The Hall

Generally acknowledged to be one of the greatest players hockey has ever had, and certainly the greatest in Bruins history, Eddie Shore received his Hall of Fame diploma and a rousing ovation before the Bruins-Canadiens play-off game, April 1, 1947. At the same time, his No. 2 jersey, which had been worn by Flash Hollett and Pat Egan, was officially retired.

Just before his 24th birthday, Shore played his first Bruins game against Canadiens Nov. 16, 1926, at the Arena.

The Bruins won, 4-1. Shore scored an assist. He scored his first goal in his second game. His last game with the Bruins was against the Americans at the Garden Dec. 5, 1939. He scored a goal. On Jan. 25, 1940, he was traded to the Americans for Eddie Wiseman, because he then owned the Springfield Indians and could not play all games.

Shore played the last 15 games of his big league career with the Americans. In 16 seasons he scored 117 goals, 181 assists for 298 points, not including the play-offs. He spent 1129 minutes, or 20 hours in the penalty box.

He won the Hart Trophy three times, 1932-33, 1935-36, 1937-38; and was an All-Star defenseman seven times.

Who can name his greatest feat? In April, 1939, he played six play-off games in six nights, three for his Springfield team and three for the Americans, and was going strong at the end. Missing the train to Montreal in January, 1929, he drove all day through a blizzard, reached Montreal at 6:30 P.M., and scored the only goal of a 1-0 game.

Shore hurt and was hurt during his stormy career, but he had a wonderful faculty for carrying on.

One night in Montreal, in 1930, Shore suffered a broken nose, three broken teeth, two black eyes, a cut cheek bone, and a two-inch gash over his left eye, and Elmer Ferguson wrote in the Montreal Herald, "Shore, already acknowledged the greatest hockey player in the game, set the seal on his courage by playing the last period with blood streaming down his face, carrying on until he was at last literally smashed down."

of Fame

The first living player to be awarded a niche in hockey's Hall of Fame was Dit Clapper, coach of the Bruins. He retired for the 15th and last time before the Bruins-Rangers game Feb. 12, 1947, at Boston's most elaborate hockey ceremonies.

Among his gifts were a $1600 silver service from the League, $2000 in government bonds from the fans, a plaque from the writers, a movie camera and projector, a travelling bag, a money clip, and money to go in the clip. Total valuation: $7500.

Into retirement with Clapper went the No. 5 he had worn his last 19 seasons with the Bruins. It joined Lionel Hitchman's No. 3, and soon was joined by Eddie Shore's No. 2.

Clapper has been an All-Star forward and defenseman. When he joined the Bruins in 1926-27, after having played one season for the Boston Tigers under Eddie Powers, he was shifted from defense to right wing by Art Ross. For 10 years he was a leading right wing, then, in 1937-38, was dropped back to defense.

In 20 seasons he scored 228 goals, 246 assists, for 474 points, not counting play-offs. In the free-scoring season of 1929-30, his 41 goals were two shy of Cooney Weiland's record-setting total. He scored his 200th goal in Toronto, Jan. 8, 1941, as the Bruins beat the Maple Leafs, 1-0.

When his Achilles tendon was accidentally severed in Toronto in January, 1942, Clapper's career seemed ended, but he came back to star during the war years.

Clapper distinguished himself not only as a player, but as a gentleman. He was respected as a clean player, but also as one who could take care of himself, as he demonstrated forcefully in bouts with Wally Kilrea, Rabbit McVeigh, and Art Coulter.

As playing coach of the Bruins, he served as road secretary, assistant trainer, dietitian, baggage master, and club jester, yet he won the DuFresne Trophy in 1939-40, and 1940-41.

Clapper is married, the father of two children. He has a store in Hastings, Ont., at which he sells sporting goods.

Pat Egan

MARTIN JOSEPH (PAT) EGAN

Born, Blackie, Alberta, April 26, 1918
 Shoots right. Height 5' 10". Weight 190

The Bruins call him, "The Great Eeg." because whatever he does, Pat does it with a flourish. . . . It's safe to say that nobody winds up more spectacular rushes with more spectacular shots — that usually miss. . . . He inherited and wore Eddie Shore's No. 2, until it was retired late last season, and he kept it in the spotlight. . . . The Bruins traded Flash Hollett for him Jan. 5, 1944, and it proved a good deal in the long run, even if the Leafs beat the Bruins, 12-3, in Pat's first game. . . . His mother called him Martin, but his friends in Calgary called him Pat, because the house he lived in wore a shamrock. . . . His father was born in Ireland, his mother in New York. . . . A scout for the New York Americans discovered him playing at Nelson, B.C. . . . He played at Sudbury Froid Mines, then broke in as a pro with Seattle in 1938-39. . . . The next season he played for Eddie Shore at Springfield. . . . Alternating between Springfield and the Americans, Pat played six games in six nights, getting $193 from the Amerks, $125 from Springfield. . . . The Red Wings bought him for $16,000 when Red Dutton's team folded, but he did not play for them until he had spent the 1942-43 season in the Canadian Army. . . . Last Summer, he married Sally Briers of Mission Hill, a notable social event in the sports world. . . . In 1941 he scored the first major penalty shot goal, against Bert Gardiner of Les Canadiens. . . . A brash broth of a boy, Pat sometimes wears pennies under his shoe laces for luck. . . . Last season he regained the club penalty championship from Bep Guidolin, giving him the title for the third time in four years.

JOHN SHEA CRAWFORD

Born, Dublin, Ontario, October 26, 1916
Shoots right. Height 5' 11". Weight 200

He plays so hard that he wears out more uniforms, tears more stockings, loses more suspender buttons, and breaks more shoe-laces than any of the Bruins with the possible exception of Pat Egan. . . . He doesn't mind being called Shea, but he'd rather be called John than Jack. . . . He is one of the greatest kidders the Bruins have ever had, and often eases pre-game tension with his quips. . . . Inclined to stoutness, Crawford generally hits the peak of condition about the second game of the Stanley Cup playoffs. . . . He has been the most dependable Bruins defenseman in recent years, and in 1944-45 and 1945-46 won the DuFresne Trophy. . . . A rugged but clean player, he has been universally admired by the opposition, and frequently has been chosen for All-Star teams. . . . He has had his share of injuries, in 1939-40 missing 15 games with a chipped elbow, in 1943-44 missing six games with a cracked rib, nine games with a head concussion, and four games with a bruised elbow. . . . A hip injury kept him out of most of last Spring's Cup series with Canadiens. . . . But he has never been hurt by being hit by a program. . . . Married, the father of two boys and a girl, Crawford lives in Newton. . . . During the summer he is a grocery salesman on Cape Cod, apparently eating what he doesn't sell. . . . Born in Dublin, Ontario; starred for St. Michael's Juniors. . . . Also a football player in youth. . . . Always wears helmet on the ice because a paint infection from football headgear took most of his hair. . . . Has been captain or assistant captain of the Bruins in recent seasons.

Eddie Sandford

EDWARD MICHAEL (SANDY) SANDFORD

Born, New Toronto, Ontario, August 20, 1923

Shoots right. Height 6' 1". Weight 180

Milt Schmidt has always been his favorite player, but before this season, the new Bruins forward had seen Schmidt play only twice. . . . Still can't seem to realize he is Milt's teammate. . . . Broke Connie Smythe's heart when he signed with Bruins last Spring. . . . Bruins' Scout Hal Cotton spotted him playing Junior "B" hockey with St. Mikes three years ago. . . . Toronto passed him up as "no prospect". . . Last Winter was rated Canada's outstanding junior amateur player, as he captained and sparked St. Mikes to the Memorial Cup. . . . Smythe, realizing his mistake, made every effort to lure him from Bruins. . . . Sandy signed Bruins' contract while studying for his final exams. . . . "Mr. Ross' offer was so good," he says, "I couldn't turn it down." . . . He still had another year of college. . . . He plans to complete that in the off-season, studying a business course. . . . His hockey style has been compared with that of Syl Apps and Nels Stewart. . . . His Bruins teammates claim he is more like Big Nels, because he is so strong it is difficult to separate him from the puck, and around that net he knows how to score. . . . His dad is president of the Ontario Lacrosse Association and Sandy played in senior competition with Mimico last year. . . . Thought lacrosse rougher than hockey, until he watched the bitterly fought All-Star classic in Toronto. . . . "There's no comparison," he says. "They play for keeps up here." . . . A big, sandy-haired, quiet lad, Sandford and his cousin, Ed Harrison, are the latest Bruins' relative combination. . . . Sandy's dad and Harrison's mother are brother and sister. . . . His biggest hockey thrill was winning the Memorial Cup last year. . . . His most significant performance was figuring in all three goals in the game which clinched the championship. . . . His Bruins teammates hope he still retains his championship lure. . . . Since Sandford began playing organized hockey as a minor bantam at 13, he has always played on title teams.

Murray Henderson

JOHN MURRAY (MOE) HENDERSON

Born, Toronto, Ontario, Sept. 5, 1921

Shoots left. Height 6' 1". Weight 175

He says "uncle" to the Conachers, but only because his mother, the former Dorothy Conacher, is a sister of Lionel, Charlie, and Roy, all big league stars. . . . The Bruins had a nephew-uncle combination for a short time in 1945-46, but broke it up by trading Roy to the Red Wings. . . . The Maple Leafs thought they had this local Toronto player tied up, but the Bruins beat them to the punch, and he joined them late in the 1944-45 season. . . . He went into the service in 1941, was commissioned a Flight Officer in the R.C.A.F. in 1944, and was discharged in February, 1945. . . . He played a few games with the Olympics to condition himself, before playing five games and the play-offs for the Bruins. . . . Tall and rangy, he excels as a stick-checker, and is not easily fooled by double and even triple-shifting forwards. . . . He was rumored to be an amateur boxer, but this he denied when pressed for details, after pinning Teeter Kennedy of Toronto here last winter with a half-nelson and crotch hold. . . . Before the war, Henderson played as a junior with the Young Rangers of Toronto, then on the Marlboro Seniors for the late Eddie Powers, being a teammate of Gaye Stewart's on the latter club. . . . He piloted PBY's and Catalina Flying Boats off the West Coast while in the service. . . . Three times slated to go over-seas, he missed three times. . . . Played a rougher game last winter, and drew three major penalties. . . . His goal at 16:34 of the third period gave the Bruins a 5-5 tie in Toronto late in the season, and clinched third place. . . . Missed most of the play-offs because of an injury.

JOSEPH CARVETH

Born, Regina, Saskatchewan, March 21, 1918

Shoots right. Height 5' 10". Weight 175

Joe Carveth lost something last Spring which may have a definite bearing on his play this Winter. . . . Usually when an athlete loses something, as they say, he is on the downgrade, but Carveth lost only a troublesome appendix. . . . Although he had a fair season last Winter, Joe did not play the hockey of which he is capable. . . . Always a good scorer, he had trouble finding the opposing net early in the season, despite many chances. . . . He would come into the Bruins dressing room after games, squat between Johnny Crawford and Pat Egan, shake his head and moan, "I couldn't put the puck into the ocean." . . . Carveth was a center and right winger a year ago, but this season with a plethora of centermen available, he probably will remain on the right lane. . . . This will be the black, curly-haired starboard shooter's eighth N.H.L. season, his second as a Bruin. . . . He, Les Douglas and Archie Wilder, turned pro as a highly touted line with Detroit's Indianapolis farm team in 1939. . . . Joe, however, is the only one to make the major league grade. . . . But for injuries, he might have been one of the N.H.L.'s brightest stars. . . . While at Detroit, he broke both legs. . . . He became a Bruin last season in the trade which sent Roy Conacher to the Red Wings. . . . The swap was approved by the Bruins, even though Conacher did have a good season, because Carveth, as a Red Wing, had always been poison to Boston. . . . Joe is much the family man, with four lovely daughters. . . . His biggest thrills last year were the games in which he scored three goals once and two another time to whip his old Detroit teammates, and make his ex-manager, Jack Adams, most uncomfortable. . . . Carveth makes his off-season home in Detroit, and keeps in shape physically and financially by working as a milkman.

FERDINAND CARL FLAMAN

Born, Dysart, Saskatchewan, January 25, 1927

Shoots right. Height 5' 10". Weight 190

If Fernie Flaman were a boxer, he would rate highly as a "white hope". . . . The huskie rookie defenseman hasn't yet lost a hockey fight. . . . But Fern, who never backs out of a fight, doesn't look for trouble. . . . A rough, spirited type of player who is constantly boring in, he naturally often becomes embroiled with rival skaters. . . . The colorful 20-year old German lad from Regina was signed five years ago by a Bruins scout while playing juvenile hockey with the Regina Abbots. . . . He was assigned to the Olympics, with whom he played until last Fall, when he turned pro with Hershey. . . . Fernie is a lad wise beyond his years. . . . Already, he has saved enough to buy himself a home in Regina, and to purchase a full kit of electrician's apprentice tools. . . . He also keeps in tip-top shape all the time. . . . He is as tough as steel and seldom misses a game because of injury. . . . This past Summer, Fernie and Ken Smith conditioned themselves by operating Kennie's cement mixer. . . . They poured the cement for many of Regina's new sidewalks and concrete walls. . . . Flaman also played shortstop on the Regina softball team, for which the ex-Olympics netminder, Harvey Bennett, is the ace hurler. . . . As a Pic, he roomed with his fellow Reginans, Smith, Bennett, Joe Schmidt and Mark Marquess in the home of a rabid hockey fan, Eddie Magner. . . . Last Spring he married his landlord's daughter, Jeanne. . . . He hopes to make his home in Boston and has already taken out his first citizenship papers. . . . Flaman was born in the small community of Dysart, 40 miles from the Fort Qu'Appelle birthplace of Eddie Shore. . . . Some might say that is the closest he will ever come to the Edmonton Express. . . . But the blond rookie has the same dash, fire and durability that Shore had when he first became a Bruin back in 1926. . . . Could be.

DONALD CALVIN GALLINGER

Born, Port Colborne, Ontario, April 10, 1925

Shoots left. Height 6'. Weight 185

He was only 17 years old when he joined the Bruins in 1942-43, after having starred the previous season for St. Catherine Junior B's. . . . He had never shaved, and his voice had a trick of suddenly going falsetto, yet from the start he was an aggressive, hustling player. . . . Could have played minor league ball on Braves or Red Sox farms, but it was the big leagues or nothing for Gally. . . . The Maple Leafs had him on their list, took him off for another prospect now forgotten, and the Bruins, on Scout Harold Cotton's tip, grabbed him. . . . After playing half the season in 1943-44, he entered the Royal Canadian Air Force; missed the entire 1944-45 season; returned to lead Bruins in scoring with 40 points in 1945-46. . . . Started and ended 1946-47 season with a knee injury. . . . He missed 13 of the first 14 games, after being hurt in training; then was badly banged-up in the play-offs with Canadiens. . . . Although considered a center, was played some at left wing last winter as the Bruins groped for a winning lineup. . . . Teammates call him Gabby, because of his constant chatter. . . . He likes to play gin rummy, and has no trouble finding opponents, for Bruins rate him soft pickings. . . . But Gally is the nerviest of all Bruins when it comes to wearing flamboyant neckties. . . . One of the eligible bachelors of the team, being tall, blond, and bashful. . . . Well, a little bashful. . . . Had his biggest night in Toronto, Nov. 27, 1943, when he scored three of four Bruins goals. . . . That's when he was center, captain, and ice general of the Sprout Line.

Bill Taylor

WILLIAM JAMES TAYLOR

Born, Winnipeg, Manitoba, May 3, 1919

Shoots right, Height 5' 7", Weight 162

Every time Billy Taylor saw Dit Clapper the past two years, he beseeched the Bruins' coach to engineer a trade which would bring him to Boston. . . . When the slick, blond center joined the Bruins in Hamilton, Ont., after Detroit had swapped him for Bep Guidolin a few days before the N.H.L. season opened, he greeted Clapper, "Boy, I'm glad to be here." . . . Billy had no squawks about his Detroit treatment, until it came time to talk salary the past Fall. . . . Taylor thought finishing third in the individual scoring race a year ago behind Max Bentley and Maurice Richard entitled him to a more attractive contract than offered. . . . He was still a holdout when he joined the Bruins. . . . But only until he met with President Weston Adams. . . . Their conference lasted only a few minutes and Taylor emerged smiling and contented. . . . Billy, who was born in Winnipeg but moved to Oshawa with his parents while still a baby, attracted hockey raves as a junior. . . . He began his career with St. Mikes' junior "B" team, where Toronto spotted him. . . . He played for the Toronto sponsored British Consuls junior "A" team in 1937 and Oshawa Generals the following two seasons. . . . He was a sensation in 1939 when the Generals won the Memorial Cup. . . . In the first game against the highly regarded Edmonton Roamers, he racked up four goals and five assists. . . . The next game he collected five goals. . . . Ed Kreller covered him in the third game and did so well he earned the nickname "Shadow." The Roamers won. . . . But in the final game, with Kreller still shadowing him, Taylor shadowed another Roamer. . . . "I tied up two men so that the other boys had free-wheeling. We won," explained Taylor. . . . He turned professional the next Fall with Toronto. . . . For four years he and the veterans, Lorne Carr and Dave Schriener, formed one of hockey's top lines. . . . They sparked Toronto's 1942 Stanley Cup triumph.

WOODROW CLARENCE (PORKY) DUMART

Born, Kitchener, Ontario, December 23, 1916

Shoots left. Height 6' 1". Weight 200

Left-winger and leading goal-getter on the famed Sauerkraut Line, Porky Dumart had 131 goals for his nine campaigns in the National Hockey League when the season opened. . . . Close behind him was Bobby Bauer, with 122 goals, and third was Milt Schmidt, the play-maker who topped the line in assists. . . . A defenseman when Art Ross first scouted him in 1934, when he played for the Kitchener Juniors, he was moved up to wing by the Boston manager. . . . "Playing wing may be tough at first," Ross told him; "but you can do it with your speed, size, and shot." . . . Dumart trained with the Bruins at St. John's, N.B., in the fall of 1935, and, with his friend Bauer, played his first season with the Cubs. . . . In 1936-37, he and Bauer joined Schmidt as a line at Providence, where Al Ledue first called them the Sauerkraut Line, because they were all descendants of German families that had settled in Canada. . . . In mid-season, Peggy O'Neill was released to Providence, and Dumart and Schmidt were recalled. . . . Scored four goals and four assists the last 18 games of the season. . . . The next season Bauer joined them, and the Krauts were off to fame and fortune with the Bruins. . . . It was largely through their efforts that the Bruins won the Stanley Cup in 1938-39 and 1940-41. . . . It is a good thing for rival wings that Dumart has an agreeable disposition, for he is big and strong. . . . Has never drawn a major penalty, because, he says, "I can't stay mad long enough to fight." . . . Served three years in the R. C. A. F. during the war, but made a fine comeback in 1945-46. . . . Last summer he married Phyllis Johnson of Newton, the third of the Krauts to march to the altar.

MILTON CONRAD (MILT) SCHMIDT

Born, Kitchener, Ontario, March 5, 1918

Shoots left. Height 5' 11". Weight 180

If Milt Schmidt is second to any Bruins player for speed, spirit, and popularity, it is only Eddie Shore. . . . He won the DuFresne Trophy last season after leading the Bruins in scoring with 27 goals and 35 assists for 62 points, and was runner-up to Maurice Richard of Les Canadiens for the Hart Trophy. . . . He was only 17 years old and a 150-pound stripling when he first trained with the Bruins at St. John's in 1935. . . . He had been highly recommended by his Kitchener-Waterloo pals, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart, and Art Ross was quick to recognize his talent. . . . Given a $35 pair of skates and boots, Schmidt was sent home to grow up, which he did to the satisfaction of all. . . . He turned pro and was farmed out to Providence in 1936, where he was played at center between Dumart and Bauer. . . . He was recalled from the Reds several times that first season, coming up to stay Feb. 4, and got into 26 games, in which he scored two goals and eight assists. . . . Schmidt has been called the greatest of modern centers by Art Ross, being fast, game, and tireless, but he demonstrated his versatility last season when he played center, left wing, and defense—sometimes all at once, it seemed. . . . Led league scorers in 1939-40, when he, Bauer, and Dumart finished one, two, three. . . . Because he plays with such abandon, and is a marked man, Schmidt has often been injured, once breaking his jaw, and again cutting his ankle, wrenching his knee, hurting his shoulder, straining his groin. . . . A clean player, but never one to back down, he gets his share of major penalties, usually for tangling with such soft touches as Jack Stewart and Murph Chamberlain. . . . He served three and a half seasons in the R. C. A. F. during the war.

FRANCIS EDWARD HARRISON

Born, Mimico, Ontario, July 25, 1927

Shoots left, Height 6', Weight 160

Great was Ed Harrison's surprise when the Bruins put his name on their negotiation list a few years ago. . . . He had no idea then of playing professional hockey. . . . He didn't think he was good enough. . . . His surprise was even greater last Spring when the Bruins signed him to a contract. . . . "I thought I would at least have to go to Hershey for a tryout before they gave me a contract," he explained. . . . Ed has played hockey since he was 12 years old. . . . Started as a Bantam in St. Mike's grade school. . . . The past two seasons he was one of the star performers on the crack St. Mike's junior college team which was runner-up for the Memorial Cup, junior title trophy, two years ago and winner last Spring. . . . He is also a stellar lacrosse player and for the past few years played for St. Vincent's of Toronto. . . . Before he joined the Bruins, he had seen only four National Hockey League games in his life and only one in which his present team participated. . . . He and his cousin, Ed Sandford, opened the season as B's linemates, but they were soon separated. . . . But, although they played together at St. Mike's they teamed on the same forward trio only a few games in two years. . . . Harrison, a lanky black-haired lad, is kiddingly called "Gabby" by his older teammates, because sometimes he doesn't as much as say "hello" and "goodbye". . . . He speaks little about his own ability, but he admits that his 16-year old kid brother, Gordon, now playing midget hockey for St. Mike's, will be a much better player. . . . "He's bigger and faster than I was at 16," he says. . . . Until St. Mike's went to Western Canada last Spring to capture the Memorial Cup, he had never been away from home for any length of time. . . . Until he joined the Bruins, he had never made a prolonged visit to the United States or ever been in Boston. . . . He doesn't smoke. . . . His favorite beverage is milk.

KENNETH ALVIN SMITH

Born, Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, May 8, 1924

Shoots left. Height 5' 7". Weight 155

Ken Smith has heart and aggressiveness second to none in the N.H.L., although small as major leaguers go. . . . "If he was only bigger," Art Ross has sighed time and again, "he would be one of the league's great players." . . . "Muscles, that's what I need," said the five-foot-seven left winger at the conclusion of last Spring's playoffs, "and that's what I'll have before next fall." . . . So Ken, a native of Regina, spent the Summer as a contractor. . . . Instead of renting out his concrete mixer to local contractors, he hired himself out to operate it. . . . Smith and Fernie Flaman, his teammate and neighbor, worked during the hot summer months building sidewalks and concrete walls. . . . He also played some softball on a team with Flaman and Harvey Bennett, to keep his legs in shape. . . . "Nobody is going to push me around any more, not even Richard," he said, as he headed East, sun-tanned and hardened, a month before the Hershey training camp opened. . . . The "Rocket" nominates Smith as one of the toughest wings to shake. . . . "He's so small, he gets right under Richard," explained Canadiens' coach, Dick Irvin, "and ties up the Rocket. That's why he and another little fellow, Ted Lindsay, are so effective against him." . . . Ken became a Bruin four years ago because of the wartime shortage of experienced players. . . . Despite scoring 20 goals as a freshman, he was sent to Hershey the following year when the old players returned. . . . "Too small," it was said. . . . But injury to Bill Cowley in the middle of the 1945-46 campaign resulted in his recall, and he has been up ever since. . . . His defensive value, killing off penalties and covering Richard, won him his regular post. . . . Last Winter he again found his scoring eye. . . . This will be his most important season. . . . For several years the 23-year old southpaw shooter has been the main support of his widowed mother, two brothers and sister. . . . Last Spring he took on an additional responsibility. . . . He married Dottie Hutter of Elizabethtown, Pa., whom he met while playing for Hershey in 1945.

GEORGE CLARE MARTIN

Born, Waterloo, Ontario, February 25, 1922

Shoots right, Height 5' 10", Weight 185

One of the hardest body-checkers in hockey. . . . That is the reputation Clare Martin, the 25-year-old rookie defenseman holds. . . . Any doubt as to the authority with which the soft-spoken, curly-haired Waterloo husky hits, may be dispelled by Angus Cameron, who back in 1941-42 was considered a most promising Rangers rookie. . . . Cameron was playing with the Rangers' Rovers farm team. . . . Martin was with the Olympics. . . . In the first rush of the first game between these teams in New York, Clare caught Cameron with a devastating body check. . . . The Rover crumpled to the ice, and was out most of the season. . . . He never fully regained his effectiveness, and with the exception of a half-season in the early war years, never has worn a Rangers' uniform. . . . Martin, a neighbor of the famed "Krauts," was recommended by them in 1940. . . . He played the following season with the Olympics. . . . When the war draft left the Bruins' ranks depleted that Winter, he was brought up along with Jack McGill and Lloyd Gronsdal to finish the season. . . . The following year he enlisted in the Canadian Navy. . . . A civilian again three years ago, he was assigned to the Olympics once more with instructions that he be used as a forward. . . . "He lacks only skating to be a major leaguer," explained Dit Clapper. "He'll get plenty of it on the wing." . . . He started last season with Hershey and was called up late in the campaign. . . . A back injury prevented his appearance in a Bruins uniform until just before the Canadiens playoffs. . . . But he showed enough to warrant his being rated a regular defenseman this season. . . . In the off-seasons, Martin is the hard-hitting third baseman on the Waterloo, Ont., baseball team, on which his Bruins' teammate, Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer, and Olympics' goalie, Pat Boehmer, also play. . . . He is one of four right shots on the Bruins' defense.

PAUL RONTY

Born, Toronto, Ontario, December 7, 1928

"Gee, they give you all the ice cream and milk you want after each home game," exclaimed 19-year old blond Paul Ronty on a visit to Boston last Winter during a Hershey schedule layoff. . . . Ronty's fondness for these delicacies, which he consumed in abundance at the Hershey post-game community parties last season, made him at first regret his promotion to the Bruins. . . . That was his goal when he first came to Boston three years ago, a tall, thin lad of 16, to play for the Olympics. . . . Bruins scout, Hal Cotton, had plucked him out of Toronto midget ranks from under the noses of Connie Smythe and his Maple Leafs' talent-hunters. . . . Paul wasn't overstrong, weighing only 145 pounds. . . . But he was fast, clever and loaded with natural ability. . . . At the time, Olympics coach Hago Harrington, said, "This kid passes and thinks on the ice like Bill Cowley, and has much more speed." . . . Ronty got a big bang out of playing on the championship Hershey team in his first "pro" season last Winter. . . . But the greatest thrill of his two years in the Bruins' organization was the night in the Boston Garden three years ago when, playing for the Olympics, he scored four goals in the first 15 minutes of the opening period against the New York Rovers. . . . In the off-season, Paul plays baseball. . . . An avid diamond fan, his favorite player is Johnny Pesky, whom he met during the 1945-46 hockey season in Boston. . . . He is of Finnish descent, and lives in Toronto with his parents. . . . When he played here with the Olympics three years ago, it was the first time he had ever been away from home. . . . He became so homesick once that Harrington sent him back to Toronto for a few days. . . . He shouldn't be lonesome now, for he will have with him teammates of the past two years, Flaman, Martin and Babando. . . . His presence on the Bruins may herald a Stanley Cup this Spring. . . . His two previous seasons were spent with the Olympics, 1945-46 Eastern League champs, and Hershey, 1946-47 American League titlists.

WALLACE LLOYD WILSON

Born, Berwick, Nova Scotia, May 25, 1921

Shoots right. Height 5' 11". Weight 165

His life ambition was to play in the N.H.L., but he almost missed his chance. . . . Wally, a likeable, intelligent chap, had decided to retire from professional hockey last Spring. . . . Property of Toronto, he had been assigned to the Pittsburgh "farm" team the past two years. . . . He felt his play with Pittsburgh entitled him to a chance with the Maple Leafs, which he didn't get. . . . He had five reasons for preferring to remain in Oshawa this Winter than kicking around the American League. . . . His wife, three daughters, Bonnie, 6; Cheryle, 4; and Janice, 2; and a good job in the accounting department of the Oshawa General Motors plant. . . . He had already applied for his amateur card to play with Toronto Marlboros this year when Art Ross made him an offer after obtaining Connie Smythe's permission to deal with him. . . . "The offer was so good I couldn't refuse," he says. "I'll still have my Oshawa job in the off-season. And, heck, I've always wanted to play in the N.H.L." . . . Wally played junior hockey on the Oshawa Generals with Billy Taylor. . . . He turned pro with Hershey in 1941, after a season with the Quebec Aces in the Quebec Senior Group. . . . The next three years he spent in the R. C. A. F. . . . Toronto drafted him from Hershey, and when he received his discharge, he was sent to Pittsburgh. . . . Bruins President Weston Adams spotted him in the American League play-off finals last Spring. . . . Normally a center, the right-shooting, pipe-smoking Wilson has been shifted to the starboard side on the Bruins' third line. . . . In the service, Wally was a flight officer and flying instructor. . . . A buddy was Murray Henderson, with whom he trained and graduated from a Brantford, Ont., R. C. A. F. flying school.

Pete Babando

PETER JOSEPH BABANDO

Born, Braeburn, Penn., May 10, 1925
Shoots left. Height 5' 9". Weight 200

Four years ago in the Bruins' Quebec City training camp, Pete Babando, then a promising amateur defenseman, was loaned to the Navy Montcalm team for an exhibition game against the Bruins. . . . He knocked Bruins all over the ice. . . . Later, in the dressing room he complained, "Gee those guys play rough. I'm going back to junior hockey." . . . He did go back to play for the Galt Red Wings, who were beaten by St. Mikes in the Eastern Memorial Cup semi-finals that Spring. . . . The following season, however, Babando, who was discovered by scout Hal Cotton, joined the Boston Olympics and was an important factor in their sweep to the Eastern League crown. . . . Pete has a background much like Woody Dumart's. . . . He is a converted defenseman and a 200-pounder, although not so tall as the Krauts' stellar left winger. . . . He is fast, busts in nicely from the wing and has a bullet shot, a sure tally when on the mark. . . . Born in Braeburn, near Pittsburgh, Babando returned to Italy with his mother when he was a year old. . . . His dad went to South Porcupine, Ont., to work in a gold mine. . . . Six years later, Pete and his mother rejoined his dad. . . . He is single. . . . His off-seasons are spent playing baseball—a catcher, poor chap. . . . Last Winter with Hershey, he teamed with Paul Ronty and Mark Marquess to give the Bears an effective "kid" line, until it was broken up by injuries to Marquess and himself. . . . If he can shake the injury jinx which has trailed him the past few years, he might well develop into another in the long line of Bruins' standout left wingers. . . . A knee injury shelved him last Winter. . . . The previous two seasons, he was the victim of back injuries.

BRUINS RESERVES

The Bruins have working agreements with the Hershey Bears of the American League and the Boston Olympics, where, on loan, are several players who comprise their reserve strength. Here are a few pertinent facts on each of them:

RONALD MATHEWS — 20 — 5' 11" — 175 lbs. — a right shot, but plays left defense. Born in Winnipeg, but has lived in Edmonton, Alberta. Rated a promising defenseman. Showed up so well at Bruins' training camp, he was assigned to Hershey.

PENTTI LUND — 21 — 6' — 185 lbs. — right wing. First "pro" season with Hershey. The Port Arthur lad was a high scorer for the Olympics the past three years. Born in Helsinki, Finland, emigrated to Canada with brother when only six. Served three years in Canadian Navy. Played one minute for Bruins in final game of Canadiens playoff series last Spring. Married.

BOBBY SCHNURR — 22 — 5' 10" — 160 lbs. — center — fellow townsman of Dumart, Schmidt, Martin in Kitchener, Ont. Played three years with Olympics before joining moneyed ranks with Hershey. Always high scorer. Last year chosen Eastern League's most valuable player. Also a good baseball player. Last Summer was most valuable performer in Ontario Senior Baseball league, as shortstop and pitcher.

THE OLYMPICS STORY

This is the 11th season of league competition for the Boston Olympics, and by far their toughest. The Pics are playing their eighth regular Eastern League schedule, and also a schedule in the Quebec Senior Group. They have 80 games before the play-offs.

The Olympics have changed greatly since they were organized in 1932, by Walter A. Brown, Garden president. Today the Pics have mostly Canadian players. Originally the team had all American college and amateur players.

The original Olympics played their first game in Paris in January, 1932. It was during one of the many European tours Brown made with amateur teams before he became Garden prexy. His players were Gerry Cosby, Ben Langmaid, Bill Elliott, Frank Holland, Chan Hilliard, Red Mahoney, Sherm Forbes, Fuzzy Thurston and Bill Blaney. In 32 games they lost one, a 2-1 decision to Oxford in London, with Brown the referee.

Their first American championship, the National A.A.U. title, was won in 1935. But two years earlier, Brown's touring Olympics won the world's title in Prague, whipping the Toronto Nationals. The 1936 Olympics formed most of the U.S. Olympic team in Germany. This team, with such well-known locals as Gordon Smith, Spain, Moon, Lax, Rowe, Stubbs, and "Hawker" Ross, allowed only one goal in the final round, yet finished third in the Olympics standing.

Until 1937, the Pics played independently, but then they joined the Quebec Provincial League. The team's nucleus was the local U. S. Olympic representatives, plus Harvard's George Ford and Dartmouth's Junie Allen, Paul Guibord and Jack Costello. In three Provincial League seasons, the Pics, who worked by day and played hockey by night and on weekends, won once and tied once.

When the Provincial loop disbanded in 1940, the Pics joined the Eastern League. The past four years they won the league title, and last Spring captured the National A.H.A. Senior Open championship, defeating the Los Angeles Monarchs.

Until Pearl Harbor, the team remained 100 per cent American. Wartime shortages resulted in Canadians replacing local talent, and the Bruins used the Pics for a "farm" team. Canadian grads now on the Bruins are Martin, Flaman, Ronty and Babando. American grads to make the grade were Cliff Thompson and Eddie Barry.

When Eddie Jeremiah resigned as coach to move to Dartmouth, Hago Harrington, ex-Bruin from Melrose, succeeded him in 1937. Hago doubted his ability to make good, but upon Walter Brown's urging, decided to give it a try. He's still the coach.

'36, '38, '39

Tiny Thompson, 1936, '38

Art Ross (coach), 1939

Ralph Weiland (coach), 1941

DURING the past twenty-four years of National Hockey League competition, the greatest hockey players in the world have appeared on Boston ice. The Bruins are proud that many of the all-time hockey greats have worn Boston uniforms. We of the Bruins deeply appreciate the loyalty of the Boston hockey fans over the years and we pledge our best efforts to keep the Bruins tradition building in the years ahead.

Weston W Adams

President.

FRUSTRATION—Joe Carveth golfed and Milt Schmidt poked at the puck, but goalie Bill Durnan of Canadiens stopped the attempted score in 1947 playoffs at Garden.
