REDSKINS MANAGEMENT

JACK KENT COOKE

When Joe Gibbs won his 100th NFL game last December, he never hesitated when directing credit for his success.

"I've been blessed to work for the best owner in the NFL," said Gibbs. "Mr. Cooke has always been willing to make any move to help us win. Our success starts with him."

If there is any doubt, check the record book.

Since Mr. Cooke became majority owner of the team in 1974, the Redskins have registered a regular season record of 152-88. During that span, the team has made the playoffs seven times, won four division titles, three NFC crowns, and two Super Bowls.

In addition to providing the organization and atmosphere for winning, Mr. Cooke has given steadfast support to the team and coaches.

Instead of losing faith when a midseason slump dropped the Redskins to 4-5 last season, Mr. Cooke remained visible at practice and predicted his Redskins would "win at least nine games."

To the surprise of nearly everyone but Mr. Cooke, the Redskins won six of their last seven games to finish 10-6 as the NFL's hottest team.

Last season was similar to Gibbs' first year in 1981 when the Redskins limped to an 0-5 start, but Mr. Cooke never wavered in his support of Gibbs and his staff. Instead of collapsing, the Redskins rallied to an 8-8 finish.

"I think the hard times are sometimes the best judge of a man, and he's been great. We sit down almost every week and talk, face to face, and he's been nothing but supportive," says Gibbs.

If Mr. Cooke displays a flair for running a sports franchise, maybe it's because few people have more experience. He has been involved in a wide variety of sporting endeavors and there has been one constant — success.

Starting in 1951 when he purchased the Toronto Maple Leaf minor league baseball team, winning has been his habit. A year after buying the team, Mr. Cooke was named Minor League Executive of the Year by The Sporting News.

In 1960, he bought a share of the Redskins. Five years later, Mr. Cooke moved into professional basketball and hockey when he became Chairman of the Board and President of the California Sports, Inc., which included the Forum (built on a dare), the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League, and the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association.

Under his ownership, the Lakers set a number of records, one of which may never be duplicated: 33 successive wins in 1971-72, accompanied by an NBA title. Mr. Cooke engineered the trade to bring Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to the Lakers and acquired Magic Johnson.

In 1974, Mr. Cooke became majority owner of the Redskins. He moved from California to Virginia in 1979 and acquired complete ownership of the team in 1985.

The Redskins have remained his first sporting passion, followed closely by horseracing. He owns the Elmendorf Racing and Breeding Farm in Lexington, Kentucky, and watched his first Kentucky Derby entrant, Flying Continental, run for the roses in 1989.

The sporting triumphs have always been accompanied by business success for Mr. Cooke. At age 18, He began selling encyclopedias in the midst of the depression and he joined Northern Broadcasting and Publishing, Ltd. by age 24. Eighteen months later, he was one-third partner in Thomson Cooke Newspapers and subsequently a 50-50 partner with Roy Thomson. He and Thomson operated radio stations and newspapers throughout Canada. Thomson was later knighted Lord Thomson of Fleet.

Through the 1950s, his business interests in Canada spread from radio and newspapers to sports. Today, Mr. Cooke's primary business interests are the Chrysler Building and the Los Angeles Daily News.

Born October 25, 1912 in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, Mr. Cooke became an American citizen in 1960. His father, Ralph E., was a picture frame manufacturer. His mother, Nancy Jacobs, helped him develop an interest in music, and that interest still lives.

As a youngster he played the clarinet and saxophone. He played in bands in Toronto with Percy Faith, famous composer, and Murry McEachren, outstanding trombonist. Mr. Cooke now plays piano, and is a member of ASCAP and BMI, having written many songs.

He is a lover of the English language, an antique collector, a wine connoisseur, and rides one of his collection of Tennessee Walkers almost daily.

While gourmet cooking is not among his varied interests, Mr. Cooke has displayed a recipe for success that has few rivals.

"He leads the way," summarizes Gibbs. "Mr. Cooke is an inspiration to all of us."

JOHN KENT COOKE

Executive Vice President John Kent Cooke has directed the administrative operation of the Washington Redskins since 1981.

It is no coincidence that the decade has been one of unprecedented success for the Redskins, both on and off the field.

On the field, the Redskins have won two Super Bowl championships, three NFC titles and four division crowns. The success in the promotional and marketing areas has been as impressive.

Under Mr. Cooke's guidance, the Redskins have established one of the largest radio networks in the NFL and the team's preseason television package, which has pioneered scrimmage telecasts in addition to games, ranks among the most attractive in professional sports. In addition a season-ticket waiting list of 40,000 complements the existing season-ticket owners who have filled RFK Stadium for 24 consecutive years.

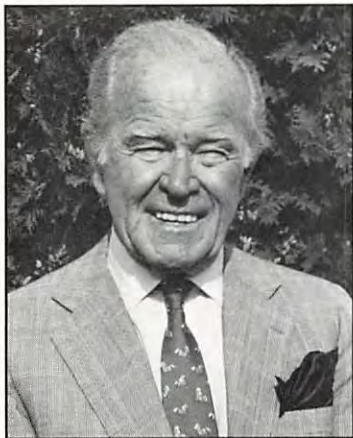

Mr. Cooke also represents the Redskins at all NFL meetings, however, he devotes his energies to overseeing every facet of the Redskin operation. He draws from a wealth of experience, beginning in 1951 with the Toronto Maple Leafs Baseball Club in the International League.

Mr. Cooke attended Upper Canada College and Waterloo College in Canada, majoring in English and Journalism. In 1959, he became a trainee director/producer with Associated Television in England, and worked in Los Angeles a year later in the production department of QM Productions, a Hollywood television production company, and subsequently American Cablevision Company, a cable television company.

In 1965, Mr. Cooke became a Vice President of Advertising, Sales, and Promotions for all sports and entertainment events at the Forum in Inglewood, the home of the NBA Lakers and NHL Kings.

Mr. Cooke is an officer of Jack Kent Cooke, Inc., and a trustee of Dickinson College in Carlisle, PA. His eldest son, John, graduated from Dickinson and works in the marketing department of the Redskins. His younger son, Thomas, graduated from Edmund Burke School in Washington, DC in the spring and is an aspiring photographer.

CHARLEY CASSERLEY

GENERAL MANAGER

Springfield College
14th NFL Year

When Charley Casserley arrived in Washington in 1977 as an intern, no one noticed. Thirteen years later, Casserley's every decision is analyzed in his role as general manager of the Redskins.

His scenario is the dream of young administrators everywhere, but it did not happen by accident. It is the residue of hard work and perseverance.

Since being named general manager on May 6, 1989, Casserley has maintained the same work ethic that led to his success. He has also displayed a personnel savvy benefiting the Skins.

When the club was desperate for a punter last fall, Charley engineered a deal for Ralf Mojsiejenko. Under his eye, the Redskins found Fred Stokes and Martin Mayhew in the Plan B system.

The Redskins were again active in the Plan B market this year. Casserley's imprint on the 1990 Redskins will be even more profound after overseeing his first draft and signing 12 new Plan B players.

A year after his appointment it is now easy to understand the assessment of Mr. Jack Kent Cooke when he named Casserley general manager.

"Charley is fully familiar with every facet of our operation and I expect he'll be capable of keeping the Redskins in contention in the National Football League," said Mr. Cooke.

That familiarity began at the bottom when Charley joined the Washington Redskins as an intern for George Allen, working in the scouting department. At the time, he was teaching and coaching football at Minnechaugh High School in Massachusetts. He was 28, loved football, and was looking into the future.

Searching to break into the NFL anyway he could, he called Allen, then general manager and head coach of the Redskins. Allen hired Casserley as an intern.

"I had an old car and I put everything I owned into it," recalls Casserley. "I didn't know anything about Washington, so I moved into a room at the YMCA in Alexandria for $8 a night. I thought it was a good deal, and it was all I could afford. I didn't realize it was 40 miles from the office."

The daily commute was nothing compared to Casserley's professional journey over the next 13 years. He went from an intern in the scouting department to a full-time scout to Assistant General Manager in 1982.

"When I got here, I was told that if you go into scouting with the same zeal you went into coaching with, there is room for a guy like that in this League," Casserley said. "I never forgot that."

That zeal led him to such relatively unknown talent as Joe Jacoby and Jeff Bostic. In 1987 he was primarily responsible for assembling the undefeated strike team. Since Plan B was initiated in 1989, Casserly has been the fulcrum in the team's aggressive posture.

Charley displayed the same enthusiasm early in his career when he played at Springfield College while earning his B.S. in education and masters in guidance. He served as an assistant coach at Cathedral High in Springfield from 1969-72 and as an assistant at Springfield College from 1973-74. He became Athletic Director at Cathedral (1974-75) before serving as head coach at Minnechaugh High from 1975-76. Born February 27, 1949, Charley and his wife, Bev, have a daughter, Shannon, 6. They live in Sterling, VA.

BOBBY MITCHELL

Assistant General Manager

22nd Year
Illinois

A 1983 inductee into the Hall of Fame, Bobby joined the Redskins' personnel staff in 1969. He was promoted to Director of Pro Scouting, then to Assistant to the President in 1978. He was named Assistant General Manager in 1981. Bobby enters his 33rd National Football League season.

He has come a long way since being an eighth round selection by the Cleveland Browns in the 1958 draft. He played in four Pro Bowls (one with Cleveland and three with Washington) over his 11-year career and is considered one of the NFL's all-time great receivers.

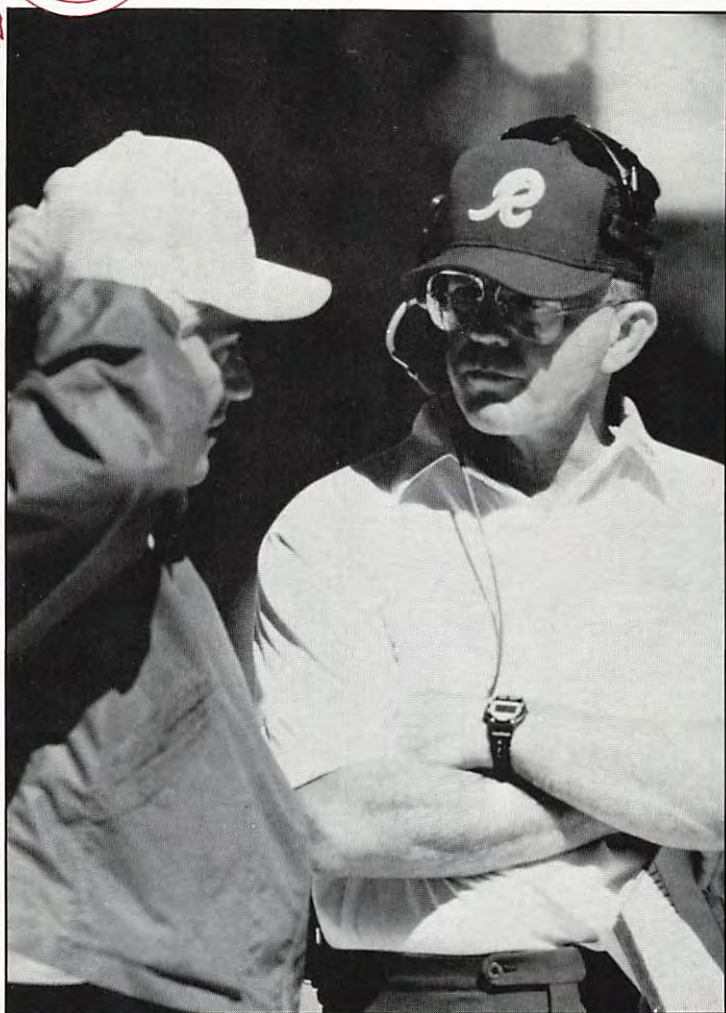

Bobby came to Washington in 1962 after playing 48 consecutive games at left halfback for the Browns, alongside fellow Hall of Famer Jim Brown. He was traded to Washington along with Leroy Jackson on Dec. 14, 1961 for a number one draft choice and was switched to wide receiver.

As a Brown and Redskin he posted 2,735 yards rushing on 513 attempts (5.3-yard average); 521 receptions for 7,953 yards (15.3-yard average); 69 punt returns for 699 yards (10.2-yard average); 102 kickoff returns for 2,690 yards (26.4 average); 91 touchdowns for 546 points (ninth best all-time); and 14,078 total yards (sixth best in NFL history).

Bobby has been selected to Who's Who in Black America, the Arkansas Hall of Fame, the DC All-Star Hall of Fame and the Washington, DC Touchdown Club Hall of Fame. He is a Board Member of the American Lung Association (DC) and the Martin Luther King Jr. Federal Holiday Commission. Born June 6, 1935 in Hot Springs, AR, Bobby graduated from Illinois in 1958 with a B.A. degree in education. Bobby and his wife, Gwen, who is a lawyer, have two children: Terri, and Robert C. Jr. The Mitchells live in Washington, DC.

COACHES

HEAD COACH

10th Year
San Diego State

Already the winningest coach in Redskins history and one of only 19 NFL coaches to ever register 100 victories, Coach Joe Gibbs is beginning his 10th season in Washington.

Few have accomplished as much so quickly, and the Gibbs Era has been one of quality as well as quantity.

In addition to his 102 coaching victories, Joe Gibbs has led the Redskins to two world titles, three Super Bowl games, three NFC Championships, four division titles, and five playoff appearances.

Only one NFL team, San Francisco, has compiled a better record than the Redskins' 102-48 mark under Gibbs since 1981.

His teams have won at least 10 games in seven of nine seasons, and annually improve as the season progresses. During December, Gibbs' teams have been an impressive 28-8.

When the Redskins rallied to defeat San Diego 26-21 on December 10, 1989 for Gibbs' 100th coaching victory, only six coaches had reached the plateau faster.

In a fashion consistent with Gibbs, he seized the moment to recognize those around him.

"It is a reflection on our entire organization, beginning with the great ownership provided by Mr. Cooke," said Gibbs. "Something like that is not possible without sacrifices by players, assistant coaches, scouts, and the support of great fans."

Nevertheless, Gibbs is the catalyst. From the moment he left his post as offensive coordinator of the San Diego Chargers in 1981 to join the Redskins, Gibbs has set the tone for success. In 1982-83, he became the first head coach in 20 years to be named Coach of the Year by the Associated Press in consecutive seasons.

In 1982 his team posted the sixth-best record in NFL history (12-1) while winning Super Bowl XVII, and a year later his offense set an NFL record for points in a season (541) enroute to Super Bowl XVIII. In 1984, the Redskins' 66 sacks were the fourth-highest total ever, and their plus 43 turnover ratio set an NFL record.

Gibbs now ranks as the NFL's fourth-winningest active coach behind Don Shula, Chuck Noll, and Chuck Knox. He has won with veteran teams and young teams, running teams and passing teams, but consistency has been his trademark from the beginning.

His coaching career began at San Diego State, his alma mater, under Don Coryell. He joined the Aztecs staff in '64 as a graduate assistant and coached the offensive line during a period when the team won 27 of 31 games, including an 11-0 mark in 1966.

In 1967, Gibbs joined Bill Peterson's staff at Florida State as offensive line coach and was part of a 15-4-1 record over two seasons.

In 1969, John McKay brought Gibbs to USC and the Trojans went 15-4-1 over two seasons. The winning streak continued when Gibbs joined Frank Broyles staff at Arkansas and the Razorbacks were 14-8-1 over two seasons with Joe Ferguson at quarterback.

Coryell put Gibbs' name on the NFL marquee in 1973, naming him offensive backfield coach for the Cardinals. From 1973-77, the Cardinals were 42-27-1 with two NFC East titles.

In 1978, Gibbs became Tampa Bay's offensive coordinator under McKay. After one season with the Buccaneers, Coryell called again in '79 and tabbed Gibbs as his offensive coordinator at San Diego. In two seasons as the pilot for "Air Coryell", Gibbs helped the Chargers win two AFC West titles behind the record setting passing of Dan Fouts. His brilliant coaching career caught the attention of Jack Kent Cooke who named Gibbs the Washington Redskins' 17th head coach on January 13, 1981.

Born in Mocksville, NC on November 25, 1940, Gibbs moved to the West Coast as a child and graduated from Santa Fe Spring High School.

He is very active in church and youth programs, especially the Youth for Tomorrow/New Life Center, a home in suburban Virginia for wayward teens. He has expended much time and energy in fund-raising efforts for the Prince William County home. Gibbs' hobbies include hunting, water skiing and watching his sons participate for their high school and college teams. He and his wife, Pat, have two sons, Jason Dean (JD), 21, who is a playing football at William and Mary, and Coy Randle, 17 who attends DeMatha High School. The family resides in Vienna, VA.

RICHIE PETITBON

Assistant Head Coach/Defense

17th NFL Year
13th Redskins
Tulane

COACHING: There's no hesitation on the sidelines with Richie calling the defensive signals. He enters a game knowing what he wants to do and does it. He's sort of a riverboat gambler when it comes to coaching defense. Richie has been with the Redskins since 1978 (longest current tenure), coaching the League's top secondary in 1980. He was put in charge of the entire defense in 1981, the year Joe Gibbs took over as head coach. He spent four seasons as defensive backfield coach for the Houston Oilers, 1974-77.

PLAYING AND PERSONAL: As an NFL player from 1959-72, Richie had 48 career interceptions and four Pro Bowl appearances. A second-round pick of the Chicago Bears, he set five club interception marks and played on the '63 World Championship team. He was traded to the Los Angeles Rams in 1969 and played there two seasons before joining the Redskins in '71. He was a member of the 1972 Super Bowl team. This is Richie's 31st year in the NFL. He was an all-SEC quarterback at Tulane. Born April 18, 1938, in New Orleans, LA, Richie and his wife, Beverly, have three children: Hope, 27; Richie, 25; and Vicki Leigh, 24. The Petitbons live in Vienna, VA.

MONDAY NIGHT TV

The Redskins have appeared on ABC Monday Night Football 34 times and are 18-16 overall. They are 12-7 at home and 6-9 on the road. Washington played the fifth game on the Monday night series (Week 5, 1970 vs. Oakland), and their 48-47 loss in Green Bay still stands as the highest scoring game ever on Monday night. (San Diego's 54-44 victory over Pittsburgh in 1985 was played on Sunday night).

EMMITT THOMAS

Defensive Backs

10th NFL Year
5th Redskins
Bishop College (TX)

COACHING: Emmitt has made the conversion from the field to the sidelines and is reaching the same all-star status as a coach he knew as a player. He spent his first season with the Redskins (1986) as an offensive assistant but has coached the secondary the past three seasons. Before coming to Washington, Emmitt coached the St. Louis Cardinals' highly regarded receiving corps for five seasons (1981-85). The unit led the NFC in receptions in 1984. He was defensive backfield coach at Central Missouri State (1979-80) for two seasons before joining the Cardinals.

PLAYING AND PERSONAL: In a 13-year standout career with the Kansas City Chiefs, Emmitt played in four Pro Bowls and two Super Bowls. He compiled 58 career interceptions, including one in Super Bowl IV. He twice led the NFL in interceptions. Emmitt played quarterback and wide receiver at Bishop College from 1961-65 before he signed as a free agent with the Chiefs and was converted to a defensive back. HAIL TO THE REDSKINS

On August 17, 1938, "Hail to the Redskins" made its debut as the official fight song of the Washington Redskins. Since its debut 52 years ago, the song has had a few minor changes from the original lyrics. Corinne Griffith's original lyrics had "Fight for Old Dixie" instead of today's "Fight for Old D.C. . . ." Also, Griffith originally had "Scalp 'em, Swamp 'em big. score. Read 'em, weep 'em, Touch-down, we want heap more" instead of today's version.

"Hail to the Redskins!
Hail Victory!
Braves on the Warpath!
Fight for Old D.C.!
Run or pass or score —
we want a lot more!
Beat 'em Swamp 'em Touchdown—
let the points soar!
Fight on, Fight on —
Till you have won,
Sons of Wash-ig-ton!!"

1989 Season: Mark was one of the most highly regarded Plan B free agents this off-season. He brings to Washington plenty of experience and savvy as a veteran offensive guard. He has started 48 games during his four NFL seasons besides starting in the USFL in 1984 and 1985. He started 11 games last season for Kansas City where he had spent his entire NFL career.

Pro Career: 1988: Mark bounced back from a back injury in training camp to start the final 10 games of the season at right guard after coming off injured reserve. 1987: Mark was Kansas City's only offensive lineman to start all 12 games that he appeared in. He even showed his versatility and athletic ability by catching a three-yard touchdown pass from Bill Kenney in the season finale vs Seattle (12/27). 1986: After a two-year stint with the USFL's Los Angeles Express, Mark signed with the Chiefs and immediately became a starter on the Kansas City offensive line, starting 15 games at right guard. 1985-84: Mark originally was Kansas City's first-round draft choice in the NFL's 1984 supplemental draft, but he opted to sign with the USFL's Express.

College, Personal: Mark was a second-team all-America selection as a senior at Baylor where he started 33 consecutive games for the Bears. Besides his all-America notice, he was a first-team all-SWC choice as a senior and a second-teamer as a junior. Mark earned his degree in management/real estate and is currently working towards an MBA. At Killeen (TX) High School, Mark was an outstanding four-sport letterman. Games Played/Started: 6/0 — 1988 (IR); 1989 (6/0)

1989 Season: After spending the first seven weeks of the season on injured reserve, Brian got his first taste of NFL action when he was activated for the Week 8 game against the Raiders. He played the next five weeks as a special teamer and situation linebacker, but a knee injury against Chicago in Week 12 forced him on the two-man inactive list against Phoenix, San Diego, and Atlanta. He played the final week against Seattle. Brian's best game came in the Week 10 win over Philadelphia, when he led the team with five special teams hits. He finished the year with one tackle on defense and eight hits on special teams.

Pro Career: 1988: Brian was drafted by the 49ers in the ninth round, waived, and picked up by Washington prior to training camp. He was placed on injured reserve August 23rd with a sprained back and missed the entire year.

College, Personal: Brian played three years as a fullback at Wisconsin before transferring to Minnesota in 1986. He switched from offense to defense with the move and made 85 tackles and two sacks as an outside linebacker his senior season. His linebacker coach, George Wemeier, coached Brian at Washburn High in the Twin Cities, where Brian received all-America honors. He also lettered there in track. A bachelor, Brian resides in Centreville, VA. He enjoys writing and listening to music in his spare time.

1989 Season: In a year when injury after injury plagued the offensive line, Jeff was the glue that kept everything in place. As the only offensive player to start all 16 games (and one of only two linemen to start more than 10), "Bosco" was there in the trenches every week, providing leadership, toughness, and intelligence. Not to mention outstanding play. With his co-Hogs (May, Jacoby, Grimm, Lachey) going down to injury all around him, Jeff picked up the slack. "Jeff had his finest year since his Pro Bowl year of 1983," said coach Joe Gibbs. "We lost so many people during the year that he actually kept the line together. He made all the line calls and was a real leader out there." And he had to be, because there were times when he looked at the new guys in the huddle and knew they needed someone to take charge. In the Week 10 win over Philadelphia, Jeff and left guard Raleigh McKenzie were surrounded by three linemen (LT Ed Simmons, RG Mark Schlereth, RT Ray Brown) who had started a total of four games for the Redskins. The average age of the starting offensive line of Weeks 1-8 was 29.4, but the age of the line of Weeks 11-15 was 26.2. That's where Jeff helped. "What Jeff gave us was continuity at the center of the line," said Gibbs. "Even with all the changes going on around him, he never got distracted and did his job every week." Only a bruised left calf in the second half of the Week 2 game against Philadelphia kept Bosco sidelined during the year, and Jeff's durability should keep him in the center of things throughout the '90 season. Honors: Named Redskin of the Year by Washington's Quarterback Club.

the year. Despite a ligament-damaging knee injury in the finale, Jeff fought back to an '89 starting role. 1987: Jeff started the season as a reserve when the Redskins opted for more size in the line and switched Russ Grimm from guard to center. But after Grimm suffered a knee injury, Jeff stepped into the starting role in Week 11 and added stability to a unit that had changed frequently during the first part of the season. Jeff started through the team's Super Bowl victory over the Denver Broncos and played a vital part in the Redskins' revitalized rushing attack during the playoffs. 1986: For the first time since he injured his knee against St. Louis in 1984, Jeff started and finished every game at center. He was named Offensive Player of the Game for efforts against New Orleans and San Francisco. 1985: The Redskins recipient of the Ed Block Courage Award, Jeff was without a doubt the team's Comeback Player of the Year. A knee injury he had suffered the previous season could have ended his career. Instead, Jeff came off the Physically Unable to Perform list on October 19 and played in the final 10 games, starting six. As he did for much of his career, Jeff handled the long-snapping chores when he returned. When he was gone, the team went through five long snappers. 1984: Heading into Week 8 against St. Louis, Jeff had played in 64 straight games, but when he hit the Busch Stadium turf on the last play of the third quarter his streak ended and questions about his football future were raised. He tore three of the four ligaments in his right knee and was out for the season. He did not return until midway through the following season. 1983: Jeff was recognized by his peers as the best center in the NFC, making the NFC Pro Bowl squad. He was one of three Washington linemen to make the team, joining guard Russ Grimm and tackle Joe Jacoby. He also was selected to United Press International's first-team all-NFC team. Jeff helped pave the way for the League's third-ranked rushing attack and an offense that scored 21 points or more in every game except one. 1982: Jeff settled into his second year as the Redskins' starting center and helped the team register the League's second-highest time of possession. Because he did all the long-snapping, Jeff was an integral part of Mark Moseley's League-record 23 consecutive field goals. 1981: Jeff was the biggest surprise in the Redskins' training camp, earning the starting job at center. He also continued snapping for field goals and punts and led the punt-coverage team in tackles. 1980: Jeff signed with the Philadelphia Eagles as a free agent, was released late in training camp and signed with Washington six days before the season as a long-snapper. He didn't have one bad snap in 16 games and earned a game ball for causing a fumble against the San Diego Chargers.

College, Personal: Jeff was named to the all-Atlantic Coast Conference team his junior year at Clemson, then switched from center to guard as a senior. Born in Greensboro, N.C., Jeff graduated from Benjamin Smith High School. He is involved in real estate development in Greensboro, NC and Charleston, SC. He and his wife, Lynn, have two daughters — Ashley Lynn and Amanda. The Bostics reside in Oakton, VA.

Games Played/Started: 59/46 — 1986 (15/2)[3/0]; 1987 (12/12)[3/3]; 1988 (16/16); 1989 (16/16)

1989 Season: The lone constant in the secondary, a whistle and coach's hat would have been appropriate gear for Todd last season. "He's like a coach on the field," says Emmitt Thomas. "He understands the game and gets people in the right places. When we had all the young guys, he kept the secondary together." Unprotected in the offseason, Todd spurned several offers to prove a point. He maintained his starting job in preseason and was one of only three players to start every game on defense. Todd enjoyed his best game at New York when he made 11 tackles with a quarterback hurry and a forced fumble. He raised his interception total from one to three, but Thomas says there's room for improvement. "He played the ball better than before," said Thomas, "but we still want him to get more interceptions."

Pro Career: 1988: Todd finished the season in strong fashion to finish third in tackles with 141. He made 11 tackles and forced a fumble in a Week 14 win over Philadelphia and made 13 tackles the following week against Dallas. His only interception came in a win at Dallas. 1987: Todd won the starting job from veteran Curtis Jordan during training camp and started every non-strike game despite being hampered by a sprained knee during the final six games. He finished the season with four interceptions, and 108 tackles, second on the team behind strong safety Alvin Walton. He also recovered a fumble against Buffalo. 1986: The surprise of training camp, Todd made the team as the reserve free safety behind Jordan. He was signed as a free agent out of Temple. By midseason, Todd was being used as a linebacker in passing situations. He intercepted two passes — against Minnesota and Seattle — and made 23 tackles. He added 89 hits on special teams.

College, Personal: Todd's misfortune was a break for the Redskins when a dislocated wrist kept him out of five games his senior season at Temple.

Otherwise, he might have been drafted. He was selected to the Associated Press first-team all-East squad as a junior and played in the Blue-Gray game as a senior. Born in Elizabeth, NJ, Todd majored in criminal justice at Temple. He enjoys basketball, baseball, ping pong and listening to music. A bachelor, Todd lives in Sterling, VA.

1989 Season: Waived on the final cut, Reggie re-signed with the Skins prior to the regular season and was again a mainstay on the special teams and short yardage situations. Despite missing six games on injured reserve with a wrist injury, Reggie finished fifth in total hits on the special teams with 69 and second on punt return tackles with 11. "Reggie can give the entire team a lift with his attitude and hustle," says head coach Joe Gibbs. His blocking in short yardage situations also proves valuable.

Pro Career: 1988: A dislocated left wrist in Week 2 against Pittsburgh stymied Reggie's season. He was placed on injured reserve Sept. 13 and returned November 18 after clearing waivers. Despite missing nine games, Reggie totaled 44 special teams hits, 10th on the team. 1987: In a season that saw significant personnel changes on special teams, Reggie provided experience and stability on the unit as its captain. He carried the ball for the first time in his pro career, running four times for nine yards and one touchdown. 1986: Reggie was released in training camp but re-signed with the team before the regular-season finale against Philadelphia. Reggie answered the call with nine special teams hits in that game and continued the effort throughout the playoffs. 1985: Reggie impressed coaches as a special teamer and a blocker during preseason but was released because of a crowd at running back. Reggie returned before being waived following Week 10 because of injuries at other positions. Reggie returned for a second time prior to Week 15 after running back Kenny Jenkins was hurt the previous week.

College, Personal: Reggie received the Most Outstanding Senior Trophy at East Carolina in 1984. A college teammate of Ernest Byner, Reggie gained 1,054 yards over his career. Born in Sanford, FL., Reggie attended Seminole High School, which produced Montreal outfielder Tim Lincecum. Reggie resides in Sterling, VA.

1989 Season: Redskins' special teams coach Wayne Sevier was hoping to bolster his special teams depth during the off-season, and John should fit into those plans. "We we're very impressed with John's contributions as a special team's player," said Sevier. "We feel he will be an asset with his ability as a long snapper." John was regarded as a rugged special teams performer throughout his career in Indianapolis. Last season he was named Colts' Special Teams Player of the Week nine times, while leading the team with 22 kick coverage tackles. He also handled all long snapping duties on the punt team.

Pro Career, 1988: John was used primarily in special teams situations and finished third on the team with 24 tackles. He also handled long snapping duties. 1987: John enjoyed his most productive receiving season as a pro catching five passes for 35 yards as a rookie after making the team as a free agent. He caught two passes at Miami (11/15) and vs Buffalo (12/13). Primarily a special teams performer, John finished with nine kick coverage tackles.

College, Personal: A walk-on as an offensive guard at Cameron State, John eventually made the switch to tight end as a senior. In his only season as a collegiate tight end, he caught eight passes for 98 yards and one TD. He graduated with a degree in health and physical education. John attended Lamar High School in Arlington, Texas where was an three-sport prep stand-out in football, baseball and soccer.

1989 Season: Though Ray played in just seven games (of which the Redskins won six) in 1989, he showed that he fits into the Washington system very well. His playing debut came in Week 10 vs Philadelphia, (due to a first quarter injury to Joe Jacoby) against the Eagles' Reggie White. Ray held the all-pro sack-less, helping pave the way for the 10-3 win and earning himself a game ball. "Ray proved in the Eagles game that he belongs in the National Football League," said coach Joe Gibbs. "He can run well, he's an excellent pass protector, and he can play both guard and tackle." Ray also impressed the Redskins with his off-field work habits, gaining 20 pounds of muscle to supplement his already Hog-like frame.

Pro Career: 1988: When the Redskins needed a versatile and experienced lineman to bolster their roster during Plan B, they picked up Ray off the Phoenix Cardinals' unprotected list. In '88 Ray played a career-high 15 games for Phoenix, starting the season finale. 1987: Ray was waived by Phoenix in training camp but re-signed Sept. 22. He started three games at left tackle — against Washington Oct. 4, New Orleans Oct. 11, and San Francisco Oct. 18. He was placed on injured reserve Nov. 12 with a torn finger tendon and was reactivated Dec. 12 for the final three games. 1986: Ray made the team as an eighth-round draft choice. After playing much of the season as a reserve tackle in short-yardage and goal-line situations, he started the final four games at left guard. He spent Weeks 7-11 on injured reserve after he twisted his right knee in practice.

College, Personal: An all-Southland Conference selection at Arkansas St., Ray played both tackle and tight end. He transferred to ASU from Memphis State after his freshman year. Born in Marion, AR., he was an all-state performer at Marion High and played both offense and defense. He once made 25 tackles in a game. After playing only one game in his two previous seasons in Miami, Tom played in nine games last season and started seven contests. He caught 13 passes, including a career-high five receptions for 57 yards in the season opener against Buffalo, and rushed for 26 yards.

1989 Season: Kelvin missed the entire 1989 season due to a herniated disc in his neck. After sitting out the entire preseason under doctors' orders, Kelvin was placed on the reserve/physically unable to perform list August 31, 1989. He was cleared to play during the May, 1990 mini-camp. "We're happy to have Kelvin back in uniform for the Redskins," said coach Joe Gibbs. "He's the best back I've ever seen out of the backfield, and we missed him last year."

Pro Career: 1988: Kelvin was the most explosive and versatile member of the Redskins' offense until a knee strain in Week 10 ended his season. When he went out, he was the team's leader in rushing, receiving, and touchdowns, and the team was 6-4. Without him in the lineup, the Redskins finished the last six games 1-5. Despite missing six games, he ended the year as the team's leading rusher (498 yards) and fourth leading receiver (42 catches). His best games came in victories over Dallas (118 rushing yards, 82 receiving yards, three TDs) and Green Bay (140 rushing, 70 receiving). 1987: Kelvin finished as the Skins second leading rusher (406 yards, 77 carries) and receiver (490 yards, 43 catches) as a long yardage back. His best overall games came in a pair of losses at Miami (84 yards rushing, 69 receiving) and Atlanta (70 rushing, 76 receiving), but his most dramatic performance was against the Jets. Trailing 17-6 entering the fourth quarter, Bryant keyed a Redskin comeback. During a touchdown drive, he made three catches for 56 yards, the last for two yards and a score. Minutes later, he gained 17 yards on three carries to set up the game winning field goal. 1986: Stretched ligaments in his left knee limited Kelvin to 10 games, but he still finished second in rushing and third in receiving in his first Redskin season. He joined the team in August when the USFL folded and opened the regular season with 112 combined

He tied a team record with 13 catches while scoring two touchdowns against the Giants. In the playoffs he totaled 107 combined yards in a win over the Bears and had seven catches in a NFC Championship loss to the Giants. 1983-1985: Kelvin played a key role in with the USFL Stars, winning two league titles. College, Personal: Injuries slowed Kelvin down at North Carolina, but could not stop him from becoming only the fourth player in ACC history to rush for three 1,000 yard seasons. As a sophomore he shared time with Amos Lawrence when the duo became the 11th backfield combination in NCAA history to each gain more than 1,000 yards in the same season. After gaining 598 yards in his first four games as a junior, a knee injury sidelined him for five weeks, but he returned from arthroscopic surgery to rush for 418 yards in the final two games to finish with 1,016. As a senior, Kelvin missed three games with a sprained ankle, but rushed for 459 yards in the final three games to finish with 1,064. back. Byner was brilliant during the Skins' closing five game winning streak, rushing for 316 yards and adding 19 catches for 151 yards as the Redskins averaged 30 points per game. For the season, his 580 yards rushing ranked behind only his 1,002 yard season as a Brown in 1985. Add his 54 catches for 458 yards and it's easy to see why Gibbs' eyes sparkle at the mention of Byner. "Earnest really was an impact player for us," Gibbs said. "At first, we thought he would be an H-back and the third-down back, the guy who took over for Kelvin Bryant in obvious passing situations. But he proved he could do everything. He proved he could run the ball just as well as he could catch it." Earnest was at his unpredictable best Week 5 in a start against the Cardinals with 100 yards rushing (14 attempts) and 71 yards receiving on five catches. Three times (Phoenix, twice, and Chicago) he combined for more than 100 yards while totaling over 1,000 yards for the third straight season. He has now combined for 100 yards 17 times in his career. His seven rushing TDs led the Redskins and nine TDs tied Gary Clark for the lead.

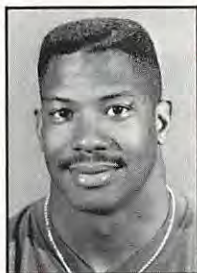

Pro Career: 1988: The Redskins saw Earnest first hand when his 27-yard touchdown run with 1:49 remaining at RFK Stadium gave the Browns a 17-13 victory over Washington in Week 13. Earnest led the Browns in both rushing (576 yards on 157 carries) and receiving (57 catches for 576 yards). His 57 catches were the most in his pro career. 1987: The Browns called Earnest the "heart and soul" of their offense. He scored a club-high eight touchdowns and finished second in the AFC in non-kicking scoring with 60 points. He caught at least two passes in every game and had eight catches twice. 1986: Earnest missed action for the first time in his pro career. He suffered an ankle injury in Week 7 against Green Bay and didn't return until the AFC Championship Game against Denver. Even then, he saw limited action, catching just one pass for four yards. 1985: In his first season as a full-time starter, Earnest broke two of Cleveland's postseason records. His 161 yards rushing against Miami broke Jim Brown's mark of 114 vs. Baltimore in 1964. His 66-yard run for a touchdown in that game broke Leroy Kelly's record of 46 against Dallas in '67. 1984: After being selected by the Browns in the 10th round, Earnest increased his role steadily as the season progressed. He ran 72 times for 426 yards and his 5.9-yard average was highest among AFC running backs. His 188 yards (21 carries) against Houston in the season finale still is the second highest total by a Browns' rookie, bettered only by Jim Brown's 237 in 1957.

College, Personal: As a senior at East Carolina, Earnest led the team in rushing with 862 yards. A three-year starter at fullback, Earnest finished as the eighth-leading rusher in school history. Earnest gained 2,049 yards on 378 carries in his career. He majored in physical education. Born in Milledgeville, GA, Earnest played quarterback, tailback, safety and linebacker at Baldwin High and his jersey (No. 21) was retired after he graduated. Earnest and his wife, Tina, have two daughters: Semeria, 7, and Adrian Monique, 5. He is a spokesman for Planned Parenthood, and one of the most avid golfers on the squad. 1989 Season: Given the starting nod in the third week of the year, Ravin's consistently solid play kept him entrenched in the first unit for the next 12 weeks until a knee injury sidelined him for the finale against Seattle. His 97 tackles were fifth-best on the team, second among linebackers, and by far his career-high. His 3½ sacks tied him for fourth, and he also added four QB hurries, two pass deflections, and a forced fumble. All this for a guy that had started only one game in three previous seasons. "Ravin certainly had a good year for a first-time starter," said defensive coordinator Larry Peccatiello. "He did a very credible job and will continue to improve." In his second start of the year, against New Orleans in Week 4, Ravin caused a fumble on the game's third play that led to a Chip Lohmiller field goal, sparked the defense as it held the Saints scoreless in the second half, and finished the game with a season-high 19 tackles. His eleven tackles in the Week 13 win over San Diego led the team. Ravin was also busy on special teams, finishing with 50 total hits.

Pro Career: 1988: Ravin's role increased to that of special teams standout and pass rushing linebacker. In his only start of the year, in Week 7 vs Phoenix, Ravin had a key first quarter safety and was named Defensive Player of the Game. In Week 13, Ravin shined with three sacks and two forced fumbles in the 20-19 win over the Eagles. His 119 special teams hits were second on the team. 1987: Ravin earned a spot on the Redskins' Super Bowl roster, thanks to his special teams enthusiasm that was evident from the beginning of the season. By the regular season finale against the Vikings, Ravin earned time with the defense and made four tackles, including one sack. 1986: A knee injury slowed Ravin throughout training camp, eventually forcing him on injured reserve for the season.

College, Personal: A fractured knee cap as a senior at Arkansas dropped Ravin's draft position, but the Redskins were the beneficiaries of his bad luck. His sophomore and junior seasons pointed to a higher selection when he made 58 and 65 tackles, respectively. His best game was a 13-tackle performance against Tulsa. Arkansas was a natural for Ravin, who grew up in Ft. Smith, AK and graduated from Northside High, where he was all-state as a senior. Ravin was a criminal justice major. He is a bachelor and lives in Herndon, VA.

1989 Season: A lunch pail and hard hat receiver, Gary is yet to find a challenge too tough. His 79 catches last year marked the fifth straight year he's had at least 50 receptions, most coming for the tough yardage over the middle. An annual member of the all-Madden team, Gary's has the intensity of a summer sun to go with his natural ability. "He's one of the greatest competitors I've ever been around," says Joe Gibbs. "His spirit is unique." His receiving numbers are also rare. Gary has averaged 66 receptions during his career and his 340 career catches and 5,378 yards are 5th on the Redskins career lists (after Mitchell). Gary was brilliant from the beginning last season, when he caught six passes for 101 yards against the Giants. It was the first of five 100-yard receiving games with others coming against the Eagles (4/153/2), Raiders (8/145/1), Bears (8/124/1) and Seahawks (9/149/1). His nine touchdown catches were a career high and it seemed as if each was crucial. Against the Eagles in Week 2, he opened the game with an 80-yard touchdown catch on the opening play and only a hamstring injury in Week 4 at New Orleans was able to stop his stunning play. In Week 5 his fourth quarter 23-yard touchdown catch with 1:54 remaining proved to be the difference in a 30-28 win over Phoenix. Two weeks later vs Tampa Bay Gary caught a 7-yard scoring pass to give the Skins a halftime advantage and added another score after intermission. His biggest catch came Week 14 when Gary improvised on a 4th-and-4 to grab a 33-yard go-ahead fourth quarter score against San Diego. "That's the kind of situation where we've looked to Gary so often," says Gibbs. "He's at his best when the stakes are highest." Still not done, Clark added a 44-yard touchdown grab in the finale at Seattle to break open the game against the Seahawks. His 79 catches were a career high and he had at least four catches in eleven games with a single game high of 10 versus Tampa Bay. Another 50 reception season would tie Clark with Bobby Mitchell at six consecutive years with at least 50 catches. Honors: Member of all-Madden team.

Pro Career: 1988: Gary's 59 catches ranked third on the team and raised his NFL career total to 261. Among his season bests were an eight-reception game (for 98 yards) against Chicago in Week 11 and a 99-yard effort (five catches) in Week 14 against Philadelphia. Gary owned the team's longest offensive play and the longest punt return of the season with a 60-yard touchdown catch in Week 7 against Phoenix, and a 34-yard return in Week 12 vs San Francisco. He was selected as the team's Offensive Player of the Game against New Orleans in Week 10. 1987: Gary made his second straight Pro Bowl. His 1,066 yards ranked third among NFL receivers and his 56 catches tied for ninth. He led the team in receptions, receiving yards, combined yards (1,077) and touchdowns (seven). Gary's seven-yard touchdown catch with 5:15 remaining in the NFC Championship Game against Minnesota provided the winning margin and sent the Redskins to Super Bowl XXII. Gary was very much a part of Washinton's record-setting 35-point quarter against Denver in the Super Bowl. His 27-yard touchdown catch gave the Redskins a 14-10 lead. 1986: Gary's 1,265 yards and his 74 catches both were fourth-best in Redskins' history. His yards ranked second in the NFC and his catches fifth as he made the first of two Pro Bowl appearances. He led the team with seven touchdown catches and had five 100-yard games. His 241 yards (on 11 catches) in Week 8 against the Giants set a team record (broken by Anthony Allen the following season). 1985: Gary and Art Monk formed the League's top receiving tandem, combining for 163 catches. Gary came to Washington in May after playing a season with the Jacksonville Bulls of the United States Football League and caught 72 passes for 926 yards, starting the final 10 games. His season high was an 11-catch, 193-yard performance against the Giants. 1984: USFL: Gary caught 56 passes for 760 yards for Jacksonville. He also returned 20 punts for 84 yards and 19 kickoffs for 341 yards.

College, Personal: Gary was named 1983 Offensive Player of the Year in Virginia for his performance as a senior at James Madison University. He ended his college career with 155 catches. As a junior, he was second in the nation in punt returns with a 14.9-yard average. A native of Dublin, VA., Gary attended Pulaski County High School. He lives in Centreville, VA.

1989 Season: Even as the senior member of the defense, Monte remains as nimble as ever. He has played more games than any other active player on defense, but you'd never know it by the way he flies around the field. "Monte continues to be one of the fastest and quickest guys on the defensive side of the ball," said defensive coordinator/linebackers coach Larry Peccatiello. "He is still one of the best nickel linebackers in the NFL, and he's as valuable a linebacker as we've got." Despite an aggravated hamstring suffered in Week 7 against Tampa Bay that limited his play in the middle of the season, Monte finished the year with 49 tackles and four sacks (raising his total to sixth on the all-time Redskin list with 39), fourth in QB hurries with 11, and added two interceptions, two forced fumbles, and a fumble recovery. He also made 46 special teams hits. In his three starts (Week 1 against the Giants, Week 2 against Philly, and Week 16 against Seattle), Monte had his best games. In the opener against the Giants, Monte's 24-yard interception return (the third of his career) for a fourth quarter TD gave Washington its only lead of the game. In Week 2 vs the Eagles, Monte posted a season-high seven tackles and forced a fumble, and in the season finale at Seattle, had three tackles, a sack, and a forced fumble.

Pro Career: 1988: Monte was the starter at left linebacker until he sprained his left knee against Chicago in Week 11. After missing the next two games, he alternated run-downs and passing-downs with Mel Kaufman for the remainder of the year. He posted 54 tackles, three sacks, an interception, and a fumble recovery on the season. 1987: Monte emerged as a starter at right linebacker after middle linebacker Neal Olkewicz tore knee cartilage in the preseason opener, forcing Rich Milot to move from right linebacker into the middle. Monte remained the starter even after Olkewicz returned and finished the season with 4½ sacks, eight quarterback hurries, one forced fumble, two interceptions and 107 tackles, 10 behind the line of scrimmage. 1986: Monte replaced Kaufman as the starter after Mel tore his Achilles in Week 2, but a pulled hamstring put Monte on injured reserve three weeks later. Monte returned in Week 10 and finished the regular season with 48 tackles and 38 special teams hits. During the playoffs, Monte finished fourth on the team with 16 tackles. 1985: Monte pulled his hamstring in Week 3 while chasing Eagles receiver Mike Quick and spent the next six weeks on injured reserve. He returned in Week 10 against the Detroit Lions and finished strongly. He made 26 tackles, 1½ sacks and four quarterback hurries on the season. 1984: In what is one of his best seasons to date, Monte finished with 10½ sacks, second on the team, and 88 tackles. The Redskins were 4-1 in the five games Monte started. 1983: After missing the first six games because of a severe thigh contusion sustained in the preseason against Buffalo, Monte played in the final 10 games and made 29 tackles, including two sacks. He also recovered two fumbles. Monte gained 40 yards on a reverse kickoff in the NFC Championship Game against San Francisco, but the play was nullified because of a penalty. 1982: Monte started at left linebacker until he suffered a shoulder injury against the Giants Nov. 21. The injury bothered Monte throughout the season but he missed only one game (against Philadelphia), playing the latter part of the season in passing situations. 1981: Monte's 114 tackles were third on the team. Against Philadelphia in Week 14, Monte intercepted a pass in the fourth quarter and returned it for the game-winning touchdown. He suffered a fractured shoulder in Week 2 against the Giants and missed four games. 1980: Monte intercepted three passes, made five sacks, recovered two fumbles, made 115 tackles (second on the team) and was a special teams standout. He started the season at left linebacker in place of Brad Dusek and moved 1989 Season: A loss of self confidence may have sidetracked Brian last season, but did not erase any faith of the coaching staff in his ability. "When it looked like he was ready to blossom, some bad things happened that hurt his confidence," says Richie Petitbon. "There's no reason he should not be able to come back and push for a starting job." Brian owned the starting cornerback spot through the first half of last season before giving way to Martin Mayhew in Week 10 at Philadelphia. The rest of the season was spent in special situations. "He came back and did a great job in nickel situations and on special teams during the second half of the year," says Petitbon." Brian still finished tied for the team lead in interceptions with four. A first quarter interception against Philadelphia in Week 2 set up a touchdown, and he added thefts against

Los Angeles, Chicago and Seattle. His 59 tackles were ninth on the team and his speed proved valuable on special teams play.

Pro Career: 1988: Injuries opened and closed the door in '88 for Brian. He got a chance to start (Week 3) when Barry Wilburn sustained a knee sprain in Week 2 and gave up only one TD pass in six weeks as a starter. Health became a problem after he pulled a quadricep against the Cardinals in Week 7. He aggravated the injury on an interception return against the Oilers and did not play again before being placed on injured reserve November 24. 1987: A second round choice, Brian settled into a special teams role and as a nickel back before being sidelined November 3 with a pulled quadricep. Brian celebrated his return from the injured reserve list December 5 by recovering a fumble against the Cardinals. In the playoffs, he replaced the injured Darrell Green against the Bears and recorded his first pro interception. He completed his notable rookie campaign with a second-quarter interception in Super Bowl XXII.

College, Personal: Brian did not even play football in high school and spent two years working with an Arizona utility company before enrolling at Glendale Community College. His play there caught the eye of Nebraska scouts and he spent his final two years at the Big Eight school. He had only one interception (a 32-yard touchdown) as a senior but still earned all-Conference honors. A combination of speed (4.5 in the 40-yard dash) and strength (345-pound bench press) impressed Redskins scouts. Brian won his letters in wrestling at Cortez High School in Phoenix, AZ. Brian and his wife, Vicki, live in Centreville, VA.

1989 Season: Kurt's versatility allowed him to do a little bit of everything as a valued member of the defense and special teams. From the linebacker spot Kurt played both inside and outside, giving the Redskins the luxury of using him in a variety of situations, but his specialty came on passing downs, when he was inserted in the nickel package. "Kurt has a good grasp of our pass defense and knows what we want to do," said defensive coordinator Larry Peccatiello. "He fits into our pass schemes very well." Against Philadelphia in Week 10, Kurt made his biggest play of the year on a passing play, when he intercepted Randall Cunningham's third down pass on the Redskins' 13-yard line to thwart an Eagles rally and help preserve the 10-3 win. The following week against Denver, Kurt had a season-high six tackles. He earned his first start at MLB in Week 12 vs Chicago but suffered a bruised thigh that limited his play for the remainder of the year. Nonetheless, Kurt's 37 tackles were a career-high and his 66 special teams hits were sixth best on the team.

Pro Career: 1988: Kurt became a special teams leader, and finished the season with a team-high 126 hits, including bests in kickoff and punt coverage and kickoff returns. From the linebacker position, Gouveia added 21 tackles, a QB hurry, and a pass deflection. 1987: Kurt was inserted into a starting role Week 2 against Atlanta, and responded with 11 solo tackles and two assists. In Week 13 against Dallas, Kurt moved to outside linebacker, replacing the injured Monte Coleman, and recording 10 tackles with five solos. He finished the year with 27 total tackles, and also contributed on special teams with 12 hits for the season.

College, Personal: Winning national championships at two levels is not a bad record. Prior to playing on the 1987 Super Bowl championship squad with the Redskins, Kurt played a key role in bringing Brigham Young's teams to national prominence, and as a junior played on BYU's No.1 team. He was named all-WAC his senior season. As a junior, Kurt had 107 tackles and seven sacks while playing a key role in BYU's Holiday Bowl victory over Michigan. His high school career is equally impressive. He guided his teams at Waianae High to three straight state titles as a quarterback and defensive back. Born in Honolulu, Kurt majored in recreation management at BYU. When he's not playing football, Kurt enjoys needle point as one of his hobbies. He and his wife, Loree, live in Sterling, VA., with their three children: Landon, 4, Ariel, 2 and Jeron.

1989 Season: As one of only four defensive players to start all 16 games, Darryl formed the foundation of the league's second-rated run defense. Playing without defensive tackle Dave Butz (retired) beside him for the first time in his nine NFL years, Darryl found himself the essential man in the middle for the Redskins, and he responded like a true pro. For the second consecutive season, Darryl led the team's linemen (fifth overall) in tackles, making 98 stops on the year. His 3½ sacks, 10 QB hurries, two interceptions, and two forced fumbles epitomized his all-around play. Darryl's third quarter interception of a Chris Miller pass in Week 15 vs Atlanta led to Washington's winning TD, and his interception of a Steve Walsh pass in Week 3 against Dallas led to a TD that helped ice another Redskins' win. He led linemen in tackles in six games and was named USA Today/Miller Lite player of the game in Week 11 against Denver. Honors: Brookland Club of Washington Defensive Player of the Year.

Pro Career: 1988: Darryl recorded a personal- and Redskin lineman-best 109 tackles. In addition to making over 100 stops for the second time (the only lineman in Redskin history to post 100 tackles), Darryl started all 16 games for the second time in his career. 1987: Darryl was a vital cog in the Redskins' drive to the Super Bowl from the opening game to the playoffs. In Week 1 against Philadelphia, he recovered a fumble to stop an Eagle drive. His 66 tackles were second highest on the defensive line, trailing only Pro Bowler Charles Mann. In the playoffs, he keyed the Skins' victory over Chicago with a sack of Jim McMahon. 1986: A movie script could not have read better. Slowed by a lingering knee injury until midseason Darryl played a reserve role until he was inserted with the Redskins trailing the Giants by 17 points. His play was the catalyst for a Redskins rally and the following week against Minnesota he was back in the starting lineup. With the Skins trailing, 38-32, his sack provided possession for the game winning drive. 1985: Adversity struck Darryl for the first time in his pro career when a Week 8 knee injury at Cleveland sidelined him for the season. At the time, his 48 stops were tops on the defensive line. Prior to the injury Grant had missed only two of 73 possible pro games. 1984: A mainstay at tackle, Darryl enjoyed one of his finest seasons with a career high 7½ sacks and four fumble recoveries despite missing opening week with a knee sprain. He returned a fumble 22 yards for a touchdown against the Vikings for one of his two career scores. However, his primary value was plugging the holes in a Redskins rushing defense that allowed only 99.3 yards per game. 1983: The season began with a brief experiment on offense, but Richie Petitbon would have none of it. Darryl celebrated his return to defense by becoming the first Redskin lineman to ever record 100 tackles (101). His presence helped the team to an NFL-best 80.6 yard rushing defense average. For good measure, Darryl added 14 tackles and a sack in three playoff games. 1982: The big break for Darryl was in the leg of Perry Brooks, opening the starting door in Week 5. As a starter he made 37 tackles and three sacks. Ironically, the biggest play of his season was not a tackle or sack. It was the first pass interception of his career. Darryl caught a Dexter Manley-deflected pass in the NFC Championship Game against Dallas and returned it for a touchdown to put the Redskins in Super Bowl XVII. 1981: As a ninth round choice, Darryl beat the odds to make the Redskin roster, but few know that first year was spent as a reserve offensive lineman. Only in the season finale of his rookie year was he moved to defensive tackle and made the permanent switch to defense in the offseason. His primary impact was felt on special teams where he led the team with 42 kickoff return blocks.

College, Personal: Listing a position while at Rice University was not easy for Darryl. He played tackle and center on offense and linebacker and nose guard on defense. Despite the changes, he found enough playing time to earn four letters. In high school, he earned all-America honors as a center at Highlands in San Antonio, TX. Darryl and his wife, Mary, have two children, Nicole, 10, and Darryl Jr., 3. The Grants live in Fairfax Station, VA.

1989 Season: Darrell outran everything but injury when a fractured wrist in Week 7 prematurely ended his season. "We thought Darrell was having his best season when he was hurt," said secondary coach Emmitt Thomas. The Redskins were coasting with a 29-7 lead over Tampa Bay when Darrell was hurt at the end of the third quarter. As usual, he was defending the opposition's best receiver, this time Mark Carrier. Carrier had two catches for 15 yards through three quarters, but exploded for 6 catches for 91 yards with Green out as the Skins hung on for a 32-28 victory. Two weeks earlier Green set the tone against Phoenix when he intercepted two first quarter passes as the Redskins jumped to an early lead. Despite missing the final nine games, his five pass deflections were third on the squad. "Big play people are hard to find, and Darrell always gives you that threat," says head coach Joe Gibbs. That's why the Redskins also strategically use Darrell as a punt returner on occasion.

Pro Career: 1988: Darrell's worth was again evident in his absence. A broken hand in the first quarter of the Week 15 contest versus Dallas opened the door to three Cowboy touchdown passes in a 24-17 loss. Before the injury he turned in another consistent season in which he narrowly missed his fourth Pro Bowl appearance, earning a spot as an alternate. He led the Skins in pass deflections with 14 and had 63 tackles (49 solo, 13 assists) and made one interception. He also provided a spark on special teams with several timely punt returns. Returns of 13 and 18 yards against the Steelers set up a field goal and touchdown in a 30-29 victory. The best was a 32-yard fourth quarter return versus the Giants. 1987: Darrell's timing was impeccable, turning in his finest performances during the Redskins Super Bowl stretch drive. In the NFC Championship game, he kept Anthony Carter out of the end zone and made the last second hit on the goal line that helped jar the football out of the hands of running back Darrin Nelson, preventing the Vikings from forcing overtime. The performance came despite a torn rib cartilage that kept his playing status in question throughout the week. Green had suffered the injury the previous week during his 52-yard punt return for a touchdown in the first round playoff game against the Bears. The return gave the Redskins a 21-14 lead and proved the winning margin. The highlight of his regular season came against Detroit with a career high three interceptions in one game. The last came on the Lions' final possession and preserved a 20-13 victory. Once again, his punt returns proved as valuable as his defense. Two against the Giants gave Washington possession inside New York territory, leading to two important third quarter touchdowns. His overall performance resulted in a third NFC Pro Bowl appearance. 1986: A succession of big plays led Darrell to his second Pro-Bowl appearance. In Week 2, Darrell's interception in the end zone with 30 seconds remaining sealed a 10-6 victory against the Raiders. He was slowed in Week 12 against Dallas when a bruised shoulder forced Darrell from the lineup for the first time in his career. His five interceptions were a team high and his 70 tackles led the cornerbacks. In the playoffs, Darrell intercepted a pass to setup the go-ahead touchdown in a 27-13 upset of the Bears. 1985: Lady luck did not smile on Darrell when punt returns of 99 yards and 73 yards were nullified on successive weeks. Nevertheless, his 13.4 yard average on 16 punt returns was the highest by a Redskin since Eddie Brown's 13.5 in 1976. His defense on the Redskins' top ranked pass defense was good enough to earn a spot as a Pro Bowl alternate. 1984: There was no sophomore slump for Darrell, who earned a starting Pro Bowl spot in his second season. He had five interceptions, 87 tackles, and a team high 14 deflections, but cemented his all-star berth with one dramatic performance. With the Skins trailing Dallas 21-6 at halftime, Green turned the game around with a 32-yard pass interception for a touchdown. Later he stopped a Cowboy drive with an interception in the end zone, and the Redskins rallied for a 30-28 come-from-behind victory. 1983: Darrell set the tone for his NFL career the first time he touched the football with a 61-yard punt return in a preseason game against Atlanta. A contract dispute by Jeris White thrust him into the starting lineup against the Cowboys and Darrell left his calling card when he pulled Tony Dorsett down from behind. He completed the year as the team's fourth best tackler with 109, including a team high 79 solo stops. His regular season play earned him a runner-up spot as AP NFL Defensive Rookie of the Year, and Football Digest and AP all-rookie teams. However, he saved his best for the postseason where he ran back an interception 72 yards for a touchdown against the Rams and caught Eric Dickerson from behind in the NFC Wild Card game.

College, Personal: Darrell is legendary at Texas A&I, where he was named to the Football Coaches all-American Division II team with 56 tackles and four interceptions in 1982. The Lone Star Conference Defensive Player of the Year, Darrell was also selected to the AP first team Little all-American. He returned two punts for touchdowns as a senior (76 and 96 yards). However, football was only half the story. A 10.08 100 meter man, Darrell was clocked only behind Carl Lewis as a senior in the 100. Showing no preference, Darrell was all-state track and all-city football at Jones High School in Houston. He has won the "NFL's Fastest Man" competition in two of the past three years, winning the 60-yard event over such notables track stars as Willie Gault, Ron Brown, and Herschel Walker. On the personal side, Darrell is very active in local youth groups and serves as a local VP of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He also devotes charity time to the Big Brothers of America in the DC area, the homeless, and has worked in several anti-drug campaigns. Last fall, he testified at a Senate Judiciary Panel for drug prevention. A native of Houston, Darrell and his wife Jewell have two children: daughter, Jarrell, 4 and a son, Jared, 1. 1989 Season: Russ started the first eight games of the year at left guard until a knee injury against the Raiders forced him into spot duty for the remainder of the season. But even on the sidelines, Russ was a valuable commodity. His team leadership and knowledge served almost as important a role as his all-out play on the field. "In our estimation, Russ Grimm is just like a player/coach," said coach Joe Gibbs. "When he's on the field he's a leader and makes all the calls, and off the field he's like a coach because he understands the system so well. In that respect he's one of our most valued players." When Russ is healthy, though, he is still one of the most powerful run blockers in the NFL. In the nine games Russ started (the first eight and the finale against Seattle) in '89, the offense averaged 136 rushing yards per game and 4.25 yards per rush. Without Russ in the starting lineup, the rushing game dipped to 97 yards per game and an average of 3.03 yards a carry.

Pro Career: 1988: He suffered cartilage damage to his left knee in Carlisle and underwent surgery August 5, and was lost for the first 11 weeks of the season. After he was brought off IR before the 49ers game, Russ played the final five games of the season, starting the last four. 1987: Russ moved from guard to center on the first day of training camp and started five games before he suffered a partially torn ligament in his left knee in the second half against the Philadelphia Eagles. He returned before the regular-season finale against the Minnesota Vikings and played a reserve role in the team's three playoff games, including the Super Bowl. 1986: Russ made the Pro Bowl for the fourth consecutive year and was named to several all-star teams. However, his 79 games-played streak ended when he missed Game 7, against St. Louis, because of a sprained neck. 1985: Russ made his third consecutive trip to the Pro Bowl, and was one of only three offensive players to start every game for Washington. It was the fourth straight season he started every game. Fourteen of his starts in '85 came at left guard, and two came at left tackle, filling in for injured Joe Jacoby in both games against the New York Giants. 1984: Russ again started every game and made every all-star team. His trip to the Pro Bowl was his second straight. 1983: Russ started all 16 games at left guard but filled in at center in the regular-season finale against the Giants after Jeff Bostic was injured. Russ, Jeff, and tackle Joe Jacoby all made the Pro Bowl. 1982: Russ and Jacoby made the running play "counter-trey" famous around the League. People weren't used to seeing two players that big pull from one side to another. The two were big reasons why the Redskins averaged 152 yards rushing in the playoffs. Russ made United Press International's all-NFC squad (second team) and set the foundation for four Pro Bowl appearances. 1981: The Redskins traded their 1982 first-round draft pick to acquire the chance to get Russ, as well as several other players in the 1981 draft. Because he played center at Pitt, the Redskins originally thought he would play that position. But injuries and the impressive play of Bostic moved Russ to left guard. Russ played 14 games despite being bothered by a sore knee. He underwent arthroscopic surgery after the season.

College, Personal: Russ helped the University of Pittsburgh to a 22-2 record over his junior and senior seasons. He played center, snapped for extra points and field goals and was the reserve punter. Russ punted, played quarterback and linebacker at Southmoreland High (PA). He earned nine letters and was a star on the basketball team. Born in Scottdale, PA., he was a National Honor Society student. He is an avid hunter and golfer. Russ and his wife, Karen, live in Oakton, VA. and have four children: Chad Russell, 5, and Cody James, 4; and twins, daughter Devin, and son Dylan, born in April.

REDSKIN FIRSTS

The Washington Redskins became the first, and only, team in NFL history to win a World Championship in their first year by defeating the Chicago Bears 28-21 to claim the 1937 title. On February 13, 1937, the National Football League approved the transfer of the Boston Redskins franchise to Washington, DC. The Redskins, in their first season in Washington, compiled an 8-3 record on the road to the NFL title.

1989 Season: When the Redskins picked up Joe late in training camp, they hoped he would serve as a steady and reliable return man. Little did the Redskins know Howard would end up as the NFC's third-leading kickoff returner. His selection by his teammates and Washington's Brookland Club as 1989 special teams MVP was certainly based on merit. A 99-yard kickoff return for a touchdown against the Raiders in Week 8 was the NFL's longest of the year and the team's first TD return since 1978. And his performance against San Diego in Week 14 (season-high 38-yard punt return and 51-yard kickoff return) ignited the 'Skins to a 26-21, come-from-behind win. Joe's 24.9 yard KO return average was the team's best (for players with over 20 returns) since 1981.

1989 Season: Stan's only regular season playing time came when he finished games against the Los Angeles Raiders and Seattle Seahawks. The outcome of those games had been decided, but Redskins coaches are comfortable with Stan in any situation. "He has a great feel for the game, and we believe he can play in the NFL," says head coach Joe Gibbs. "He has a strong arm and deceiving quickness in the pocket."

Pro Career: 1988: Stan stayed on the sidelines after being placed on the non-football illness reserve list September 3 with bycotopenia, a blood disorder.

College, Personal: Stan learned patience in college, beginning at LSU and transferring to NE Louisiana where he played behind Bubby Brister until his junior season. He did not disappoint when his time arrived, earning Southland Conference Player of the Year honors while leading the Indians to a 12-2 record and the NCAA Division I-AA title as a senior. He completed 94 of 160 passes (58.8 percent) for 1,397 yards and 11 touchdowns in the playoffs. In the Championship Game, Stan completed 26 of 43 passes for a career-high 436 yards and scored the game-winning touchdown on a 3-yard run in guiding his team to a 43-42 victory over Marshall. 1989 Season: Joe settled into his nearly-new spot at right tackle, and through nine games was having a banner year. Slimmer and quicker than in previous years, "Jake" had cut down on his sacks and QB hurries from '88 and had regained the form that put him in four straight Pro Bowls from '83-'86. Then in Week 10 against Philadelphia Joe suffered major ligament damage to his left knee that forced him to undergo reconstructive surgery and miss the final six weeks of the season. "Joe came into training camp a light 300 pounds and ready to go," said coach Joe Gibbs. "He was off to a great year." He challenged himself following the '88 season to lose weight and come into camp in great shape, and he did just that. And he worked to make the switch from left tackle to right tackle as smooth as it could be. Judging from Joe's daily rehabilitation and workout ritual at Redskin Park this past offseason, he is intent upon forcing his way back into the starting lineup.

Pro Career: 1988: Joe started the first nine games of the year at his usual left tackle spot until a variety of injuries (knee, ankle, groin) sidelined him in Weeks 10-12. When he returned for the season's final four games, line coach Joe Bugel switched Jake to right tackle, making room for Jim Lachey on the left side. The switch worked, as the new line gave up just two sacks in four games. 1987: Joe faced some of the best defensive ends in the League — Chicago's Richard Dent, Minnesota's Chris Doleman, Denver's Rulon Jones, NY Giant's Leonard Marshall, to name a few — and he came out on top more often than not. Joe allowed only two sacks in three playoff games and only five in 12 regular-season games. "Without a doubt, he had the best season of his career. And you're talking about a guy who has made the Pro Bowl four times since coming into the League," Bugel said after the season. 1986: Joe made the Pro Bowl for the fourth consecutive year and played in every game for the fourth time in five seasons despite suffering a broken hand in the wild-card game against the Los Angeles Rams. He played the next two weeks with a protective cast. 1985: If they didn't realize at the time, the Redskins found out how valuable Joe was to their offense. He missed five games after spraining his right knee during a practice prior to Game 7, and then reinjuring it against Cleveland. In the five games Joe missed, a Redskins' runner gained 100 yards or more only once. Joe had started 55 straight games before the injury. Despite the missed playing time, Joe made the Pro Bowl for the third straight time and was named to United Press International's second-team all-Pro squad. 1984: Joe received the nickname "Jake the Quake" when he fell on a Keith Griffin fumble in the end zone against Minnesota to become the only Washington offensive lineman to ever score a touchdown. In an injury-riddled season, he was one of only eight players to start every game for the Redskins. In addition to making the Pro Bowl for a second straight year, he was named to a number of all-star teams, including the Associated Press all-Pro squad, the UPI all-NFC team, The Sporting News all-Pro team, the Pro Football Writers' all-Pro team and John Madden's all-NFL team. He was runner-up to teammate Russ Grimm in USA Today's NFC Lineman of the Year voting. 1983: Joe made his first Pro Bowl (along with teammates Russ Grimm and Jeff Bostic) as well as a slew of all-star teams. He faced Dallas' Harvey Martin, Philadelphia's Dennis Harrison and St. Louis' Curtis Greer and didn't allow a sack. He limited Raiders' end Lyle Alzado to one tackle and ½ sack and San Francisco's Fred Dean to two tackles and one sack. 1982: Joe started all 13 games and played his first full season at left tackle as the Redskins became World Champions. 1981: Joe signed with the Redskins as a relatively unknown free agent. Coach Joe Gibbs still laughs when he tells the story of how he mistook Jacoby for a defensive lineman the first time the two met. Nevertheless, Joe entered training camp with seven veterans and five draft picks as competition and came out a winner despite a brief absence because of the death of his mother. After alternating between guard and tackle the first eight weeks, he settled in at left tackle.

College, Personal: The pride of Louisville football, Joe co-captained the Cardinals' team his senior season and led them to the Independence Bowl. Born and raised in Louisville, Joe received all-America honors at Western High. Jake is a dedicated supporter of the American Heart Association and he and his wife, Irene, put together the Sixth Annual Joe Jacoby Celebrity Golf Tournament last May. 1989 Season: Offseason knee surgery makes AJ questionable for the '90 season after a sterling rookie year. After starting the year as a nickel back, AJ got his first start against Dallas in Week 9, and finished 1989 as the team's number one coverage man. AJ led the team in interceptions (4) and pass deflections (8), finished tops among new Redskins (and 10th overall) in tackles with 55. In addition, he was second on the team (7th in the NFC) in kickoff returns with a 21.0 yard average. Perhaps AJ's shining moment came when he was named NFC Defensive Player of the Week following the 29-10 win over Phoenix in Week 13. In that game AJ had two interceptions (one for a 59-yard second half TD to break the game open and the other to set up a first half field goal) and seven tackles to lead the defense. Honors: NFC Defensive Player of the Week (Week 13).

College, Personal: AJ did a little bit of everything as a standout player at Southwest Texas State. As a cornerback, wide receiver, running back, and special teams player, AJ barely had time to catch his breath. In his senior year he was named second-team all-Southland Conference as a receiver (26 catches for 459 yards and four TDs) and honorable mention as a cornerback. A native of San Antonio, Texas, AJ was a running back at Clemens High School where he rushed for 1,949 yards.

1989 Season: Jimmie made what might have been the biggest catch of the year when his acrobatic, one-handed grab of a Doug Williams pass went for 24 yards and led to the game-winning touchdown in the Week 10 victory over Philadelphia. And though the catch was one of only four on the year for Jimmie, it was typical of his big-play potential. His 39-yard reception from Stan Humphries vs the Raiders in Week 8 was his longest and set up a fourth quarter touchdown. As one of only two rookies to play in all 16 games, Jimmie proved to be durable and versatile. He provided a spark in all phases of the special teams, finishing the year fourth on the team in total hits with 73.

1989 Season: Just when Markus was settling into his role as an inside lineman, a series of injuries hampered his playing time and eventually ended his season. After starting the first six games at the unfamiliar left tackle spot created by the retirement of 14-year veteran Dave Butz, Markus was sidelined with bruised ribs in the Week 6 loss to the Giants. To that point, Markus was having his best pro year, including a career-high nine tackle performance against the Saints in Week 4 and a three tackle, one sack, forced fumble outing in the Week 2 loss to Philadelphia. But following his rib injury, Markus was inactive for the Tampa Bay game in Week 7, and saw limited action vs the Raiders, Dallas, and Philadelphia in Weeks 8, 9, and 10. He started again in Week 11's Monday night contest against Denver, this time at right end, before he sprained his left knee in the first half. He went on injured reserve before the Chicago game and missed the last five weeks of the year.

Pro Career: 1988: Markus spent the offseason learning the middle linebacker spot, but because of injuries was thrown back into defensive end duty in preseason. Before a back injury of his own sidelined him after Week 11, Markus set career-highs for tackles (46), sacks (3 1/2) and starts (6), and was named Defensive Player of the Week for his play against New Orleans in Week 10. 1987: Markus started the first two games of the season when Dexter Manley was sidelined with an injury, but spent most of the season in an apprenticeship role. In his first start against Philadelphia, he recorded a sack, and he also had a sack against St. Louis. His versatility was evident at Miami when he played tackle and linebacker in a 3-4 alignment. 1986: Markus served in a backup role at defensive end and tackle and also played some stand-up defensive end in a 3-4 package.

College, Personal: Markus has followed a most unique road to the NFL, beginning with his birth in Niedermarsberg, West Germany. He also attended high school at Eastwood Collegiate in Kitchener, Ontario before attending Boise State. An Associated Press all-America as a senior, Markus recorded 11 sacks among his 49 tackles. His total of 27 career sacks helped earn appearances in both the Senior Bowl and the East-West Shrine game. Markus was named all-Big Sky Conference three consecutive years. An avid outdoorsman, Markus enjoys sailing and body-surfing. He and his wife, Rosemary, have one child, Zakary Barth, 2, and live in Alexandria, VA.

1989 Season: Jim was the tough and powerfully dominant offensive lineman that the Redskins envisioned when they brought him to Washington in 1988. His crunching blow to the Raiders' Jerry Robinson in Week 8 was selected as Sport Magazine's Hit of the Year and epitomized his strength and power. After adding bulk and a familiarity of the Redskins' system in the offseason, Jim regained the form that put him in the 1987 Pro Bowl. In facing the NFL's finest pass rushers — the likes of Lawrence Taylor, Clyde Simmons, and Richard Dent — Jim's star shined most brightly. In the Week 6 loss to the Giants, Jim allowed Taylor just one tackle and two assists. And in the Week 12 win over the Bears, Dent didn't record a single tackle. "We knew Jim Lachey was good," said coach Joe Gibbs, "but last season he played great. In our estimation he's probably one of the top two tackles in the NFL." Others seemed to agree, as Jim was named to nearly every all-Pro and all-NFC team. As the season progressed, Jim overcame a variety of injuries (he missed Weeks 9 and 10 against Dallas and Philadelphia with a bruised shoulder and dislocated thumb) and several changing faces around him to form the cornerstone of a line that allowed the second fewest sacks (21) in the League. "Jim is a legitimate all-Pro football player," said Gibbs. "He is going to be our team leader and should be all-Pro for the remainder of his time in the NFL." Honors: First team all-Pro by AP, The Sporting News, Pro Football Weekly, all-Madden, first team all-NFC by UPI, second-team all-Pro by College and Pro Football Weekly.

Pro Career: 1988: It was a year of transition for Jim. Just prior to training camp he was traded from San Diego to the LA Raiders. Following LA's opener he was sent from the Raiders to Washington. Before he could even catch his breath, he was switched from right to left tackle. Through it all, though, Jim started 14 games and was as solid a lineman as any other on the roster. 1987: Jim made his first Pro Bowl appearance when an injury moved him into the game from his alternate slot. He was also a second team all-NFL choice by Associated Press and first team all-AFC choice by UPI while earning his second straight Lineman of the Year selection from his teammates. 1986: There was no sophomore slump for Lachey, who was voted Pro Bowl alternate by AFC players in only his second season. Charger teammates voted Lachey as the team's Lineman of the Year. The year solidified his reputation as one of the top young offensive linemen in pro football. 1985: The fifth offensive lineman selected in the 1985 draft and the 12th player overall, Jim made an immediate impact with the Chargers. He moved into the starting lineup at left tackle on opening day playing beside veteran Ed White and displayed a maturity and savvy unusual for a first year player. His performance did not go unnoticed. Jim was named to the all-rookie teams of UPI, Football Digest, and the Pro Football Writers of America. United Press also named him second team all-AFC and first team all-Pro by the Rocky Mountain News. In addition, his teammates selected Jim as the Chargers Outstanding Rookie.

College, Personal: Jim left a mark on Ohio athletics on the high school and college levels. He played guard for the Ohio State Buckeyes and earned all-America honors from the Football Writers and UPI as a senior along with all-Big Ten honors. Jim also played in the East-West Shrine game and earned a degree in marketing. Buckeye bred, he grew up in St. Henry, OH, where he played football, basketball, and track for the St. Henry High Redskins. In track, Jim ran the 100 meters (11.2), 200 meters (22.7), 400-meter relay, and put the shot (61-5) and started as a sophomore forward on a state champion basketball team. Jim and his wife, Ann, live in Fairfax, VA.

1989 Season: Chip emerged as one of the league's best in just his second season. His 128 points led the team and were second in the NFL, and placed him third (behind Mark Moseley's all-time second-best 161 in 1983 and John Riggins' 144 in 1983) in team single-season scoring. His 40 field goal attempts were tops in the league and his 29 converted field goals tied him for second in the NFL. Dating back to '88, Chip has now kicked a field goal in 20 consecutive games, a team record and three shy of third place on the NFL's all-time list. In Weeks 1-8, Chip hit 16-of-18 field goals (including the last eight games of '88, he was 25-of-28 over a 16-game span) and had a streak of 10 straight, including three each in consecutive wins at Dallas and New Orleans in Weeks 3 and 4. Against the Saints, Chip hit both a career-long (48-yarder) and a game-winner (an 18-yarder and the fourth winning FG of his career) in the 16-14 victory. In the come-from-behind win over San Diego in Week 14, Chip nailed a career-high four field goals (including a 28-yarder that sealed the win) and received a game ball for his efforts. For the year, Chip had consecutive FG made streaks of 10, six, and eight, and his 29 made are the second-best Redskin single-season mark.

Pro Career: 1988: Chip kicked three game-winning FGs in his rookie year, and after a somewhat rocky start, finished the season on a nine-for-10 tear. In Week 10 vs New Orleans, Chip nailed a 23-yarder with under a minute to play to give the 'Skins a 27-24 win. Four weeks later, Chip connected on a 44-yarder with one second remaining to beat Philadelphia, 20-19.

College, Personal: Chip is regarded as the best kicker in the University of Minnesota history, and his records reflect that reputation. He broke school records for the longest field goal (62 yards), field goals made (53), and points scored (254). As a senior, he converted 16 of 19 field goals and all 27 extra point tries. For his career, Lohmiller converted 57 of 73 field goal tries and 97 of 99 extra points. He was chosen first team all-Big Ten as a junior and second team as a senior. As a sophomore, he kicked a school record 10 consecutive field goals. He also picked up valuable punting experience, kicking 20 times for 693 yards. A business major, Chip was selected a football all-State at Woodbury (MN) High School, and also earned letters in hockey, golf, and track. Chip's charity work includes March of Dimes, Ronald McDonald House's "McKicks for Kids" and the Say No to Drugs campaign. During the off-season he lives in Bloomington, MN.

1989 Season: In 1989 Charles learned that along with the notoriety of being one of the NFL's best defensive linemen comes one major detraction: blockers. And lots of them. Coming off his second consecutive Pro Bowl season, Charles became a major concern for opposing coaches, who did all they could to keep big No. 71 tangled with offensive linemen and out of their backfields and off their quarterbacks. Even with all the attention, Charles managed to post some of his best numbers in being named to his third straight trip to Hawaii's Pro Bowl. For the second time in his career he started all 16 regular-season games, and in doing so he set personal-bests for tackles (93, sixth-best on the team) and QB hurries (31, team-high), led the team in sacks with 9½, forced two fumbles and made one recovery. All this in a season of constant turmoil and change along the defensive line. Gone from the lineup during the 1989 season were Dave Butz (retirement), Dexter Manley (NFL suspension), and Markus Koch (knee injury), teammates that Mann had grown used to playing with and counting on. Along with seven-year teammate DT Darryl Grant, though, Charles helped bring along youngsters like Tracy Rocker and Fred Stokes, to form one of the NFL's stingiest run defenses. Led by Charles, the Redskins' second-ranked rushing defense allowed an average of just 84 yards per game on the ground and a league-low 72 rushing first downs.

Honors: AFC-NFC Pro Bowl, UPI second team all-NFC.

Pro Career: 1988: Injuries throughout the year hindered Charles from having what he hoped would be a record-breaking year. Nonetheless, Charles' peers thought enough of his play to select him to his second straight Pro Bowl on the merit of his 68 tackles, 5½ sacks, and team-high 17 QB hurries. 1987: Players around the League didn't publicly recognize

Charles' abilities his first four seasons, but in '87 Charles made sure he couldn't be overlooked. He finished the season with a team-high 10 sacks, 21 quarterback hurries and 80 tackles, sixth on the team and first among defensive linemen. He registered two or more sacks in four of 12 regular-season games and made his first Pro Bowl trip. 1986: Charles picked up in '87 where he had left off in '86. He had 10 sacks and 16 quarterback sacks, both second on the team behind Manley, who made the Pro Bowl that year. Pettibon believed that both of his ends should have made the Pro Bowl that season. 1985: Charles' 14½ sacks ranked fourth in the NFC and second on the team behind Manley's 15. He added 21 hurries and 85 tackles and was just one of 11 players on the team to start every game in an injury-filled season. 1984: Charles started the final 15 games and finished with 85 tackles, 7½ sacks, 15 hurries and three forced fumbles. 1983: Redskins' coaches held high opinions of Charles when they drafted him, but they brought him along slowly as a rookie, playing him at left end behind Todd Liebenstein.

College, Personal: At Nevada-Reno, Charles was voted the Most Valuable Defensive Lineman in the Big Sky Conference in 1981 and '82. As a senior, his 14 sacks led the Conference. He finished third on his team with 76 tackles and was voted a Division I-AA all-American. Off the field, Charles works as hard as he does when he's playing. He has dabbled in real estate, modeling, acting, and has expressed interest in learning the sports broadcast trade. He hosted a Thanksgiving special "Redskins Review" and is scheduled to host a similar, weekly show this year. Charles also devotes much of his free time to charity, working with the March of Dimes, Special Olympics, Childrens' Hospital, and the Metropolitan Boys and Girls Club. 1989 Season: Greg came into the season sporting a trendy mohawk hairstyle and a Fu Manchu mustache, but it was his play, not his look, that grabbed everyone's attention. His all-out effort on special teams and from the middle linebacker spot made him one of the most valuable young players on the team. In his first start, against the Giants in Week 6, Greg had a game- and career-high 13 tackles. "Whenever Greg was called on to do something, he did a very good job," said linebackers coach Larry Peccatiello. "He picked up right where Neal Olkewicz left off." On the year, Greg made seven starts and finished seventh on the team in tackles with 72, and had a fumble recovery, two QB hurries, and a pass deflection. He led linebackers in tackles six times and finished first in special teams hits with 85.

Pro Career: 1988: As a free agent, Greg went into training camp with little fanfare, but by season's end, the coaches were already using his name when discussing the future. It was Greg's reckless style that caught the eye of the coaching staff, but a preseason thigh injury sidetracked him until Week 10 when he came off the injured reserve list.

1989 Season: Wilber's second year as a Redskin was one of consistent productivity. As he became acclimated to the Washington system, he spent less time thinking about making plays and more time executing them. His durability (he was one of only four defensive players to start all 16 games) allowed him to be on the field every week, and he subsequently posted some of the best numbers of his career. He finished third in tackles with 108 (his career second-best), first in tackles behind the line with eight, second in QB hurries with 14, and third in sacks with four. Wilber also led the team in recovered fumbles (2) and added an interception, a forced fumble, and a pass deflection. As the only linebacker to start every game, Wilber's stability was key to holding the ever-changing defense together. "Wilber is truly one of the leaders of our defense," said defensive coordinator Larry Peccatiello. "He showed increased familiarity with the system and was near the top of every defensive category. That tells you something." In the Week 3 win over Dallas, Wilber showed his versatility, as he made four tackles, a sack (for five yards), a QB hurry, an interception (18-yard return), and a pass deflection. The following week against New Orleans, Wilber posted five tackles, forced a fumble, and recovered a fumble in the 16-14 win. Late in the season Wilber had a string of big games in wins over Phoenix (eight tackles, one sack), San Diego (eight tackles), and Atlanta (four tackles, QB hurry, game-clinching sack), and helped set the tone as a leader of the young Redskins defense of the '90s.

Pro Career: 1988: After becoming the first NFL free agent to switch teams since 1977, Wilber faced constant pressure from the media, fans, coaches, and fellow players. And he responded with quality numbers. His 133 tackles (fourth on team) were by far his career-best, and he finished in the team top-three in interceptions (second with three), forced fumbles (team leader with three), and sacks (third with four). Despite an injured knee, Wilber was one of only seven Redskins to start every game. 1987: Wilber earned his second Pro Bowl trip after finishing third in team tackles with 93, including 53 solos. He was spectacular in the season opener against the Giants, making three sacks. Ironically, he concluded his career in Chicago as the Bears' leading tackler (with eight) in a Divisional loss to the Redskins. 1986: A typical Marshall season earned Wilber a trip to the Pro Bowl and consensus all-pro status. He began the year with a 58-yard touchdown interception on opening day. On October 26, he scored the Bears' only touchdown in a 13-7 victory over the Lions. He sacked Eric Hipple, stripped the ball, and ran 12 yards for the score. In December, he was named NFC Player-of-the-Month. His five interceptions were the most by a Bears' linebacker since 1976 and Wilber also had 5½ sacks and four forced fumbles. 1985: Wilber emerged as a starter while the Bears became Super Bowl Champions. Although missing one game with the flu, he finished third in tackles with 78 and fourth in sacks with six. He also led Bears' linebackers with four interceptions. He made eight tackles and two interceptions to key a victory over the Vikings. The playoffs brought more. Against the Rams, Wilber recorded his first NFL touchdown with a 52-yard fumble return, and followed with a sack and fumble recovery in Super Bowl XX. 1984: The Bears gradually worked Wilber into the system, using him primarily on special teams and in short-yardage situations. He started one game — against Dallas November 30.

College, Personal: This Gator garnered virtually every honor at Florida as a consensus all-America and a Lombardi Award finalist as a senior. With opponents trying to avoid him his senior season, he still recorded 95 tackles, two interceptions, eight tackles for losses, and six sacks. His foes were not as wise the previous season. He made 123 tackles and six sacks. His 11 sacks as a sophomore broke the Florida single-season record. He earned all-America honors at Astronaut High in Titusville, FL. He and his wife, Janelle, had their first child, Brittany Nicole, last December. The Marshalls live in Great Falls, VA.

1989 Season: After years of movement along the line, Mark finally found a steady home at right guard, and through eight games was making a run at his second straight Pro Bowl. But Mark's body didn't cooperate, and when he suffered a season-ending injury to his right knee against Dallas in Week 9, he was moved again, this time off the field and into the training room.

From his November 7 surgery until July's training camp, "May-Day" became a fixture at Redskin Park, working on his knee, strengthening his leg, and gearing up to regain his spot in the starting lineup. And get back the form that makes him a respected force throughout the league. "The thing about Mark is that he was coming off an all-pro year and was having another all-pro year until his injury," said coach Joe Gibbs. "He still has a lot of football left in his body and is so valuable to us because he can play both guard and tackle." And when he plays, he plays tough. Until a bruised shoulder sidelined him for a series in Week 5 against Phoenix, Mark didn't miss a play. Even after fracturing his left wrist in the second quarter against Tampa Bay in Week 7 (he didn't tell anyone until after the game that he had broken it), Mark played every offensive down.

Pro Career: 1988: Mark was named to his first Pro Bowl in a season when he missed just four plays and allowed one sack. As the only offensive player to start every game, Mark certainly had the credentials in being named the D.C. Touchdown Club's offensive MVP. After starting the season at right tackle, Mark moved to right guard in Week 3, then to tackle in Week 10, and finally back to guard for the final four games. 1987: Mark's consecutive-game streak ended at 50 when he tore the medial collateral ligament in his right knee during the final preseason game, against the Los Angeles Rams. He returned to start the first game after the strike, against the New York Jets. Mark allowed only five sacks in '87 and finished second on the team in hurries-allowed behind tackle Joe Jacoby. 1986: Mark settled in at right tackle and solidified his reputation as being one of the most dependable players on the team. Through his first six seasons, Mark missed only one game. 1985: Except for a brief rest in the late stages of the San Francisco game, Mark played every offensive minute of every game. He was the team's only offensive lineman to be named Offensive Player of the Game twice that season, and was a force on a unit that paved the way for the League's second-ranked rushing game. 1984: In a season in which the offensive line was riddled with injuries, Mark played every position except for center and allowed only three sacks, the lowest total on the team. 1983: Mark started at right guard for the second consecutive season and began becoming comfortable with the position. He was labeled by line coach Joe Bugel as one of the most improved players on the team. The Redskins scored 30 rushing touchdowns, many of them directly over Mark's right side. Mark still filled in at tackle, at times, when injuries necessitated the move. He made a key fumble recovery in Week 8 against Detroit at the Lions' 11-yard line. 1982: Mark moved to right guard after playing tackle his first season. He started all nine regular-season games and alternated with Fred Dean during the playoffs. 1981: Mark was thrust into a starting role at left tackle because Terry Hermeling retired before the season. He had to adjust to a new side after playing right tackle in college. Mark played in all 16 games despite suffering a broken nose and a hip pointer. He started eight.

College, Personal: As a senior at the University of Pittsburgh, Mark won the 1980 Outland Trophy, which is awarded to the nation's top interior lineman. He was a first-team all-American and helped the Panthers to a 38-8-1 record over his four-year career. He was named Pitt's Lineman of the Week 16 times and, amazingly, did not allow a quarterback sack over his final two seasons. It was at Pitt where Mark started devoting a good portion of his time to charity. Jackie Sherrill encouraged players to help those less fortunate than them. Mark agreed. He worked closely with Childrens' Hospital. Two years after leaving Pitt, he presented the school's Booster Club with a check for $10,000 in gratitude for the opportunity the school gave him. When Mark arrived in Washington, he looked for charitable outlets and chose several. In the spring of 1988, Mark embarked on the NFL's USO tour to South Korea. He had traveled with the tour two times before, visiting troops in Germany (1984) and South Korea (1985). Last year, he served as Honorary Chairperson for the Christian Relief Services' Americans Helping Americans program, which helps fill the daily needs of the homeless, hungry and poverty stricken. He works for a local Ford dealership the past two years and hopes to one day have his own dealership. He owns a stable of standardbreds, which he races on the Maryland circuit, and resides on a horse estate (Swift Run Farm) in Clifton, VA. Mark was born in Oneonta, NY. He and his wife, Kathy, have a daughter, Abra.

1989 Season: Slated for backup special teams duty last season, Martin got his chance to start Week 10 against Philadelphia. His performance resulted in a game ball and he remained in place as the Redskins compiled a 6-1 record down the stretch. "People may catch some passes on him, but he rarely gives up the big play because he's a great tackler," says secondary coach Emmitt Thomas. His biggest play came against San Diego when he broke up a fourth down pass in the end zone to preserve a 26-21 Redskin victory. In a reunion against college teammate Deion Sanders and the Atlanta Falcons in Week 15, Martin responded with 13 tackles and two pass deflections in the Redskins win.

Pro Career: 1988: The Bills selected Martin in the 10th round (262nd overall) of the '88 draft, but didn't receive an opportunity to see him in a preseason game because of a wrist injury early in training camp.

College, Personal: In four seasons at Florida State, Martin totaled 186 tackles, intercepted five passes, had 24 deflections, and recovered three fumbles. He also ran track and was a member of the Seminoles' 400-meter relay team that qualified for the NCAAs in '86. Martin had better than a 3.0 grade-point average and earned a degree in management. 1989 Season: Raleigh was asked to be the offensive line's jack-of-all-trades in '89. In the first eight weeks of the season, "Rollo" did a little of everything, filling in for four former Pro-Bowlers at four different spots along the line (all but right tackle). "Rollo proved that he is a complete football player," said coach Joe Gibbs. "He improved not only in his pass protection, but his run blocking was really upgraded." Raleigh got his first start in Week 9 vs Dallas, filling in for Russ Grimm at left guard, and remained a member of the starting unit for the rest of the season.

Pro Career: 1988: Raleigh showed his trademark versatility and toughness. After starting the season at left guard, Rollo moved to center in Week 3, and then back to guard in Week 6. 1987: Raleigh was the Redskins' only offensive lineman to play every play. He also never missed a practice. 1989 Season: "Mojo" was a welcome addition to the Redskins' special teams when he arrived in Washington just two weeks before the season opener. Having worked with coach Wayne Sevier in San Diego, Mojo stepped right into the Washington system and became the punting weapon that the Redskins badly needed. His 43.0 yard season average was the organization's second best in the past 20 years and was fifth in the entire NFL. Against the Raiders in Week 8, lefty Mojo nailed a career-high 74-yarder and his 21 inside-20s were the NFC's second best. His performances against New Orleans in Week 4 (four kicks, 55.5 yard average, three inside-20s) and Philadelphia in Week 10 (season-high eight kicks, 45.0 yard average, three inside-20s) were instrumental in key victories. Mojo showed his toughness in Week 6 vs the Giants, when he kicked four times for a 45.8 yard average despite suffering a badly sprained ankle late in the week. Throughout the year Mojo also served as a reliable holder for kicker Chip Lohmiller.

Pro Career: 1988: As a Charger, Mojo averaged a career-high 44.1 yards per kick as the NFL's second-best punter. His 85 punts and 3,745 yards both set San Diego club records, and his 44.1 yard average rated second in Charger annals. 1987: Ralf's 42.9 yard average earned him a trip to the Pro Bowl. He received all-AFC honors from UPI and Football News, and second-team all-Pro from Associated Press and Newspaper Editors Association. 1986: Mojo finished third in the AFC with a 42.0 yard average. Ralf had a career-high of nine punts in Philadelphia on Oct. 26. His 72 punts were the most by a Charger punter since 1980. 1985: Ralf finished fourth among AFC punters with a 42.4 yard average. He had the fourth longest Charger punt of 67 yards Nov. 17 in Denver.

College, Personal: At Michigan State, Mojo was an all-Big 10 kicker and punter and was named first team all-America punter by The Sporting News his junior year. His 43.8 yard career punting average set a school record. Ralf also pitched two seasons for the Spartans baseball team, running up a 4-7 record. 1989 Season: Another work of Art left defenders dazzled as the Skins' senior wide receiver enjoyed one of his best seasons. Rising from 11th to 3rd on the NFL career receiving list, Art caught a team high 86 passes for 1,186 yards. In the process he passed four NFL Hall of Famers, Fred Biletnikoff, Ray Berry, Don Maynard and Charley Taylor, and moved into a position to challenge for the NFL pass receiving record while setting a team record for career receptions. Art extended his regular season consecutive game receiving streak to 100 games (108 including playoffs) and caught at least four passes in 12 of the Skins' 16 games. Art now holds club records for most career passes caught (662), most receptions in a season (106), most passes caught in a game (13), and most career yards receiving (9,165). But Art gave the Redskins more than numbers. He gave leadership when it was needed most. Saddled with a 5-6 record at midseason, Art responded with his best game of the year in a 31-14 win over the Bears. He had nine catches for 152 yards and two second half touchdowns to ignite a five-game Redskins winning streak. It was one of four 100-yard days for Monk, but the most memorable moment was a nine-catch performance for 81 yards against San Diego. The performance pushed Monk pass Taylor into the Redskins record book as the team's leading career receiver. A week later his 60-yard touchdown catch against Atlanta ignited a 21-point third quarter rally as the Redskins won 31-30. During the Skins' closing five-game rally, Monk caught 35 passes for 478 yards and four touchdowns. The surge left him 157 passes behind the NFL's all-time leader, Steve Largent, and Joe Gibbs says Monk could make a record at the mark. "He's a gifted athlete who takes great care of himself," says Gibbs. "He is a guy who works at his craft and responds to any challenge. However, he does it so quietly that his accomplishments sometimes are overlooked." The coaches feel that was the case when Monk was omitted from the NFC Pro Bowl team despite his remarkable season. It was an oversight that the record book could not ignore. Honors: Selected to the all-Madden team.

Pro Career: 1988: Art moved into 11th place on the League's all-time receiving list, raising his career total to 576 catches. He caught 72 passes, the fourth-highest single-season total in his stellar career. Of those, 10 were 25 yards or longer. Art caught nine passes in a game twice — in Week 2 against Pittsburgh (86 yards) and Week 12 in San Francisco (89 yards). His biggest yardage day came in Week 15 against Dallas (seven catches, 103 yards). 1987: Art finished the regular season with 39 catches for 523 yards despite missing the last three regular-season games and two playoff games with torn ligaments in his right knee. Art returned for Super Bowl XXII and his 40-yard catch with eight minutes left in the first quarter marked Doug Williams' first completion and set the tone for the day. 1986: Art became the only receiver in Redskins' history to register three straight 1,000-yard seasons and to catch 70 or more passes in three straight. His 1,068 yards ranked third in the NFC and his 73 catches ranked sixth. 1985: Art's 91 receptions led the NFL and his 1,226 yards ranked third. He registered six 100-yard games in the last eight. He made his second straight Pro Bowl appearance. 1984: Art caught a League record 106 passes, breaking the mark of 101 set by the Oilers' Charlie Hennigan in 1964. He caught eight or more passes in six games and had five 100-yard games. In Week 2 against San Francisco, he caught 10 passes for 200 yards, becoming only the fourth receiver in Redskins' history to hit the 200-yard mark. He was voted the team's MVP, and was selected to the Pro

Bowl. 1983: Art missed the first four games with a sprained knee but returned to start the final 11 regular-season games. He finished with 47 catches for 746 yards (second on the team in both categories) and added eight catches for 121 yards in the playoffs. 1982: After leading the team during the regular season with 35 receptions (447 yards), Art missed the Redskins drive to the Super Bowl with a broken foot, which he suffered in the final regular-season game against the Cardinals. 1981: Art's 894 yards receiving were the most by a Redskin since 1967. He led receivers in touchdowns with six and scored a 79-yarder against St. Louis. He finished second on the club with 56 catches and a 16-yard per catch average. 1980: As the club's first No. 1 draft choice since 1968, Art was a unanimous selection to the NFL's all-Rookie team and broke the club's rookie receiving record, which previously was set by Charley Taylor in 1964. Art finished with 58 catches (10th in the NFC) for 797 yards and three touchdowns. He received his first NFL start in Week 7 against St. Louis at RFK.

College, Personal: A triple threat at Syracuse, Art set receiving records with 102 receptions for 1,644 yards, rushed for 1,140 yards and gained 1,105 yards in returns for a total of 3,889 yards. Art never missed a game or a practice in four seasons at Syracuse. At White Plains High (NY), Art was a national interscholastic champion in the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in 1976. Off the field, Art is an avid fisherman and often teams with Monte Coleman in tournaments. Among his business interests, Art is a part-owner of Rick Walker's Scoreboard Restaraunt in Herndon. Art also operates a football camp for kids during the summer and owns a graphic company. Art and his wife, Desiree, have three children: James Arthur, Jr., 7, Danielle, 6, and Monica Andrea, 3. The Monk family resides in Great Falls, Va.

UP CLOSE

- Picked up the golfing bug 2½ years ago and now plays as often as he can during the offseason.
- Has a keen interest in national politics. Says one of the pluses playing for the Redskins is to be this close to the national political scene.

1989 Season: Whether the need is a big catch, a solid block, or special teams help, Terry responds more often than not. When the Redskins were in trouble at New Orleans late in third quarter, it was Orr's 48-yard third down catch that set up the Skins' only touchdown of the day in a come-from-behind win. He also had receptions against Atlanta and Seattle. A reliable blocker from the H-back spot, Orr excels on special teams where his 84 total hits ranked second behind the 85 by Greg Manusky. "Terry Orr is my communication to the field on game day," says special teams coach Wayne Sevier. "He is as close to a coach on the field as you can get." Terry made his only start of the year at H-back against San Diego.

Pro Career: 1988: Given a chance at full-time status when an eye injury sidelined Craig McEwen in Week 13, Terry caught seven passes for 148 yards and two touchdowns in his three starts. The first touchdown catch came in the fourth quarter against Philadelphia, putting the Redskins in position to win on a last second field goal. A week later he grabbed a 55-yard touchdown pass against the Cowboys. 1987: Special teams were Terry's forte, but a three-catch day against Minnesota proved crucial in a win over the Vikings. The first half of the season was lost when a shoulder injury forced him on injured reserve prior to the season opener. As a kick returner, Terry had four returns for 62 yards. 1986: Terry had only three catches as a rookie, but made the most of his chances. A 22-yard touchdown catch against the Cardinals provided the spark for a 20-17 Redskins win.

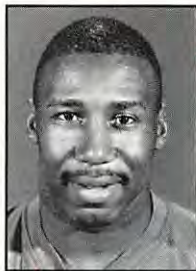

College, Personal: There was no stopping Terry at the University of Texas, but his yardage was earned on the ground as a premier running back. The statistics tell the tale — 274 attempts for 1,279 yards (4.7) and 11 touchdowns. Most of the total (580 yards) came his senior season, but Terry also rushed for 265 yards as a junior. The brightest moment was an 82-yard gallop against TCU. A native of Savannah, Georgia, he moved to Texas and attended Cooper High in Abilene. Terry was a speech communications major at Texas and is a willing speaker in the community. He and his wife, Rita, live in Centreville, VA, with their new baby, Terrance.

How Acquired: Obtained on April 22, 1989 in a trade with Atlanta for a second round choice in 1989 and a first rounder in 1990. The Redskins also received a fifth-round selection in 1990.

Games Played/Started: 103/73 — ATL 1982 (9/0) [1/0]; 1983 (14/0); 1984 (15/14); 1985 (16/16); 1986 (16/15); 1987 (12/12); 1988 (9/9); WASH 1989 (12/7)

1989 Season: Injuries turned a potentially record setting season into a bitter-sweet campaign for Gerald. His numbers were impressive as Gerald set a Redskins single game team rushing record, led the team in rushing, and finished 14th in the NFL. "Gerald gave us exactly what we wanted, but we need durability," said Gibbs. "That's all that separated Gerald from an all-pro season. When healthy, he was great." Coming via a draft day trade, the Redskins wanted a power running back and Gerald showed he is one of the best. In his Redskin debut, he rushed for 111 yards against the NY Giants on Monday Night TV. A week later, Gerald broke George Rogers' team rushing record (206) when he gained 221 yards on 29 carries against the Eagles. Slowed briefly by bruised ribs, Gerald rebounded with 90+ efforts against New York (91) and Tampa Bay (99) and had 658 yards after seven games. Then came an injured arch in his foot that forced him to the sidelines four of the next five weeks. A Week 9 start against Dallas resulted in an abbreviated appearance (6/11) and Riggs did not play again until Week 13 at Phoenix as the Redskins wound down the clock. Two weeks later he again used a bruising style for 80 yards on 20 carries in a win over the Falcons but playing time was limited in the final weeks as Earnest Byner took, over the primary duties. Still, Riggs' 834 yards were the best by a Redskins running back since 1986. The yardage raised his career total to 7,465 yards and moved him to 13th on the NFL's career rushing list behind Larry Csonka (8,081). Riggs is also NFL's third leading active rusher behind Eric Dickerson and Ottis Anderson.

Pro Career: 1988: Gerald completed his career in Atlanta as the team's career rushing leader with 6,631 yards and his combined yardage of 8,015 was just 687 yards shy of Atlanta's club record, held by William Andrews. He also set the Falcons' club record for touchdowns scored with 48. A mid-season knee injury curtailed his final season when he missed seven of the final 12 games. 1987: Gerald became the only runner in the NFL to make the Pro Bowl after the '85, '86, and '87 seasons. He ran for 875 yards on 203 carries and gained another 199 on 25 catches to gain over 1,000 yards for the fourth consecutive season. The Redskins were one of Gerald's victims. He gained 120 yards on 23 carries and scored the winning touchdown on a 4-yard run in the Falcons' 21-20 victory over Washington in Week 2. 1986: Gerald's 1,327 yards rushing ranked sixth in the League. He had six 100-yard games and scored nine touchdowns. His top three performances resulted in three victories: 172 yards vs. Miami, 141 vs. the Rams and 129 vs. Tampa Bay. 1985: Gerald led the NFC in rushing with 1,719 yards, and he added 267 receiving to finish with a combined 1,986. His 397 carries still stand as the third-highest single-season total in NFL history (behind James Wilder's 407, Tampa Bay, 1984 and Eric Dickerson's 404, L.A. Rams, 1986). 1984: Gerald took over as the starter and in his first game rushed for 202 yards against New Orleans. His 13 touchdowns were second in the League and he had five 100-yard games. His 1,436 yards were fourth in the NFL. 1983: Playing as a reserve, Gerald led the team with eight touchdowns. He carried 100 times for 437 yards despite missing two weeks with fractured ribs. 1982: The Falcons selected Gerald in the first round (ninth player overall) of the draft. He joined William Andrews and Lynn Cain in one of the League's top backfields and carried 78 times for 299 yards.

College, Personal: Gerald led the Pac-10 with a 6.0-yard average his senior season at Arizona State. In his career, he carried 392 times for 2,086 yards. Recruited by Frank Kush, Gerald played under three head coaches: Kush, Bob Owens, and Darryl Rogers. At Bonanza High in Las Vegas, Gerald lettered in football, basketball and track. In one game against neighboring Henderson High, he carried eight times and scored four touchdowns, gaining 236 yards. Born in Tilluha, LA, near the Mississippi line, Gerald is the oldest of five children. Gerald has a son, Gerald, Jr, 7. He lives in Reston, VA.

How Acquired: Selected in the third round of the 1989 draft (66th overall).

Games Played/Started: 16/10 — 1989 (16/10)

1989 Season: Midway through the year Tracy found his way into the starting lineup and, like his name suggests, became solid as a "Rock." An injury to Markus Koch threw Tracy into the spotlight at left tackle in the Week 7 win against Tampa Bay, and his increasingly steady play kept him entrenched in the first unit for the remainder of the year. As the only rookie on the roster to start 10 games, Tracy made quite an impact. His 46 total tackles were third among defensive linemen. His play merited several post-season rookie honors, including first-team UPI and Pro Football Weekly. His best effort of the year came in the 10-3 win over Philadelphia in Week 10. Tracy posted a career-high seven tackles and recovered a Randall Cunningham fumble on the Eagles' first drive, which led to a Redskins field goal and set the tone for the day.

Honors: UPI all-Rookie team, Pro Football Weekly all-Rookie team.

College, Personal: Tracy garnered just about every possible award as a two-time all-America and all-SEC player at Auburn. As a senior he anchored Auburn's top-ranked defense and was named SEC Co-Player of the Year and winner of both the Outland and Lombardi Trophies. A four-year starter, he led the Tigers in tackles as a freshman and sacks as a sophomore, and his 354 career tackles are the most ever by an Auburn defensive lineman. A family and child development major, Tracy attended Atlanta's Fulton High School.

1989 Season: Jeff has been highly regarded as one of the most versatile backup quarterbacks in the NFL throughout his career. He will continue that role with the Redskins competing for a backup spot behind Mark Rypien and Stan Humphries. Last season, Jeff played in one game for the Giants but did not attempt a pass.

Pro Career: 1988: In his only appearance in 1988, Jeff came in and pulled out a victory over the Saints. In that game, he went 11-of-17 for 113 yards in the second half, including a 33-yard completion in the final minute to set up the winning field goal. 1987: Jeff started four games for the Giants and completed 79 passes for 1,048 yards and five touchdowns. He led the club to wins over the Patriots and Eagles, including a season-best 233 yards and two TD day vs New England. 1986: Jeff's playing time was limited, but he made significant contributions when he was called into duty. His only pass completion was a 13-yard TD toss on a fake FG attempt vs Philadelphia; he ran 18 yards for a first down on another fake FG attempt to set up a touchdown vs Green Bay; he completed a 23-yard pass to set up a touchdown in the Giants' playoff win over San Francisco and he scrambled for a key first down on a fourth-down play in the Super Bowl win over Denver. 1985: Jeff did not take an offensive snap in 1985, but he did continue his role as the team's holder in every game. He again continued his mastery of the fake FG with a successful attempt vs Cincinnati that resulted in a touchdown. 1984: Jeff saw limited action on offense while only attempting one pass for nine yards. 1983: Although he only saw action in four games (all as a starter), Jeff had his best year as a pro when he went 87-of-174 for 1,208 yards and three TDs. Jeff had three straight 300-yard games, including a career high 29 completions for 349 yards at Seattle. In his only start against Washington, Jeff was 24-of-47 for 324 yards and a TD in a 31-22 loss to the NFC champion Redskins. Jeff also passed for 325 yards against Dallas, but suffered a knee injury which sidelined him for five weeks. 1982: Jeff was traded to the Giants, but did not take a snap his first year in New York. 1981: Jeff saw action in four games and threw for 442 yards and three touchdowns before a broken thumb forced him on IR. 1980: Jeff came down with mononucleosis at mid-season and was placed on IR after seeing action in only one game. 1979: Selected by the Rams in the ninth round, Jeff was a member of the Rams' NFC championship team. He saw limited playing time in three games completing 13 passes for 125 yards and one touchdown.

College, Personal: Jeff was an all-SEC quarterback at Alabama where he led the Crimson Tide to the 1978 national title under the legendary Bear Bryant. At Alabama, Jeff threw 30 career touchdowns and left as the Tide's all-time leader surpassing Joe Namath. Jeff earned his degree in business education. A standout prep player in football, basketball and baseball at Banks High School in his native Birmingham, AL, Jeff was drafted by the Cubs out of high school but elected to attend Alabama. Jeff and wife, Laura, live in Mission Viejo, CA, during the off-season with their three children, Brooks, 11; Christen, 9 and Meg, 7.

1989 Season: It was a 'Tale of Two Seasons' as Mark completed the year as one of the NFL's hottest quarterbacks after being benched for two games at midseason. He led the Redskins to five straight victories to complete the season while finishing behind only Joe Montana and Jim Everett in NFC passing efficiency. In the final five weeks, Ryp completed 108 of 166 passes (65.5 percent) for 1,430 yards, eight touchdowns, and only four interceptions. He won the starting job during training camp and started the first eight games before giving way to Doug Williams in Week 9 against Dallas after a series of costly fumbles. "Ryp is a young quarterback who lost some confidence along the way, but he came back to show that he has what it takes to be a factor in this League," said head coach Joe Gibbs. "He makes the right decision and makes it quick, and he gained everyone's respect during the stretch." Fortitude, toughness, leadership - Ryp displayed all during the second half of the season. He returned on a Monday Night game against the Broncos in Week 11, but wind gusts of 50 miles per hour brought the passing game to a halt in a Denver victory. With the Redskins saddled with a 5-6 mark, Rypien faced a pivotal game in his young career when the Chicago Bears came to RFK Stadium. A second quarter fumble could have been fatal as the Redskins saw a 14-0 lead evaporate, but he did not let it. Rypien completed 30 of 47 passes for 401 yards and 4 touchdowns in a 38-14 romp. Two weeks later Ryp responded again. After San Diego had taken a 21-16 lead midway in the fourth quarter, the Redskins faced a 4th-and-four at the Charger 33-yard line. The Chargers came with an all out blitz, but Mark answered with a game-winning scoring strike to Gary Clark. A week later, the task was even larger at Atlanta. Knocked out of the game with a neck injury in the first half, Rypien returned to find the Redskins trailing 27-10 at the half. The challenge was clear and the response dramatic as Ryp capped a 21-point third quarter explosion with a 9-yard touchdown run on a 4th-and-one. In less than three quarters of play, he completed 17 of 27 passes for 284 yards. His season numbers were all-star quality nearly record breaking. His 3,768 yards passing was the second best total ever by a Redskin and only Sonny Jurgensen and Joe Theismann ever completed more than his 280 passes in a single year. In a season that began as a question, Ryp had answered with an exclamation mark.

Pro Career: 1988: After spending his first two professional seasons on injured reserve, Ryp found out that playing quarterback in the NFL was worth the wait. He beat out Jay Schroeder in training camp for the No. 2 spot behind Doug Williams, and led the Redskins offense against the Phoenix Cardinals in Week 4 when Williams was sidelined with appendicitis. Although the Redskins lost to Phoenix, Mark played better than any one could have expected, completing 26 of 41 passes for 303 yards and three touchdowns. His statistics were better than those of Williams, Schroeder, Joe Theismann, Billy Kilmer, and Sonny Jurgensen in their first starts. A month later the roles were reversed when Mark injured his shoulder at home against the Cardinals after passing for 303 yards and four touchdowns in a 35-17 win. He returned to make starts against Cleveland and Philadelphia late in the season, but most importantly, had laid the ground work for 1989. 1987: Mark spent his second straight season on injured reserve. He looked sharp in limited preseason performances, completing 8 of 14 passes for 145 yards, but injured his back in the preseason finale against the Los Angeles Rams and spent the season on IR. 1986: Mark impressed coaches in training camp but saw little playing time in preseason, completing 1 of 3 passes for 12 yards. He was placed on IR with a knee injury.

College, Personal: Ryp's college career followed a path similar to that of his pro career. He had to wait awhile before playing. Mark broke his collar bone his sophomore year and did not play before rebounding to earn first-team Pac-10 honors his junior season. He completed 134-of-270 passes for 1,927 yards and 14 touchdowns. As a senior, he did even better, completing 159-of-273 passes for 2,417 yards and 14 touchdowns. His yardage total was second in school history to Jack Thompson's 2,702. The Cougars averaged 441 yards per game that season, another school record. At Shadle Park High in Spokane, Mark finished as one of the nation's top 10 career passers (423-849 for 6,460 yards and 65 touchdowns). As a senior, he was all-State in football, basketball, and baseball. Mark's younger brother, Tim, played on the Canadian Olympic baseball team. Born in Calgary, Ryp majored in physical education. 1989 Season: It was 3rd and 2 at the Washington 45-yard line with 24 seconds remaining in the half and the Redskins trailing San Diego 14-0 when Ricky Sanders stretched as far as possible to grab a touchdown pass from Mark Rypien. Headlines the following day told of Joe Gibbs' 100th win and Art Monk's record setting day, but Joe Gibbs never lost sight of Ricky's play.

"Without that catch, we're probably not in a position to win," recalls Gibbs. Rounding out The Posse, Sanders was in the shadows much of last season as Art Monk chased Charley Taylor's receiving record and Gary Clark enjoyed his finest season. Yet, his receiving totals rank among the best in Redskin history and compare with his team MVP totals of 1988. "He's put together two great seasons," says Taylor. "He's got a great work ethic and never lets up. He not only puts up big numbers, he makes the big catches." Ricky had huge numbers in the opener against New York (6/143/1), at Los Angeles (12/158/1), and at Atlanta (7/167/0) while narrowly missing 100 yards against San Diego (4/98/1). In addition to his clutch catch against the Chargers, a diving TD catch was for naught in a loss at New York. In Atlanta, his 68-yard reception to the Falcon one-yard line sparked a comeback victory. Then at Seattle in the finale, Ricky showed he could play both ends of the passing game when he hit Monk with a 32-yard pass completion to set up a Redskin field goal. The Redskins also used him four times on reverses and he returned nine kickoffs and two punts. Honors: Selected to all-Madden team.

Pro Career: 1988: From the Monday Night opening game against New York until the final minute at Cincinnati, Ricky was superb. His 12 touchdown receptions tied the club record and were the most by a Redskin receiver since 1965. With 73 catches for 1,148 yards, Ricky was selected the team's 1988 Most Valuable Player by his peers. After warming up with five catches for 79 yards and a touchdown in the opener against the Giants, Ricky caught five passes for 145 yards against Pittsburgh, including a 55-yarder for a touchdown. He exploded again in Week 5 versus the Giants with seven catches for 141 yards and two touchdowns. An 8-yard, game-tying touchdown catch in the fourth quarter against the Saints in Week 10 provided the impetus for a 27-24 victory. Two weeks later, he had six catches for 59 yards and two touchdowns at San Francisco. He had a season-high 10 catches for 128 yards and a touchdown in a 20-19 victory at Philadelphia in Week 14. He completed the year with six catches for 120 yards and a touchdown against Cincinnati. His 12 touchdown catches tied him with Hugh Taylor (1951), Charley Taylor (1966), and Jerry Smith (1967) for the club record. 1987: Sanders smashed Lynn Swann's records in Super Bowl XXII in a performance that did not surprise Skins fans. Ricky flashed his ability early but did not hit stride until midseason. Ricky had six catches for 96 yards in a crucial comeback victory over the Giants, and his 28-yard scoring catch with 4:56 remaining provided the winning points. A week later against St. Louis, his 54-yard, third-quarter catch set up a Redskins' score that gave the team a 31-17 lead. Next came a 47-yard reception against Dallas that set up George Rogers' game-winning score. In the final regular season game against Minnesota, Ricky set the stage for the postseason with eight catches for 164 yards, including touchdown catches of 51 and 46 yards. In the first-round victory over the Bears, Ricky recorded six catches for 92 yards, including a 32-yard grab to set up a score. A 28-yard reverse set up the Redskins' first touchdown against Minnesota in the Championship Game. The climax came in the Super Bowl when Ricky caught nine passes for 193 yards and two touchdowns. In shattering Swann's 161-yard record, Ricky played a role in five Super Bowl marks. 1986: After missing the first five games with leg injuries, Ricky caught 14 passes for 286 yards in limited play. His first NFL catch was good for 71 yards, against the Giants, and his second came in Green Bay on a 26-yard touchdown grab, which tied the game. Ricky had five catches for 94 yards after starting for the injured Gary Clark against the Eagles. 1985-84: Playing in the Houston Gamblers' (USFL) run-and-shoot offense, Ricky was an immediate success with 101 catches for 1,378 yards and 11 touchdowns. Sanders had six games of 100 yards or more and 12 games with seven or more catches. His top game came against Pittsburgh when he caught eight passes for 227 yards. Despite being sidelined for eight games by an injury in '85, Ricky caught 48 passes for 538 yards and seven touchdowns.

College, Personal: Ricky's ability to run after he catches a pass is no coincidence. He was a running back at Southwest Texas State, and finished third on the Bobcats' all-time rushing list with 878 yards on 151 attempts. As a senior, he rushed 141 times for 706 yards and caught 14 passes for 210 yards and a touchdown. He was the Most Valuable Player in the 1982 Palm Bowl with 104 yards on 25 carries. His talents are not limited to football. At Belton High School in Belton, TX, he qualified for the state meet in the pole vault, hurdles, and long jump. He now devotes his free time to honing his golf game. A native of Temple, TX, Ricky and his wife Michelle have a daughter Ashlynn and a son Richard Wayne, and live in Ashburn, VA.

1989 Season: The Redskins found out everything they needed to know about Mark when he was thrown into the injury-plagued starting lineup in the Week 10 win over Philadelphia. After he stood up to Eagles' DT Mike Pitts in a first quarter shoving match, he quietly proceeded to go the whole game without giving up a sack or QB hurry. "We were concerned about Mark making his first start against a line like that," said coach Joe Gibbs. "But he played a tremendous game and for the rest of the year showed what kind of character he has." Coming out of a 1-AA college program, no one expected Mark to make an immediate impact. Now, though, he has proven his worth against some of the league's finest defensive linemen, and the Redskins are counting on him to be around for a number of years. "He's definitely a future star in the NFL," said Gibbs. "He's got super strength, he's an excellent athlete, and has all the pro standards."

College, Personal: Mark played nose tackle, defensive tackle, and center before settling into the guard spot his junior year at Idaho. Despite being hampered by knee and elbow injuries, Mark came back in his senior year to help the Vandals to the 1-AA semifinals and a school-best 11-2 record. When not running from bears in his native Alaska, Mark is one of the most active Redskins in the community. Mark lives in Herndon, VA.

1989 Season: Ed was put to a rigorous test by former Redskins line coach Joe Bugel and passed with flying colors. Given an extended starting role for the first time in his career, Ed truly did the job. Filling in for the injured Jim Lachey (Weeks 9 and 10) and Joe Jacoby (Weeks 11-16) at left and right tackle, Ed proved to be versatile, durable, and consistent. "This year Ed showed that he can go 16 weeks and do a fantastic job," said Gibbs. His skills as a technician and pass blocker, as well as his prototype NFL tackle's size, helped him anchor the right side of an offensive line that allowed just seven sacks in the final eight games. "Ed toughened up to the point where he has become a legitimate tackle," said Gibbs. "You cannot draft a tackle right now that's as good as Ed Simmons."

Pro Career: 1988: Ed served as a quality backup of Lachey and Jacoby at both tackle spots, but saw primary action in all 16 games as a member of the special teams. 1987: Ed made three starts (his first was against Philadelphia's Reggie White) at different spots along the line in his rookie year, but a knee injury against Detroit in Week 9, and subsequent arthroscopy, sidelined him for the remainder of the season.

College, Personal: Ed was a starter at Eastern Washington for four years and did not miss a play his final two seasons. He was named to the Kodak all-America first team his senior season. His first two college seasons were hampered by nagging knee injuries. Despite his size, Ed already had demonstrated his athletic ability at Nathan Hale High in Seattle by lettering twice each in football, basketball, and soccer. "I think we have added a top flight football player who was one of the best players available in the entire Plan B free agency system," said head coach Joe Gibbs. "He's not only one of the best return men around, but he's also a top notch receiver." He enjoyed a career-high 150 yards receiving against Detroit, including a career-best 70-yard scoring play. 1986: Walter finished among the league leaders in all-purpose yardage with 1,617 yards. Besides ranking among the NFC's leaders in both punt and kick returns, Walter posted the conference's highest average per catch with a 20.7 average. Walter became a household name on Thanksgiving Day at Detroit scoring three touchdowns, including an electrifying 83-yard punt return for a score. 1985: After not playing football for three years, Walter still had a productive rookie campaign. 1989 Season: Always seeming to be in the right place at the right time, Fred provided a spark on the defensive line just when it needed it most. Following the suspension of Dexter Manley and the injury to Markus Koch, Fred stepped in as the starter at right end for the last five games of the year, and coincidentally, the team went 5-0. For a part time regular, Fred posted some big numbers: 24 tackles, three sacks, seven QB hurries, a team-high three forced fumbles, two fumble recoveries, and a pass deflection. In his first career start, against Chicago in Week 12, Fred made a career-high seven tackles, forced a fumble, and recovered a fumble. Just the week before against Denver, Fred's sack of Gary Kubiak and subsequent fumble recovery led to Washington's only touchdown of the game. And in the season finale against Seattle, Fred iced the win with a third quarter sack and safety of Dave Kreig. "Fred came up with big plays for us at the end of the year," said Richie Petitbon. "We hope he'll pick up where he left off."

Pro Career: 1988: Fred played the first five games of the year before an ankle injury forced him to miss the rest of the season. As a passing down rusher, he made one sack, recovered a fumble, and made three tackles. 1987: Fred impressed Rams' coaches in training camp as a 12th-round draft choice, but

After starting three games, New Orleans coach Jim Mora decided to stick with Pat for the remainder of the year. He finished the year with eight tackles and one sack. 1986: Pat was originally an 11th round draft choice by the Saints in 1986 and was released during training camp.

College, Personal: A three-year starter and an all-SEC defensive tackle at Mississippi State, Pat came up with 17 career sacks. His most productive year came as a junior when he finished with seven sacks and totaled 92 tackles. Born in Florence, AL, Pat attended Bradshaw (MS) High School.

Games Played/Started: 35/4 - 1987 (5/0)[2/0]; 1988 (14/0); 1989 (16/4)

1989 Season: Listing a position for Clarence is like describing a rainbow with one color — impossible. He started at strong safety the last four games when Alvin Walton was injured and played well enough to challenge for a starting spot in '90. He also played as a nickel back, linebacker, and corner-back against four wide receiver sets. "He has really bailed us out the last couple of years," says secondary coach Emmitt Thomas. "His speed is good enough to help out at corner and makes him one of the fastest safeties in the League." Clarence shed his utility role when he took over for Walton in Week 13 at Phoenix and finished with a team high 11 tackles. The expanded role did not affect his special teams play where he finished tied with Terry Orr for second in total hits.

Pro Career: 1988: Clarence played nickel back, backup safety, and linebacker in passing situations, and also proved a valuable backup at cornerback. His value carried over to special teams where he finished third in kick and punt coverage with 17 tackles. 1987: Drafted as a "project," Clarence successfully made the switch to the secondary in the pro ranks. Clarence played mostly special teams in five regular season games, but had his best success in the playoffs. Playing at linebacker, Clarence made five tackles, including one sack, in the NFC Championship game against Minnesota.

College, Personal: It was hard to imagine Clarence as a pro cornerback when he was making his name at linebacker at Northern Illinois. His 96 tackles as a senior were impressive, but not as much as his 4.45 speed in the 40. Clarence played at Gage Park High School in Chicago before going to Northern Illinois, where he majored in sociology. A chess enthusiast, Clarence is a native of Winchester, Illinois and lives in Reston, VA with his wife, Yolanda.

1989 Season: When the Redskins brought Mike to the team as a Plan B free agent from Seattle, they knew they were getting a smart and proven veteran who would provide depth and consistency at tight end. He did just that. Mike played in all 16 games (for the fifth time in his career) and was used primarily as a running-down tight end and special teamer. When coach Joe Gibbs went to the two tight end set to start games against New Orleans (Week 2), the Giants (Week 6), the Raiders (Week 8), Philadelphia (Week 10), and San Diego (Week 14), Mike was a starter. His lone catch came in the Week 13 win over Phoenix.

Pro Career: 1988: Mike started all 16 games at tight end and had the most productive season of his career, catching 29 passes for 244 yards. His best game of the season came against Kansas City when he caught five catches for 67 yards and returned a kickoff 17 yards. 1987: Mike started 12 games plus the AFC wild-card game. His 14 receptions were the second highest of his career at the time. His best game came against the Raiders when he caught three passes and scored a touchdown. 1986: Having caught a total of 10 passes the previous three seasons, Mike won the starting job in training camp and caught a career-high 15 passes for 150 yards. The only game Mike didn't start came against Cincinnati in Week 11. 1985: Mike filled the role as a reserve and special teams' player. He missed Weeks 7-13 with a broken ankle, which he suffered against Atlanta. Mike broke the ankle midway through the fourth quarter but continued to play on special teams. He returned for the last three games. Both of his catches came against Cleveland. 1984: Mike set a team record for most touchdown receptions by a tight end in a season, scoring three. He started eight of 16 games. He was a key member of the special teams that led the AFC in both punt and kickoff coverage. 1983: He played in 15 games as a short-yardage tight end and special teams' standout. His only start came against Dallas, when the Seahawks opened the game with three tight ends. 1982: Mike took over as the starter during preseason and started all nine games. Of his nine receptions, four came in the opener against Cleveland. 1981: Signed originally as a quarterback, Mike moved to tight end and played in all 16 games as a rookie, starting three.

College, Personal: No stranger to the Washington, D.C. area, Mike was a three-year letterman and two-year starter at quarterback for the University Maryland. He completed 71 of 140 passes for 928 yards his senior season. He threw for five touchdowns and six interceptions. As a junior, he passed for 896 yards and five touchdowns. He was a member of the Terps' team that played in the Sun Bowl and Tangerine Bowl. Mike attended Central Islip High in Central Islip, NY, where he lettered in football, basketball and lacrosse.

1989 Season: The only question for Alvin when the Redskins hosted the Bears revolved around his Pro Bowl chances. "I really thought he was having a Pro Bowl year when he was hurt," said assistant head coach/defense Richie Petitbon. Those dreams vanished like smoke in the wind when a second quarter shoulder injury virtually completed his season. "He does about all you can ask," said Petitbon. "He hits, he doesn't miss tackles, and he makes interceptions." Despite missing the next three games, Alvin finished as the team's leader in tackles for the third straight season with 137. He also finished tied for the team lead in interceptions with four. The Raiders thought he was wearing Silver and Black when he made a season high 16 tackles at Los Angeles. In a win over the Eagles, he had 13 tackles and forced a fumble, and at the Giants Alvin posted 13 tackles and an interception. His biggest play came at Dallas in Week 3 when he stepped in front of a Troy Aikman pass and returned an interception 29 yards for a score.

Pro Career: 1988: Alvin led the Redskins in tackles for the second straight season, racking up a career high 196 stops, including 116 solo. Twelve times

Alvin had 10 or more tackles, including a season high of 18 twice. He accounted for six with three forced fumbles and three interceptions. 1987: Alvin was all over the feild while leading the team in tackles with 148 — 40 more than the next Redskin. He averaged 12.3 tackles per game, and reached double figures in nine of 12 gamess. His interceptions were timely. He had one in the end zone to stop a fourth quarter Ram drive and two against Minnesota including a final theft that came with 1:03 remaining to end a Viking threat and preserve the Redskins' victory. 1986: A midseason injury to Ken Coffey opened the door for Alvin. He finished the season with 75 tackles despite making only four starts. His reckless style of play was obvious from opening week when he had ten hits on special teams. He was solidly entrenched as the starter for the playoffs and responded in the Wild Card game versus the Rams with six tackles, a fumble recovery to set up the first score, and an interception in the fourth quarter to set up the final field goal. A week later against Chicago, Alvin recovered a third quarter fumble to set up a touchdown and a 21-13 lead.

College, Personal: Alvin started at Mt. Jacinto Junior College and gained a scholarship to Kansas with all-conference and all-state honors. In his only season with the Jayhawks, Walton started at left cornerback and made 58 tackles, two interceptions, and a blocked punt. A native of Riverside, California, Alvin attended Banning High School in Banning, California, lettering in football, basketball, and baseball. He is single and lives in Fairfax, VA.

How Acquired: Selected in fourth round of 1979 draft (103rd overall).

1989 Season: Donnie's career in Washington has spanned three decades and three presidential administrations with no signs of fading. Last year was typical, including several clutch catches and his usual reliable blocking. Often overlooked, Donnie was named to the Sports Illustrated NFL-all Pro team last year. His selection may have surprised fans, but only confirmed what his coaches and peers have known for years. "He's one of the players who never concerns you," says coach Joe Gibbs. "Whether during the season or in the offseason, no one prepares and plays harder. He is a great Redskin." He's also someone the team looks for in tough times. When Chicago came to RFK Stadium last November, it was Donnie whose three-yard touchdown catch provided the Skins some much needed confidence. His 15 catches were Donnie's highest total since 1986 when he caught his last regular season touchdown. Although never regarded primarily as a receiver, Donnie's 220 career catches rank 8th in team history behind Larry Brown's 238 receptions. Blocking has been his forte and a healthy Warren played an instrumental role in the improved Skin rushing game. After playing much of the previous season with bruised ribs, Donnie missed only the game at Philadelphia last year.

Pro Career: 1988: Bruised ribs limited Donnie's effectiveness during the season, forcing him out of games 5 and 6, and limiting him in several other contests. Despite his injury, Donnie was there when the Redskins needed him. His 32-yard reception of a Doug Williams' pass with five minutes remaining against New Orleans triggered the winning touchdown drive in a 27-24 victory. 1987: Donnie caught 11 passes and again played an important role in the running game. He played fullback, H-back and tight end. "He was a key to our game plan every week because of his versatility and the number of formations we used," coach Rennie Simmons said. 1986: Finishing the season as the eighth-ranked receiver in Redskins' history, Donnie caught 20 passes for 164 yards. He was named Offensive Player of the Game for his blocking in the wild-card game against the Los Angeles Rams. He caught four passes in a game twice, in St. Louis and against the New York Giants at RFK Stadium. His lone touchdown came in the fourth quarter of the regular-season finale against Philadelphia. 1985: One of three offensive players to start every game, Donnie caught 15 passes for 163 yards. His only touchdown (in the first quarter against the New York Giants at RFK Stadium) turned out to be Joe Theismann's last TD pass. 1984: Don's biggest catch came in Week 15 against Dallas, one that came on third down and gave the Redskins a first down, allowing them to virtually run out the clock and preserve a 30-28 victory. On the season, Don caught 18 passes for 192 yards. 1983: Donnie's 20 catches for 225 yards ranked sixth on the team. He scored two touchdowns with a long gain of 33. His best game came on Monday night against Green Bay (four catches, 70 yards). He missed three games with a bruised back. 1982: The team's third-leading receiver, Don finished with 27 catches for 310

1989 Season: James ranks among the NFL's top 10 in rushing among active rushers with 5,957 yards. He left Tampa Bay as its all-time rushing leader and all-time total yardage leader with 9,449 yards (5,957 rushing/3,492 receiving). He also is the Buccaneers' all-time reception leader with 430 catches and all-time leader in touchdowns with 46. James started four games in 1989 and was Tampa Bay's most consistent running back. He came up with his 42nd and 43rd career 100-yard combined yardage games at Cincinnati (54 rushing/48 receiving) and vs Cleveland (23 rushing/107 receiving). He had a spectacular day vs Cleveland, in addition to gaining over 100 yards in total offense, he had eight receptions with two going for touchdowns. Besides being a multi-dimensional back, he also is a valuable and unselfish special teams player.

Pro Career: 1988: James was on pace for another 1,000-yard rushing season before an ankle injury at Minnesota and a knee injury at Miami ended his season. He had a season-best 91 yards on 20 carries at Green Bay and totaled 107 yards of offense (52 rushing/55 receiving) vs Phoenix. 1987: James led Tampa Bay in rushing (488 yards) and total yards from scrimmage (816 yards) for the sixth straight season, while posting a career-high 4.6 yard rushing average. THE SUPERBOWL

In 1974, the NFL was divided into two 13-team conferences, comprised of the 26 teams formerly competing in the National Football League and the American Football League. Each conference was further divided into three divisions, the winner of each conference to be determined by a playoff of the three division winners plus the second place team within the conference with the best record. The winner of the two conferences meet in the NFL title game – The Super Bowl. An additional wild card team from each conference was added in 1978 and in 1990. In 1982, a special 16-team Super Bowl Tournament determined the NFL Championship.
