MANAGEMENT

JACK KENT COOKE

"I think the hard times are sometimes the best judge of a man, and he's been great. We sit down almost every week and talk, face to face, and he's been nothing but supportive."

Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs, October 1, 1981

The only way for a franchise to maintain success is to refuse to let it leave. Redskins' owner Jack Kent Cooke has done just that.

When the Redskins were struggling with an 0-5 record in 1981, Joe Gibbs' first season, Mr. Cooke didn't panic. He didn't criticize his newly hired head coach. Instead, he emphasized the positives, set a goal, and gave his staff everything they needed to reach it. The team finished 8-8.

The next year, the Redskins won the Super Bowl. In the ensuing five years, they added one championship, two Super Bowl appearances, and three NFC East titles.

It wasn't until last season that the Redskins struggled. While trying to become the first team in 10 seasons to repeat as Super Bowl champions, Washington registered a 7-9 record. And as in '81, Mr. Cooke remained steadfast.

He stressed the positives. And while the Redskins didn't reach the playoffs, they finished with the pride of a champion, promising themselves and their fans that 1989 would bring different results.

"He's an inspiration to all of us," Gibbs said. "He seems to be at his best when things are at their worst. He knows what it takes to be a winner, and he's willing to do whatever is necessary to put a winner on the field."

Mr. Cooke's commitment to win was exemplified again this offseason. When Gibbs said he wanted running backs Gerald Riggs and Earnest Byner, Mr. Cooke immediately gave the go ahead.

And when Bobby Beathard resigned as general manager, Mr. Cooke didn't break stride in naming Charley Casserly as Beathard's replacement.

"If I had to pick one owner out of the 28 in the National Football League who I'd want to work for, it would be Mr. Cooke," Casserly said.

Certainly, few, if any, owners have been involved with as many sports franchise successes as Mr. Cooke. In 1951, he purchased the Toronto Maple Leaf minor league baseball team. One year later, he was named Minor League Executive of the Year by The Sporting News.

In 1960, he bought a share of the Redskins. In 1965, he became Chairman of the Board and President of California Sports, Inc., which included the Forum (built on a dare), the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League and the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association. Under his ownership, the Lakers set a number of records, one of which may never be duplicated: 33 successive wins in 1971-72. Laker-famed center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar once said about Mr. Cooke:

"He's an amazing man. He's a powerful man, but I think an honest and compassionate man. I have nothing but respect for him."

In 1974, Mr. Cooke became majority owner of the Redskins. He moved from California to Virginia in 1979 and acquired complete ownership of the team in 1985.

From 1974-88, the Redskins have compiled a 149-91 regular-season record, have been to the playoffs seven times, won four division titles, three NFC Championships and two Super Bowls.

For Mr. Cooke, the Redskins are just one of many winning ventures he has overseen.

His success started at age 18, when he began selling encyclopedias in the midst of the depression. By age 24, he had joined Northern Broadcasting and Publishing, Ltd. Eighteen months later, he was one-third partner in Thomson Cooke Newspapers and subsequently a 50-50 partner with Roy Thomson. He and Thomson operated radio stations and newspapers throughout Canada. Thomson was later knighted Lord Thomson of Fleet.

Through the 1950s, his business interests in Canada spread from radios and newspapers to sports. His three greatest business stimulants in the 1980s are the Chrysler Building, Cooke Cable Television and the rapidly growing Los Angeles Daily News.

But his ceaseless passions are the Redskins and Elmendorf Racing and Breeding Farm in Lexington, Kentucky. Mr. Cooke watched his first Kentucky Derby entrant, Flying Continental, run for the roses last May.

Born Oct. 25, 1912 in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, Mr. Cooke became an American citizen in 1960. His father, Ralph E., was a picture frame manufacturer. His mother, Nancy Jacobs, helped him develop an interest in music. His musical interests still live.

As a youngster he played the clarinet and saxophone. He played in bands in Toronto with Percy Faith, famous composer, and Murry McEachren, outstanding trombonist. Mr. Cooke now plays piano, and is a member of ASCAP and BMI, having written many songs.

He is a lover of the English language, an antique collector, a wine connoisseur, and rides one of his collection of Tennessee Walkers almost daily.

But as far as people in the Redskins' organization are concerned, Mr. Cooke's most distinguishable quality is his taste for success.

"No organization can win without a winner at the top," Gibbs said.

JOHN KENT COOKE

The daily operation of the Washington Redskins has been under the watchful eye of Executive Vice President John Kent Cooke since 1981.

During that period the Redskins have moved to the forefront of the National Football League in administration as well as on the playing field.

In addition to two Super Bowl championships, three NFC titles and four division crowns in the last six years, the club has become a leader in the marketing and promotional areas under Mr. Cooke's experienced hand.

The Redskins have established one of the largest radio networks in the NFL and the team's preseason television package ranks among the most attractive in professional sports. A season-ticket waiting list of nearly 30,000 complements the existing season-ticket owners who have filled RFK Stadium for 23 straight years.

Overseeing every facet of the operation is John Kent Cooke. It is not a new experience for him. He has been associated with successful sports franchises throughout his life, starting with the Toronto Maple Leafs Baseball Club in the International League in 1951. He also has worked with the Los Angeles Kings of the NHL as well as the Redskins.

Mr. Cooke attended Upper Canada College and Waterloo College in Canada, majoring in English and Journalism. In 1959, he became a trainee director/producer with Associated Television in England, and worked in Los Angeles a year later in the production department of QM American Cablevision Company, at that time one of the largest privately owned cable companies in the U.S.

In 1965, Mr. Cooke became a Vice President of Advertising, Sales, and Promotions for all sports and entertainment events at the Forum in Inglewood, an arena his father built for the Lakers and Kings.

Mr. Cooke is an officer of Jack Kent Cooke, Inc., and a trustee of Dickinson College in Carlisle, PA. His eldest son, John, graduated from Dickinson in the spring and is now employed as a reporter for the Steamboat Pilot in Steamboat Springs, CO. His younger son, Thomas, is a high school senior at Edmund Burke School in Washington, DC and is an aspiring photographer.

CHARLEY CASSERLY

GENERAL MANAGER

Springfield College
13th Year

Charley Casserly joined the Washington Redskins as an intern for George Allen in 1977, working in the scouting department. He made little and did a lot.

Twelve years later, Casserly, 40, serves as an inspiration for anyone who is starting at the bottom hoping to work their way to the top. On May 6, 1989, he was named by Washington owner Jack Kent Cooke as the team's general manager, replacing Bobby Beathard.

"I find this hard to believe," Casserly said moments after the announcement.

Indeed, it would have been daring, to say the least, to predict 12 years ago that Casserly one day would become one of the 28 general managers in the National Football League. At the time, he was teaching and coaching football at Minnechaugh High in Massachusetts. He was 28, loved football, and was looking into the future.

Searching to break into the NFL anyway he could, he called George Allen, then general manager and head coach of the Washington Redskins. Allen hired Casserly as an intern.

"I had an old car and I put everything I owned into it," Casserly said. "I didn't know anything about Washington, so I moved into a room at the YMCA in Alexandria, VA, for $8 a night. I thought it was a good deal, and it was all I could afford. I didn't realize it was 40 miles from the office."

The daily commute was nothing compared to Casserly's professional journey over the next 12 years. He went from an intern in the scouting department to a full-time scout to Assistant General Manager in 1982.

When Beathard resigned last spring, owner Jack Kent Cooke considered all the candidates and decided Casserly had the right credentials.

After all, Casserly had spotted relatively unknown talent such as tackle Joe Jacoby and center Jeff Bostic, was primarily responsible for assembling the undefeated strike team in 1987, and played a major role in signing 15 unprotected players last spring. He has worked with both college and pro scouting.

"Charley is fully familiar with every facet of our operation and I expect he'll be capable of keeping the Redskins in contention in the National Football League," Mr. Cooke said.

If hard work is the measure for success, then Casserly is sure to make his mark as a general manager. In his 12 years with the Redskins, he has become known as a tireless worker who starts early and stays late. He has applied that work ethic from his days as a high school and college coach throughout his career in the NFL.

"When I got here, I was told that if you go into scouting with the same zeal you went into coaching with, there is room for a guy like that in this League," Casserly said. "I never forgot that."

Casserly's zeal for football started long before he came to the NFL. He played football at Springfield College and received his B.S. degree in Education and his Masters in Guidance. He served as an assistant coach at Cathedral High in Springfield from 1969-72 and as an assistant at Springfield College from 1973-74. He became Athletic Director at Cathedral (1974-75) before serving as head coach at Minnechaugh High from 1975-76. Born February 27, 1949, Charley and his wife, Bev, have a daughter, Shannon, 5. They live in Sterling, VA.

BOBBY MITCHELL

Assistant General Manager

21st Year
Illinois

A 1983 inductee into the Hall of Fame, Bobby joined the Redskins' personnel staff in 1969. He was promoted to Director of Pro Scouting, then to Assistant to the President in 1978. He was named Assistant General Manager in 1981. Bobby enters his 32nd National Football season. He has come a long way since being selected in the eighth-round of the 1958 draft. He made four Pro Bowls (one with Cleveland and three with Washington) over his 11-year career and is considered one of the best receivers in Redskins' history.

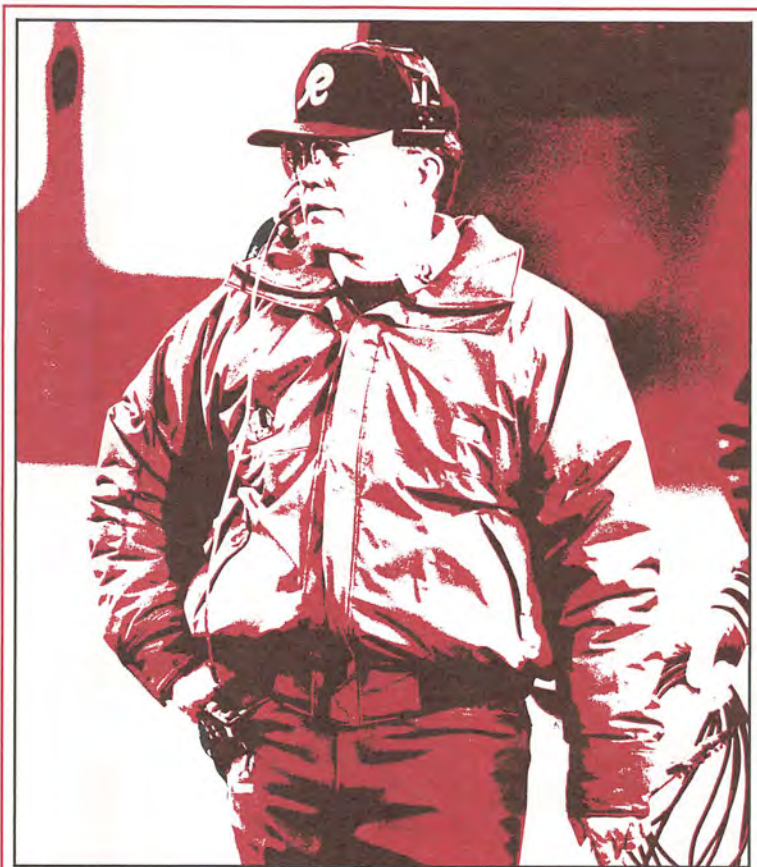

Bobby came to Washington in 1962 after he had played 48 consecutive games at left halfback for the Cleveland Browns, alongside Hall of Famer Jim Brown. He was traded to Washington along with Leroy Jackson on Dec. 14, 1961 for a number one draft choice and was switched to receiver. Career totals read: 2,735 yards rushing on 513 attempts (5.3-yard average); 521 receptions for 7,953 yards (15.3-yard average); 69 punt returns for 699 yards (10.2-yard average); 102 kickoff returns for 2,690 yards (26.4 average); 91 touchdowns for 546 points (fifth best all-time); and 14,078 total yards (fifth best in NFL history).

Bobby has been selected to Who's Who in Black America, the Arkansas Hall of Fame, the DC All-Star Hall of Fame and the Washington, DC Touchdown Club Hall of Fame. He is a Board Member of the American Lung Association (DC) and the Martin Luther King Jr. Federal Holiday Commission. Born June 6, 1935 in Hot Springs, AK, Bobby graduated from Illinois in 1958 with a B.A. degree in Education. Bobby and his wife, Gwen, who is a lawyer, have two children: Terri, and Robert C. Jr. The Mitchells live in Washington, DC.

COACHES

HEAD COACH

San Diego State
9th Year

Joe Gibbs, entering his ninth season in Washington, needs only eight victories to register his 100th as a head coach, and is looking to guide the Redskins to the playoffs for the sixth time since 1981. During that span he has led Washington to two Super Bowl titles, three NFC Championships and four division titles.

The Redskins are 11-3 in the playoffs under Gibbs. He is the winningest coach in team history, surpassing George Allen (69 victories from 1971-77) three seasons ago, and has become known as a master motivator.

When he left his post as offensive coordinator for the San Diego Chargers to come to Washington nine years ago, he was known as the pilot behind "Air Coryell." After five years of running John Riggins between the tackles, a strategy which helped the Redskins reach two Super Bowls, he became known as a lover of hard-nosed football.

In truth, Gibbs likes to keep his offense balanced. He hopes the acquisition of running backs Gerald Riggs and Earnest Byner will help him achieve that balance this season.

Whatever his methods, Gibbs has become the fourth-winningest active coach in the NFL behind Don Shula, Chuck Noll, and Chuck Knox.

To Gibbs, however, that means little. The task at hand is returning the Redskins to the playoffs, and earning a chance to win a third Super Bowl in eight years.

Gibbs set the tone for success early in his head-coaching career. In 1982-83, he became the first head coach in 20 years to be named Coach of the Year by Associated Press in consecutive seasons. His offense set an NFL record for points in a season (541) in '83, and the previous year his team posted the sixth-best record in NFL history (12-1). In '84, the Redskins' 66 sacks were the fourth-highest total ever, and their plus 43 turnover ratio set an NFL record.

The bottom line is that the Redskins are the NFL's second-winningest team, behind San Francisco, since Gibbs arrived in 1981.

Gibbs' coaching career began at San Diego State, his alma mater, under Don Coryell. He joined the Aztecs staff in '64 as a graduate assistant and coached the offensive line during a period in which the team won 27 of 31 games, including an 11-0 record in 1966.

In 1967, Gibbs joined Bill Peterson's staff at Florida State as offensive line coach and was part of a 15-4-1 record over two seasons. In 1969, John McKay brought Gibbs to USC and the Trojans went 15-4-1 over two seasons. The winning streak continued when Gibbs joined Frank Broyles staff at Arkansas and the Razorbacks were 14-8-1 over two seasons with Joe Ferguson at quarterback.

Coryell put Gibbs' name on the NFL marquee in 1973, naming him offensive backfield coach for the Cardinals. From 1973-77, the Cardinals were 42-27-1 with two NFC East titles.

In 1978, Gibbs became Tampa Bay's offensive coordinator under McKay, and made Doug Williams his starting quarterback. But Coryell called again in '79 and made Gibbs his offensive coordinator at San Diego. In two seasons there, Gibbs helped the Chargers win two AFC West titles. Dan Fouts set records left and right.

Then, Gibbs came to Washington in 1981.

Born in Mocksville, NC on November 25, 1940, Gibbs moved to the West Coast as a child and graduated from Santa Fe Spring High School. He attended Cerritos (CA) Junior College and then transferred to San Diego State, where he played guard, tight end and linebacker.

A racquetball enthusiast, Gibbs was a national champion (35 and over) in 1976 and ranked second in '77. He is very active in church and youth programs, especially the Youth for Tomorrow/New Life Center, a home in suburban Virginia for wayward teens. He has expended much time and energy in fund-raising efforts for the Prince William County home.

Gibbs' hobbies include hunting, water skiing, and watching his sons' games. He and his wife, Pat, have two sons, Jason Dean (JD), 20, and Coy Randle, 16. JD is a junior at William and Mary. The family resides in Vienna, VA.

RICHIE PETITBON

Assistant Head Coach—Defense

16th Year
12th Redskins
Tulane

COACHING: There's no hesitation on the sidelines with Richie calling the defensive signals. He enters a game knowing what he wants to do and does it. He's sort of a riverboat gambler when it comes to coaching defense. Richie has been with the Redskins since 1978 (longest current tenure), coaching the League's top secondary in 1980. He was put in charge of the entire defense in 1981, the year Joe Gibbs took over as head coach. He spent four seasons as defensive backfield coach for the Houston Oilers, 1974-77.

PLAYING AND PERSONAL: As an NFL player from 1959-72, Richie had 48 career interceptions and four Pro Bowl appearances. A second-round pick of the Chicago Bears, he set five club interception marks and played on the '63 World Championship team. He was traded to the Los Angeles Rams in 1969 and played there two seasons before joining the Redskins in '71. He was a member of the 1972 Super Bowl team. This is Richie's 30th year in the NFL. He was an all-SEC quarterback at Tulane. Born April 18, 1938, in New Orleans, LA, Richie and his wife, Beverly, have three children: Hope, 26; Richie, 24; and Vicki Leigh, 23. The Petitbons live in Vienna, VA.

JOE BUGEL

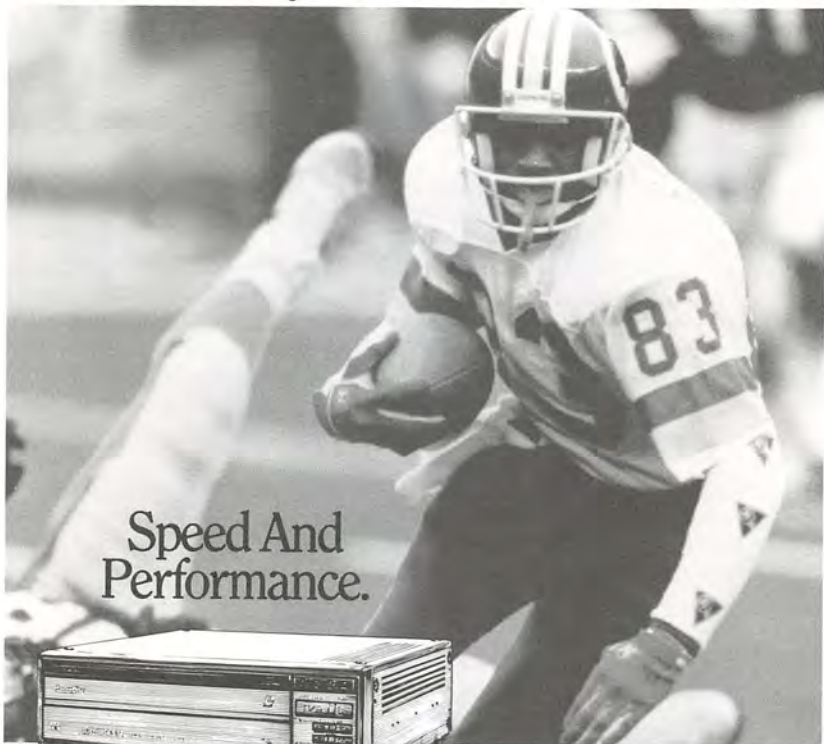

Assistant Head Coach—Offense

15th Year
9th Redskins
Western Kentucky

COACHING: The 24 sacks allowed by the Redskins last year was the team's lowest total since 1972 and was another testimony of Joe Bugel's coaching ability. Bugel's highly regarded reputation was put to the test last season when instability at running back forced the Redskins into a pass-oriented offense.

That type of predictability usually makes it difficult for an offensive line to do its job. But Bugel and his troops came through unscathed. The team received credit for the low sack total and Mark May received individual recognition, becoming the fourth Redskins' offensive lineman to earn Pro Bowl honors under Bugel. Previously, Jeff Bostic, Joe Jacoby, and Russ Grimm had made trips to Hawaii for the Pro Bowl. Joe coached the Houston Oilers offensive line from 1977-80 as the team set club rushing and passing records (1980) and led the NFL in fewest sacks (1978). He started in the NFL as offensive line coach for the Detroit Lions (1975-76). Joe coached at four different schools on the college level: Ohio State (1974); Iowa State (1973); Navy (1969-72) and Western Kentucky (1964-68).

WARREN 'RENNIE' SIMMONS

Tight Ends

San Diego State

COACHING: When Joe Gibbs needed a coach for his tight ends in 1981, he looked into his past and found the perfect man in Warren Simmons. Gibbs and Simmons had been friends since childhood and had played together at San Diego State. "Rennie" has provided Gibbs with both a trusted friend and a good coach. The result has been a decade of steady tight end play for the Redskins. The 1988 season was a year of transition for the tight end position and posed a challenge for '89, but Simmons has proven his ability to meet the task. Rennie coached at California State-Fullerton (1974-78) and Cerritos

WAYNE SEVIER

Special Teams

14th Season
7th Redskins
San Diego State

COACHING: When you think of special teams, you think of characters, guys who can walk into a room and capture the attention of everyone in it within minutes. In that respect, Wayne Sevier is no different than his players. His sense of humor, his competitive personality, and his willingness to do whatever it takes to win make him a natural special teamer. That's why coach Joe Gibbs rehired Wayne last February. Wayne coached in Washington from 1981-86 before leaving for the Chargers because his family was located in San Diego. His special teams ranked near the top in the League almost every season in Washington and the Redskins made the playoffs in four of those six years. 1988 Season: After a season of wondering whether Jeff was too small to play center any longer in the National Football League, the Redskins concluded that there's more to a good football player than size and weight. "I'd say Jeff and the kid in Chicago (center Jay Hilgenberg) are very similar because they're undersized but they do great jobs." Line Coach Joe Bugel said. "Jeff is a tough guy to replace because he's so smart, and he has such quick hands. He's got great football arrogance. He's short and he plays short and that's good. He gets under guys and gets leverage. He's a great knee-bender. When the ball's snapped, he's on you in an instant." Because of the nature of the offensive line, the only statistics that demonstrate Jeff's effectiveness were team statistics. He played in the middle of the Redskins' offense during its top three rushing days — vs. Dallas in Week 6 (180 yards), Green Bay in Week 8 (160 yards), and Cincinnati in Week 16 (166 yards). He also was a part of the team's two highest offensive performances — against Pittsburgh in Week 2 (515 yards) and vs. New Orleans in Week 10 (412 yards). As in every one of his nine NFL seasons, however, Jeff's success came from hard work and determination. He didn't drop his head when he was sidelined before Game 3 because the Redskins rearranged their line to add size. As he had done the previous season, Jeff hung in during hard times and worked. He returned to the starting lineup in Week 6 against Dallas and remained there until he suffered bruised ribs against Cleveland. He was forced to sit out the following week in Philadelphia and did not start against Dallas, although he entered the game in the second half. Jeff returned to the starting lineup for the regular-season finale in Cincinnati, but misfortune struck again when he tore the medial collateral ligament in his left knee.

Pro Career: 1987: Jeff started the season as a reserve when the Redskins opted for more size in the line and switched Russ Grimm from guard to center.

But after Grimm suffered a knee injury, Jeff stepped into the starting role in Week 11 and added stability to a unit that had changed frequently during the first part of the season. Jeff started through the team's Super Bowl victory over the Denver Broncos and played a vital part in the Redskins' revitalized rushing attack during the playoffs. 1986: For the first time since he injured his knee against St. Louis in 1984, Jeff started and finished every game at center. He was named Offensive Player of the Game for efforts against New Orleans and San Francisco. 1985: The Redskins recipient of the Ed Block Courage Award, Jeff was without a doubt the team's Comeback Player of the Year. A knee injury he had suffered the previous season could have ended his career. Instead, Jeff came off the Physically Unable to Perform list on October 19 and played in the final 10 games, starting six. As he did for much of his career, Jeff handled the long-snapping chores when he returned. When he was gone, the team went through five long snappers. 1984: Heading into Week 8 against St. Louis, Jeff had played in 64 straight games, but when he hit the Busch Stadium turf on the last play of the third quarter his streak ended and questions about his football future were raised. He tore three of the four ligaments in his right knee and was out for the season. He did not return until midway through the following season. 1983: Jeff was recognized by his peers as the best center in the NFC, making the NFC Pro Bowl squad. He was one of three Washington linemen to make the team, joining guard Russ Grimm and tackle Joe Jacoby. He also was selected to United Press International's first-team all-NFC team. Jeff helped pave the way for the League's third-ranked rushing attack and an offense that scored 21 points or more in every game except one. 1982: Jeff settled into his second year as the Redskins' starting center and helped the team register the League's second-highest time of possession. Because he did all the long-snapping, Jeff was an integral part of Mark Moseley's League-record 23 consecutive field goals. 1981: Jeff was the biggest surprise in the Redskins' training camp, earning the starting job at center. He also continued snapping for field goals and punts and led the punt-coverage team in tackles. 1980: Jeff signed with the Philadelphia Eagles as a free agent, was released late in training camp and signed with Washington six days before the season as a long-snapper. He didn't have one bad snap in 16 games and earned a game ball for causing a fumble against the San Diego Chargers.

College, Personal: Jeff was named to the all-Atlantic Coast Conference team his junior year at Clemson, then switched from center to guard as a senior. Born in Greensboro, NC, Jeff graduated from Benjamin Smith High School. He is involved in real estate development in Greensboro, NC and Charleston, SC. He and his wife, Lynn, have two daughters — Ashley Lynn and Amanda. The Bostics reside in Oakton, VA.

1988 Season: Todd is out to prove a point in '89. After intercepting only one pass last season, he wants to show the Redskins that he is a playmaker in the secondary. "He did a good job with the mental part of his game. He did a good job calling our defensive signals, but we need his physical performance to improve," said Richie Petitbon. Todd's only interception came against Dallas in Week 6, and he reportedly turned down several offers from other teams because he wanted to prove last season was the exception, not the rule when it comes to his performance. Todd hopes his performances in all 16 games this season will be like his efforts against Philadelphia (Week 14) and Dallas (Week 15) last season. He made 11 tackles and forced a fumble against the Eagles and made 13 tackles against Dallas.

Pro Career: 1987: Todd won the starting job from veteran Curtis Jordan during training camp and started every non-strike game despite being hampered by a sprained knee during the final six games. Todd suffered the injury in Week 13 against the Cardinals and underwent arthroscopic surgery after the season. He finished the season with four interceptions, and 108 tackles, se-1988 Season: Reggie entered the season once again as a special teams' leader and short-yardage blocker, but he suffered a dislocated left wrist in Week 2 against Pittsburgh and was placed on injured reserve Sept. 13. He cleared waivers Nov. 18 and rejoined the active roster for the final five games. Despite missing nine games, Reggie totaled 44 special teams' hits, 10th on the team. He had two eight-hit games (against the Giants in the opener and against Cincinnati in Week 16) and two seven-hit games (against Philadelphia in Week 14 and against Dallas in Week 15).

Pro Career: 1987: In a season that saw significant personnel changes on special teams, Reggie provided experience and stability on the unit as its captain.

Reggie is only occasionally used on offense — on short-yardage downs as a blocker — but in '87 carried the ball for the first time in his pro career, running four times for nine yards and one touchdown. 1986: Reggie was released in training camp but re-signed with the team before the regular-season finale against Philadelphia because the special teams needed a boost. Reggie answered the call with nine special teams hits in that game and continued the effort throughout the playoffs. He was named Special Teams Player of the Game for his performance against the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC Wild-Card game. 1985: Reggie impressed coaches as a special teamer and a blocker during preseason but was released because of a crowd at running back. After the team struggled through a 1-3 start, however, Reggie returned before being waived following Week 10 because of injuries at other positions. Reggie returned for a second time prior to Week 15 after running back Kenny Jenkins was hurt.

College, Personal: Reggie received the Most Outstanding Senior Trophy at East Carolina in 1984. A college teammate of Earnest Byner, Reggie gained 1,054 yards over his career. Born in Sanford, FL., Reggie attended Seminole High School, which produced running back Tony Collins and outfielder Tim Raines. A bachelor, Reggie resides in Falls Church, VA.

1988 Season: Coach Joe Bugel always has had a soft spot for anyone who weighs 280 pounds or more, so it's not surprising that he was excited when the Redskins signed Ray off the Phoenix Cardinals' unprotected list. "We've always liked him," Bugel said. "He's played at both right and left tackle. He's a great athlete and he's no midget. His experience should prove to be a big advantage." Ray started eight games over three seasons for the Cardinals.

52 He played in 15 last season, starting in the finale against Green Bay after Tootie Robbins was placed on injured reserve. He played on both sides as a reserve behind Robbins and Luis Sharpe and also filled in at left guard. He came in on short-yardage downs as an extra lineman.

Pro Career: 1987: Ray was waived by Phoenix in training camp but re-signed Sept. 22. He started three games at left tackle — against Washington Oct. 4, New Orleans Oct. 11, and San Francisco Oct. 18. He was placed on injured reserve Nov. 12 with a torn finger tendon. He was reactivated Dec. 12 and played as a reserve the final three games. 1986: Ray made the team as an eighth-round draft choice. After playing much of the season as a reserve tackle in short-yardage and goal-line situations, he started the final four games at left guard. He spent Weeks 7-11 on injured reserve after he twisted his right knee in practice.

College, Personal: An all-Southland Conference selection at Arkansas St., Ray played both tackle and tight end. He transferred to ASU from Memphis State after his freshman year. Born in Marion, AK, he was an all-state performer at Marion High and played both offense and defense. He once made 25 tackles in a game. Ray and his wife, Ida, live in Marion during the off-season.

1988 Season: There were two turning points in the Redskins' season a year ago — when Kelvin Bryant became a full-time player and when he got hurt. Bryant assumed a complete role in Week 6 against Dallas and did everything he could to help his team beat the Cowboys and even its record at 3-3. He totaled 200 yards (118 rushing, 82 receiving) and scored three touchdowns. Kelvin carried the load for the Redskins' offense for five weeks, and the team won four games, raising its record to 6-4. The roll stopped, however, when Kelvin suffered a knee injury in Week 10 against New Orleans. Prior to that, Kelvin established new career single-game highs for yards rushing (140 vs Green Bay), carries (27 vs Green Bay), most combined yards (210 vs Green Bay), touchdowns (3 vs Dallas), and longest reception (47 vs Phoenix). Despite starting only four games, Kelvin finished as the team's leading rusher (498 yards) and fourth-leading receiver (42 catches). At the time he injured his knee against the Saints, Kelvin led the Redskins in rushing, receiving, and touchdowns. But he didn't return, and the Redskins felt his absence. "Kelvin seemed to be the pivotal player in our season," coach Joe Gibbs said. The Redskins put together a three-game winning streak in October showcasing Kelvin's talents. In a 35-17 victory at Dallas, Bryant scored three TDs with 200 total yards (118 rushing, 82 receiving). Then, he accumulated 144 yards (73 rushing, 68 receiving) in a win over the Cardinals. Next was a 210-yard (140 rushing, 70 receiving) performance against the Packers in a 20-17 victory. However, a knee strain in Week 10 finished his season. He was inactive for four weeks before being placed on injured reserve December 12. Because of the offseason acquisition of Gerald Riggs, it appears Kelvin could return to the role of a second and third-down back in '89. "I think he can be very valuable to our team without playing down after down," running back coach Don Breau said. "He's extremely versatile. He's a downfield receiving threat at the running back position and not many people have that." Gibbs goes a step further, saying "Kelvin's the best I've ever seen catching the ball out of the backfield."

Pro Career: 1987: Kelvin finished as the Redskins' second-leading rusher (406 yards, 77 carries) and receiver (490 yards, 43 catches) while playing the role of a long-yardage back. His best overall performances came in a pair of losses at Miami (84 yards rushing, 69 receiving) and Atlanta (70 rushing, 76 receiving). His most dramatic, however, came against the Jets. With his team trailing 17-6 entering the fourth quarter, Kelvin keyed a Redskins' rally by making three catches for 56 yards, the last for two yards and a touchdown. Minutes later, he gained 17 yards on three carries to set up the game-winning field goal. 1986: Stretched ligaments in his left knee limited Kelvin to 10 games, but he still finished second in rushing and third in receiving in his first NFL season. He joined the team in August when the USFL folded and opened the regular season with 112 combined yards and two touchdowns against the Eagles. The knee injury came Week 2 versus the Raiders, but Kelvin returned to finish strongly. Against the Giants, he tied a team record with 13 catches and scored two touchdowns. In the playoffs, he totaled 107 combined yards in a win over the Bears and had seven catches in a NFC Championship loss to the Giants. 1983-1985: Kelvin played a key role with the USFL Stars, winning two league titles. He was the league's MVP in 1983, all-USFL three years, and Championship Game MVP in 1985.

College, Personal: Injuries slowed Kelvin at North Carolina, but couldn't Redskins traded for him on draft day.

How Acquired: Obtained from the Cleveland Browns on draft day, April 23, 1989, for running back Mike Olinfant.

Games Played/Started: 67/51 — CLEVE 1984 (16/3); 1985 (16/13)[1/1]; 1986 (7/7)[1/0]; 1987 (12/12)[2/2]; 1988 (16/16)[1/1]

1988 Season: Earnest led the Browns in both rushing (576 yards on 157 carries) and receiving (57 catches for 576 yards). It was the second straight year he totaled over 1,000 yards. His 57 catches were the most in his pro career. The Redskins saw first-hand how Byner can decide the outcome of a game. Earnest's 27-yard touchdown run with 1:49 remaining at RFK Stadium gave the Browns a 17-13 victory over Washington in Week 13. Earnest carried only five times in that game, gaining 44 yards. The Browns used his prowess as a receiver often, lining him up wide to draw coverage from Washington's strong safeties. Earnest caught seven passes for 48 yards and now has caught 204 passes in his five-year NFL career. He has caught at least two passes in 47 career games and three or more in 36 games. His best game rushing last season came at Pittsburgh with 78 yards on 20 carries. He moved into seventh

Pro Career: 1987: The Browns called Earnest the "heart and soul" of their offense. He had 52 catches for 552 yards and ran for 432 yards on 105 carries. He scored a club-high eight touchdowns and finished second in the AFC in non-kicking scoring with 60 points. He caught at least two passes in every game and had eight catches twice. 1986: Earnest missed action for the first time in his pro career. He suffered an ankle injury in Week 7 against Green

On the season, he rushed 94 times for 277 yards and caught 37 passes for 328. 1985: In his first season as a full-time starter, Earnest broke two of Cleveland's postseason records. His 161 yards rushing against Miami broke Jim Brown's mark of 114 vs. Baltimore in 1964. His 66-yard run for a touchdown in that game broke Leroy Kelly's record of 46 against Dallas in '67. 1984: After being selected by the Browns in the 10th round, Earnest increased his role steadily as the season progressed. He ran 72 times for 426 yards and his 5.9-yard average was highest among AFC running backs. His 188 yards (21 carries) against Houston in the season finale still is the second highest total by a Browns' rookie, bettered only by Jim Brown's 237 in 1957. Earnest also returned 22 kicks for 415 yards, an 18.9-yard average.

College, Personal: As a senior at East Carolina, Earnest led the team in rushing with 862 yards. The Pirates finished 8-3. A three-year starter at fullback, Earnest finished as the eighth-leading rusher in school history. He played in the same backfield with Reggie Branch (Redskins) and Tony Baker (Cleveland). Earnest gained 2,049 yards on 378 carries in his career. He majored in physical education. Born in Milledgeville, GA, Earnest played quarterback, tailback, safety and linebacker at Baldwin High and his jersey (No. 21) was retired after he graduated. He was class president. 1988 Season: If the '88 season was an audition, Ravin can look forward to a leading role with the Skins this season. His bit parts received rave reviews. The first came in Week 7 against the Cardinals when Ravin made his only start of the season. A first quarter safety of quarterback Neil Lomax led directly to the first nine points of a 33-17 victory, earning Ravin the team's Defensive Player of the Game. An injury to Dexter Manley thrust Ravin into a starring role in Week 13 against the Eagles. In a 20-19 victory, Ravin took over with three sacks and two forced fumbles to play havoc with the Eagle offense. Overall, Caldwell recorded 20 tackles, and virtually every one was significant. On special teams, he provided quantity as well. Ravin's 119 hits were second on the team and he was selected as the Special Teams Player of the Game in a Week 3 win over Philadelphia. He recorded eight or more hits in eight different games. "We hope this will be the year that Ravin graduates and expands his role from a part time to a full-time player," said Linebacker Coach Larry Peccatiello.

Pro Career: 1987: Ravin earned a spot on the Redskins' Super Bowl roster, thanks to his special teams enthusiasm that was evident from the opening kickoff. In the preseason opener against the Steelers, Ravin lost his helmet as he ran down field on coverage but never slowed down until making the tackle on Louis Sanchez. By the regular season finale against the Vikings, Ravin earned time with the defense and made four tackles, including one sack. 1986: A knee injury slowed Ravin throughout training camp, eventually forcing him on injured reserve for the season.

College, Personal: A fractured knee-cap as a senior at Arkansas dropped Ravin's draft position, but the Redskins were the beneficiaries of his bad luck. His sophomore and junior seasons pointed to a higher selection when he made 58 and 65 tackles, respectively. His best game was a 13-tackle performance against Tulsa. Arkansas was a natural for Ravin, who grew up in Ft. Smith, AK, and graduated from Northside High, where he was all-State as a senior. Ravin was a Criminal Justice major. He is a bachelor and lives in Reston, VA.

He holds the school record for the longest pass play, an 82-yarder against Northeastern his senior season. Dale attracted attention from scouts around the League his junior season, setting a school record with 63 catches. He averaged 18 yards a reception, scored six touchdowns and was named the ECAC Division II Player of the Year. He earned honorable mention all-America honors from Associated Press. He made 38 catches for 605 yards his senior season before hitting the goal posts while trying to make a diving catch against Liberty in the second-to-last game of the season. 1988 Season: Gary's 59 catches ranked third on the team and raised his NFL career total to 261, the sixth highest in Redskins' history. He needs only 12 catches to move past Hugh Taylor (1947-54) into fifth place behind Charley Taylor, Art Monk, Jerry Smith and Bobby Mitchell. He's also honing in on Mitchell's team-best streak of six consecutive seasons (1962-67) with 50 or more catches; Gary has caught 50 or more passes in each of his four seasons with Washington. Last season was the first in the last three that Gary didn't break the 1,000-yard mark, but his 892 yards raised his career total to 4,149, which ranks sixth in team annals behind Hugh Taylor's 5,233. He joined Monk and Ricky Sanders to form the League's most productive receiving trio. Gary started all but three games — Week 5 vs. Giants, Week 12 vs. San Francisco and Week 16 vs. Cincinnati — when the team started two tight ends instead of two receivers. Among his season bests were an eight-reception game (for 98 yards) against Chicago in Week 11 and a 99-yard effort (five catches) in Week 14 against Philadelphia. Gary owned the team's longest offensive play of the season with a 60-yard touchdown catch in Week 7 against Phoenix, the second-longest play of career, and had a 34-yard return in Week 12 vs. San Francisco. On the season, Gary returned eight punts for 48 yards. He was selected as the team's Offensive Player of the Game for his six catches for 75 yards and one touchdown against New Orleans in Week 10.

Pro Career: 1987: Gary made his second straight Pro Bowl. His 1,066 yards ranked third among NFL receivers and his 56 catches tied for ninth. He led the team in receptions, receiving yards, combined yards (1,077) and touchdowns (seven). Gary's seven-yard touchdown catch with 5:15 remaining in the NFC Championship Game against Minnesota provided the winning margin and sent the Redskins to Super Bowl XXII. Gary was very much a part of Washington's record-setting 35-point quarter against Denver in the Super Bowl. His 27-yard touchdown catch gave the Redskins a 14-10 lead. 1986: Gary's 1,265 yards and his 74 catches both were fourth-best in Redskins' history. His yards ranked second in the NFC and his catches fifth as he made the first of two Pro Bowl appearances. He led the team with seven touchdown catches and had five 100-yard games. His 241 yards (on 11 catches) in Week 8 against the Giants set a team record (which was broken by Anthony Allen the following season). 1985: Gary and Art Monk formed the League's top receiving tandem, combining for 163 catches. Gary came to Washington in May after playing a season with the Jacksonville Bulls of the United States

1988 Season: Monte's speed and quickness are his most noticeable attributes on the football field, so it is no surprise that he is the all-time team leader in career sacks among Redskins' linebackers. He had three last season to raise his total to 35 and needs only three more to tie defensive end Coy Bacon for sixth place on the club's all-time sack list. He added three quarterback hurries. Monte started last season as the starting left linebacker until he sprained his left knee in Week 11 against the Chicago Bears. After spending the next two games on the two-man inactive list, Monte shared playing time with Mel Kaufman. Mel played against the run and Monte played on passing downs. The Redskins often assign Monte to the opponent's best tight end or running back in passing situations. "Monte's as good a pass defender as there is in the League," said defensive coordinator and linebacker coach Larry Peccatiello.

64 Monte intercepted a pass against Dallas in Week 6, setting up a touchdown pass that gave Washington a 14-7 lead. He recovered a fumble versus the Phoenix Cardinals in Week 7 and forced one against the New Orleans Saints in Week 10. His 54 tackles ranked 10th on the team. His 10 tackles (with one sack) in the opener against the New York Giants was his season high.

Pro Career: 1987: Monte emerged as a starter at right linebacker after middle linebacker Neal Olkewicz tore knee cartilage in the preseason opener, forcing Rich Milot to move from right linebacker into the middle. Monte remained the starter even after Olkewicz returned and finished the season with 4½ sacks, eight quarterback hurries, one forced fumble, two interceptions and 107 tackles, 10 behind the line of scrimmage. 1986: Monte replaced Kaufman as the starter after Mel tore his Achilles in Week 2, but a pulled hamstring put Monte on injured reserve three weeks later. Monte returned in Week 10 and finished the regular season with 48 tackles and 38 special teams hits. During the playoffs, Monte finished fourth on the team with 16 tackles. 1985: Monte pulled his hamstring in Week 3 while chasing Eagles receiver Mike Quick and spent the next six weeks on injured reserve. He returned in Week 10 against the Detroit Lions and finished strongly. He made 26 tackles, 1½ sacks and four quarterback hurries on the season. He also forced a fumble in the season-finale against St. Louis. 1984: In one of his best seasons, Monte finished with 10½ sacks, second on the team, and 88 tackles. The Redskins were 4-1 in the five games Monte started. 1983: After missing the first six games because of a severe thigh contusion sustained in the preseason against Buffalo, Monte played in the final 10 games and made 29 tackles, including two sacks. He also recovered two fumbles. Monte gained 40 yards on a reverse kickoff in the NFC Championship Game against San Francisco, but the play was nullified because of a penalty. 1982: Monte started at left linebacker until he suffered a shoulder injury against the Giants Nov. 21. Against Philadelphia in Week 14, Monte intercepted a pass in the fourth quarter and returned it for the game-winning touchdown. He suffered a fractured shoulder in Week 2 against the Giants and missed four games. 1980: Monte intercepted three passes, made five sacks, recovered two fumbles, made 115 tackles (second on the team) and was a special teams standout. He started the season at left linebacker in place of Brad Dusek and later moved to the right in place of injured Pete Wysocki. 1979: After being selected in the 11th round, Monte played as a pass-covering specialist and on special teams. 1988 Season: Any doubts about Brian's ability were erased last year. The next step is staying healthy for an entire season. "Brian proved that he can play in this League," defensive coach Richie Petitbon said. "Now we've got to find a way to keep him healthy to take advantage of his abilities." Injuries opened and closed the door in '88 for Brian. He got a chance to start (Week

3) when Barry Wilburn sustained a knee sprain in Week 2. And Brian came through. He gave up only one TD pass in six weeks as a starter and had six pass deflections. In his first start, Brian held Eagles' receiver Cris Carter to one catch for three yards. Brian's best day came in Week 5 against the Giants when he made eight tackles and a pass deflection. "He played as well as we could ask," Petitbon said. "Replacing Barry was a challenge, and he responded." The challenge became one of health after he pulled a quadricep against the Cardinals in Week 7. He played sparingly the following week, then aggravated the injury on an interception return against the Oilers a week later. He did not play again and was placed on injured reserve November 24.

Pro Career: 1987: Brian saw the NFL from every perspective during his rookie season, starting with the notoriety surrounding a second-round draft choice. He soon settled into a role as a member of all special teams and as a nickel back before being sidelined November 3 with a pulled quadricep. Brian celebrated his return from the injured reserve list December 5 by recovering a first-quarter fumble against the Cardinals. In the playoffs, Brian flirted with fame when he replaced the injured Darrell Green against the Bears. He recorded his first professional interception along with two tackles, a pass deflection, and two special teams' hits. He completed his notable rookie campaign with a second-quarter interception in Super Bowl XXII, ending a Broncos' drive late in the game.

College, Personal: It was not always easy for Brian to display his ability in the run-oriented Big Eight Conference. He had only one interception (a 32-yard touchdown) as a senior but still earned all-Conference honors. There was plenty of exposure, however. He played in the Fiesta Bowl as a junior and in the Sugar and Japan Bowls as a senior. A combination of speed (4.5 in the 40-yard dash) and strength (345-pound bench press) caught the attention of Redskins' scouts. Not bad for someone who didn't play high school football. Brian won his letters in wrestling at Cortez High School in Phoenix, AZ and did not play organized football until attending Glendale Community College. Brian and his wife, Vicki, live in Centreville, VA.

"He showed the quickness and agility it takes to be a good pass rusher in this League," said defensive line coach Torgy Torgeson. "He's got potential. He picked up some experience working with the scout team most of the year during practices. We think he has a chance to help us." Mark could see action at both end and tackle in passing situations.

College, Personal: Mark played defensive tackle, end and nose guard as a senior at Arizona State. He started eight games and made 35 tackles and two recoveries. He played three seasons at Wichita State, being redshirted his sophomore year in 1984, before the football program was dropped following the 1986 season. He turned in his best season as a junior, making 93 tackles. He lettered in football, basketball, track and wrestling at Wichita North High. One of eight children, Mark was born in Wichita, KS. A bachelor, Mark lives in Centreville, VA.

PLAYOFF RECORD

The Redskins have made the playoffs five of the last seven seasons, 10 of the last 18. Only Dallas and Miami have appeared in more Super Bowls than Washington (4), and the 49ers and the Redskins lead the way in the '80s with three Super Bowl appearances each. Since the 1970 merger, the Redskins are 13-8 in the playoffs, 9-1 at RPK.

1988 Season: Onzy played in the first four games for the New York Jets, mainly on special teams, before an intestinal virus placed him on injured reserve. The Redskins didn't waste any time signing Onzy after the Jets left him unprotected last February. "I was very impressed with him when we scouted him at Tennessee State," said coach Larry Peccatiello. "He's a good athlete. For whatever reasons, he didn't play much for the Jets, but I'm excited about having an opportunity to work with him at this stage of his career."

Pro Career: 1987: The Jets selected Onzy on the third round of the draft (75th overall). Onzy showed quickness and good blitzing ability and played in five games, making seven special teams tackles. A shoulder injury placed him on injured reserve the remainder of the season.

College, Personal: Named Kodak all-America and his team's Most Valuable Player his senior season at Tennessee State, Onzy made 95 tackles, 10 sacks, five fumble recoveries, three forced fumbles, 10 pass deflections and blocked a punt. He had 60 tackles and two interceptions as a junior. He also ran track. Onzy was an all-State football star at Northwestern High in Miami.

The first regular-season game at DC Stadium (renamed RFK Stadium) was played on October 1, 1961. Since then, the Redskins have played a total of 212 games there and hold a 133-78-1 record. Since 1972, the Redskins are 102-34 at home, including a 9-1 record in the playoffs.

1988 Season: A healthy linebacking corps cut down on Kurt's playing time last year. He played as a backup at linebacker to Neal Olkewicz, but still made his presence felt on special teams, where he led the squad with 126 total hits. Kurt finished first on special teams in kickoff and punt coverage (26 tackles, 18 solo) and kickoff returns (64 blocks). At linebacker, he recorded 21 tackles (12 solo), one quarterback hurry, and one pass deflection. Kurt enjoyed his best games against Cincinnati (three tackles with one assist) and Green Bay, when he recorded three tackles and a quarterback hurry. Defensive coordinator and linebacker coach Larry Peccatiello said Kurt fills a valuable role in the Redskins' defense. "He's probably as solid and dependable of a player as we have," Peccatiello said. "He's tough, he plays when he's nicked, he has a good handle on our system, and he can play inside and outside."

Pro Career: 1987: Kurt took advantage of his opportunities by filling in across the linebacking positions when called upon during the season. Kurt was inserted into a starting role Week 2 against Atlanta, and responded with 11 solo tackles and two assists. The following week against Dallas, Kurt was moved to outside linebacker, replacing the injured Monte Coleman, and recorded 10 tackles with five solos.

College, Personal: Kurt couldn't have asked more from his college career. Prior to playing on the Super Bowl championship squad with the Redskins, Kurt played a key role in bringing Brigham Young's teams to national prominence. He was named all-WAC his senior season, the year the Cougars played in the Citrus Bowl. As a junior, Kurt had 107 tackles and seven sacks while playing a key role in BYU's Holiday Bowl victory over Michigan. His high school career is equally impressive. He guided his teams at Waianae High to three straight state titles as a quarterback and defensive back. Born in Honolulu, Kurt majored in Recreation Management at BYU. When he's not playing football, Kurt enjoys needle point as one of his hobbies. He and his wife, Loree, live in Sterling, VA., with their two children: Landon, 3 and Ariel, 1.

1988 Season: Prior to last season, Darryl was the only defensive lineman in Redskins' history to record at least 100 tackles. He still stands alone, but now he's done it twice. In a solid '88 season, Darryl recorded 107 tackles last year and was only one of seven players to start every game. Not bad for a player who came to the Redskins as an offensive lineman nearly a decade ago. "You always know what kind of an effort you're going to get from Darryl," defensive line coach Torgy Torgeson said. "He has great pursuit. He plays from sideline to sideline. He's also very strong at the point of attack." Darryl's previous high-tackle total was 101 in 1983, but he put together one of his best personal seasons to surpass that total. His best game came Week 5 against the Giants with 11 tackles, and he also had 10 tackles Week 13 against the Browns. In Week 3 against Philadelphia, Darryl helped save the day with two fourth quarter sacks with the Redskins nursing a 17-10 lead. There was also a third-quarter fumble recovery ending a Steeler drive at the Redskins' 20-yard line in a 30-29 victory. In other words, it was another consistent Grant-like season.

Pro Career: 1987: Darryl was a vital cog in the Redskins' drive to the Super Bowl from the opening game to the playoffs. In Week 1 against Philadelphia, he recovered a fumble to stop an Eagle drive. His 66 tackles were second highest on the defensive line, trailing only Pro Bowler Charles Mann. 1986: A movie script could not have read better. Slowed by a lingering knee injury until midseason Darryl played a reserve role until he was inserted with the Redskins trailing the Giants by 17 points. His play was the catalyst for a Redskins' rally, and the following week against Minnesota he was back in the starting lineup. With the Redskins trailing, 38-32 his sack provided possession for the game winning drive. Darryl was back and the Redskins were in the playoff hunt. 1985: Adversity struck Darryl for the first time in his pro career when a Week 8 knee injury at Cleveland sidelined him for the season. At the time, his 48 stops were tops on the defensive line. Prior to the injury Grant had missed only two of 73 possible pro games. 1984: A mainstay at tackle, Darryl enjoyed one of his finest seasons with a career high 7½ sacks and four fumble recoveries despite missing opening week with a knee sprain. He returned a fumble 22 yards for a touchdown against the Vikings for one of his two career scores. However, his primary value was plugging the holes in a Redskins rushing defense that allowed only 99.3 yards per game. 1983: The season began with a brief experiment on offense, but Richie Petitbon would have none of it. Darryl celebrated his return to defense by becoming the first Redskin lineman to ever record 100 tackles (101). His presence helped the team to an NFL-best 80.6 yard rushing defense average. For good measure, Darryl added 14 tackles and a sack in three playoff games. 1982: Perry Brooks' broken leg opened the starting door in Week 5. As a starter he made 37 tackles and three sacks. Ironically, the biggest play of his season was not a tackle or sack. It was the lone pass interception of his career. Darryl caught a Dexter Manley-deflected pass in the NFC Championship Game against Dallas and returned it for a touchdown to put the Redskins in Super Bowl XVII. 1981: As a ninth round choice, Darryl beat the odds to make the College, Personal: Listing a position while at Rice University was not easy for Darryl. He played tackle and center on offense and linebacker and nose guard on defense. Despite the changes, he found enough playing time to earn four letters. In high school, he earned all-America honors as a center at Highlands in San Antonio, TX. 1988 Season: Darrell's worth was evident in his absence last season. A broken hand in the first quarter of the Week 15 contest versus Dallas ended Green's season and opened the door to three Cowboy touchdown passes in a 24-17 loss. "Darrell is always matched against the opponent's big play receiver," defensive coach Richie Petitbon said. "He's going to give up some yardage, but his presence also stops big plays." Darrell turned in another consistent season last year in which he narrowly missed his fourth Pro Bowl appearance. He led the Redskins in pass deflections with 14 and had 63 tackles (49 solo, 13 assists). He also made an interception, which came at the end of the first half against Phoenix and resulted in a touchdown pass moments later. Darrell's highlights were not limited to defense. He also provided a spark on special teams with several timely punt returns. His returns of 13 and 18 yards against the Steelers set up a field goal and a touchdown, respectively, and keyed a 30-29 victory. The best was a 32-yard, fourth-quarter return versus the Giants. Green displayed his usual durability until Week 15 against Dallas when the hand injury forced him out of the lineup for the first time in his career.

Pro Career: 1987: Darrell's timing was impeccable, turning in his finest performances down the Redskins' Super Bowl stretch drive. In the NFC Championship game, he kept Anthony Carter out of the end zone and made the last second hit on the goal line that helped jar the football out of the hands of running back Darrin Nelson, preventing the Vikings from forcing overtime. The performance came despite a torn rib cartilage that kept his playing status in question throughout the week. Green had suffered the injury the previous week during his 52-yard punt return for a touchdown in the first round playoff game against the Bears. The return gave the Redskins a 21-14 lead and proved the winning margin. The highlight of his regular season came against Detroit with a career high three interceptions in one game. The last came on the Lions' final possession and preserved a 20-13 victory. Once again, his punt returns proved as valuable as his defense. Two against the Giants gave Washington possession inside New York territory, leading to two important third quarter touchdowns. His overall performance resulted in a third NFC Pro Bowl appearance. 1986: A succession of big plays led Darrell to his second Pro Bowl appearance, beginning in the first game. His first half interception set up a touchdown and a 17-7 lead. In Week 2, Darrell's interception in the end zone with 30 seconds remaining sealed a 10-6 victory against the Raiders. His five interceptions was a team high and his 70 tackles led the cornerbacks. In the playoffs, Darrell intercepted a pass to setup the go-ahead touchdown in a 27-13 upset of the Bears. 1985: Lady luck did not smile on Darrell when punt returns of 99 yards and 73 yards were nullified on successive weeks. Nevertheless, his 13.4 yard average on 16 punt returns was the highest by a Redskin since Eddie Brown's 13.5 in 1976. 1984: There was no sophomore slump for Darrell, who earned a starting Pro Bowl spot in his second season. He had five interceptions, 87 tackles, and a team high 14 deflections, but cemented his all-star berth with one dramatic performance. With the Skins trailing Dallas 21-6 at halftime, Green turned the game around with a 32-yard touchdown interception. Later he stopped a Cowboy drive with an interception in the end zone, and the Redskins rallied for a 30-28 come-from-behind victory. 1983: Darrell set the tone for his NFL career the first time he touched the football with a 61-yard punt return in a preseason game against Atlanta. A contract dispute by Jeris White thrust him into the starting lineup against the Cowboys and Darrell left his calling card when he pulled Tony Dorsett down from behind. His regular season play earned him a runner-up spot as AP NFL Defensive Rookie of the Year, and Football Digest and AP all-rookie teams. However, he saved his best for the postseason where he ran back an interception 72 yards for a touchdown against the Rams and caught Eric Dickerson from behind in the NFC Wild Card game.

College, Personal: Darrell's college career was legendary at Texas A&I, where he averaged 20.6 yards on 19 punt returns in 1982. He was named to the Football Coaches all-American Division II team with 56 tackles and four interceptions. The Lone Star Conference Defensive Player of the Year, Darrell was also selected to the AP First Team Little all-American. However, football was only half the story. A 10.08 100 meter man, Darrell was clocked only behind Carl Lewis as a senior in the 100. Showing no preference, Darrell was all-State Track and all-City football at Jones High School in Houston. He has won the "NFL's Fastest Man" competition three times, winning the 60-yard event over such notables track stars as Willie Gault, Ron Brown, and Herschel Walker. On the personal side, Darrell is very active in local youth groups and serves as a local VP of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He also devotes charity time to the Big Brothers of America in the DC area, and has worked in several anti-drug campaigns. He participated in the "Game Plan" program, visiting area junior high schools encouraging students to say no to drugs and alcohol. Darrell is also the Honorary Chairman for the Northern Virginia Chapter of Red Cross. A native of Houston, Darrell is married to the former Jewell Fenner, and they have a three-year-old daughter, Jarrell, and an infant son, Jared, and live Vienna, VA.

How Acquired: Selected in third round of 1981 draft (69th overall).

Games Played/Started: 97/93 — 1981 (14/13); 1982 (9/9)[4/4]; 1983 (16/16)[3/3]; 1984 (16/16); 1985 (16/16); 1986 (15/14)[3/3]; 1987 (6/5)[3/0]; 1988 (5/4)

1988 Season: Russ spent the first 11 weeks on injured reserve after undergoing arthroscopic surgery August 5th to repair cartilage damage in his left knee. He injured during a training camp practice. Because the Redskins had been forced to use several of their injured reserve moves early in the season, it looked as though Russ might spend the entire year on IR. But heading into Week 12, after a loss to Chicago dropped the team's record to 6-5, coach Joe Gibbs was looking for someone to provide a lift. He decided to use one of his final two IR moves on Russ, regarded for years as a spark plug, whether it be in the clubhouse or on the field. Russ didn't start against the San Francisco 49ers the following Monday night, but he replaced Raleigh McKenzie at left guard late in the fourth quarter and started the following week against Cleveland. He started the final four games of the season. During that period, the offensive line only allowed two sacks. "He gave us a great lift," offensive line coach Joe Bugel said. His best game, Bugel said, came in the regular-season finale against the Cincinnati Bengals, a game in which the Redskins rushed for 166 yards, their second-highest total of the season. "With nothing on the line, he went out and gave it everything he had," Bugel said. "More than any other, that was the game in which he looked like his old self. If he can play like that and stay healthy, he's got a chance to go back to Hawaii [for the Pro Bowl] again."

Pro Career: 1987: Russ moved from guard to center on the first day of training camp because Bugel wanted more size over the football. Russ started at center in five games before he suffered a partially torn ligament in his left knee in the second half against the Philadelphia Eagles. He returned before the regular-season finale against the Minnesota Vikings and played a reserve role in the team's three playoff games, including the Super Bowl. 1986: Russ made the Pro Bowl for the fourth consecutive year and was named to several all-star teams. However, his 79 games-played streak ended when he missed Game 7, against St. Louis, because of a sprained neck. Because he played quarterback in high school, Russ was the team's emergency signal-caller. 1985: Russ made every all-star team mentionable, including his third consecutive trip to the Pro Bowl, and was one of only three offensive players to start every game for Washington. It was the fourth straight season he started every game. Fourteen of his starts in '85 came at left guard, and two came at left tackle, filling in for injured Joe Jacoby in both games against the New York Giants. 1984: Russ again started every game and made every all-star team. His trip to the Pro Bowl was his second straight. He made a key fumble recovery in second game against Dallas after quarterback Joe Theismann lost the ball at the Redskins' 30. 1983: Russ started all 16 games at left guard but filled in at center in the regular-season finale against the Giants after Jeff Bostic was injured. Russ, Jeff, and tackle Joe Jacoby all made the Pro Bowl and, once again, Russ made every all-star team mentionable. 1982: Russ and Jacoby made the running play "counter-trey" famous around the League. People weren't used to seeing two players that big pull from one side to another. The two were big reasons why the Redskins averaged 152 yards rushing in the playoffs. Russ made United Press International's all-NFC squad (second team) and set the foundation for four Pro Bowl appearances in the years to come. 1981: The Redskins traded their 1982 first-round draft pick to acquire the chance to get Russ, as well as several other players in the 1981 draft. Because he played center at Pitt, the Redskins originally thought he would play that position. But injuries and the impressive play of Bostic moved Russ to left guard. Russ played 14 games despite being bothered by a sore knee. He underwent arthroscopic surgery after the season.

College, Personal: Russ helped the University of Pittsburgh to a 22-2 record over his junior and senior seasons. He played center, snapped for extra points and field goals and was the reserve punter. Russ punted, played quarterback and linebacker at Southmoreland High (PA). He earned nine letters and was a star on the basketball team. Born in Scottdale, PA., he was a National Honor Society student. He is an avid hunter and golfer. Russ and his wife, Karen, live in Oakton, VA. and have two sons: Chad Russell, 4, and Cody James, 3.

1988 Season: Dean played a familiar role last season, providing depth at defensive tackle and excelling as a special teams' daredevil. Not surprisingly, the Redskins included Dean on their 37-man protected list and indicated they have expanded plans for him in 1988. "We'll give him a good shot to move in as a starter," defensive line coach Torgy Torgeson said. "He still needs to get rid of his blockers better against the run, but he did a good job last season when we used him as a pass rusher." One of Dean's biggest supporters is special teams' coach Wayne Sevier. Dean is one of the leaders on special teams and ranked third in special team tackles with 116. The Packers and Steelers felt the sting of Dean's reckless style when he recorded 12-hit efforts against each. At tackle, Dean recorded 14 tackles and two sacks. His fourth-quarter sack of Cardinals' quarterback Neil Lomax in Week 3 ignited a Redskins' rally that came up short of victory. Dean also made a sack against the Browns in Week 13.

Pro Career: 1987: Dean saved his best for last when he replaced the injured Darryl Grant in the second half of the NFC Championship Game against Minnesota. With the Vikings driving for the tying score at the Redskins two-yard line, Dean made a tackle behind the line of scrimmage to stymie the drive. He was also co-captain of the special teams and led the Redskins with 23 special team hits. 1986: Dean started eight games in which the Redskins were 6-2. The highlight came against Dallas when his eight tackles helped limit Tony Dorsett to 22 yards on 18 attempts. His best day was against St. Louis with 10 tackles. In the Redskins' playoff upset of Chicago, Dean had an eight-hit effort (four tackles) on special teams, leaving little surprise at his selection by the Washington Brooklyn Club as Special Team's Player of the Year. His gutsy style of play also earned Dean a spot on the all-Madden squad. 1985: Dean's rookie performance belied his selection in the 12th-round. He started the year on special teams, but moved into the starting lineup after eight games for the injured Darryl Grant and recorded 63 tackles and six sacks. Against Atlanta, Dean spent the afternoon in the Falcon backfield while making three sacks. Against San Francisco, he trapped Joe Montana in the end zone for a sack. In a year in which making the team was accomplishment enough, Dean was an integral member of the defense.

College, Personal: Splitting his career between Coffeyville Junior College and Tulsa, Dean played both offense and defense in college. At Coffeyville, he started on the offensive line, serving as a blocker for future Heisman winner Mike Rozier. He transferred to Tulsa as an offensive lineman, but was switched to defense as a senior and recorded 44 tackles and four sacks. A Detroit native, Dean played baseball as well as football at Mott High School in Warren, MI. He earned a degree in Education at Tulsa and enjoys hunting and fishing. He and his wife, Diane, live in Fairfax with their two Rottwilers, Buck and Taz. Dean has been dubbed the "The Tasmanian Devil" for his free spirited play.

1988 Season: Dave was mowing his lawn when he received an emergency call from the Redskins to report as the team's long snapper. The call was well placed because Dave snapped perfectly for 15 games. A late casualty in training camp, he missed the opening game, but made the most of his second chance. "He has a great attitude, and he does an excellent job snapping," said line coach Joe Bugel. An offseason with strength coach Dan Riley should provide the extra bulk to help Dave contend for a backup position along the offensive line.

College, Personal: A starter in his final two years at Illinois, Dave did not miss a snap as a senior and played in the Hula Bowl. He graduated with a degree in Business Communications. Born in Joliet, IL, Dave is one of four children. Single, he lives in Centreville, VA.

1988: Ray has little to distinguish his first two seasons in the NFL, but he's hoping that will change this year. He was placed on the physically unable to perform list last August because of a knee injury, which he suffered while practicing for the playoffs the previous season. He underwent arthroscopic surgery in the spring of '88 and spent the year in rehabilitation. He began working with the scout team in October.

Pro Career: 1987: Ray was one of the biggest surprises in training camp, but a back injury placed him on injured reserve until week 10. He was activated and played on special teams for five games before reaggravating the injury in week 14. He was placed on injured reserve prior to the regular season finale against the Minnesota Vikings and injured his knee in practice during the playoffs.

College, Personal: An Associated Press Honorable Mention all-America as a senior, Ray was also selected first team all-Big Ten by AP and UPI. He was originally an offensive guard, but made the switch to center his junior season. He was named second team all-Big Ten following his junior season. As a student athlete at Johnson High School in St. Paul, he served as senior class president and was named to the all-Conference, all-City, all-Metro and all-State teams his junior and senior years. He majored in Political Science and Business Management in Minnesota, and hopes to pursue a law career. A bachelor, Ray resides in Reston, VA.

1988 Season: After a season in which four different players punted at one time or another, the Redskins are hoping to find stability. Greg hopes he will be the one providing it after the Phoenix Cardinals did not protect him last spring. "He's one of the top punters to come out of college over the last few years and now he has NFL experience," Washington special teams' coach Wayne Sevier said. Greg punted in all 16 games for the Cardinals last season and averaged 40.9 yards in 79 punts. His long was 66 and he placed 16 inside the 20.

Pro Career: 1987: Greg was the second punter selected in the draft, chosen by the Bengals in the fifth round. He punted 19 times for a 39.3-yard average before being replaced by Scott Fulhage. He signed with the Cardinals in time to punt in the final six games, averaging 40.5 yards on 24 punts.

College, Personal: In addition to leading the nation in punting as a senior, Greg broke the Southwest Conference record of 46.6 yards set by Russell Erxleben (Texas). He earned first-team all-Southwest Conference honors. At Russellville High, he earned all-Conference and all-State honors and was regarded as one of the best kickers in Arkansas high school history.

1988 Season: It didn't take long for Stan to convince the Redskins that he has a bright future in the NFL. He's a drop-back passer with a powerful and accurate throwing arm. Stan enjoyed a strong preseason, completing 5 of 8 passes for 97 yards and a touchdown before being placed on the non-football injury-illness reserve list Sept. 3 with bocytopenia, a blood disorder. He played in three of four preseason games, and enjoyed his best game against the Raiders when he completed two of three passes for 77 yards, including a 62-yard touchdown pass.

Stan was named the Southland Conference Player of the Week on two occasions, and totaled a regular-season, single-game high 382 passing yards against McNeese State. He received all-SLC honorable mention honors as a junior and ranked second in the conference in both passing and total offense. Stan transferred from LSU to Northeast Louisiana in 1984. 1988 Season: Joe's size and strength have made him awfully hard for opposing defensive ends to move during his NFL career, but the Redskins decided to move Joe themselves in Week 13. Joe started the first nine games at left tackle, then missed the next three starts because of assorted nagging injuries (knee, ankle, groin). Jim Lachey shifted from right to left tackle when Jacoby was hurt and looked at home. So offensive line coach Joe Bugel decided to move Jacoby to the right side for the final four games. After playing 96 of his first 103 regular-season games at left tackle, Joe had to make some adjustments with the move. But he showed the same dependable style there that had earned him four trips to the Pro Bowl. With Joe at right tackle and Lachey at left, the Redskins' line allowed only two sacks in the final four games. "It took Joe a game or so to adjust to the new side, but he played great in the last three games," Bugel said. "I think he's hitting his golden years. He's still got everything it takes to be one of the best. Wherever you play Joe Jacoby, he's going to be great." Jacoby has been one of the team's most durable linemen. He has missed a total of 10 games in eight years (five in 1985 because of a knee injury).

Pro Career: 1987: Joe faced some of the best defensive ends in the League — Chicago's Richard Dent, Minnesota's Chris Doleman, Denver's Rulon Jones, New York's Leonard Marshall, to name a few — and he came out on top more often than not. Joe allowed only two sacks in three playoff games and only five in 12 regular-season games. "Without a doubt, he had the best season of his career. And you're talking about a guy who has made the Pro Bowl four times since coming into the League," Bugel said after the season. 1986: Joe made the Pro Bowl for the fourth consecutive year and played in every game for the fourth time in five seasons despite suffering a broken hand in the wild-card game against the Los Angeles Rams. He played the next two weeks with a protective cast. 1985: If they didn't realize at the time, the Redskins found out how valuable Joe was to their offense. He missed five games after spraining his right knee during a practice prior to Game 7, and then reinjuring it against Cleveland. In the five games Joe missed, a Redskins' runner gained 100 yards or more only once. Joe had started 55 straight games before the injury. Despite the missed playing time, Joe made the Pro Bowl for the third straight season and was named to United Press International's second-team all-Pro squad. 1984: Joe received the nickname "Jake the Quake" when he fell on a Keith Griffin fumble in the end zone against Minnesota to become the only Washington offensive lineman to ever score a touchdown. In an injury-riddled season, he was one of only eight players to start every game for the Redskins. In addition to making the Pro Bowl for a second straight year, he was named to a number of all-star teams, including the Associated Press all-Pro squad, the UPI all-NFC team, the Sporting News all-Pro team, the Pro Football Writers' all-Pro team and John Madden's all-NFL team. He was runner-up to teammate Russ Grimm in USA Today's NFC Lineman of the Year voting. 1983: Joe made his first Pro Bowl (along with teammates Grimm and Jeff Bostic) as well as a slew of all-star teams. He faced Dallas' Harvey Martin, Philadelphia's Dennis Harrison and St. Louis' Curtis Greer and didn't allow a sack. He limited Raiders' end Lyle Alzado to one tackle and ½ sack and San Francisco's Fred Dean to two tackles and one sack. 1982: Joe started all 13 games and played his first full season at left tackle as the Redskins became World Champions. 1981: Joe signed with the Redskins as a relatively unknown free agent. Nevertheless, Joe entered training camp with seven veterans and five draft picks as competition and came out a winner despite a brief absence because of the death of his mother. After alternating between guard and tackle the first eight weeks, he settled in at left tackle.

College, Personal: The pride of Louisville football, Joe co-captained the Cardinals' team his senior season and led them to the Independence Bowl. Born and raised in Louisville, Joe received all-America honors at Western High. "Jake" is a dedicated supporter of the American Heart Association and he and his wife, Irene, put together the Fifth Annual Joe Jacoby Celebrity Golf Tournament last May. 1988 Season: It was a year of surprises for Markus, who spent the offseason preparing for linebacker, but enjoyed his best pro season as a defensive end because of depth and injury problems. It ended too suddenly, however, when a back injury sidelined him after 11 games. In those games, Markus made six starts and recorded 46 tackles with 3½ sacks in his first extensive taste of playing. His best game came in Week 3 against Philadelphia when he recorded six tackles with three sacks in a 17-10 victory. The biggest was a 13-yard, third-down sack in the fourth quarter with the Redskins protecting their slim lead. In Week 5, Markus had a career-high eight stops (six solo) against the Giants, and was named Defensive Player of the Week for his play Week 10 against New Orleans. Twice in that game, Markus stopped Reuben Mayes inside the 10-yard line to help hold the Saints to field goal attempts. "His loss hurt because he was having a good year," defensive line coach Torgy Torgeson said. "He gives us a lot of flexibility along the defensive line."

Pro Career: 1987: Markus started the first two games of the season when Dexter Manley was sidelined with an injury, but spent most of the season in an apprenticeship role. In his first start against Philadelphia, he recorded a sack, and he also had a sack against St. Louis. His versatility was evident at Miami when he played tackle and linebacker in a 3-4 alignment. In the playoffs, he had three tackles against the Bears and shared a sack with Charles Mann. 1986: Markus served in a backup role at defensive end and tackle and also played some stand-up defensive end in a 3-4 package. In limited playing time, he recorded 10 tackles.

College, Personal: Markus has followed a most unique road to the NFL, beginning with his birth in Niedermarsberg, West Germany. He also attended high school at Eastwood Collegiate in Kitchener, Ontario before attending Boise State. His accomplishments at Boise State were too impressive to go unnoticed by the pro scouts. An Associated Press all-America as a senior, Markus recorded 11 sacks among his 49 tackles. His total of 27 career sacks helped earn appearances in both the Senior Bowl and the East-West Shrine game. Markus was named all-Big Sky Conference three consecutive years. An avid outdoorsman, Markus enjoys sailing and body-surfing. He and his wife, Rosemary, have one child, Zakary Barth, 1, and live in Alexandria.

1988 Season: The 1988 season was a Tale of Three Cities for Jim, who started the year in San Diego and spent the preseason and opening day in Los Angeles before finding a home in Washington. There were also position changes as Jim moved between right tackle and left tackle. Washington offensive line coach Joe Bugel plans to keep Jim on the left side, however, after watching him play there in the final four games last season. "He has all the athletic tools to be a great one," Bugel said. "What he needs is upper body strength. He can dance with you; he's a great pass blocker. He's a natural 300 pounds, a super athlete, and he's got great recovery." Jim needed that recovery ability for the '88 season. He began with the Chargers, but was traded to the Raiders in July before reporting to training camp. Jim started in the Raiders' season-opening victory over the Chargers, then learned of his trade to the Redskins after the game. He arrived in Washington on a Wednesday and was pressed into game service four days later against the Steelers. The following week, Jim moved into the starting lineup at right tackle against the Eagles and remained there until he moved to left tackle against the Browns in Week 13. With Jim anchored at left tackle, the Redskins allowed a total of two sacks during the final four games.

Pro Career: 1987: Jim made his first Pro Bowl appearance when an injury moved him into the game from his alternate slot. He was also a second team all-NFL choice by Associated Press and first team All-AFC choice by UPI while earning his second straight Lineman of the Year selection from his teammates.

1986: There was no sophomore slump for Lachey, who was voted Pro Bowl alternate by AFC players in only his second season. Charger teammates voted Lachey as the team's Lineman of the Year. The year solidified his reputation as one of the top young offensive linemen in pro football. 1985: The fifth offensive lineman selected in the 1985 draft and the 12th player overall, Jim made an immediate impact with the Chargers. He moved into the starting lineup at left tackle on opening day playing beside veteran Ed White and displayed a maturity and savvy unusual for a first year player. Jim was named to the all-rookie teams of UPI, Football Digest, and the Pro Football Writers of America. United Press also named him second team All-AFC and first team all-Pro by the Rocky Mountain News. In addition, his teammates selected Jim as the Chargers Outstanding Rookie.

COLLEGE, PERSONAL: Jim left a mark on Ohio athletics on the high school and college levels. He played guard for the Ohio State Buckeyes and earned all-America honors from the Football Writers and UPI as a senior along with all-Big Ten honors. Jim also played in the East-West Shrine game and earned a degree in marketing. Buckeye bred, he grew up in St. Henry, OH, where he played football, basketball, and track for the St. Henry High Redskins. In track, Jim ran the 100 meters (11.2), 200 meters (22.7), 400-meter relay, and put the shot (61-5) and started as a sophomore forward on a state champion basketball team. 1988 Season: Chip's rookie season was not for anyone afraid of roller coasters, an up-and-down ride in which he demonstrated the heart and ability to be among the League's best kickers. "We learned a lot about Chip and he learned about the NFL last year," coach Joe Gibbs said. Lohmiller learned about the peaks and valleys early when he kicked a 19-yard field goal with 10 seconds remaining to give the Redskins a 30-29 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers in Week 2. Fate was not so kind three weeks later when a missed an extra point and 36-yard field goal contributed to a 24-23 loss to the Giants. After eight games, Chip was 10-of-16. He was 9-of-10 in the final eight games, including two game-winning kicks. Against the Saints in Week 10, he made a 23-yard field goal with only 47 seconds remaining to key a 27-24 victory. Week 14 was even more dramatic as Chip drilled a 44-yarder with only one second remaining for a 20-19 victory over the Eagles. At Cincinnati, he narrowly missed another game-winning kick when it hit the right upright with 11 seconds remaining and the game tied. The miss broke a string of 10 consecutive field goals. The Redskins were so impressed with Chip's rookie season that they decided not to bring in another kicker to compete with him in training camp. "I am certainly impressed with what I've seen," said special teams' coach Wayne Sevier. Sevier can also check out Lohmiller's punting style against Dallas when Tom Barnhardt was injured in pregame warmups. Lohmiller replaced him, averaging 34.6 yards on six kicks.

College, Personal: Chip is regarded as the best kicker in the University of Minnesota history, and his records reflect that reputation. He broke school records for the longest field goal (62 yards), field goals made (53), and points scored (254). As a senior, he converted 16 of 19 field goals and all 27 extra point tries. For his career, Lohmiller converted 57 of 73 field goal tries and 97 of 99 extra points. He was chosen first team all-Big Ten as a junior and second team as a senior. As a sophomore, he kicked a school record 10 consecutive field goals. He also picked up valuable punting experience, kicking 20 times for 693 yards. A business major, Chip was selected a football all-State at Woodbury (MN) High School, and also earned letters in hockey, golf, and track.

1988 Season: Dexter's brightest moment came in Week 5 against the New York Giants when he came off the bench to sack quarterback Phil Simms four times, tying Diron Talbert's Redskins' record. Dexter had strained his right hamstring the previous week in Phoenix and didn't start against New York. But when Markus Koch, who started the game at right end, sprained his right knee early in the second half, Dexter entered. Within a seven-minute span that covered the third and fourth quarters, Dexter single-handedly thwarted two Giants' drives. In all, he dropped Simms for 33 yards in losses. His first two sacks had the Giants facing fourth-and-27 from their 14-yard line. After the ensuing punt, the Redskins assembled a 63-yard touchdown drive, which pulled them within one point of the lead. Dexter again took over on New York's next possession, sacking Simms on first and second downs and setting the stage for a third-down interception by linebacker Wilber Marshall. Over the following 11 weeks Dexter added five sacks to finish with nine, which led the team. He now has led the team in sacks in four of the last five seasons and is the Redskins' all-time leader with 87. He also holds the team record for most sacks in a season (18 in 1986). In addition to his nine sacks last season, Dexter added 16 quarterback hurries and 52 tackles despite missing training camp. "Dexter started slowly but he came on at the end," defensive line coach Torgy Torgeson said. "The missed time in camp hurt him, but he still showed us that when he is in top form he can rush the passer about as good as anybody."

Pro Career: 1987: Dexter missed the first two games of the season because of a sprained right knee and didn't get into full swing until after the strike. He played his best football in the playoffs, sacking Minnesota quarterback Wade Wilson and Denver's John Elway 1½ times each in the NFC Championship Game and in the Super Bowl. For the regular season, Dexter finished second on the team in sacks with eight and had 17 quarterback hurries. 1986: In his best season to date, Dexter shattered the Redskins' record for sacks in a season with 18, finishing second in the NFL to New York's Lawrence Taylor. He accomplished a long-time goal; he made the Pro Bowl. He also made every other all-star team imagineable. 1985: Redskins' coaches thought Dexter should have made the Pro Bowl. Dexter finished with 15 sacks, fourth-best in the NFL, and became the team's all-time leader in sacks. He finished with 76 tackles and forced one fumble. 1984: Dexter's 13½ sacks were tops on the team and fourth in the NFC. He earned Defensive Player of the Game honors twice with a season-high of three sacks coming in Week 11 against Detroit. He tied for second on the team with two forced fumbles and also recovered one. 1983: Wearing a mohawk haircut and calling himself "Mr. D," Dexter registered 11 sacks, second on the team behind Dave Butz's 11½. He added 55 tackles, a forced fumble and even intercepted a pass, against the New York Giants in Week 11. 1982: Dexter's NFC Championship Game against Dallas was memorable. He knocked quarterback Danny White out of the game in the first half, then late in the fourth quarter tipped a Gary Hogeboom pass into the hands of defensive tackle Darryl Grant, who scored a victory-clinching touchdown. He led the team with 6½ sacks in nine regular season games, recorded 48 tackles and one forced fumble. He intercepted the first pass of his NFL career against New York in Week 11. 1981: Dexter was used as a pass-rushing specialist the first seven games before working his way into the starting lineup at right end. He finished with six quarterback sacks, 53 tackles and a forced fumble. He also lined up as the outside man on punt coverage and totaled 23 special teams hits.

1988 Season: When Charles came into the League in 1983, his primary goal was to earn respect from his peers. He has earned it. Despite being hampered by assorted injuries that forced him to miss two games and portions of two others, Charles was selected to the NFC Pro Bowl squad for the second consecutive year. Still, Charles expressed some disappointment about his performance in '88 because his playing time and statistics were down from previous seasons. His 68 tackles still were the second highest among Red-skin defensive linemen (behind Darryl Grant's 109), and he led the team in hurries with 17. His 5½ sacks ranked second behind Dexter Manley's 9. Occasionally he was moved inside to nose tackle and even flipped sides with Manley once or twice just to keep opposing offensive linemen on their toes. When Charles was healthy, he kept opponents hopping no matter where he lined up. His best games came against the Houston Oilers (six tackles, one sack) and the Cincinnati Bengals (five tackles, one sack). He started the season off right with a sack on Monday night against the New York Giants but suffered a hip-flexor injury the following week against the Pittsburgh Steelers and did not play in Week 3 against Philadelphia. Charles started the next two games before the hip flexor and a sprained ankle placed him on the inactive list in Week 6 against Dallas. He didn't start the following week against Phoenix but came off the bench to register his second sack of the year. He started the remaining nine games, but didn't reach 100 percent until toward the end of the season. "Charles is a very important part of our defense and his injuries hurt us last season," defensive coach Richie Petitbon said. "When he's healthy, he's as valuable as any player we've got."

Pro Career: 1987: Players around the League didn't publicly recognize Charles' abilities his first four seasons, but in '87 Charles made sure he couldn't be overlooked. He finished the season with a team-high 10 sacks, 21 quarterback hurries and 80 tackles, sixth on the team and first among defensive linemen. He registered two or more sacks in four of 12 regular-season games and made his first Pro Bowl trip. 1986: Charles picked up in '87 where he had left off in '86. He had 10 sacks and 16 quarterback hurries, both second on the team behind Manley, who made the Pro Bowl that year. Petitbon believed that both ends should have made the Pro Bowl that season. 1985: Charles' 14½ sacks ranked fourth in the NFC and second on the team behind Manley's 15. He added 21 hurries and 85 tackles and was just one of 11 players on the team to start every game in an injury-filled season. 1984: Charles started 15 games and finished with 85 tackles, 7½ sacks, 15 hurries and three forced fumbles. 1983: Redskins' coaches held high opinions of Charles when they drafted him, but they brought him along slowly as a rookie, playing him at left end behind Todd Liebenstein. He started one game and finished the season with 18 tackles and three sacks.

College, Personal: At Nevada-Reno, Charles was voted the Most Valuable Defensive Lineman in the Big Sky Conference in 1981 and '82. As a senior, his 14 sacks led the Conference. He finished third on his team with 76 tackles and was voted a Division I-AA all-American. At Valley High School in 1988 Season: As a free agent, Greg went into training camp with little fanfare, but by season's end the coaches were using his name when discussing the future. "He's an excellent prospect," said Richie Petitbon. "He's very aggressive and intelligent, and he did a great job on special teams." It was Greg's reckless style that caught the eye of the coaching staff, but a preseason thigh injury sidetracked him until Week 10 when he came off the injured reserve list. He recorded 10 special teams' hits, and one tackle in limited defensive play.

College, Personal: Greg was the Colonial League Defensive Player of the Year as a senior when he recorded 134 tackles and four sacks. A four-year letterman, he was all-League as a junior as well when he made 162 tackles with a team high five sacks. His best day was a 23-tackle effort against Holy Cross his junior season. How Acquired: Signed as a free agent March 18, 1988.

Games Played/Started: 74/59 - CHI. 1984 (15/1)[2/0]; 1985 (15/15)[3/3]; 1986 (16/15)[1/1]; 1987 (12/12)[1/1]; WR 1988 (16/16).

1988 Season: The year was anything but normal for Wilber. In March, he became the first NFL free agent to switch teams since 1977. Training camp brought a media microscope, but more significantly a new system to learn. After he settled into his right linebacker position, he was plagued by a tender knee in the second half of the season. The knee eventually required arthroscopic surgery in January, but Wilber was one of seven players who did not miss a start. The distractions were many, but Wilber responded with a solid season. He finished fourth in tackles with 134, including 79 solos. His four sacks were third on the team, his three interceptions tied for second, and his three forced fumbles tied for first. The Redskins expected big plays, and Wilber delivered. Against the Giants in Week 5, his third-quarter sack forced a New York punt that led to a Redskins' touchdown. With Washington trailing 24-23, Marshall intercepted a Phil Simms' pass on the ensuing series and gave the Redskins the ball at the Giants' 29-yard line. Wilber recorded interceptions in three consecutive games — Phoenix (Week 4), NY Giants (Week 5), and Dallas (Week 6). He made 14 tackles (13 solo) with a sack versus Phoenix in Week 7, 13 tackles against Pittsburgh in Week 2. There also was a 10-tackle day against the Bears. "He gave us a real impact player who we feel will even be more productive in his second year as a Redskin," defensive coordinator Larry Peccatiello said. "His knowledge of our system combined with his speed and quickness will be a big plus."

Pro Career: 1987: Wilber earned his second Pro Bowl trip after finishing third in team tackles with 93, including 53 solos. He was spectacular in the season opener against the Giants, making three sacks. Ironically, he concluded his career in Chicago as the Bears' leading tackler (with eight) in a Divisional loss to the Redskins. 1986: A typical Marshall season earned Wilber a trip to the Pro Bowl and consensus all-pro status. He began the year with a 58-yard touchdown interception on opening day. On October 26, he scored the Bears' only touchdown in a 13-7 victory over the Lions. He sacked Eric Hipple, stripped the ball, and ran 12 yards for the score. In December, he was named NFC Player-of-the-Month. His five interceptions were the most by a Bears' linebacker since 1976 and Wilber also had 5½ sacks and four forced fumbles. 1985: Wilber emerged as a starter while the Bears became Super Bowl Champions. Although missing one game with the flu, he finished third in tackles with 78 and fourth in sacks with six. He also led Bears' linebackers with four interceptions. He made eight tackles and two interceptions to key a victory over the Vikings. The playoffs brought more. Against the Rams, Wilber recorded his first NFL touchdown with a 52-yard fumble return, and followed with a sack and fumble recovery in Super Bowl XX. 1984: The Bears gradually worked Wilber into the system, using him primarily on special teams and in short-yardage situations. He started one game — against Dallas November 30.

College, Personal: This Gator garnered virtually every honor at Florida as a consensus all-America and a Lombardi Award finalist as a senior. With opponents trying to avoid him his senior season, he still recorded 95 tackles, two interceptions, eight tackles for losses, and six sacks. His foes were not as wise the previous season. He made made 123 tackles and six sacks. His 11 sacks as a sophomore broke the Florida single-season record. He earned all-America honors at Astronaut High in Titusville, FL. He married the former Janelle Johnson last March. The couple live in Great Falls, VA.

1988 Season: Opposing defensive linemen didn't have much success running over Mark, but players around the League knocked him off his feet when they selected him to the NFC Pro Bowl squad. After being passed up his first seven seasons, Mark had dismissed the idea of earning a free trip to Hawaii in January. But Mark's performance in '88 was just too good to overlook. The Redskins' only offensive player to start every game, Mark missed only four plays all season and allowed only one sack in 592 pass attempts. Not only was he the team's most durable offensive lineman, he was its most versatile. Starting the season at right tackle, Mark moved to right guard prior to Game 3 in order to make room for tackle Jim Lachey. Mark and Jim teamed on the right side for the next seven games before an injury to Joe Jacoby moved Lachey to left tackle and Mark back to right tackle in Game 10. Mark stayed there for three games before moving back to right guard prior to Game 13, against Cleveland. Mark and Jacoby teamed on the right side for the final four games. Mark's selection to the Pro Bowl excited many of the Redskins who thought Mark had deserved the honor in previous seasons. "Mark's choice is really special," coach Joe Gibbs said. "He's been a great Redskin. You don't know if a lot of his good plays are going unnoticed or not." The Touchdown Club of Washington agreed with Gibbs and named May the team's Most Valuable Player on offense.

Pro Career: 1987: Mark's consecutive-game streak ended at 50 when he tore the medial collateral ligament in his right knee during the final preseason game, against the Los Angeles Rams. He returned to start the first game after the strike, against the New York Jets. Mark allowed only five sacks in '87 and finished second on the team in hurries-allowed behind tackle Joe Jacoby. "Year in and year out, he's one of the most tenacious football players in the League," Bugel said. 1986: Mark settled in at right tackle and solidified his reputation as being one of the most dependable players on the team. Through his first six seasons, Mark missed only one game. 1985: Except for a brief rest in the late stages of the San Francisco game, Mark played every minute of every game. He was the team's only offensive lineman to be named Offensive Player of the Game twice that season, and was a force on a unit that paved the way for the League's second-ranked rushing game. 1984: In a season in which the offensive line was riddled with injuries, Mark played every position except for center and allowed only three sacks, the lowest total on the team. 1983: Mark started at right guard for the second consecutive season. He was labeled by line coach Joe Bugel as one of the most improved players on the team. The Redskins scored 30 rushing touchdowns, many of them directly over Mark's right side. He made a key fumble recovery in Week 8 against Detroit at the Lions' 11-yard line. 1982: Mark moved to right guard after playing tackle his first season. He started all nine regular-season games and alternated against Fred Dean during the playoffs. 1981: No one in the Redskins' organization probably realized it at the time, but when Mark got into a shoving match with Fred Cooke during the first practice of his rookie training camp, he set a code that he would live by throughout his playing career, No defensive lineman pushes Mark around and gets away with it. Mark was thrust into a starting role at left tackle because Terry Hermeling retired before the season. He had to adjust to a new side after playing right tackle in college. Mark played in all 16 games despite suffering a broken nose and a hip pointer. He started eight.

College, Personal: As a senior at the University of Pittsburgh, Mark won the 1980 Outland Trophy, which is awarded to the nation's top interior lineman. He was a first-team all-American and helped the Panthers to a 38-8-1 record over his four-year career. He was named Pitt's Lineman of the Week 16 times and, amazingly, did not allow a quarterback sack over his final two seasons. It was at Pitt where Mark started devoting a good portion of his time to charity. He worked closely with Children's Hospital. Two years after leaving Pitt, he presented the school's Booster Club with a check for $10,000 in gratitude for the opportunity the school gave him. In Washington, he has helped raise approximately $1 million for the Juvenile Diabetes Association over the last seven years. He also is involved in the White House Team Up Against Drugs Campaign and the Gateway Program, a drug rehabilitation program for teenagers. In the spring of 1988, Mark embarked on the NFL's USO tour to South Korea. He had traveled with the tour two times before, visiting troops in Germany (1984) and South Korea (1985). This year, he is serving as Honorary Chairperson for the Christian Relief Services' Americans Helping Americans program, which helps fill the daily needs of the homeless, hungry and poverty stricken. 1988 Season: Defensive coach Richie Petitbon likes what little he has seen of Martin. "He's really a big-time speed guy," Petitbon said. He should be a good press guy in man-to-man coverage." Martin ran the 100 meters in 10.5 seconds at Florida State. The Redskins were impressed enough with Martin's speed and ability to sign him off the Buffalo Bills' unprotected list last March. The Bills selected Martin in the 10th round (262nd overall) of the '88 draft, but didn't receive an opportunity to see him in a preseason game because he injured his left wrist early in training camp. He spent the season on injured reserve.

College, Personal: Martin teamed with Deion Sanders his senior season at Florida State to form one of the top cornerback tandems in the country. He started 10 of 11 games and had 55 tackles and 10 pass deflections. He didn't start against Miami but blocked a punt and made six tackles. In four seasons, he totaled 186 tackles, intercepted five passes, had 24 deflections, and recovered three fumbles. He made two starts as a junior but missed the Seminoles' all-American Bowl game against Indiana after suffering a knee injury late in the season. He started at left cornerback as a sophomore and was named to the second team all-South Independent squad. He started three games as a freshman after red-shirting his first year in 1983. 1988 Season: The doctor stood between Craig and a full-time starting role as back and eye injuries resulted in lost playing time. He had 23 receptions last season, ranking behind the Big Four of Sanders, Monk, Clark, and Bryant. Five, good for 50 yards, came at home versus the Giants. His most impressive game, however, came in Week 11 against Chicago when he caught three passes for 120 yards. A midseason back strain slowed Craig, and then an eye injury suffered in Week 13 against Cleveland ended his season. "He's a very instinctive player," tight end coach Rennie Simmons said. "He's not the fastest guy, but he's one of those guys who has a natural feel for the game."

Pro Career: 1987: Craig found the spotlight to his liking as he keyed an upset of the Cowboys before a national television audience October 19. It was his third start as a replacement player and Craig had seven catches for 108 yards, including four third-down receptions.

College, Personal: Beating the odds has been a way of life for Craig. He wasn't recruited out of Northport (NY) High School, but he worked his way into Santa Ana Junior College and earned all-America honors. There weren't any offers following junior college, either, but Craig finally got an opportunity at the University of Utah. 1988 Season: Raleigh proved what he is made of last season. He suffered the death of his mother the Saturday before Game 2 against Pittsburgh, but he gave the Redskins everything he could muster the entire season. He started the opener at left guard, moved to center in Week 3, then moved back to guard in Week 6. "He had a tremendous setback when his mom died," said offensive line coach Joe Bugel. "But he stuck with it. I don't think we have a harder worker on this team. He's ready to blossom." Raleigh will battle Russ Grimm for the starting spot at left guard. No matter who wins the competition, Raleigh figures to play a lot in '89.

Pro Career: 1987: Raleigh played center and guard as the situation dictated. He was the Redskins' only offensive lineman to play every play. He also never missed a practice. "He has a great work ethic and great determination," Bugel said. Minnesota Vikings' defensive tackle Keith Millard said of Raleigh: "He's the best offensive lineman I faced all season." 1986: Raleigh earned his first NFL start in San Diego and was named Offensive Player of the Game by his coaches. He started three of the five games in which the line didn't allow a sack. As an added twist, the Redskins used Raleigh as a blocking back, at times, in the NFC Championship Game against the New York Giants. 1985: One of the surprises of training camp, Raleigh made the team as an unheralded 11th-round draft choice. He played in six games; his biggest moment came in Week 15 against Cincinnati when he threw the key block that sprung George Rogers 34 yards for the winning touchdown.

College, Personal: Raleigh's coach at Tennessee, Johnny Majors, called him "one of the best offensive linemen I've been around." Raleigh played center mostly for the Vols, and culminated his career with an appearance in the Japan Bowl all-star game. Raleigh's twin brother, Reggie, played linebacker at Tennessee and is now a linebacker for the Phoenix Cardinals. Raleigh hails from Knoxville, TN, and attended Austin-East High School, where he played fullback and inside linebacker. Raleigh finished third in his class at Austin-East; Reggie finished first and was valedictorian. Raleigh recently married, and he and his wife, Martha, live in Burke, VA.

1988 Season: The Redskins knew when they drafted him that Carl wouldn't be a factor last year; he still was recovering from a broken leg sustained during his senior season in college. He started practicing with the scout team during the season, and coaches believe Carl can compete for a corner position this year.

College, Personal: Carl was a second-team all-Gulf Star Conference selection as a junior, but suffered a broken leg (right femur) on opening day of the '87 season. The Redskins still thought his potential was worth the risk. Carl ran the 40 in 4.38 seconds as a freshman and earned a starting spot. He recorded two interceptions each of his three years as a starter. A three-sport performer at Gainesville (TX) High, he was an all-District selection in football, basketball, and track.

Brian Davis, Todd Bowles and the rest of the Redskins' secondary have something to prove this season.

How Acquired: Selected in first round of 1980 draft (18th overall).

Games Played/Started: 125/114 — 1980 (16/10); 1981 (16/16); 1982 (9/9); 1983 (12/11)[3/3]; 1984 (16/16)[1/1]; 1985 (15/14); 1986 (16/16)[3/3]; 1987 (9/9)[1/0]; 1988 (16/13)

1988 Season: Art moved into 11th place on the League's all-time receiving list, raising his career total to 576 catches. He needs only four catches to move past Harold Jackson into 10th place. He ranks second in team annals behind Hall-of-Fame receiver Charley Taylor, who made 649 catches from 1964-77. "Art has a lot of qualities that Charley had," said Bobby Mitchell, a Hall of Fame receiver and the Redskins' assistant general manager. "He's big, he's strong and he's fast. I used to call guys like him semi-tight ends in my day. He's a wide receiver with good size and strength. When you have a guy with that kind of ability you want to get him the ball as much as you can." The Redskins did that last season. Art caught 72 passes, the fourth-highest single-season total in his stellar nine-year career. Of those, 10 were 25 yards or longer. Art caught nine passes in a game twice — in Week 2 against Pittsburgh (86 yards) and Week 12 in San Francisco (89 yards). His biggest yardage day came in Week 15 against Dallas (seven catches, 103 yards). His longest touchdown was a 46-yarder against Phoenix in Week 7; he also scored on a 19-yarder that game. Art's 14-yard catch in the fourth quarter against Pittsburgh set up Chip Lohmiller's game-winning 19-yard field goal. His 21-yard touchdown catch gave the Redskins a 10-0 lead against Green Bay. As in past seasons, Art's versatility was invaluable. He played wide receiver and H-back, at times, in the team's one-back offense. He ran seven times for 46 yards and even threw a pass. Art has now caught at least one pass in 84 consecutive games in which he has played (92 including playoffs).

Pro Career: 1987: Art finished the regular season with 39 catches for 523 yards. He missed the last three regular-season games and two playoff games after tearing ligaments in his right knee in Game 12 against the St. Louis Cardinals. Art returned for Super Bowl XXII and his 40-yard catch with eight minutes left in the first quarter marked Doug Williams' first completion and set the tone for the day. 1986: Art became the only receiver in Redskins' history to register three straight 1,000-yard seasons and to catch 70 or more passes in three straight. His 1,068 yards ranked third in the NFC and his 73 catches ranked sixth. 1985: Art's 91 receptions led the NFL and his 1,226 yards ranked third. He registered six 100-yard games in the last eight. He made his second straight Pro Bowl appearance and was named to almost every all-star team. 1984: Art caught a League record 106 passes, breaking the mark of 101 set by the Oilers' Charlie Hennigan in 1964. He caught eight or more passes in six games and had five 100-yard games. In Week 2 against San Francisco, he caught 10 passes for 200 yards, becoming only the fourth receiver in Redskins' history to hit the 200-yard mark. He was voted the team's MVP, was selected to the Pro Bowl. 1983: Art missed the first four games with a sprained knee but returned to start the final 11 regular-season games. He finished with 47 catches for 746 yards (second on the team in both categories) and added eight catches for 121 yards in the playoffs. 1982: After leading the team during the regular season with 35 receptions (447 yards), Art missed the Redskins' drive to the Super Bowl with a broken foot, which he suffered in the final regular-season game against the Cardinals. 1981: Art's 894 yards receiving were the most by a Redskin since 1967. He led receivers in touchdowns with six and scored a 79-yarder against St. Louis. He finished second on the club with 56 catches and a 16-yard per catch average. 1980: As the club's first No. 1 draft choice since 1968, Art was a unanimous selection to the NFL's all-Rookie team and broke the club's rookie receiving record, which previously was set by Charley Taylor in 1964. Art finished with 58 catches (10th in the NFC) for 797 yards and three touchdowns. He received his first NFL start in Week 7 against St. Louis at RFK.

College, Personal: Art set receiving records at Syracuse catching 102 passes for 1,644 yards. He also rushed for 1,140 yards and gained 1,105 yards in returns for a total of 3,889 yards. Art never missed a game or a practice in 1988 Season: Jamie started the year as "Joe's little brother" and finished it by setting a new NFL record for most rushing attempts in a single game. In earning his own identity, he moved from a little-used reserve at season's beginning to the Redskins No. 1 back the final three games. "With his season ending effort, it's evident he can withstand the punishment despite his size," says running back coach Don Breaux. Morris finished the season rushing a record 45 times for 152 yards in the season finale against the Bengals. The performance erased the League mark of 43, which had been held by Butch Woolfolk and James Wilder. Jamie had moved into the starting lineup two weeks earlier and sparked a 20-19 upset of Philadelphia with 84 yards on 19 attempts. He earned that starting chance when he came off the bench to gain 74 yards against Cleveland. In the final four weeks of the season, Jamie rushed for 335 yards after the Skins had gained only 226 yards rushing the previous four games. "He's a smart, tough player, who readily understands our concept," says Breaux. Most of his first season was spent on special teams, where he led the team with 21 kickoff returns for a 19.7 yard average. During the first 12 weeks of the season, Jamie had just 30 rushing attempts. The highlight of those carries was a 27 yard touchdown dash in Week 3 against the Eagles. He also scored in Week 2 on a one yard touchdown run versus the Steelers.

College, Personal: Jamie finished strong as a freshman at Michigan and followed with three consecutive 1,000 yard seasons. He was the first rusher in Wolverine history to gain 1,000 yards in three seasons and compiled 4,393 yards in his career. A brilliant senior season capped his career when Jamie rushed for 1,469 yards and combined for 1,972 yards while earning All-Big Ten honors. He saved the best for last when he rushed for a Hall of Fame Bowl record 234 yards and three touchdowns against Alabama in a 28-24 vic-

1988 Season: Cardinals' special teams coach Marv Braden called Morris the Goose Gossage of long-snappers because of the velocity Mike put on his snaps. But unfortunately for both Phoenix and for Mike, Morris tore the medial collateral ligament in his right knee last summer and spent the season on injured reserve. After the Cardinals did not protect Mike, the Redskins signed him. "He comes highly recommended," said offensive line coach Joe Bugel. "He's got good size for a long snapper and he also can contribute in the interior line."

Pro Career: 1987: Mike signed with Phoenix May 23, 1987. He suffered a sprained thumb midway through the season and wore a partial cast, missing two games. 1983-86: Mike spent time in training camp with Michigan (1983), Arizona (1985) of the United States Football League, and the Broncos (1986).

1988 Season: For a beer and pretzels kind of guy, Neal certainly resembled a fine wine last season. He got better with age. He played so well that teammates selected him the team's Most Valuable Defensive Player. In his 10th season, Neal registered 153 tackles, second on the team behind strong safety Alvin Walton, despite coming out on passing downs. Olky now has finished either first or second on the team in tackles in eight of his 10 seasons. He led the team last season with three recovered fumbles and forced a fumble, had two sacks and seven quarterback hurries. "He probably had as good a season as he's had since I've been here," said defensive coordinator and linebacker coach Larry Peccatiello. Olky gives Washington a tough, experienced player in the middle on running downs. In 10 years, he has missed eight games (not counting the three strike games in '87). Olky was named the team's Defensive Player of the Week for his 13-tackle performance in Game 2 against Pittsburgh. He had back-to-back 15-tackle games, his season highs, against Cleveland and Philadelphia in Weeks 13 and 14. Overall, Neal had seven games in which he finished with 13 or more tackles. "I think Olky epitomizes the kind of character we've strived to develop in our players here over the years," Peccatiello said. "He's a hard worker, he plays despite injuries, he's a tough guy, and he's always prepared. To sum it up, Olky is a Redskin."

Pro Career: 1987: Neal overcame a number of obstacles during the Redskins' trip to Super Bowl XXII. He tore knee cartilage in the first preseason game and was placed on the physically unable to perform list until after the strike. That snapped a streak of 73 straight games, which at that time was the longest on the team. He was the team's player representative during the 24-day walkout. Still, he finished with 81 tackles (fifth best on the team), two sacks and three pass deflections. 1986: Olky's 183 tackles were the second-highest of his career and led the team. He was named Defensive Player of the Week in back-to-back games against Minnesota and Green Bay. 1985: Neal's 174 tackles were second-best on the team. He had a 16-tackle game against Atlanta and led the team with four forced fumbles. 1984: Even though he came out on most passing downs, Neal led the team in tackles for a second straight season (with 149). He was just one of two Washington defensive players to start every game, and also played special teams, leading starters with 52 hits. His high-tackle game (16) came in Week 14 against Minnesota. 1983: The Redskins' defense led the league against the run and Neal led the Redskins' defense in tackles with 144. He added two sacks, two forced fumbles, two recovered fumbles and an interception against San Diego on Monday night. 1982: Neal fit right into the middle of a unit that was nicknamed the "Blue Collar Crew." He finished with 88 regular-season tackles and 27 in the playoffs, both second on the team to Mark Murphy. His three fumble recoveries tied him for first on the team and he added two quarterback sacks and a forced fumble. He played the latter part of the season despite a sprained knee and underwent arthroscopic surgery after the season. To cap the season off right, the Redskins beat the Miami Dolphins in Super Bowl XVII on Neal's birthday. 1981: Neal posted the only two interception season of his career and scored his only touchdown. He intercepted a pass against Chicago and ran it in 10 yards for the score to help then first-year coach Joe Gibbs to his first victory in Washington. Neal intercepted another pass against New England. Finishing with 187½ tackles in 14 games, Neal averaged 13 tackles a game. A knee injury kept him out of the final two games. 1980: A preseason knee injury kept Olky out of the first five games but he returned to record 107 tackles and a fumble recovery. 1979: Neal was the first free agent the Redskins signed after the draft and he won a roster spot as the backup middle linebacker, beating out veterans Harold McLinton and Mike Curtis. He set a school record for most tackles in a season (188) and over his career had three fumble recoveries, two sacks, and a blocked punt. He earned his degree in Law Enforcement and spent two years (1980-81) as a Deputy in the Fairfax County Sheriff's Office. 1988 Season: Terry was one player who felt last season ended too soon. Given a chance at full-time status when an eye injury sidelined Craig McEwen in Week 13, Terry caught seven passes for 148 yards and two touchdowns in his three starts. The burst surpassed his totals for the previous two years and thrust him into the 1989 plans. "Terry is one of those players who you never have to worry about," coach Joe Gibbs said. "He's going to make the right decision and carry it out to the best of his ability." His first touchdown catch came in the fourth quarter against Philadelphia, putting the Redskins in position to win on a last-second field goal. A week later, he grabbed a 55-yard touchdown pass against the Cowboys. However, his longest reception was a 58-yard catch in Week 2 against Pittsburgh. Meanwhile, Terry maintained his superb special teams play, finishing fifth on the squad in total hits.

Pro Career: 1987: Special teams again proved Terry's forte, but a three-catch day in the finale against Minnesota proved crucial in a victory over the Vikings. The first half of the season was lost when a shoulder injury placed him on injured reserve prior to the opener. As a kick returner, Terry had four returns for 62 yards. 1986: Terry had only three catches as a rookie, but made the most of his chances. A 22-yard touchdown catch against the Cardinals provided the spark for a 20-17 Redskins victory. He was named Special Teams Player of the Game against San Diego.

College, Personal: There was no stopping Terry at the University of Texas, but his yardage was earned on the ground as a premier running back. The statistics tell the tale — 274 attempts for 1,279 yards (4.7-yard average) and 11 touchdowns. Most of the total (580 yards) came his senior season, but Terry also rushed for 265 yards as a junior. The brightest moment was an 82-yard gallop against TCU. A native of Savannah, Georgia, he moved to Texas and attended Cooper High in Abilene. Terry was a speech communications major at Texas. He and his wife, Rita, live in Centreville, VA.

Games Played/Started: 12/0 — NE 1986 (4/0); 1987 (7/0); 1988 (1/0).

1988 Season: An elbow injury suffered during preseason placed Eugene on the New England Patriots' injured reserve list until Oct. 22. He returned to play against Buffalo, then spent the rest of the season on the Patriots' inactive list. But the Redskins saw enough of Eugene to sign him off the Patriots' unprotected list. "He hasn't played much, but he looks like a big-time speed guy," said Richie Petitbon, assistant head coach in charge of the defense. "He's intelligent, and we think he has the potential to be a good cover guy."

Pro Career: 1987: Eugene played in five games, and blocked a punt against Philadelphia. He finished with five tackles and a deflected pass (against Buffalo). 1986: After signing with the Patriots as a free agent on May 15, Eugene spent from Aug. 18-Nov. 28 on injured reserve with a thumb injury, then played in his first pro game in Week 13 against New Orleans. He blocked a punt in that game, which Mosi Tatupu ran in for the go-ahead touchdown. He played in the last four regular-season games and against Denver in the playoffs.

College, Personal: Eugene moved from wingback to defensive back during his junior season at Yale. He didn't play as a freshman, concentrating on track. As a senior, he had 40 tackles, one interception, and recovered a fumble. He was honorable mention all-Ivy League as a cornerback. He also had an outstanding track career, breaking Calvin Hill's school record in the long jump with a leap of 26 feet, 2 inches. He also holds the school record in the 55 meters with a time of 6.32 seconds. Born in Baton Rouge, LA, Eugene attended Juniper Sera High School in Gardena, CA. He married Brenda Harris in August, 1988.

Pro Career: A workhorse for five years in the Canadian Football League, Willard spent last season on injured reserve after hurting his ankle in preseason play. It was a change of pace for a man who averaged 1,185 rushing yards a season during his CFL career. The Redskins want to get him back in the flow this year, and hope he can help cure their short-yardage blues. "He showed the ability to find the end zone in preseason play last year," said Gibbs. He scored three touchdowns in the preseason opener before being sidelined. Willard signed as a free agent with the Green Bay Packers in 1981, but spent the year on injured reserve. He moved to Winnipeg of the CFL in 1983 and rushed for 898 yards his first season. Three times he led the CFL in rushing.

College, Personal: A graduate of Coconino High School in Flagstaff, AZ, Willard stayed home to play at Northern Arizona and had the highest rushing average in the Big Sky Conference as a senior (7.2) with 807 yards in 112 carries. He also rushed for 1,087 yards as a junior. A police administration major, Willard hopes to pursue a law enforcement career after his playing days. He returned to Winnipeg for the offseason.

Games Played/Started: 91/66 — ATL 1982 (9/0) [1/0]; 1983 (14/0); 1984 (15/14); 1985 (16/16); 1986 (16/15); 1987 (12/12); 1988 (9/9)

1988 Season: Gerald is the National Football League's second most productive rusher over the last five seasons. His 5,895 yards are second only to Eric Dickerson's 8,107, and he now ranks 22nd on the NFL's all-time rushing list with 6,631 yards. His combined yardage of 8,015 was just 687 yards shy of Atlanta's club record, held by William Andrews. He owns the Falcons' club record for touchdowns scored with 48. Gerald suffered a sprained knee in Week 4 against Dallas and missed seven of the remaining 12 games. He was placed on the two-man inactive list five of those seven weeks. The injury prevented Gerald from registering his fifth consecutive 1,000-yard (combined) season. He gained 488 yards on 113 carries and caught 22 passes for 171. He was named NFC Player of the Week after totaling 179 yards (115 rushing, 64 receiving) in Game 3 at San Francisco. Gerald was a natural choice for the Redskins, who were looking for a big, powerful runner for their one-back offense.

Pro Career: 1987: Gerald became the only runner in the NFL to make the Pro Bowl after the '85, '86, and '87 seasons. He ran for 875 yards on 203 carries and gained another 199 on 25 catches to gain over 1,000 yards for the fourth consecutive season. The Redskins were one of Gerald's victims. He gained 120 yards on 23 carries and scored the winning touchdown on a 4-yard run in the Falcons' 21-20 victory over Washington in Week 2. 1986: Gerald's 1,327 yards rushing ranked sixth in the League. He had six 100-yard games and scored nine touchdowns. His top three performances resulted in three victories: 172 yards vs. Miami, 141 vs. the Rams and 129 vs. Tampa Bay. The Falcons' running game ranked third in the League. 1985: Gerald led the NFC in rushing with 1,719 yards, and he added 267 receiving to finish with a combined 1,986. His 397 carries still stand as the third-highest single-season total in NFL history (behind James Wilder's 407, Tampa Bay, 1984 and Eric Dickerson's 404, L.A. Rams, 1986). 1984: Gerald took over as the starter and in his first game rushed for 202 yards against New Orleans. His 13 touchdowns were second in the League and he had five 100-yard games. His 1,436 yards were fourth in the NFL. He missed Week 6 because of an ankle injury. 1983: Playing as a reserve, Gerald led the team with eight touchdowns. He carried 100 times for 437 yards despite missing two weeks with fractured ribs. 1982: The Falcons selected Gerald in the first round (ninth player overall) of the draft. He joined William Andrews and Lynn Cain in one of the League's top backfields and carried 78 times for 299 yards. He also caught 23 passes for 185 yards.

College, Personal: Gerald led the Pac-10 with a 6.0-yard average his senior season at Arizona State. He played in the East-West Shrine Game and the Olympia Gold Bowl after the season. In his career, he carried 392 times for 2,086 yards. Recruited by Frank Kush, Gerald played under three head coaches: Kush, Bob Owens, and Darryl Rogers. At Bonanza High in Las Vegas, Gerald lettered in football, basketball and track. In one game against neighboring Henderson High, he carried eight times and scored four touchdowns, gaining 236 yards. Born in Tilluha, LA, near the Mississippi line, Gerald is the oldest of five children. Gerald has a son, Gerald, Jr, 6.

How Acquired: Selected in sixth round of 1986 draft (146th overall).

Games Played/Started: 9/6 — 1986 (IR); 1987 (IR); 1988 (9/6)

1988 Season: After spending his first two professional seasons on injured reserve, Rip found out that playing quarterback in the NFL was worth the wait. He beat out Jay Schroeder in training camp for the No. 2 spot behind Doug Williams, and before he knew it he was leading the Redskins' offense against the Phoenix Cardinals in Week 4. Williams was sidelined with appendicitis the Wednesday before the Cardinals' game and Rip finally got his chance. Although the Redskins lost to Phoenix, Mark played better than any one could have expected, completing 26 of 41 passes for 303 yards and three touchdowns. He threw one interception. His statistics were better than those posted by Williams, Schroeder, Joe Theismann, Billy Kilmer, and Sonny Jurgensen in their first starts. Rip played well the following week against the Giants (16-of-27 for 282 yards and two TDs), but his first victory didn't come until a week later in Dallas. Mark's three touchdown passes keyed a 35-17 victory over the Cowboys and, suddenly, people were wondering where Rypien had been his first two seasons. Rip's roll continued the next week. He threw four TD passes against Phoenix at RFK to avenge his first loss as a starter, but his streak ended in the fourth quarter when he was slammed to the ground by two defenders. He bruised his right shoulder and Williams came back off injured reserve to start the following week. Except for some second-half relief duty against Chicago, Mark didn't get back into action until Week 13 when the Cleveland Browns came to RFK. Rip and the Redskins' offense were hampered by rainy weather and a muddy field but scored 13 second-half points to take a short-lived 13-10 lead with three minutes remaining. Mark started again the following week against Philadelphia, but left twice after bruising his right thumb. All in all, the season was an overwhelming success for Rip and set the foundation for 1989. Mark had entered training camp knowing that his career in Washington could either blossom or end in 1988, and he didn't take long to prove he deserved to play. "Going in, I wondered how I would do," Rypien said. "I knew the system, but how I carried it out would be interesting. This is just a great system. If you do what you're asked, you have a chance to be successful. All the pressure is not on your shoulders." Rip combined with Williams to set team records for net passing yards (4,136), attempts (592), completions (327), passing first downs (202) and touchdown passes (33). Their 33 touchdown passes and their 4,339 yards were tops in the League.

Pro Career: 1987: Mark spent his second straight season on injured reserve. He looked sharp in limited preseason performances, completing 8 of 14 passes for 145 yards, but injured his back in the preseason finale against the Los Angeles Rams and spent the season on IR. 1986: Mark impressed coaches in training camp but saw little playing time in preseason, completing 1 of 3 passes for 12 yards. He was placed on IR with a knee injury.

College, Personal: Rip's college career followed a path similar to that of his pro career. He had to wait before playing. Mark broke his collar-bone his sophomore year and did not play before rebounding to earn First-Team Pac-10 honors his junior season. He completed 134-of-270 passes for 1,927 yards and 14 touchdowns. As a senior, he did even better, completing 159-of-273 passes for 2,417 yards and 14 touchdowns. His yardage total was second in school history to Jackie Thompson's 2,702. The Cougars averaged 441 yards per game that season, another school record. At Shadle Park High in Spokane, Mark finished as one of the nation's top 10 career passers (423-849 for 6,460 yards and 65 touchdowns). As a senior, he was all-State in football, basketball, and baseball. Mark's younger brother, Tim, played on the United States' exhibition baseball team in the 1988 Summer Olympics. Born in Calgary, Rip majored in Physical Education. He and his wife, Annette, who is a former Redskinette, have a baby girl, Ambre, 1, and reside in Fairfax, VA.

1988 Season: While Ricky Sanders shared in the disappointment of last season, he certainly wasn't responsible. From the opening game against New York until the final minute of a frigid finale at Cincinnati, Ricky played superbly. His was a classic season, ranking with those of Redskins' Hall of Famers Bobby Mitchell and Charley Taylor. Ricky's 12 touchdown receptions tied the club record and were the most by a Redskins' receiver since 1965. Combined with 73 catches for 1,148 yards, Ricky was selected the team's 1988 Most Valuable Player by his peers. "Ricky had a fantastic season and I think it came from the mental approach he took from his first day in training camp until the last day of the season," said Taylor, now one of Sanders' coaches. "He had great work habits. If any one had any doubts about him, they shouldn't have them anymore." Actually, there were probably no doubters after Week 2. After warming up with five catches for 79 yards and a touchdown in the opener against the Giants, Ricky caught five passes for 145 yards against Pittsburgh, including a 55-yarder for a touchdown. He exploded again in Week 5 versus the Giants with seven catches for 141 yards and two touchdowns. A four-game midseason "lull" followed. Ricky caught just 12 receptions in that span. But the best was yet to come. An 8-yard, game-tying touchdown catch in the fourth quarter against the Saints in Week 10 provided the impetus for a 27-24 victory. Ricky finished the game with six catches for 98 yards. Two weeks later, he had six catches for 59 yards and two touchdowns at San Francisco. He had a season-high 10 catches for 128 yards and a touchdown in a 20-19 victory against Philadelphia in Week 14. He added another scoring catch against Dallas in Week 15, and completed the year with six catches for 120 yards and a touchdown against Cincinnati. The latter was his 12th touchdown catch of the season, tying him with Hugh Taylor (1951), Charley Taylor (1966), and Jerry Smith (1967) for the club record.

His 73 catches have been surpassed only four times in team history and his was only the ninth 1,000 yard season by a Redskins' receiver. However, post-season honors were scarce due, in part, to Ricky's reserve status in the receiver rotation system. He started only four games, but never complained despite his success.

Pro Career: 1987: The nation learned about Ricky Sanders when he smashed Lynn Swann's records in Super Bowl XXII. For Redskins' fans, it was no surprise. Ricky's 37 receptions in the regular season was a misleading total without a category for 'big' catches. Starting in Week 1 with four catches for 81 yards, Ricky flashed his ability but did not hit stride until midseason. Ricky had six catches for 96 yards in a crucial comeback victory over the Giants, and his 28-yard scoring catch with 4:56 remaining provided the winning points. A week later against St. Louis, his 54-yard, third-quarter catch set up a Redskins' score that gave the team a 31-17 lead. Next came a 47-yard reception against Dallas that set up George Rogers' game-winning score. In the final regular season game against Minnesota, Ricky set the stage for the postseason with eight catches for 164 yards, including touchdown catches of 51 and 46 yards. In the first-round victory over the Bears, Ricky recorded six catches for 92 yards, including a 32-yard grab to set up a score. A 28-yard reverse set up the Redskins' first touchdown against Minnesota in the Championship Game. The climax came in the Super Bowl when Ricky caught nine passes for 193 yards and two touchdowns. In shattering Swann's 161-yard record, Ricky played a role in five Super Bowl marks. 1986: After missing the first five games with leg injuries, Ricky caught 14 passes for 286 yards in limited play. His first NFL catch was good for 71 yards, against the the Giants, and his second came in Green Bay on a 26-yard touchdown grab, which tied the game. Ricky had five catches for 94 yards after starting for the injured Gary Clark against the Eagles. 1984-85: Playing in the Houston Gamblers' (USFL) run-and-shoot offense, Ricky was an immediate success with 101 catches for 1,378 yards and 11 touchdowns. Sanders had six games of 100 yards or more and 12 games with seven or more catches. His top game came against Pittsburgh when he caught eight passes for 227 yards. Despite being sidelined for eight games by an injury in '85, Ricky caught 48 passes for 538 yards and seven touchdowns.

College, Personal: Ricky's ability to run after a catch is no coincidence. He was a running back at Southwest Texas State, and finished third on the Bobcats' all-time rushing list with 878 yards on 151 attempts. As a senior, he rushed 141 times for 706 yards and caught 14 passes for 210 yards and a touchdown. He was the Most Valuable Player in the 1982 Palm Bowl with 104 yards on 25 carries. His talents are not limited to football. At Belton High School in Belton, TX, he qualified for the state meet in the pole vault, hurdles, and long jump. A native of Temple, TX, Ricky, his wife, Michelle, and daughter, Ashlynn, live in Centreville, VA.

How Acquired: Selected in sixth round of the 1987 draft (164th overall).

Games Played/Games Started: 22/3 — 1987 (6/3) [0/0]; 1988 (16/0)

1988 Season: The acquisition of Jim Lachey from the Raiders and the return of Russ Grimm from an injury limited Ed's playing time along the offensive line. However, Ed hopes to see more playing time this season. Joe Bugel plans to keep Mark May at guard and the Redskins are counting on Ed for depth at tackle. "Ed's closing in on it," Bugel said. "He's grown up the last two years. His overall toughness has really improved and we expect him to really challenge for a starting spot. He's as good an athlete as we have. I think he'll make a big push." Ed played mostly on special teams last season.

Pro Career: 1987: You couldn't ask for a tougher assignment than Ed was given in his first NFL game. But he came through. He faced Eagles' All-Pro Reggie White and not only lived to tell about it, he more than held his own as the Redskins generated 374 yards on total offense. The following week against the Falcons, Ed made his second start, taking the place of the injured Mark May. His third NFL start came at left guard against the Lions, but a sprained right knee in the third quarter sidelined him for the rest of the season. He underwent an arthroscopic examination on November 17 and was placed on injured reserve six days later.

College, Personal: Ed was a starter at Eastern Washington for four years and did not miss a play his final two seasons. He was named to the Kodak all-America first team his senior season. He caught the eye of Redskins' scouts at the Senior Bowl, where his quick feet and pass blocking skills were highlighted. His first two college seasons were hampered by nagging knee injuries. Despite his size, Ed already had demonstrated his athletic ability at Nathan Hale High in Seattle by lettering twice each in football, basketball, and soccer. Ed resides in Chantilly, VA, with his wife, Marcy.

1988 Season: Fred was active for the first five games and played as a pass-rushing specialist for the Los Angeles Rams. He made one sack for a three-yard loss and recovered a fumble before an ankle injury placed him on injured reserve the remainder of the season. The Redskins were impressed with Fred's quickness and potential, and they signed him off the Rams' unprotected list. "We think he's going to be an excellent pass rusher," defensive line coach Torgy Torgeson said. "He has good quickness and speed. We think all of his football is ahead of him."

Pro Career: 1987: Fred impressed Rams' coaches in training camp as a 12th-round draft choice, but a separated shoulder placed him on injured reserve the first five games. He was activated prior to Week 8 and played primarily as a pass-rushing specialist. He finished with five tackles and was credited with half a sack for minus four yards against Tampa Bay.

College, Personal: Fred began his career at Georgia Southern as a tight end but switched to offensive tackle his final three seasons. He was named Division I-AA first-team all-America his senior season. Born in Vidalia, GA., Fred (full name is Louis Frederick Stokes) married Regina Glenn over the offseason.

1988 Season: The Redskins are always looking for a player who can upgrade their special teams as well as fill a role on a unit, and they believe they've found one in Ralph. "We compare him to someone like Dean Hamel on special teams," offensive line coach Joe Bugel said. "He's big and he can run. We think he can contribute both on offense and on special teams." Ralph, who can also center for punts and field goals, has bench pressed 465 pounds and runs the 40 in 4.8 seconds. The New York Jets selected Ralph in the ninth round of the 1988 draft. He spent his rookie season on injured reserve with a pulled hamstring and a broken hand.

College, Personal: A Kodak all-America and all-Conference selection at West Chester, Ralph started at guard his junior and senior seasons and also ranked among the top in the country in the shot and discus throw. He holds the school record in the shot put (58-9) and the discus (174-4). He majored in Physical Education and worked as a bouncer during the summer. Born in Philadelphia, he was a track and football star at Bensalem High in his hometown of Bensalem, PA. A bachelor, Ralph enjoys hunting and fresh-water fishing.

1988 Season: Mike started all 16 games at tight end and had the most productive season of his career, catching 29 passes for 244 yards. His previous single-season highs were 15 catches for 150 yards (1986). Mike's best game of the season came against Kansas City when he caught five passes for 67 yards and returned a kickoff 17 yards. He was a logical selection for the Redskins when they were looking to sign unprotected players last February. He was a familiar name to local sports fans, having played quarterback at the University of Maryland, and his abilities as a blocker filled the team's need for depth at the tight end spot. "He gives us another big blocker," coach Joe Gibbs said. "He's experienced, we've seen what he can do, and he's our kind of player."

Pro Career: 1987: Mike started 12 games plus the AFC wild-card game. His 14 receptions were the second highest of his career at the time. His best game came against the Raiders when he caught three passes and scored a touchdown. 1986: Having caught a total of 10 passes the previous three seasons, Mike won the starting job in training camp and caught a career-high 15 passes for 150 yards. The only game Mike didn't start came against Cincinnati in Week 11. 1985: Mike filled the role as a reserve and special teams' player. He missed Weeks 7-13 with a broken ankle, which he suffered against Atlanta. Mike broke the ankle midway through the fourth quarter but continued to play on special teams. He returned for the last three games. Both of his catches came against Cleveland. 1984: Mike set a team record for most touchdown receptions by a tight end in a season, scoring three. He started eight of 16 games. He was a key member of the special teams that led the AFC in both punt and kickoff coverage. 1983: He played in 15 games as a short-yardage tight end and special teams' standout. His only start came against Dallas, when the Seahawks opened the game with three tight ends. He returned two kicks for 28 yards, including one for 19 against Kansas City. 1982: Mike took over as the starter during preseason and started all nine games. Of his nine receptions, four came in the opener against Cleveland. 1981: Signed originally as a quarterback, Mike moved to tight end and played in all 16 games as a rookie, starting three.

College, Personal: Mike was a three-year letterman and two-year starter at quarterback for Maryland. He completed 71 of 140 passes for 928 yards his senior season. He threw for five touchdowns and six interceptions. As a junior, he passed for 896 yards and five touchdowns. He was a member of the Terps' team that played in the Sun Bowl and Tangerine Bowl. Mike attended Central Islip High in Central Islip, NY, where he lettered in football, basketball and lacrosse. Mike is active with the Special Olympics, March of Dimes, Easter Seals, Children's Hospital, the Boy Scouts, Cystic Fibrosis, and the Variety Club. He was honored by the Boy Scouts for his work in the community and received the Byron "Whizzer" White Humanitarian Award in 1987. He owns two delis in Redmond, WA. 1988 Season: Clarence's value rose as the season progressed. He played nickel back, backup strong safety, linebacker in obvious passing situations, and he also proved a valuable backup at cornerback. "Clarence played a lot of different roles for us," said Richie Petitbon. "He's one of the most versatile players on our team." Clarence's best day came in Week 7 versus Phoenix when he made six tackles, but his biggest play of the season came in Week 13 when he sacked Cleveland quarterback Bernie Kosar. Clarence also was a key member of the special teams, finishing third on the squad in kick and punt coverage with 17 tackles.

Pro Career: 1987: Drafted as a "project," Clarence successfully made the switch to the secondary in the pro ranks. He played mostly special teams in five regular season games, but had his best performances in the playoffs. Playing at linebacker during obvious passing situations in the NFC Championship Game against Minnesota, he made five tackles, including a sack.

College, Personal: Clarence played linebacker at Northern Illinois and made 96 tackles as a senior. His 4.45 speed in the 40 convinced the Redskins to draft him as a safety. He transferred to Kishwaukee JC as a junior before 1988 Season: For most players, double figure tackle games are a highlight. For Alvin Walton, they are the norm. Alvin led the Redskins in tackles for the second straight season, racking up a career high 196 stops, including 116 solo. Twelve times Alvin had 10 or more tackles, including a season high of 18 twice, versus Chicago and at home versus New York. There was also a 16 tackle performance versus Dallas at home and 13 tackles versus the Cardinals at home. Seven tackles behind the line of scrimmage reflect Alvin's aggressive style of play. "Alvin probably had the best year of any one in the secondary," said assistant coach Emmitt Thomas. "He's a very consistent player and his play fluctuates little week to week." In a season where turnovers were at a premium, he accounted for six with three forced fumbles and three interceptions. The first theft came against Dallas and set up a Chip Lohmiller field goal. The second was against San Francisco and the third set up a score in the Skins' successful rally against the Eagles.

Pro Career: 1987: Alvin was all over the field while leading the team in tackles with 148 - forty more than the next Redskin. Like last year, his forte was consistency, reaching double figures in nine of 12 games. He averaged 12.3 tackles per game, and had 11 behind the line of scrimmage. His interceptions were timely. There was one in the end zone to stop a fourth quarter Ram drive and two against Minnesota when he saved the best for last. The final theft came with 1:03 remaining to end a Viking drive and preserve the Redskins' victory. 1986: A midseason injury to Ken Coffey opened the door for Alvin and he has not missed a start since. He finished the season seventh on the team in tackles despite making only four starts. His reckless style of play was obvious from opening week when he had ten hits on special teams. By season's end he was the special teams leader with 97 hits, but it was his secondary play that was catching the attention by then. He was solidly entrenched as the starter for the playoffs and responded in the Wild Card game versus the Rams with six tackles, a fumble recovery to set up the first score, and an interception in the fourth quarter to set up the final field goal. A week later against Chicago, Alvin recovered a third quarter fumble to set up a touchdown and a 21-13 lead.

College, Personal: It was not the normal college career for Alvin. He started at Mt. Jacinto Junior College and gained a scholarship to Kansas with all-Conference and all-State honors. In his first season with the Jayhawks, Walton started at left cornerback and made 58 tackles, two interceptions, and a blocked punt. However, a mix-up in classes left him ineligible for his senior season, possibly costing him a first round draft position. A native of Riverside, CA, Alvin attended Banning High School in Banning, CA, lettering in football, basketball, and baseball. He is single and lives in Reston, VA.

1988 Season: Donnie had the team's second-longest consecutive games-played streak going, behind cornerback Darrell Green, until sprained rib cartilage placed him on the inactive list for Games 5 and 6. Donnie originally suffered the injury in Week 3 against the Philadelphia Eagles but continued playing, and the coaches selected him the Offensive Player of the Game for his gutsy performance. Donnie again refused to sit down the following week, starting against Phoenix, but the injury was painful and affected his performance. He was placed on the inactive list the next two games before returning to the starting lineup. "I think if Donnie had to do it all over again, he would have sat out a couple of games immediately so that the injury could have healed right away," said tight end coach Rennie Simmons. "Instead, he tried playing with it and I don't think it ever really healed right until near the very end of the season." Despite his injury, Donnie was there when the Redskins needed him. His 32-yard reception of a Doug Williams' pass with five minutes remaining against New Orleans triggered the winning touchdown drive in a 27-24 victory. And as he has been throughout his career, Donnie was a key player in the Redskins' running game. "He's as important to our running game as any of our interior linemen," Simmons said.

Pro Career: 1987: Donnie caught seven passes and again played an important role in the running game. He played fullback, H-back and tight end. "He was a key to our game plan every week because of his versatility and the number of formations we used," Simmons said. 1986: Finishing the season as the eighth-ranked receiver in Redskins' history, Donnie caught 20 passes for 164 yards. He was named Offensive Player of the Game for his blocking in the wild-card game against the Los Angeles Rams. He caught four passes in a game twice, in St. Louis and against the New York Giants at RFK Stadium. His lone touchdown came in the fourth quarter of the regular-season finale against Philadelphia. 1985: One of three offensive players to start every game, Donnie caught 15 passes for 163 yards. His only touchdown (in the the first quarter against the New York Giants at RFK Stadium) turned out to be Joe Theismann's last TD pass. 1984: Don's biggest catch came in Week 15 against Dallas, one that came on third down and gave the Redskins a first down, allowing them to virtually run out the clock and preserve a 30-28 victory. On the season, Don caught 18 passes for 192 yards. 1983: Donnie's 20 catches for 225 yards ranked sixth on the team. He scored two touchdowns with a long gain of 33. His best game came on Monday night against Green Bay (four catches, 70 yards). Donnie was one of only nine who had been with the team five years or longer. He missed three games with a bruised back. 1982: The team's third-leading receiver, Don finished with 27 catches for 310 yards. He played a major role in the team's Super Bowl victory over the Miami Dolphins, catching five passes for 28 yards. Overall in the playoffs, he caught 11 passes for 72 yards. 1981: Don caught a pass in 15 of the 16 games, all of which he started. He finished with 29 catches for 335 yards, fourth best on the team. 1988 Season: It was the "good news, bad news" syndrome for Barry in '88. The good news was he led the team in interceptions for the second straight year and reconfirmed a growing reputation as one of the League's top cornerbacks. The bad news was a sprained knee limited him to only 10 games, killing any chances of post-season honors. "I think Barry proved that his play in '87 was no fluke," defensive coach Richie Petitbon said. "But, he didn't hit full stride until late in the year because of his injury." The injury was a knee sprain suffered in Week 2 against the Steelers, shelving Barry until Week 9 against the Oilers. The comeback may have been premature, but secondary injuries forced Wilburn back into the starting lineup. By Week 12, Barry had returned to form and recorded his first interception against San Francisco, setting up a Redskins' touchdown. He followed with another against Cleveland in Week 13 and added a third against Philadelphia in Week 14. Still not done, Barry intercepted a pass in the end zone against Dallas to stop a Cowboy drive in Week 15. The four interceptions led the Redskins, and leaves Barry with 16 interceptions in his last 25 games. He also had a fumble recovery against the Oilers to account for five of the Redskins' 22 turnovers.

Pro Career: 1987: It was the best of all worlds for Barry as he led the NFL in interceptions with nine while starting for the Super Bowl champions. An injury to Tim Morrison thrust Barry into the starting lineup in Week 1 and the heroics started immediately. A fourth-quarter interception at the Redskins' 4-yard line stopped a Philadelphia threat with Washington leading, 31-24 in the opener. Another fourth-quarter theft against the Lions at the 18-yard line helped preserve a 20-13 victory. Against Minnesota, he stepped in front of a Wade Wilson pass on the goal line and raced 100 yards for a touchdown, setting a Redskins' record. There were interceptions in six straight games at one point, and the post season proved to be only a larger stage for Barry. In Washington's win over the Bears, he had another interception. In the Super Bowl, Barry intercepted two John Elway passes to finish the season with a total of 13 in 15 starts. The one thing about his season that wasn't surprising was his first-team selection to the Associated Press all-Pro squad. 1986: Barry saw time as a part-time starter, and first displayed his "big-play" knack. In the opener, he forced and recovered a fumble against the Eagles. In San Diego, he had a key interception of a Dan Fouts pass to thwart a fourth-quarter Chargers' drive. He had a career-high 14 tackles (12 solo) against San Francisco, and made a fumble recovery on the first play against Dallas to set up a touchdown. In the playoffs against the Rams, Barry intercepted a Jim Everett pass with 39 seconds remaining to secure a 19-7 victory. 1985: Barry spent his initial NFL season as a nickel back after joining the Redskins as an eighth-round draft choice. He contributed to the NFL's top-rated pass defense with a team-high eight deflections and one interception.

College, Personal: Barry played in the shadow of Freddie Joe Nunn at Mississippi, but established some strong credentials of his own. He had 116 tackles (54 solo) as a senior, including three interceptions and two fumble recoveries. He also had three pass thefts as a junior, and excelled as a punt returner. He had three interceptions as a sophomore, displaying early the big-play ability that has marked his career. Barry lettered in football and track at Melrose High in Memphis, TN, where he was a National Honor Society student with a rank of 17th in his class of 380. Barry was a Management Major at Ole Miss, and lives in Centreville, VA.

Ht: 6-4 Wt: 220
9th Year
(4th Redskins)
Born: 08/09/55

How Acquired: Signed with Redskins, August 11, 1986 after Redskins acquired rights from Tampa Bay for 1987 draft choice.

Games Played/Started: 84/79 — TB 1978(10/10); 1979(16/16)[2/2]; 1980(16/16); 1981(16/16)[1/1]; 1982(9/9)[1/1]; WR 1986(1/0); 1987(5/2)[3/3]; 1988(11/10)

1988 Season: When team trainers and a selected group of veterans met to choose the Redskins' recipient of the '88 Ed Block Courage Award, they didn't take long to reach a decision. Williams was the obvious choice. Doug has overcome obstacle after obstacle throughout his career, and last season was no exception. Although he proved wrong all the skeptics who predicted that his wearing knees wouldn't hold up through a 16-game season, Doug couldn't avoid an appendicitis attack that placed him on injured reserve from Games

4-7. Williams' replacement, Mark Rypien, suffered bruised ribs four weeks after taking over at quarterback. The Redskins needed Doug to start against Green Bay, only 4½ weeks after his operation, and Doug answered their call. Although his abdomen was still tender, Doug played the entire game against the Packers and led Washington to a 20-17 victory. "Doug's as fierce of a competitor as there is," coach Joe Gibbs said. "I think what he gives us is a guy who leads by example. He's someone who the younger players can look up to. He's been through a lot and he's overcome a lot. He'll do whatever he has to do to help the team." Doug helped the Redskins as both a starter and a reliever last season. He rallied the team three times in the fourth quarter when it needed two scores to win. He raised his relief record with Washington to 4-0 (3-0 in 1987, 1-0 in '88) in Week 14 in Philadelphia when he came off the bench twice to relieve Rypien, who bruised his right thumb early in the first half. With Washington trailing 19-10 late in the third quarter, Doug directed three scoring drives — one for a third-quarter field goal, another that ended with a 2-yard touchdown pass to Terry Orr, and the third that was culminated by a game-winning, 44-yard field goal with one second remaining. As a starter, Doug posted a 4-6 record but his offense was without a consistent running game most of the season. In the two games in which the Redskins have run the ball the best over the past two seasons with Doug at quarterback — in Super Bowl XXII when the Redskins rushed for 280 yards versus Denver and in Game 16 last season against Cincinnati when they ran for 166 yards — Williams combined statistics are 35-of-51 for 557 yards, six touchdowns and two interceptions. Even without a consistent running game last season, Williams and Rypien combined for the most touchdown passes (33) and the most passing yards (4,339) in the League. They combined to set teams records for net passing yardage (4,136), attempts (592), completions (327), passing first downs (202), and touchdown passes (33). But Doug's biggest contribution couldn't be measured by statistics. His attitude, leadership ability, and determination to overcome adversity made him one of the most valuable players on the team.

Pro Career: 1987: Doug was the subject of trade rumors as the season began but finished the year at the pinnacle of his profession; he was named the MVP of Super Bowl XXII. Doug set four Super Bowl records in the Redskins 42-10 victory over Denver Jan. 31, 1987: most yards passing in a game (340), most yards passing in a quarter (228), most touchdown passes (4), and longest completion (80 yards). Doug started the season as Schroeder's backup but was pressed into action on the ninth play of the season opener, against Philadelphia, when Schroeder suffered a sprained shoulder. He started the following week against Atlanta, then gave way to Schroeder when players returned from the strike. Doug received his second chance of the season in Week 9 against Detroit when he relived a struggling Schroeder early in the first half. He led Washington to a 20-13 victory and earned his second start of the season the following week, against the Rams. Doug suffered his second loss as a starter against L.A. but was scheduled to start the next week against the Giants before he suffered a sprained back during practice on Thanksgiving Day. Because the Redskins were winning with Schroeder, Doug sat on the bench until the regular-season finale, when he again answered the relief call. He entered Game 15 against Minnesota in the third quarter and rallied Washington to a 27-24 victory. That performance earned him the starting role in the playoffs and the Redskins won three games to capture the world championship. 1986: Doug signed with Washington as a free agent after the USFL folded and served as a backup to Jay Schroeder. He played briefly in only one game, against Dallas, and threw one incomplete pass. 1985-83: Doug signed with the Oklahoma Outlaws of the United States Football League in September of 1983 and played two seasons, in the spring of '84 and '85. He played 15 games in '84 before a knee injury sidelined him for the season. His best game in the USFL came in that first season against New Jersey May 6, 1984 when he completed 31 of 51 passes for 381 yards and one touchdown. Doug moved with the franchise to Arizona the following season and threw for more than 300 yards in five games. 1982: Doug threw for more than 190 yards in eight of nine games in his last season with the Bucs. His 53.4 completion percentage was the highest in his tenure with Tampa. He completed 20 or more passes in five of nine games. Bothered by a sore knee most of the year, he underwent arthroscopic surgery following the season. Doug finished his career in Tampa with a 33-31-1 record and was the starting quarterback in 33 of the Bucs' first 36 NFL victories. 1981: In the final four games of the regular-season, Doug led the Bucs to the playoffs by completing 60.7 percent of his passes for 1,048 yards, six touchdowns and three interceptions. He finished the season with a 76.5 quarterback rating, the third best in his career. He completed nine passes that were longer than 50 yards, seven for touchdowns. He again was selected the Bucs Most Valuable Player by the St. Petersburg Times. 1980: Was selected the team's Most Valuable Player by a number of local groups, including the St. Petersburg Times. He threw for 300 or more yards in four games. He threw a team record four touchdown passes against Minnesota. 1979: Doug joined an elite group of quarterbacks when he led his team to a conference championship game in one of his first two seasons. He was sacked only seven times in 404 pass attempts. 1978: Doug was drafted in the first round (17th pick overall) by the Tampa Bay Bucs and played under Gibbs, then the Bucs' offensive coordinator. He was a unanimous choice for the NFL all-Rookie team. He started 10 games, one of which (against New Orleans December 17) he played with his broken jaw wired shut. Doug missed six games because of injuries, five because of the broken jaw, which he suffered in the 10th game against the Los Angeles Rams. The Bucs were 4-4 in games that Doug played from start to finish that season.

College, Personal: Doug was named the first-team all-America quarterback by the Associated Press in 1977, his senior year at Grambling. He finished fourth in the Heisman Trophy voting. He was named MVP of the East-West Shrine game and impressed scouts in the Senior Bowl. He posted a 35-5 record as a starter at Grambling, throwing for 8,411 yards and 93 touchdowns, an NCAA record. He threw a touchdown pass in every game but one (24-0 loss to Alcorn State in 1976). Doug was voted the Louisiana College Athlete of the Year in 1977. Doug was the Redskins' nominee for the 1988 NFL Man of the Year contest and his community service record is hard to match. Through the Doug Williams Foundation, Doug has helped a number of high school students with college scholarships. As part of his work with the Foundation, Doug visited at least one school in the D.C. area every Tuesday during the season, normally the players' only day off. For his efforts, Doug was voted Washingtonian of the Year by Washingtonian Magazine and the Sheraton Broadcast Network named their Most Valuable Player award after him. He also received the Jack H. Olender Foundation "Generous Heart Award" for community service and the Boys and Girls' Club Congressional Award. Doug's community work isn't limited to the Washington area. During the offseason, he coaches a girls' softball team in his hometown of Zachary, LA, where he was a football and basketball star at Chaneyville High School. Doug has a daughter, Ashley, 7, and a son, Adrian Michael. Doug's older brother, Robert, was once a Triple A pitcher and now is a middle school principal. His younger brother, Mike, followed in Doug's footsteps at Grambling and threw 29 touchdown passes in 1980, second in Louisiana history to Doug's 39 in 1977.

TRACY ROCKER

DEFENSIVE TACKLE

Auburn
Ht: 6-3 Wt: 288
Round 3 (66th overall)
Born: 04/9/66

1988: The anchor of Auburn's nationally top-rated defense, Tracy received both the Outland and Lombardi Trophies as a senior and shared SEC Player of the Year honors with Alabama's Derrick Thomas. His 354 career tackles are the most ever by a defensive lineman, including a career-high 100 tackles (57 solos) as a senior. Eighteen tackles behind the line of scrimmage reflected Tracy's 4.85 speed in the 40. He registered a season-high 16 tackles (10 solo) in a 16-0 whitewash of Florida, but enjoyed his best all-around performance against Tennessee. The catalyst of a 38-6 rout, Tracy made 14 tackles, a sack, a pair of tackles for losses, and forced a fumble. 1987: As a junior, Tracy enjoyed similar success while earning all-SEC and all-America honors. Despite missing the final two games, Tracy had 74 tackles (44 solo), three sacks, and eight tackles for losses. 1986: During his sophomore season, Tracy led the Tigers with seven sacks and had 11 tackles for 64 yards in losses. The biggest play was a fourth-quarter, 13-yard sack of Rodney Peete to help preserve a 16-7 victory over USC in the Florida Citrus Bowl. 1985: Tracy moved into the starting lineup midway through his freshman season and still finished as the team's leading tackler with 93 stops (53 solo). A Family and Child Development major, he redshirted the 1984 season after going to Auburn from Atlanta's Fulton High School.

JEFF GRAHAM

QUARTERBACK

Long Beach State
Ht: 6-3 Wt: 196
Round 4 (87th overall)
Born: 02/05/66

Notoriety escaped Jeff while playing in the shadow of Troy Aikman and Rodney Peete, but his arm was no mystery to NFL scouts. He threw for a school-record 8,080 yards and 42 touchdowns during his career, including 2,720 yards and 13 touchdowns as a senior. Jeff set the career marks despite playing for three different head coaches. 1988: Jeff's brightest moment came in a losing cause against Hawaii when he completed 33 of 39 passes for a school-record 518 yards and two touchdowns. The performance earned him Big West Offensive Player of the Week honors. Jeff also threw for 396 yards and three scores against Nevada Las Vegas. 1987: It was bombs-away when Jeff hooked up with NCAA all-time passing leader Todd Santos of San Diego State. The Aztecs won, but Jeff completed 26 of 40 attempts for 434 yards. He also connected on 12-of-13 passes for 235 yards and two TDs in an opening victory against Montana State. 1986: Jeff moved into the starting lineup and enjoyed his best college season while throwing for 20 touchdowns and 2,921 yards. 1985: Doug Gaynor was the starting quarterback for the 49ers while Jeff played sparingly after a red-shirt freshman season. Jeff played in the 1984 Orange County All-Star game after graduating from Estancia High in Costa Mesa, California. He majored in criminal justice at Long Beach State.

TIM SMILEY

SAFETY

Arkansas State
Ht: 6-0 Wt: 190
Round 5A (129th overall)
Born: 05/11/66

Tim is a hard-hitting defensive back in the Alvin Walton mold. He combines rugged tackling ability with sure hands. 1988: A starter throughout the season, Tim shared the team lead in interceptions with five while finishing as the fourth-leading tackler with 55. He twice was named the State's Defensive Player of the Week. 1987: Tim shared the team lead with four interceptions while leading Arkansas State to the Division I-AA playoffs. He also recorded 58 tackles and was named Defensive Player of the Week versus Ole Miss. 1986: Playing in a reserve role, Tim recorded 20 tackles and one interception while earning a scholarship as a walk-on. 1985-84: Tim sat out the '85 season after transferring to Arkansas State from Henderson State. A graduate of Wynne High School, Tim majored in criminology at Arkansas State.

LYBRANT ROBINSON

DEFENSIVE END

Delaware State
Ht: 6-5 Wt: 250
Round 5B (139th overall)
Born: 08/31/64

Lybrant was declared ineligible his senior season because of a redshirt problem as a freshman. However, his size and quickness are for real and he could provide needed depth to the Skins defensive line. 1987: In what proved to be his final year, Lybrant recorded 10 sacks and 12 tackles for losses. In all, he totaled 74 on the season. He twice earned MEAC Defensive Player of the Week honors. He had six tackles and a sack against Bethune Cookman and three sacks and nine tackles in a victory over North Carolina A&T. He earned first team All-Mid-Eastern Conference honors and a spot on the Sheridan Black College all-America team. 1986: Lybrant made his first appearance on the all-MEAC team with 79 tackles, including seven sacks. 1985: Despite limited playing time in nine games, Lybrant earned all-MEAC honorable mention. 1984: Lybrant's limited play on special teams eventually cost him eligibility four years later. He majored in business at Delaware State.

AJ JOHNSON

DEFENSIVE BACK

Southwest Texas State
 Ht: 5-8 Wt: 176
 Round 6 (149th overall)
 Born: 06/22/67

AJ filled two roles at Southwest Texas State where he played wide receiver and defensive back last season. The Redskins prefer his work in the secondary, where speed should be no problem after a 4.4 timing in the 40. A position switch has precedence since Ricky Sanders once played running back for the Bobcats and now plays wide receiver for the Redskins. 1988: AJ was everywhere as a second-team all-Southland Conference receiver and honorable mention cornerback. In a season filled with highlights, AJ's best game came against Lamar when he caught six passes for 196 yards in a 27-26 victory. Against Northwestern, he returned a kickoff 86 yards. 1987: AJ earned second-team all-League honors at cornerback, but it was his special teams play that decided a 7-3 victory over Stephen F. Austin when he blocked a field goal

However, he was moved to defensive back in spring drills. A native of San Antonio, Texas, AJ was also a running back at Clemens High School.

KEVIN HENDRIX

LINEBACKER

South Carolina
 Ht: 6-2 Wt: 266
 Round 7 (179th overall)
 Born: 01/21/66

The Redskins like toughness and any questions about Kevin were answered when he played last season with a dislocated elbow. He played outside linebacker in college, but is projected as a middle linebacker in the pros. 1988: After missing the first three games because of the injury, Kevin played the rest of the way while wearing a soft cast. He made 38 tackles, two sacks, and nine tackles for losses. He earned the Gamecock MVP award in a 26-24 victory over Virginia Tech by making seven tackles, four for minus 26 yards. His play earned a spot in the Japan Bowl. 1987: Head coach Joe Morrison described him as "the finest athlete on our defensive unit." Kevin split time between linebacker and defensive end. He recorded 39 tackles, a sack, and four tackles for losses while helping the Gamecocks to a Gator Bowl berth. 1986: Playing at defensive end, Kevin spent a lot of time in the opponents' backfield, making four sacks and seven tackles behind the line of scrimmage. 1985: After a redshirt year, Kevin moved from tight end to defensive end and broke into the starting lineup. He was nicknamed "Chief" by his teammates for his leadership qualities and his American Indian heritage. A psychology major at USC, Kevin graduated from Hickory (NC) High School.

CHARLIE DARRINGTON

TIGHT END

Kentucky
Ht: 6-3 Wt: 235
Round 9 (233rd overall)
Born: 06/26/66

The Redskins may have found a deep threat in Charlie, who has the size and speed to play either tight end or H-back. A foot injury resulted in a disappointing senior season, but Charlie has the potential to make a run at a roster spot. 1988: Charlie was a preseason all-SEC choice but missed the first three games with an injury. He caught only 12 passes for 143 yards in the Wildcats' ground-oriented attack. 1987: A starter in every game, Charlie led the Wildcats in receiving with 26 receptions for 365 yards. He terrorized Florida with five catches for 66 yards and a touchdown and also had five receptions versus Ole Miss. 1986: Charlie played on a national Junior College championship team at Northeastern Oklahoma A&M and caught 10 passes for 148 yards and two touchdowns in a wishbone attack. 1985: He played at Northeastern Oklahoma A&M after graduating from Tift County (GA) High School, where he helped the team to a state title as a junior. He also won the regional 120-meter high hurdles as a senior.

MARK SCHLERETH

CENTER

Idaho
Ht: 6-3 Wt: 250
Round 10 (263rd overall)
Born: 01/25/66

The road to the NFL from Anchorage, Alaska via Moscow, Idaho is a bit unusual, but the Redskins feel Mark is unique enough to handle the trip. Joe Bugel was actually at the University of Idaho last spring looking at another player when he discovered Schlereth. Mark's combination of strength and athletic ability impressed the Redskins, who project him as a snapper for field goals and extra points, and a blocking tight end as well as a center. 1988: Mark started at guard as the Vandals compiled an 11-2 record, best in school history before losing to Furman in the I-AA semifinals. 1987: Mark's junior year was cut short by an elbow injury in the fifth week of the season. He had been starting at guard. 1986: Mark began the year as a defensive tackle, but moved to center for the final three games of the season after sustaining a knee injury. 1985: Playing as a nosetackle, Mark recorded 37 tackles. A business major at Idaho, he graduated from Robert Service High School in Anchorage.

JIMMIE JOHNSON

TIGHT END

Howard University
Ht: 6-3 Wt: 245
Round 12A (316th overall)
Born: 10/06/66

The Redskins were pleasantly surprised when Jimmie lasted until the 12th round. They believe he can play both H-back and tight end. His 4.8 speed in the 40 was reflected by an impressive 16.1-yard average during his college career. 1988: Jimmy had 31 catches for 546 yards and nine touchdowns while earning all Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference honors. 1987: Emerging as a reliable target, Jimmie caught 19 passes for 321 yards and a 16.9-yard average.

1986: Jimmie moved into the starting lineup and caught 15 passes for 235 yards. 1985: As a part-time player, Jimmie had nine catches for 127 yards and a 14.1-yard average. A native of Augusta, Georgia, Jimmie graduated from Howard in May with a degree in Consumer Studies.

JOE MICKLES

RUNNING BACK

Mississippi
 Ht: 5-10 Wt: 221
 Round 12B (317th overall)
 Born: 12/25/65

1988: Granted a fifth season by an NCAA ruling, Joe made the best of his chances by rushing for 1,285 yards for the Rebels. He also had 54 receptions. It wasn't bad for a player tabbed as the SEC's best blocker in a preseason vote. 1987: The season ended after three games when a neck injury sidelined Joe for the rest of the season, but the year did not count against his eligibility. 1986: Joe's nine-yard touchdown run paced Ole Miss to a 20-17 victory over Texas Tech in the Independence Bowl. He finished second on the team in rushing and also gained 57 yards in the Rebels' 21-19 upset victory

Bell, a fourth wide receiver and punt returner, caught 46 passes for 819 yards and six touchdowns at West Virginia and returned 38 punts for 353 yards in his career.

Bishop showed the kind of versatility in college that Redskins' line coach Joe Bugel rates so highly. He played center, guard and tackle for the Green Wave and helped team get to Independence Bowl as a junior.

Friberg led Syracuse last season with 8½ sacks and tied for fourth in school history with 16½ over his four-year career. He totaled 138 tackles and was named honorable mention all-East by the Associated Press.

Gordon signed with the Redskins the day after the draft. He caught 151 passes for 1,576 yards during three seasons at Ferris State. He did not play last season.

Harry was the leading receiver in the Western Athletic Conference last season. He caught 65 passes for 1,145 yards in his career at Utah.

Presbury totaled 244 tackles over four seasons (1984-87) at Delaware State. He teamed with Lybrant Robinson, who the Redskins drafted in the fifth round, to form the premier defensive end tandem in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference. He did not play as a senior because of an eligibility ruling.

Smith transferred to Baylor from North Texas State in the summer of 1985, sat out one season then helped the Bears win the Bluebonnet Bowl in '86. Dennis played both right and left tackles during his three seasons at Baylor.

Tuten, nicknamed "Bootin'" from his days at Florida State, was in the San Diego Chargers' training camp last summer but was released before the season. He averaged 38.9 yards on 37 punts at Florida State.

Williams registered 213 tackles, including 11 sacks, over four-year career at James Madison. He played outside linebacker in the Dukes' "Multiple 30" defense and played on teams with Charles Haley, now with the 49ers, and Shawn Woodson, drafted by the Minnesota Vikings last spring. The Redskins plan to try Williams at defensive end.
