before adding 14 more tackles, one forced fumble, and one fumble recovery in the playoffs. He had an interception against the Giants as well that season.

College, Personal: Dexter paced Oklahoma State in tackles for losses for three consecutive seasons with 39 for minus 231 yards. He had 198 total tackles, caused ten fumbles, and batted down five passes in four seasons. Dexter had a top college game of 17 tackles against Kansas. He was an all-American player at Yates High in Houston, TX. He has previously served as a Fairfax County Deputy Sheriff, and is one of the most popular Redskins in the Washington area. In the offseason, Dexter was seen at store openings and schools. During the season, Dexter can be heard on two radio shows: twice a week on WRQX (Q-107), one of the more popular stations in Washington; and every Tuesday on WOL's "Redskin Hour" with Melvin Roberts. A bachelor, he resides in Reston, VA. Dexter owns his own company called Mr. D Enterprises, and travelled to Dallas in the offseason to film a televison commercial.

QUARTERBACK SACKS

1981-6; 1982-6½; 1983-11; Total: 23½

Dexter recorded three sacks and recovered one fumble in four playoffs in 1982. In 1983 he recorded one sack in three playoff games.

CHARLES MANN

Defensive End

Nevada-Reno
2nd Year
Ht: 6-6 Wt: 260
Born 04/12/61

How Acquired: Selected in third round (84th player) of 1983 draft
Games Played In/Games Started: 16/1 - 1983 (16/1)

1983 Season: Charles began the season as simply a special teamer extraordinaire, but played more and more at defensive end as year wore on. Highlight for him came in lone start against Rams (Nov. 20) when he sacked quarterback Vince Ferragamo in the end zone for a safety, Washington's only one of the season, and first since 1976. He had three sacks in all (fourth-best on team) and finished with 18 tackles, and a forced fumble as well. In the playoffs, Charles added four tackles and one sack. His 116 special team hits were fourth-best on the team, and 14 tackles on punt coverage third-best. Charles forced Ron Springs to go wide on now-famous fourth-down play in Texas Stadium last year. He saw much time against run, and especially in short-yardage situations. His playoff sack came against the Rams, and he enjoyed two "big hits" versus St. Louis on special teams (11/6). Redskin coaches envision bright future ahead for Charles.

College, Personal: Charles was voted the Most Valuable defensive lineman in the Big Sky in 1981 and '82, as his 14 sacks senior year led the Conference. A Division 1-AA all-American, Charles finished third on his Wolfpack team with 76 tackles, in addition to his 83 yards worth of QB sacks. The coaches at Reno rated Charles as fine a prospect as pro players Doug Betters (Miami) and Don Smerek (Dallas), former Nevada-Reno standouts. He made 59 tackles as a sophomore and 55 as a junior plus two QB sacks. Playing tight end on offense and tackle on defense at Valley High School in Sacremento, Charles received Honorable Mention all-State. His brother, Michael, played basketball at Stanford. Charles possesses great speed, running 4.74 in the 40 and good all-round athletic ability, with a triple broad jump of 31'8". A business major, Charles spent some offseason time working for Special Olympics and Children's Hospital, as he enjoys doing all he can for children. Charles was married on June 16 to the former Tyrena Banks, and the couple resides in Reston, VA.

QUARTERBACK SACKS
1983-3; Total: 3

Charles also recorded one sack in the playoffs following the 1983 regular season.

DESTINED FOR SUCCESS . . . In 1957, Redskins' Coach Joe Kuharich had a very "coachable" group of players. They included left cornerback Joe Walton (now Jets' head coach), a journeyman right cornerback named Don Shula (now Dolphins' head coach) and linebackers named Tom Braatz (current Falcons' general manager) and Torgy Torgeson (current Redskins' assistant coach), plus HB Norb Hecker (former Falcons head coach and now 49ers assistant).

MARK MAY

Guard/Tackle

Pittsburgh
4th Year
Ht: 6-6 Wt: 295
Born 11/02/59

How Acquired: Selected in first round (20th player) of 1981 draft
Games Played In/Games Started: 40/32 - 1981 (16/8); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (15/15)

1983 Season: Playing a position still unnatural to him, Mark became firmly entrenched at the right guard position last year, starting 15 games there. One of the most improved Redskins, Mark used his tremendous size to help the Hogs open holes for the NFC's second-best rushing attack (164.1 yards per game). Mark also led the way for several of John Riggins' NFL-record 24 rushing touchdowns. As a team, the Redskins rushed for 30 touchdowns, many going directly over Mark's right guard spot. He made a key fumble recovery in the second quarter of the Detroit game on a Redskin first down from the Lion 11. Theismann fumbled the snap forward, and Mark dashed to recover it for a three-yard gain. On the next play, Theismann hit Joe Washington for an eight-yard touchdown. Mark's more natural position is tackle, where he filled in when injury necessitated last season. Despite suffering a sprained knee in the Eagles game in RFK, Mark missed just one game (Atlanta), returning to help the Redskins to 336 yards of total offense against Dallas the next week. An original Hog, "MayDay" is one of the Redskins' hardest workers in the offseason.

Pro Career: Only the Redskins' second first-round draft choice since 1968, Mark was the 20th player selected in the 1981 draft. He was immediately thrust into a starting position when Terry Hermeling retired at the start of training camp in 1981. Mark had to learn to play left tackle after playing right tackle throughout college. Despite suffering a broken nose and hip pointer, May played in all 16 games, starting eight. With the development of Joe Jacoby, Mark then had to learn the right guard position in 1982, and did a splendid job. He fought off opposition and injury to become an integral member of one of the NFL's best offensive lines. He was a key blocker in John Riggins' 140-yard effort against Dallas in the NFC Championship Game. For the second straight season, Mark did not miss a game, playing in all nine regular season contests and all four playoff games.

College, Personal: Winner of the 1980 Outland Trophy awarded to the nation's top interior lineman, Mark was a first-team all-American choice by AP, UPI, Sporting News, Football Coaches, Football Writers, and College and Pro Newsweekly. He helped the Panthers to a 38-8-1 record with four postseason bowl appearances and three top ten rankings. As Pitt's lineman of the week 16 times, he did not allow a quarterback sack over his final two seasons. A History major at Pitt, Mark is one of the most popular and articulate Redskins on the speaking circuits, and never one to turn down a worthy charity. He presented the Golden Panthers (Pitt's Booster Club) with a $10,000 check two years ago in gratitude for the opportunity the school gave him. Raised in Oneonta, New York (upstate), Mark has three older sisters and one older brother. Last year, Mark wrote his own cookbook, intelligently titled, "Mark May's Hog Cookbook." He also recently began his own catering service in the Northern Virginia area, with his name attached to that, too. In addition, he, too, took the step into the spotlight over the offseason, appearing in a McDonald's commercial with some other Hogs, and also in a small role in the film, "The Imagemaker," to come out shortly. An avid traveller, Mark embarked on an NFL U.S.O. trip with four other pro players to Germany, giving talks about the NFL wherever they went. It is considered an honor to be invited on the trip. For his charity work, Mark was voted the Juvenile Diabetes Sportsman of the Year for this year. He has also been very involved with the Team Up Against Drugs campaign, travelling to San Angelo, TX, and delivering speeches in several high schools in the area. As a Hog, he attended the National Pork Convention in Kansas City last March, and naturally, is a member of Super Hogs, Inc. A bachelor, Mark keeps two dogs in his Oakton home, a Great Dane named Mouse and a mixed mutt named Sheba. Mark has worked previously as a Sports Assistant at WJLA-TV (Channel 7) in Washington.

1983 Season: The veteran keeps on going. Tony hit the sack big once again in '83, coming up with 10 quarterback sacks, third-best on the team, to give him an incredible 110½ for his 14-year career. Tony added 15 tackles to his sacking efforts, coming in on most passing situations throughout the season. He had a team game-high of three sacks against the Raiders (in regular season), and also recovered two fumbles on the year (vs. Seattle and Detroit), and forced one in the game in Dallas. The Seattle recovery led to a quick Washington touchdown and early lead. He now has 12 fumble recoveries in his career. A leader of the defense, Tony applied constant pressure to opposing quarterbacks. His 130-game consecutive playing streak is 3rd-best on the team, behind Theismann and Moseley. Tony has now played 25 straight games in a Redskin uniform. He has truly earned nicknames of "Mac the Sack," and "McSack."

Pro Career: Having missed just one contest in 13 years (186 of 187 possible games played), Tony has sustained excellence and durability in his long career. A third-round draft choice of the Chicago Bears in 1971, he played 42 consecutive games for them at both defensive tackle and defensive end. Chicago traded him in 1974 (preseason) for the Pats' eighth choice in '75 and third choice in '76. In New England, Tony began to excel, registering 37 sacks over the next four seasons. His outstanding play in 1977 (13½ sacks) earned him the coveted Jim Lee Hunt Memorial Award, an honor voted by the Patriots' coaches for the most outstanding line play. The Patriot sack leader for each season from '75-'81, he had a combined 23 sacks in 1978 and '79, and also notched 35 tackles in '79. His most productive game of 1979 was in the season opener against Pittsburgh when he made five tackles, 1½ sacks, and one pressure.

While playing as a designated rusher in1980, Tony tied Julius Adams for the team lead in sacks (8½ for 62 yards in losses) and also topped the team with 19 quarterback pressures. When the Pats devastated the Bills with eight QB sacks that year, Tony led the sack attack with 2½, while adding six tackles and three quarterback pressures. Tony ended the 1981 season with 6½ sacks for 60 yards in losses. He also finished second on the team with six quarterback pressures, and contributed 29 tackles and 10 assists, starting nine games. A fierce competitor, Tony starred in a 1981 overtime loss to Miami, getting six tackles, two assists, one sack, one quarterback pressure, and one fumble recovery. Acquired by the Redskins prior to the '82 campaign, Tony immediately improved an average pass rush, leading the team with 6½ sacks. Also adding some needed leadership, Tony contributed a very important sack in the playoffs of Viking Tommy Kramer on a Minnesota fourth-down possession to nail down that win.

College, Personal: Tony played for two seasons at the University of Wyoming, before transferring to small Bishop College in Texas. He always keeps active in offseasons. A native of Battle Creek, Michigan, where a special day was held for him last year. Tony started a new company this past offseason called "McDo," a Physical Rehabilitation Center in Vienna, VA. He was also the part-time coach and full-time player (a "Butcher Brother" with Perry Brooks) of the Red-skin Basketball team. Previously, Tony has worked as a volunteer coordinating two-way tutoring programs in Boston Public Schools, and a speaker for Professional Athletes Outreach (PAO) and Sports World Ministries. In that capacity he made numerous speaking tours among youth groups in the Southeastern U.S. He also helps conduct the popular New England Youth Football Camp which he helped found with Ray Hamilton and Leon Gray. Involved in numerous charitable activities, he was the recipient of the Frito-Lay Community Service Award following the '79 and '80 seasons. Tony was feted at the White House in February, 1980, for his efforts in federally funded youth employment programs. Tony and his wife, Novena, have three children: David, 18, a highly recruited basketball player; Solomon, 8, and Shayla, 5. They reside in Centreville, VA. Tony has been nominated for the 1984 Redskin Miller Man of the Year Award.

MARK McGRATH

Wide Receiver

Ht: 5-11 Wt: 175
Born 12/17/57

How Acquired: Signed as free agent April 5, 1983

Games Played In/Games Started: 8/0 - 1981 (6/0); 1982 (DNP); 1983 (2/0)

1983 Season: Mark surfaced out of a long list of free agent receivers in training camp to make the Redskins' opening day roster. He responded by making an important catch on Monday Night against Dallas, a six-yard grab for a first down which kept a late-game drive going. Unfortunately, Mark took a hard hit on the catch and separated his shoulder, being placed on injured reserve the following week. He stayed there until being finally activated Dec. 16, prior to the finale with the Giants, as Mike Nelms was placed on injured reserve. The Redskins used their last regular season "move" in activating Mark. He was on the roster for all three playoff games.

Pro Career: Signed as a free agent in 1980 by the Seattle Seahawks, Mark spent that season on injured reserve following a knee injury in training camp. He played six games for the Seahawks in 1981, catching four passes for 47 yards, before suffering a broken hand against the Houston Oilers, and sitting out the rest of the year. He was waived by the Seahawks in '82 before the Redskins finally signed him in April of '83.

College, Personal: A two-time all-Big Sky selection at Montana State, Mark was a first-team College Division All-America choice as a senior, catching 19 passes for 315 yards and two TD's. He also returned 12 kickoffs for a 22.8 average, and 37 punts for a 10.0 average. He finished career there with 55 catches for 914 yards and nine touchdowns. A runner on the school's 440-yard relay team as a freshman, Mark played on an NCAA Division II National championship team at Montana State. A Criminal Justice graduate, Mark originally hails from Seattle, attending Shorecrest High, where one of his teammates was Raider QB Mark Wilson. He enjoys golf and tennis in the offseason, having once won a sports celebrity tennis tournament. A bachelor, Mark resides in Seattle in the offseason.

Defensive End

Brigham Young
3rd Year
Ht: 6-6 Wt: 255
Born 05/14/57

How Acquired: Selected in second round (55th player) of 1980 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 23/20 - 1980 (IR); 1981 (14/11); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (DNP)

1983 Season: Mat left the Redskins training camp for personal reasons last year. He later returned to team in middle of season, taking part in practices but never being activated onto roster.

Pro Career: The 55th player selected in the '80 draft, Mat was somewhat overlooked because of a ruptured appendix and two operations his senior year in college. He reported to the Redskins summer camp, but had to be placed on injured reserve his rookie year because of continuing intestinal problems. Mat broke into the starting lineup in Week 3 of the 1981 season, starting at left end and then moving over the next week to replace the injured Coy Bacon at right end. In Week 9, he regained his left end position and finished the season there, recording 61 tackles, one quarterback sack, one forced fumble, and two fumble recoveries. In 1982, as the starting left defensive end, Mat registered 34 regular season tackles and was also in on a quarterback sack. In the playoffs, Mat added another seven tackles to his total. He was superb in stopping the run, as only one runner in the last 15 games that year exceeded 100 yards and six of the last seven opponents could not muster 100 yards total rushing. Mat started every game, one of only 15 Redskins to do so.

College, Personal: As a sophomore at BYU, Mat was the defensive scoring champ with 217 points that included 64 tackles and 11 quarterback sacks. His freshman season was halted by a major concussion, while his senior season ended after three games because of the ruptured appendix. His college totals read 144 total tackles, 14 sacks, eight fumble recoveries, and two blocked kicks. Mat's father, Paul, was also a defensive end at BYU (1950-54) and now owns a 50-acre quarterhorse ranch in Utah. A graduate of East High School in Salt Lake City, Mat enjoys riding horses, hunting and fishing. Mat and his wife, Julie, have a child, Reno Wendell, 2, and reside in Reston, VA.

RICH MILOT

Linebacker

Penn State
6th Year
Ht: 6-4 Wt: 237
Born 05/28/57

How Acquired: Selected in seventh round of 1979 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 66/43 - 1979 (14/7); 1980 (16/5); 1981 (11/6); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: Amidst a Redskin defense constantly changing from down to down, depending on the likelihood of run or pass, Rich stays put at his right linebacking spot. He has raised his run defense to the all-Pro level of his pass defense, proven by his selection to UPI's second-team all-NFC squad. When one considers that the first teamers are Lawrence Taylor and Hugh Green, second team becomes that much more prestigious. Starting every game for the second consecutive season, Rich finished third on the team with 111 tackles, adding 1½ sacks as well. His finest hour of the season came in Anaheim against the Rams, where he intercepted two passes, and was named player of the game. Another in the long line of Penn State linebackers, Rich enjoyed two games of 11 tackles each in '83. In the playoffs he came up with 16 tackles, one sack, and one recovered fumble (against the 49ers in the NFC Championship). Rich also contributes to special teams, blocking on extra points and field goals. He was one of the team fashion plates in the fatigues market as well last year.

Pro Career: Fans have seen Rich patrolling each of the three linebacking spots in his five-year career with the Redskins. As a rookie, he inherited Chris Hanburger's right-side spot and became the first Redskin rookie to start an opener since 1970 when Bill Brundige did so. The year 1980 saw him open the season at middle linebacker in place of injured Neil Olkewicz. After six games of his rookie year, Rich fractured his wrist and played the remainder of the season with it in a cast. He forced a fumble in the opening drive of the St. Louis game that resulted in a Redskin touchdown. In 1980, Rich had 82 tackles, five quarterback sacks, and recovered a fumble. He also had four pass interceptions, including two against New Orleans to earn a game ball.

In 1981, Rich started at right side linebacker, but sprained his shoulder and missed Week 2. He returned the next week, but was switched to the left side to replace injured Monte Coleman. He moved back to his right side spot in Week 6, but sprained his right knee the next week and was placed on IR. He was reactivated in Week 12 and used primarily in pass defense situations. For the season, Rich played in 11 games, started six, made 35 total tackles and recovered a fumble. He blossomed into a standout in '82, starting all nine games on the right side, and finishing third on the team in total tackles (73). He led the 'Skins with four forced fumbles, and also recorded three quarterback sacks. In the four playoff games, he registered 17 tackles and one fumble recovery.

College, Personal: Rich did not miss playing many positions at Penn State under Joe Paterno, seeing time at linebacker, strong safety, tailback, fullback, defensive end, and defensive halfback in his four years. As a senior he had three pass interceptions. Previously, he had rushed for 191 yards and caught seven passes for the Nittany Lions. With a degree in Marketing, Rich worked for two firms in the offseason: ENRE Investment Firm, and Sandoz Pharmaceuticals. He also contributed time to the Kendra Hawthorne Liver Fund, a charity formed to help save the life of a little girl in the area. Having fit a trip to Alaska into the offseason as well, Rich resides in Herndon, VA.

Ht: 6-3 Wt: 209
Born 12/05/57

How Acquired: Selected in first round (18th player) of 1980 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 53/46 - 1980 (16/10); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (12/11)

1983 Season: In a season that started with a whimper (a knee injury in the second preseason game), Art finished up with a bang (two touchdown catches in his first playoff game, against Rams). In all, he had four grabs for 60 yards in that playoff contest. Despite missing the first four games of the season, Art came on to start the last 11 games, and wind up with 47 catches (tied for second on team), 746 yards (second-best on team), and five touchdowns. His two biggest days were seven catches for 106 yards versus San Diego, and 119 yards on six receptions in Dallas. Art also completed a pass last season, tossing a 46-yard aerial to mate Charlie Brown off a reverse play in the regular season meeting with the Rams. The fine playoff performance by Art (eight catches for 121 yards) was especially satisfying since he had missed the playoffs in 1982 with a stress fracture of the foot. Those were the first games he had missed since high school. His 30 points made him the Redskins' fifth-leading scorer in 1983. Also a fine blocker, Art is high commodity for Redskins with ability to consistently catch balls over the middle.

Pro Career: Art has more than lived up to his number one selection (the Redskins' first since 1968) in his four Redskin seasons. A unanimous all-Rookie selection in 1980, he broke a club rookie receiving record set back in 1964 by football's all-time leading receiver, Charley Taylor. He led the Redskins in receptions that season with 58, as he did in 1982 with 35. His 58 catches (for 797 yards) were 10th in the NFC, as he enjoyed six games with five or more catches. His first NFL game (vs. Dallas on Monday Night) resulted in five catches for 55 yards, while his first NFL start was six catches for 85 yards vs. St. Louis. In 1981, Art's 894 yards receiving were the most by a Redskin since 1967, as he finished with 56 catches and six TD's. Starting all 16 games, Art had seven games with four or more catches, and two 100-yard receiving games. He also had a streak of 23 games where he caught at least one pass; that ended in '82. He has had nine catches in his Redskin career over 40 yards, and his best yardage total was 148 vs. Baltimore in '81. Art's 35 catches in 1982 were good for 447 yards, 12th in the NFC. He also ran seven times in '82 for 21 yards with a long gain of 14. Art has now caught at least one pass in 50 of his 53 pro games. He had his best all-around day as a pro in the 1982 season opener in Philadelphia, catching eight for 134 yards. His injury occurred in the regular season finale with St. Louis, as he attempted to make a diving catch. The ball floated just off his fingertips. Art is already seventh on the all-time Redskins' receiving list with 196 catches. He has eight 100-yard receiving days in his career, including three in '83. Nicknamed "Money" for his ability to make the clutch catch.

College, Personal: At Syracuse, Art set receiving records with 102 catches for 1,644 yards, while rushing for 1,140 yards (4.5 average) and returning kicks for 1,105 yards for 3,889 total yards. His top receiving game was 14 catches for 188 yards and his top rushing game was 134 yards. He never missed a practice or game because of injury in his four years as an Orangeman. Art was a national interscholastic champion in the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in 1976. He spent the bulk of his offseason as manager for a basketball team of Redskins, arranging a 40-game schedule with road trips to Pennsylvania, Hampton, VA, Maryland, North Carolina, and Dallas, TX, to play a team of Cowboys. After sitting out '83 offseason basketball, recovering from injury he became a starting forward on the '84 team. Art is also Director of Outside Sales for Record Den, Inc., and from time to time, has done broadcasts for WRC-TV, most noticeably during the week leading up to Super Bowl XVII. Art and his wife, Desiree, recently welcomed a new addition to the family, Danielle, born April 22. The couple also has a son, James Arthur Monk, Jr., 1½. The Monks reside in Arlington, VA.

MARK MOSELEY

Kicker

Stephen Austin
13th Year NFL
(10th Redskin)
Ht: 6-0 Wt: 204
Born 03/12/48

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, Feb. 1, 1974

Games Played In/Games Started: 171/0 - 1970 (14); 1971 (12); 1972 (1); 1974 (13); 1975 (14); 1976 (14); 1977 (14); 1978 (16); 1979 (16); 1980 (16); 1981 (16); 1982 (9); 1983 (16)

1983 Season: After his brilliant 1982 MVP season, Mark had the fans yelling for more, and that's exactly what he gave them in 1983: more. Mark scored more points than any kicker ever had in the NFL, 161, breaking the mark Jim Turner set with the Jets in 1968 (145). The only player who has ever scored more in a season is Paul Hornung (176; 15 touchdowns, 15 field goals, 41 PAT's). Mark's 33 field goals broke Curt Knight's club record of 29 and is the third-most in NFL history behind Ali Haji-Sheikh's 35 (1983) and Turner's 34 (1968). His 62 PAT's made are second in NFL lore to George Blanda's 64 with Houston (1961). Voted 2nd-team all-NFC by UPI, Mark made 33 of 47 field goals and 62 of 63 extra points to account for his total. In the playoffs, Mark took on a starring role in the NFC Championship Game. With just :49 to go and the Redskins and 49ers knotted at 21, Mark drove home the 14th "game-winning" field goal of his 12-year career, his first in postseason play. Mark made five of his 10 playoff field goal tries, and 9-10 PAT's. Mark, of course, led the NFL in scoring, was second in field goals, and first in PAT's. He booted long field goals of 51 against the Falcons, 47 against the Giants (in NJ), and 46 in the finale against the Giants. He enjoyed three days of four field goals each, vs. Green Bay, the Giants (in NJ), and vs. the Rams in Anaheim. Mark's other game-winning field goal last year came in San Diego, as his 37-yarder with just a few seconds left gave the Redskins a 27-24 win. Mark had a perfect day vs the Rams in the playoffs, connecting on field goals of 42, 36, and 41 yards. Another of Mark's more clutch field goals last season was a 34-yarder against the Raiders in the regular season. That fourth quarter kick, following a successful Redskin on-sides kickoff, moved Washington to within five points at 35-30. The Redskins then got the ball back and scored a touchdown to defeat the Raiders.

Pro Career Totals: Mark's 1,104 points place him eighth in all-time scoring, only 26 points behind Gino Cappelletti's 1,130 in seventh place. He has booted 242 field goals, sixth all-time. He has also kicked 378 extra points plus 16 field goals with under four minutes to go in a game and the outcome hinging on the kick. Included in that are his NFL-record four overtime field goals of 29, 45, 48, and 26. His 12 points in overtime share an NFL record, and his 48-yard field goal is a record. Mark's strong leg has booted 11 field goals of over 50 yards in his career.

Pro Career: A 14th round draft choice of the Philadelphia Eagles in 1970, Mark scored 67 points as a rookie. The next year he was cut in training camp and signed by the Houston Oilers. He scored 73 points for them, but suffered an injury his second year after scoring five points and was later released. In 1974, Mark beat out incumbent Redskin Curt Knight and 9th round draft pick Mike Flater for the roster spot. Since then, he has gone on to rewrite all Redskin career kicking records. Over the past eight years, Mark has a better than 90 percent extra point average (252-275).

In 1981, Mark led the Redskins in scoring (95 points) for an eighth straight year as he provided the Redskins with two last minute victories. In Week 10 vs. Detroit, he booted a 44-yard field goal with just 43 seconds left for a 33-31 Redskin win. The next week, against the Giants in New Jersey, Mark had a chance with five seconds to play to kick a 49-yard field goal to tie the game. In the wind, rain and cold, Mark was successful in sending the game into sudden death. A few minutes later, Mark lined up in almost the same spot to make a 48-yard field goal to win the game for Washington. He booted 19 field goals and 38 extra points while hitting 14-17 field goals from 39 yards and in.

The year 1982 meant near perfection for Mark. He connected on his first 20 field goal attempts to set a record for consecutive field goals (23—he made his last three of '81). Mark finally missed on his last attempt, but still easily set another record for field goal percentage in one season (95.2%), topping Jan Stenerud's 91.7%. For his spectacular season, Mark was selected for the Pro Bowl, and also the AP and Sporting News NFL Player of the Year, and NFC Player of the Year by UPI. Mark's record-breaking kick could not have been more dramatic: it was at RFK against the Giants with the Redskins down 14-12. With snow falling and the clock almost expired, Mark set up at the 32 yard-line and proceeded to kick the ball through the uprights. In Super Bowl XVII, Mark was 2-2, booting a 20 and 31-yarder to help Washington to the world title. In the regular season opener, Mark kicked a 48-yarder with time running out in Philadelphia to tie the Eagles, and then a 26-yarder in overtime to win. Mark added four more field goals in the playoffs, and was perfect on 14 extra points. He had enjoyed a four field goal day in St. Louis.

Mark has led the NFL in field goals four times (1976, 1977, 1979 and 1982) and the NFC in kick scoring four times as well (1976, 1979, 1982, and 1983), while being selected for the Pro Bowl in 1979 and '82. He has kicked 11 field goals of 50 or more yards and 76 from 40 yards and out. He tied a club record with five field goals in a game (vs New Orleans in 1980) and had two of 50 or more yards in that game to match a feat accomplished only three times in NFL history. He has had six games with four field goals and 22 games with three field goals in his career. The only straight-on kicker left in the NFL, Mark holds the Redskins record for longest field goal (54 yards). He has played in the last 131 Redskin games, second-most on the team to Theismann, and fourth most in the Redskin records. Mark's 144 games as a Redskin stands sixth on the all-time Redskin list. In the playoffs, Mark has now made 25 of his 26 career PAT attempts. He's also made 11 of 21 field goal attempts in his eight playoff contests. He has now scored 58 points in the playoff competition, with a long field goal of 47 yards. He has now scored in 47 straight games, and made 58 of his last 78 field goals (74.4%), with a long kick of 51 yards. Mark remains the only kicker to ever win the League MVP award.

College, Personal: After transferring from Texas A&M, where he had played quarterback, Mark set Lone Star Conference records for field goals (season) and most points (game). His distance on kickoffs meant 30 of his 56 kicks were not returned. Mark's number 10 jersey was just recently retired by Stephen F. Austin. The only other jersey ever retired there was that of Bum Phillips. Off the field, Moseley has been honored by both his local Virginia county and hometown Texas county for his extra efforts.

Many times during the past year Mark testified before the House and Senate Judiciary Subcommittees on issues relating to uniform sentencing, probation and assistance to victims of crime. He also appeared before a congressional committee on the issue of voluntary school prayer.

Earlier, Mark served on a national task force, appointed by President Reagan, to help victims of crime and, at state level, headed a group, appointed by VA Gov. Robb, to make recommendations to deal with the problem of drunk driving. Last year Mark narrated "One for the Road," a television documentary portraying the devastation caused by teen drunk driving. He is much in demand to discuss issues raised by the film, working with groups of Mothers and Students Against Drunk Driving (MADD, SADD). This year Mark is featured in "What About the Victim?" Soon to be released, the documentary includes the story of his own sister.

In several jurisdictions of Maryland and Virginia, Mark supports the efforts of Crime Solvers. He has visited inmates in the District jail to encourage them to live law-abiding lives upon their release. Mark was featured in a film for the United States Navy, and kicked off the U.S. Savings Bond Drive sponsored by ACTION, the National Volunteer Agency. He was emcee at one of the several National Cherry Blossom Festival affairs. He has twice appeared with the United States Air Force Band, at Constitution Hall and at Wolf Trap for the Performing Arts, narrating "I Am an American." Recently he narrated "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra" with the McLean Symphony Orchestra. Mark gives commencement addresses and participates in student projects at various high schools and colleges, most recently at Bishop O'Connell High School, Northern Virginia Community College/Alexandria Campus and George Mason University. He served as Honorary Chairman of McDonald's Capital Classic in its tenth anniversary year.

Mark is President of No Greater Love. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Ronald McDonald House. During 1984-85, he will be READaTHON Honorary Chairman for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, National Capital Chapter. Besides personal appearances in Metropolitan Washington, Mark has traveled throughout the United States—as far away as Alaska—to support projects of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, the Boy Scouts of America, Special Olympics, the YMCA, the Rotary Club, the United Way, the American Heart Association, the Leukemia and Kidney Foundations and the Sheltered Occupational Center. In an apron-covered tux, he participated in the "Gourmet Gala" for the March of Dimes.

In addition, Mark has been appointed to represent the NFLPA in São Paulo, Brazil.

On the commercial side, Mark owns or co-owns several businesses. He is president of Mark Moseley Travel and of Extra Point Productions, a principal in Triple R Western Wear, and conducts The Mark Moseley Kicking-Punting Specialist Camp during the offseason. For the past eight years Mark has had his own radio program, most recently with NBC's WRC.

Mark is affiliated with Nike, maker of the shoes he wears and endorses; the National Hospital as consultant to and spokesman for its Center for Health and Sports Medicine; The Sierra Group as Vice President/Marketing; Stihl, Inc., maker of chain saws; and Desert Dry Waterproofing Contractors, Inc. in a multi-media campaign beginning this summer.

Mark's valuable public service was recognized by The American Shock Trauma Association which presented to him its Clutch Award "for coming through in tight situations." His record field goal streak is chronicled in the Encyclopedia Britannica Book of the Year/1982.

There are chapters about Mark in two books published this year, Pro Football's Great Moments and Redskin Country. The latter includes Mark among 14 all-time great Redskins. For his many community services, Mark was recently honored as a Washingtonian of the Year, and is listed by The Washington Dossier in its selection of "The 500 Most Powerful People in Washington." Finally, Mark has been selected to be in the next edition of Who's Who in America, to be published in September.

Native Texans, Mark and his wife Sharon Allison have made their home in Northern Virginia since 1974, presently residing in Haymarket. They have three children—Megan, 7; Lindsay, 6; and Mark, Jr., 4.

Free Safety

Colgate
8th Year
Ht: 6-4 Wt: 210
Born 07/13/55

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on May 4, 1977

Games Played In/Games Started: 102/72 - 1977 (14/0); 1978 (16/0); 1979 (16/16); 1980 (16/16); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (15/15)

1983 Season: The Redskins reached Super Bowl XVIII with a secondary missing three of the four members who started Super Bowl XVII. The Mission Impossible team never even accomplished feats of that magnitude. But then Mission Impossible never had Mark Murphy on its side. The lone holdover, Mark was the glue which prevented the Redskin secondary from self-destructing last year. His NFL-best nine interceptions and 132 tackles (2nd-best on Redskins) earned him his first Pro Bowl selection, as the NFC's starting free safety. But that wasn't Mark's only honor. He also received first-team all-NFL accolades from AP, Sporting News, and Pro Football Weekly, and all-NFC from UPI. The defensive signal caller and leader of the "Pearl Harbor Crew," Mark extended his consecutive game streak to 102 and his consecutive start streak to 72 before injuring himself in Dallas and missing the season finale against the Giants. He returned in the playoffs to make 15 tackles as the Redskins charged to the Super Bowl. In the regular season, "Murph" added one sack, and two forced fumbles to his total. It was the first season since 1978 that Mark did not lead the team in tackles, as Neal Olkewicz edged him out. His ability to cover much ground helped the Redskin defense finish 3rd in the entire NFL in opponent pass completion percentage (52.8). Murph's nine thefts were part of a League-leading 34 by the Redskins. His best game of 1983 came in San Diego, as he finished with 14 tackles (9 solo) and three interceptions.

Pro Career: The first free agent signing made by the Redskins following the 1977 draft, Mark was one of only two rookies to make the team that season (Clarence Harmon was the other). With George Allen coaching, it was a real accomplishment. The two rookies teamed for a TD vs the Cowboys in Texas Stadium when Murphy blocked a punt on the one yard-line and Harmon scored on the next play. He played on the special teams for two seasons (one fourth-down pass reception for 13 yards) and as a nickel back on defense before replacing Jake Scott as the Redskins' starting free safety. In his first year as starter, Mark led the team with 152 tackles and intercepted three passes. In 1980, he upped his team-high tackles to 186 (60 more than the runner-up) and intercepted six passes (tied for 3rd in the NFC) as he anchored the NFL's top pass defense.

In '81, Mark again increased his tackles, this time achieving a team-high 197, in addition to picking off seven passes (6th in the NFC and 7th in the NFL) and recovering three fumbles. He had a streak of eight consecutive games with an opponent's turnover. A second-team all-NFC UPI selection in 1982, Mark had a season which certainly merited a Pro-Bowl berth: he led the NFL's stingiest defense (points-wise—128) in tackles again, piling up 100. His 38 playoff tackles was also a team high. He had a key interception in Super Bowl XVII, lunging at the Washington five-yard line to snare the ball just before it hit the gound to stop a third-quarter Miami drive. He also grabbed two regular season thefts, forced one fumble, and recorded one sack. He had another sack in the playoffs, and helped limit the Dolphins to 80 yards passing in the Super Bowl. In five years as a starter, Mark has made 767 tackles (over 10 per game), intercepted 27 passes and recovered six fumbles.

College, Personal: One of three finalists for the Redskins' 1983 Miller Man of the Year (for off-field charitable activities), Mark is one of the most active Redskins when it comes to offseasons. He is a graduate of Colgate, where he established a school record for interceptions in a game (3) and earned all-ECAC honors as a senior on the Red Raiders' 8-2 squad. He had 10 interceptions and 180 tackles as a starter. Mark also played center field for three seasons at Colgate and received major league baseball contract offers. He played basketball there his freshman season as well after graduating from Clarence Central High, in Clarence, NY (near Buffalo). His father, Hugh, played tackle at St. Bonaventure, 1947-50. An economics major, Mark went on to earn his Master's Degree in Finance at American University. He is now taking classes to obtain his securities license, and is planning on beginning law school this fall. Popular with the media, Mark has a regular show on WMAL radio. Last year, Mark joined with First Lady, Nancy Reagan, to kick off the Dept. of Justice/NFL "Team Up Against Drugs" program. He spoke and continues to speak at many area schools to discourage alcohol and drug use. He has served as Chairman of the March of Dimes Walk America and as celebrity host for the March of Dimes Golf Tournament. He also has worked with the Easter Seals Society, United Way, Leukemia Fund, Children's Hospital, No Greater Love, the Jaycees, the AFL-CIO Youth Camp for under-privileged children, and for SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving). He was employed this past offseason at the ENRE Investment Firm. He and his wife, Laurie Young, have one child, Katie, and reside in Vienna, VA. The couple have also done work for the National Capitol Children's Museum. This past year, Mark was named Vice-President of the NFL Players Association.

21 MIKE NELMS

Wide Receiver/ Kick Returner

Baylor
5th Year
Ht: 6-1 Wt: 185
Born 04/08/55

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on April 18, 1980

Games Played In/Games Started: 52/0 - 1980 (16/0); 1981 (16/0); 1982 (8/0); 1983 (12/0)

1983 Season: For the first time in his four NFL seasons, Mike missed a trip to the Pro Bowl in 1983, having to "settle" on being selected to the AP all-NFL team, as the only return man. It's actually greater reward since Pro Bowl squads are Conference bests while AP team is League bests. No return man in football has been Mike's equal in the '80's. Despite nagging injuries last year, Mike again showed his penchant for the spectacular with key returns. He set up the go-ahead points in Philadelphia with a brilliant 18-yard punt return, sidestepping and stepping over at least eight of the Eagles. Third in the NFC with a 22.9 kickoff return average, Mike had an outstanding day against the Raiders in the regular season, running back a punt 35 yards, and returning five kickoffs for 103 yards. His longest kickoff return was a 41-yarder in Green Bay. He combined with Virgil Seay on a 58-yard kickoff return against the Giants. With over 1,000 yards of total offense for third time in four seasons (he came 191 yards short in the strike season), Mike returned 38 punts for 289 yards and a 7.6 average. He was credited with one fair catch, being run into on a punt, the same way he was given his only other fair catch ruling of the last three years. Mike's combined yardage total of 1,091 was second among NFC return men. He was placed on injured reserve Dec. 16 after incurring leg and shoulder injuries against Dallas. Mike was eligible to return before the Super Bowl, but came up just short and had to miss game. He had originally twisted a knee in game in New York when Giants player hit Mike while he was on ground. Converted from defensive back to receiver last preseason, Mike saw little time there. One who rarely fumbles, Mike will always make some yardage on his punt returns no matter how many defenders surround him. He remains one of the most popular Redskins on team, and a player who can bring the crowd to their feet by just his presence.

Pro Career: After three tremendous seasons in the CFL, Mike came home in 1980 to the United States and signed with the Redskins. He had originally been a 1977 seventh round pick of the Buffalo Bills, but was released in training camp and signed by the Hamilton Tiger-Cats. A broken toe sidelined him there and soon he wound up with the Ottawa Roughriders. In '79, he led the CFL in punt returns (1,155 yards and a 10.9 average) and his conference in pass interceptions (10 for 124 yards) as he earned all-star honors. In his Pro Bowl 1980 season, Mike had 12 kick returns over 25 yards and 21 punt returns over 10 yards, with a 64-yard punt return vs. Atlanta and a 51-yard kickoff return that same game. In 1981, Mike topped the NFL with a 29.7 yard kickoff average and finished fourth in the NFC in punt returns with a 10.9 average. His 1,591 combined yards (a Redskin club record) ranked third best in NFL history. His 1,099 yards on kickoff returns and 29.7 average were also club records, and his two touchdowns on punt returns tied a club record. His touchdowns were 75 and 58 yards, and he also had kickoff returns of 84 and 65 yards. Mike also intercepted a pass and made 17 tackles playing in the "nickel" defense that season.

The Pro Bowl opened its hallowed doors for Mike a third straight year in '82, as he placed second in the NFC in kickoff returns with a 24.2 average, while averaging 7.9 yards on punt returns. He also rose to the occasion, returning a third-quarter kick vs Dallas in the NFC Championship Game 76 yards to set up a key TD. Over the four post-season games, he averaged 11.3 on punts and 25.7 on kickoffs. Included in that is his 39-yard punt return against Detroit. During the regular season, Mike clicked on returns of 58 (kickoff) against the Eagles, 44 (kickoff) vs the Giants, and 28 (punt) against the Eagles. He set an all-time Redskin record in '82 for career punt return yardage with 1,231, passing Eddie Brown who had 1,150. He now has 1,520 career yards, and a record 163 returns. He also played some short yardage situations on defense, before making the switch to offense. His 3,268 yards on kickoff returns is second in Redskin annals to Dickie James' 3,959; and Mike's 133 career kickoff returns are also second to James (155).

College, Personal: A transfer to Baylor from Sam Houston State University, Mike tied a school record in 1975 with three interceptions in one game. He had six thefts for 107 yards in his two years as a starter. He also high-jumped 6'7" for the track team. Mike studied Radio and Television Communications at Baylor. Born in Fort Worth, he graduated from O.D. Wyatt High. His older brother, Alfred, played football at Oklahoma State. During the offseason between 1982 and '83, Mike was a member of the 'Skins SuperTeams squad in Florida, stealing the show when he mastered the obstacle course like no one before him. His athletic skills were well-highlighted in that spotlight. He spent last offseason just relaxing, doing occasional speaking, and enjoying precious time with his wife, Michele, and daughter, Jennifer Ryann, 1. Mike has spent much time in the Team Up Against Drugs Campaign, a cause which Mrs. Nancy Reagan has taken a strong role in. The Nelms family resides in Herndon, VA.

THOSE DURABLE REDSKINS

Joe Theismann's 136 straight games as a Redskin is the current best among active Redskins. Mark Moseley's 131 straight games closely follows. From there, the number drops to Dave Butz's 71, Jeff Bostic's 57, and Rick Walker's 56. Tony McGee has played in 130 straight games, but only 25 with the Redskins. Mark Murphy built his streak up to 102 before missing the regular season finale last year.

NEAL OLKEWICZ

Linebacker

Maryland
6th Year
Ht: 6-0 Wt: 233
Born 01/30/57

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on May 4, 1979

Games Played In/Games Started: 67/59 - 1979 (16/9); 1980 (12/11); 1981 (14/14); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: As the number one tackler on the NFL's best run defense, Neal makes a habit of clogging up the Redskin middle. His 144 tackles (78 solos) were 12 better than Mark Murphy, who edged "Olke" out last year. Neal also added two sacks, two forced fumbles, and two recovered fumbles in '83. His best game of last season came in Seattle as his 14 tackles helped hold the AFC's leading rusher, Curt Warner, to 34 yards. That's the same total the Redskin defense held Tony Dorsett (14 carries) to in the second Dallas game. Neal had one interception on the year, against San Diego on a Monday night. He also led the Redskin tacklers in the playoffs with 25. Like the rest of his fellow linebackers, Neal has not been able to settle on one nickname for the group, going from The Blue Collar Crew to Pec's Pit Bulls, and finally to the Airborne Rangers. But whatever you want to call them, they were effective with NFL-bests of 61 takeaways and nine rushing TD's. As the solid middle, Neal deserves as much credit as anyone for the outstanding play. Very few linebackers can play the run better than Neal, according to Redskin coaches.

Pro Career: Playing just around the corner at Maryland, Neal was the Redskins' first free agent signing following the 1979 draft. He earned a roster spot with an aggressive camp, and went on to play all 16 games as a rookie, becoming the starter in Week Seven (vs. Cleveland). He replaced Don Hover and ousted veterans Harold McLinton and Mike Curtis. Neal had 140 tackles, a pass interception (vs. Dallas), forced four fumbles and had a quarterback sack that year. In 1980, he missed the first five weeks with a preseason knee injury but came on to make 107 tackles and recover a fumble. In 1981, Neal started 14 games before missing the last two due to injury. He was the second leading tackler that season, with 187½. The 1982 season saw Neal compile 88 regular season tackles and 27 playoff tackles, again second on team to Mark Murphy. His three fumble recoveries tied for first on club, and he added to that with 2½ quarterback sacks and a forced fumble. The Super Bowl victory over Miami was Neal's 26th birthday present. He had season-high nine tackles in win over New Orleans. In five seasons, Neal has 666 tackles (nearly 10 per game). He received the Brookland Club's Player of the Year Award in 1979. Neal scored his only career touchdown on a 10-yard interception return against Chicago in 1981.

College, Personal: As team captain and MVP at Maryland, Neal set team records for most tackles in a season (188) with a top game of 27 tackles against Penn State. He had three fumble recoveries, two forced fumbles, two quarterback sacks, and a blocked punt in his career. He earned his degree in law enforcement and spent two years (1980-81) as a Deputy in the Fairfax County Sheriff's Office. Born in Phoenixville, PA, he attended high school there. Neal was married in the offseason of 1983 to the former Nancy Pittore. He is owner, quite obviously, of Neal Olkewicz's Sport Center, a sporting goods shop at 6635 Backlick Rd. in Springfield, VA. The store takes up much of his offseason time. Neal and his wife reside in Rockville, Maryland.

23 TONY PETERS

Strong Safety

Oklahoma
9th Year NFL
(4th Year Redskins)
Ht: 6-2 Wt: 190
Born 04/28/53

How Acquired: On August 17, 1979 in a trade with Cleveland Browns for a 1980 and '81 draft choice

Games Played In/Games Started: 115/90 - 1975 (14/12); 1976 (14/10); 1977 (14/14); 1978 (16/16); 1979 (16/5); 1980 (16/8); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (DNP)

1983 Season: Tony was arrested in training camp, Carlisle, PA, on August 3, and placed on immediate leave from the Redskins. On Sept. 2, he pled guilty in Federal Court to two charges, including conspiracy to distribute cocaine, and use of a telephone to facilitate a conspiracy. On Oct. 7, 1983, Tony was handed a four-year suspended sentence, fined $10,000, and ordered to perform 500 hours of community service. On Nov. 18, he was suspended by the NFL for the 1983 and '84 seasons, but told he may petition for reinstatement prior to the 1984 season. On May 16, 1984, Tony's suspension was lifted for the 1984 season. He was on the field the next day for the first veteran practice of mini-camp. On the following Saturday he ran a career-best 4.45 in the 40.

Pro Career: A fourth round draft pick of the Cleveland Browns, he played right corner back as a rookie, but later became their starting strong safety in 1977. An all-NFL rookie selection, he accumulated five interceptions for the Browns before coming to the Redskins in a training camp deal in 1979. He has played all four defensive backfield positions. Tony made 79 tackles his first Redskin season and followed that with 107 in '80, and 88 in '81. He's had nine interceptions as a Redskin and forced nine fumbles. While intercepting two against Oakland in a 1980 contest, Tony also had an interception against St. Louis in 1980 when the Redskins set a club record for fewest yards allowed passing (– 12). He was part of a Redskin secondary that held opponents to under 50% passing for three years straight.

In 1982, Tony set the tone for the aggressive brand of Redskin defense, and was rewarded with his first-ever Pro Bowl nomination. With 51 regular season tackles (5th on team), 16 playoff tackles, one playoff forced fumble, and countless intimidations causing dropped passes, Tony helped limit opposing offenses to a 53.1 completion percentage, second lowest in the NFC. He also had a crucial theft, preserving the victory over the Eagles at RFK Stadium. In addition, Tony proved to be a man of steel, playing in 115 straight games since coming into the league. He was named first-team all-NFC by UPI.

College, Personal: Tony played cornerback on Oklahoma's undefeated 1974 squad, earning all-Big Eight honors. One of 11 children, Tony was reared in Paul's Valley, Oklahoma, where the town had a day for him, and attended Northeastern Oklahoma before transferring. Tony is one of four brothers to play at Oklahoma. A licensed real estate agent, Tony has played for the basketball team of Redskins the last two offseasons, touring several schools. But most of his time of late has been spent in community service, which he has called "the most rewarding experience of his life." Tony and his wife, Jewell Penny, have four children: Kim, 16; Tiffany, 11; Tony, Jr., 5; and Justin, 2½. They reside in Chantilly, Va.

JOHN RIGGINS

Running Back

Kansas
13th Year NFL
(8th Redskin)
Ht: 6-2 Wt: 240
Born 08/04/49

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on June 10, 1976

Games Played In/Games Started: 149/122 - 1971 (14/4); 1972 (12/8); 1973 (11/11); 1974 (10/9); 1975 (14/14); 1976 (14/14); 1977 (5/5); 1978 (15/15); 1979 (16/15); 1981 (15/4); 1982 (8/8); 1983 (15/15)

1983 Season: Time was running out in the final quarter of the final game last season and John Riggins still needed one touchdown to set an NFL record (24) for TD's in a season. The "Diesel" had already shattered the mark for rushing touchdowns in one season (19). As the Redskins rallied to take a 24-22 lead over the Giants, an Eastern Division Title seemed secure but not so John's record. Until merely three minutes remained. That's when Jeff Rutledge was sacked by Monte Coleman, with the ball squirting loose and Dave Butz recovering on the Giants' 21. From that point on it was up to the Hogs and Riggo to attain the record. Six straight times John carried the pigskin until he finally exploded over the goalline from two yards out for the record-breaking score. As just 1:37 remained on the clock. It was a stirring drama: "A Diesel Named Desire," some suggested. The title seemed to fit.

Riggo-nomics became the number one subject in Washington last year, as the veteran running back enjoyed the finest season of his substantial career. He turned in a club-record, career-high 1,347 yards rushing (4th best in NFC) and 306 more in the playoffs. And, of course, he turned the end zone into his second home. Besides the 24 TD's, John set another NFL record by rushing for a touchdown in 13 consecutive games (over two seasons). The 13-game streak was also the third-best consecutive-game scoring streak of any kind, behind Lenny Moore (18) and O.J. Simpson (14). John also refused to turn the ball over in '83. He lost the ball to the opposition just three times all year, covering the 468 times he handled the football, an incredible stat. When John did fumble, in the regular season vs. the Raiders, it broke his string of 685 carries without a fumble. But incredible was normal for Riggo in '83. He continued to merit the name "Mr. January" for his exciting playoff performances, 119 yards against the Rams, and 123 yards in the NFC Championship Game versus the 49ers.

John's name appeared on most every all-star team for '83: Associated Press all-NFL; United Press International all-NFC; and Pro Football Weekly all-NFL, to name a few. In addition, he was named the winner of the Bert Bell Award as the NFL Player of the Year, given by the Maxwell Club. The number five career NFL rusher (9,436 yards), Riggo enjoyed three 100-yard regular season rushing games last year, getting 100 yards even in Philadelphia, 115 yards in St. Louis, and 122 yards in that season finale against Giants. Including playoffs, he now has 27 100-yard rushing games to his credit. He carried the ball over 20 times in 14 of the 15 Redskin regular season games he took part in, and all three playoff games, averaging 25.7 carries and 91.8 yards per game. His 44-yard run in that Giants' finale was longest jaunt of season and started the rally that took Redskins back from 19-7 deficit. Some observers said run was reminiscent of famous Super Bowl touchdown run against Miami. He had two three-touchdown days, in St. Louis and in Los Angeles, and six two-touchdown days. His 57 Redskin rushing TD's is now a club record, as John passed Larry Brown early last year. Brown's 1,216 rushing yards in 1972 was also erased by Riggo's 1983 season. John also caught five passes in 1983 for 29 yards and a long gain of 14. In addition, he threw the first pass of his career, an incompletion in the game against Kansas City. But John came back to complete his first career pass in the Championship Game, a 36-yarder to Charlie Brown. Simply put, there was nothing that John Riggins couldn't accomplish in 1983.

Playoff Fever: In just over two years of postseason play, John has etched his name firmly into the NFL record annals. The Super Bowl XVII MVP (166 yards) now has an NFL record six 100-yard games in postseason play. He has rushed to a TD in six consecutive playoff games, breaking Franco Harris' record. The overall mark is eight, set by Steeler John Stallworth. Riggo's ten career touchdowns (eight games) surpassed Larry Csonka (12 games) and Tony Dorsett (12 games) for second most, career, behind Franco's 16 touchdowns in 18 games. John's 948 yards gained trails Dorsett's 1,266 and Harris' 1,523. He tied an NFL record with three touchdowns against the Rams, joining 13 others who have scored three TD's in a playoff game. The three rushing ties six others and was last done by Harris in 1974. Besides the last two seasons, John's only other playoff game was in 1976 against Minnesota when he carried only seven times for 30 yards. He has scored ten postseason TD's and carries a superb 4.1 yards per carry average. He's also never fumbled the ball in 232 attempts in postseason action. John's 36 attempts in each of the last two NFC Championships is a record for that game. He will always be remembered for 43-yard touchdown run which put Redskins in lead to stay in Super Bowl XVII.

Pro Career Totals: John moved into fifth place this season on the NFL all-time rushing list with 9,436 yards, behind Brown, Harris, Payton, and Simpson. His 2,413 carries put him in 3rd place in NFL history, behind only Harris and Payton. In addition, his 11,465 yards put him 14th on the all-time list. He ranks second on the all-time Redskin rushing list (5,546 yards) behind Larry Brown (5,875), and holds the Redskin club record with 57 touchdowns rushing. Over the last three seasons (including playoffs), John has rushed or caught the ball 991 times with only eight fumbles. That breaks down to one fumble for every 124 carries. His 82 career rushing TD's place him 4th on the all-time list, and with 94 touchdowns, John ranks fifth in that stat.

Pro Career: The New York Jets thought enough of John to make him their number one draft pick (sixth overall) in the 1971 draft. He went on to lead the team in both rushing and receiving as a rookie. He played five seasons for the Jets before playing out his contract option and becoming a free agent. He rushed for 3,880 yards, had 10 100-yard games, and scored 31 touchdowns for the Jets. In 1977 with the Redskins, John suffered a knee injury in Week 5 and was placed on injured reserve. He earned the NEA Comeback Player of the Year Award in 1978 with a 1,000-yard season. John was selected for the Pro Bowl following the 1975 season. His top rushing game as a Redskin in the regular season was a 151-yard output in the 1979 season finale at Dallas, in which he broke a 66-yard TD run in the fourth quarter.

In 1981, John came back from a year's layoff to gain 714 yards rushing. He had a 126-yard effort in the win over Chicago, while scoring two touchdowns. He then tied his personal best with a three touchdown game versus St. Louis and also scored two touchdowns against the Colts and Rams. John tied for first in the NFC with 13 touchdowns rushing. John capped off his splendid 1982 season by being named Sport Magazine Most Valuable Player in the Super Bowl, rewarding his 38-carry, 166-yard game—numbers never achieved up to that point. Only his 185 yards two weeks before against the Vikings was a higher Redskin postseason total (John made his famous bow after that game.) The "Riggo Drill" became famous as the Redskins' sure-fire way of keeping leads in the fourth quarter. Of the 610 yards John gained in the four playoff games, 253 of those yards came in the fourth quarter. He concluded the regular season with 553 yards for eight games, 228 in the final period. He averaged 4.5 yards per carry in the playoffs. The Ground Hog of the Redskins, John became the first back in NFL history to have four consecutive 100-yard efforts in the postseason. (He increased that to six last year.) No back before had ever gained 100 yards in three straight playoff games. For the playoffs, John was 43.4% of the Redskin offense, and involved in 51.3% of the plays. He remarkably only fumbled twice on the season in 324 times handling the ball. Riggo's best regular season performance occurred against Tampa Bay where he slid through the wet field for 136 yards. In eight of the 12 games, he lugged the ball over 25 times. He led the Redskins in rushing TD's with three, and finished with 1,163 yards, including the playoffs—the fourth time he exceeded the 1,000-yard mark. He was also presented with a Timmie Award from the Washington Touchdown Club for his play in '82. John's 149 games played in the NFL is second on the Redskins to Mark Moseley's 171.

College, Personal: When one breaks the records of Gale Sayers in college, one is running at a pretty good pace. So it was with John at Kansas where he gained 2,706 career yards and 1,131 as a senior. He was an all-American as a senior, and a three-time all-Big Eight choice. John never missed a game or practice at Kansas. He was a two-time State 100-yard dash champ with a 9.8 clocking in high school. In the offseason, John splits time between Virginia and his farm in Kansas. His camouflage wardrobe became very "in vogue" this season, leading to 1) a whole line of such clothing with the words, "Riggo's Rangers," on it (John donated one-half of all the sales $20,000 to the Disabled American Veterans); and 2) several of the Redskins donning the gear for the road trip down to Dallas, or the "Siege on Dallas" as it is now fondly called. John also made a key local appearance for the American Cancer Society, along with Sen. Birch Bayh. He has also filmed public service spots for the Disabled Veterans, and done other charitable work for them. Originally denied entrance to the Hogs, John earned his way in and helped make the group famous. He presented them all with high-powered Weatherby rifles at a 1983 offseason dinner. You might have seen John on television doing Ford commercials, all capitalizing on his natural sense of humor. He enjoys maintaining a low offseason profile. John and his wife, Mary Louise Kraft, have three children: Robert Krafton, 10; Portia, 4; and Emil, 1. Their farm is in Lawrence, Kansas.

CARRIED AWAY

Only two players, Franco Harris and Walter Payton, have carried the ball more times in a game than John.

80 VIRGIL SEAY

Wide Receiver

Troy State
4th Year
Ht: 5-8 Wt: 175
Born 01/01/58

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on April 6, 1981
Games Played In/Games Started: 38/11 - 1981 (16/7); 1982 (8/1); 1983 (14/3)

1983 Season: Virgil came on to become an active force in the Redskins' drive to football's best record last year. Starting the San Diego game, he caught a 39-yard touchdown reception in Week 9. His other catch on the year was a 16-yarder, giving him a career average of 20.0 yards per catch (34 for 681). His major contributions, however came as a return specialist. Filling in for the injured Mike Nelms, Virgil had nine kickoff returns for a 26.4 average and five punt returns for an 11.4 average, both averages team-bests. He was the recipient of a Nelms handoff on a kickoff return against the Giants, scampering the last 50 yards of a 58-yard return, the longest by Washington last year. He also had a 42-yard punt return in Dallas against the Cowboys last year, that just missed breaking for a touchdown. That was the longest punt return of the year for the Redskins. Virgil was injured later in the Dallas game, and did not play rest of season, though he was dressed for the Super Bowl.

Pro Career: An established big-play man, Virgil was a 10th-round draft choice of the Denver Broncos in 1980, but was released in training camp. In 1981, he was signed by the Redskins and provided the long threat the Redskins were looking for. He averaged 18.2 yards per catch (8th NFC) and registered long plays of 60, 51, 38, and 37. The 9.6 sprinter enjoyed two 100-yard receiving games with an eight-catch, 145-yard effort vs Detroit and a seven-catch, 104-yard game against Baltimore. He scored on touchdowns of 51, 38, and 37 yards, finishing the season with 26 catches for 472 yards. In 1982, Virgil had a per catch average of 25.7 yards (six catches for 154 yards) to give him the second-highest average in the NFL for players who caught more than five passes. His best game that season was in the Meadowlands against the Giants where he caught two passes for 71 yards including a key grab in the final quarter. An original "Smurf" and "Fun Buncher, Virgil was limited by a thigh injury in the late season. He did, however, manage to play in two playoff games, contributing mostly on special teams. His two longest catches of the year were 37 and 34 yards, both against the Giants. He has a vertical jump of 35 inches, and 4.5 speed.

College, Personal: Virgil set an NCAA record at Troy State with three returns for touchdowns (70, 70 and 55 yards) in one game (vs Livingston). He averaged 22.9 yards per catch as a senior, while averaging 26.2 yards on kickoff returns and 16.2 on punts. He had 965 combined yards as a senior to earn conference honors. He graduated from Moultrie (GA) High and attended East Mississippi Junior College before transferring to Troy State. Virgil enjoys "making others laugh" and has some funny sounds that make him noticed around the lockerroom. In the offseason, he coached track at Hayfield High School in Virginia. He also found time to get married to the former Renee Burroughs. A popular speaker, Virgil made trips to Children's Hospital as well as part of the Redskins' program there.

ROY SIMMONS

Guard/Tackle

Georgia Tech
5th Year NFL
(2nd Redskins)
Ht: 6-3 Wt: 270
Born 11/08/56

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent, August 1983

Games Played In/Games Started: 58/26 - 1979 (16/0); 1980 (16/16); 1981 (16/10); 1982 (DNP); 1983 (10/0)

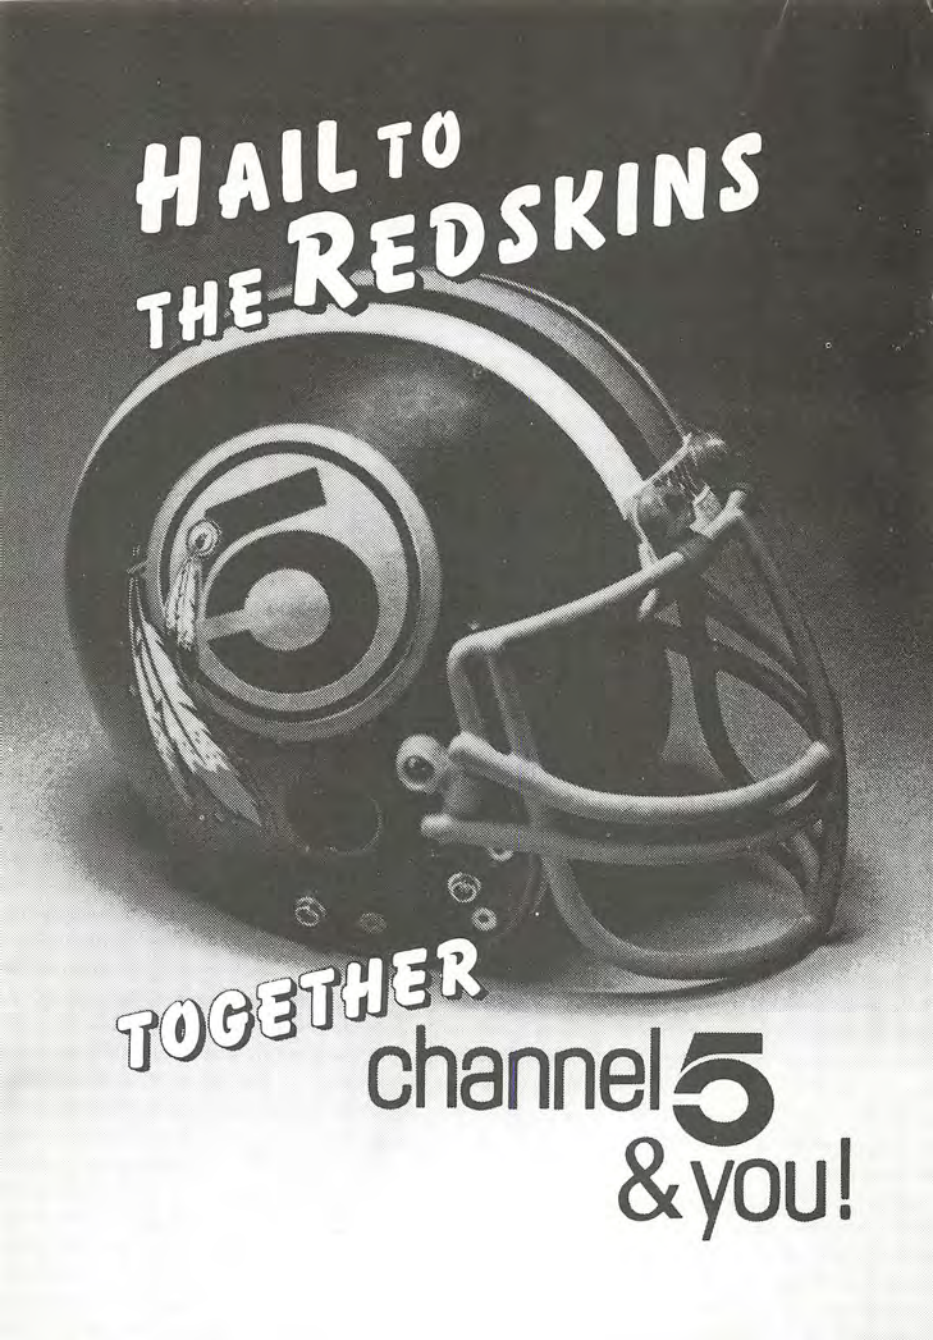

1983 Season: In looking back over 1983 season, Coach Gibbs said the team was extremely fortunate to pick up the quality reserve offensive linemen it did before the start of the season. This meant Ken Huff, Bruce Kimball, and "Sugar Bear" Roy Simmons. Though Roy did not see much action in '83, his presence allowed Coach Gibbs to sleep much easier at night. Here was a player who had already started 26 pro games, willing to contribute to the team in any way he could. Roy got in 10 games last season, and all three playoff games. The Giants had waived him in preseason, and the Redskins immediately pounced on him. He is very quick for his large frame. Capable of playing either guard or tackle, Roy is one of the fastest linemen on the squad.

Pro Career: A 1979 eighth-round pick of the Giants, Roy spent his rookie season as a reserve and on special teams. But in 1980, Roy beat out veteran Doug Van Horn in training camp for the starting right guard spot, and played well all season. In 1981, he played in all 16 games and started some at left guard for the 9-7 Giants. But after playing 48 straight games (26 as a starter at guard), Roy retired prior to the '82 season. A sustained workout program prior to last season put him in excellent shape coming into the summer.

College, Personal: A starter on both offense and defense for the Yellow Jackets, Roy spent his first two seasons as an offensive guard, switched to nose tackle his junior year, and back to guard as a senior. Born in Savannah, GA., he won letters in both football and track at Beach High in Savannah. Despite his size (240 in high school), he ran on the school's 440-yard relay team and has done 10 flat in the 100-yard dash. From a family of 11 children, Roy was also a shot putter and discus thrower. A bachelor, Roy resides in Reston, VA.

STRONG FINISHERS

Super Bowl XVIII marked the first time since 1979 that the Redskins have lost the last game of the season. They closed out 1980 with a 31-7 win over St. Louis, 1981 with a 30-7 win over the Rams, and 1982 with the Super Bowl win over Miami, 27-17.

GEORGE STARKE

Tackle

Columbia
12th Year
Ht: 6-5 Wt: 260
Born 07/18/48

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on Aug. 2, 1972, after being acquired on waivers from Dallas.

Games Played In/Games Started: 147/132 - 1973 (14/0); 1974 (14/14); 1975 (14/14); 1976 (14/14); 1977 (14/14); 1978 (9/9); 1979 (16/16); 1980 (13/13); 1981 (14/13); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: You can simply say, "Head Hog," and all of Washington knows you are talking about George Starke. You can also simply say, "Model of Consistency," and all of the NFL knows you are talking about George Starke. He has been a Redskin starting offensive tackle for the last ten years, and appears to be improving each season. As the senior member of the Redskins in tenure, George anchors the offensive line and its quartet of Hogs who began starting alongside him three years ago (May, Bostic, Grimm, and Jacoby). A team captain, George was instrumental in helping the Redskins along to an NFL-record 541 points last year. The offensive line allowed just 35 sacks of Redskin quarterbacks last year, tied for second-best in the NFC. The offense also led the NFL in rushing touchdowns with 30. He did not miss a game or start in '83, and now has a lifetime record of 147 games played and just 12 missed (discounting 1972 when he was on the taxi squad). Washington, thanks greatly to its Hogs, also led the League in time of possession, averaging 33:44 a game.

Pro Career: George did a little travelling before settling down with the Redskins. An 11th round draft pick of Washington back in 1971 (272nd choice), George was traded to Kansas City on July 24 for a draft choice. The Chiefs released him that summer and he signed with the Dallas Cowboys in the 1972 offseason. He was claimed by the Redskins when Dallas released him Aug. 2, 1972, and George spent that Redskin Super Bowl season on the taxi squad. (He is the only Redskin to have spanned all three Super Bowl appearances.) In 1973, he saw his first action and by 1974 he was a starter at right tackle. George had a 65-consecutive games played in streak snapped in 1978 with a knee injury on an extra point play that came when the club was 7-2; they went on to finish 8-8 without his services. He also has six career fumble recoveries to his credit. In 1981, George and his offensive linemates helped the Redskins set a new club total offense mark, while allowing the fewest sacks since 1976. He showed his durability that season by missing a mere two games when breaking two bones in his hand. George started all nine regular season games, and all four playoff games in 1982, including Super Bowl XVII. In that game, he and his fellow Hogs helped plow the way for 276 yards of Redskin rushing on a season-high 52 carries.

College, Personal: As a Columbia Lion, George played tight end and defensive end, catching 35 passes for 478 yards. He was also the starting center on the

A liberal arts (film production) major, he is president of Starke-Reid Televideo (a production company) and George Starke Communications (a distribution company). He has done a film on the Boston Marathon featuring a wheel chair participant. George became very involved with local media this past season, appearing on WTTG (Channel 5) 10:00 o'clock news twice a week with his comments on the games. He also put together his own weekly segment for Channel 5's PM Magazine, which aired every week. Several of those revolved around Redskin topics the fans usually don't see, like the equipment men or trainers. George also, from time to time, did some WMZQ Hog Reports on radio in the mornings. He was quite adept in each of these endeavors. The White Plains, NY, native also found time to appear in a movie, "The Imagemaker," and a McDonalds television commercial, both with other members of the Hogs. He has pointed the Hogs in the direction of two main charities which he devotes much time to: Martha's Table and the Soup Kitchen. George enjoys travelling and has visited China with an Athletes Friendship Tour. The son of a high school principal, he is a bachelor and resides in Washington, one of only two players to live in the city. George was the subject of a Sports Illustrated story a couple years back, highlighting his various talents.

JOE THEISMANN

Quarterback

Notre Dame
11th Year
Ht: 6-0 Wt: 198
Born 09/09/49

How Acquired: Signed on March 1, 1974, after Redskins had traded a first round 1976 draft pick to Miami

Games Played In/Games Started: 140/98 - 1974 (9/0); 1975 (14/0); 1976 (14/14); 1977 (14/6); 1978 (16/14); 1979 (16/16); 1980 (16/15); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (16/16)

1983 Season: For an NFL player, there is an okay season, a good season, a great season, and then a season like Joe Theismann had last year: one that advances beyond the use of superlatives. Rip the burgundy and gold number seven off his chest, and you'd reveal a big red "S," opponents marvelled. Joe was that good. Before going into his basic statistics, consider these facts: he threw four interceptions in the final regular season game against the Giants, the same number of interceptions he had thrown in the previous 12 games—combined; in only one regular season game did Joe not throw for over 50% completions; he quarterbacked the Redskins to an NFL-record 541 points. Those numbers are just for starters, starters as accurate as Joe, that is.

The 1983 NFL Most Valuable Player (AP), Joe was chosen as the NFC's Pro Bowl starter for the second straight year. His 97.0 rating was second-best in the NFL behind Bartkowski (97.6), and comes on the heels of his 91.3 NFC best of 1982. To complement his MVP honors, Joe was also named First-team all-NFL (AP), First-Team all-NFC (UPI), Offensive MVP (Pro Football Weekly), All-NFL (Sporting News), NFC Player of the Year (Washington Touchdown Club), Redskin Player of the Year (Quarterback Club), and Offensive Player of the Year (Kansas City 101 Club). These awards come a year after he was named the NFL's Miller Man of the Year, a very prestigious honor based on a player's charitable endeavors.

To deserve these accolades, Joe completed 60.1% of his regular season passes (276-459) for 3,714 yards, 29 touchdowns (tied for second best in NFL), and just 11 interceptions. His 417 yards against the Raiders (Week 5) was an NFC best for 1983, and he had three other 300-yard games in addition to that (Dallas, Green Bay, and San Diego—all Monday nights). He reeled off interception-less streaks of 161 and 104 passes during the season, and was sacked just 35 times thanks to his quickness and his Hogs. Joe's long completion of the year was an 84-yarder to Alvin Garrett against the Lions. He was also the Redskins' third-leading rusher with 234 yards on 37 carries (a 6.3 average) with a long of 22 and one touchdown, achieved against the Giants on a three-yard bootleg.

He also showed time and again in '83 his ability to operate under pressure, especially in the so-called "two-minute drills." Against the Raiders, he engineered three scoring drives in the final seven minutes, the final TD coming after the Redskins got the ball back with 1:50 on the clock, 69 yards away; 1:12 later and the Redskins had the lead. Against Green Bay, Joe went one better, driving his team downfield with just :49 to go and the Packers up by two—and no timeouts. But just :46 and four completions later, Moseley had a 37-yard field goal attempt. In San Diego, the Redskin offense got the ball with 1:45 to go and the score tied. Again, Theismann used his magic touch for four completions to set up a winning Moseley field goal. His best completion day of the season came in the opener against Dallas (28-38), while his best percentage day came in the first playoff game, against the Rams (18-23). In that game, Joe combined with Bob Holly (2-2) to set an NFL postseason record for percentage (80%).

In that postseason, Joe proved just as splendid as the first 16 games. He completed 48 of 84 passes for 774 yards and three touchdowns. He had a long of 70 yards on a touchdown pass to Charlie Brown in the NFC Championship against the 49ers. He also rushed five times for 30 yards. He now has the second-highest completion percentage in postseason play (62.7%—106-169); the second-highest average gain per pass in the postseason (8.82 yards per attempt); and the third-lowest interception percentage (3.55—6 int.-169 attempts) in the playoffs. Joe also came close to setting a Redskin record when he threw for 302 yards against the Rams in the playoffs, just 33 yards short of Sammy Baugh's 335 in 1937.

His 3,714 gross yards passing was third in the NFC; his 60.1 passing completion percentage 4th in the NFC; and his 2.4 interception percentage third in the NFC. Joe capped off his fine season by leading the NFC to victory in the Pro Bowl. The week before he had been 16-35 for 243 yards in Super Bowl XVIII. Joe also was the holder for Mark Moseley again last year, a chore he takes very seriously. "Hollywood Joe" also continued to block on those double reverses last year, as Coach Gibbs continues to hold his breath.

Pro Career Totals: The third most productive passer in Redskin history (20,041), Joe trails only Sonny Jurgenson (22,585) and Sammy Baugh (22,085). He is the only Redskin quarterback to ever run for over 1,000 yards (1,386). He's had 11 games of 300 yards passing (one with 400), two games with four touchdowns passing, 11 games with three, and 11 games completing over 70% of his passes.

Joe moved into 14th place this season on the all-time quarterback rating list with a 77.4 rating.

Joe had three statistics last year which were all second-best in Redskin lore: his 3,714 yards passing (Jurgensen's 3,747 in 1967); his 97.0 rating (Sammy Baugh's incredible 109.7 in 1945—it will be something to shoot for in '84); and 29 touchdown passes (Jurgensen's 31 in 1967). He has now played in 136 straight games as a Redskin, the most of any current player, and the third most in club history, behind Len Hauss (196) and Brig Owens (154). Joe's 140 Redskin games played are seventh most in club annals. Joe stands fourth all-time in lowest regular season interception percentage with a 3.85 rating, behind Roman Gabriel (3.31), Ken Anderson (3.50), and Roger Staubach (3.68).

Pro Career: As Miami's fourth pick in the 1971 draft, Joe opted to bypass the Dolphins and head for Toronto to play with the Argonauts of the Canadian Football League. He led the Argonauts to the Championship Game his first year, passing for 2,440 yards and running for 564 yards. In three CFL years, Joe connected on 56 percent of his passes for 6,093 yards, and 40 touchdowns, while running for 1,054 yards. He also punted three times for 182 yards and kicked one conversion.

The Redskins obtained Joe's NFL rights in 1974 from the Dolphins. His rookie Redskin season saw him hit 9-11 passes for 145 yards, return 15 punts for 157 yards (10.5 average), and rush three times for 12 yards and a touchdown. Joe's first NFL touchdown pass was completed to Charley Taylor against the Chicago Bears in the 1974 season finale.

Joe's first NFL start came in Week 5 of the 1976 campaign against the Kansas City Chiefs at RFK Stadium. He passed for 270 yards (20-37 and two touchdowns), ran for 38 yards (one touchdown) and led the club to 30 points and 438 yards offense. The Redskins, however, lost 33-30 as the Chiefs executed a 63-yard flea-flicker play with 64 seconds remaining.

In 1978, Joe became the permanent starter when Jack Pardee took over as head coach. He has passed for over 2,000 yards in each of the six seasons he has started, and run for at least 150 each year as well. In 1979, Joe was the second highest rated quarterback in the NFL in the final ratings (84.0) and earned second-team all-NFC honors by UPI as well as team most valuable player honors.

In 1981, Joe ranked in the top five NFC quarterback ratings in six categories: yards (3rd); completions (4th); completion percentage (2nd); touchdowns (5th tie); lowest interception percentage (4th tie); and overall rating (5th). He established a club record for pass completions (293) and was second all-time for season passing yards (3,568) and attempts (496). The starter for all 16 games, Joe has missed the starting whistle only three times in the past 89 games. He had three 300-yard passing games (personal best to that point of 388 vs St. Louis) and three more games over 250 yards. In 10 of the 16 games, Joe completed over 60 percent of his passes and had a four-touchdown passing day vs the Cardinals. He had seven games with 20 or more completions.

Joe was the number one rated quarterback in the NFC in 1982, earning him a berth as the Pro Bowl starter (his first). The veteran completed 64% of his regular season passes and 68% in the playoffs. Joe led the Redskins to a Super Bowl triumph, completing 15 of 23 passes for 143 yards and two touchdowns, including game-clincher to Charlie Brown in final two minutes. Joe threw only three interceptions in last 26 quarters of play, including an interception-less streak of 96. Joe's top yardage game of '82 was 382 yards in opener against Eagles. His 63.9% pass completion rate made him the most accurate Redskin passer ever for one season with over 200 attempts. His nine interceptions represented a Redskin team low for a season. In the playoffs, Joe had a phenomenal 110.8 rating, with eight touchdown passes. He tied a Super Bowl record with eight consecutive completions. But the play he is most remembered for that season was a defensive one, knocking down his own deflected pass from the hands of Dolphin end Kim Bokamper, who was steps from the end zone. In another unusual play, Joe threw a great block that sprung Joe Washington for a touchdown against the Giants. He also achieved fame as the holder for Moseley's record field goal streak.

In addition to his Pro Bowl berth, Joe was also selected for the Maxwell Club's Bert Bell Award as the NFL's top player, first-team NFC by UPI, all-Pro by Football Digest, and Player of the Year by Football Digest. Joe has now finished in the top five in the NFC quarterback ratings for the last five seasons.

College, Personal: In leading the Fighting Irish to back-to-back Cotton Bowls, Joe was runner-up to Jim Plunkett in the Heisman Trophy balloting his senior year. Almost 15 years later, the rivalry continues. He set numerous Notre Dame passing marks, still holding the season passing record. Joe was also an academic all-American and earned his degree in Sociology. Born in New Brunswick, NJ, Joe teamed with Cowboy receiver Drew Pearson at South River (NJ) High on an undefeated and top-ranked team his senior year. An outstanding baseball pitcher as well, he received a pro offer from the Minnesota Twins. An excellent athlete, Joe has been a Virginia State Class Racquetball champion, has gone to the World finals in TV's "Superstars" competition, and is above average at golf, tennis, bowling, and billiards.

Off the playing fields, however, is where the Theismann Story grows even longer. In 1981, he was the Redskins Man of the Year, earning a $1,000 college scholarship for an area youth. He was selected to receive a humanitarian award by the Lions Club International. Joe is on the corporate board of Childrens Hospital (where his daughter underwent open-heart surgery), and has worked in the past and present with the United Way, March of Dimes, American Heart Association, Cystic Fibrosis, Mental Health Association, Special Olympics, Boy Scouts, No Greater Love for MIA-POW and hostage children (where he appears each Christmas to entertain the children), and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He also started a scholarship fund of $1,000 to South River High, awarded annually.

Last January, Theismann became involved in a public service announcement to make the public more aware of the need for vital organ donors, specifically livers. The message concerned, in particular, a two-year old girl named Trine Engebretsen, who was within two weeks of death if she did not receive a liver transplant. Walt Disney Productions filmed the public service announcement, Pub Sat Corporation broadcasted it and the result was the receipt of 11 livers for transplantation, and the successful transplanting of these livers in 10 children, including Trine. On April 13, 1984, the National Organ Transplant Educational Foundation, Incorporated was founded, with Joe on the Board of Directors.

He also recently got involved with The Virginia Coalition for Child Abuse Prevention (spokesman), The National Orphan Foundation (spokesman), the National Association for Neural Injury (the Board); and made an apperance at Riverview Hospital in Red Bank, NJ, to raise funds for hospital equipment. Joe received the "Secretary of Offense" Award from Caspar Weinberger, the Secretary of Defense, for his contribution to the success of the United Way Combined Federal Campaign. He also appeared as a motivational speaker for companies such as IBM, GE, GM, among others.

Joe owns a restaurant in the DC area (Baileys Crossroads, VA) called what else but "Joe Theismann's." He was the co-host along with George Michael of the weekly television show, "Joe Theismann's Redskin Report." He has also worked as a morning disc jockey on WPGC Radio, and conducts a call-in show twice a week on that station during the season. Joe has published several editions of a book, Quarterbacking, appeared on the "Tonight Show," "Late Night with David Letterman," on prime-time in "BJ and the Bear," in two movies—The Man with Bogart's Face and Cannonball Run II with friend Burt Reynolds—and hosted a show for NBC last year called "America's Heroes: The Athlete's Chronicle." He has become very serious with his acting career and hopes to pursue it more. He is also on the tube these days in several commercials from the Igloo coolers to the Russell Corporation Sportswear to Holiday Spas. Joe was seen for many years as a spokesman for Canon Cameras. In short, and quite needless to say, Joe's appointment calendar is almost always filled. Joe has three children: Joey, 12; Amy, 10; and Patrick, 5.

1983 Season: Starting every game, "Doc" was a man on the move for the Redskins in '83, enjoying the best season of his career. He played the "move" tight end position or the man constantly in motion, and was one of seven Redskins to catch more than 15 passes (17 exactly for 168 yards and two touchdowns). Adding two catches for 25 yards in the playoffs, Rick was also frequently singled out for his devastating blocking, which earned him several "kayoes" from the coaches. Rick moved on the ground as well, running twice in the regular season for 10 yards. His efforts to produce extra yards on runs and catches often ignited both the crowd and the Redskins. And last but never least, Rick was moving up and down all season as a member of the celebrated "Fun Bunch," a group he created during the 1982 season to help fill the hole left by the injured Art Monk. Rick has played 56 straight games for the Redskins, the fifth longest streak on the team.

Pro Career: A 27-yard catch and six-yard run on back-to-back plays in Super Bowl XVII helped the Redskins toward their first NFL Championship in 40 years, and stands as a highlight during Rick's seven years of pro football. As he hails from Southern California, the Super Bowl in Pasadena was like a homecoming to Doc before family and friends. As a fourth-round 1977 draft choice of the Cincinnati Bengals, he played six games as a rookie before fracturing his wrist and being placed on injured reserve. Rick's second season he caught 12 passes and scored three touchdowns. After being waived in camp the next season, he was re-signed by the Bengals in October of that year and saw spot duty in 10 games, catching a TD pass to help beat the Steelers. In 1980, after the Bengals released him, the Redskins signed Rick. After one week here, he started against the Raiders and caught five passes for 53 yards, including a 15-yard touchdown. He started four games and caught ten passes that year. In 1981, the Redskins switched to a two-tight end offense in Week Three and Rick became a starter, responding with three catches for 44 yards and a 20-yard TD vs. the Cardinals. He started 14 games and caught 11 passes for 112 yards. In 1982, Rick was the Redskins' fifth-leading receiver with 12 catches for 92 yards and a touchdown. He also caught eight passes in the playoffs for 67 more yards, his 27-yard Super Bowl grab included (that was the Redskins' longest completion of the game). He also ran three times in the playoffs for 20 yards, and twice in the regular season for 11 yards.

College, Personal: At a school known more for its basketball tradition than football tradition, UCLA (though that is starting to change), Rick earned all-Pac 8 honors at both tight end and wide receiver under coaches Dick Vermeil and Terry Donahue. Doc transferred from Santa Ana Junior College, and proceeded to earn trips to the East-West, Hula and Japan Bowls as a senior. The son of a US Marine, he was born in Cherry Point, NC, but graduated from Santa Ana Valley High (CA). He has won various championships at the high school, college, and pro levels. A bachelor, Rick was winner of the Rocky Robinson Best Dress Award. Voted 1977 Lineman of the Year at UCLA. Rick made his first college catch for a TD against Michigan State in 1974. Rick spent much of his offseason in four capacities: as a Senior VP of "The Record Den, Inc." (Alexandria and Arlington); as the Vice-President of the Red-Skins Basketball Club; as a sportscaster doing special reports for WRC-TV; and working for the National Arthritis Association. As an original "Hog," he travelled to Kansas City this past March to take part in the National Pork Producers Convention. Rick has a strong commitment to his church and to working with youth to combat alcohol and drug abuse. He enjoys home cooking, jazz, and home electronics, and plans a career in either broadcasting or acting. "Doc," who was presented an honorary labcoat by team doctor Donald Knowlan last year, resides in McLean, VA. He appeared with several Hogmates in a film titled "The Imagemaker," and in a McDonald's commercial as well.

DON WARREN
Tight End

San Diego State
6th Year
Ht: 6-4 Wt: 242
Born 05/05/56

How Acquired: Selected in the fourth round of the 1979 draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 67/60 - 1979 (16/10); 1980 (13/12); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (13/13)

1983 Season: The Redskins' sixth-leading receiver last season with 20 catches for 225 yards, Don has combined tremendous blocking with great hands to provide Washington with one of the more solid tight ends in football. His long gain last season was 33 yards, adding two touchdowns. Don's best game was a Monday Night contest in Green Bay where he caught four passes for 70 yards, both season bests. In the playoffs, Don caught three passes for 23 yards. He missed three games after being hit hard in the Rams regular season contest, and suffering a bruised back. But Don came back strong to help the Redskins into their second straight Super Bowl. One of nine 'Skins with five or more years in Washington, Don scored his first TD vs. Dallas in RFK. His second TD last season came on a deflected pass, tipped by Nick Giaquinto into Don's hands (12 yards) against Kansas City. "We planned it that way," said Don.

Pro Career: The 103rd player chosen in the 1979 draft, Don was the Redskins' first pick that year. Don came on to start 10 games and catch 26 passes his rookie season, earning his first game ball against St. Louis. In 1980, he fractured his leg and didn't start until Week 5, but still finished with 31 catches for 323 yards (third on team). His best effort was five catches for 51 yards vs. Minnesota and five catches for 44 yards vs the Giants. In 1981, Don started all 16 games, catching a pass in 15 of those games. He scored his first touchdown and finished fourth on the club with 29 catches. Starting all games again in 1982, Don was the Redskins' third-best receiver, catching 27 aerials for 310 yards—an 11.5 average. He also played a major role in Washington's Super Bowl victory, grabbing five passes for 28 yards. Don caught 11 passes in the playoffs for 72 yards and one touchdown, that coming against the Vikings. He also enjoyed the two biggest yardage games of his career—up to that point—in '82, gaining 73 yards on four grabs against Philadelphia in the season opener (still a career best), and 59 yards on five catches in the loss to Dallas. Don was dubbed an original Hog in summer camp of 1982 when the group formed.

College, Personal: In two seasons at San Diego State, Don caught 56 passes for 711 yards and six touchdowns. After transferring from Mt. San Antonio Junior College, Don earned both honorable mention all-American playing honors and second-team all-America academic honors. For the last four seasons, Don has pledged $25 per reception to the American Heart Association. His grandmother died of a heart attack and his father is partially paralyzed from a stroke. To date, Don has raised over $6,000 for the charity, and he presented a check in November to the President of the Washington Chapter of the Heart Association, at Redskin Park. Don and his wife, Irene Deutsch, live in Huntington Beach, California in the offseason, with their one-year old son, Blake Davis. Don enjoys boating whenever he can in the offseason. He also took part in the McDonalds commercial the Hogs recently did.

24 ANTHONY WASHINGTON

Cornerback

Fresno State
4th Year NFL
(2nd Redskin)
Ht: 6-1 Wt: 204
Born 02/04/58

How Acquired: August 17, 1983, trade with Pittsburgh for 1984 draft choice
Games Played In/Games Started: 41/4 - 1981 (16/1); 1982 (9/0); 1983 (16/3)

1983 Season: Anthony's fine play all season earned him the starting nod in Week 14 against the Falcons, and he responded with his best game as a pro, intercepting two Atlanta passes. Tied for third on team with four regular season interceptions (12 yards), he started remaining games, including all three playoff contests. He added interception in victory over Rams in NFC Divisional Playoff. A training camp arrival, Tony compiled 34 regular season tackles, and 21 postseason tackles, second on the club to Neal Olkewicz. He also added a forced fumble and a recovered fumble in the playoffs. It was third straight season Tony had not missed a game.

Pro Career: A second-round draft choice by Pittsburgh in 1981, Anthony played two complete seasons with the Steelers before being traded in 1983 training camp. In his rookie season, Tony saw more playing time than any rookie Steeler defensive back in recent history. He had three interceptions in '81, including two at Cleveland (11/22/81) and earned his first start vs. New England (9/27) in place of injured Dwayne Woodruff. An effective special teamer, Tony finished that season with 25 tackles (18 solos). In 1982, Tony saw mostly special teams action, before replacing injured nickel back Rick Woods late in season. He collected 20 tackles (14 solos), and showed knack for blocking punts and field goals from wing of rush formation. He now has seven career interceptions for 58 yards.

College, Personal: Anthony was an all-Pacific Coast Athletic Association choice and Most Valuable Defensive Player at Fresno State his senior year. Fresno was the third stop of his college career, having begun as all-California Junior College performer at Fresno City College and then starting for two seasons for California (1977-78). He earned all-PAC 10 honors in 1978 when he led team in thefts with six, then transferred to Fresno to finish career. As a junior college player, Tony had a 99-yard interception return and a 96-yard punt return. As a senior, he played in the East-West game. A sociology major, Tony graduated Fresno High where he was a track MVP and a 13.7 high hurdler. A bachelor, Tony has had formal karate training. He resides in Fresno during the offseason.

1983 Season: Joe's success last season—coming off arthroscopic surgery on both knees in the offseason—was so impressive that it prompted one admiring Redskin to say: "I wonder if those operations could make me run like that." As shifty as ever, "Go-Go" provided the perfect complement to John Riggins as the speed back in the Redskins' one-back offense. His stats were outstanding: an NFL-best 5.3 yards per carry average with 772 yards on 145 rushes (second on club); 47 catches (tied for second on club) for 454 yards and six touchdowns. In his only start of the season, Joe almost single-handedly tamed the Lions, gaining a career-high 147 yards on 22 carries in the rain at RFK. He also had a major role in one of the most exciting games in Redskin history, the 37-35 Washington regular season win over the Raiders. In that game, Joe put the spark back into the Redskins, taking a simple screen pass—with the 'Skins down 35-20—and turning it into a 67-yard gain. That led to a score, which was followed by an onside kick recovery and a field goal, cutting the deficit to 35-30. Then, on the Redskins' final drive, Joe made a sensational catch in the end zone for the winning touchdown with just :38 to go. It was his second TD of the afternoon, as he finished with five receptions for 99 yards. Joe enjoyed a season-high nine-reception game (57 yards, two TD's) against Green Bay. His only pass of the year fell incomplete (though the pass was just to avoid a big loss on a run), and he had one kickoff return for 16 yards. His 772 rushing yards was 12th in the NFC, and his six TD receptions tied for 12th. In the playoffs, Joe added 29 yards rushing on 14 carries, and seven catches for 51 yards. As season wore on, Joe alternated more and more with Riggins, keeping both fresh for the stretch drive. "Little Joe" was Washington's fourth-best scorer in '83 with 36 points.

Pro Career: Having proven himself both extremely talented and durable in his seven seasons, Joe has piled up 8,001 total yards, and completed 5-10 passes for another 179 yards and three TD's. The fourth player selected overall in the 1976 draft (San Diego), Joe missed his rookie season after undergoing knee surgery in the preseason. However, he remained on the active roster through eight games in 1976. In 1977, Joe returned to play in 13 games, gaining 461 combined yards for the Chargers. On Aug. 23, 1978, Joe was traded with a fifth pick to the Baltimore Colts. That 1978 season saw Joe net 1,869 combined yards as he led the Colts in rushing (956 yards), receiving (45 catches), and kickoff returns (26.2 average). Joe led the entire NFL in 1979 when he caught 82 passes for 750 yards and gained another 884 yards rushing. In 1980, Joe had 502 yards rushing and 51 catches for 494 yards.

Chosen as the 1981 Redskin MVP by his teammates, Joe led the club in both rushing and receiving. Injuries (Achilles and ribs) caused him to miss 16 quarters of play and the Redskins lost all five games in which he didn't play the entire contest. He totaled 1,506 yards rushing, receiving and passing. Joe's 70 pass receptions (sixth NFC) were two shy of the club record at that time. (It has since risen to 78 by Charlie Brown last year.) And his 916 yards rushing placed him 10th in the NFC. In eight games, Joe netted over 100 total yards, led by a season-opening 173 yards vs. Dallas and 164 yards against Detroit. In less than a half in Dallas in Week 12, Joe had 131 yards before injuring his rib cartilage in the second quarter. His top rushing games were 144 on 27 carries vs. the Lions with two TD's, 96 on 14 carries vs. the Rams. Joe's top receiving games were 10 catches for 124 yards against the Cowboys and nine catches for 97 yards against the Patriots.

In '82, Joe finished as the team's second-leading rusher and fourth-leading receiver despite playing sparingly because of injuries. After hurting a knee in a preseason contest in Buffalo, Joe underwent arthroscopic surgery and was activated following the players' strike. He ran 44 times for 190 yards, and caught 19 passes for 134 yards on the season with two touchdowns. One of those TD's came off a broken halfback option play against the Giants, when Joe could not find anyone open and scooted for the left corner of the end zone behind a great block thrown by Theismann. He also completed a pass for 35 yards against the Cowboys. In the playoffs, Joe ran four times for 22 yards and had three grabs for 33 yards. His top games were 67 yards rushing in New Orleans and eight receptions for 78 yards vs. St. Louis. Unfortunately, he was injured for the Super Bowl.

In seven NFL seasons, Joe has now averaged 1,143 yards of total offense per season. He's had four 100-yard rushing games, and three 100-yard receiving games. He was selected for the Pro Bowl in 1979. On Monday Night TV in New England in 1978, he generated 260 yards and was responsible for three TD's. He caught a pass for a score, returned a kickoff 90 yards for another, and threw a 54-yard TD.

College, Personal: At the time Joe left Oklahoma, he was the all-time leading rusher (3,995 yards) with a 6.1 average per carry, and 30 touchdowns. He also caught 88 passes for 807 yards, returned kicks for 981 yards, and accumulated 5,783 career yards. Noted for his hand-painted silver shoes, Joe earned all-Big 8 honors for three consecutive years. Joe's high school coach at Port Arthur (TX) Lincoln High was his father, Joe Sr. His Dad had been a halfback at Prairie View A & M (1948-50), and his brother, Kenneth, played quarterback at North Texas State (1974-77). Joe was selected by the fans as the Washington Redskins' 1983 Man of the Year for his off-the-field contributions to society. His list of charitable endeavors is a long one. He works with the Bob Hope-Hughen School, the only facility for the handicapped of its type in the United States, by coordinating the Bum Phillips Celebrity Golf Tournament. He was Chairman for the Anne Arundel County Association for Retarded Citizens and active with Maryland Special Olympics. A spokesman for the Oklahoma Society to Prevent Blindness, Joe is also on the Advisory Board of Wednesday's Child, an organization dedicated to orphaned children in Oklahoma City. Joe serves on the Sports Council of the National Foundation of Ileitis and Colitis, and also has worked with No Greater Love, a Christmas celebration for children of fathers killed in service. More recently, Joe filmed a public service announcement along with Joe Theismann, taped at Redskin Park prior to the Super Bowl, to help make the public aware of the need for vital organ donors, specifically livers. The message was delivered with a little two year-old girl named Trine Engebretsen in mind, who was within two weeks of death if she did not receive a liver transplant. Walt Disney Productions filmed the public service announcement, Pub Sat Corporation broadcasted it and the result was the receipt of 11 livers, and the successful transplanting of these livers in ten children, including Trine. This past offseason, Joe also spoke to Boys Club groups, the Washington Board of Trade, and to schools in the fight against drug abuse. At the request of the White House, Joe appeared with Mrs. Reagan at a local elementary school where they both spoke out against drug abuse.

In the offseason, Joe also oversees an oil equipment leasing company in Oklahoma, while serving as a public relations consultant to Fidelity Savings and Loan in Port Arthur. He earned his degree in public relations, and has radio programs on Q-107 FM and WMAL AM during the season. He enjoys reading, tennis, racing electric cars, and video games. Joe and his wife, Meadowlark, recently had their first child, Brandy, who is one and the gleem in her father's eyes. The Washingtons reside in Reisterstown, MD.

GREG WILLIAMS
Free Safety

Mississippi St.
3rd Year
Ht: 5-11 Wt: 185
Born 08/01/59

How Acquired: Signed as free agent following 1982 Draft

Games Played In/Games Started: 25/1 - 1982 (9/0); 1983 (16/1)

1983 Season: Greg was the Redskins' version of the Cavalry last season, as he came to the rescue when Mark Murphy injured a hamstring in the Division decider in Dallas, intercepting two passes to preserve victory. Both times, he stepped in front of receiver at last minute to snare ball. The plays gave Redskins big boost towards Division title. A tremendous special teams player, Greg had been targeted for work at free safety in preseason, but a knee injury set him back. He recorded 136 total hits on "teams" last season (3rd-best), after team-high 92 in 1982, and an amazing seven (7) special teams fumble recoveries. He had two big plays against Raiders; recovering Jeff Hayes' power kick in closing minutes of regular season contest in RFK, enabling Redskins to rally from 15 points down for victory; and recovering a fumbled punt in the Super Bowl which gave Washington field position in Raider territory. He also recoverd onside kicks against Atlanta and the Giants, as well as recovering a fumbled kickoff in St. Louis, and fumbled punts vs. the Giants and Eagles. Greg contributed 20 regular season tackles to the defense as well, starting the season finale against Giants. His 55 blocks on kickoff returns led the team. A real arm-waver when it comes to arousing RFK crowds, Greg played on short yardage situations all season.

Pro Career: Out of a host of free agent faces in training camp in '82, Greg won himself a job out of aggressiveness and sheer determination. His work on special teams—96 total hits (best on team), 24 blocks on kickoffs (also best), and 35 blocks on punt returns (second-best)—supported conclusively the coaches' decision. Greg was the leading tackler (16) on the number two punt coverage unit in the entire NFL. He backed up Tony Peters and Mark Murphy at safety, coming in on short yardage plays. He played in the Super Bowl despite a nagging hamstring injury.

College, Personal: The starting free safety on Mississippi State's Hall of Fame Bowl squad in 1981, Greg was a transfer from Mississippi Delta Junior College. He was Mississippi State's second-leading tackler that season. Born in Greenville, MS., Greg is an avid golfer. This past offseason, he started his own construction company called MICO Drywall. (The last four digits of the phone number are 4747, rumor has it.) Greg also spent time working for the March of Dimes, and playing in charity golf events such as the NFL Alumni Golf, and the Vince Lombardi Alumni Golf Tournament in Atlantic City. A bachelor, he resides in Centreville, VA.

MIKE WILLIAMS
Tight End

Alabama A&M
3rd Year
Ht: 6-4 Wt: 251
Born 08/27/59

How Acquired: Selected in fifth round (133rd player) of 1982 draft
Games Played In/Games Started: 13/1 - 1982 (6/1); 1983 (7/0)

1983 Season: Mike rallied from knee surgery which had set him down for the end of 1982 and the beginning of '83, to take part in the Redskins' final seven games last year and two playoff contests. He played during most short-yardage situations during three games when Don Warren was sidelined with an injury. Mike also contributed on special teams with his great size and speed. After being on the Physically Unable to Perform List during training camp and the first eight games of the season, Mike was activated Nov. 27, prior to the San Diego game. He had torn ligaments in a 1982 game against the Giants. Coach Gibbs feels very good about having Mike back healthy this season.

Pro Career: As a rookie, Mike earned a starting tight end position with a great 1982 training camp, and then preseason, where he caught seven passes for 90 yards. He started against the Eagles and then played as a reserve the next few games as veteran Rick Walker started. Mike's injury occurred in the sixth game of the season. He caught three passes for 14 yards with a long gain of six on the year. Mike is capable of playing either tight end spot.

College, Personal: Mike averaged 15.7 yards per catch during his four-year career, including a 17.6 average with two touchdowns during his senior season (1981). In all at Alabama A&M, he had 53 catches for 834 yards and five touchdowns. Mike played in the 1982 Black College All-Star Game. The highlight of his Bulldog career came in a 38-13 win over Albany State when he caught five passes for 93 yards and one touchdown. An exceptional all-around athlete, Mike graduated from Lafayette (AL) High. A Business Administration Major, he worked this past offseason in the sales department of Rosenthal Datsun in Tysons Corner. He was also the starting center on the Red-skins Basketball Club. He was recently married to the former Regina Flakes, and they reside in Reston, VA.

FIRST GAME HERO . . . In the Redskins inaugural contest in Washington in 1937, there were four future Hall of Famers on the club, but the hero of the 13-3 win over New York was Riley Smith. Smith scored all 13 points by kicking two field goals, intercepting a pass and returning it 60 yards for a touchdown, and then kicking the extra point.

39 OTIS WONSLEY
Running Back

Alcorn State
4th Year
Ht: 5-10 Wt: 214
Born 08/13/57

How Acquired: Signed as a free agent on April 6, 1981
Games Played In/Games Started: 40/0 - 1981 (15/0); 1982 (9/0); 1983 (16/0)

1983 Season: Regarded as one of the NFL's finest special teams players, Otis is a prime example of the much heralded (though not enough) Redskin "role players." Whenever there is short yardage to be made, Coach Gibbs sends in Otis to lead John Riggins into the hole, which he did so successfully on Riggo's Super Bowl-winning touchdown run of 1983. Otis does occasionally get to carry the ball himself, though, 25 times in 1983 to be exact, for 88 yards (fourth-best on team). He was big factor in Redskins' ability to make fourth down and short situations (11-14 on season). One of two Redskin special teamers to set new record for total hits in a season (157—Pete Cronan also achieved that total), Otis ran back two kicks for an 18-yard average. He was the Redskin leader in tackles on punt coverage with 18, and on kickoff coverage with 43. Otis also made several key blocks in the playoffs, while carrying twice more for three yards. He made a very key block in the final regular season game, with the Giants, as Otis cleared the way for Riggins to charge 44 yards, in a run reminiscent of the one in Super Bowl XVII. Otis also recovered a fumble in '83, falling on a ball in the Cardinal game in RFK, setting up a touchdown which made the score 31-7. He was regarded as the Redskins' number three running back last year, and would have gotten the call if Washington and Riggins ever went down. Powerfully built, Otis had several "kayos" last year for his hard hits and was instrumental in Riggins NFL record 24 TD's.

Pro Career: In three seasons, Otis has now played in two Super Bowls, though things didn't always look that bright for him. Despite being the New York Giants ninth round draft choice (229th player overall) in 1980, Otis was released on the final cutdown. The Redskins soon signed him, however, and the Otis Wonsley story has been a happy one since. As a rookie in '81, he began to display his knack for short yardage blocking, allowing John Riggins to set a Redskin rushing touchdown record of 13. He returned six kickoffs for 124 yards, rushed three times for 11 yards, and caught a five-yard pass. He also finished second on the squad in special teams with 91 total hits, excelling on the punt coverage unit. Otis capped off a fine '82 season with his crushing block on the famous TD run of Super Bowl XVII. He scored his own touchdown, the first of his career, against the Giants, catching a one-yard pass. Otis also carried the ball 11 times during the season, gaining 36 yards with a long run of seven. He again excelled on the Redskins' highly ranked special teams, finishing third with 79 total points. He led the team with 18 tackles on punt coverage and was second with 20 tackles on kickoff coverage. Otis also was an original member of the renowned Fun Bunch. He added one kickoff return for 14 yards in the regular season, and one for 13 yards in the playoffs.

College, Personal: Otis started three seasons for Alcorn State, rushing for over 1,500 yards to finish second in that school's history, while also catching 22 passes. He was a second-team all-SWAC from his 8-2 conference champion squad senior year. Born in Pascagoula, MS, Otis graduated from Moss Point High (MS). In the 1983 offseason, the town of Moss Point held a day in his honor. Otis' brother, George, a running back from Mississippi State, was the fourth-round pick of the Colts in the recent draft. Otis received his college degree from Alcorn in Physical Education. A bachelor, Otis resides in Reston, VA.

THE SUPER BOWL

In 1970, the NFL was divided into two 13-team conferences, comprised of the 26 teams formerly competing in the National Football League and the American Football League. Each conference was further divided into three division, the winner of each conference to be determined by a playoff of the three division winners plus the second place team within the conference with the best record. The winner of the two conferences meet in the NFL title game—The Super Bowl. An additional wild card team from each conference was added in 1978. In 1982, a special 16-team Super Bowl Tournament determined the NFL Championship.

Victories over Tampa Bay, the Giants, and the Eagles give the Redskins seven in a row over two years, best in the NFL.

Holy Moseley! Dec. 19
With time running out, with the game on the line, with an NFL record at stake, Mark Moseley beats the odds and the Giants by booting his 21st straight field goal in a snowy RFK Stadium. The kick breaks Garo Yepremian's record of 20, and gives the Redskins a 15-14 win.
Also in the game, John Riggins becomes only the fifth back in NFL history to exceed 2,000 carries. (Payton, Simpson, Brown, and Harris are the others.)

The Zero Hour Jan. 2
For the first time since 1980, the Redskins are on the right side of a shutout, whitewashing the Cardinals 28-0. Their 8-1 record is the best in the NFC, giving them home-field advantage throughout the playoffs. The 128 points given up by the Redskin defense is the fewest in the NFL.

Lion Taming at RFK Jan. 8

The Redskins win their first playoff game in ten years, defeating Detroit 31-7. Alvin (Smurf) Garrett, replacing the injured Art Monk, catches three touchdown passes to set the pace.

Hogs Take their Bows, Jan. 15

Before leaving the game, Riggins gallantly bows to the 54,000-plus Redskin faithful who roar in approval.

Sweet Revenge Jan. 22

Game-Winner for Moseley Oct. 31

Mark Moseley enters the game in closing seconds to boot winning field goal in 27-24 Redskin win in San Diego. It is Redskins' first Monday Night success of season after two losses. The game was the first meeting between Don Coryell, the Chargers coach, and Joe Gibbs, who was an assistant under Coryell at St. Louis and San Diego. Two weeks later, Coryell would do Gibbs and the Redskins the favor of knocking off Dallas and sending Washington into a first-place tie.

Doomsday Showdown For Dallas, Dec. 11

Dressed in army fatigues, the Redskins march into Dallas to do battle. The result was a convincing 31-10 victory and sole possession of first place in the NFC East. It was a game that saw Tony Dorsett held to 34 yards on 14 carries (one yard on five carries in the second half), and scores from four different Redskins.

Alone On a Hill Dec. 17

For the second year in a row the Redskins finished with the best record in the NFL. Their 31-22 victory over the Giants capped a remarkable 14-2 regular season. It is the first time in the history of the League that an NFC team has compiled so many victories.

Ring Out The Rams Jan. 1

The Redskins ring in the New Year by drubbing the LA Rams 51-7 in the most lopsided playoff in 26 years. Team sets or ties 13 club playoff marks with the 44-point margin of victory the greatest in the 47-year history of the Redskins.

Encore! Encore! NFC Champions! 1983
